 Volumes VII. and VIII. are not sold separately. A copy of the two volumes, postage paid, may be obtained directly anywhere within the limits of the Universal Postal Union, by sending a Postal Order for the price as given below, to The Publication Agent of Harvard University, Cambridge, Massachusetts, United States of America.

The price of this work (being the two volumes VII. and VIII. of the Harvard Oriental Series, taken together) is five dollars ($5.00). According to the conversion-tables used in the United States money-order system as the basis of international money-orders, five dollars ($5.00) = 20 shillings and 7 pence = 20 marks and 92 pfennigs = 25 francs or lire and 75 centimes = 18 kroner and 59 öre = 12 florins and 35 cents, Netherlandish.

Book VIII.

1 The second grand division of the Atharvan collection comprehends books viii.-xii. It consists wholly of hymns of more than twenty verses, and contains all the hymns of that length except such as for especial reasons were placed in the later books. Leaving out of account the later books, there are forty-five such hymns; and these have been divided into five books, of which the first four, books viii., ix., x., and xi., have ten hymns each, while the remaining five hymns make up the twelfth book. regarding ix. 6 and xi. 3 (paryāya-hymns), it may be noted that books viii.-xi. contain all the hymns of from twenty to fifty verses to be found in the first two grand divisions, and that book xii. contains all of more than that number in the same divisions. "Of any other principle of arrangement dependent on the length of the different hymns, no trace is to be observed," says Whitney. For the divisions of book viii, see below. The whole book has been translated by Victor Henry, Les livres VIII et IX de l'Atharva-véda traduits et commentés, Paris, 1894. The commentary (" of Sāyana") breaks off at the end of hymn 6 and we have no more of it till the beginning of book xi. But in lieu of the missing introductions, Shankar Pandurang Pandit gives introductions of his own, modelled on those of the bhāsya, and drawn from the same sources, the Kāuçika, the Keçavī, etc. |

[The Major Anukramaṇī, at the beginning of § 2 of its treatment of book viii., says that, 'up to the end of book xi., the artha-sūktas constitute the norm and the paryāyas, beginning with virād vā (viii. 10.1), the exception': yāvad ekādaçakāndāntam artha-sūkta-prakṛtis, tāvad vihāya paryāyān virādvā-prabhṛtīn iti. And in fact, all through books viii.—xii., and even to the end of book xviii., every arthasūkta is by one ms. or another designated as an arthasūkta (xviii. 2 is an exception, solitary and doubtless casual).—In this place it may be well to enumerate the paryāya-hymns (including those also of the next division) and to print an account of the way in which the mss. present them. The account (barring slight changes) is by Mr. Whitney, and is written on a loose slip of paper found in his Collation-book at viii. 10.1.]

[The paryāya-hymns are eight in number and are scattered over seven different books. Specifically, and with the number of paryāyas in each, they are as follows: viii. 10 (with 6 paryāyas); ix. 6 (with 6); ix. 7 (with 1); xi. 3 (with 3); xii. 5 (with 7); xiii. 4 (with 6); book xv. (18 paryāyas); book xvi. (9 paryāyas).]

They are called paryāya-sūktas in distinction from those among which they occur and which are named artha-sūktas. The separate portions of which they are composed are called each a paryāya [or also paryāya-sūkta]. Each [paryāya taken separately] is in the mss. numbered as to its verses separately; but they [the paryāyas of a given group taken together] so evidently constitute each a whole, as shown by the sense and likewise by the manner in which the Anukramanīs treat them, that we [R. and W.] regarded it as beyond question that they should be numbered continuously, to save a citation by more than three numbers. [In this connection should be consulted SPP's "Critical Notice," prefixed to vol. i., p. 19 ff.]

Each paryāya has its own summing up at the end: if a numbered division corresponding to an rc is composed of more than one divided portion, it is called a gana, and its subdivisions avasāna-rcas or ganā 'vasāna-rcas. Thus the first division of viii. 10] is summed up as follows: paryāyah 1, ganāh 6, ganāvasānarcah 13; and it is by the latter number that the Anukr. treats it. Similarly the third paryāya of viii. 10 is summed up as paryāya-sūktam 1, ganāh 4, ganāvasānarcah 8. Cf. the summation at the end of viii. 10.

In xii. 5 the divisions are called vacanāni or vacanā 'vasāna-rcas. In paryāyas 5 and 6 of xiii. 4 a distinction is made between avasānarcaḥ and ganāvasānarcaḥ, those which have the refrain receiving the latter designation.

The divisions of books xv. and xvi. are likewise paryayas, and their subdivisions are styled avasānarcah or ganāvasānarcah in the same manner.

[The anuvāka-division of each of the ten-hymned books viii.—xi. is into five anuvākas of two hymns each; and that of book xii. (consisting of five long hymns) is also into five anuvākas, but these are of one hymn each, so that here the anuvāka-division and the hymn-division coincide. The comm. divides the anuvākas into hymns in a manner nearly like that described for book vii. (see p. 388): that is, his "hymns" are mechanical decads of verses, with an overplus or shortage in the last "decad" when the total for the hymn (not — as in book vii. — for the anuvāka) is not an exact multiple of ten. A tabular conspectus for book viii. follows:

Anuvāk as .		I	:	2		3	4		5
Hymns	ī	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	. 9	10
Verses	21	28	26	25	22	26	28	24	26	33 T
Decad-div.	10 + 11	10+10+8	10 + 10 + 6	10 + 10 + 5	10 + 12	10+10+6	10+10+8	10 + 14	10 + 10 + 6	6 Р

Here ¶ means "paragraph of a paryāya" (such as is numbered as a "verse" in the Berlin edition) and P means "paryāya." The last line shows the "decad"-division. These divisions are shown also in the Berlin edition. Of these "decads," anuvākas 1, 2, 3, and 4 contain respectively 5, 6, 5, and 5 (in all, 21 "decads"); while anuvāka 5 has 3 "decads" and 6 paryāyas. The sum is 24 "decad"-sūktas and 6 paryāyasūktas or 30 sūktas. Cf. again the summation at the end of hymn 10.

1. For some one's continued life.

[Brahman. — ekavinçakam. ārşy (ārtvy?) āyuşyam. trāisṭubham: 1. purobṛhatī triṣṭubh; 2, 3, 17-21. anuṣṭubh; 4, 9, 15, 16. prastārapañkti; 7. 3-p. virāḍ gāyatrī; 8. virāṭ pathyābṛhatī: 12. 3-av. 5-p. jagatī; 13. 3-p. bhuriñ mahābṛhatī; 14. 1-av. 2-p. sāmnī bhurig

Found also in Pāipp. xvi., with verse 17 after 20. [Partly prose, "verse" 14.] [Hymns 1 and 2 together are used with others in Kāuç. in the upanayana (55. 17) with touching the student's navel, and again with others in rites for long life (58. 3, 11).

The comm. cites them from Naks. K. 23 in a mahāçānti. They are reckoned by Kāuç. to the āyuṣya gaṇa (note to 54. 11). For vs. 10, see below.

Translated: Muir, v. 444; Ludwig, p. 495; Henry, 1, 35; Griffith, i. 385; Bloomfield, 53, 569.

1. To the ender Death [be] homage. Let thy breaths, expirations, rest here. Let this man be here with his life (dsu), in the portion of the sun, in the world of the immortal.

Ppp. puts our second pāda last.

2. Up hath Bhaga taken him, up Soma rich in shoots [hath taken] him, up the heavenly Maruts [have taken] him, up have Indra-and-Agni, for his welfare.

Or ançumant means 'rich in rays,' Soma having its secondary sense of 'moon': both were probably in the author's mind.

- 3. Here [be] thy life, here breath, here life-time, here thy mind; we bear thee up from the fetters of perdition with divine speech.
- 4. Step up from here, O man, fall not down, loosening down the fetter (padbīça) of death; be not severed from this world, from the sight (samdiç) of fire, of the sun.

The mss., as usual, vary between pádvīçam and pádb-, and SPP. adopts the former; the comm. has the latter.

5. Let the wind, Mātariçvan, be cleansing for thee; for thee let the waters rain immortal things; may the sun burn weal for thy body; let death compassionate thee; do not thou perish.

Pavatām 'be cleansing' might properly enough be rendered simply 'blow.'

6. Up-going [be] thine, O man, not down-going; length of life (jīvātu), ability, I make for thee; for do thou ascend this immortal easy-running chariot, then shalt thou in advanced age (?jirvi) speak to the council (vidātha).

Both here and at xiv. 1. 21, our mss. on the whole read decidedly jtrvis (only P.M. have jivris, Bp. jtvis, here), and SPP. reports all his authorities without exception as giving it, so that it is without question the true AV. reading (as against RV. jtvri); the comm. reads ajirvis, and glosses it with ajirnas, and Ludwig renders 'lebenskräftig.'

- 7. Let not thy mind go thither; let it not be lost $(tir\delta-bh\bar{u})$; do not neglect (pra-mad) the living, go not after the Fathers; let all the gods defend thee here.
- 8. Do not regard $(\bar{a}$ - $dh\bar{i}$) the departed, who lead [one] to the distance; ascend out of darkness, come to light; we take hold on thy hands.

. Ppp. begins c with ud ā roha, which makes the pāda a good triṣṭubh; the omission of e'hi would rectify it to an anuṣṭubh. The comm. omits e'hi. Ppp. also reads hastam in d. | With b, cf. v. 30. 12 b. |

9. Let not the dark and the brindled one, sent forth, [seize] thee, that are Yama's dogs, road-defenders; come thou hitherward; do not hesitate; stand not there with mind averted.

Ppp. reads $m\bar{a}$ 'va for $m\bar{a}$ vi in c. The comm. omits $presit\bar{a}u$ in a; he [twice] supplies $b\bar{a}dhat\bar{a}m$ as the missing verb in a.

10. Do not follow that road; that is a frightful one—the one thou hast not gone before, that I speak of; to that darkness, O man, do not go forth; [there is] fear in the distance, safety for thee hitherward.

[Kāuç. reckons the vs. to the abhaya gana, note to 16.8.] Ppp. mutilates tamas in c to tam. The comm. reads purastāt in d. [For iyátha, see Gram. § 801 d.]

11. Let the fires that are within the waters defend thee; let that defend thee which human beings kindle; let Vāiçvānara, Jātavedas defend [thee]; let not [the fire] of heaven consume thee along with the lightning.

Our text should read in d $m\tilde{a}$ $pra \cdot dh\tilde{a}k$; the omission of pra is an error of the press. Ppp. reads $m\tilde{a}$ pra $dah\tilde{a}t$.

12. Let not the flesh-eating [fire] plot against thee; move far from the destroying (sámkasuka) one; let heaven defend, let earth defend thee; let both sun and moon defend thee; let the atmosphere defend from the gods' missile.

Most of the mss. (not our Bp.P.M.I.) read raksatām in d, which SPP. accordingly (following all his authorities) retains, though the accent is not defensible. [I] can find no note to the effect that P.M.I. leave raksatām unaccented. [I] Ppp. puts pādas a, b after c, d. The comm. reads samkusukāt in b.

13. Let both the knower and the attender defend thee; let both the sleepless one and the unslumbering one defend thee; let both the guardian and the wakeful one protect thee.

In bodhá and pratībodhá, in a, the radical sense is perhaps more that of 'wake.' The comm. understands six rishis bearing these several appellations to be intended. [Cf. the closely related v. 30. 10, above; also MGS. ii. 15. 1 a, b, c, d, and the Index to their pratīkas.] A similar formula is found also in K. xxxvii. 10; compare further PGS. iii. 4. 17. Ppp. reads anavadrāniç ca in b. [In b, the first ca might be dropped, without hurting the meter.]

14. Let these defend thee; let these guard thee; to these [be] homage! to these hail!

After gopāyantu, Ppp. inserts te tvām hasassāyatu.

15. Let Vāyu, Indra, Dhātar, the preserving Savitar, assign thee unto converse with the living; let not breath, strength, leave thee; we call after thy life.

The pada-text has samoude in a, and the translation follows this (cf. vyoúși from root vas), as being on the whole probably the understanding of the text-makers; if they had seen in the word anything of the root mud, they would have divided saomúde; and yet it is very likely that it is a corruption for samomúde; the comm. glosses it with sammodaya, as if the reading were sammúde. No variant from Ppp. is noted.

The comm. divides our 15-17 into two long verses, ending 15 with kathå syāh. His intention seems to be to make just twenty verses of the hymn.

16. Let not the jaw-snapping (?) grinder (jambhá), let not the darkness find thee, let not the tongue-wrencher (?); how shouldst thou be one that perisheth? up let the Adityas, the Vasus bear thee, up let Indra-and-Agni, for thy welfare.

The translation implies a bold emendation of the unintelligible jihvå å barhis to jihvåbarhås, formed like muskābarhås [at iii. 9. 2]; Ludwig has a kindred conjecture, å barhis (aor.). The comm. thinks of a demon's tongue stretched to the size of a barhis. The rendering of samhanu agrees with that of the Petersburg Lexicon, and with the comm's first gloss, samhatadanta; he adds as an alternative samhatahanur jambho 'sthāladantah. [But cf. v. 28. 13 and note.] Ppp. reads, for b, mā jihvacaryah prasuyus kathāsya.

17. Up hath heaven, up hath earth, up hath Prajāpati caught thee; up out of death have the herbs, with Soma for their king, made thee pass.

Put after vs. 20 in Ppp., as noted above.

- 18. Be this man just here, O gods; let him not go yonder from hence; him by what is of thousand-fold might do we make pass up out of death.
- 19. I have made thee pass up out of death; let the vigor-givers blow together; let not the women of disheveled locks, let not the evil-wailers, wail for thee.

The 'evil-wailers,' perhaps professional lamenters of death or other misfortune, appear again at xi. 2. 11. The comm., in a, has apiparan, which SPP., without sufficient reason, is inclined to regard as the original reading. For the fuller use of 'blow together,' see 2. 4 below. [For agha-rúd, see Bloomfield, AJP. xi. 339; Caland, Todtengebräuche, Note 106*. See also his note 517.]

20. I have taken, I have found thee; thou hast come back renewed; whole-limbed one! I have found thy whole sight, and thy whole life-time.

The verse is RV. x. 161. 5, which has another $tv\bar{a}$ after \bar{a} 'hārṣam in a, and the voc. punarnava with unlingualized n at end of b, with both of which variants the commagrees, while Ppp. also gives the former. For the lingualized n, see Prāt. iii. 82.

21. It hath shone out for thee; it hath become light; darkness hath departed from thee; away from thee we set down death [and] perdition, away the yaksma.

The comm. also recognizes vy avāt as coming from root vas 'shine,' glossing it with vyāucchat: compare tasmāi vyāuchat PB. xvi. 1. 1. [For the form, cf. Gram. § 890 a and § 167.]

2. To prolong some one's life.

[Brahman. — aṣṭāvinçakam. ārṣy (ārtvy?) āyuṣyam. trāiṣṭubham*: 1, 2, 7. bhurij; 3. āstārapañkti; 4. prastārapañkti; 6. pathyāpañkti; 8. purastāj jyotiṣmatī jagatī; 9. 5-p. jagatī; 11. viṣṭārapañkti; 12. purastādbṛhatī; 14. 3-av. 6-p. jagatī; 15. pathyāpañkti; 19. upariṣṭādbṛhatī; 21. sataḥpañkti; 26. āstārapañkti; 22, 28. purastādbṛhatī; 5, 10, 16-18, 20, 23-25, 27. anuṣṭubh (17. tripāt).]

Found also in Pāipp. xvi., all but the last verse, and with 9 before 8. *[Verse 13 appears to be the one upon the strength of which the Anukr. declares the hymn to be trāisṭubham (its remaining 27 vss. being exceptions!); and even this is no real trisṭubh. It counts indeed 44 (8 + 12:12 + 12) and might be called purastāj jyotiṣmatt.]

1. Take thou hold on this bundle (?) of immortality; unsevered length of life be thine; I bring back thy life, [thy] life-time; go not to the welkin (rájas), to darkness; do not perish.

SPP. with all his authorities save one (which has snú-) reads çnúṣtim in a, and this must doubtless be regarded as the true AV. text: compare iii. 17.2. The comm. glosses it here with prasnuti 'a dripping forth,' and then explains amṛtasya çnuṣṭi as the stream of water which, according to one direction in Kāuç. (58.14), is to be poured out while the hymn is recited. He glosses rajas with rāga, and explains it and tamas as the two familiar guṇas so called: it is, indeed, a little startling to find the two names here side by side.

2. Come thou hitherward unto the light of the living; I take thee in order to life for a hundred autumns; loosening down the fetters of death, imprecation, I set for thee further a longer life-time.

Some of SPP's mss. accent falsely abhyèhi in a. Ppp. transposes the order of c and d, and reads lokam for arvān in a.

3. From the wind have I found thy breath, from the sun I thy sight; what is thy mind, that I maintain in thee; be in concord with thy limbs; speak with thy tongue, not babbling.

The comm. reads in d viçvangāis and ālapan.

- 4. I blow together upon thee with the breath of bipeds [and] quadrupeds as upon [new-] born fire; homage, O death, to thy sight, homage to thy breath have I made.
- 5. Let this man live; let him not die; him we send together; I make a remedy for him; death, do not slay the man.

The majority of the mss. (including all ours save Bp.O.) leave mṛtyo in d accentless. [Both editions read mṛtyo.]

6. The lively, by-no-means-harming, living herb, the preserving, over-powering, powerful, do I call hither, for this man's freedom from harm.

[Pādas a and b are repeated at viii. 7.6.] The accent of the two participles jīvantīm and trāyamāṇām seems to mark them as appellatives rather than proper participles. Naghāriṣā, like naghamārā, seems a fusion of the phrase na ghā (or gha) risyati etc.; the pada-mss. chance mostly to agree in the frequent error of reading r for ri (naghaoṛṣām; Bp. oṛiṣām); the comm. reads and explains nagharuṣām, taking -gha-as representing root han: yasyāh kopo 'pi na ghātakah; he regards the plant intended as the jāḥā (Clypea hernandifolia). Ppp. reads naghāriṣam, adds arundhatīm after sahasvatīm in d, and has hvaye for huve. The long t in oṣadhīm is expressly taught by Prāt. iii. 6; naghāriṣām is mentioned in the introduction to the fourth chapter (add. note 4, at II. 7).

7. Bless thou [him]; do not take hold; let him loose; even being thine, let him be one of completed years (?) here; O Bhava-and-Çarva, be ye gracious; yield protection; driving away difficulty, bestow ye life-time.

The obscure $-h\bar{a}yas$ in b is translated here as if akin with $h\bar{a}yana$ [cf. vs. 8 d]; the comm. glosses $sarvah\bar{a}yas$ with sarvagati; the Petersburg Lexicons conjecture 'having complete liveliness or power.' For san, the comm. reads san [and joins it with srja, supplying $pr\bar{a}n\bar{a}is$].

8. Bless thou this man, O death; pity him; let him go up from here; unharmed, whole-limbed, well-hearing, hundred-yeared by old age, let him attain enjoyment with himself.

Ppp. reads him for 'yam in b, and combines in d-e-hāyanā "tm-. The comm. paraphrases ātmánā in d with ananyāpekṣah san. [Read as 8 + 11 : 8 + 8 + 8.]

9. Let the missile of the gods avoid thee; I make thee pass from the welkin (rájas); I have made thee pass up out of death; removing afar the flesh-eating Agni, I set for thee an enclosure in order to living.

The comm. reads in c nirāuham; SPP. follows grammatical rule and reads -han jīv-this time [cf. note to 1.19.4] because all his samhitā-mss. happen to agree in doing so; some of ours, however, do not. The comm. explains rajasas in b as mūrchālak-sanād āvaranāt. [At 97.6, Kāuç. gives in full, for use in case of a family quarrel (cf. above, introd.), a verse whose first half agrees entirely with the second half of this.]

10. The down-going in the welkin, not to be ventured down upon, which is thine, O death — from that road defending this man, we make bráhman a covering (várman) for him.

The comm. reads in b anavadhṛṣyam; root dhṛṣ + ava is found only in these two derivatives. For rajasám [cf. Gram. § 1209 b] Ppp. has rajasas; the comm. simply paraphrases the former by rajomayam. One or two of the pada-mss. (including our Bp.) leave mṛṭyo unaccented in b; Ppp. elides 'nav- after it; and, in c, combines pathāi 'mam (satisfying the meter).

II. I make for thee breath-and-expiration, old age as [mode of] death, long life-time, welfare; all the messengers of Yama, sent forth by Vivasvant's son, moving about, I drive away.

Ppp. reads in b jarāmṛtyum, and, in d, caratā "rān (i.e. carata ārād?) apa.

12. Afar niggardliness, perdition, away seizure (grāhi), the flesh-eating piçācás, every demon that is of evil nature—that we smite away, as it were into darkness.

Or 'like darkness.' The comm. reads in b purogrāhim, and, in d, eva for iva. Ppp. has tavāi 'va for tat tama iva. 'Afar' and 'away' in a, b anticipate a tweethe 'we smite away' of d.

13. Thy breath I win from immortal Agni, from long-lived Jātavedas, that thou mayest take no harm, mayest be immortal in alliance [with him]: that I make for thee; let that prove successful for thee.

A number of the mss. (including our Bp.E.D.) read rsyās in c. Ppp. has vanave for vanve in b, and yatrā at beginning of c.

14. Let heaven-and-earth be propitious to thee, not distressing, conferring fortune (?abhiçri); let the sun burn weal unto thee; let the wind blow weal to thy heart; let the heavenly waters, rich in fatness (páyas), flow propitious upon thee.

Ppp. combines sūryā "tapatu in c, reads kṣaranti in e, and adds further at the end civās te santv oṣadhtḥ. The comm. gives adhiçriyāu in b, glossing it with prāptacrīke crīprade.

15. Propitious to thee be the herbs; I have caught thee up from the lower unto the upper earth; there let both the Adityas, sun and moon, defend thee.

Ppp. reads \bar{a} 'hāriṣam in b, and ati for abhi in c, and combines -masā ubhā at the end.

16. What enveloping (paridhána) garment thou hast, what inner wrap (nīvi) thou makest for thyself, that we make propitious unto thy body; be it not harsh to thy touch.

SPP. reads, "with all his authorities," $adr\bar{u}ksnam$ in d. Our mss. might doubtless all be understood in the same way, but some of them look more like $-d\bar{u}$ - or $-d\bar{u}$ -; $-r\bar{u}$ -, which our text unfortunately gives, is not found in any; neither $r\bar{u}ksna$ nor $dr\bar{u}ksna$ appears to be met with elsewhere; the comm. glosses with $ar\bar{u}ksna$; he also reads açnute for astu te at the end. Ppp. has 'duksanam. [Vait. (10.6) employs the vs. in the paçubandha on draping the sacrificial post.]

17. In that with a dangerous (? marcáyant) very sharp (sutejás) razor thou, a hair-dresser, shearest hair and beard, adorning the face, do not thou steal away our life-time.

The translation given implies in c the reading cumbhan, which, it can hardly be questioned, is the true one, although it is read by only one ms. (our W.) and by Ppp.; the rest of our mss. all have, and our edition with them, cúmbham. SPP. accepts the unintelligible qúbham, with the comm., and with, as he reports, the majority of his authorities, the rest reading, like ours, çúmbham; the comm. explains çubham with diptain tejasvi and has to supply after it kuru to make any sense. Ppp. further reads -emacrā in b, and māi 'nam for mā nas in c. According to the distinct direction of the Prāt. (ii. 76), we ought to read ayus pra in d, and its authority is sufficient to establish that as the true text, against both the editions; half SPP's authorities give it, though only one of ours (R.); on such a point the mss. are often at odds, and their evidence of little weight. The verse occurs also in several Grhya-Sūtras, AGS. (i. 17. 16); PGS. (ii. 1. 19), and HGS. (i. 9. 16); all read supeçasā in a; in b, HGS. has vaptar, PGS. vapati, AGS. and PGS. keçān; in c, the two latter have cunddhi ciras, HGS. varcayā mukham; in d, AGS. and PGS. give asya for nas; all have āyuḥ pra. Found also MP. ii. 1. 7: see also MGS. i. 21. 7 and p. 153. | Cf. Oldenberg, IFA. vi. 184.

18. Propitious to thee be rice and barley, free from balása, causing no burning (?); these drive off the yakṣma; these free from distress.

Compare Grohmann in Ind. Stud. ix. 399. The comm. does not connect abalāsāú with balāsa, but regards it as a-bala-asa, and glosses it with çārīrabalasyā 'kṣeptārāu. Adomadhāú (cf. adomadám, vi. 63. 1, and note) is very obscure; Ppp. reads instead adhomadhāu; the comm. adomadhū, glossing it with upayogānantaram madhurāu. Ppp. reads yatas for etāu in both c and d, and follows it in d by muñcata mā 'nhasaḥ.

19. What thou eatest (a_{ξ}) , what thou drinkest, of grain, milk of the plowing — what should be eaten, what should not be eaten — all food I make for thee poisonless.

The comm. reads strangely kṛchrāt instead of kṛṣyās in b.

20. Both to day and to night, to them both we commit thee. Defend ye this man for me from the ardyas that seek to devour [him].

Some of SPP's authorities, also the comm. and Ppp., read dadhmasi at end of b. Ppp. further has $r\bar{a}yebhyas$ at beginning of c, and nas (for me) in d. The comm. explains $ar\bar{a}yebhyas$ as $= adhanebhyo dhan\bar{a}pahartrbhyo v\bar{a}$.

21. A hundred, a myriad years, two periods (yugá), three, four, we make for thee; let Indra-and-Agni, let all the gods, approve thee, not showing enmity.

The second half-verse is i. 35.4 c, d. The 'periods' here are not at all likely to be those of the later chronology, though the comm. naturally thinks them so. [Alternatively, he makes yugé = 'generations.'] Ppp. has santu for kṛṇmas in b, and omits te in c. The pada-mss. read te: anu instead of te: anu: compare under i. 35.4. [We had a "sataḥpaākti" at vi. 20. 3.]

22. Unto autumn, unto winter, unto spring, unto summer, we commit thee; [be] the rains pleasant to thee, in which the herbs grow.

Ppp. has again dadhmasi in b.

23. Death is master of bipeds; death is master of quadrupeds; from that death, lord of kine, I bear thee up; [so] do thou not be afraid.

Ppp. reads for d ud dharāmi sa mā mṛta | intending mṛthās? |.

24. Thou, unharmed one, shalt not die; thou shalt not die, be not afraid; [men] die not there, nor go to lowest darkness.

Ppp. gives in c pra miyante—a better reading, as rectifying the meter. [Pāda b occurs as vs. 1 a of a khila to RV. i. 191, with the two clauses inverted.]

25. Every one, verily, lives there—ox, horse, man, beast—where this charm (bráhman) is performed, a defense (paridhí) unto living.

The verse has a correspondent in TA. (vi. 11. 12), but with a different first pada: TA. makes it ná vat tátra prá miyate (nearly as our 24 c in Ppp.).

26. Let it protect thee from thy fellows, from witchcraft, from thy kinsmen; be thou undying, immortal, surviving; let not thy life-breaths (dsu) leave thy body.

Ppp. reads sugantubhyas at end of b.

27. The deaths that are a hundred and one, the perditions (nāṣṭrā) that are to be over-passed — from that let the gods free thee, from Agni Vāiçvānara.

Ppp. reads in b nāṣṭrātta (-tu?) jīvyāḥ. [See note to iii. 11. 5 for "101 deaths."]

28. Agni's body art thou, successful (pārayiṣṇú); demon-slayer art thou, rival-slayer, likewise expeller of disease, a remedy pūtúdru by name.

Pūtūdru is (OB.) Acacia catechu or Pinus deodora; the comm. reads pūtadru and does not attempt on p. 587 to identify it.* The mss. vary between -nū and -nūs at end of a; our edition reads -nūs (with our P.M.E.s.m.); SPP. adopts -nū, with the great majority of his authorities; the comm. has -nus; Ppp., as noticed above, lacks this verse. There is little to choose in point of acceptability between the two readings. * As noted in the introd., the use of the hymn is followed in Kāuç. 58. 15 by the binding on of pūtu-dāru (so Bl's text, with the variant pūta-; in citing the text, at p. 568, comm. has pūti-). This is explained by Daç. Kar. as an "amulet of deodar," devadārumaņi; and so Dār. and Keç. to 8. 15, and comm. p. 567 end.

[The first anuvāka, 2 hymns and 49 verses, ends here. The quoted Anukr. (cf. end of h. 1) says ādyasahitam.]

3. To Agni: against sorcerers and demons.

Found also in Pāipp. xvi. (in the verse-order I-4, 6, 5, 7-14, 18, 15, 17, 16, 19-22, 24, 26, 25, 23). The first 23 verses are (in slightly different order *) vss. I-23 of RV. x. 87, and most of them are found in no other text. [Cf. Oldenberg, Die Hymnen des RV. i. 246.] *[Namely, with 4 after 6, with 17 and 18 inverted, and with 12 between 21 and 22.]

[Kāuç. reckons the hymn to the cātana hymns (8.25). The comm. says (p. 587, l. 18 ff.) that the whole anuvāka, that is hymn 4 as well as 3, is to be used in a variety of practices, which he details. In the vaçāçamana ceremony (44.16), after the victim's "breath has been stopped" with ii. 34.5, the performer takes his place at her right and mutters this hymn. Vs. 22 (not 21) is identical with vii. 71.1, which was prescribed at 2. 10 for use in the parvan sacrifices, to accompany the carrying of fire thrice about the offering. Moreover, verses of this hymn are used in four expiatory rites as follows: vss. 15-18. accompany an oblation (112.1) made when the cows give bloody milk; vs. 26 is used with vi. 63.4 if spontaneous combustion occurs (46.23); and the same vs. is used (130.3) when there appears a bright glow without any fire; and yet again (131.3), when the fire puffs (cvasati). Finally, the same vs. is used by Vāit. (6.11) in the agnyādheya (with vi. 19.2 etc.) with an offering to Agni Çuci.]

Translated: Henry, 7, 43; Griffith, i. 392.

1. I pour ghee upon $(\bar{a}\text{-}ghr)$ the vigorous $(v\bar{a}jin)$ demon-slayer; I go for broadest protection to the friend; Agni, sharpened, [is] kindled with acts of skill $(?kr\acute{a}tu)$; let him by day, let him by night, protect us from harm.

This verse is found further in TS. (i. 2. 146); neither RV. nor TS. offers a variant reading.

2. Do thou, of iron tusks, O Jātavedas, kindled, touch the sorcerers with thy flame (arcis); take hold of the false-worshipers with thy tongue; cutting off (?) the flesh-caters, shut them in thy mouth.

The comm. reads dhṛṣṭvā in d, paraphrasing it only with dharṣitvā. RV. has vṛktvī, which is most probably to be referred to root vṛṭ. Ppp. has datsvā (for dhatsva).

3. Apply both thy tusks, thou that hast them in both jaws (ubhayāvin), the lower one and the upper, being harmful, sharpened; also in the atmosphere go about, O Agni; put together thy grinders upon the sorcerers.

RV. reads dánstrā at end of a, and rājan for agne at end of c. Ppp. has dehy [in a, apparently] and api for abhi in d.

- 4. O Agni, split the skin of the sorcerer; let the harmful thunderbolt smite him with flame (háras); crush his joints, O Jātavedas; let the flesheating, flesh-craving | one | divide him.
- RV. (vs. 5; its vs. 4 is our 6) reads vrknám for enam at the end. The comm. understands 'a wolf or the like' in d, and takes vi-ci as 'scatter about, dragging him to and fro to eat him.' It more probably refers to the flesh-eating Agni.
- 5. Wherever now, O Jātavedas, thou seest a sorcerer standing, O Agni, or also moving, also flying in the atmosphere, him [as] archer, pierce with a shaft, being sharpened.
- RV. (vs. 6) has a quite different c, ydd vā 'ntárikṣe pathibhih pátantam. Ppp. (vs. 6) reads in d viddhi çarvā. Many mss. (including our Bp.W.E.O.T.) have sárvā in d.
- 6. By sacrifices, O Agni, straightening (sam-nam) thine arrows, by speech smearing their tips with thunderbolts with them pierce in the heart the sorcerers; break back (pratīcás) their arms.
- 'By sacrifices,' by speech'— i.e. in virtue of our offerings and praise. RV. (vs. 4) offers no variant; Ppp. (vs. 5) reads calyam in b.
- 7. Both those that are seized do thou win (spr), O Jātavedas, and also the sorcerers that have seized with spears; do thou, O Agni, first, greatly gleaming, smite [him] down; let the variegated raw-flesh-eating kṣviākās eat him.

This verse differs somewhat, and inconsistently, from RV., which has alabdham in a, and, without utá, alebhānāt . . . yātudhānāt in b, giving the clear sense 'win away him that is seized from the sorcerer that has seized him,' and agreeing with the sing. tâm in d. The AV. version yields no acceptable meaning; and most of the samhitā-mss. read ārabdhām in a (including our P.M.W.I.: some of the others not noted), as if the word were after all a singular. The comm. reads kṣvaākās in d, and explains it simply as pakṣiviçeṣās. He gives a most absurd version of a, b: 'protect (us) who have begun (to praise thee) and (slay) with spears the sorcerers who have made a noise'! [Comm. seems to read rebhānān and to take it from root ribh: cf. note to vs. 21.] Ppp. has our version of a, b, except that it reads utā "lab- in a, and omits uta in b [i.e., if I understand R., it appears to begin b with ārebhānān].

8. Proclaim thou here which that [is], O Agni — the sorcerer that is doing this; him take hold of with the fuel, O youngest [god]; subject him to the eye of the men-watcher.

RV. inserts another yds at beginning of b, and Ppp. has the same. The comm. reads krnosi (explaining it [alternatively] as = krnoti) at end of b, and yavisthya at end of c. [Better, perhaps, in a, 'Proclaim which one he [is]' etc.]

9. With sharp eye, O Agni, defend thou the sacrifice; conduct it forward to the Vasus, O forethoughtful one; thee that art harmful, greatly gleaming against the demons, let not the sorcerers injure, O menwatcher.

Ppp. reads hinsrā at beginning of c. The comm. appears to regard abhiçoçucānam as a compound.

10. A men-watcher, do thou look around for the demon among the people (viksú); crush back his three points (ágra); crush, O Agni, his ribs with flame (háras); cut up threefold the root of the sorcerer.

The comm. attempts no explanation of the 'three points,' but simply glosses agra with uparibhaga.

11. Let the sorcerer thrice come within thy reach (? prásiti), who, O Agni, slays truth (rtd) with untruth; roaring [at] him with thy flame (arcis), O Jātavedas, do thou put him down (ni-yuj) before the eyes of the singer.

Our nt yundhi at the end is a weakened corruption of RV. nt vṛndhi, which is read also by Ppp., the comm., and one of SPP's authorities. SPP. reads yungdhi, not heeding the rule of the Prāt. (ii. 20) to the contrary. [Cf. his bhangdhi in vs. 6. And in his "Corrections" to vol. ii., he is at pains thrice to correct vṛndhi of p. 71-2 to vṛngdhi.] The majority of the mss. (including all ours save D.R.p.m.K.) accent agne in b; both editions, of course, emend to agne. The comm. paraphrases prasitim with jvālām; he does not deign to add any explanation to sphūrjayan. The occurrence of enam in d seems to require us to regard tâm as object of sphūrjayan.

12. What, O Agni, the pair utter in curses today, what harshness (tṛṣṭā) of speech the reciters (rebhā) produce: the shaft that is born of fury of the mind — with that pierce thou the sorcerers in the heart.

'That' in d is fem., as if referring to the 'shaft' alone; and the comm. regards a and b as describing faults caused by the sorcerers, which Agni is to requite — which is doubtless the true connection. Mithunā is explained as = strīpunsāu, and çapātas as = parasparam ākroçatas. The verse is RV. vs. 13, its vs. 12 being found much further on, as our vs. 21. Ppp. again reads viddhi for vidhya in d.

- 13. Crush away the sorcerers with heat; crush away, O Agni, the demon with flame (háras); crush away with burning (arcis) the false-worshipers; crush away the greatly gleaming ones that feed on lives (? asutip).
- RV. (vs. 14) is quite different in d: párā 'sutrpo abht çóçucānaḥ. The comm. paraphrases asutrpas with paraprāṇāir ātmānaṁ tarpayantaḥ.
- 14. Let the gods crush away today the wicked one (vrjind); let [his] curses sent forth go back upon him; let shafts strike (rch) in the vitals him who steals by [magic] speech; let the sorcerer come within every one's reach.
- RV. (vs. 15) reads tṛṣṭās (for ṣṛṣṭās) at end of b, and the comm. and one of SPP's authorities have the same. The comm. this time paraphrases prāsitim with prakarṣeṇa abhibhavitrīm hetim, adding as alternative agner jvālām.
- 15. The sorcerer that smears himself (sam-aħj) with the flesh of men, who with that of horses, with cattle, who bears [off] the milk of the inviolable [cow], O Agni—their heads cut thou into with flame.

Ppp. reads bharata in c. [The acreeyena of Aufrecht's RV.2 seems to be a misprint.]

- 16. Let the sorcerers bear [off] poison of the kine; let them of evil courses fall under the wrath of Aditi; let god Savitar abandon them; let them lose their share of the herbs.
- 'Lose': lit. 'have it conquered from them.' RV. (vs. 18: RV. inverts the order of our vss. 16 and 17) reads pibantu for bharantām (with Ppp.) in a, has the proper passive form vrçcyantām in b (Ppp. has mrddhyantām), and leaves enān unlingualized in c; the lingualization in our text is by Prāt. iii. 80, where the commentary quotes this passage.
- 17. Yearly [is] the milk of the ruddy [cow]; of that let not the sorcerer partake (ac), O men-watcher; whatever one [of them], O Agni, would fain enjoy (trp) the beestings, him do thou pierce back in the vitals with thy burning (arcts).

Our pada-text divides wrongly $m\vec{a}: \vec{a} \in \mathcal{U}$ in b; RV. has the true reading, $m\vec{a}: a \in \mathcal{U}$. RV. also has $m\vec{a} = m\vec{a}$ at the end, making the tristubh verse regular. Ppp. once more reads vidhi (not viddhi this time) for vidhya in d, and marman after it.

18. From of old, O Agni, thou killest the sorcerers; the demons have not conquered thee in fights; burn up the flesh-eaters together with their dupes (? mūrá); let them not be freed from thy heavenly missile.

We had this verse above, as v. 29. 11. The only variant in the version of RV. (vs. 19) is that, in c, sahámūrān is put after ánu daha; Lso also SV. i. 80, which has besides kayādas for kravyādas. The comm. regards -mūrān as for -mūlān, and renders it mūlasahitān 'together with their roots,' and it is perhaps one of the cases contemplated by Prāt. i. 66 — at least, the commentary there quotes this passage as one of the instances of substitution of r for l; and it is very likely that the tradition is right.

- 19. Do thou, O Agni, from below, from above, do thou defend us from behind and from in front; let those [flames] of thine, unaging, extremely hot, greatly paining, burn against the evil-plotter.
- RV. (vs. 20) reads $\hat{u}dakt\bar{a}t$ at end of a, and $t\ell$ for $ty\ell$ in c; in the latter case, the comm. does the same; he supplies $sphuli\bar{n}g\bar{a}s$ as the missing noun in c, d. An accentmark has dropped out in our edition under the -du- of paccad uta in b.
- 20. From behind, in front, below, and above, do thou, O Agni, a poet, protect us about with poesy; [as] friend a friend, [as] unaging in order to old age, [as] an immortal mortals, do thou [protect] us, O Agni.
- RV. (vs. 21) reads again údaktāt for utó 'ttarāt in a, also rājan for agne at end of b, and sákhe at beginning of c; and it combines -mné 'gne between c and d. The comm. has martyān in d.
- 21. Set thou in the reciter, O Agni, that eye with which thou seest the hoof-breaking sorcerers; Atharvan-like, with brightness of the gods, scorch (us) down the truth-damaging fool (actt).

The obscure epithet in b is divided in pada-text çapha-ārújah (RV. -jam, and later yātudhānam). The comm. is in part obscure: çaphārujah çaphavat çaphāh: nakhā ity arthah; but he adds as alternative atha vā paçurūpadhārinām çaphā api sambhavanti: tāir ārujanti'ti çaphārujah: i.e. 'breaking things with their hoofs.' The irregularity of meter allows us to suspect the tradition of the word. The comm. also strangely explains rebhe as çabdam kurvate rakṣase! [Root ribh: cf. note to vs. 7.] Ppp. reads in d aditi for acitam.

The verse is RV. vs. 12, where it is decidedly better in place.

22. Thee the devout, O Agni, powerful one, would we fain put about us [as] a stronghold, [thee] of daring color, day by day, slayer of the destructive one.

We have had this verse above, as vii. 71. I; for its different correspondences and variants, see the note at that place; [but Ppp. here ends with bhangurāvatām]. The comm., though he notes it as 'explained above,' goes on to give a new explanation, curiously accordant with and yet not a little different from the other; the most important point of difference is that, in explaining pari dhīmahi, he there gave us our choice between parito dhārayāmaḥ and paridhim kurmaḥ, while here he gives us our choice between the latter and dhyāyemahi. The real reason of the repetition probably is that he this time reads at the end bhangurāvatām, with RV. [and Ppp.], while before he had no variant from our AV. text. [Here and in vs. 23, W. queries his version of bhang- as he did at vii. 71, which see.]

23. With poison smite thou back the destructive ones, the demoniacs, O Agni, with keen brightness (cocis), with heat-pointed flames (arci).

RV. in b lingualizes the particle to sma, and reads daha for jahi; and it ends d with rsttbhis instead of the anomalous arctbhis. Ppp. has in c çukrena instead of tigména.

The RV hymn ends with four anustubh verses, of which only the first two find place thus in our text.

24. With great light Agni shineth out; he maketh all things manifest by his greatness; he forceth away the ill-conditioned ungodly wiles; he sharpeneth his two horns to gore the demons.

All the authorities read at the end vintksve, and even the comm. is with them, calling the v a Vedic accretion ($vak\bar{a}ropajanac$ $ch\bar{a}ndasah$). RV., in the corresponding verse (v. 2. 9: repeated without variant in TS. i. 2. 147), has vintkse, which our edition reads by emendation, SPP. retaining the totally inadmissible v, which seems to have blundered into the word out of vt niksva in the following verse. RV. (and TS.) has before it raksase (sing.).

25. The two horns that thou hast, O Jātavedas, unaging, of keen thrust, sharpened by devotion (bráhman) — with them do thou gore, O Jātavedas, the attacking enemy (durhárd), the advancing kimīdín with thy flame (arcis).

At the end of this verse, nikṣva seems to have been taken for a 2d sing. middle; but it is doubtless a corruption* for nikṣa, the root showing an a-stem elsewhere. Ppp. avoids the error by reading nrcakṣaḥ; and also yātudhānam for arciṣā before it, which gets rid of yet another difficulty of construction, though it makes the irregular meter yet worse. In our edition, in d, the accent-mark which should stand under the do of jātavedo has slipped out of place to the left, under ve. * We must assume that the corruption is an old one if the v of vinlkṣve is to be ascribed to it. Since the forms from stem nikṣa- are so few (in 3 AV. verses), perhaps we might after all assume that this is a root-class imperative, nikṣ-ṣva.

26. Agni drives off the demons, he of bright brightness, immortal, bright, purifying, laudable.

This verse is RV. vii. 15. 10, and is found also in TB. (ii. 4. 16) and MS. (iv. 11. 5); the text is the same in all. [Ritual uses, above.]

4. Against sorcerers and demons: to Indra and Soma.

Found also in Pāipp. xvi. (with exchange of order between 4 and 5, and between 19 and 20). It is, with no change of order of verses, and with only few and insignificant variants, RV. vii. 104; not a verse occurs further in any other text, so far as known.

[No ritual use of the hymn is prescribed either by Kāuç. or by Vāit. But the comm. regards this hymn as used with the preceding one in a variety of practices: see h. 3.]

Translated: by the RV. translators; and as AV. hymn by Henry, 10, 47; Griffith, i. 396.

1. O Indra-and-Soma, burn the demon, oppress (ubj) [him]; put (arpay) down, ye two bulls, them that thrive in darkness; crush away, scorch down the fools (acit); slay, push, pin $(c\bar{a})$ down the devourers.

Tamovēdh may be (so Ludwig) 'increaser of darkness.' The comm. has nothing better than hins to suggest for ubj.

2. O Indra-and-Soma, against [abhi] the evil-plotter, the evil, let heat boil all up [sam-yas] like a fiery pot; assign unavoidable hate unto the brahman-hating, flesh-eating kimīdin of terrible aspect.

The construction and meaning of the first half-verse are doubtful; the comm. glosses yayastu with simple gacchatu. RV. has $agniv\dot{a}n$ instead of $-m\dot{a}n$ in b. In our edition, the accent-sign which should stand under gni in this word has slipped to the right, under $m\ddot{a}n$. [Here W. seems to take sam as intensive and to render its force by "all up." Neither in BR. nor in the Index is it joined with yas: but cf. $sa\dot{m}$ - $y\ddot{a}sa$.]

3. O Indra-and-Soma, pierce ye the evil-doers within their hidingplace (vavrá), in untenable darkness, whence there shall not come up again any one soever of them; be that your furious might unto overpowering.

RV. reads at beginning of c yathā nā 'taḥ pún-. In our edition read duṣkṛto in a.

4. O Indra-and-Soma, cause to roll (vrt) from the sky the deadly weapon, from the earth also, a shattering for the evil-plotter; shape out from the mountains (párvata) the noisy one, wherewith ye burn down the increasing demon.

The comm. glosses svaryd with svaranārha. Ppp. has the easier reading pra haratam for vartayatam in a.

5. O Indra-and-Soma, cause [it] to roll forth from the sky; with fire-heated, stone-smiting, unaging heat-weapons do ye pierce the devourers in the abyss; let them go to silence.

Ppp. reads divas for yuvam in b; the comm. has in d nihsvaram, which would be a good reading, but is against the pada-texts of both RV. and AV. (niosvarám).

- 6. O Indra-and-Soma, be there about you on all sides this prayer (mati), as a girth [about] two vigorous $(v\bar{a}jin)$ horses, the invocation $(h\delta tr\bar{a})$ that I send forth to you with wisdom; these acts of worship (brahman) quicken ye like two lords of men.
- RV. reads in d nrpati 'va, as the meter demands, and so do our P.M.W.R.T.K. and part of SPP's authorities, also the comm., and Ppp., and this is, almost beyond question, the true text; but SPP. adopts in his edition nrpati iva, with the remainder (a majority) of his samhitā authorities. The pada-reading is probably nrpati ive 'ti nrpatioiva, as all the pada-mss. except our Bp. (both copies) appear to read, and as the RV. pada reads; but we should altogether expect nrpati 've 'ti nrpatioiva, as Bp. reads. The anomaly of the addition of tti after iva instead of after nrpatī (first time) is noted in Prāt. i. 82 c; the Prāt. takes no notice of the exceptional combination nrpatī 'va which is, to be sure, an argument against its right to stand in the samhitā-text: see note to Prāt. iii. 33. The retention of dental n in hinómi after pari is prescribed by Prat. iii. 88. Ppp. reads instead pra hinomi. [Cf. Geldner, Ved. Stud. ii. 134.]
- 7. Remember ye with [your] rapid courses; smite the haters, the destructive demoniacs; O Indra-and-Soma, let there not be ease $(sug\acute{a})$ for the evil-doer, the hater that at any time vexes me.
- RV. reads, in d, nas for mā, and druhā for druhús. Ppp. ends with (for abhi...) api kā cid ud ūhuḥ. The retention of dental s in práti smar- is by Prāt. ii. 102; the passage is there quoted in the commentary. Our comm. glosses tujayadbhis with balavadbhis, and attenuates the difficult prati smarethām to prati gacchatam.
- 8. Whoever reviles with untrue speeches me walking with simple mind—like waters grasped with the fist, let the speaker of what is not be [himself] non-existent, O Indra.

The comm. glosses abhicaste with abhiçāpam karoti. The long initial vowel of āsatas (p. āsatah) is by Prāt. iii. 21, iv. 90; the passage is there quoted.

9. They who distract (vi-hr) with [their] courses him of simple intent, or who spoil at their will (svadhābhis) what is excellent — let Soma either deliver them up to the serpent, or let him set them in the lap of perdition.

The comm. declares svadhā in b an annanāma, and renders svadhābhis by annāir nimittabhūtāih, 'for food'! An accent-mark is wanting in our text over the ya of dūṣáyanti in b.

10. Whoever, O Agni, tries to harm our taste of drink, of horses, of kine, whoever of our bodies — let the enemy, the thief, the theft-committer, go to want (dablrá); let him be degraded with self and with posterity.

RV. reads in by o açvanam yo gavam, and the comm. does the same. [But SPP. reports that Sāyaṇa's text reads b thus: ye aç. ye g. yas t.] A number of our mss. (P.M.W.R.K.) read vi for ni at beginning of d, but SPP. reports no such variant among his authorities. The form sa after ni here is not quoted in the Prat. commentary. [Join nas rather with the genitives of a and b?]

11. Be he far away, with self and with posterity, be he beneath all the three earths, let his glory dry up, ye gods, who by day and who by night tries to harm me.

RV, reads in d nas instead of mā.

12. It is easy of understanding for a knowing man (jána) [that] true and untrue words (vácas) are at variance; of them what is true, whichever is more right, that Soma verily favors; he smites the untrue.

Ppp. reads paspṛçāte at end of b.

- 13. Soma by no means furthers the wicked [man], nor the kshatriya who maintains [anything] falsely; he smites the demon; he smites the speaker of untruth; both lie within reach of Indra.
- 14. If I am one of false gods, or if I put upon (? api-ūh) the gods what is vain, O Agni why art thou angry with us, O Jātavedas? let them of hateful speech obtain (sac) misery of thee.
- RV. reads āsa instead of āsmi at end of a. The comm. renders te in a sif it were tė; for the difficult apy-ūhė he gives simply vahāmi (mogham vyartham devān stotavyān yaṣṭavyānç ca apyūhe vahāmi).
- 15. May I die today if I am a sorcerer, or if I have burnt (tap) a man's lifetime; then let him be divided from ten heroes who vainly says to me "thou sorcerer."

The comm. glosses virāis with putrāis, which is probably its virtual meaning: 'may he lose ten heroic sons.' Our pada-text differs from that of RV. by dividing daçdobhih in c. Ppp. reads pāuruṣasya in b.

16. Whoever to me that am no sorcerer (\dot{ayatu}) says "thou sorcerer," or whatever demoniac says "I am pure (\dot{cuci}) " — let Indra smite him with a great deadly weapon; may he fall lowest of every creature.

Ayatu doubtless literally 'that have no yatu or familiar demon' (though the proper accent in such case would be ayatu), opposite of yatumant 'possessing such a yatu,' or yatudhana 'holding or containing such.'

17. She who goes forth in the night like an owl (?), hateful, hiding herself away—may she fall down into an endless hole (vavrá); let the [pressing-] stones smite the demoniacs with [their] noises.

RV. again (as in 7 d) reads druhā for druhās in b; also vavrān anantān dva in c. Ppp. reads dūhas in b; and the comm. has upa instead of apa. He glosses khargālā with ulūkī.

- 18. Scatter yourselves, O Maruts, among the people (vik sii); seek, seize, crush (sam-pis) the demoniacs, who, becoming birds, fly in the nights, or who have put defilements (ripas) on the heavenly sacrifice.
- RV. has bhūtvi in c. SPP. reads izchata in a, because the great majority of his authorities give it. This is contrary to the established usage of both RV. and AV. (but in accordance with that of SV.), although in nearly every such case a part of the mss. lengthen the vowel; part of ours do the same here, as elsewhere. The comm. glosses ripas with hinsās; and dadhire with dhārayanti!
- 19. Cause the stone to roll forth from the sky, O Indra; [it,] sharpened by Soma, do thou wholly sharpen, O liberal one; from before, from away, from below, from above, do thou smite upon the demoniacs with a mountain.
- RV. reads in a $d\epsilon m$ after $div\delta$, and some of SPP's authorities do the same. RV. has also $pr\hat{a}kt\bar{a}d$ $dp\bar{a}kt\bar{a}d$ and $udakt\bar{a}d$ in c; the directions admit also of being understood as from east, west, south, and north.
- 20. Here fly these dog-sorcerers ($cvdy\bar{a}tu$); Indra the unharmable they the harm-seeking seek to harm; the mighty one (cakrd) sharpens his deadly weapon for the treacherous ones (cakrd); now may he let fly (cakrd) the thunderbolt at the sorcerers (cakrd).

The epithets like $cvdy\bar{a}tu$ in this verse and below in vs. 22 seem by their accent (and by comparison with $y\bar{a}tum\dot{a}nt$ and $y\bar{a}tudh\dot{\bar{a}}na$) to signify strictly one having a dog (etc.) for his familiar demon.' The comm. glosses with $cvar\bar{u}padh\bar{a}rinah$ $cvasahit\bar{u}$ $cvar\bar{u}$. Ppp. combines at end of $cvar\bar{u}$ $cvar\bar{u}$

21. Indra was the crusher-away of the familiar demons $(y\bar{a}t\acute{u})$, of the oblation-disturbers, of them who strive to win upon [it]; let the mighty one $(gakr\acute{a})$ attack them that are demoniacs as an ax the woods, splitting [them] like vessels.

RV. reads eti in d, and no small share of the AV. mss. (the majority of SPP's) do the same (including our P.s.m.I.D.R.p.m.Kp.); both editions give etu. The AV. pada-text, like the RV., divides and accents in b abht: āovtvāsatām. The Petersburg Lexicons treat the abhi as if in direct combination with the participle; and they translate 'approach with hostile intent,' which is highly arbitrary. The comm. gives no aid, rendering simply abhimukham gacchatām. Ppp. reads in b -matīnām. [W. would probably have changed "crusher-away" to "demolisher" on the revision.]

22. The owl-sorcerer, the owlet-(?)sorcerer smite thou, the dog-sorcerer and the cuckoo-sorcerer, the eagle-(? suparná-)sorcerer and the vulture-sorcerer—do thou destroy (pra-mṛṇ) the demon, O Indra, as if with a mill-stone.

As to the renderings of these various names for sorcerers, see under vs. 20. For çuçulūka- Ppp. has çulūka-, the comm. çiçulūka-. The translation of it is a mere guess, to avoid transferring the word.

- 23. Let not the sorcerous demon reach us; let the kimīdíns that are paired fade away; let the earth protect us from earthly distress, let the atmosphere protect us from heavenly.
- RV. reads, in a, b, yātumāvatām apo 'chatu mithunā yā kimīdinā. Ppp. has kimīdinām. The comm. glosses apo 'chantu with simple apa gacchantu. The padadivision of yāt- in a is yātuomāvat both in AV. and in RV.; the word is the subject of Prāt. iv. 8.
- 24. O Indra, smite the man sorcerer, likewise the woman who is prevailing with magic $(m\bar{a}yd)$; let the neckless false-worshipers vanish (?rd); let them not see the sun moving upward.

The obscure rdantu in c is glossed by the comm. with nacyantu; Ppp. reads rujanta instead. $C\bar{a}cad\bar{a}n\bar{a}m$ the comm. explains as $= hi\bar{n}sattm$.

25. Look thou on; look abroad; O Soma, Indra also, watch ye; hurl ye the deadly weapon at the demons, the thunderbolt at the sorcerers (yātumánt).

5. Against witchcraft etc.: with an amulet.

Found also (except vs. 18) in Pāipp. xvi. *[The Berlin ms. reads -garbhā "stāra-, which is more nearly right.]

[Kāuç. uses the hymn, with iii. 5 etc., to accompany the binding on of an amulet in a rite (19.22) for general prosperity; and again, with ii. 11 etc., in a rite (39.7) against witchcraft. It is reckoned (note to 19.1) to the pustika mantras. To the svastyayana gana (note to 25.36) are reckoned vs. 18 (not 15: and probably not xix. 20.4, which has the same pratīka as 18) and its fellow vs. 19; and to the abhaya gana (note to 16.8), vs. 22. The comm. cites from Nakṣ. Kalpa (19) the use of the hymn in a mahāçānti called rāudrī. Vāit. passes the hymn unnoticed.]

Translated: Henry, 14, 50; Griffith, i. 400; Bloomfield, 79, 575.

1. This reverting amulet, a hero, is bound on a hero; heroic, rivalslaying, true hero, a very propitious protection.

The comm. calls the amulet tilakavṛkṣanirmita, thus [cf. comm. to vss. 4, 8] identifying tilaka and srāktya. Ppp. omits our b and the first words of our c, reading as its b sapatnahas suvīrah: then paripāṇaḥ etc.

2. This amulet, rival-slaying, having excellent heroes, powerful, vigorous, overpowering, formidable, a hero, goes to meet the witchcrafts, spoiling [them].

Ppp. reads etu in c.

3. With this amulet Indra smote Vritra; with this he, being filled with wisdom, ruined the Asuras; with this he conquered both, heaven-and-earth here; with this he conquered the four directions.

Ppp. reads, for c, anena dyāvāprthivī ubhe ajayat.

4. This amulet of sraktyá, back-turning, reverting, forcible, remover of scorners, controlling—let it protect us on all sides.

Ppp. reads manis again for vaçt in c; also viçvatas at the end.

5. This Agni says, this also Soma says, this Brihaspati, Savitar, Indra; let these gods, my representatives (puróhita), drive the witchcrafts backward with the reverters.

In this verse and the next, Ppp. has the better reading pratisarena for -rāis in d. The first half-verse is found again below as xix. 24. 8 c, d. [Cf. also MS. i. 5. 3. The first pāda recurs at xvi. 9. 2.]

- 6. I interpose heaven-and-earth, also the day, also the sun; let these gods, my representatives, drive the witchcrafts backward with the reverters.
- 'Interpose'— i.e. between me and what I dread. Ppp. pratisarena in d, as noted above; also, for b, utāi 'va brahmanaspatim; and, at beginning of c, te te devās pu-.
- 7. The people who make the amulet of sraktyá their defenses—like the sun ascending the sky, it, controlling, drives away the witchcrafts.

Ppp. puts iva after divam in c.

- 8. By the amulet of $srakty\acute{a}$, as by a seer $(\acute{r}si)$ full of wisdom, I have conquered all fighters; I smite away the scorners, the demoniacs.
- 9. The witchcrafts that are of the Angirases, the witchcrafts that are of the Asuras, the witchcrafts that are self-made, and those that are brought by others—let these, of both kinds, go away to the distances, across ninety navigable [streams].
- 'Self-made' (svayamkrta), doubtless 'made by ourselves'; the comm. so understands. 'Navigable'—i.e. not to be crossed without the help of a boat. SPP's mss. do not punctuate between b and c, but the comm. does so, like our edition. Ppp. combines krtyā "āgirasīr, has for b yāḥ krtyā "surīr uta (the addition rectifying the meter), and combines in f nāvyā 'ti; and in c it puts yās after krtyās.
- 10. On this man let the gods bind the amulet [as] defense: [namely,] Indra, Vishņu, Savitar, Rudra, Agni, Prajāpati, Parameshṭhin, Virāj, Vāiçvānara, and all the seers.

11. Thou art the chief (uttamá) of herbs, as the ox of moving creatures (jágat), as the tiger of wild beasts (çvápad); whom we sought, him have we found, a watcher near at hand (?).

The mark of division in this verse is badly placed in our edition; it should be after <code>cvapadam iva</code>, as in the mss. <code>[and SPP's edition]</code>. SPP. reads at the end, with all the mss., <code>antitam;</code> the comm. this time (cf. the note to vi. 4. 2) gives us our choice between taking it as one word (= atyantasamnihitam) or two (= tam eva antike); Ppp. avoids the difficulty by reading instead adhruvam. To me the emendation to <code>anti tam</code> seems unacceptable. The comm. reads before it <code>pratispacinam</code>. Prāt. iii. Io notes the double form <code>cvapad</code> and <code>cvapad</code>. The first three pādas are found again below as xix. 39. 4 a, b, c; the irregular uttamas instead of uttamā seems due to the influence of the two masculine nouns in the double comparison.

- 12. He verily becomes a tiger, likewise a lion, likewise a bull, likewise a lessener of rivals, who bears this amulet.
- 'Lessener'—lit'ly 'one who makes lean'; but, though all the mss. and both editions have -kárçana, it can hardly be otherwise than a misreading for -kárṣaṇa, which the comm. gives. Ppp. has a wholly different c, sarvā diço vi rājati (as our 13 c), and so deprives us of its witness.
- 13. Not Apsarases smite him, not Gandharvas, not mortals; he reigns over (vi-raj) all the quarters who bears this amulet.
- 14. Kaçyapa created thee; Kaçyapa collected thee; Indra bore thee in human wise (?); bearing [thce], he conquered in the conflict (?); the amulet, of thousand-fold might, the gods made their defense.

The obscure mānuse, in c, the comm. explains as [a collective] = mānusesu madhye; he reads in d samçresane, which is much more acceptable; one is inclined also to conjecture samçresino jayat. Ppp. brings no help, only reading abadhnata for akrnvata at the end.

[The comm. reckons our e, f as a separate verse, the 5th of his "decad," thus making this "decad" come out with 13 vss. (instead of 22 - 10 = 12, as in the Berlin ed.).

15. Whoever with witchcrafts, whoever with consecrations, whoever with sacrifices desires to slay thee — him do thou, O Indra, smite back with the hundred-jointed thunderbolt.

The omission of the second yás tvā would rectify the meter of a.

16. Let this back-turning, forcible, all-conquering amulet verily defend [our] progeny and riches, a very propitious protection.

Ppp. reads $sahasv\bar{a}n$ instead of $ojasv\bar{a}n$ in b. Our text should, for consistency, read $ojasv\bar{a}nt$ s-.

17. Freedom from rivals for us below, freedom from rivals for us above, freedom from rivals for us behind, O Indra, light in front make thou, O hero.

Or the directions may be understood as south, north, west, and east. Ppp. has, for c, indra piçācam nas paçcāt.

18. A defense for me [be] heaven-and-earth, a defense the day, a defense the sun, a defense for me both Indra and Agni; a defense let Dhātar assign $(dh\bar{a})$ to me.

Compare AÇS. i. 2. I [and ApÇS. xiv. 26. I] with a, b; both substitute agnis for ahar. The verse, as noted above, is wanting in Ppp. The comm. omits me in c. The first half-verse occurs again as xix. 20. 4 a, b.

19. Indra-and-Agni's abundant formidable defense, which not all the gods together pierce through — let that, being great, save my body on all sides, that I may be long-lived, attaining old age.

With d compare VS. xxxiv. 52 d, which differs from it only by reading at the end the irregular form dsam. Ppp. has te for me in c, and asat in d though the pronoun calls for asas.

20. The divine amulet hath ascended me, in order to great unharmedness; enter ye together unto this post (? methi), body-protecting, thrice-defending, in order to vigor (ójas).

Ppp. reads tvā instead of mā in a, and enyam instead of methim in c. The comm. questions whether mahyāi in b means mahatyāi or mahyam! The difficult and doubtful second half-verse puzzles him (as us) greatly: first he regards 'men' as addressed (he narāh), and takes methi as 'a stirrer-up, a destroyer of enemies,' or alternatively as a post in a threshing floor (methī khale yatho'cchirā vartata evam ayam apī'ti; or, secondly, the gods are addressed, and methi means an amulet representing such a post (methīsthānīyam maṇim).

21. In this let Indra deposit manliness; this, O gods, enter ye together unto, in order to long life-time of a hundred autumns; that he may be long-lived, attaining old age.

22. Giver of welfare, lord of the people, Vritra-slayer, masterful remover of scorners, let Indra bind [for thee] the amulet, [he] that has conquered, is unconquered, soma-drinking, fearless-making bull; let him defend thee on all sides, by day and by night on all sides.

The majority of mss. (nearly all SPP's) put no pause at the end of d (after aparā-jitaḥ). The first two pādas are nearly the same with i. 21. 1 a, b, above (and with other texts: see the note to that verse). Ppp. omits a, b, and reads (better) sarvadā instead of sarvatas at end of f. | An accent-mark is lacking under the so of somapāḥ. |

Here also ends the eighteenth prapathaka.

6. To guard a pregnant woman from demons.

[Mātṛnāman.— ṣadvinçam. mātṛnāmādevatyam uta mantroktadevatyam. ānuṣṭubham: 2. purastādbṛhatī; 10. 3-av. 6-p. jagatī; 11, 12, 14, 16. pathyāpañkti; 15. 3-av. 7-p. çakvarī brāhmaṇaspatyā; 17. tathā jagatī.]

Found also in Pāipp. xvi., Lbut with vs. 8 before 7, vs. 15 between 11 and 12, and vs. 24 between 13 and 14 |.

[The hymn is reckoned by Kāuç. (8.24), with ii. 2 (which see) and vi. 111, to the mātṛnāmāni. It is employed in the sīmanta rite (35.20) in the eighth month of a woman's pregnancy with binding on an amulet "as specified in the text" (cf. vs. 20):

Dār. and Keç. and comm. (p. 636¹, p. 648⁸) say an amulet of white and yellow mustard; the Ath. Paddh. seems to prescribe a "talisman in the form of a doll made of red and yellow mustard plants" (?) and reaching from the woman's neck to her navel. In Dārila's note on the same passage (35.20), vs. 18 is specially cited for the same rite. The hymn is not noticed by Vāit.

Translated: Weber, Ind. Stud. v. 251; Ludwig, p. 523; Henry, 17, 54; Griffith, i. 403.

1. The two spouse-finders which thy mother rubbed up for thee when born (fem.) — for them [tátra] let not the ill-named one be greedy, the allinça nor the vatsápa (calf-drinker or -protector?).

Weber (and Zimmer after him: p. 321) conjectures that the two 'winners of a husband' are the breasts, and that the reference is to the ceremonious washing of the young child. The numerous names of evil beings in the hymn are in good part unknown elsewhere and untranslatable; of some of them tentative versions can be added in parenthesis. The comm. reads alicas in d, and explains it as ali + ica [taking ali as diseases (or deities representing them) that fly about like bees].

2. Palāla (straw) and anupalāla (after-straw), çárku, kóka (cuckoo), malimlucá (robber), palijaka, the entwiner (āçréṣa), the wrap-garmented, the bear-necked, the winking one.

Ppp. reads culkam for carkum in a; in b, malimṛtam palītakam; in c, açleṣam, and adds [cf. vss. 5, 23] at the end muṣkayor apa hanmasi 'we smite away in the pudenda,' which gives a construction to the accusatives of which our text is alone made up. The comm. gives in b palīcakam; he supplies nācayāmi to govern the accusatives.

3. Approach (sam-vṛt) thou not; creep thou not on; creep not down between the thighs; I make for her a remedy, the bajá, expeller of the ill-named.

Ppp. reads javam instead of bajam in d. The comm. identifies baja with the white mustard (qvetasarṣapa) [see introd.].

4. Both the ill-named and the well-named — both seek approach (samvṛt); the niggards (arāya) we smite away; let the well-named seek what is woman's (strāina).

Ppp. reads icchatām at end of b, and omits the second half-verse. The comm. explains strāiņam as striyāḥ sambandhy aūgaṁ strīsamūhaṁ vā; he takes -nāman from root nam. The n of durṇāman is prescribed by Prāt. iii. 84.

5. The ásura that is black, hairy, tuft-born, also snouted (túndika) — the niggards we smite away from her pudenda, from her buttocks (bhánsas).

Ppp. reads, in c, d, asyā bhansaso muskayor apa [cf. vss. 2, 23].

6. The after-snuffling, fore-feeling, and the much-licking flesh-eater, the niggards, the dog-kiṣkins, hath the brown bajá made to disappear.

Ppp. reads, for c, rāyaç çukaşkiṇam; the comm. has ca kişkiṇas (for çvakiṣ-); and he explains kişkin to mean either 'uttering the sound kiş kiş,' or 'constantly injuring' (from the root kişk).

7. He who lies with (ni-pad) thee in sleep, having become [like] a brother and like a father — them, eunuch-formed, tiara-decked (tirīţin), let the bajā force (sah) from here.

Tirtțin = 'womanish,' as wearing a distinctive woman's head-dress; the comm., however, paraphrases the word with antardhānenā 'tataḥ, as if from tiraḥ-aṭin! Ppp. puts the verse after vs. 8, and reads suptām for svapne in a, and, in c, d, vajas tam . . . klībarūpām kirīṭinam. [Cf. RV. x. 162. 5-6 with our vss. 7-8.]

8. He who surprises (tsar) thee sleeping, who tries to harm thee waking — them the circling (pari-kram) sun hath made to vanish away like a shadow.

Both translators understand the second half-verse to mean 'them hath the baja made to vanish, as the sun the shadow,' and the comm. takes it in the same way; but, though that may be the virtual sense, it is not what the line actually says. Ppp. reads, in a, suptām chinatti, with ca for tvā in b. The comm. has carati instead of tsarati in a. Nearly all our mss. (all save D.R.) read jāgratim at end of b, but SPP. strangely reports no such variant from any of his authorities.

9. Whoever makes this woman one having a dead child (-vatsá), or a miscarriage, him, O herb, do thou make disappear, lustful [accusative] for her, slippery.

The last pāda is very obscure and doubtful, and quite otherwise understood by the translators; the version given follows the Petersburg Lexicon. The comm. interprets kamalam by garbhadvāram, and añjivam by abhivyaktimad mlakṣaṇopetam vā, and supplies to them kuru. Ppp. reads instead kamalavam dyuvam; it also reverses the order of mṛtāvatsām and dvatokām in a, b. Añjivām (p. añjiovām) is quoted under Prāt. iv. 18 as an example of a word made with a taddhita-suffix beginning with v.

10. They who dance around the dwellings (çálā) in the evening, making donkey-noises — they that [are] kusúlas (granaries) and kukṣilás (paunchy), exalted (kakubhá), karúmas, srímas — these, O herb, with thy smell do thou make to disappear scattered.

One or two of our mss. (as of SPP's) read strlmāh (I.) or sṛmāh (W.) at end of d, or omit the visarga before it (M.s.m.W.O.). Ppp. reads, for c, d, kuçūlā yaç ca kukṣulā kakubhā svarasā (samā?) sumā; the comm., for the last two words, has kharumāh çrumāh; he interprets kusūlās as kusūlākṛtayas, kukṣilās as bṛhatkukṣayas, and kakubhās as arjunavṛkṣavad bhayamkarākṛtayas. [Over "exalted" W. has interlined "humped?" As for sríma, cf. sṛma in OB.]

11. The kukúndhas, the kukúrabhas, that bear skins (kṛtti), pelts (? dūrçá), dancing on like impotent men, that make a noise in the forest—them we make disappear from here.

Ppp. reads kakundhāş karūrabhāş krţyāir duriçāni bibhrati: klīvāi 'va pr. ghoṣām ye kurvate vane. The comm. has krkandhāh kukūravāh krţyāir dūṣyāṇi.

12. They who do not endure yonder sun, burning down from the sky, the niggards, buck-clothed, ill-smelling, red-mouthed, the mákakas, we make to disappear.

Ppp. reads in c rāyām vastavāsino, and, in e, mṛṣakān for makakān. In bastavāsin, Weber understands -vāsin as 'smelling,' the Petersburg Lexicons (also Ludwig alternatively) as 'bleating' (for -vāçin); the comm. avicarmavasanān. [For the verse-sequence in Ppp., see above.]

13. They who, putting their excessive self on the shoulder, carry [it], thrusters-forth of women's hips — O Indra, make the demons disappear.

The comm. has several different explanations of the first half-verse, the translators as many more; a literal rendering seems admissible enough. Ppp. reads for b ahim mādhāya bibhrati.

14. They who go before a woman, bearing horns (pl.) in the hand, stayers in the oven, laughing out, who make light in the tuft — them we make to disappear from here.

All our mss., and nearly all those of SPP., read badhvàs in a, and our edition follows them. SPP. gives in his text vadhvàs, with the commentator. In c, he adopts āpāke-sṭhās, with a small minority of his mss., and directly against Prāt. ii. 94, which prescribes -sthās. One would like to emend to apāk- 'standing aloof.'

15. Of whom the front-feet are behind, the heels in front, the faces in front, who are threshing-floor-born, dung-smoke-born, who are úrundas and maimaiás, pot-testicled, ayāçús (impotent?) — these from her, O Brahmanaspati, do thou make to disappear by attention (? pratībodhá).

Ppp. reads in c çākadh-, in d ye ca mayyajā, and in e combines -skā 'yāç-. Some of our mss. (Bp.P.M.W.), as of SPP's, read múkhāh at end of b. The comm. has, for d, arundā ye ca muṭmuṭāh; he explains ayāçavas by ayo vāyur vāyuvad āçugāminah.

16. With eyes cast about, not looking forward (? apracankaça), womenless be the eunuchs; make to fall down, O remedy, him who, not her husband, tries to approach this woman that has a husband.

The comm. reads in a pracaūkaçās, and strangely explains it [alternatively] as = prakṣīnorupradeçās; for paṇḍagās in b he has pannagās (pādena na gacchantaḥ); for pādaya in c, pātaya. Ppp. gives in e ṣvapati.

17. The bristling, hermit-haired, grinding up, much handling one, hastening up, copper-colored, snouted (? tundéla) and çaluda, pierce thou forth with the foot, with the heel, as a kicking cow a pot.

Doubtless the concluding word should be spandanā, as given by SPP., in accordance, as he claims, with all but two of his authorities. The mss. are always so careless and untrustworthy in their distinction of sp and sy that it must be the sense rather than their testimony that decides in any case which is the true reading. Ppp. appears to have syandanā. The combination upéşantam (p. upaséṣantam: Ppp. upeçantam) is according to Prāt. iii. 52; the passage is quoted in the commentary to that rule; the comm. [and his text] read here upāiṣ. The comm. also has çālaḍam (Ppp. çālūḍham) in d, and takes prā vidhya (Ppp. pravṛddhi) in e as pravīdhya, gerund. Further, he has prāsyāt instead of pārṣṇyā, and, at the end, spandanāt. His verse-division is different from ours, as he reckons e, f to vs. 18. He explains marīmṛçam in b as = punaḥpunar mrçantam. Ppp. has, for udumbalam tundelam, adaram sulatundenam.

18. Whoever shall handle thy embryo, or shall make it born dead—let the brown one, with formidable bow, make him pierced to the heart.

The comm. explains prati mṛçāt by pīḍayet. The ā of hṛḍayāvidham, and its non-division in pada-text, are the subject of Prāt. iii. 3, iv. 68. [Delete the accent mark under tu in d.]

19. They who suddenly make die those that are born, [who] lie by the bearing [women] — the Gandharvas, woman-seekers (?), let the brown one drive, as the wind a cloud.

Ppp. begins ye sto j-, and ends abhrāi vātāi va rājatu. The comm. explains amnojātān as = ardhotpannān. The Prāt., ii. 52, expressly prescribes that the final of amnāh is not [convertible into] r—which seems a plain acknowledgment that at a later period the word was treated as being amnār.

20. Let [her] maintain what is left (?); what is set, let not that fall down; let the two formidable remedies, to be borne in the under garment, defend thine embryo.

Parisystam in a is very hard to deal with, both on account of the meaning and because combinations of root srj with pari are hardly met with; the Pet. Lexicon suggests emendation to -cristam; as both Ppp. and the comm. have -cistam, I have taken the liberty of so translating. The comm. paraphrases it by homādiviniyogāvaçistam sarṣapadvayam [see the introduction] and makes it the object of dhārayatu. Ppp. also reads yujyatam for yad dhitam in b, and, at the end, nivabhāryayāu. [Whitney queries for a: 'Let what is wreathed about (pari-srj) maintain.' This might refer to bandages swathed around, to support the abdomen. In b, hitám would refer to the embryo (cf. dhātā dadhātu etc.), and ava pādi to untimely delivery (cf. i. 11.4-6).]

21. From the rim-nosed, the $ta\overline{n}galva$, the shady (?chayaka) and naked, from the kimīdin, let the brown one protect thee about for progeny, for husband.

Or chāyaka may come from root chā, and so signify 'tearing' or the like; the comm. reads instead sāyakāt. Ppp. has at the beginning pavāinasā taā-.

22. From the two-mouthed, the four-eyed, the five-footed, the fingerless one, from the much twining twiner $(v\bar{v}nta)$ that creeps forth upon [one], do thou protect [her] about.

All the pada-mss. most absurdly divide anamoguréh at end of b; SPP. properly emends to anañguréh, but why "with Sāyaṇa" is not evident; Ppp. reads anañguleh; and further has, in c, vṛddhād adhi pra-. SPP. seems to regard the comm. as reading abhiprusarpatah.

23. They who eat raw meat, and who the flesh of men, the hairy ones [that] devour embryos — them we make to disappear from here.

Ppp. combines at the beginning yā"mam, and has in place of our d'rāyān [combined keçavārāyān] asyā bhansaso muṣkayor apa hanmasi (as in its version of our 5 c, d—cf. 2). The pada-reading keçavāh is quoted in the commentary to Prāt. iv. 18.

24. They that creep away from the sun, as a daughter-in-law away from her father-in-law—let both bajá and pingá pierce in into their heart.

Pari in a, though compounded with the verb, has the value of a strengthener of the ablative sense of sūryāt, as ádhi in b of that of çváçurāt. [Cf. Geldner, Ved. Stud. i. 270.]

25. Pingá, defend thou [the child] in process of birth; let them not make the male female; let not the egg-eaters injure the embryos; drive thou the kimīdins from here.

In b, lit'ly 'not make the man a woman.' Ppp. puts the mā after pumānsam.

26. Childlessness, still-birth, also crying, guilt (agha), barrenness $(?\bar{a}vaya)$ — that do thou attach to [our] enemy (apriya), as if having made a garland from a tree.

Ppp. reads, in a, b, mārtavatsam āmābhrogham agham ānayam. The comm. has, for agham āvayam, aghavāvayam, and paraphrases it with aghānām pāpānām tatphalabhūtānām duḥkhānām vā 'sakṛd vayanam. It is curious that both ā-vayam and mārta-vatsam are quoted in the commentary to Prāt. iv. 18, as if their second member were 'a taddhita beginning with v.'— [Cf. MB. i. 1. 14; MP. i. 4. 11.]

[Here ends the third $anuv\bar{a}ka$, with 2 hymns and 48 verses. It is also the end of the sixth $artha-s\bar{u}kta$, which begins with $y\bar{a}\dot{u}$ te. The quoted Anukr. says $y\bar{a}u$ te.

From this point on, the commentary is wanting until the beginning of book xi.

7. To the plants: for some one's restoration to health.

Found also in Pāipp. xvi. [with verses 16-19 in the order 16, 18, 19, 17]. *[The mss. have sāṣṭāvincakam.] †[The Anukr. omits the definition of vss. 15 (triṣṭubh) and 24 (6-p. jagatī).]

[Used by Kāuç. in a remedial rite (26.33, 40, note), "with a gilt and lacquered amulet made [cf. introd. to AV. ii. 9] of splinters of ten kinds of trees" (Keç., p. 327²²), against all diseases. In the pumsavana, vs. 27 accompanies (note to 35.6) the giving of food to the pregnant woman. Vāit. prescribes the hymn for use in the sāutrāmanī rite (30.6) when the priest mixes herbs with the surā.

Translated: Ludwig, p. 504; Henry, 20, 58; Griffith, i. 408; Bloomfield, 41, 578.

- 1. Those that are brown, and that are bright (çukrá), the red and the spotted, the swarthy, the black herbs—all [of them] do we address (acha-ā-vad).
- 2. Let them save (trā) this man from the yaksma sent by the gods—the plants of which heaven has been the father, earth the mother, ocean the root.

The second half-verse was found above, as iii. 23.6 a, b. This time it is also in Ppp. In c, dyāús is read by W.I.R.T. We should expect pūrusam in a.

3. Waters [were] the beginning, heavenly herbs; they have made disappear from every limb thy sinful (enasyd) yáksma.

The first pada is a fragment, in meter and in construction; the omission of agram would fairly rectify both. As in sundry other like cases, most of the mss. read at the end antnaçam (or -çam); only P.M.W. have -çan.

4. The spreading, the bushy, the one-spathed, the extending herbs do I address; those rich in shoots, jointed (kāndin), that have spreading branches (viçākha); I call for thee the plants that belong to all the gods, formidable, giving life to men.

Viçākha might also signify 'branchless.' Ppp. reads in a-b ekaçrīgāş pradhanvatīr.

5. What power [is] yours, ye powerful ones, [what] heroism and what strength [is] yours, therewith, O herbs, free ye this man from this yaksma; now (atho) do I make a remedy.

The last pāda is wanting in Ppp.

6. The lively, by-no-means-harming, living herb, the non-obstructing, up-guiding, flourishing (?puṣyá) one, rich in sweets, do I call hither, for this man's freedom from harm.

Compare 2.6, with which this agrees in the first two pādas and in most of the last two. The mss. again are much at variance as to the reading of naghāriṣām; Bp.P. M.p.m.E.p.m.O. read [Bp. with -ghā-] naghārṣām. [Ppp. reads naghāriṣām (as does Berlin ed.) and omits iha and pāda e.] The omission of the obscure puṣyām would rectify the meter; the Pet. Lexx. regard the word as proper name of a plant.

7. Let the forethoughtful ones come hither, allies (medin) of my spell (vácas), that we may make this man pass forth out of difficulty.

Read medinir in b (two accent-signs slipped out of place leftward).

- 8. Food of fire, embryo of the waters, they that grow up renewed, fixed, thousand-named be they remedial [when] brought.
- 9. Wrapped in $\acute{a}vak\bar{a}$, water-natured, let the herbs, sharp-horned, thrust away difficulty.

Literally, 'having the avakā as fœtal envelop.'

- 10. Releasing, free from Varuna, formidable, that are poison-spoiling, also balása-dispelling, and that are witchcraft-spoiling—let those herbs come hither.
- 'Free from Varuṇa': i.e., doubtless, 'freeing from the bonds of Varuṇa,' with which he visits guilt on the guilty. Ppp. reads in c-d balāsanāçinī rakṣonāçanīṣ kṛṭyād. Read in our text kṛṭyādūṣaṇīç (for -yad-) in d.
- 11. Let the purchased, very powerful plants that are praised save in this village cow, horse, man, beast.

Ppp. prefixes an additional pāda to each half-verse: çivās te santv oṣadhir apak-; and apā sarasvatī jyeṣṭham trāy-.

12. Rich in sweets the root, rich in sweets the tip of them, rich in sweets was the middle of the plants; rich in sweets the leaf, rich in sweets the flower of them; partaking of sweet, a drink of nectar (amrta), let them milk out ghee, food, with milk (gó) as chief (-purogavá).

The mss. (except D. and R.s.m.?) agree in the unmotived accent babhūva at end of b. Ppp. has instead balena; also, for sambhaktās, sambhūtās 'originated,' which is easier.

13. However many [may be] these herbs upon the earth, let them, thousand-leafed, free me from death, from distress.

All the mss. leave osadhis unaccented at end of b; and most (all save P.M.D.R.T.) accent -parnyás at end of c. [Cf. Caland, KZ. xxxi. 265.]

14. Let the tigerish amulet of plants, saving, protecting from imprecation, smite far away from us diseases [and] all demons.

The pada-text reads sárvā (not sárvāh) in c, and the translation follows it. Ppp. has vyāghro in a, and asmāt at the end. Adhi in d is redundant in respect both to sense and to meter.

15. As at the roaring of a lion do they quake; as at fire do they tremble at [the herbs when] brought; let the yaksma of kine, of men, go driven by the plants beyond navigable streams.

The usual expression is 'beyond ninety-nine' such streams. Ppp. reads oṣadhīnām for sam vijante in a. Lover "quake" W. interlines "shrink with fear." He would probably have changed it to "they are all in a tremble," as in v. 21. 4, 6.

16. The herbs, becoming freed from Agni Vāiçvānara — go ye stretching over the earth, [ye] whose king is the forest-tree.

We should expect vocatives instead of nominatives in the first line.

17. They who, belonging to the Angirases, grow on mountains and on plains—let those herbs, rich in milk, propitious, be weal to our heart.

In Ppp. this verse follows our vs. 19. [Ppp. inserts after b vīrudho viçvabheṣajīs, and continues tā no mayasvatīç çivāḥ: o. s. ç. h.]

18. Both what plants I know, and what I see with the eye, the unknown and what we are acquainted with, and those in which we know what is brought together—

That is, probably, their collected or concentrated virtue. Ppp. reads in c janimasi for jānimaç ca. [We might render $dj\bar{n}\bar{a}t\bar{a}s$ by 'what we are not acquainted with,' to correspond with W's version of $j\bar{a}n\bar{t}mds$.]

i.g. Let all the entire herbs note (budh) my spell (vácas), that we may make this man pass forth out of difficulty.

Ppp. omits the second half-verse; it is identical with 7 c, d, above.

20. The açvatthá, the darbhá, sóma king of plants, immortal oblation—rice and barley [are] remedial, immortal sons of heaven.

Ppp. reads yavasya bhesajo in c.

21. Ye rise up $(ud-h\bar{a})$; it thunders, it roars at [you], O herbs! when, O ye children of the spotted one, Parjanya favors you with seed.

With the second half-verse is to be compared RV. v. 83.4 c, d. Prenimātr is elsewhere epithet only of the Maruts. The accent abhikrándati is unmotived [unless, indeed, with Henry, we bring it, with stanáyati, under the domain of yadá].

22. Of this amṛta we make this man to drink the strength; now do I make a remedy, that he may be one of a hundred years (-hāyaná).

W. and O.s.m. read pārayāmasi at end of b; Ppp. has phalayāmasi.

23. The boar knows the plant; the mongoos knows the remedial [herb]; what ones the serpents, the Gandharvas know, those I call to aid for him.

One or two of our mss. (Bp.M. Lonly one, Bp., if I understand W's Collation-book]) read $v\bar{\imath}r\dot{\imath}dh\bar{a}m$ at end of a. Ppp. puts $sarp\bar{a}s$ after $gandharv\bar{a}s$ in c, and has for d $t\bar{a}$ $ih\bar{a}$ "yantv oṣadhīh.

24. What [herbs] of the Angirases the eagles [know], what heavenly ones the ragháts know, what ones the birds, the swans know, and what all the winged ones, what herbs the wild beasts know — those I call to aid for him.

Raghát (which divyās 'heavenly' might also qualify) is elsewhere unknown; Ppp. reads instead vagh; the major Pet. Lex. suggests emendation [apparently withdrawn in the minor: see raghát] to raghávas 'swift'; Ludwig conjectures 'bees.' Ppp. also combines suparnā " $\bar{n}g$ - in a. [Render $hans\bar{a}s$ by the prosaic 'geese,' since the poetic tone of the AV. is not so elevated as to make that version intolerable. Cf. JAOS. xix., 2d half, p. 154.]

25. Of how many herbs the inviolable kine partake (pra-aç), of how many the goats and sheep, let so many herbs, being brought, extend protection to thee.

Ppp. exchanges the second halves of vss. 25 and 26, and makes ābhrtās and osadhīs change places.

26. In how many [herbs] human physicians (bhisáj) know a remedy, so many, all-remedial, do I bring unto thee.

Ppp. [see under vs. 25] reads at the end iti for abhi.

27. Rich in flowers, rich in shoots (prash-), rich in fruits, also those lacking fruits — like joint mothers, let them milk unto this man in order to his freedom from harm.

Ppp. combines sammātarāi 'va in c. The first pāda is nearly identical with RV. x. 97. 3 b.

28. I have taken thee up out of what has five çalas, and also out of what has ten çalas, also out of Yama's fetter, out of all offense against the gods.

The Pet. Lexx. explain - φala as 'a certain measure of distance,' but that sense does not in the least suit the connection, either here or in TB. i. 5. 10. Ppp. reads ahāriṣam in a, $\lfloor ut\ tv\bar{a}$ for atho in c, \rfloor and, for d, oṣadhibhir apīparam. The second half-verse is identical with vi. 96. 2 c, d, above | and nearly identical with RV. x. 97. 16 c, d |.

8. To conquer enemies.

Found also in Pāipp. xvi.; [but the order of vss. 3 and 4 is inverted; likewise that of vss. 6 and 7]. ["Verses" 22-24 are prose, in Brāhmaṇa style.—Whitney's treatment of this hymn is doubtless only a rough first draft, which he would have revised thoroughly had his life been spared. The understanding of this hymn is so peculiarly dependent upon an understanding of the ritual that I have felt obliged to present the latter with exceptional fulness—without attempting, however, to revise W's version into entire accordance therewith.

[The text of the "army rites" (16.9-20), cites expressly vss. 1, 2, and parts of 24, and is indeed largely made up of the names of the objects mentioned in the hymn (see below). Not only Dārila, but also Keçava (Bl., p. 314²⁸ ff.), and the introd. which SPP. gives (p. 658-9) in lieu of the lost comm., all present instructive details.

[With vs. 1, the sorcerer twirls a fire-drill (16.9) made of açvattha and badhaka sticks (16.11: cf. vss. 3, 4). Thereupon, while reciting the first half of vs. 2, he lays down some "old rope" (jīrṇa-rajju, Dār.: apparently to serve as tinder?) "in the place where the sparks [from the fire-drill] fall" (so Dār. and Keç.). When the smoke appears, he exorcises it with the words dhūmam parādēçyā 'mitrā hetsu a dadhatām bhayam.

This is the second half of our verse 2, with agnim left out. When the flame breaks out (agnim jātam), he addresses it with agnim parādṛçyā 'mitrā hṛtsú å dadhatām bhayám.

This is the same half-verse, with dhūmám left out. See Keç., p. 31431 ff., SPP., p. 65818-19. — This now is the fire for the "army rites."

[Upon it, with use of h. 8, is placed successively (16. 14) fuel of açvattha, badhaka, tājad-bhaāga ('castor-oil plant'), āhva ('palāça'), khadira, and çara ('reeds'). These things are all mentioned in vss. 3-4; Dārila's list (n. to 48. 1) agrees entirely with this: cf. also Bl., p. xliv.—Next follows the bestrewing of the tracks of the hostile army with various symbolical objects, to wit: first (16. 15), "the fetters aforesaid" (at 14. 28) of hemp and of munja-grass smeared with ingida; then (16. 16-17), "traps [?kūṭa: see n. to vs. 16] of açvattha," "hempen nets," and "stakes of badhaka." Various expressions in the hymn may be taken either as allusions to these objects or else as suggesting their use: such are the "fetters" of vss. 10, 16; the "trap" of vs. 16; the "net" of vss. 4-8 and 18; the "net-stakes" of vss. 5, 12.]

[In counter-sorcery, ingida is the regular surrogate for ghee (Kāuç. 47.3). In the rites accompanying iii. 6 (the hymn is notably affiliated with ours in respect of substance and expression: cf. "fetters," açvattha, khadira; cf. also viii. 8.3 a with iii. 6.2 a; 10 a, b with 5 a, b; 19 c with 7 c), it is used (48.4) for smearing the threads or symbolical fetters; similarly at 14.28, above; and again (with vi. 75: Kāuç. 48.31) with a leaf of red açvattha.

[A most interesting critical result is won from the study of the ritual use of our hymn, to wit: that here (vs. 2 c) we have an instance in which both alternatives (dhūmām and agnīm) of an ūhā have been adopted into the received text. This has given it a semblance of metrical blemish (Henry, Bloomfield, and Whitney all suggest the excision of amitrāḥ), the true meaning of which has been missed by the Occidental exegetes. SPP. (as above) understands Keçava's introd. to Kāuç. 14 aright and explains it clearly, p. 658. — It may be noted that Ppp. unintelligently, with its agnīm dhāmam (intending dhūmam), has both alternatives, but in the wrong order.

Translated: Muir, v. 88 (vss. 5-8); Ludwig, p. 527; Henry, 23, 61; Griffith, i. 412; Bloomfield, 117, 582.

1. Let Indra the shaker shake (math) [them], he the mighty hero, stronghold-splitter, in order that we may slay by thousands the armies of our enemies.

Quoted in Kāuç. 16.9 [see introd.].

2. Let the putrid rope, breathing on [it], make yonder army putrid; seeing afar smoke, fire, let our enemies set fear in their hearts.

Ppp. reads agnim dhāmam in c. The different parts of the verse are quoted in Kāuç. 16. 10, 12, 13, where the 'putrid rope' appears to be understood as an actual rope which is burnt, and of which the 'smoke' and 'fire' are to frighten the foe. It is perhaps quite as likely that the ceremony is founded on a crass misinterpretation of the verse, and that the 'rope' is a poisonous serpent (as conjectured by Ludwig). The omission of amtirās in d would rectify the meter. With regard to the last and to the whole verse, see the introd.

3. Crush yonder men out, O acvattha; devour $(kh\bar{a}d)$ them speedily, O khadira; let them be suddenly $\lfloor t\bar{a}j\dot{a}d\rfloor$ broken $\lfloor bha\bar{n}j\rfloor$ like hemp $\lfloor bha\bar{n}ga\rfloor$; let the slayer (vadhaka) slay (han) them with deadly weapons (vadha).

The translation implies the emendation (which is made in our text) of ajiram (p. khadiraoajiram!) to -rám,* and the treatment of tāját and bháāgas (p. tājádbháāgahoiva!) as two separate words. Ppp. reads in b khadirā 'ciram, and in c combines

-bhañgāi 'va; for d it has brhajjālena samcitāh [cf. our 4 d]. Kāuç. (16. 14) takes tājadbhañga as a single word, and its comm. explains it as the castor-oil plant (eraṇḍa). [In cṛṇthi I see an allusion to the sorcerer's favorite "reeds" (cará) of vs. 4. Griffith notes the power of the acvattha to rend asunder the masonry etc. in whose crevices its seed has germinated. The other word-plays, including that on vādhaka badhaka (cf. bādhaka and root bādh), are evident. See also introd.] *[So also SPP. with several of his authorities.]

4. Let the rough-called one make yonder men rough (paruṣá); let the slayer slay them with deadly weapons; let them be broken quickly like a reed (cará), tied together with a great net.

Ppp. combines care 'va in c,* and has at the end (as in 3 d) samcitās; it puts the verse before our vs. 3. The Pet. Lexx. conjecture parusāhvā to be 'a kind of reed.' [For the materials of the sorcery, and the "net," cf. introd.] *[As the meter requires; why then does not the Anukr. call the vs. a purastamby hati and have done with it?]

5. The atmosphere was the net; the great quarters [were] the netstakes; therewith encircling [them], the mighty one (çakrá) scattered away the army of the barbarians (dásyu).

Ppp. has an easier but virtually equivalent version of c, d: tenā 'bhidhāya senām indro dasyūn apā 'vapat. Vss. 5-8 are translated by Muir (v. 88). ["Net-stakes": cf. introd. — For "encircling" W. first had "girding"; abhi-dhā carries the idea of bridling, curbing, or restraining: cf. vss. 7, 8, 9 and note to iii. 11. 8.

6. Since great [is] the net of the great mighty one, the vigorous (vājinīvant) — therewith do thou crowd (ubj) down upon all [our] foes, that no one soever of them may be released.

Ppp. adds to our first half-verse (with $rocan\bar{a}vatas$ for $v\bar{a}j$ - in b) the second half-verse of our 7 (omitting $nyarbuda\dot{m}$ and reading at the end $sen\bar{a}m$), then putting the whole after 7. All the mss. accent $m\dot{u}cy\bar{a}t\bar{a}i$, which, though supported by the usage of sundry Vedic texts (including even RV.), was emended in our edition to agree with the Atharvan accentuation elsewhere. [Henry would read $m\delta ci$, of which he holds $mucy\bar{a}t\bar{a}i$ to be a gloss.]

7. Great, O Indra, hero $(g\dot{u}ra)$, is the net of thee that art great, that art worth a thousand, that hast hundred-fold heroism; therewith encircling the army of the barbarians, the mighty one slew a hundred, a thousand, ten thousand, a hundred million.

The translation follows Ppp. (see under the preceding verse) in reading senām at the end. Instead of our c, d, Ppp. has tena ny ubja maghavann amitrān çaçvatībhyah.

- 8. This great world was the net of the great mighty one; by that net of Indra do I encircle all you men with darkness.
- 9. Debility, formidable ill-success, and mishap that is not to be exorcised away (an-apavācaná), toil, and weariness, and confusion with these do I encircle all you men.

10. To death do I deliver those yonder; with fetters of death [are] they bound $(s\bar{a})$; the sad messengers that are death's — them I lead them to meet, having bound (bandh) [them].

Ppp. reads khālās for aghalās in c, and at the end baddhān. All our mss. agree in giving the abbreviated form badhvā. ["Fetters": cf. introd.]

11. Lead ye them, O messengers of death; O messengers of Yama, restrain (apa-umbh) [them]; be they slain to more than thousands; let Bhava's club (? matyd) shatter them.

Ppp. reads for a mṛtyudūtā amum nayata; d is corrupt, but apparently is the same with our d.

12. The Perfectibles (sādhyá) go lifting with force one net-stake, the Rudras one, the Vasus one; by the Ādityas one is lifted.

Ppp. has for second half-verse: rudrā dvitīyam vasavas tṛtīyam ādityāir ekā udyatā.

13. Let all the gods from above go crowding with force; let the Angirases go slaying midway the great army.

Ppp. has at the end vadhāis instead of mahīm.

- 14. The forest trees, them of the forest trees, the herbs and the plants, what is biped, what is quadruped I despatch $(i\varsigma)$, that they may slay yonder army.
- 'Them of the forest trees,' $v\bar{a}naspaty\bar{a}n$, acc. pl. masc.; the lexicographers explain the word to mean 'fruit tree with conspicuous flowers.' At the end both of this verse and of the next, Ppp. reads $hat\bar{a}m$. Bp. reads $dviop\acute{a}t$ in c. [For the citation in Kāuç. 73.5, see introd.]
- 15. The Gandharvas and Apsarases, the serpents, the gods, the purefolks, the Fathers, those seen, those unseen I despatch, that they may slay yonder army.

Ppp. makes devān and sarpān change places [and reads hatān again at the end]. [Muir, v. 296, cites MBh. ii. 11.45 = 461, where the Fathers are divided into seven troops, four of embodied and three of bodiless.]

16. Here are spread the fetters of death, which stepping into thou art not released; let this horn $(k\dot{u}ta)$ slay of yonder army by thousands.

Ppp. gives for a mṛṭyupaçā yama [that is, ime?] yuktā. Kāuç. (16. 16) speaks of 'kūṭas of açvattha[-wood] and nets of hemp.' [Geldner, Ved. Stud. i. 139, renders the vs. and takes kūṭa as "trap"; SPP., p. 65913, says niṣādānām prānibandhanam; Isl., p. 119 (see esp. p. 585), "hammer."]

17. The hot drink $(gharm\acute{a})$ [is] kindled with fire, this thousand-slaying oblation $(h\acute{o}ma)$; both Bhava and the spotted-armed one — O Çarva, slay ye (two) yonder army.

All the mss. read bhávas at beginning of c; our edition emends to bhavás. The common construction bhaváç ca...çárva...hatam (cf. the next verse) is much disturbed by the addition of přçnibāhus, which the second ca forbids to take as a mere epithet. Ppp. reads sahasraçah and hatām at the end of the two lines respectively.

18. Let them go unto death's burning (?), unto hunger, debility, the deadly weapon, fear; by snare (ákṣu) and net, O Çarva, [do thou] and Indra slay yonder army.

Only P. and R.s.m. have δsam , all the rest δsam , which must accordingly be regarded as the traditional text, though unintelligible. Further emendation to osam 'quickly' is hardly advisable. Ppp. has osam. Ppp. also differs much in c, d: indrasyā 'kṣamālā-bhyām sarva senām amūm hatām. Part of our mss. also (W.O.D.T.) read sárva in d. Geldner discusses aksu, Ved. Stud. i. 136.]

19. Flee (tras) forth, O enemies, being conquered; run, [being] thrust by the charm (bráhman); of them yonder, thrust forth by Brihaspati, let none soever be freed.

The second half-verse is nearly repeated as xi. 10. 19 c, d, below. The pada-mss. absurdly read nuttā (not nuttāh) in b. Amitrās is metrically redundant in a. [Rather 11 + 8:8 + 8.] The pada-reading of bṛhaspátiopranuttānām [cf. iii. 6. 7] is by Prāt. iii. 76, iv. 77, the commentary quoting it under each rule.

20. Let their weapons (áyudha) fall down; let them not be able to fit the arrow; then, of them fearing much let arrows strike in the vitals.

Ppp. reads çişam for çakan in d.

21. Together let heaven-and-earth yell at them; together let the atmosphere, along with the deities; let them not find a knower, nor a foundation; mutually destroying one another let them go unto death.

The second half-verse is identical with vi. 32. 3 c, d, above. Ppp. puts $en\bar{a}\dot{n}$ before $krocat\bar{a}m$, and adds ubhe at the end of a.

22. The four quarters [are] the she-mules of the god-chariot; the sacrificial cakes [are] the hoofs, the atmosphere the seat (? uddhi), heavenand-earth the two sides, the seasons the reins, the intermediate directions the attendants, speech the rim (? parirathya).

Ppp. reads çaphā 'ntarikṣa buddhiḥ and omits the clause antardeçāḥ kimkarāḥ. The verse is quoted in Kāuç. 15. 11 [see introd.].

23. The year (samvatsará) is the chariot, the complete year (parivatsará) the chariot-lap, viráj the pole (īṣá), Agni the chariot-mouth, Indra the left-stander, the moon the charioteer.

Ppp. reads, for the first part of the paragraph, ahorātre cakre māma ārāt samvatsaro adhiṣṭhānam: virāḍ etc. Savyaṣṭhās (p. savyaosthāḥ) is a subject of Prāt. ii. 95. LAs for the "years," see n. to vi. 55. 3.

24. On this side conquer thou; on this side conquer away, conquer completely, conquer; hail! let these here conquer, let those yonder be conquered; hail $\lfloor svdh\bar{a}\rfloor$ to these! wail $(durdh\bar{a})$ to those! with the bluered one I stretch down upon them yonder.

That is, probably, with Çiva's aid I bring the net down upon them. [Ppp. omits all after the first svāhā.] Parts of the verse are quoted in Kāuç. 16. 18-20: 'with "hail to these" he makes a libation for his friends; with "wail to those" [he pours] with the left hand ingida on the [staff] of badhaka; having stuck in a branch of red açvattha north of the fire, having surrounded it with two blue and red threads, he pulls it up toward the right with "with the blue-red one": evidently artificial adaptations of ceremonies to the words of the text. [For the whole matter, see introd.]

9. Mystic: extolling the viráj.

[Atharvan. — şadvinçam. kāçyapeyam uta sarvārşam chāndasam. trāisṭubham: 2, 3. paūkti (3. āstārapaūkti); 4, 5, 23, 25, [26]. anuṣṭubh; 8, 11, 12, 22. jagatī; 9. bhurij; 14. 4-p. atijagatī.]

Found also (except vss. 19, 20) in Pāipp. xvi. Lwith vs. 23 after vs. 24 J. The Kāuç. takes no notice of the hymn; Lbut the Vāit. (33. 8) allows the use of 21 vss. (from vs. 6 to the end) in the sattra sacrifice at the celebrant's option J.

Translated: Ludwig, p. 439; Henry, 26, 65; Griffith, i. 416. — See also Muir, v. 370.

I. Whence [were] those two born? which side (árdha) was that? out of what world? out of which earth? the two young (vatsá) of the viráj rose out of the sea (salilá); of those I ask thee: by whether [of them was] she milked?

The 'which' is both times katama, implying the existence of more than two; but Ppp. has instead katarasyāh pṛthinyāḥ.

2. He who caused the sea to resound (krand) with greatness, making a threefold lair ($y \acute{o}ni$) as he lay, the desire-milking young of the $vir\acute{a}j$; he made his bodies secret ($g \acute{u}h \ddot{a}$) in the distance.

Ppp. combines yo 'krand- at the beginning, and reads in b tyabhijam çayānam.

3. What three great ones (bṛhát, n.) there are, the fourth of which [one] disjoins [as] speech — the priest (brahmán) may know it by penance, the inspired one, in which one (ékam) is joined, in which one [is joined].

Ppp. reads catvāri instead of trīni in a. Caturthám 'fourth' might also be subject of 'disjoins.' Compare ix. 10. 27 (RV. i. 164. 45).

4. Forth out of bṛhát [as] sixth five sāmans [were] fashioned; bṛhát was fashioned out of bṛháti; out of what was bṛhati made?

Ppp. reads sasthah instead of -that.

5. Brhatt the measure $(matr\bar{a})$ was fashioned forth out of measure [as] a mother; illusion $(m\bar{a}ya)$ was born from illusion, Mātalī out of illusion.

The desire to play upon the root $m\bar{a}$ 'measure, fashion,' is the leading motive in the making of this verse. The pada-text gives the absurd reading $m\bar{a}y\bar{a}h$ at beginning of c; Ppp. reads after it hi instead of ha.

6. Vāiçvānara's counterpart [is] the sky above, as far as Agni forced $(b\bar{a}dh)$ apart the two firmaments; from that sixth yonder come the stómas; up from here they go unto the sixth of the day.

For \vec{a} 'múto, in c, Ppp. reads $\vec{a}mico$. The remainder of the hymn, from this verse on, is by Vāit. 33. 8 allowed to be introduced at pleasure in the navarātra ceremony.

7. We these six seers ask thee, O Kaçyapa, for thou didst join what is joined and what is to be joined; they call (ah) viráj the father of the bráhman; distribute $(? vi-dh\bar{a})$ it to us [thy] friends according to [our] numbers.

Ppp. reads prchāmi rs- in a.

- 8. After whom, when removed, the sacrifices remove (pra-cyu), [whom], when attending, they attend on (upa-sthā), in whose course (vratā) [and?] impulse the monster (?yakṣā) stirs—that, O seers, is the virāj in the highest firmament.
- 9. Breathless, she goes by the breath of breathing ones (f.); viráj goes unto svaráj from behind; viráj that touches, that is adapted to, everything some see her, some see her not.

No ms. [of ours] inserts t between -rdt and sva- in b [but four of SPP's do so], as required by Prāt. ii. 8 (under which this is one of the passages quoted). In d we ought properly to have emended to tve... tve (accentless); all the mss. accent the two words, against the uniform usage elsewhere; and the pada-mss. commit the further blunder of giving both times tve tti, as if the word were the Vedic locative of the 2d pers. pronoun (as in v.2.3).

10. Who understandeth (pra-vid) the pair-ness of viráj? who the seasons, who the ordering (kálpa) of her? who her steps (kráma), how many times milked out (vi-duh)? who her abode (dháman), how many times dawnings (vyùṣṭi)?

The version is much more literal than intelligent, especially at the end, where we expect rather vyùstam than -tis. 'Pair-ness,' mithunatvám, means especially the condition of being a pair of opposite sexes.

11. This same is she that first shone forth; among these other ones (f.) she goes about having entered; great mightinesses [are] within her; the woman, the new-going generatrix, hath conquered.

This verse occurred above, as iii. 10. 4. It is found also in other texts in connection with the four verses which follow it here. Ppp. has [in a, b] the same readings as in iii. 10. [4 a, b]; [and, here also, it inverts the order of c and d].

12. The two meter-winged dawns, greatly adorning themselves, move on together toward the same lair $(y \delta ni)$; spouses of the sun, they move on together, understanding, having ensigns, unaging, having abundant seed.

The Pet. Lexx. give the first word in the form chándaspakṣa, although Prāt. ii. 62 expressly requires -ahpa-, and all the mss. read it except Bp., which has -aṣpa-. The verse is found also in TS. iv. 3. 11¹, MS. ii. 13. 10, K. xxxix. 10. Both TS. and MS. have at the beginning chándasvatī; MS. reads uṣásāu, and at the end retasāu, at end of b, MS. gives anusámcarete and TS. ánu samcárantī; both have ví for sám in c, and TS. ketúm kṛṇvāné for ketumátī in d. Ppp. reads carati in c.

13. Three (f.) have come along the road of righteousness; three heats (gharmd) have come after the seed; one (f.) enlivens the progeny, one the refreshment (hrj); one defends the realm of the godly ones.

The verse follows the preceding in the other three texts also. TS.MS. rectify the meter of b by reading gharmāsas, and for rétas MS. has rétasā and TS. jyótiṣā; TS. gives rākṣati for jinvati in c; and for rāṣṭrām in d TS. has vratām and MS. kṣatrām.

14. She that was fourth set Agni-and-Soma; the seers arranging the (two) wings of the sacrifice—gāyatrī, triṣṭúbh, jágatī, anuṣṭúbh, bṛhadarkī, bringing heaven (svàr) for the sacrificer.

The meter-names in the second half-verse are all in the accusative, possibly as coördinate with 'wings' in b; but comparison with the other texts indicates that the verse is very corrupt. The translation implies emendation of adadhus to adadhāt in a; it would not be absolutely impossible to take 'the seers' as subject in a, and 'her that was fourth' as joint object with 'Agni-and-Soma.' Of the other texts (as above), TS. begins with catustomó abhavad, and MS. with catustomám adadhād; both rectify the meter of a by omitting āsīt; in b both have rṣayas as vocative, and after it bhávantī, and MS. has pakṣā (for ṣāú) before it; in c, MS. has virājam for anuṣṭúbham; in d, TS. begins with bṛhád arkám, MS. with arkám alone; and both follow it with yuñjānāḥ svàr (TS., of course, súvar) ā 'bharann idám. Ppp's only variant is bṛhadarkir in d.

15. Five milkings after five dawnings; five seasons after the five-named cow; five quarters arranged by the fifteenth — those (f.) [are] one-headed toward one world.

'The fifteenth' (masc. or neut. sing.) might mean also 'fifteen-fold, of fifteen parts,' etc. The verse is found in the three other texts (as above), but in TS.MS. (also in K.?) separated at some distance from those that here precede; also in PGS. iii. 3. 5: all read samānámūrdhnīs instead of <code>lkamū-</code> in d.

16. Six [are] born the beings first-born of righteousness; six sámans carry the six-day (?) [sacrifice]; after the six-yoked plough (stra) severally a sáman; six they call (ah) the heavens and earths, six the wide [spaces].

The translation implies in b the reading sadahám; this is given in our text, against the authority of our pada-mss. which have sat: ahám; the samhitā-mss. (except O.p.m.) have sad. All the latter read in a-já rtásya (p. prathamaojá: rtásya [cf. JAOS. x. 451].

17. Six they call the cold, and six the hot months; tell ye us the season, which one [is] in excess (átirikta); seven eagles (suparná), poets, sat down; seven meters after seven consecrations.

None of the mss. read çītānṭ ṣáḍ in a, as demanded by Prāt. ii. 9. In d the construction of the two nouns is reversible.

18. Seven [are] the offerings (hóma), the fuels seven, the sweet things (mádhu, n.) seven, the seasons seven; seven sacrificial butters (diya) went about the existent thing ($bh\bar{u}t\acute{a}$); those (f.) are seven-vultured, so have we heard.

The version is as literal as possible; to modify it would imply an understanding of it. The nearest fem. word for 'those' in d to relate to is 'fuels' in a. All the samhitāmss. combine saptā rtāvo in b. Ppp. reads in b nu for ha, and has instead of our c, d: sapta jyāyām paruhūta gāyam saptahotā rtudayajetitās sapta grdhrā iti çuçravā 'ham. Nearly all the mss. (all of ours save E.) read āyam (the samhitā-mss. -am) at end of c.

19. Seven [are] the meters increasing (-úttara) by four, the one set upon the other: how do the praises (stôma) stand firm in them? how are they set in the praises?

The gender of anyás at beginning of b speaks strongly for a compound like the later anyo 'nya; but the double accent and the pada-reading (anyáh: anyásmin) are against it. The pada-text divides årpitāni (āoárp-) at end of b, but not at end of d. The verse is wanting in Ppp.

20. How did gāyatri permeate (vi-āp) the triple [stóma]? how is tristúbh adapted to that of fifteen? how jágatī to that of thirty-three? how [is] anustúbh that of twenty-one?

This verse, like the preceding, is wanting in Ppp.; and they are in a manner interruptions of the progress of the hymn.

21. Eight [are] born the beings first-born of righteousness; eight, O Indra, are the priests (rtvij) who are of the gods; Aditi has eight wombs (yôni), eight sons; the oblation (havyám) goes unto the eighth night.

With a compare 16 a above; here as there all the samhitā-mss. combine -jā rtāsya, as in b all combine indra rtv-. Ppp. reads from the beginning: aṣṭāu dhāmāni prathamajam tasyā 'ṣṭe 'ndra ṛtv-; and, in d, api for abhi.

22. Thus thinking what is better have I come hither; in your friendship I am auspicious (çéva); being of the same birth, your skill is propitious; it (m.), understanding, goes about to you all (f.).

The adjectives in \mathbf{a} , \mathbf{b} are fem., seeming to indicate that the virāj is regarded as speaking. Ppp. has \bar{a} 'gam at end of \mathbf{a} , and nas for vas both times in \mathbf{c} , \mathbf{d} . 'It' in \mathbf{d} apparently refers to 'skill.'

23. Eight of Indra, six of Yama, seven of the seers, seven-fold; waters, men (manusya), herbs — them five followed (sac) after.

The nouns in c are accusatives, and are apparently summed up in 'them' (tan). All the mss. this time read with our text yamasya + s in a-b. Ppp. puts the verse after our 24.

24. Since the heifer milked solely $(k\ell vali)$ for Indra [his] will $(vd\epsilon a)$, the beestings, [when] first milked, then [she] gratified in four ways the four — gods, men, Asuras, and seers.

Ppp. reads at the end atha rsin; all our mss. save O. make the combination utá rsin as in the printed text.

25. What now [is] the ox $(g\delta)$, who the sole seer, what the abode $(dh\delta man)$, what the blessings $(\bar{a}\xi fs)$? the monster on the earth [is] simple $(ekav\hat{t})$; the sole season — which now is that?

Ppp. reads sāma for dhāma in b. All our mss. combine ekarṣis in a, but all ekartūs (also Ppp.) in d. It is necessary here and in the next verse to render gāūs 'ox,' because the accompanying adjectives are masculine. 'Which' in d is the superlative katamā. | Over "simple" W. has interlined "single."

26. One [is] the ox, one the sole seer, one the abode, singly the blessings; the monster on the earth [is] single; the sole season is not in excess.

Again Ppp. reads sāma for dhāma, and all the mss. (with Ppp.) have ekarşis but ekartis.

10. Extolling the viráj.

This curious piece of prose is (with the exception of paragraphs here and there) found also in Pāipp. xvi. Pāipp. has the order 22, 24, 23, 26, 25. This is the first of the paryāya-sūktas. For the paryāya-hymns in general, see introduction to book viii., pages 471-2, above.

[Neither Kāuç, nor Vāit. makes use of the hymn; but one of the "committals" in the upanayana (Kāuç, 56. 13) is to mārtyumjaya mārtyava: cf. vs. 23.]

Translated: Henry, 29, 71; Griffith, i. 421. — See also Muir, v. 370.

[Paryāya I. — trayodaçakam. 1. 3-p. ārcī pankti; a of 2-7. yājusī jagatī; b of 2, 5. sāmny anustubh; b of 3. ārcy anustubh; b of 4, 7. virādgāyatrī; b of 6. sāmnī brhatī.]

1. Virdj verily was this [universe] in the beginning; of her when born everything was afraid, [thinking] "this one indeed will become this [universe]."

Ppp. reads 'jāyata for āsīt, and, after tasyās, jātāyā 'bibhed eka sarvam: yam eve 'dam bhavisyati na vayam iti.

2. She ascended (ut-kram); she descended (ni-kram) in the house-holder's fire (garhapatya); house-sacrificing (grhamedhin) house-holder [grhapati] becometh he who knoweth thus.

This paragraph and the one following are wanting in Ppp.

3. She ascended; she descended in the fire of offering (āhavantya): to his god-invocation the gods go, dear to the gods becometh he who knoweth thus.

The introductory clause so'd akrāmat, which belongs to the paragraphs from here on to 29 inclusive (8-17 counting in this respect as a single paragraph), is omitted by the mss., according to their custom, almost without exception, until the last paragraph, 29, where all give it; it is restored throughout in our edition. R. alone gives it in this paragraph.

4. She ascended; she descended in the southern \[\ldot dksina \right] fire: justified (?-rtá) by the offering, fit for sacrificial gifts \[\ldot daksintya \right], fit for refuge (vásateya) becometh he who knoweth thus.

Our pada-mss. divide yajñārtas into yajñāo-rtah, which is evidently wrong, for yajñāo-rtah [as indeed two of SPP's read]; and the quotation of the word under Prāt. iii. 64 also indicates that the latter is the true accent. Ppp. reads instead yajñāntas, and omits after it dakṣinīyas.

- 5. She ascended; she descended in the assembly (sabhā): [men] go to his assembly, fit for the assembly becometh he who knoweth thus.
- 6. She ascended; she descended in the gathering (sámiti): [men] go to his gathering, fit for gatherings becometh he who knoweth thus.

This superfluous equivalent of § 5 is wanting in Ppp.

7. She ascended; she descended in address (?āmántraṇa); [men] go to his address, fit for address becometh he who knoweth thus.

By the connection, āmántraņa ought to involve the idea of a locality. Instead of line 2? |, Ppp. repeats yajñānto vāsateyo bhavati etc. from § 4.

- [Paryāya II. daçakam. 8, 16. sāmny anustubh (8. 3-p.); 9. usņiggarbhā 4-p. uparistādvirād bṛhatī; 10. 1-p. yājuṣī gāyatrī; 11 [?], 14. sāmnī pañkti (11. 1-p.); 12. virād gāyatrī; 13. ārcy anustubh; 15. āsurī gāyatrī; 17. sāmnī bṛhatī.]
- 8. She ascended; she stood striding (? vikrāntā) fourfold in the atmosphere.

The phrase 'she ascended' is prefixed by only one or two of the mss. (P.s.m.R.), but is implied in the metrical description of the Anukr.

9. Of her gods and men said: "she verily knoweth that upon which we of both classes may subsist; let us call to her."

Ppp. reads at the end hvayāmahi (without iti).

- 10. They called to her:
- 11. "O refreshment, come! O svadhá, come! O pleasantness, come! O thou rich in cheer (trā), come!"

Ppp. combines svadhe 'hi and sūnṛte 'hi, and omits iti at the end (as in § 9).

12. Of her Indra was the young (vatsa), gāyatri the halter, cloud the udder;

Ppp. begins tasyā 'gnir vat-. Accent in our text, with all the mss., ast.

13. Both bṛhát and rathantará were two teats; both yajñāyajñiya and vāmadevyá [were] two.

Ppp, prefixes a tasyās at the beginning. Accent again in our text āstām, with all the mss.

- 14. Herbs did the gods milk [from her] by rathantará, expansion (vyácas) by brhát;
 - 15. Waters by vāmadevyá, the sacrifice by yajñāyajñiya.
 - 16. Herbs doth rathantará milk, expansion doth brhát,
- 17. Waters doth vāmadevyá, the sacrifice doth yajñāyajñiya, for him who knoweth thus.

For the last two paragraphs, Ppp. reads: te vāi virājāḥ kāmadhuga stanā kāmam-kāmam yajamānan maha yaḥ.

[Paryāya III. — aṣṭāu. a of 18. 4-p. virād anuṣṭubh; b of 18. ārcī triṣṭubh; a of 19-21.
4-p. prājāpatyā pankti; b of 19-21. ārcī bṛhatī.]

18. She ascended; she came to the forest trees; the forest trees slew her; she in a year came into being; therefore what is cut of the forest trees grows over in a year; cut off (vraçc) is his unfriendly foe (bhrátrvya) who knoweth thus.

Only P.s.m. and R. give here the first phrase, and only R. in the three following paragraphs. Ppp. puts vanaspatīnām after samvatsare. [For vṛṛcáte, see note to vi. 136. 3.]

19. She ascended; she came to the Fathers; the Fathers slew her; she in a month came into being; therefore to the Fathers they give in a month the monthly [oblation]; he understandeth the road that goes to the Fathers who knoweth thus.

Again Ppp. puts pitrbhyas after māsi [R's collation, masi], and then reads dadhatas svadhāvān pitrsu bhavati pitryānam etc. O.R. accent jānāti.

20. She ascended; she came to the gods; the gods slew her; she in a half-month came into being; therefore for the gods they make vásat in a half-month: he understandeth the road that goes to the gods who knoweth thus.

Ppp. reads tasmād ardhamāse devebhyo juhoti: juhoty agnihotram pra devay. O.R. again accent jānāti.

21. She ascended; she came to men (manusya); men slew her; she at once (sadyas) came into being; therefore on both days they present (upa-hr) to men; in his house do they present who knoweth thus.

'Present,' i.e. 'food'; 'on both days' is a queer expression for 'every day.' Ppp. is corrupt, but perhaps means ahar-ahar manusyāṇām upa h.

- [Paryäyas IV. and V. dve sodaçake. a of 22, 23, 26, 29. 4p. sāmnī jagatī; b of 22-24, 28, 29. sāmnī brhatī; c of 22, 26. sāmny usņih; d of 22, 23, 26, 29. ārcy anustubh; c of 23. āsurī gāyatrī; a of 24, 25, 28. 4-p. usņih; c of 24. prājāpatyā 'nustubh; d of 24, 25, 27. ārcī tristubh; b of 25, 26. sāmny usņih; c of 25, 27, 28. virād gāyatrī; a of 27. 4-p. prājāpatyā jagatī; b of 27. sāmnī tristubh; d of 28. 3-p. brāhmī bhurig gāyatrī; c of 29. sāmny anustubh.]
- 22. She ascended; she came to the Asuras; the Asuras called to her: O illusion $(m\bar{a}y\dot{a})$, come! of her Virochana son of Prahrāda was young $(vats\dot{a})$, the metal- $(\dot{a}yas$ -) vessel [was] vessel; her Dvimūrdhan son of Ritu milked; from her he milked illusion; that illusion the Asuras subsist upon; one to be subsisted on becometh he who knoweth thus.
- R. alone gives the first phrase in §§ 22-28. In this and the following paragraphs to 29 inclusive, the text should accent dsit, with all the mss. Ppp. reads vdirocanas instead of vir. Single points in these paragraphs find correspondences in MS. iv. (p. 21, l. 14 ff.; p. 36, l. 8 ff.) and in TB. ii. 2.96 ff. [cf. i. 5.91].
- 23. She ascended; she came to the Fathers; the Fathers called to her: O svadhā, come! of her king Yama was young, the silver-vessel [was] vessel; her Antaka son of Mrityu milked; from her he milked svadhā; that svadhā the Fathers subsist upon: one to be subsisted upon becometh he who knoweth thus.

The samhitā-inss. vary a good deal over mārtyavò 'dhok: P.M. read mārtvyò, R. mārtvyò, E.O.K. mārtyavò, T. mārtyávo; Lcf. introd. J. Ppp. has instead ādityo; and it omits rājā after yamas; it puts the paragraph after our 24.

24. She ascended; she came to men $(manuṣy\grave{a})$; men called to her: O rich in cheer, come! of her Manu son of Vivasvant was young, earth [was] vessel; her Pṛithī son of Vena milked; from her he milked both cultivation (kṛṣі) and grain; upon those two, both cultivation and grain, men subsist; successful by what is cultivated $(kṛṣi\acute{a}-)$, one to be subsisted upon, becometh he who knoweth thus.

T' at beginning of d is rendered in accordance with the paragraphs that precede and follow; but the pada-text reads t' simply (not t' tti), as if it qualified manusyàs. Ppp. reads prthus for prthi. An accent-mark has dropped out in our edition under the va of irāvaty in a.

25. She ascended; she came to the seven seers; the seven seers called to her: O rich in bráhman, come! of her king Soma was young, meter [was] vessel; her Brihaspati son of Angiras milked; from her he milked both bráhman and penance; upon that, both bráhman and penance, the seven seers subsist; possessed of bráhman-splendor, one to be subsisted upon, becometh he who knoweth thus.

Ppp. puts this paragraph after our 26, and omits rājā after somas in b.

26. She ascended; she came to the gods; the gods called to her: O refreshment, come! of her Indra was young, the bowl [was] vessel; her god Savitar milked; from her he milked refreshment; upon that refreshment the gods subsist; one to be subsisted upon becometh he who knoweth thus.

Ppp. reads dārupātram instead of camasas in b, and omits devas in c.

27. She ascended; she came to the Gandharvas and Apsarases; the Gandharvas and Apsarases called to her: O thou of sweet (púnya) odor, come! of her Chitraratha son of Sūryavarchas was young, the blue-lotus leaf [was] vessel; her Vasuruchi son of Sūryavarchas milked; from her he milked sweet odor; upon that sweet odor the Gandharvas and Apsarases subsist; of sweet odor, one to be subsisted upon, becometh he who knoweth thus.

Ppp. has kāuvero vāiçravano [cf. our 28 b] and dārupātram in b, and rājatanābhih kāuverako [cf. our 28 c] in c. Restore in our text the lost accent-mark under the ti of jivanti in d.

28. She ascended; she came to the other-folks; the other-folks called to her: O concealment (tirodhá), come! of her Kubera son of Viçravaṇa was young, the raw vessel [was] vessel; her Rajatanābhi son of Kubera milked; from her he milked concealment; upon that concealment the other-folks subsist: he concealeth all evil, becometh one to be subsisted upon, who knoweth thus.

Ppp. gives everywhere punyajana instead of itarajana [twice: third occurrence not noted], and reads in b vasurucih sūryavarcaso and puskaraparnam [cf. our 27 b]. P.p.m. and K. read kūveras in b, and Bp.K. read kāverakās in c.

29. She ascended; she came to the serpents; the serpents called to her: O poisonous one, come! of her Takshaka descendant of Viçāla was young, the gourd-vessel [was] vessel; her Dhritarāshṭra son of Irāvant milked; from her he milked poison; upon that poison the serpents subsist; one to be subsisted upon becometh he who knoweth thus.

All the mss. give the first phrase in this verse, where it is for the last time repeated. $\bar{A}ir\bar{a}\circ vatah$ is quoted under Prāt. iv. 55 as an example of a word divided in the padatext notwithstanding its secondary formation with initial vrddhi. Ppp. reads $vis\bar{a}bhayas$ for $v\bar{a}ic\bar{a}leyas$ in b, and combines $-r\bar{a}str\bar{a}i$ " $r\bar{a}v$ - in c [R's collation has $-r\bar{a}str\bar{a}ir\bar{a}v$ -].

30. Then for whomsoever that knoweth thus one shall pour out with a gourd, he should reject [it].

A gourd, apparently, being a too simple vessel to be respectful. [The connection of the gourd with serpents (vss. 29, 32, 33), would seem to be the reason for rejection, as Dr. Ryder suggests.] The readings of Ppp. in this division of the hymn are "confused but apparently essentially accordant" with those of our text. Read tid for yid at the beginning in our text.

- 31. Should he not reject [it], he should reject [it] by [thinking]: with the mind I reject thee.
 - 32. In that he rejects [it], he thus rejects poison.
- 33. Poison is poured out after the unfriendly foe of him who knoweth thus.

trayodaça daçā 'sṭāu ca tatah sodaça sodaça: virādvāyām catuskas tu; saṭ paryāyās tu niçcitāh:

'In the [hymn beginning] "virād vā" (vāi), [the last paryāya is] one of four [avasāna-rcas]; while the paryāyas count six.']

The summations of ganas and (gana-)avasāna-rcas are as follows: I. g., 6; av., 13; II. av., 10; III. g., 4; av., 8; IV. g., 4; av., 16; V. g., 4; av., 16; VI. av., 4.—Total of av., 67.

[Here ends the fifth anuvāka, with 2 hymns and 59 verses: that is I artha-sūkta of 26 verses and I paryāya-sūkta with 6 paryāyas and 33 verses.]

[Some mss. sum up the hymns and verses correctly. Thus D. reckons 30 sūktas (that is 24 of the decad-divisions of our hymns 1-9, plus 6 paryāya-sūktas of our h. 10) with 226 verses (i.e. in our hymns 1-9) plus 67 avasāna-reas. Similarly ms. I. makes 30 hymns; but 259 yerses (i.e. 226, plus the 33 of our h. 10).

Book IX.

[This ninth book is the second of the second grand division of the Atharvan collection. For a general statement as to the make-up of the books of this division, see page 471. The Old Anukramanī describes the length of hymns 1, 3, and 5 by stating in each case the excess over 20 verses—perhaps assuming 20 as the normal length. The whole book has been translated by Victor Henry, Les livres VIII et IX de l'Atharva-véda traduits et commentés, Paris, 1894. The bhāsya is lacking for this book.]

[Paryāya-hymns: for details respecting them, see pages 471-2. The paryāya-hymns of this book are hymn 6 (with 6 paryāyas) and hymn 7 (with 1 paryāya).]

[The anuvāka-division of the book (as is explained on page 472 also) is into five anuvākas of two hymns each. The "decad"-division likewise is as described on page 472. A tabular conspectus for book ix. follows:

Anuvākas	I		2		3		4		5
Hymns	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9	10
Verses	24	25	31	24	38	62¶	26¶	22	22	28

Here ¶ means "paragraph of a $pary\bar{a}ya$ " (such as is numbered as a "verse" in the Berlin edition) and P means " $pary\bar{a}ya$." The last line shows the "decad"-division. These divisions are shown also in both editions. Of these "decads," $anuv\bar{a}kas$ 1, 2, 3, 4, and 5 contain respectively 5, 5, 4, 2, and 5 (in all, 21 "decads"); while $anuv\bar{a}kas$ 3 and 4 have respectively 6 $pary\bar{a}yas$ and 1. The sum is 21 "decad"- $s\bar{u}ktas$ and 7 $pary\bar{a}ya-s\bar{u}ktas$ or 28 $s\bar{u}ktas$.

It is reckoned to the varcasya gana (see note to Kāuç. 12. 10); and (always in company with iii. 16; vi. 69) is directed in Kāuç. 10. 24*; 12. 15; 13. 6 to be recited in various ceremonies. | See also notes to vss. 13, 18.] *[vi. §25.2 and ixe1. I and xix. 3. I have the same prattka (divasprthivyās). SPP. understands the comm. at iii. 16 and at vi. 69 as intending ix. 1 by divasprthivyās; but the comm. at xix. 3 understands xix. 3 as intended (cf. Whitney's introduction to xix. 3). — The "honeyed whip," mádhumatī káçā, of the Açvins is mentioned in the RV. (i. 22. 3; 157.4). Oldenberg, Rel. des Veda, p. 209, thinks it refers to the morning dew. Cf. Macdonell, Ved. Mythol., p. 49, 54.

Translated: Henry, 81, 115; Griffith, i. 427; Bloomfield, 229, 587.

1. Verily from sky, from earth, from atmosphere, from ocean, from fire, from wind was born the honey-whip; noting $(c\bar{a}y)$ it, [as] putting on immortality, all creatures (praja) rejoice to meet it with their hearts.

The irregularities of meter in a and c may be rectified | very unsatisfactorily | by combining prthivyā 'nt- (as Ppp. actually reads) and resolving cāyitu-ā. Divás p- is prescribed by Prat. ii. 68.

2. Great, all-formed [is] the milk of it; also they call thee the seed of ocean; whence the granting honey-whip cometh, thither breath, thither immortality (amṛta) hath entered in.

Ppp. puts payas in a after viçvarūpam | and combines payo 'syās | and puts tvā in b after uta; and it reads at the end divistam. It also gives the verse after our vs. 3. The metrical definition of the Anukr. is wrong, since a fair tristubh is restorable by a little resolution (viçu-a, pṛ-āṇas).

3. Men, manifoldly meditating (mīmāns-) severally see its movement (caritá) on the earth; verily from fire, from wind was born the honeywhip, the formidable daughter (napti) of the Maruts.

Pāda c is identical with 1 b, pādas c, d with 10 c, d. Ppp. reads at end of a prthivyās; at end of d, ugrā anapatih (also in vs. 10).

4. Mother of the Adityas, daughter of the Vasus, breath of creatures (prajā), navel of immortality (amṛta), gold-colored, dripping with ghee (ghṛtắcī), the honey-whip moves among mortals [as] a great brightness (bhárga).

Bp.p.m., Bp.2T. read gárbhas in d, and our edition follows them, doubtless erroneously. [All of SPP's authorities give bhárgas.] With a, b compare RV. viii. 101(90). 15 a, b and MB. ii. 8. 15 a, b. The Anukr. does not heed the redundant syllable in c. Correct gárbhaç to bhárgaç.

5. The gods generated the whip of honey; of it there came to be an all-formed embryo; this, when born [and] tender, its mother fills; it, [when] born, looks abroad on all existences.

Ppp. has at the end bhuvanā 'bhi vaste.

- 6. Who knows (pra-vid) that, who understands (cit) that which [is] the unexhausted soma-holding vessel of the heart of it? The priest (brahmán) of excellent wisdom he may revel in it.
- 'Of it' (b) is fem., and so relates to the 'honey-whip'; 'in it,' at the end, relates to the 'vessel.' Akṣitas (Ppp. akṣatas) at the end of b is plainly an intrusive addition to the pāda; the Anukr., wrongly reckoning the initial a of asyās as unelided, counts 15 syllables in the pāda, and calls both this and the next verse by the unusual and indefinite name mahābrhatī.
- 7. He knows those two, he understands them that [are] its two unexhausted, thousand-streaming breasts; they milk out refreshment (tirj), unresisting.
- 'Its,' i.e. of the 'honey-whip.' Ppp. reads again akṣatāu in b, and it puts this verse before our vs. 6.
- 8. She that, crying much, great, vigor-bestowing, loud-noised, goes unto her course (?vratá), bellowing at three gharmás she lows a lowing, she abounds ($p\bar{\imath}$) with milk ($p\acute{a}yas$).
- 'Crying loudly,' lit. 'making to excess the sound hing'; 'abounds with milk,' perhaps rather 'gives milk in streams.' The verse is very obscure; it is in part identical with 10.6 below (= RV. i. 164. 28). Its irregular meter (11 + 10[11?]:9 + 11 = 41 syllables) is very ill defined by the Anukr. which seems to scan as 11 + 9:9 + 11.
- 9. Whom, when fattened, the waters wait upon, the mighty (can kvar a) bulls that are self-ruling, they rain, they cause to rain, for him who knows this, his desire, refreshment, waters.
- 'Whom' is fem.; 'they' (c) is masc., = the bulls. Parts of this verse and the following one are lost in Ppp. The Anukr. [seems to scan as 11 + 11 : 9 + 9].
- 10. Thunder [is] thy voice, O Prajāpati; a bull, thou castest (kṣip) vehemence ('çúṣma') over the earth; verily from fire, from wind was born the honey-whip, the formidable daughter of the Maruts.

The latter half-verse we had above, as 3 c, d; the former half-verse is repeated below, as 20 a, b with divt for ádhi at the end J. Bloomfield thinks cusma is 'lightning': ZDMG. xlviii. 566. O. reads at the beginning stanayitnús te. The metrical description of the Anukr. means only that the syllables are 40 in all (10+12:11+7), and that one pāda contains seven.

- 11. As at the early pressing soma is loved (priya) of the Açvins, so, O Açvins, let splendor be maintained in my self.
- 12. As at the second pressing soma is loved of Indra-and-Agni, so, O Indra-and-Agni, let splendor be maintained in my self.
- 13. As at the third pressing soma is loved of the Ribhus, so, O Ribhus, let splendor be maintained in my self.

This group of three verses is specially quoted at Vāit. 21.7 to accompany an offering of ājya. It is one of the passages forming the varcasya gana (see note to Kāuç. 13.1); and at Kāuç. 139. 15 it is prescribed to be used, with many others, in the ceremony of initiation of a Vedic student. The verses are not metrical, though the Anukr. calls them anuṣṭubh (as having 31 and 32 syllables). In 12 a the accent-mark under ye has dropped out.

14. May I generate honey; may I win honey; rich in milk, O Agni, have I come; unite me here with splendor.

The second part of the verse we have had above as vii. 89. 1 c, d. The edition reads, with all the mss., vançiṣṭya, but it should be emended to vansiṣṭya (root van); cf. the similar misreading at xvi. 9. 4. Ppp. reads madhu janiṣṭ manu mambikṭyaḥ; and it combines agnā "gamam. By reckoning the first part of the passage as metrical (which it is not) the Anukr. counts out a good purauṣṇih.

15. Unite me, O Agni, with splendor, with progeny, with life-time; may the gods know me as such; may Indra know, together with the seers.

We had the verse above, as vii. 89. 2.

16. As the honey-makers bring together honey upon honey, so, O Açvins, let splendor be maintained in my self.

Ppp. reads, for the second half-verse, evā mc 'çvinā balam ojaç ca dhriyatām: cf. our 17 c, d. The line is, like the corresponding parts of 11-13, not metrical as it stands.

17. As the flies $(m \acute{a} k \rlap{.} s \bar{a})$ smear down here honey upon honey, so, O Açvins, let my splendor, brilliancy, strength, and force be maintained.

In a, delete the superfluous accent-mark under dhu. Ppp. has quite another version of a, b: yathā makṣā mayuntyujam dakṣiṇām adhi: and it omits balam ojas in d. The omission of any one of the three nouns in our d would rectify the meter.

18. What honey on hills (giri), on mountains, what in kine, in horses, in strong drink $(sir\bar{a})$ as poured out, what honey [is] there, [be] that in me.

With this verse and the next are to be compared vi. 69. 1, 2 where the use by Vāit. is given J. Ppp. has only yadi girisyavipām citviṣt in place of this verse, and puts it before our 16.

19. O ye Açvins, lords of beauty! anoint me with the honey of bees (sāraghá), that I may speak splendid words among the people.

This verse differs only by one word from vi. 69. 2.

20. Thunder [is] thy voice, O Prajāpati; a bull, thou castest vehemence on the earth, on the sky; upon that live all cattle; with this it lavishes (pr) food (is) [and] refreshment.

The first half-verse is the same with 10 a, b, saving divi for ddhi at the end. 'That' in c is fem. (tdam), and might refer either to 'voice' or to 'earth'; 'this' is masc. (or neut., tena), and might refer either to 'vehemence' or to 'sky'; while 'it' is again fem. The obscurity of the verse baffles interpretation. The Pet. Lex. suggests 'seed' as a possible rendering of cusma ('vehemence'). The metrical description of the Anukr. is, as usual in such an irregular case (10+12:11+9[11?]=42), quite worthless. Ppp. omits the first pāda, reads divas for divi at the end of the second, and goes on thus: madhos kaçayos pṛthivīm anakṣi tām dātāram paçava upa jīvanti: sarve tena vo çeṣam ūrjam bibharti.

21. Earth [is] the staff, atmosphere the embryo, sky the whip, lightning the snapper (? prakaçá), of gold the globule (bindú).

The Pet. Lex. conjectures "Peitschenriemen" for prakaçá. Ppp. leaves the initial of antariksam unelided, and for prakaças has prakāçā madhokaçā ci ghrtācī.

22. He who knows the seven honeys of the whip becomes rich in honey: the Brahman, and the king, and the milch-cow, and the draft-ox, and rice, and barley; honey the seventh.

One does not see why the Anukr calls the passage $br\bar{a}hm\bar{t}$ purauṣṇih [that is $\frac{a}{4}$ of 12:8+8=18:12+12=42] rather than simply $br\bar{a}hm\bar{t}$ uṣṇih [$\frac{a}{4}$ of 8+8:12=12+12:18=42]; it is the only example of either name in the treatise. [The not very sufficient reason for the preference would seem to be the position of the avasāna, which divides the "vs." as 18:24 and not as 24:18.] [Ppp. has in a madhukaçāyās for kaç- and sapta madhumatīm for madhumān bhavati; then follows madhumato lokān jayati (cf. vs. 23).]

- 23. Rich in honey he becomes; rich in honey becomes his provision $(\bar{a}h\bar{a}ry\dot{a})$; worlds rich in honey he conquers, who knows thus.
- 24. When it thunders in a clear sky, that is Prajāpati himself becoming manifest to his creatures; therefore I stand with the sacred cord over the right shoulder, saying: O Prajāpati, take notice (anu-budh) of me: creatures [take notice], Prajāpati takes notice of him who knows thus.

In order to make an asti (64 syll.) of this piece of prose, we have to restore anu and separate tti in d, and to resolve anu enam in e; and to make six padas the last line has to be violently divided; the pada-text intimates a division after the second anu. Ppp. in a-b has a tat also before prajapatis and in e it reads praja budhyante for prajap-budhyate.

[The hymn begins with divás and the quoted Anukr. says "divaç" ca catur-uttarāļu (referring to a plus of 4 over the normal 20).

2. To Kāma: for various blessings.

[Partly prose — "vs." 13.] Found also (except vs. 4) in Pāipp. xvi. [with vs. 16 before 12 and vs. 24 before 20]. The hymn (vs. 1) is prescribed in Vāit. 24. 10 to be recited, with homage to Kāma, in a part of the Agnistoma ceremony; and in Kāuç. 49. 1 it (vs. 1) accompanies the release of a bull in a witchcraft ceremony.

Translated: Muir, v. 404 (nearly all); Ludwig, p. 519; Scherman, Philosophische Hymnen, p. 76 (part); Henry, 84, 118; Griffith, i. 430; Bloomfield, 220, 591.—Cf. Hillebrandt, Veda-Chrestomathie, p. 40.

1. The rival-slaying bull Kāma do I desire to aid (?çiks) with ghee, with oblation, with sacrificial butter; do thou, praised with great heroism, make my rivals to fall downward.

Kāma, lit. 'desire, love,' is so thoroughly personified throughout the hymn that the word is better transferred than translated.

2. What of my mind or my sight is not agreeable (priya), what of me gnaws, does not enjoy (abhi-nand), that evil-dreaming do I fasten on my rival; praising Kāma, may I shoot up.

The sense of a, b is very doubtful; without b added, a would naturally mean 'what is not agreeable to my mind or sight'; the Pet. Lex. proposes to help the difficulty rather by emending b to yasmād bībhatse yac ca nā 'bhinande. This verse and the following one are included in the duḥsvapnanāçana gaṇa: see note to Kāuç. 46. 9. There is an irregularity in every pāda, but the Anukr. does not heed them. Ppp. has, for b, yan me hṛdaye nā 'bhinandanti; and, for d, kāmam juṣṭa hānudam bhideyam — thus giving us no help. [Pischel treats the vs., Ved. Stud. ii. 61. Aufrecht, KZ. xxxiv. 459, sees here a root bhas 'verdriessen, taedere.']

3. Evil-dreaming, O Kāma, and difficulty, O Kāma, want of progeny, homelessness, ruin do thou, formidable, masterful, fasten on him who shall seek to devise (cikits-) distresses for us.

Ppp. combines yo 'smabhyam in d.

4. Thrust, O Kāma; thrust forth, O Kāma; let them who are my rivals go to ruin; of them, thrust to lowest darknesses, do thou, O Agni, burn out the abodes (vāstu).

The Anukr. takes no notice of the deficiency of two syllables in d, which in 9 d is made up by the addition of anu. In Vāit. 4. 5 the verse is strangely used to accompany the separation of two sacrificial ladles; in Kāuç. 48. 5 it accompanies the driving away of something with a branch.

5. That daughter of thine, O Kāma, is called a milch-cow, what utterance (vdc) the poets name virdj; with that do thou avoid them that are my rivals; let breath, cattle, life avoid them.

Or a might be 'that milch-cow is called thy daughter.' O. reads $pdry en\bar{a}n$ in d; but the passage is quoted under Prāt. iii. 80 as one in which the lingualization of n does not take place.

6. With the strength of Kāma, of Indra, of king Varuṇa, of Vishṇu, with the impulse of Savitar ('the impeller'), with the priestship (hotrá) of Agni I thrust forth my rivals, as a skilful pole-man (?çambin) a boat on the waters (udaká).

Çambin occurs nowhere else, and the meaning of çámba is doubtful. Ppp. reads in c piçācān instead of sapatnān.

7. Let Kāma, my valiant $(v\bar{a}jln)$ formidable overseer, make for me freedom from rivals; let the all-gods be my refuge; let all the gods come to this call of mine.

- 'All.' is viçve in c, and sarve in d. The verse is called jagatī by the Anukr., though only d is a jagatī pāda [and that only by count]. Ppp. combines at the end of d māi 'mam [and thus suggests the true metrical rendering of d as a trisṭubh: similarly at ix. 3. 15].
- 8. Enjoying this sacrificial butter rich in ghee, do ye, with Kāma as chief (-jyéṣṭha), revel here, making for me freedom from rivals.

Ppp. reads ghṛtam id in a, and kṛṇvantu in c. The verse is a perfectly good virāṇṇāmagāyatrī, but the Anukr. calls it an ārcī paūkti, as if it had 30 syllables.

9. Becoming, O Kāma, in alliance (sarátham) with Indra-and-Agni, may ye make my rjvals to fall downward; of them, fallen to lowest darknesses, do thou, O Agni, burn along out the abodes.

With c, d compare 4 c, d above. The first half-verse presents various anomalies: sarátham demands an instrumental case; we should expect rather a plural verb (but compare vi. 104. 3 a, b); and it should be accented after ht. Emending indrāgnt to indrena, and reading pādayāthas, would make everything right.

10. Slay thou, O Kāma, those that are my rivals; make them fall down to blind darknesses; be they all senseless (?nirindriya), sapless; let them not live any day soever.

Ppp. combines sapatnā 'ndhā in a-b, combines and reads nirindriyā 'ravāḥ in c, and has for d yathā nu jīvāt katamac [-maç?] cane 'ṣām'.

11. Kāma hath slain (vadh) them that are my rivals; he hath made for me wide space, prosperity; let the four directions bow to me; let the six wide ones | fem. | bring ghee to me.

The third pāda was found above as v. 3. 1 c. It is unusual for the Anukr. to note as bhurij a triṣṭubh, containing a jagatī-pāda. [Cf. Bergaigne, Rel. Véd. ii. 122.]

12. Let them float away downward, like a boat severed from its mooring; of them, thrust forth by missiles, there is no return again.

The verse is nearly identical with iii. 6. 7 above. [Ppp. reads in c sāyakaṣ pra-.]

13. Agnie[is] a repeller (? $y \acute{a} v a$), Indra a repeller, Soma a repeller; let the repelling (? $y a v a y \acute{a} v a n$) gods repel (y u) him.

[Prose.] This translation is altogether questionable. Perhaps the verse accompanies a ceremony in which barley (yáva) is used, a play on words being intended between yáva 'barley' and the root yu 'repel'; yavayávan would then be 'going in barley.' Ppp. has for second half yavayanty amum āmuṣyāyaṇam amuṣyāṣ putram jīvalokam mṛtalokam katā 'mum. It is strange that the Anukr. does not note the paragraph as dvyavasānā.

14. With his heroes not safe $\lfloor a - sarvav \bar{\imath} ra \rfloor$ let him go on, thrust forth, to be hated of friends, to be avoided of his own kin; on earth also stay $(ava-s\bar{a})$ thunderbolts; may the formidable god massacre your rivals.

The sense of c is obscure; vidyútas might also be object of the verb: 'they let loose thunderbolts.' Ppp. puts dvesyas after mitrāṇām in b. The Anukr. calls the verse a jagatī, although it is a tristubh with one jagatī-pāda (like 11). [W. usually renders sarvavīra by 'with all [his, our, etc.] heroes.']

15. This great [earth], both stirred and unstirred, bears the lightning and all the thunders; let the Aditya, arising with property, with brilliancy, thrust downward my rivals, he the powerful one.

The first half-verse is wholly obscure, and the version given commits the grammatical solecism of taking vidyút as neut. accus. But for the last ca, vidyut might be taken as subject of the sentence. The verse has a tristubh-pāda (a), of which the Anukr. makes no account.

16. What sufficient (udbhú) triply-guarding defense thou hast, O Kāma, worship (bráhman) as extended protection (várman), made unpierceable, with that do thou avoid them that are my rivals; let breath, cattle, life avoid them.

The last half-verse is $\lfloor \text{nearly} \rfloor$ identical with 5 c, d above, and O. again reads enān in d. Ppp. puts the verse next before our 12. The description of the meter by the Anukr. is unintelligible, since we have (12+14:12+14) 52 syllables, or an atijagatī; perhaps parājagatī is a misreading for this.

17. Wherewith the gods thrust forth the Asuras, wherewith Indra conducted the barbarians (dásyu) to lowest darkness, therewith do thou, O Kāma, thrust forth far from this world those who are my rivals.

Ppp. reads at end of b tamo 'pabādhe, and at end of d sarvān for dūram. The verse (11+13:11+11=46) is a queer sort of "jagatī."

18. As the gods thrust forth the Asuras, as Indra drove $(b\bar{a}dh)$ the barbarians to lowest darkness, so do thou, O Kāma, thrust forth far from this world those who are my rivals.

Ppp. has again tamo 'pabādhe, but this time dūram. The "jagatī" meter is like that of vs. 17.

19. Kāma was first born; not the gods, the Fathers, nor mortals attained $(\bar{a}p)$ him; to them art thou superior $(jy \dot{a}y \bar{a}is)$, always great; to thee as such, O Kāma, do I pay homage.

Ppp. reads in a, b prathamo $n\bar{a}$ 'nyat puro $n\bar{a}i$ 'nam devāsas pitaro no 'ta martyāḥ; and it combines in d namāi 't. The verse $(9\lfloor 10? \rfloor + 10: 12 + 11 = 42)$ is a queer "tristubh."

20. How great in width are heaven-and-earth; how far the waters flowed, how far fire—to them art thou etc. etc.

With a is identical iv. 6. 2 a. Some samhitā-mss. read sisyadúr in b (O.s.m.R.). [I find no note of R.] The meter is described by the Anukr. in accordance with that of vs. 11.

21. How great are the divergent ($visva\tilde{n}c$) quarters [and] directions; how great the regions ($dc\tilde{a}$), on-lookers of the sky — to them art thou etc. etc.

The verse lacks two syllables of being a real jagatt.

22. How many the humble-bees ($bh\tilde{r}nga$), the bats, the kurūrus; how many have been the $vagh\bar{a}s$, the tree-creepers—to them art thou etc. etc.

The verse is a jagatt in number of syllables (12+13:12+11=48). Bp. accents jatváh in a.

- 23. Superior art thou to him that winks, that stands; superior to the ocean art thou, O Kāma, fury to them art thou etc. etc.
- 24. Verily no wind soever attains $(\bar{a}p)$ Kāma, not fire, sun, also not moon; to them art thou etc. etc.

Ppp. puts this verse before our 20, and reads for c, d na vāpaç cana kāmam āpur nā horātrāni nihatāni yantī na vāi puņyajāç Lintending puṇyajanāç? cana kāmam āpur na gandharvāpsaraso na sarpāḥ. The Anukr. accounts the verse simply a tristubh [perhaps counting b as 10 and balancing it with the 12 of c].

25. What propitious excellent bodies thou hast, O Kāma, with which what thou choosest becometh real, with them do thou enter wholly into us; make evil devices (dht) enter away elsewhere.

The combination tābhis tvām is an example under Prāt. ii. 84, and is quoted in the commentary there. Ppp. reads vṛṇtte at end of b, upa- for abhi- in c, and upa for apa in d. The Anukr. pays no heed to the extra syllable in d. The verse is quoted in Kāuç. 24. 29 in the āgrahāyaṇī ceremony, to accompany the act of lying down (apparently merely on account of the occurrence of -sam-viç in c).

Here ends the first anuvāka, with 2 hymns and 49 verses.

3. To accompany the releasing of a house.

Translated: Ludwig, p. 464; Zimmer, p. 151 (vss. 1-24); Grill, 60, 188 (vss. 1-24); Henry, 87, 121; Griffith, i. 434; Bloomfield, 193, 595.—Cf. also Oldenberg, IFA. vi. 179.

I. Of the props (upamit), of the supports (pratimit), and also of the connectors (pratimit) of the dwelling (pratimit) that possesses all choice things, we unfasten the tied $(naddh\acute{a})$ [parts].

Ppp. reads upamitaș pratimito tho parimitaç ca yaç çālāyā viçvavārāyā te naddhān vi crtāmasi.

2. What of thee is tied, O thou that possessest all choice things, what fetter and knot is made, that with a spell (vác) I make fall apart, as Brihaspati [did] Bala.

All the mss. read balam (not valam) in c, as also Ppp. (brhaspatim vaham balam). Our Bp. has in d srançayāmi: tvát. The Anukr. seems to imply the abbreviation of iva to 'va in c.

- 3. He stretched $(\bar{a}\text{-yam})$, he combined (sam-brh), he made thy knots firm (drdhd); with Indra we unfasten [them], as a knowing slaughterer the joints.
- 4. Of thy beams (vançá), ties (náhana), and binding (prāṇāhá) grass, of thy sides (pakṣá), O thou that possessest all choice things, we unfasten the tied [parts].

Vançá is properly a bamboo beam. Prānāhá (unchanged in pada-text) seems to occur only here, nor is root nah elsewhere combined with pra; I have ventured to render it as an adj., as tr̄na appears to call for a descriptive epithet. Ppp. reads naddhān vi in d.

5. Of the clamps (samdançá), of the paladás, and of the embracer (páriṣvañjalya) — now of the mistress of the building do we unfasten the tied [parts].

Ppp. reads, in a, b, palidānām pariṣvañcanadasya ca; and, for c, sarvā mānasya patni te; it also puts the verse before our 4.

6. What hanging vessels (?cikya) they bound on to thee within for enjoyment, those we unfasten for thee; be thou, [when] set up, O mistress of the building, propitious to our self (tana).

Çikyà may be an ornamental hanging appendage of some kind.* All the mss. read mānasya patni in d; our edition emends to mān. The pada-text has úddhitā, undivided, in e (as at xviii. 2. 34, and uddhiḥ at viii. 8. 22); the case ought to fall under Prāt. iv. 62, but root dhā is not mentioned there, though we find han superfluously included. Ppp. reads yāni te antaç cikyāny āmedho 'ntyāya kam; and, for d, sarvā mānasya patnyā.

- * [As to decorations of this kind, see John Griffiths, The Paintings in the Buddhist Cave-Temples of Ajantâ, London, 1896, plates 6, 10, and 13; cf. also Karpūra-mañjarī, iii. 27, ed. Konow, and my note thereon at p. 289. W. has interlined "slings" as an alternative rendering of cikyâ.
- 7. Oblation-holder (havirdhána), fire-place (agniçála), wives' site [and] seat; seat of the gods art thou, O heavenly dwelling.
 - The parosnih is regular, save for the common variant of a tristubh instead of a . at the end.
- 8. The thousand-eyed net $(\acute{a}k su)$, stretched out as opaçá on the division-line $(vis\bar{u}v\acute{a}nt)$, tied down, put on, do we with worship $(br\acute{a}hman)$ unfasten.

Abhihita in c doubtless contains the suggestion of abhidhānī 'a halter.' Geldner (Ved. Stud. i. 136) wants to make of akṣu a 'stake' or 'pillar.' Viṣūvant probably means the 'parting of the hair, crown' (so Zimmer), here the ridge of the roof. Ppp. begins with yakṣmopiçam, and has in c the easier reading apinaddham apihitam.

9. He who, O dwelling, accepts thee, and he by whom thou art built—let both those, O mistress of the building, live to attain old age.

The $m\bar{a}nasya$ of the mss. in c is again emended in our edition to $m\bar{a}n$. Ppp. rectifies the meter of a by reading yaq $citr\bar{a}$ $(ca\ tv\bar{a}?)$ pr. The Anukr. pays no heed to the irregularity of the verse (9+8:8+7).

10. Do thou, made firm, tied, adorned (pari-kr), go to him yonder—thou whose every limb, whose every joint we unfasten.

O. reads in a amútrāi 'nam. Páriskrtā is unaltered in the pada-text, as prescribed by Prāt. iv. 58. Enam probably indicates the "acceptor" (9 a, 15). Ppp. reads in b tridhā for dṛḍhā, and begins c with tasyās. [As to amútra, cf. Oldenberg, IFA. vi. 179.]

11. He who fixed (ni-mi) thee, O dwelling, [who] brought together the forest trees—unto progeny, O dwelling, he, [as a] most exalted Prajāpati, made thee.

Ppp. reads pūrvas for çāle in a.

12. Homage to him, homage to the giver, and to the lord of the dwelling we pay; homage to the forth-moving (pra-car) fire, and to thy spirit (?púruṣa) [be] homage.

Ppp. reads in b kṛṇmasi.

13. Homage to kine, to horses, whatever is born $(vi-j\bar{a})$ in the dwelling; thou rich in births $(vij\bar{a}-)$, rich in progeny, we unfasten thy fetters.

Ppp. lacks, probably by an oversight, the second half-verse.

- 14. Thou coverest within the fire, the men together with the cattle (paqu); thou rich in births, rich in progeny, we unfasten thy fetters.
- 15. Between both heaven and earth what expanse [there is], therewith do I accept this dwelling of thine; the atmosphere that pervades (vimāna) space (rájas), that do I make a paunch (udára) for treasures; therewith I accept the house for this man.

This verse in Kāuç. 66. 28 accompanies the "acceptance" of the house in question. The Anukr. calls it an atiçakvarī, though it contains only 57 syllables (12+12: 11+11:11) instead of 60. Ppp. reads at end of b tāi 'mām (an abbreviation which is here acceptable, as making a good triṣṭubh-pāda [such was the case at ix. 2. 7 also]), and in e yac chālām for tena ç-.

- 16. Rich in refreshment, rich in milk, fixed (ni-mi), built upon the earth, bearing all food, O dwelling, do not thou injure those accepting [thee].
- 17. Wrapped $(\bar{a}-v\underline{r})$ with grass, clothing itself in paladás, the dwelling, place of rest $(niv\ell can\bar{i})$ of living creatures, like the night built on the earth thou standest, like a she-elephant, having feet.

That is, apparently, heavy and big on the four corner posts, like an elephant (female because 'dwelling' is feminine) on its feet. With b compare xii. 1.6 b. The verse as a prastārapaākti (11 + 12:8+8) has no irregularity which the Anukr. is wont to heed.

18. Of thy rush-work (11a) I unfasten what was tied on, uncovering; [thee] pressed together by Varuna let Mitra in the morning open out.

The verse in Kāuç. 66. 24 accompanies the letting down (ava-sr) of the door. [Bergaigne has a note on the vs., Rel. Véd. iii. 122.]

- 19. The dwelling fixed with worship (bráhman), fixed, built by the poets—let Indra-and-Agni, immortal, defend the dwelling, the seat for soma (somyá).
- P. reads nirmitām in b, and sāumyám in d. Ppp. has a quite different version: catussraktim paricakrām for a; viçvāna bibhratī çālām (cf. our 16 c) amṛto sāumyam sadaḥ for c, d.
- 20. A nest $(kul\dot{a}ya)$ upon a nest, a vessel $(k\dot{o}ca)$ pressed together in a vessel—there a mortal is born $(vi-j\bar{a})$, from whom all is generated $(pra-j\bar{a})$.

Ppp. has martyas in c.

21. [The dwelling] which is fixed with two sides, with four sides, which with six sides — the eight-sided, the ten-sided dwelling, the mistress of the building, Agni lies in like an embryo.

The pada-text reads aṣṭāopakṣām in c, by Prāt. iii. 2; iv. 94. [As to pakṣa, cf. iii. 7. 3.] The verse is a good paākti, involving only the resolution mānasi-a in d, but the Anukr. absurdly treats it as of four pādas; and, in accordance with this, the padamss. mark a pāda division after $\zeta \hat{a} l \bar{a} m$.

22. I go forward, O dwelling, turned toward thee, uninjuring, that art turned toward me; for within [are] fire and waters, the first door of right (rtd).

Ppp. reads at the end prathamobhā. The mss. all have ca rtásya in c-d. The verse is quoted in Kāuç. 66. 25, accompanying the action of 'going forward with (ādāya) water-pot [and] fire.'

23. I bring forward these waters, free from yaksma, dispellers of yaksma; I set forth unto the houses, together with immortal fire.

We had this verse above, as iii. 12. 9. Ppp. (which omitted it as part of that hymn) reads in a harāmi, and in c abhi (for upa).

24. Fasten thou not on us the fetter; a heavy burden, become thou light; like a woman $(vadh\hat{n})$, O dwelling, we carry thee where we will.

Quoted in Kāuç. 66.30. [Cf. again Oldenberg, IFA. vi. 179. — Over "woman" W. interlines "bride?" |

25. From the eastern quarter, homage to the greatness of the dwelling! hail to the gods that are to be hailed!

[Ppp. puts svāhā devebhyah svāhyebhyah before prācyāh: and has a similar order in the following vss.]

- 26. From the southern quarter, homage etc. etc.
- 27. From the western quarter, homage etc. etc.
- 28. From the northern quarter, homage etc. etc.
- 29. From the firm quarter, homage etc. etc.
- 30. From the upward quarter, homage etc. etc.
- 31. From every quarter, homage etc. etc.

In the last verse diçôdiçaḥ should have been printed without space before the repetition, as is our usage elsewhere.

4. Accompanying the gift of a bull.

[Brahman.—caturvinçakam. ārṣabham. trāisṭubham: 8. bhurij; 6, 10, 24. jagatī; 11--17, 19, 20, 23. anuṣṭubh; 18. upariṣṭād bṛhatī; 21. āstārapañkti.]

Found also in Pāipp. xvi. (in the verse-order 1-3, 5, 4, 6, 8, 7, 9, 10-13, 15, 14, 16-22, 24, 23). Not noticed in Vāit., and not in Kāuç. in a way to cast any light whatever upon it; the hymn is quoted in Kāuç. 24. 19 (with vi. 111) in the ceremony of turning a bull loose, and vs. 24 separately in the same ceremony in Kāuç. 24. 21; also vs. 1 in 66. 18 in connection with a bull; the hymn is reckoned (see note to Kāuç. 19. 1) among the pustika mantras.

Translated: Henry, 90, 128; Griffith, i. 438. — For some of the vss. the reader may consult Hillebrandt, Ved. Myth. i. 330, 516, 382, 358, 525.

I. The bright bull of a thousand, rich in milk, bearing all forms in his bellies, desiring to accomplish (? qiks) what is excellent for his giver, the sacrificer — he, the ruddy one of Brihaspati, hath stretched $\lfloor \bar{a}$ -tan \rfloor the line (tantu).

That is, doubtless, 'has extended or performed the sacrifice.'

- 2. He who in the beginning became the counterpart (pratimá) of the waters, prevailing (prabhú) for everything, like the divine earth, father of young (vatsá), lord of the inviolable [kine]—let him set (kr) us in thousandfold prosperity.
- 3. A male (púmāns), [yet] pregnant, big (sthávira), rich in milk, the bull bears a trunk (kábandha) of good (vásu); him, sacrificed to Indra, let Agni Jātavedas carry by the roads traveled by the gods.

W. reads in b vásos ká-.

4. Father of calves, lord of the inviolable [kine], also father of great gulfs (gárgara); calf, afterbirth, fresh milk, beestings, curd, ghee — that [is] his seed.

The verse occurs also in TS. (iii. 3. 9²), MS. (ii. 5. 10), and K. (xiii. 9). In b, MS. reads utā 'yām for ātho; for d, TS. has āmikṣā māstu ghṛtām asya rētaḥ, and MS. the same, save yōniḥ for rētaḥ.

5. The gods' portion [was] that load, the sap of waters, of plants, of ghee; the mighty one (çakrá) chose a drink of soma; a great stone became what [was his] body.

This verse also is found in TS. and MS. (as above), in both texts preceding our vs. 4 (in MS. one other verse intervenes, our xviii. 4. 28). Both have, for a, devånām eṣā upanāhā āsīt; for b, TS. has apām gárbha oṣadhīṣu nyàktaḥ, and MS. apām pátir vṛṣabhā oṣadhīnām; in c, both have drapsám for bhakṣām and pūṣā for çakrāḥ; in d, after abhavat, MS. has yāt tād āsīt, and TS. tād eṣām.

6. Thou bearest a vessel filled with soma, shaper (tváṣṭṛ) of forms, generator of cattle; propitious to thee be these pudenda (?prajant) that are here; to us, O ax, confirm those that are yonder.

Ppp. reads at the beginning somasya; its second half-verse is unintelligible. The verse is with no propriety called a jagati (11 + 11 : 13 + 12 = 47).

7. Sacrificial butter he bears; ghee [is] his seed; thousandfold prosperity — that they call the sacrifice; the bull, clothing himself in Indra's form — let him, O gods, come propitious to us, being given.

Ppp. reads in b sahasraposas, and in d'smā and çivāi"tu.

8. Indra's force, Varuṇa's two arms, the Açvins' two shoulders, of the Maruts this hump; they who are wise, poets, who are skilful (manīṣin), call him Brihaspati brought together.

The verse has two jagati-pādas, though called by the Anukr. simply bhurij. Read at the end of b kakút.

- 9. Rich in milk, thou stretchest unto the people (vi_{ξ}) of the gods; thee they call Indra, thee Sarasvant; he gives a thousand [kine] with one face who makes offering $(\bar{a}-hu)$ of a bull to a Brahman.
 - '[Cf. Oldenberg, IFA. vi. 183.]
- 10. Brihaspati, Savitar bestowed on thee vigor (vdyas); from Tvashtar, from Vāyu was brought forth thy soul $(\bar{a}tmdn)$; with mind in the atmosphere I make offering (hu) of thee; let heaven-and-earth both be thy barhis.

Ppp. reads manas for vayas in a. The Anukr. calls the verse jagatī, though two of its pādas are tristubh.

11. He who goes speaking out greatly among the kine, like Indra among the gods — of that bull let the worshiper (brahmán) praise together the members excellently.

All our mss. (save O.) read, like the edition, tasya rsa- in c, although the passage is quoted as example under the Prāt. rule (iii. 46) that a or $\bar{a} + r$ make ar. Ppp. reads in a aindri'va. The paddhati (note to Kāuç. 24. 19) has the verse whispered in the right ear of the released bull.

12. His sides were Anumati's; his flanks (?anūvṛj) were Bhaga's; of his knees (aṣṭhīvánt) Mitra said: those are wholly mine.

All the nouns are duals. The Anukr. takes no notice of the redundant syllable in c. [Henry would emend thus: -vántābrav-, i.e. -vántā abrav-.] Ppp. reads at the beginning pārçvay āstām.

13. His rump was the Adityas'; his two thighs were Brihaspati's; his tail [was] the heavenly wind's; therewith he shakes the herbs.

Ppp. reads in b cronty astam.

- 14. His intestines $(g\acute{u}d\bar{a})$ were Sinīvālī's; they called his skin Sūryā's; they called his feet (pl.) the upstander's $(utth\bar{a}t\acute{r})$, when they prepared (kalpay) the bull.
- The pada-text reads, like the samhitā, utthātúḥ, by Prāt. iv. 62. Ppp. combines gudā "sam; it also makes our 14 c, d and 15 c, d exchange places. [Ppp. puts yat before rṣabham, and for akalpayan it has vika . . . (gap).]
- 15. His breast (krodá) was Jāmiçansa's; his vessel [was] maintained as Soma's, when all the gods, coming together, distributed (vi-kalpay-) the bull.

We had $j\bar{a}mic_{a}nisa$ above (ii. 10. 1) as 'imprecation of sisters'; the word does not occur elsewhere. What part of the bull is his 'vessel' is obscure. The first pāda has a redundant syllable.

16. Those dew-claws $(k\acute{u}sthik\bar{a})$ [were] Saramā's; they assigned the hoofs to the tortoises $(k\bar{u}rm\acute{a})$; the content of his bowels they maintained for the worms, the cavartás.

The mss. are divided between çavarta (P.s.m.I.O.R.p.m.T.D.Kp.) and çvavarta (Bp.E.R.s.m.); while M. and P.p.m. have çvaçavarta, and W. çaçavarta. The occurrence of çavartá in TS. (v. 7. 23¹: also in connection with thadhya) determined the reading of our text. But our pada-text divides the word (Bp. çvaovartá; D.Kp. çaovi-), which favors the reading çva-, since it implies a combination of the two recognizably independent words çvan and varta, 'occurring in dogs,' or something of the sort. Ppp. apparently has çivaratrebhyo. [Roth suggests that çavarta may be for çavavarta 'Aaswurm, Made.']

17. With his horns he pushes the demon; with his eye he slays ruin; with his ears he hears what is excellent—he who is the inviolable lord of kine.

Ppp. reads in a, b rakṣa riṣad rātī. The Prāt. (ii. 70) notes that the reading in d is not yás pát. Some of the mss. (Bp.I.K.) accent aghnyàs.

18. With a hundred-fold sacrifice he sacrifices; the fires burn him not; all the gods quicken him, who makes offering of a bull to a Brahman.

The last pada is the same with 9 d. Ppp. has sarve instead of vieve in c.

19. Having given a bull to Brahmans, one makes his mind wider; he beholds (ava-paç) prosperity of the inviolable [kine] in his own stall.

Ppp. reads in a brāhmaṇāya vṛṣabham, and in d vi paçyatu. In a, we have to combine (as not very rarely elsewhere) -bhya rṣ-.

20. Let there be kine, let there be progeny, also let there be own strength; let the gods approve all that for the giver of a bull.

Ppp. puts tat after sarvam in c.

21. Let this burly $(ptp\bar{a}na)$ one, a very Indra, bestow conspicuous wealth; let this one [bestow] a well-milking cow, constantly with calf; let him yield (duh) inspired will beyond the sky.

Ppp. has very different readings, which in part are less unacceptable than those of our text: for a, b, ayam pipānā indriyam gayām bibharti tejanī: in d, vipaçyatam puro divah. [For pipāna, cf. Bloomfield, AJP. xii. 443.]

22. Of reddish form, clouded (?nabhasá), vigor-giving, vehemence of Indra, all-formed, he hath come to us, assigning to us life-time and progeny; and with abundances of wealth let him attach himself to (abhi-sac) us.

The last half-verse agrees nearly with xviii. 4. 62 c, d, where dádhatas and sacadhvam make better meter. It is not impossible to resolve asmábhi-am in c, but sacantām, which some of the mss. read (P.p.m.W.D.), is forbidden by the sense. Ppp. has a wholly different line: prajām asmabhyam dadhato rayim ca dīrghāyutvāya çataçāradāya. [Bloomfield translates the verse at ZDMG. xlviii. 566, but overlooks the accent of nabhasó: cf. támas-ā and tamasā (samhitā-form at xi. 9. 22).]

23. Here in this stall, O closeness (upapárcana), be thou close unto us; unto [us] what seed the bull has; unto [us], O Indra, thy heroism.

This is a variant of RV. vi. 28. 8 (with which TB. ii. 8. 8¹² and LÇS. iii. 3. 4 precisely agree); RV. has, for a, b, úpe 'dám upapárcanam āsú góṣū 'pa prcyatām, with rétasi for yád rétas in c, and vīryè at the end: a very different sense; the Pet. Lexx. understand upa-prc as signifying here sexual union. We have to combine irregularly goṣṭho 'pa in order to rectify the meter of b; the Anukr. does not heed the irregularity.

24. This young male we set toward you here; with him go ye (fem.) playing according to your wills; abandon us not with birth, ye well-portioned ones; and with abundances of wealth attach yourselves to us.

The last pāda is the same with xviii. 4. 62 d. The verse is found, in much more acceptable form, in TS. (iii. 3. 9¹, followed, after one intervening verse, by our vss. 5, 4 above) and PGS. (iii. 9. 6, disagreeing with TS. in only one word); they read, for a, etâm yûvānam pâri (but PGS. patim) vo dadāmi (omitting atra); in b, priyēna for váçān anu; in c, çāpta for hāsiṣṭa; and, for d, rāyás pôṣṣṇa sám iṣā madema (nearly our iii. 15. 8 c). Ppp. agrees with our text, only combining dadhmo tra in a. But for the accent of janúṣā (in TS. also), we might render, with Stenzler, ye who are by birth well-portioned. Bp.R.p.m. have at end of c subhagās. The Anukr. weakly calls the verse (12 + 12:11 + 11) a jagatī, in spite of the triṣṭubh cadence of its first pāda. It is quoted in Kāuç. 24. 21, to accompany the sending away of an older bull and the release of a new one. [See also note to Kāuç. 25. 24.]

5. With the offering of a goat and five rice-dishes.

[Bhrgu. — aştātrinçat. mantroktājam pañcāudanadevatyam. trāistubham: 3.4-p. purotiçakvarī jagatī; 4, 10. jagatī; 14, 17, 27-30. anustubh (30. kakummatī); 16.3-p. anustubh; 18, 37. 3-p. virād gāyatrī; 23. purausņih; 24.5-p. anustubusņiggarbho 'paristādbārhatā virād jagatī; 20-22. ?; 26.5-p. anustubusņiggarbho 'paristādbārhatā bhurij; 31.7-p. asti; 32-35. 10-p. prakṛti; 36. 10-p. ākṛti; 38. 1-av. 2-p. sāmnī tristubh.]

[Partly prose — "vss." 16, 20-22, 31-36; also considerable parts of 23-30.] Found for the most part also in Pāipp., but not all together, nor even all in the same book; the greater part of the vss. (1, 3-6, 8, 7, 11, 9, 12, 10, 13-15, 19-21, 23, 24, 2) occur in xvi.; vss. 16, 17, 37 (part) in iii.; vss. 27, 28 in viii.; vss. 24-26, 31-36 are represented by similar, but briefer and very corrupt material, in xvi.; vss. 18, 22, 37 (part), 38 are wanting [apparently also 29-30]. Three of the verses are quoted in Vāit., and more in Kāuç.: see under the verses.

Translated: Muir, v. 304-6 (parts); Ludwig, p. 435; Henry, 93, 133; Griffith, i. 442.

1. Conduct him hither; take hold; let him go, foreknowing, unto the world of the well-doing; crossing the great darknesses variously, let the goat step unto the third firmament (náka).

Ppp. has, in c, vipaçyam for mahānti: cf. our 3 c. The first six verses of the hymn are quoted in their order in Kāuç. 64. 6-16 (vs. 1 also in 64. 27) in connection with the bringing in, slaughtering, and cooking of a goat; vss. 1 and 2 also in Vāit. 10. 14, 15, in connection with the sacrifice of an animal. This verse is called by the Anukr. simply a tristubh, although its first half is very irregular (8 + 13).

2. I lead thee about as portion for Indra, as patron (sūrt) for the sacrificer at this sacrifice; whoever hate us, them take hold after; innocent (ánāgas) [are] the sacrificer's heroes.

The verse in Ppp. (as noted above) follows what corresponds to our vs. 24, and has, for a, b, ind. bh. çamitā kṛṇotvam yajña yajñapatiç ca sūrih; and, for d, ariṣṭā vīrā yajamānāç ca sarve.

3. Away from his foot wash thou down the evil walk that he walked (car); with cleansed hoofs let him step on, foreknowing; crossing the darknesses, variously looking abroad let the goat step unto the third firmament.

Or padás in a may be accus. pl.; the redundancy of the pāda, in sense and meter, is an indication of intrusion; but the mode of its reduction to proper shape is not obvious, and Ppp. gives no help. Ppp. has, instead of our c, d, te jyotismantam sukrtāl lokam tpsan trtīye nāke adhi vikramasva.

4. Cut along this skin with the dark [metal], O slaughterer, joint by joint with the knife (ast); do not plot against [him]; do not be hostile to [him]; prepare him joint-wise; set him up apart in the third firmament.

Ppp. has, for d, sukṛtām madhye adhi vi çraye 'mam. The Anukr. weakly calls the verse a jagatt, although it is a triṣṭubh with three redundant syllables (doubtless çyāmēna or viçastar) in a. The pada-text divides paruoçaḥ, by Prāt. iv. 19.

5. With a verse I set the kettle upon the fire; pour thou on the water; set him down; set [him] about with fire, ye quellers; when cooked, let him go where is the world of the well-doing.

Ppp. has instead, for a, bhūmyām bhūmim adhi dhārayāmi; and, in b, abhi for ava. The successive parts of the verse are quoted in Kāuç. 64. 11-15, to accompany corresponding acts. The Anukr. does not heed the redundant syllable in d.

6. Step up from here, if thou hast been completely heated, from the heated pot on to the third firmament; thou, a fire, hast come into being out of fire; conquer [thy way] unto that world of light.

The translation of a implies the emendation to átapthās, which seems very probable; nearly all the mss. read ataptās (only E. áta-, P.M. ataptas), which the edition has altered to átaptas. Of the reading in Ppp. I have no note; Ppp. reads for d jyotismo acha sukrtām yatra lokah; our d is found (nearly) as its 8 d.

7. The goat [is] Agni, and they call the goat light; they say that the goat is to be given by one living to a priest (brahmán); the goat, given in this world by one having faith, smites far away the darknesses.

For the first two words Ppp. reads ajam evā 'gnim; in b, it puts jīvatā after brahmane. The redundant syllable in b is not noticed by the Anukr. [See note under 8.]

8. Having five rice-dishes, let him step out five-fold, about to step unto the three lights; go thou forth to the midst of the well-doing that have made offerings; spread out (vi-çri) upon the third firmament.

The last pāda is the same with xviii. 4. 3 e; Ppp. has instead jyotişmantam abhi lokam jayā 'smāi, with which compare our 6 d. The Anukr. passes in silence the irregularities of the second pāda. [Cf. Oldenberg, ZDMG. 1. 449.]

9. Ascend, O goat, to where is the world of the well-doing; like an expelled çarabhá mayest thou move (es) across difficult places; given, with five rice-dishes, to a priest (brahmán), he shall rejoice the giver with rejoicing.

Ppp. reads kramasva instead of roha in a, and reads çalabhas 'locust,' which is more sensible, in b; our d is its 10 d, with dhātāram instead of dā. The Anukr. treats the second pāda as regular, and it can, indeed, be read by violence into 11 syllables.

10. The goat sets him that has given it on the three-firmamented, three-heavened, three-backed back of the firmament; being given with five rice-dishes to a priest, thou art a single milch-cow, all-formed, wish-yielding.

Ppp. reads in b sukrtām loke for nākasya prṣṭhe; and our d is its 9 d, with the intrusive dhenus left out. The verse, in spite of its irregularity, is by the Anukr. reckoned simply a jagatī (11+12:11+12[13?]).

11. This third light of yours, O Fathers, the goat with five rice-dishes one gives to a priest; the goat, given in this world by one having faith, smites far away the darknesses.

The second half-verse is identical with 7 c, d above. Ppp. has, for d, pañcodano brahmane diyamānah (our 9 c, 10 c).

12. Desiring to obtain the world of the well-doing that have made offerings, one gives to a priest a goat with five rice-dishes; do thou conquer complete attainment (vyàpti) unto that world; be he, accepted, propitious to us.

Ppp. begins pra jyotişmantam sukrtām lok-; and reads c, d thus: sa vyāpo nens abhi lokam jayā 'sme çivo 'smabhyam pratigrhyate 'dhi.

13. The goat verily was born from the heat of the fire, wise, of the wise (vlpra), of power, he the inspired one; what is offered, is bestowed, is conferred (abhipurta), accompanied with vdsat — that let the gods prepare in due season (rtucds).

The first pāda is identical with iv. 14. 1 a. Ludwig (also p. 370) proposes to emend in c to gūrtam abhigūrtam. Part of the mss. blunderingly accent rtuçàs in d. Ppp. has in b vayodhā instead of vipaçcit, and in c puts pūrtam before iṣṭam. The last two pādas are irregular, but the Anukr. takes no notice of it. [Pāda c is a good jagatī; and d, a good triṣṭubh, if we read devāsas, or (with Henry) tād tā.]

- 14. A home-woven garment he may give, also gold as sacrificial gift; so he fully obtains the worlds that are heavenly and that are earthly.
- 15. Unto thee, O goat, let these streams of soma (somyá) go, divine, ghee-backed, honey-dripping; establish thou earth and sky, upon the seven-rayed back of the firmament.

The mss. in general (not P.M.) accent dja in a. They are rather evenly divided between ádhi and 'dhi in d (W.I.O.R.T.K. have 'dhi). Compare with a, b the refrain to iv. 34. 5-7. Ppp. reads for a: etās tvā dadhārā 'cchamayanti viçvatās somyam; somyam would seem to be the beginning of Ppp's b; in c, d, for uta... prsihe, it gives divam sadasva nāke tiṣṭhāsy. Pādas b, c are metrically irregular, but the Anukr. does not heed it.

16. A goat art thou; O goat, heaven-going (svar-gá) art thou; by thee the Angirases foreknew [their] world; that pure (púnya) world would I fain foreknow.

[Prose.] The translation of a is according to the accent of the vocative Δja ; there may be a play on words between ajd 'goat' and ajd 'unborn': 'unborn art thou, O goat' (emending to aja). Ppp. reads for c tain lokam anu pra jūesma. [This vs. and the next are in its iii.] The definition of the meter by the Anukr. seems senseless (7[8?] + 11:8 = 26). The third pāda is VS. xx. 25 c.

17. Wherewith thou carriest a thousand; wherewith, O Agni, [the offering of] one's whole possession—therewith carry thou this our offering to go to heaven (svàr) among the gods.

The verse is found also in VS. (xv. 55), TS. (iv. 7. 134; v. 7. 73), MS. (ii. 12. 4), and K. (xl. 12 [but Schroeder under the MS. passage refers to K. xviii. 18]). VS. and MS. put sahdsram after vdhasi in a, and VS. reads [yéna in a, and] naya for vaha in c;

TS. has in iv. for d devayano ya uttamah (in v. it agrees throughout with our text). Ppp. begins with yena va sah. Vāit. quotes the verse in 29.9, 23. [MS. has yéna.]

18. The cooked goat, having five rice-dishes, driving off perdition, sets [one] in the heavenly (svargá) world; with it may we conquer worlds that possess suns.

As noted above, the verse is wanting in Ppp.

- 19. [The goat] which one deposited with the Brahman, and which among the people (vik s u); what scattered drops (vip rus) [there are] of the rice-dishes, of the goat all that of ours, O Agni, do thou later know in the world of the well-done, at the meeting of the ways.
- 20. The goat verily strode out here (iddm) in the beginning; this [earth] became its breast, the sky its back, the atmosphere its middle, the quarters its (two) sides, the (two) oceans its paunches;

Prose - 20, 21, and 22.

21. Both truth and right its eyes, all truth [and] faith its breath, the virāj its head; this verily is an unlimited offering, namely (yāt) the goat with five rice-dishes.

The second satyam in vs. 21 is doubtless a corrupt reading, and the Ppp. version indicates that we should have instead $r\bar{u}p\acute{a}m$ ('the universe its form,' instead of 'all truth'). Ppp. reads, for the two verses: ajas paācāudano vy akramata tasyo'ra iyam abhavad udaram antarikṣam: dyāus te pṛṣṭhaṁ diças pārçve: diçaç cā 'tidiçaç ca çṛūge satyam ca ṛṭaṁ ca cakṣuṣī viçvarūpaṁ çṛaddhā etc. All the saṁhitā-mss. read ca ṛṭáṁ (instead of ca ṛṭáṁ) near the beginning of vs. 21. The text of the Anukr. is apparently defective, leaving out the metrical definition of vss. 20–22 and vs. 25.

22. An unlimited offering does he obtain, an unlimited world does he take possession of (ava-rudh), who gives a goat with five rice-dishes, with the light of sacrificial gifts.

Wanting in Ppp., as noted above.

- 23. He should not split its bones; he should not suck out its marrow; taking it all together, he should cause it to enter here and here.
- Or, 'should cause this and this to enter'; the sense is obscure. Ppp. reads in c sarvāni for sarvam enam. By calling the verse a purausnih, the Anukr intends that its first two pādas be read as one, of 12 syllables. The Kāuç quotes (66.31, 32; next after quotations of verses from hymn 3) both halves of the verse, the latter to accompany the act of piercing an object and scattering it into a pit filled with water.
- 24. This and this verily becomes its form; therewith one makes it come together; food, greatness, refreshment it yields (duh) to him who gives a goat with five rice-dishes, with the light of sacrificial gifts.

Ppp. reads for the second half-verse svadhām ūrjam akṣatim maho 'smāi duhe: ya evam viduṣo 'jam pañcāudanam dadāti; and, as above noted, our vs. 2 then follows. The metrical description of the Anukr. (closely accordant with that of vs. 26, though the real construction of the verses is very different) implies the artificial division of the refrain (as in vs. 28 and other verses below) into two pādas, of 7 and 9 syllables, and counts 46 syllables in all; the natural number is 45 (12 + 8:10 + 15 = 45).

25. Five gold ornaments (rukmá), five new garments, five milch-cows milking his desire come to be his who gives a goat with etc. etc.

This verse, of which at least the first pāda is metrical (11 + 13:15 = 39) is left undescribed in the Anukr. It (or vs. 26, both having the same pratīka) is quoted in Kāuç. 64. 25. [More nearly, 'Five milch-cows become wish-milking for him who,' that is, 'yield or grant to him his wishes who' etc.]

26. Five gold ornaments become light for him; his garments become a defense for his body, he attains the heavenly (svargá) world, who gives a goat with etc. etc.

Here are plainly four pādas, of which the first three are metrical, with the refrain added (11+11:8+15); the definition of the Anukr. seems to imply 11+10:8+7+9=45 syllables, or a bhurik trisṭubh.

27. Whoever (fem.) having gained a former husband, then gains another later one — if (ca) they (dual) shall give a goat with five rice-dishes, they shall not be separated.

The mss., as usual in such cases, read vitvā in a; and all but Bp. strangely accent anyam in b. Ppp. reads pacatas for dadātas in d. [This vs. and the next are in Ppp's viii.]

28. Her later husband comes to have the same world with his remarried spouse who (masc.) gives a goat with five rice-dishes, with the light of sacrificial gifts.

The Anukr. treats the prose refrain of vss. 22, 24-26 as a half anustubh in the second line of this verse. Ppp. reads instead ajam ca pañcāudanam dadat.

29. A milch-cow having one calf after another, a draft-ox, a pillow, a garment, gold, having given, those go to the highest heaven (div).

The Anukr. takes no notice of the redundant syllable in b. Lerhaps it balances the redundancy of b with the deficiency of c.

30. Self, father, son, grandson, grandfather, wife, generatrix, mother, those who are dear — them I call upon.

Nor does the Anukr. heed the deficient syllables in b of this verse. [We might render janitrim mātaram by 'the mother that bore [me].']

31. Whoever knows the season "torrid" $(n\bar{a}id\bar{a}gha)$ by name — that verily is the season "torrid" by name, namely $(y\dot{a}t)$ the goat with five rice-dishes; he indeed burns out the fortune of his unfriendly foe (bhratrvya), he thrives $(bh\bar{u})$ by himself, who gives a goat with five rice-dishes, with the light of sacrificial gifts.

In this and the following verses the mss. read nāma rtúm etc. throughout. The natural division is into four pādas instead of seven, and | the paragraph, read as prose, has J only 61 syllables instead of 64 (= asti); but the three missing syllables can easily be made out by resolutions. One would expect nt dahati, to correspond with nātdāgha. Read in b yád ajáh (an accent-sign slipped out of place).

- 32. Whoever knows the season "making" by name, each making fortune of his unfriendly foe he takes to himself; that verily is the season "making" by name, namely the goat with five rice-dishes; he indeed etc. etc.
- 33. Whoever knows the season "gathering" by name, each gathering fortune of his unfriendly foe he takes to himself; that verily is the season "gathering" by name, namely the goat etc. etc.
- 34. Whoever knows the season "fattening" by name, each fattening fortune of his unfriendly foe he takes to himself; that verily is the season "fattening" by name, namely the goat etc. etc.
- 35. Whoever knows the season "up-going" by name, each up-going fortune of his unfriendly foe he takes to himself; that verily is the season "up-going" by name, namely the goat etc. etc.

These four verses agree in number of syllables, and the name given them by the Anukr. (prakrti) demands 84; this number it is possible to make out by resolutions of samdhi, though the natural reading gives only 80 (10 + 20:15:20 + 15 = 80). Samyatimosamyatim in vs. 33 b is quoted by the commentary under Prāt. iv. 44, as an example of a repeated separable word which gives up in pada-text its individual separation in favor of that between the repetitions. Read in 32 c yadajah (an accent-sign gone), and supply an omitted mark of punctuation after datte in 33.

36. Whoever knows the season "overcoming" (abhibh \dot{n}) by name, each overcoming fortune of his unfriendly foe he takes to himself; that verily is the season "overcoming" by name, namely the goat etc. etc.

This verse has six more syllables than the preceding ones, and the Anukr. gives it a name $(\bar{a}krti)$ applying properly to 88 syllables. In c read eså for eså.

37. Cook ye the goat and the five rice-dishes; let all the quarters, likeminded, united (sadhryanc), with the intermediate directions, accept that of thee.

All the mss. (except D.) read at the end $t\dot{a}$ (pada-text $t\dot{e}$) before $et\dot{a}m$; our edition emends to ta; the word could better be spared altogether. Ppp. has (in iii.) only the first pāda. The Anukr. describes the verse as if this pāda as well as the other two were metrical.

38. Let them defend this of thine for thee; to them I offer (hu) sacrificial butter, this oblation.

'Them' is fem., designating the 'quarters' of vs. 37. The translation omits a te; it may be regarded as an ethical dative, anticipating the distincter tibhyam 'for thee' that follows.

[The twentieth prapāthaka ends here. As in the cases of the tenth and eighteenth (ending at v. 7 and viii. 5), the prapāthaka-division here fails to coincide with the

6. Exalting the entertainment of guests.

This whole prose hymn is found in Pāipp. xvi., except a few verses, as noted below. It is not quoted by either Kāuç. or Vāit. In the Prāt., on the other hand, it has more than its fair share of notice. [With regard to the paryāya-hymns in general, see pp. 471-2.]

Translated: Henry, 98, 137; Griffith, i. 448.

- [Paryāya I. saptadaçarcaḥ. 1. 3-p. gāyatrī; 2. 3-p. ārṣī gāyatrī; 3, 7. sāmnī triṣṭubh; 4, 9. ārcy anuṣṭubh; 5. āsurī gāyatrī; 6. 3-p. sāmnī jagatī; 8. yājuṣī triṣṭubh; 10. sāmnī bhurig bṛhatī; 11, 14-16. sāmny anuṣṭubh; 12. virāḍ gāyatrī; 13. sāmnī nicṛt paūkti; 17. 3-p. virāḍ bhurig gāyatrī.]
- 1. Whoever may know the obvious (pratyáksa) bráhman, whose joints are the preparations (sambhārá), whose spine the verses (fc);

Ppp. reads, instead of our a, as follows: yo vā ekam brahmā 'nuṣṭhā vidyāt sadya mahadvate, making an anuṣṭubh of the verse. The Anukr. is corrupt at this point, one ms. appearing to call the verse nāgī nāma tripād gāyatrī; one sees no reason why.

2. Whose hairs the chants (sáman), [whose] heart the sacrificial formula (yájus) is called, [whose] litter (paristárana) the oblation.

Ppp. reads chandānsi for sāmāni in a, and puts c before b. The unlingualized st of paristaranam is noted under Prāt ii. 105. The 'obvious brāhman,' or 'brāhman in visible presence,' thus wondrously made up, is doubtless the guest, all attentions to whom the hymn proceeds to glorify by identifying them with sacred acts.

3. When in truth the lord of guests meets with his eyes the guests, he looks at a sacrificing to the gods.

Ppp. reads at the beginning yad atithipatih presyate. The verse has one syllable too many for a regular sāmnī trisṭubh; but the system of nomenclature affords no simple name for one of 23 syllables.

4. When he greets them, he enters upon consecration; when he offers $(y\bar{a}c)$ water, he brings forward the [sacrificial] waters.

Prå nayati is quoted as an example under Prāt. iii. 79. We have to read yācati apāh to make out the defined meter.

5. Just what waters are brought in at the sacrifice, those are the very ones.

Prantyánte also is quoted under Prat. iii. 79.

6. When they fetch a gratification (tárpana) — that is just the same as an animal for Agni-and-Soma that is bound [for sacrifice].

Ppp. adds after this verse yat khātam āharanti purodāçā eva te.

- 7. In that they prepare lodgings, they so prepare the seat (sádas) and oblation-holders (havirdhána).
 - 8. In that they strew [a couch], that is a barhis.

Ppp. omits the second clause of vs. 7; and reads pari- for upa- in 8; it omits 9 here: see under 10, below.

9. In that they fetch a coverlet (? upariçayaná), thereby one gains possession of the heavenly (svargá) world.

Upariçayaná, lit. 'above-lying,' occurs only here; [but cf. upariçaya, OB. iv. 296 c]. The minor Pet. Lex. renders it 'an elevated couch.' The verse lacks a syllable.

10. In that they fetch mattress and pillow, those are the enclosures (paridhi).

That is, the sticks laid about the altar-fire to shut it in. In this verse, the extra syllable is noted by the Anukr. Ppp. reads -barhanāni and paridhe 'va te; and it adds its version of 9: yat parṣeṇam (pariçayanam?) āharanti svar- etc.

II. In that they fetch ointment and unguent, that is sacrificial butter.

The pada-reading $\bar{a}\bar{n}jana\circ abhya\bar{n}jana'$ is quoted under Prāt. iv. 42, as example of words that lose their own individual division in favor of separation from each other. Ppp. omits $\bar{a}\bar{n}jana$. The Anukr. reads 16 syllables, which may be obtained in more than one way (most probably -ranti $\bar{a}j$ -).

12. In that they fetch a morsel $(kh\bar{a}d\acute{a})$ before the serving-up $(pari-ves\acute{a})$, that is the two sacrificial cakes.

Khādá is perhaps a special bit or bite, anticipatory of the proper meal. The verse is wanting in Ppp.

13. In that they call the food-maker (açanakṛt), they so call the maker of oblations.

Some of the mss. read havihkitam.

14. The grains of rice, of barley, that are scattered out — those are soma-shoots (ançú).

The Anukr. requires -yante ani-to be read, although the passage is quoted under Prāt. i. 69 as an example of the elision of initial a with the transfer of its nasalization to the eliding e. Ppp. reads at the end ani-cava eva te nupyante.

15. The mortar and pestles — those are the pressing-stones.

The Anukr. expects us to read yani ul. Ppp. omits yani and reads -musalam, which is easier; it also omits eva te at the end.

16. The sieve $\lfloor c \pi pa \rfloor$ is the soma-strainer (pavitra); the chaff is the pomace $(rj\bar{i}sd)$; the waters are those of pressing.

That is, [the waters are] those used in facilitating the pressing of the Soma. [Is not cūrpa rather 'winnowing-basket'?] The 'pomace' is the refuse stalks from which the soma has been pressed. [All of SPP's and of W's pada-mss. seem to agree in reading rjīṣā as fem.] Ppp. reads rajīṣāh. It omits abhiṣavanīr āpah here: but see vs. 17.

17. The spoon is the sacrificial spoon, the stirring-stick the spit (?nékṣaṇa), the kettles the wooden vessels, the drinking-vessels those of Vāyu, this [earth] itself the black antelope's skin.

Ppp. reads -kalaçaş kumbhīm eva kṛṣṇājinam vāyavyāni pātrāṇi; and it also has abhiṣavaṇīr āpaḥ in this verse, after āyavanam, instead of in vs. 16. The Anukr. defines the verse as if it were metrical, and intends us to read it as 10 + 16 + 8 = 34 syllables.

- [Paryaya II. trayodaça. 18. virdt purastādbrhatī; 19, 29. sāmnī tristubh; 20. āsury anustubh; 21. sāmny uṣṇih; 22, 28. sāmnī brhatī (28. bhurij); 23. ārcy anustubh; 24. 3-p. svarād anustubh;* 25. āsurī gāyatrī;† 26. sāmny anustubh; 27. 3-p. ārcī tristubh; 30. 3-p. ārcī pañkti.] *[Berlin ms.: 5-p. virāt purastādbrhatī.] †[Berlin ms.: sāmny anustubh.]
- 18. The lord of guests verily makes for himself a sacrificer's brahmana in that he looks at the [portions] to be partaken of, saying "is this larger, or this?"

Several of the mss. (O.R.D.) accent at the end $bh\bar{u}y\bar{a}s$ (D. $bh\bar{u}y\bar{a}h$ 3), which is the far preferable reading; $bh\bar{u}y\bar{a}s$ (read by I.) could be borne, since in RV. and AV. the usage does not seem yet established that the protracted final syllable is acute, in addition to whatever accent the word may have on other syllables $\lfloor Skt.$ Gram. § 78 \rfloor ; but $bh\bar{u}y\bar{a}s$, as our edition reads, in accordance with nearly all the mss. compared up to the time of its publication, is nothing but a blunder. The protracted words are quoted in Prāt. i. 105. The verse counts naturally 18 + 8 + 8 = 34 syllables (the second and third pādas being really metrical). $\lfloor Scan rather 10 + 8 + 8 + 8$ with the Anukr. \rfloor Ppp. reads krnute and avekṣata.

19. In that he says "take up the larger one," he thereby makes his breath longer (vársīyāns).

Ppp. has a quite different text: yad āha bhūyo'ddhara te prajām cāi'va paçūnç ca vardhayate...(?) prāṇam kṛṇute: yat sampṛchati kāmam eva tenā'va rundhe: kāmo ha pṛṣṭo yājāti: yad udakam upasiñcaty apa eva tenā'va rundhe. [Then follows 20.]

- 20. [In that] he presents [it], he brings libations near.
- 21. Of them, brought near, the guest makes libations in himself; -
- 22. With his hand as sacrificial spoon, at his breath as stake, with the sound of swallowing as utterance of váṣaṭ.

'The sound of swallowing,' lit. the sound sruk. Ppp. reads in 21 ātmani j- for ātmán j- and has in 22 çulkāreņa vaṣaṭkāreṇa srucā hastena.

23. These same guests, both loved (privá) and unloved, [as] priests (rtvij), make [one] go to the heavenly world.

This verse is wanting here in Ppp.; but it is inserted below, just before our vs. 49 Land without variant except cartvijas, which may be a slip of Roth's pen for cartvijas.].

24. He who, knowing thus, shall partake, not hating, he shall not partake the food of one hating, not of one that is doubted, nor of one doubting (?).

We must emend at the end either to mimānsamānasya or to mimānsyamānasya; the translation assumes the former. Bp. reads vidyāt for vidvān, and it would be a welcome improvement; the same reads the first time açnīyāt, which seems necessary if vidvān and not vidvāt is read, and which is implied in the translation. Ppp. has instead tasmān na dviṣann adyān na dviṣato 'nnam adyān na mīm-. The two mss. of the Anukr. describe the verse differently but equivalently, both requiring 34 syllables (which implies restoration of 'nnam to annam').

- 25. Verily every such one has his sin devoured, whose food they partake of.
- 26. Verily every such one has his sin undevoured whose food they partake not of.
- 'Devoured,' doubtless 'destroyed, removed ' by the eating of the guests. Ppp. reads for vs. 26 sarvā upaço jagdhapāpmānam yasyā 'nnam açnāti. One of the Anukr. mss. (but doubtless by a misreading [?]) calls 25 as well as 26 a sāmny anuṣṭubh [16 syllables]. [Vss. 25 and 26 have each 15 (āsurī gāyatrī).] Read in 25 jagdhá- (an accent-sign slipped out).
- 27. Verily he who presents [the food] hath always his pressing-stones harnessed, his cleanser wet, his sacrifice extended, his ceremony of offering assumed.

Ppp. reads sutasomas instead of yuktagrāvā, and puts vitatādhvaras as last of the four epithets; it also sets the whole paragraph after our 28.

- 28. To Prajāpati, verily, is his offering extended who presents.
- 29. He who presents verily strides Prajāpati's strides after [him]. This verse is wanting in Ppp.
- 30. [The fire] that is the guests', that is the fire of libations (āhavaniya); the one in the dwelling (veçman), that is the householder's fire (gárhapatya); the one in which they cook, that is the southern fire (dakṣiṇāgni).

Ppp. reads sā "havanīyo yo 'nnakaraṇasya Lintending -karaṇas sa?] dakṣiṇāgnir yo veç- sa gār-. The metrical definition of the Anukr. requires us to restore at the beginning yô átith-.

31. Verily both what is sacrificed and what is bestowed of the houses doth he partake of who partakes before a guest.

That is, doubtless, 'doth he eat up, devour, destroy.' Ppp. omits grhāṇām, and puts next vss. 34 and 33, omitting 35 and 39 [and 32 and 36 also]. The Anukr. describes the paragraphs as if they were metrical, and defines them as if the text read pūrvo dtither.

- 32. Verily both the milk and the sap of the houses doth he etc. etc.
- 33. Verily both the refreshment and the fatness of the houses doth he etc. etc.

Ppp. reads payas instead of sphātim.

34. Verily both the progeny and the cattle of the houses doth he etc. etc.

- 35. Verily both the fame and the glory of the houses doth he etc. etc.
- 36. Verily both the fortune (cri) and the alliance (?samvid) of the houses doth he etc. etc.

The Pet. Lexx. interpret samvid as 'possessions.'

37. He verily is a guest, namely (ydt) one versed in sacred learning $(cr\delta triya)$; before him one should not partake.

The meaning intended ought to be that a guest is the equivalent of such a sage; but the literal sense is as translated. The verse lacks one syllable (unless we read nd a(ni)at) of being full measure.

38. When the guest hath partaken he should partake, in order to the soulfulness of the sacrifice, in order to the integrity of the sacrifice; that is the [proper] course.

The verse is an uṣṇih only as containing (if we resolve açitāvati át-) 28 syllables (11+14+3). The pada-text reads açitāvati. Ppp. has açitāvaty açnīyāt tad vratam yajnasyā 'vichedāya yajnasya guptaye yajnasya sātmatvāya. [Cf. Oldenberg, IFA. vi. 184: also Skt. Gram. § 960.]

39. That verily is specially sweet which comes from the cow (adhigavá), either milk (kṣīvá) or flesh; that he should not partake of.

That is, doubtless, he should leave it for his guest. The verse is wanting in Ppp. The so-called $g\bar{a}yatr\bar{t}$ is to be thus divided: 7 + 11 + 6 = 24.

[Paryāya IV. — daçakaḥ. a of 40-43. prājāpatyā nuṣṭubh; a of 44. bhurij; b of 40-43. 3-p. gāyatrī; b of 44. 4-p. prastārapaūkti.]

40. He who, thus knowing, pouring out milk, presents [it] — as much as, having sacrificed with a very successful agnistomá, one gets possession of, of so much thereby does he get possession.

The mss. are divided between reckoning ten verses (with the Anukr. Lcf. the quotations etc. at the end of the hymn]) in this section, or only five, with two parts to each; the latter method was adopted in our edition as the better. The second part in the first five verses, though doubtless meant only as prose, divides into three subdivisions of eight syllables each, like a real gāyatrī. I'pp. begins all the verses with yat, instead of sa ya evam vidvān, and reads in 40 b yā. ag. saprṣṭhene 'ṣṭvā 'varundhe.

41. He who, thus knowing, pouring out butter (sarpis), presents [it] — as much as, having sacrificed with a very successful atirātrá, one gets etc. etc.

Ppp. reads in b āhnena samrddhena for atirātreņa.

42. He who, thus knowing, pouring out honey, offers [it] — as much as, having sacrificed with a very successful session-sitting, one gets etc. etc.

Ppp. reads in b ratrena samrddhena. The Anukr. expects, of course, the resolution madhu ub..

- 43. He who, thus knowing, pouring out meat, presents [it] as much as, having sacrificed with a very successful twelve-day sacrifice, one gets etc. etc.
- 44. He who, thus knowing, pouring out water, presents [it]—he arrives at (gam) firm standing in order to the generating of progeny; he becomes loved of progeny—he who, thus knowing, pouring out water, presents [it].

The second part of the verse, though not metrical, [seems to be scanned as 11+11+8+8 by the Anukr. (which, with the mss., reckons pratisthâm to the second pāda!)]. Ppp. reads in b gachati sarvam āyur eti: na punar ā jarasas pra mīyate ya etc.

- [Paryāya V. daçakah. 45 a. sāmny uṣṇih; 45 b. purauṣṇih; 45 c, 48 c. sāmnī bhurig bṛhatī; 46 a, 47 a, 48 b. sāmny anuṣṭubh; 46 b. 3-p. nicṛd viṣamā nāma gāyatrī; 47 b. 3-p. virād viṣamā nāma gāyatrī; 48 a. 3-p. virād anuṣṭubh.]
- 45. For him the dawn utters hing; Savitar preludes (pra-stu); Brihaspati with refreshment (ūrjāyā) sings the udgīthā; Tvashṭar with prosperity responds (prati-hṛ); all the gods [are] the conclusion (nidhāna): the conclusion of thrift, of progeny, of cattle becometh he who knoweth thus.

Here and in the following verses [cf. PB. iv. 9.9] are had in view the five successive parts or divisions of a sāman, of which the udgūtha is the central and principal: cf. Chānd. Upan. ii. 2 ff. In this section also the majority of the mss. divide and number in accordance with our edition; the rest, with the Anukr., number the subdivisions successively. Our edition assumes the subdivision nidhánam bhūtyāh to be repeated at the end of each of the four paragraphs; the Anukr. [counting 10 (not 12) avasānarcas: cf. p. 546 below] is against this; as for the mss., their testimony is nothing, since they all, in any case, write such an addition only the first time and the last, omitting all intermediate occurrences; it is altogether probable that the edition is right. The artificial description by the Anukr. of b as an usnih, implies resolving ūrjāyā úd, and either pūstiā or viļcu-e. Ppp. adds vāi after tasmāi, and bhūtyā after savitā, and reads ūrjā for ūrjayā.

46. For him the rising sun utters hing; cow-gathering time (sam-gavá) preludes; noon sings the udgīthá; afternoon responds; the setting [sun is] the conclusion: the conclusion of etc. etc.

Ppp. combines madhyandino 'd. The $\lfloor nicrt \rfloor$ "dissimilar gāyatrī," b, divides as 8+9+6=23.

47. For him the cloud, forming $(bh\bar{u})$, utters hing; thundering, it preludes; lightening, it responds; raining, it sings the $udg\bar{\iota}th\dot{a}$; holding up, it is the conclusion: the conclusion of etc. etc.

Ppp. reads vidyotamānah pra stāuti stanayann ud gāyati aparāhna prati harati astamyam nidhanam. The "dissimilar gāyatri," b, is this time 10+6+6=22. Bp.Bp.2p.m.D. read vārṣam, and several of the samhitā-mss. vārṣamn instead of -ṣann. Cf. Chānd. Upan. ii. 3.

48. [When] he meets the guests with his eyes, he utters hing; [when] he greets [them], he preludes; [when] he offers water, he sings the udgītha; [when] he presents [food], he responds; the remnant (úchiṣṭa) [of the food] is the conclusion: the conclusion of etc. etc.

Ppp. seems again to mix in matter from vs. 46, reading yācaty udakavaty aparāhņa* prati harati. [See also note to vs. 23.] The first subdivision makes the 30 syllables required by the Anukr. if we give syllabic value (-ti) to the thrice-occurring verb-ending -ty; and similarly we get 16 for b. *[The phonetic resemblance of udakavati to ud gāyati (cf. note to ii. 13. 3) and of aparāhņa to upa harati is obviously the occasion for the confusion.]

- [Paryāya VI. caturdaçakah. 49. āsurī gāyatrī; 50. sāmny anustubh; 51,53. 3-p. ārcī paūkti; 52. 1-p. prājāpatyā gāyatrī; 54-59. ārcī brhatī; 60. 1-p. āsurī jagatī; 61. yājuṣī tristubh; 62. 1-p. āsury uṣṇih.]
 - 49. When $(y\acute{a}t)$ he calls the distributor, then he is just summoning

That is, he is virtually an adhvaryu summoning the agnīth to do his duty. The verse is made an āsurī gāyatrīt by resolving -ty twice. Ppp. inserts before this verse our vs. 23 above; and it omits eva tat.

50. When [the distributor] assents, then he is just answering the summons.

That is, as an agnīdh. Again, to justify the definition of the Anukr., we must read prati-āṣrāvayati evā. [A hyphen is missing after the pra of pratyāṣr-.] Ppp. again omits eva tat at the end.

51. When the servers, with drinking-vessels in their hands, both the former and the latter, go forward, they are just cup-bearing priests.

Bp. gives the false accentuation camasaoádh- (instead of -sáoadh-). Ppp. reads yat pariveṣṭārā 'vasatām prabhibhyante cam-. To make 30 syllables, we must resolve ca ápare (or else camasá-adh-).

52. Of them, none soever is not an invoker (áhot?).

Ppp. reads vāi instead of na; and then it adds as follows: yat prātar upaharati prātassavanam eva tat: yad yavo 'paharati mādhyandinam eva tat savanam: yat sāyam upaharati tṛtīyam eva tad yad atithipatir avabhṛtham eva tat prāhvayanti; and it omits our vs. 53; [R. does not expressly note such omission].

53. Verily when the lord of guests goes up unto the houses serving the guests, then he is even going down unto the purificatory bath (avabhṛtha).

54. When he apportions [them], he is apportioning sacrificial fees; when he follows [them], then he is even shifting the place of sacrifice $(ud\text{-}ava\text{-}s\bar{a})$.

[Ppp. omits eva tat.] [Cf. Oldenberg, IFA. vi. 183.]

55. He [the guest?], being invited (úpahūta), feeds (bhakṣay-) on the earth; in him [locative], invited [nominative], [he [the host?] feeds on] what of every form [there is] on the earth.

[Whitney's first "on" is intended as a rendering of the locative relation of "earth"; his second "on" goes with "feeds." He has tried to indicate this by putting the first after the parenthesis and the second within the brackets. The inherent ambiguity of the English combination is such that I do not know how to remove it for the non-Sanskritist save by an express statement.

The sense of this and the following verses is very obscure; it is here translated as if the guest were the subject of the first bhakṣayati, and the entertainer (in recompense for the entertainment given) of the second [bhakṣayati (supplied)]. Ppp. adds pṛthiuyām tat pṛthiuyām ā bhāti svargo loko bhavati ya evam veda. Only vs. 56 has the full number of syllables (27) belonging to an ārcī bṛhatī; 55, 58, 59 have only 26 syllables (a number for which the system affords no separate name), and 57 has only 24.

56. He, being invited, feeds in the atmosphere; in him, invited, [he feeds on] what of every form [there is] in the atmosphere.

Ppp. adds antarikșe patanty antarikșā "bhāti | svargo etc. |.

57. He, being invited, feeds in the sky (dlv); in him, invited, [he feeds on] what of every form [there is] in the sky.

Ppp. adds divi tapati divy ā bhāti [svargo etc.].

58. He, being invited, feeds among the gods; in him, invited, [he feeds on] what of every form [there is] among the gods.

Ppp. adds devesu patati [intending tapati?] devesu bhāti [svargo etc.].

59. He, being invited, feeds in the worlds; in him, invited, [he feeds on] what of every form [there is] in the worlds.

Ppp. adds lokeșu patati lokeșu bhāti [svargo loko bhavati ya evani veda].

- 60. He, whoever invited, -
- 61. Obtains this world, obtains yon [world].

The translation implies emendation in 60 to úpahūta-upahūtaḥ (as repeated word); it seems impossible to give the verse a meaning as it stands. Vss. 60-62 are wanting in Ppp. The metrical definition of 61 demands the resolution -ti amúm.

62. Worlds rich in light conquereth he who knoweth thus.

The copula and the possessive, wherever read, are supplied in the translation. Ppp. omits yamah kṛkāṭam. The verse has only 26 syllables (instead of 27).

- 2. King Soma his brain, the sky his upper jaw, the earth his lower jaw. Ppp. inserts, after mastiskas, satyam cakṣur ṛtam çrotre prāṇāpānāu nāmivate, and reads adharā for -rahanuḥ, adding after it agnir āsyam. We are required to resolve prthivī adh-.
- 3. Lightning his tongue, the Maruts his teeth, the Revatīs his neck, the Krittikās his shoulders (skandhás), the hot drink (gharmá) his withers (váha).

Váha is properly the "carrying" part, that on which the yoke rests. The Revatīs and Krttikās, two asterisms, in Pisces and Taurus respectively; their connection with the parts to which they are assigned is, as in nearly all the other cases in this hymn, of the most purely imaginary and meaningless kind. Ppp. has only as far as dantās, following it with pavamānas prāṇaḥ. Read in our text grīvāḥ (visarga-sign omitted). The pada-text has kṛttikāḥ, and some of the mss., as usual, retain the ḥ before the following sk. The verse has but 23 syllables (unless we

4. Vāyu his all (viçvam), the heavenly world his kṛṣṇadrá, the whirlwind (?niveṣyà) his separator (?vidháraṇī).

The words here in part (and in the last clause the distinction of subject and predicate) are wholly obscure. The pada-text divides kṛṣṇaodrám ('black-runner'?). Many of the mss. (E.O.D.R.T.K.) accent niveṣyáḥ. Ppp. reads viçvaṁ vāyuṣ kanṭhas svargo lokaṣ kṛṣṇadra vyadriṇī vivaçvaḥ; and then it adds the omitted part of our vs. 3 except vahaḥ at the end.

5. The falcon his breast (krodá), the atmosphere his belly (?pājasyà), Brihaspati his hump, the brhatis his vertebræ.

The sense of bṛhatī here is doubtful. Ppp. reads pājasyam and inserts our vs. 7 after it [continuing with bṛhasp-]. The required number of 24 syllables is made out by reading krodo ant- and pājast-am.

6. The spouses of the gods his side-bones (prsf1), the attendants (upasád) his ribs (párçu).

The distinction between prstt and parçu is not clear.

7.º Both Mitra and Varuna his (two) shoulders (ánsa), both Tvashtar and Aryaman his (two) shanks (doṣán), the great god his fore-legs.

By Ppp. the verse is inserted in our vs. 5, as there noted. The verse has 23 syllables, but is not 'ant-waisted,' as it divides 8 + 9 + 6.

8. Indrānī his buttock, Vāyu his tail (púcha), the purifying [soma] his whisk (válās).

Some of the mss. (Bp.2 s.m.E.I.O.D.R.T.Kp.) read bālāh, which is preferable, since all the other passages have it. Ppp. omits, making our vs. 9 follow our 6.

- 9. Both the Brahman-caste (bráhman) and the Kshatriya-caste (kṣatrá) his (two) hips, force his (two) thighs.
- 10. Both Dhātar and Savitar his (two) knee-joints (asthīvánt), the Gandharvas his calves (jánghā), the Apsarases his dew-claws (kústhikā), Aditi his hoofs.

Ppp. combines gandharvā 'ps-. The so-called purauṣṇih divides 10 + 12 + 5 = 27 syllables.

11. Thought (cétas) his heart, wisdom his liver, ceremony (vratá) his purītát.

The pada-text divides puriotát, but one can only wonder why. After medhā, Ppp. inserts harimā cittam.

12. Hunger his paunch, cheer ($ir\bar{a}$) his rectum ($?vanisth\acute{u}$), the mountains his $pl\bar{a}cls$.

Ppp. reads at the end prāça, for plāçayah, and adds next vss. 16, 17.

- 13. Anger his kidneys, fury his testicles, progeny his virile member. The verse follows our vs. 17 in Ppp.
- 14. The stream (nadt) his birth-giver (?sūtrt), the lords of rain his teats, thunder his udder.

Ppp. prefixes samudro vastir, and puts varsasya patayas stanās after ūdhas, then adding 15 without interpunction.

15. The all-expansive his hide, the herbs his hairs, the asterisms his form.

Ppp. reads carma oṣadhayo romāṇi, and follows with our vs. 18.

16. The god-folks his intestines, human beings his entrails, eaters (?atrá) his belly (udára).

Ppp. reads manuṣyā "ntrāny ātrā ud., putting the verse after our 12. In order to make out 18 syllables, we have to resolve -ṣt-ā āntrāni at-.

- 17. The demons his blood, the other-folks the contents of his bowels. Ppp. inverts the order of the two clauses, and reads $\bar{u}vadhyam$.
- 18. The cloud his fat, the conclusion (? nidhána) his marrow.

In Ppp. this verse follows our 15, and there is added bhūtyāṣ prajāyāṣ paçūnām bhavati ya evam veda.

19. [He is] Agni when sitting, the two Açvins when arisen;

This verse is wanting in Ppp. The metrical definition requires restoration of the a of $a \in vtn\bar{a}$.

- 20. Indra when standing eastward, Yama when standing southward;
- 21. Dhātar when standing westward, Savitar when standing northward; The metrical definition requires the resolution dhātā údañ. Read savitā (an accentsign slipped out of place).
 - 22. King Soma when having obtained grass;

. The pada-mss. have the false accent praoaptah (for praoaptah). [Ppp. reads trṇān prāptas somo rājā.]

23. Mitra when looking, delight (ānandá) when turned this way;

Ppp. unites this verse with the preceding, and inverts the order of the two clauses of this verse, reading rājā "nṛtā "nandaḥ īkṣamāno mitrāvaruṇo.

24. Belonging to all the gods when being yoked, Prajāpati when yoked, everything (sárvam) when released.

Ppp. reads vāiçvānaras instead of vāiçvadevas.

25. That verily is all-formed, of every form, of kine-form.

Ppp. reads vorūpam for viçvárūpam; [it seems to omit sarvarūpam gorūpam].

26. Cattle all-formed, of every form come unto $(upa-sth\bar{a})$ him who knoweth thus.

Ppp. reads upāi 'nam rūpamnvatas paçavah [intending rūpavantas].

[The quoted Anukr. says sadvinço brāhmaņo gavaḥ. The avasānarcas are summed up as 26.]

8. Against various diseases.

[Bhṛgvangiras. — dvāvinçakam. Lanena] sarvaçīrṣāmayādyāmayam Lapākarot]. ānuṣṭubham:
12. anuṣṭubgarbhā kakummatī 4-p. uṣṇih; 15. virāḍ anuṣṭubh; 21. virāṭ pathyābṛhatī;
22. pathyāpaūkti.]

Found also (except vs. 4) in Pāipp. xvi. Not noticed in Vāit., but quoted (vs. 1) in Kāuç. 32. 18, in a remedial ceremony. [The last two verses are specified (32. 19) as used "with worship of the sun."]

Translated: Zimmer, p. 378; Henry, 105, 141; Griffith, i. 455; Bloomfield, 45, 600.

1. Headache, head-ailment, earache, anæmia (? vilohitá), every head-disease of thine, do we expel out [of thee] by incantation (nir-mantray-).

Ppp. reads in a çirşaktyam, and in b trtiyakam for vilohitam. [For çirşakti, see references under i. 12. 3.]

2. From thy (two) ears, from thy $kd\bar{n}k\bar{u}sas$, the earache, the visálpaka, every head-disease etc. etc.

As to visalpakam, instead of the visalyakam of the edition, see under vi. 127. 1. For the obscure kankusa Ppp. has kankukha, and for b it reads çuktivalçam vilohitam.

3. For reason of which the yáksma removes from ears, from mouth — every head-disease etc. etc.

Ppp. reads in b nāsatā "syata [intending -tas -tas].

- 4. Whatever one makes a man dumb (? pramóta), makes [him] blind every head-disease etc. etc.
- 'Dumb' for pramota is Zimmer's conjecture; the word is wholly obscure, and form, accent, and meter make it suspicious; one is tempted to conjecture pramohitam; but muh with prefix pra is not a Vedic combination. The Anukr. takes no notice of the defective pāda.
- 5. Limb-splitting, limb-wasting, and visálpaka of all the limbs every head-disease etc. etc.

Ppp. reads instead, for a, b, cirsarogam angarogam viçvanginam viçalyakam. [As to visálp-, see under vi. 127. 1.] With a is to be compared v. 30. 9 a.

6. Of whom the fearful aspect makes a man tremble — the takmán of every autumn we expel out [of thee] by incantation.

Ppp. reads pāuruṣam in b, and, for c, d, takmānam çītam rūram ca tam tve nir man-: cf. v. 22. 10, 13.

7. The yákṣma that creeps along the thighs, that goes also to the groins, from thy limbs within we expel etc. etc.

Ppp. reads in c balāsam for yaksmam te [cf. our 8 c and under 9].

- 8. If it is born out of desire, of aversion, of the heart the balāsa from thy heart, thy limbs we expel etc. etc.
- 9. Yellowness from thy limbs, apvá from thy belly within, the yákṣma-maker from thy self within we expel etc. etc.

The pada-text reads in c yakṣmahodhām. The Prāt. takes no notice of the irregular form of the first member of the compound, as it does, superfluously (ii. 56), of the contrary treatment of cepas in cepaoharṣaṇīm. In Ppp. our third pāda becomes the second, and for third we have nearly our 7 c: yakṣmam te sarvam angebhyo.

- 10. Let the balása become ash, let it become sickening urine; the poison of all yáksmas have I exorcised from thee.
- 11. Forth at the orifice let it run out, the káhābāha, from thy belly; the poison of all etc. etc.

[Literally 'to the orifice'; Henry "vers le trou," i.e. "par l'anus."] The Pet. Lexx. plausibly conjecture $k\bar{a}h\bar{a}b\bar{a}ha$ to be an imitative term for rumbling in the bowels; it may also possibly be understood as used adverbially, like $b\bar{a}l$ in i. 3. Ppp. has a quite different reading for b: $kah\bar{a}vala\dot{m}$ tvandarā.

12. Out of thy belly, lung, navel, heart, the poison of all etc. etc.

Ppp. rectifies the meter of a by inserting pari before klomnas, and makes c, d agree with our 9 c, d. The Anukr. brings out an usnih (28 syll.) by unnaturally refusing to make the resolutions $n\bar{a}bhi\cdot\bar{a}s$ and $tu\cdot at$ and scanning as 6+7:8+7.

13. They that break apart the crown, rushers against the head $(m\bar{u}r-dhan)$ — not injuring, free from disease, let them run out, out at the orifice.

The 'they' in this and the following verses (13-18) is fem. The Pet. Lexx. take arṣaṇt in b as an independent noun (it is found only here), and conjecture it to mean 'pricking pains.'

14. They that rush unto the heart, that stretch along the vertebræ—not injuring etc. etc.

Prāt. iii. 47 prescribes the form uparṣānti (instead of upārṣānti: p. upaoṛṣānti) in this and the two following verses. Ppp. reads every time upadiçanti.

15. They that rush unto the two sides, that stab (niks) along the ribs—not injuring etc. etc.

The Anukr. intends parçué to be read unresolved.

16. They that rush on crosswise, rushers in thy belly $(vak s dn \bar{a})$ — not injuring etc. etc.

Ppp. reads in b vakṣaṇābhyaḥ, and omits the following te.

17. They that creep along the intestines, and confound the entrails—not injuring etc. etc.

Ppp. reads in b yāpayanti for mohayanti. [Roth most ingeniously suggests that the Ppp. reading may mean āntrā ni-y-āmayanti. Or is yāpayanti to be taken in a sense quite like our English 'cause (the bowels) to move,' i.e. 'produce diarrhœa'?]

18. They that suck out the marrow, and break apart the joints — not injuring etc. etc.

Ppp. reads in a anusarpanti for nirdhayanti. We are to resolve $maj-j\bar{n}-o$ to fill out the measure.

19. They that intoxicate (maday-) the limbs, the yákṣmas, thy gripers—the poison of all yákṣmas have I exorcised from thee.

Ppp. reads in b ropaṇā saha. Some of our mss. (P.M.O.p.m.) read yé 'ñgāni.

20. Of the visalpá, of the vidradhá, or of the vātīkārá, of the alaji—the poison etc. etc.

Ppp. again reads viçalyasya [cf. under vi. 127. 1]; also, in b, vātīkālasya.

21. Forth from thy feet, knees, hips, buttock, spine, nape the pangs, from thy head the disease have I made disappear.

Ppp. reads, after te, gulphābhyām jaūghābhyām jānubhyām ūrubhyām çro. p. bh.; it reads ānūkyāt in c, and inserts before çīrṣṇas, grīvābhyas skandhebhyas. It is apparently the intrusion of arṣaṇīs that spoils the meter in our c.

22. Together the bones (kapála) of thy head, and the discussor (vidhú) of thy heart—arising, O Aditya, thou with thy rays hast made disappear the disease of the head, hast pacified the limb-splitter.

The first two pādas seem independent; an unfinished construction. The pada-text reads viodhúh in b, as if it recognized in the word the root $dh\bar{u}+vi$; this is not implausible, and the translation follows it (the simple "beat" of the Pet. Lexx. seems quite unacceptable; it might be 'palpitation'). But Ppp. reads instead vidus, and so do a part of our mss., namely, W.O.s.m.D.Kp. [W. interlines a query over "discussor," which word he coins and uses in the sense 'shaker asunder.' "Discuss" in this sense is "obsolete except in surgical use." Ppp. further has, for our c etc.: udyat sūryādityo aūgāni roma nakhāni sarvāṇi sadanāni nīnaçat.

9. Mystic.

[Brahman. — dvāvinçakam. vāmīyam ādityadevatyam adhyātmakaram. trāistubham: 12, 14, 16, 18. jagatī.]

This hymn and the following (except a few verses of the latter) are one Rig-Veda hymn, namely, i. 164, and but a small part of them occur in any other Vedic text. Both are found in Pāipp. xvi., in somewhat changed verse-order, as will be noted under the different verses below. Vāit. takes no notice of this hymn; in Kāuç. it (vs. 1) is quoted in 18. 25, with various others, in a ceremony for prosperity; and the gaṇamālā (see note to Kāuç. 18. 25) reckons it as belonging to the salila gaṇa.

Translated: as RV. hymn, by Ludwig, no. 951; and Grassmann, ii. p. 456-460; also by M. Haug, under the title, Vedische Räthselfragen und Räthselsprüche, Sb. der philos. philol. Classe der k. bairischen Ak. der Wiss., Bd. II., Heft 3, für 1875, München, 1876 (the essay, says Whitney, "casts extremely little light upon its labored obscurities"); further, with an elaborate comment touching the significance of its philosophic content, by Deussen, Geschichte, i. 1. 105-119; parts also by Muir, v. (see Index, p. 484), and Hillebrandt, Ved. Mythol., i. (see Index, p. 542); and under the title, Zwei Sprüche über Leib und Seele, ZDMG. xlvi. 759 f., Roth explains two verses answering to our ix. 10. 8 and 16. Under the title, Das Räthsel vom Jahre, ZDMG. xlviii. 353, E. Windisch discusses the RV. verse answering to our vs. 12.

Translated, moreover, as AV. hymn, by Henry, 107, 143; Griffith, i. 458. The critical remarks of Oldenberg, IFA. vi. 180-183, may also be consulted. — Further, von Schroeder, Der Rigveda bei den Kathas, WZKM. xii. 282, reports variants for certain vss. of the RV. hymn which correspond to our vss. ix. 9. 9, 12, 17, 22 and ix. 10. 16. — Finally, A. Wünsche's essay, Das Rätsel vom Jahr und seinen Zeitabschnitten in der Weltlitteratur, may be cited in this connection; it is found in Zeitschrift für vergl. Litteraturgeschichte, N.F., ix. 425-456.

1. Of this pleasant $(v\bar{a}m\dot{a})$ hoary invoker — of him the brother is the midmost stone (? $d\varsigma na$); his third brother [is] ghee-backed; there I saw the lord of the people who hath seven sons.

The three brothers are explained as the three forms of Agni, in heaven, in the atmosphere (lightning), and on earth (sacrificial fire); the 'seven sons' are most probably his many flames. [The collocation of madhyamó with bhrātā would seem more natural, considering the phrase trityo bhrātā.]

2. Seven harness (yuj) a one-wheeled chariot; one horse, having seven names, draws (vah) [it]; of three naves [is] the wheel, unwasting, unassailed, whereon stand all these existences.

Doubtless the sun. The verse is repeated as xiii. 3.18. It occurs also in TA. iii. 11.8, with anarvām yene 'mā v. bhuvanāni t. in c, d (the accent of the verse is too corrupt to heed).

3. The seven that stand on this chariot — seven horses draw it, sevenwheeled; seven sisters shout at [it] together, where are set down the seven names of the kine.

RV. reads navante in c, and nama in d.

4. Who saw it first in process of birth, as the boneless one bears (bhr) him that has bones? where for sooth the earth's life $(\acute{a}su)$, blood, soul? who shall go to ask that of him who knows?

'Bears,' not in the sense of 'gives birth to,' but of 'carries' or 'supports' or the like.

5. Let him who truly knows [here] tell $(br\bar{u})$ the set-down track of this pleasant bird; the kine extract (duh) milk from his head; clothing themselves in a wrap, they have drunk water with the foot.

Explained as relating to the clouds and the sun. The verse is vs. 7 in RV., and also in Ppp.; the latter reads \vec{crsna} in c.

- 6. Simple, not discerning $(vi-j\bar{n}\bar{a})$ with the mind, I ask about the thus set-down tracks of the gods; over the yearling (? baṣkáya) calf have the poets stretched out seven lines (tántu) for weaving.
- 7. I, not understanding (cit), ask here the understanding poets, I unknowing (vid), them that know; he who propped as under these six spaces (rajas), in the form of the goat (?aja)— was that also alone?

The sense of the last pāda is utterly obscure, and the version given only tentative; ajā is perhaps here really the 'unborn one,' as the translators render it. RV. reads in a ácikitvān cik-, and, in b, vidmáne, for which our vidvánas is apparently a mere corruption.

8. The mother portioned the father in rightcousness, for with meditation (dhīti), with mind, came together in the beginning she, repugnant, womb-sapped, pierced; paying homage, verily, they went unto encouragement.

The version is in part only mechanical. Ppp. combines $rt\bar{a}$ "babh- in a, and reads jaine at end of b.

9. The mother was yoked to the pole of the sacrificial gift; the embryo stood among the wiles (? vrjant); the calf bleated, looked after the cow of all forms, in the three distances (yójana).

[Katha variants, WZKM. xii. 282, vrjanésv antáh and yojánesu. — Cf. IFA. vi. 180, as noted above.]

- 10. The one, bearing three mothers [and] three fathers, stood upright; verily they do not exhaust him; on the back of you sky the all-knowing ones talk a speech not found by all.
- RV. reads glāpayanti at end of b and the translation follows that reading, and, for d, viçvavidam vācam aviçvaminvām. The pada-text reads glapayanta; Prāt. iv. 93 notes the case. Ppp. agrees with RV. in glāpayanti and viçvavidam.
- 11. On the five-spoked circumvolving wheel on which stood all existences—its axle, much-burdened, is not heated; even from of old it is not severed with the nave.
- RV. and Ppp. count this verse as 13, our version inverting the order of 11-13. In b, RV. reads tásminn á tasthur bh. v., and Ppp. samārohanti bh. v.; and RV. has cīryate for chidyate in d.
- 12. The five-footed father, of twelve shapes (-ákṛti), they call rich in ground (purīṣin) in the far (pára) half of the sky; then these others call [him] set (árpita) in the lower outlook that is seven-wheeled, six-spoked.
- RV. and Ppp. have the easier and better reading vicakṣanám in c, and Ppp. reads before it upari. [The Katha reading also is úpari, WZKM. xii. 282.] Read in b páre (an accent sign slipped out of place). [See Roth, KZ. xxvi. 66, and Windisch as cited in the introduction; cf. also IFA. vi. 181, as noted above.]
- 13. The twelve-spoked wheel for that is not to be worn out revolves greatly about the sky of righteousness; there, O Agni, stood the sons, paired, seven hundred and twenty.

Here the 'twelve' and the 'seven hundred and twenty' are plainly the months, and the days and nights, of the year of 360 days. The verse, as noted above, is vs. 11 in RV. and Ppp. The more proper reading in b would be várvartti.

14. The unwasting wheel, with rim, rolls about; ten harnessed ones draw upon the outstretched one (fem.); the sun's eye goes surrounded with the welkin (rájas), in which stood all existences.

Ppp. has vrajanti for vahanti in b, and, for d yasminn ārpitā bhuvanāny ārpitā; RV. has tāsminn ārpitā for our yāsminn ātasthūh. The Anukr. calls the verse simply a jagatī, though only two of its pādas have 12 syllables.

- 15. Them, being women, they declared (ah) to me to be men; he who hath eyes may see, [but] the blind will not distinguish (vi-cit); the son that is a poet, he verily understood $(\bar{a}-cit)$; whoever knows those things apart, he shall be [his] father's father.
- RV. and Ppp. put this verse after our vs. 16. It is found also in TA. i. 11.4, with $t\bar{d}$ u in a, $im\bar{d}s$ in c for tm \bar{d} , and $savit\bar{u}h$ p- in d. Some of our mss. (P.s.m.O.K.T.) read $pit\bar{u}h$ p- in d; we had the phrase once before, at ii. 1.2, and the combination falls under Prāt. ii. 73. We might expect, in d, $t\bar{d}h$, referring to strtyah, but the pada-texts have $t\bar{d}$, as neuter pl.

16. Of those born together the seventh they call sole-born; six, they say, are twins, god-born seers; the sacrifices (? ista) of them, distributed according to their abodes, quake in their station, being altered (vi-kr) in respect to form.

Istāni in c might equally mean 'things desired.' Sthātré in d is most probably loc. of -trá, since, if from sthātf, we should expect instead the ablative. [The vs. recurs at TA. i. 3. I with udyamās for id yamās.]

17. Below the distant (pára), thus beyond the lower, bearing (bhṛ) her calf with her foot, the cow hath stood up; whitherwards, to what quarter (árdha) hath she forsooth gone away? where giveth she birth? for [it is] not in this herd.

The Anukr. takes no notice of the redundant syllable in a; we may suppose para enā- to be combined to parāt 'nā-. [The verse is repeated below as xiii. 1.41. RV. ends with antāḥ for asmin. The Kaṭha variant pārākāt for pārāgāt (WZKM. xii. 282) shows an exchange of surd and sonant, the reverse of that noted at ii. 13.3.]

18. Below the distant whoever knows his father, below the distant, thus beyond the lower—who, playing the poet, shall proclaim [him] here? from whence [is] heavenly mind produced?

RV. and Ppp. read, in a, b, yo asyā 'nuvéda pará enā-, rectifying the meter and light-ening the construction. Only the first two pādas have any "jagatī" character, and they are very irregular. But by giving this name the Anukr. shows that it reads our version; in RV. and Ppp. the verse is a pure tristubh. Read in d kúto (for kṛto).

19. Them that are hitherward they call off-ward; them, again, that are off-ward they call hitherward; what things, O Soma, thou and Indra have done, those they draw, harnessed as it were with the pole of the welkin.

The verse is found also in JB. i. 279, with no various readings that are not evident corruptions. The 'them' of a, b is masc., probably the same with the 'they' of d (yuk-tah, p.). Ppp. reads niyukta instead of na yukta.

20. Two eagles (suparná), joint companions, embrace the same tree; of them the one eats the sweet berry; the other looks on all the time, not partaking.

Ppp. reads in a suyujā. Here and in the next verse, as everywhere else, some of our mss. read ptspalam. [The vs. plays a rôle in the Upanishads: cf. Çvet. iv. 6; Muṇḍ. iii. 1. 1. Hillebrandt, Ved. Mythol., i. 466, 399, treats this and the following vss.]

21. On what tree the honey-eating eagles all settle and give birth—what they call the sweet berry in the top of it, that cannot he attain who knoweth not [his] father.

RV. has id āhuḥ instead of yad āhuḥ in c, and so also Ppp. (but āhuṣ). In RV. this verse follows after our vs. 22. There is a redundant syllable in c of which the Anukr. takes no notice (and the pāda is also capable of being crowded together into eleven syllables).

22. Where the eagles, with counsel (vidátha), sound incessantly (ánimeṣam) unto the draught of amṛta, — thus the shepherd of all existence, he the wise one entered there into me that am simple.

RV. reads bhāgám for bhakṣám in a. For enā in c, RV. has inás, and Ppp. yo no; [Ppp's yo no seems to be an attempt to make sense out of the rare and probably unintelligible inó]. [The Kaṭha variant (WZKM. xii. 282) is ánimiṣam.]

[Brahman. — aṣṭāvinçakam. govirāḍadhyātmadāivatyam (23. māitrāvaruṇī). trāiṣṭubham: 1,7, 14, 17, 18. jagatī; 21. 5-p. atiçakvarī; 24. 4-p. puraskṛtir bhurig atijagatī; 2,26,27. bhurij.]

This hymn is in RV. a continuation of the preceding; but our vss. 9 and 23 are not found in the RV. with the rest (9 is RV. x. 55.5 and 23 is RV. i. 152.3); Lwhile of 19, only $\bf d$ is found in RV., making, with the odd fifth pāda of our vs. 21, the first half of RV. i. 164. 42 (42 $\bf a$, $\bf b$ = 21 $\bf e$ + 19 $\bf d$); and our 24 (prose) does not occur in the RV. at all]. The first 23 verses are found also in Pāipp. xvi. The hymn is not quoted in Kāuç. (except as vs. 20 is also vii. 73.11); but a few verses (9, 13, 14) are cited in Vāit.

Translated: as AV. hymn, by Henry, 110, 150; Griffith, i. 464. — For other translations etc. see the introduction to hymn 9.

I. That the $g\bar{a}yatr\bar{t}$ -verse is set $(\bar{a}$ - $dh\bar{a})$ in the $g\bar{a}yatr\bar{t}$ -verse, or that they fashioned the tristubh-verse out of the tristubh-verse, or that the $j\acute{a}gat\bar{\iota}$ step is set in the $j\acute{a}gat\bar{\iota}$ $(j\acute{a}g\dot{a}t)$ — whoever know that, they have attained immortality.

RV. [vs. 23] and Ppp. read in b trāistubhād vā trāistubham.

2. By the gāyatrī-verse he measures off the song (arká), by the song the chant (sāman), by the triṣṭúbh-verse the hymn (vāká), by the hymn of two feet [or] of four feet the hymn; by the syllable they measure the seven tunes (vāṇi).

The words 'song,' 'hymn,' 'tune' are used rather loosely in rendering here.

3. By the jágatī he established (skabh) the river in the sky; in the rathamtará he beheld (pari-paç) the sun; they call the three kindlers (samidh) the gāyatri-verse's; it was superior to them by bulk, by greatness.

The translation of the last pāda is not without uncertainties; tátas is here understood as quasi-object of prá ririce. RV. [vs. 25] reads in a astabhāyat.

4. I invite that well-milking milch-cow; a skilful-handed milker also shall milk her; may the impeller impel us the best impulse; the hot drink is kindled about: that may he kindly proclaim.

We had this verse above as vii. 73.7. The only variant in RV. [vs. 26] is the better vocam at the end. | Oldenberg discusses verses 4-7, IFA. vi. 182. |

5. Lowing, mistress of good things, seeking her calf with her mind, hath she come unto [it]; let this inviolable one yield milk for the Açvins; let her increase unto great good-fortune.

This verse, again, is vii. 73. 8, above, excepting that the latter reads $ny\tilde{a}gan$ at end of b. Our fada-text has here $abhio\tilde{a}g\tilde{a}t$, while that of RV. [vs. 27] gives $abhi:\tilde{a}:ag\tilde{a}t$; both yield the same $samhit\tilde{a}$ -reading.

6. The cow lowed toward the winking calf; she uttered hing at [its] head, in order to lowing; bellowing the mouth (? sṛkvan) unto the hot drink, she lows a lowing, she abounds with milk.

Compare 1.8, above; the second line is nearly identical in the two verses. It is quite differently rendered by the translators at one and another point, being very obscure. For abht in a, RV. reads ánu, Ppp. apa.

7. This one here twangs, by whom the cow is surrounded; she lows a lowing, being set (crita) on the sparkler (dhvasani); since she put down mortals by her thoughts (citti), becoming the lightning, she threw $(\bar{n}h)$ back the wrap.

Both RV. [vs. 29] and Ppp. read mártyam in c.

8. Breathing lies the swift moving thing, living, stirring, fixed, in the midst of the abodes (pastyà); the living one moves at the will (? svadhá-bhis) of the dead one; the immortal one [is] of like source with the mortal.

The verse is excessively obscure, and Hillebrandt's translation of the second half, and reference to the moon (Ved. Mythol., pp. 336, 498), very forced and implausible. The verse lacks a syllable in a (and the pada-text sets its mark of pāda-division after éjat); perhaps we are to resolve -ga-ātu. Ppp. puts the verse after our vs. 9. [RV., vs. 30, shows no variant. Roth's most interesting interpretation (ZDMG. xlvi. 759) makes of the verse a riddle whose answer is "the body and the soul." He emends to ananac in a. Böhtlingk, Berichte der sächsischen Gesell., 1893, xlv. 88, reviews Roth's interpretation.

9. The shaker-apart (? vidhú) that runs on the back of the sea, being young, the hoary one swallowed; see thou the poesy of the heavenly one with greatness; today he died, yesterday he received breath (sam-an).

This verse is RV. x. 55. 5; also SV. i. 325 etc.; TA. iv. 20. 1; MS. iv. 9. 12. All alike read samane bahūnām for salilāsya pṛṣṭhē (MS., except in its pada-text, has other slight differences which are palpable blunders). Vidhū is (as at 8. 22, above) divided in pada-text viodhū. It doubtless designates here the moon, however it may have won the right to do so. Ludwig and Hillebrandt (Ved. Mythol. i. 465) translate d 'today (he died yesterday) he has come to life'; but this is in the highest degree forced, and may be pronounced even inadmissible. Ppp. reads vidyudūdrānā at the beginning. [See Kātha-hss., p. 82.] The verse is quoted in Vāit. 40. 7; 41. 12.

10. He who made him knows not of him; [he is] verily out of sight now of him who saw him; he, enveloped within his mother's womb, with his much progeny, entered into perdition (nirrii).

The translation follows the RV. reading, nirrtim, in d, since the nom. -tis seems unconstruable. Both RV. [vs. 32] and Ppp. put the verse after our vs. 11, and the latter reads so 'sya in a. Haug interprets the lightning to be intended.

11. I saw the shepherd, not lying down, moving both hither and thither upon his roads; he, clothing himself in the collecting, he in the dispersing ones, rolls greatly on among existences.

Doubtless the sun. The verse [RV. vs. 31] is found a second time in RV. as x. 177. 3; and also at VS. xxxvii. 17; TA. iv. 7. 1; MS. iv. 9. 6; AA. ii. 1. 66-10 — all accenting in a anipadyamānam, which is alone acceptable. [Our d recurs, with sd prefixed, at x. 2. 7 c. If we read varīvartti there, we ought also to do so here.] [Cf. Katha-hss., p. 101.]

- 12. The heaven our father, generator, navel here; this great earth our connection, mother; the womb $(y \acute{o}ni)$ within the (two) outstretched cups $(cam \acute{u})$; here the father hath set $(\bar{a} dh\bar{a})$ the daughter's embryo.
- 'Navel,' i.e. 'central point, place of union.' RV. [vs. 33] reads me for nas in a and b.
- 13. I ask of thee the extreme (pára) end of the earth; I ask the seed of the male (vṛṣan) horse; I ask the navel of all existence; I ask the highest (paramá) firmament (vyòman) of speech.
- RV. [vs. 34] exchanges the place of b and c, and rectifies the meter by inserting another tvā before visno, and reading prchāmi yātra bhūvanasya nābhih. Ppp. follows RV. in the former case, but in the latter has prchāmi tvām bh. n.; it makes [as between b and c] the same inversion of order as RV.; and it begins d with vācas prchāmi. The Anukr. takes no notice of the irregularity of our meter. The verse, with the following one, is found also in other texts: VS. xxiii. 61, 62; TS. vii. 4. 182; LÇS. ix. 10. 13, 14. VS. reads in both verses precisely as RV., and LÇS. differs from it only by having prchāmas instead of -mi four times in vs. 13. TS. has for 13 b prchāmi tvā bhūvanasya nābhim. The two verses are quoted in Vāit. 37. 3.
- 14. This sacrificial hearth is the extreme end of the earth; this soma is the seed of the male horse; this sacrifice is the navel of all existence; this priest (brahmán) is the highest firmament of speech.
- RV. [vs. 35] (also VS. LÇS.: see above) and Ppp. read for b, c: ayām yajāb bhūv. nā.: ayām somo etc. (our b). TS. has védim āhuh pāram āntam pṛthivyā yajāām āhur bhūvanasya nābhim: somam āhur vṛ. áç. rē. brahmāt 'vā vācāḥ etc. The Anukr. absurdly calls the verse a jagatī on account of the two redundant syllables in the AV. version of c.
- 15. I do not distinguish what this is that I am; I go secret, fastened together with mind; when the first-born of righteousness hath come to me, then indeed I attain a share of this speech.

Ppp. agrees with RV. [vs. 37] in putting this verse [and the next] after our vs. 17. The RV. pada-text has in $c \, \tilde{a} : agan$ [so Müller's five editions and Aufrecht's first: Aufrecht's second, $\tilde{a} : agan$]; our $\tilde{a} \circ agan$ is better. Ppp. reads $balin\tilde{a}$ for $manas\tilde{a}$ in b.

16. Offward, forward goes, seized by svadhá, the immortal one, of like source with the mortal; the two, constantly going separate apart — the one they noted, the other they noted not.

Haug and Hillebrandt (Ved. Mythol., i. 336, note) both understand svadhā here as meaning the offering to the manes, but their conjectural interpretations of the verse are totally discordant. The vs. is RV. vs. 38 without variant. See the interpretations of Roth and of Böhtlingk as cited under vs. 8 above.—The Katha variant (WZKM. xii. 282) is aprān for apān.—The vs. is found at AA. ii. 1. 8.

- 17. Seven half-embryos, the seed of existence, stand in front (? pradiçā), in Vishņu's distribution; they, by thoughts (dhāti), by mind, they, inspired, surround on all sides the surrounders.
- Or, 'being surrounders.' As noted above, the verse in RV. [vs. 36] and Ppp. stands before our vs. 15. Both 17 and 18 are defective as jagatīs. [Cf. Oldenberg, IFA. vi. 184; also Henry, Actes du dixième Congrès intern. des Orientalistes, Section I, Inde, p. 45-50, "Cruelle énigme."]
- 18. In the syllable of the verse $(\hat{r}c)$ in the highest firmament, on which all the gods sat down: he who knoweth not that, what will he do with the verse? they who know that sit together yonder.
- RV. [vs. 39] reads imé instead of amt in d. O. combines vidús té just before it. The verse is found also in TB. iii. 10. 9¹⁴ and TA. ii. 11. 1—in both, with the RV. reading. Its pratika occurs also in GB. i. 22. Read véda in c.
- 19. Shaping (kalpay-) with measure the step of the verse, they shaped by the half-verse all that stirs; the bráhman of three feet, many-formed, spread out (vi-sthā); by that do the four quarters live.

The comm. to the Prāt. (ii. 93) quotes vt taṣṭhe at end of c as an example of the s of $sth\bar{a}$ lingualized after vt even though the reduplication intervenes; and that establishes vt taṣṭhe as the true reading. The majority of the $samhit\bar{a}$ -mss. have it; but W.E.O. give casṭe; Ppp. also has $parir\bar{u}pam\ vi\ casṭe$. Only the fourth pāda is found in RV., being i. 164. 42 b (we have 42 a as our 21 e); the same occurs below as xi. 5. 12 d.

20. Mayest thou be well-portioned, feeding in excellent meadows; so also may we be well-portioned; eat thou grass, O inviolable one, at all times; drink clear water, moving hither.

We had this verse [RV. vs. 40] above, as vii. 73. 11.

21. The cow verily lowed, fashioning the seas; one-footed, two-footed [is] she, four-footed; having become eight-footed, nine-footed, thousand-syllabled, a series (panti) of existence; out from her flow apart the oceans.

The five pādas are vs. 41, and 42 a, of the RV. hymn; which, however, reads gāurīs for gāúr id in a, and paramé vyðman for bhúvanasya pañtiḥ in d. The RV. vs. 41 occurs also in TB. ii. 4. 6^{11} [and it is there followed by the RV. vs. 42 entire] and TA. i. 9. 4, with the RV. readings, excepting gāurī at the beginning [and tāsyām in TB. for tāsyās]. Our pādas b-e, again, are repeated as xiii. 1. 42 below. The verse (12 + 12: 12 + 11 + 11 = 58) lacks two syllables of being a proper atiçakvarī (60 syllables).

22. Black the descent, the yellow eagles, clothing themselves in waters, fly up to the sky; they have come hither from the seat of righteousness; then, forsooth, with ghee they deluged the earth.

The verse occurs also above as vi. 22. I, and padas a-c below in xiii. 3. 9. For parallel passages etc. see the note to vi. 22. I. It is RV. i. 164. 47, the last verse of the RV. hymn that is included in the AV. text here (RV. vss. 43-46 are our 25-28 below), although of the remaining five RV. vss. all but one (51) are found in other parts of our text.

23. She that is footless goes first of them (fem.) that have feet: who understood $(\bar{a}\text{-}cit)$ that of you, O Mitra and Varuṇa? the embryo brings $(\bar{a}\text{-}bhr)$ the burden of her; she (?) fills (?pr) truth, protects $(ni\text{-}p\bar{a})$ untruth.

The last pāda is especially obscure: he? or she? or it? and which root pṛ, 'fill' or 'pass'? The verse is RV. i. 152. 3, where we read tārit instead of pāti at the end, and asya for asyās at end of c. Ppp. also has tārīt, but, instead of ā cid asyāḥ (or asya), it reads ād rtasya.

24. Virāj [is] speech, virāj earth, virāj atmosphere, virāj Prajāpati; virāj became death, the over-king of the perfectibles (sādhyā); in his control are what was, what is to be; let him put in my control what was, what is to be.

[Prose.] This verse, with all that follows it, is wanting in Ppp. The Anukr. reckons the whole first part to the pause as one pāda (20 syllables, a kṛti-pāda); the pada-text understands it as two, dividing after pṛthivī.

25. The dung-made smoke I saw from far, with the dividing one, thus beyond the lower; the heroes cooked a spotted ox $(uk s \acute{a}n)$; those were the first ordinances.

The construction and sense of b are very obscure. The verse is 43 of RV. i. 164, and the remaining three follow in order. [Henry, Mém. de la Soc. de linguistique, ix. 247, cites the vs.]

26. Three hairy ones look out seasonably; in the (a?) year one of them shears itself; another looks upon all with might (çácībhis); of one is seen the rush, not the form.

The RV. version [vs. 44] has in c vicvam éko abhi caste; our abhicáste is a regular case of antithetical accent. The RV. pada-text does not divide samvatsare. Haug interprets the verse of the three forms of Agni; Hillebrandt (Ved. Mythol., i. p. 472), of the moon (!?), sun, and wind.

27. Speech [is] four measured out quarters (padá); those are known by Brahmans who are skilful; three, deposited in secret, they do not set in motion (ingay-); a fourth of speech human beings speak.

This verse is found, without variant, in TB. (ii. 8. 85) and CB. (iv. 1. 317), as well as in RV. [vs. 45]. Our Bp. 2D. Kp. read nd: tngayanti in c.

28. They call [him] Indra, Mitra, Varuṇa, Agni; likewise he [is] the heavenly winged eagle; what is one the sages (vipra) name (vad) variously; they call [him] Agni, Yama, Mātariçvan.

Our pada-text differs from that of RV. [vs. 46] by dividing bahuodha.

The fifth anuvāka, with 2 hymns and 50 verses, ends here.

One of our mss., P., sums up the book as of 8 $artha-s\bar{u}ktas$ [their vss. number 214] and 7 $pary\bar{u}ya-s\bar{u}ktas$ [hymns 6 and 7: their ¶'s number 62+26=88] or "15 $s\bar{u}ktas$ of both kinds" reckoned together. Cf. the introduction, p. 517. The same ms., P., sums up the $avas\bar{u}narcas$ [of hymns 6 and 7] as 99 [73 + 26] and the "verses of both kinds" as 313 [that is 214 + 99]; but codex I. gives 302 [that is 214 + 88].]

The twenty-first prapāthaka ends here.

Book X.

[This tenth book is the third of the second grand division of the Atharvan collection. For a general statement as to the make-up of the books of this division, reference should again be made to page 471. The Old Anukramaṇī describes the length of hymns 1, 2, 5, 6, 7, 8, and 10 by giving the overplus of each hymn over 30 verses. The assumed normal length in the case of book ix. seems to be 20 verses. The whole book has been translated by Victor Henry, Les livres X, XI, et XII de l'Atharva-véda traduits et commentés, Paris, 1896. The bhāsya again is lacking. There are no paryāya-hymns in this book.]

[The anuvāka-division of the book (as noted above, page 472) is into five anuvākas of two hymns each. The "decad"-division likewise is as described on page 472. A tabular conspectus for this book also may be acceptable:

Hymns	· 1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	· 9	10
Decad-div.	10+10+12	10+10+13	10+10+5	10+10+6	5 tens	3 tens + 5	3 tens + 14	3 tens + 14	10+10+2	10+10+14

Sum of verses, 350. The sum of "decad"-sūktas is 35. In this book, therefore, the average length of the "decad"-sūktas is precisely 10 verses.

1. Against witchcraft and its practisers.

[Pratyangirasa.— dvātrinçat. kṛtyādūṣaṇadevatyam. ānuṣṭubham: 1. mahābṛhatī; 2. virāṇ nāma gāyatrī; 9. pathyāpankti; 12. pankti; 13. urobṛhatī; 15. 4-p. virāḍ jagatī; 17, 20, 24. prastārapankti (20. virāj); 16, 18. triṣṭubh; 19. 4-p. jagatī; 22. 1-av. 2-p. ārcy uṣṇih; 23. 3-p. bhurig viṣamā gāyatrī; 28. 3-p. gāyatrī; 29. madhyejyotiṣmatī jagatī; 32. dvyanuṣṭubgarbhā 5-p. atijagatī.]

Found also in Pāipp. xvi. The hymn (vs. 1) is quoted in Kāuç. 39. 7, with several others, in a ceremony against witchcraft, and several of its verses or parts of verses elsewhere. The Vāit. uses only one half-verse (21 c, d).

Translated: Ludwig, p. 520; Henry, I, 39; Griffith, ii. I; Bloomfield, 72, 602.

1. She whom the adepts (cikitsú) prepare, all-formed, hand-made, like a bride at a wedding — let her go far off; we push her away.

'She,' because kṛṭyā 'witchcraft' is feminine. The name, mahābṛhatī, given to the verse, is improperly applied, Lif we understand it as defined by RV. Prāt. xvi. 48: here is meant rather that defined as of three jāgata pādas (12 + 12:11) at Ind. Stud. viii. 243 |.

2. Having a head, having a nose, having ears, put together, all-formed, by the witchcraft-maker — let her go far off; we push her away.

The addition of a ca at the end of a would rectify the meter, and justify the Anukr. The pada-reading cirsanováti is by Prāt. iv. 99, and the word is quoted there in the comment as an example. Ppp. puts the adjectives in the accus., and reads, instead of our c: pratyak pra himmasi yaç cakāra tum rechatu: cf. vs. 5 c and v. 14. 11 c.

3. Çūdra-made, king-made, woman-made, made by Brahmans (brahmán), like a wife expelled (nuttá) by her husband, let her go to her maker, as connection.

Either 'as her' or 'as his connection'; Ppp. decides for the former, reading bandhum [for our bándhu]. [W's alternative seems to be: bándhum must be in apposition with kartāram; but bándhu (p. bándhu) must be a neuter (as at v. 13.7) and so in apposition with the subject-nominative, krtyā understood.]

4. With this herb have I spoiled all witchcrafts — what one they have made in the field, what in the kine, or what in thy men.

This is a repetition of iv. 18.5, above. The Anukr here, as there, takes no notice of the defective last pada.

5. Let evil be to the evil-doer, a curse to the curser; backward we send [her] forth back, that she may slay the witchcraft-maker.

Ppp. reads for a kṛtyās santu kṛtyākṛte, and, for c, d pratyak pratipravartaya yaç cakāra tum rcchatu. To read in our c hinmasi (as Ppp. in vs. 2 c) would rectify the meter, of whose irregularity the Anukr. takes no notice. The pada-reading pratiopra-hinmah is by Prāt. iv. 95; the word is quoted there in the comment as example.

6. Opposed [is] the Āngirasa, our appointed (purbhita) overseer; do thou, having turned the witchcrafts in the opposite direction, slay yonder witchcraft-makers.

Ppp. is corrupt, mixing up our verses 6 and 7. It combines praticinā "ngi- in 6 a.

7. He who said to thee "go forth," against the current, up-stream, him, O witchcraft, do thou return against; seek not us who are innocent.

Of this verse is legible in Ppp. $ud\bar{a}yyam$ in b; as for our mss., they cannot be relied upon in the least to distinguish pya and yya, but the majority rather favor $ud\bar{a}yy\bar{a}m$, while P. reads $-\bar{a}ryy\bar{a}m$, D. $-\bar{a}jy\bar{a}m$ (?), W. $-\bar{a}hyam$. Neither word has been found anywhere else, but doubtless $ud\bar{a}py\bar{a}m$ is the true form.

8. He who put together thy joints, as an rbhú [those] of a chariot with skill (dhi), unto him go thou; there is thy going; this person is unknown to thee.

All the samhitā-mss. read -va rbhur in b.

9. They who, having made, took hold of thee, cunning sorcerers—this is a healthful (cambh'u) spoiler of witchcraft, counteracting, reverting; therewith do we bathe thee.

The address changes, as often elsewhere, from the witchcraft to the bewitched person. Ppp. reads, in c, vidma for çambhu, and, in d, pratisaram. Our text ought to read in c çambhu àdám, although all the mss. happen to agree here in lengthening the i.

10. In that we have come upon the ill-portioned one (fem.), bathed forth, whose young (-vatsa) is dead — let all ill (pāpa) go away from me; let property come unto (upa-sthā) me.

The pada-mss. have in b upaoeyima, and combination to upeyima falls under the rule Prāt. iii. 38, although the \bar{a} contained in eyima (= \bar{a} - \bar{b} yima) does not appear [as \bar{a}] in the pada-text. | Ppp. ends a corruptly with prenipathām. |

II. In that they have taken (grah) the name of thee giving to the Fathers, or at the sacrifice—let these plants free thee from all ill that is designed (? saindeqva).

It might be also (in a, b) 'those giving to the Fathers have taken the name of thee' (Ludwig, 'thy Fathers'). Samdeqyd is very obscure. The first half-verse is wholly corrupt in Ppp.

- 12. From sin against the gods, against the Fathers, from name-taking, that is designed, that is devised against [any one], let the plants free thee by their energy $(v\bar{\imath}ry\dot{a})$, with spell $(br\dot{a}hman)$, with verses, with milk of the seers.
- 'Milk' ($p \dot{a} y a s$) in the last pāda looks like a corrupt reading, but Ppp. appears to have the same; Bp.E. accent $p a y a s \dot{a}$. [As for the combinations of $-\bar{a} r$, see note to Prāt. iii. 46.] Several mss. (Bp.O.p.m.R.T.K.) read $p i t r y \dot{a} t$ in a. The verse, which ought to be called an $a n u s t u b g a r b h \dot{a}$ tristubh (11 + 8 : 11 + 11 = 41), is very foolishly described by the Anukr. as a $p a \bar{n} k t \dot{t}$, because it contains nearly (and can easily be reduced to precisely) 40 syllables.
- 13. As the wind sets in motion the dust from the earth and the cloud (abhrá) from the atmosphere, so from me may everything of evil nature go away, pushed by the spell (bráhman).
- 14. Step away, making much noise, like an unfastened she-ass; attain thy makers, pushed hence by an energetic spell.

Some of the mss. (O.p.m.K.) read kartrén in c, as in other such cases.

15. Saying "this is the road, O witchcraft," we conduct thee; thee that wast sent forth against [us] we send forth back again; by that [road] go against [them], breaking, like a draft-cow with a cart, all-formed, wearing a wreath (? kurūţin).

The last word is found only here, and has to be rendered conjecturally (with the Pet. Lexx.). All the samhitā-mss. [or rather, most of them: see also note to Prāt. iii. 35] combine kṛtyé 'ti [and thus indeed the meter requires us to pronounce]; but our edition restores the more correct reading [kṛtya tti], since the Prāt. does not countenance the irregularity; we should expect to find it with vandane 'va (in ii. 56). Ppp. reads at the beginning ayam panthā 'pinayāmi tvā kṛtye prahitām prati etc.; in c [or rather c-d], tuñjaty anasvinī 'va. In the Anukr. it seems as if catuṣpadā must be a misreading for paūcapadā (11 + 11: 8 + 8 + 8 = 46): but compare vs. 19.

16. Offward is light for thee, hitherward is no road for thee; make thy goings elsewhere than [toward] us; go thou by a distant [road] beyond ninety difficult navigable streams; do not wound thyself; go away.

One would like to emend kṣaniṣṭhās in d, perhaps to kṣamiṣṭhās 'be patient' i.e. 'linger'; Ppp. has instead ghāniṣṭhās, which unfortunately gives no help. Ppp. also combines nāvyā 'ti in c; and the description of the Anukr. appears to sanction it.

17. As the wind the trees, do thou crush (mr) down, cause to fall; do not leave of them cow, horse, man; turning back, O witchcraft, from here to thy makers, awaken them unto childlessness.

Here, in c, even a majority of the mss. (W.I.O.D.T.K.) read kartrén. Ppp. combines at the beginning vāte 'va, as the meter demands, and as the Anukr. assumes; úchiṣāi 'ṣām is doubtless also the real reading in b.

18. What [witchcraft] they buried for thee in the barhis, what in the cemetery, [what] witchcraft or secret spell (valagá) in the field, or practised against thee in the householders' fire — they, being wiser, [against thee] who art simple, innocent.

Ppp. helps both meter and sense by inserting cakrus before barhiṣi in \mathbf{a} ; it also arranges kṛtyām kṣetre in \mathbf{b} , combines dhīratarā 'nāg- at the end, and adds, to complete the verse, tam [so Roth's Collation! for tām?] ito nāçayāmasi. The Anukr. notices neither the deficiency in \mathbf{a} nor the redundancy in \mathbf{d} .

19. We have found out (anu-vid) the hostile sneaking magic (? kártra) that was applied, perceived (? anu-budh), buried: let that go whence it was brought; there let it roll about like a horse; let it slay the progeny of the witchcraft-maker.

Ppp. reads in c agatam for abhrtam, and combines in d açve 'va, as called for by the meter. The Anukr. is as bad in its treatment of this verse as of 15.

20. There are knives of good metal in our house; we know thy joints, O witchcraft, how many they are; just stand up; go away from here; unknown one, what seekest thou here?

That is, 'thou who art no acquaintance of ours.' The Anukr. is much more scrupulous than usual in calling the verse (12+11:8+8=39) virāj [scanning a perhaps as 11]. Ppp. begins with svayasā. The third pāda is quoted in Kāuç. 39. 19.

21. Thy neck-bones (grīvā), O witchcraft, and thy (two) feet I will cut up; run thou out; let Indra-and-Agni defend us, they who are of progeny rich in progeny.

Prajāvatī at the end looks like a corruption of prajāpatī, which Ppp. reads [R's collation has prajapatī]. Ppp. also has in c enām vrçcatā. But Kāuç., which quotes the last half-verse in full in 5. 2, reads prajāvatī. The same half-verse appears also by pratīka in Vāit. 8. 6 (unless Vāit. takes it rather from Kāuç.).

22. King Soma [is] our over-ruler and favorer (mṛḍitṛ); let the lords of being favor us.

The verse properly contains 22 syllables (11 + 11), and should therefore be called a sāmnī trisṭubh. Ppp. reads in b rtasya nas.

23. Let Bhava-and-Çarva hurl (as) at the evil-doer, the witchcraft-maker, the ill-doer, the missile of the gods, the lightning.

Ppp. reads in a pāpakṛṭvane which is metrically much better. The definition of the verse by the Anukr. is very stupid; it is plainly two trisṭubh pādas, with an intruded word of three syllables (either duṣkṛṭe or vidyūtam; either could be spared). The mss. insert a cesura-mark after kṛṭyākṛṭe.

24. If thou camest [as] biped, as quadruped, put together by the witchcraft-maker, all-formed, do thou, becoming octoped, go away again from here, O misfortune!

The verse has the same structure as 20. The pada-text here and in vs. 28 reads $a \circ iy dtha$.

25. Anointed, smeared, well-adorned, bearing all difficulty, go thou away; recognize $(j\tilde{n}\tilde{a})$, O witchcraft, thy maker, as a daughter her own father.

The definition of this verse appears to be omitted in the Anukr., as we can hardly be meant to take it for an anuṣṭubh. The first pāda is capable of being crowded together into 8 syllables, or expanded into 12 (either procedure being about equally strained), making the verse either an urobṛhatī or a prastārapanktī. It is quoted in Kāuç. 39. 18.

26. Go away, O witchcraft; stand not; lead, as it were, the track of one pierced; it is a deer, thou a deer-hunter; it is unable to put thee down.

'Lead,' in b, appears to be used in the sense of 'follow'; the 'track' is doubtless that of the maker: | cf. note to xi. 2. 13 |. The pada-text divides mrgaoyúh: cf. Prāt. iii. 18.

27. Also the after one (ápara) slays with an arrow, fitting it (?), the one shooting (-āsin) in front; also of the front one, smiting down, the after one smites down in return.

This obscure and probably corrupt verse gets no help from Ppp., which merely reads uto for uta in c. The Pet. Lex. suggests emendation of -dāya to -dhāya in b, and the translation implies the change.

28. Hear thou, verily, these words of mine; then go whence thou camest, to meet him who made thee.

Ppp. reads at the end punah for prati.

29. The slaying of an innocent person is indeed fearful, O witchcraft; slay thou not our cow, horse, man; wheresoever thou art set down, from there we make thee stand up; become thou lighter than a leaf.

The pada-text has in d $\dot{u}t$: $sth\bar{a}p$ -; the example of the omitted s is quoted under Prāt. ii. 18. The verse (10 + 10:8+8+8=44) is very badly defined by the Anukr. Ppp. reads in a -hatyam and bhīmam.

30. If ye are covered $(\bar{a}-vr)$ with darkness, like those who are girt $(abhi-dh\bar{a})$ with a net—having torn up (sam-lup) all witchcrafts from here, we send them forth again to the maker.

The pada-text strangely reads dovrtā in a, instead of -tāh.

31. The progeny of the witchcraft-maker, of him of secret spells, of him that devises against [others], O witchcraft, do thou kill; do not leave [them alive]; slay yonder witchcraft-makers.

Ppp. uses the singular in d.

32. As the sun is freed out of darkness, [and] quits the night and the ensigns of the dawn, so do I quit all evil-natured magic made by the witchcraft-maker, as an elephant the difficult haze (?rájas).

Ppp. puts tamasas before mucyate in a, reads ketum at end of b, and omits d altogether. The verse (12 + 11:8+8+11 = 50) lacks two syllables of being a full $atijagat\bar{\iota}$ (52). The $prat\bar{\iota}ka$ ($yath\bar{a}$ $s\bar{u}rya$) is quoted in Kāuç. 39. 26; but the comm. regards vii. 13. 1, and not this, as the verse intended.

2. The wonderful structure of man.

[Nārāyaṇa.— trayastrinçat. pārṣṇisūktam; pāuruṣam; brahmaprakāçisūktam (31,32. sākṣātparabrahmaprakāçinyāu). ānuṣṭubham: 1-4,7,8. triṣṭubh; 6,11. jagatī; 28. bhurig bṛhatī.]

Found also (except vss. 8, 18, 23, 28) in Pāipp. xvi. (in the verse-order 1-7, 26, 27, 9-12, 17, 15, 13, 14, 16, 22, 19, 24, 25, 20, 21, 30, 29, 31, 32, 33). Quoted (vs. 1) in Vāit. 37. 19, together with the other puruṣasūkta (xix. 6), in the puruṣamedha or human sacrifice; not noticed in Kāuç.

Translated: Muir, v. 375 (nearly all); Ludwig, p. 398; Scherman, Philosophische Hymnen, p. 41 (nearly all); Deussen, Geschichte, i. 1. 265; Henry, 5, 45; Griffith, ii. 6.

1. By whom were brought the two heels of a man (púruṣa)? by whom was his flesh put together? by whom his two ankle-joints (gulphá)? by whom his cunning (péçana) fingers? by whom his apertures? by whom his (two) uchlakhás in the midst? who [put together] his footing (pratiṣṭhá)?

The pada-text divides utoçlakhāú, as if there were such a word as çlakha. Ppp. reads, instead of keno 'chlakhāu, keno 'cchinam ko; also, in a, pārṣnīy ābhṛte pāuruṣasya; and, in c, peçinīṣ. Peçana is more literally 'arranging, adorning.'

2. From what, now, did they make a man's two ankle-joints below, his two knee-joints above? separating (?nir-r) his two back-thighs (jānghā), where, forsooth, did they set them in? the two joints of his knees — who indeed understands (cit) that?

Nirrtya is a difficult and doubtful expression here. Ppp. reads nirrtijanghe ni dadhuh; also, in d, samdhīm u ca jānā. In b it has again pāuruṣasya.

3. There is joined, fourfold (cátuṣṭaya), with closed (sánhita-) ends, above the two knees, the pliant (çithirá) trunk; what the hips are, the thighs — who indeed produced (jan) that, by which the body (kúsindha) became very firm?

Ppp. reads samhatantam in a, and sudhrtam in d.

4. How many gods [and] which were they, who gathered (ci) the breast, the neck-bones of man? how many disposed the two teats? who the two collar-bones (? kaphodá)? how many gathered the shoulder-bones (pl.)? how many the ribs?

Ppp. has again pāuruṣasya in b. In c it reads ni dadhuṣ kaṣ kapolāu. The mss. are extremely discordant as to the form of the word which our edition gives as kaphāudāú; that is the reading of Bp.W.D.; P.M.R.s.m. have kaphedāú, I. kaphāujhāú, E.O.R.p.m.T.K. kaphodāú (which accordingly has the most authority in its favor [all SPP's mss. read so]); several samhitā-mss. (P.M.T.O.p.m.R.s.m.) have káṣ before it. The meaning given is, of course, conjectural only; 'collar-bone' is Ludwig's guess, and seems to suit the connection (though that is a rather weak ground of preference) better than the 'perhaps elbow' of the Pet. Lexx. The Anukr. takes no notice of the lacking syllable in a.

5. Who brought together his two arms, saying "he must perform heroism"? what god then set on his two shoulders upon the body (kúsindha)?

6. Who bored out the seven apertures in his head—these ears, the nostrils, the eyes, the mouth? in the might of whose conquest (vijayá) in many places quadrupeds [and] bipeds go their way.

Bp. reads at the end yaman. Ppp. puts nāsike after cakṣaṇī, and reads in c vijā-yasya mahamani, and at the end yomūn. The Anukr. does not heed that d is a triṣṭubh pāda.

7. Since in his jaws he put his ample (purūci) tongue, then attached (adhi-çri) [to it] great voice; he rolls greatly on among existences, clothing himself in the waters: who indeed understands that?

With c is to be compared ix. 10. 11 d; the irregularity of the pāda is not noticed by the Anukr. Ppp. reads instead of c: sa ā varīvarti mahinā vyomam: avasānas kata cit pra veda. Our text ought to read varīvarti.

8. Which was that god who [produced] his brain, his forehead, his hindhead (? kakatika), who first his skull, who, having gathered a gathering in man's jaws, ascended to heaven?

D. reads cityám in c; all the mss. agree in ruroha, although ruróha is obviously required. [Otherwise Henry.] The verse, as noted above, is wanting in Ppp.

9. Numerous things dear and not dear, sleep, oppressions and wearinesses, delights and pleasures—from where does formidable man bring (vah) them?

Ppp. reads in b -tandriyah, and in d again pāur-.

10. Whence now in man [come] mishap, ruin, perdition, misery, accomplishment, success, non-failure? whence thought (mati), uprisings

The minor Pet. Lex. suggests for úditi 'end, disappearance.' Ppp. reads in b kuto 'dhi pur-. Vyrddhis instead of ávy- would improve both sense and meter.

11. Who disposed in him waters, moving apart, much moving, produced for river-running, strong (tīvrá), ruddy, red, dark and turbid, upward, downward, crosswise in man?

Ppp. reads in a apo dadhāt, and in c combines (as the meter requires us to read) tivrā runā. The verse (8+8+7:11+11=45) is very stupidly defined as jagatī by the Anukr.

12. Who set form in him? who both bulk $(mahm\acute{a}n)$ and name? who [set] in him progress $(g\bar{a}t\acute{u})$? who display $(kct\acute{u})$? who [set] behaviors (cartira) in man?

Ppp. again pāuruse at the end.

13. Who wove in him breath? who expiration and respiration (vyāná)? what god attached (adhi-çri) conspiration (samāná) to man here?

Ppp. reads adadhāt for avayat in a, and again pāurușe.

14. What one god set sacrifice in man here? who [set] in him truth? who untruth? whence [comes] death? whence the immortal?

Ppp. reads, for b etc., eko 'gre adhi pāuruṣe: ko anṛtain ko mṛtyum ko amrtain dadhāu.

15. Who put about him clothing (vásas)? who prepared (kalpay-) his life-time? who extended to him strength? who prepared his swiftness?

Ppp. reads for a ko vāsasā pari dadhāt, and elides ko 'syā- in d.

16. With what did he stretch the waters along? with what did he make the day to shine? with what did he kindle (anu-idh) the dawn? with what did he give the coming-on of evening?

The pada-text reads dpah (as in 11 a) in a. Ppp. elides 'nv after it. [For dindha, cf. Gram. § 684 c.]

17. Who put in him seed, saying "let his line be extended"? who conveyed into him wisdom? who gave $(dh\bar{a})$ [him] music? who dances?

Ppp. has, for a, ko 'smin reto 'dadhāt; at end of b, itah; for d, ko vāçām ko anrtam dadhāu.

18. With what did he cover this earth? with what did he surround the sky? by what is man a match for (abhi) mountains in greatness? by what, for deeds?

This verse, as noted above, is wanting in Ppp.

19. With what does he go after Parjanya? with what [after] the outlooking Soma? with what [after] both sacrifice and faith? by whom was mind put in him?

Ppp. reads apnoti for anv eti, and has for c, d our 20 c, d (but purusah in c).

20. Wherewith does he obtain one learned in revelation (crótriya)? wherewith this most exalted one? wherewith does man [obtain] this Agni? wherewith did he measure (make?) the year?

Ppp. has for b our 19 b again; also purusah in c.

21. The bráhman obtains one learned in revelation, the bráhman this most exalted one; the bráhman [as] man this Agni; the bráhman measured the year.

Here and in vss. 23 and 25 an instrumental is distinctly and strongly called for, instead of the nominative bráhma; yet to call bráhma an instr., and translate it as such, does not seem possible. [Cf. Caland, KZ. xxxi. 261.] Ppp. reads, for c, d, brahma yajñasya çraddhā ca brahmā 'smi ca hatam manaḥ.

22. Wherewith does he dwell upon (?anu-kṣi) the gods? wherewith [upon] the people of the god-folk? wherewith this other asterism? whereby is authority (kṣatrá) called real (sát)?

The sense here is very obscure, and the rendering mechanical. [Griffith suggests that the point may lie in using naksatram as if it were na ksatram, 'non-power,' in opposition to ksatram in d.] Ppp. has, for b, kena devir ajanayad diçah. The meter requires in a ksyati, as the forms are written in some texts. The Anukr. takes no notice of the irregularity.

23. The bráhman dwells upon the gods, the bráhman [upon] the people of the god-folk; the bráhman this other asterism; the bráhman is called real authority.

This verse is wanting in Ppp.

24. By whom is this earth disposed? by whom the sky set above? by whom this atmosphere, the expanse, set aloft and across?

Ppp. reads, for a, kene 'dam bhūmir nihatah.

25. By the bráhman is the earth disposed; the bráhman [is] the sky set above, the bráhman this atmosphere, the expanse, set aloft and across.

Ppp. reads, for a, b, brahmanā bhūmir niyatā brahma dyām uttarām dadhāu, thus relieving in b the difficulty as to the construction of brahma. [Cf. note to vs. 21.]

- 26. Atharvan, having sewed together his head, and also (yát) his heart—aloft from the brain the purifying one sent [them] forth, out of the head.
- 'The purifying one' (pavamāna) is soma; it is perhaps identified here with Atharvan; but the whole sense is extremely obscure. Ppp. reads at the end cirsnah.
- 27. Verily that head of Atharvan [is] a god-vessel, pressed together; breath defends that, the head, food, also mind.

For samubjita, as said of a koça, compare ix. 3. 20 above. Ppp. reads prāno 'bhi in c, and grīm for giras in d. The three nouns in d might be nom. instead of accus.

28. Was he now created upward $(\bar{u}rdhv\dot{a})$? [or] was he now created crosswise? did man grow unto $(\bar{a}-bh\bar{u})$ all the quarters? — he who knoweth the brahman's stronghold, from which man is [so] called.

The meaning of the protracted final syllables here is unquestionable, although it has been overlooked by both Muir and Ludwig. The cases of protraction call out much treatment from the Prāt.: see the rules i. 70, 97, 105; iv. 6, 120, 121, and the notes upon them. The mss. differ in regard to accenting or leaving unaccented the final syllable of \mathbf{b} ; nor is the usage of either RV. or AV. sufficiently settled to determine which reading ought to be preferred. Puruṣa in this verse and the sequel seems to approach its later meaning of 'supernal Person or Spirit.' There is no apparent connection between the two halves of the verse: for the second, see vs. 30. The whole verse is wanting in Ppp. The Anukr. should have called it a prastārapaūkti; bhurig bṛhatī is purely mechanical (10+11:8+8=37).

29. Whoever indeed knoweth that bráhman's stronghold, covered with amṛta — unto him both the bráhman and the Brahmans have given sight, breath, progeny.

The verse is found also in TA. (i. 27. 3), which reads purim at end of b, $brahm\bar{a}$ for $br\bar{a}hm\bar{a}c$ in b, and $\bar{a}yuh$ $k\bar{i}rtim$ for caksuh $pr\bar{a}nam$ in d (the accentuation is corrupt and worthless through the whole verse). Ppp. has also in d $\bar{a}yus$ for caksuh, and at the end dadhuh.

* 30. Him verily sight doth not desert, nor breath, before old age, who knoweth the bráhman's stronghold (púr), from which man (púruṣa) is [so] called.

The latter half-verse is identical with 28 c, d. Ppp. reads purah at end of b, and yasmāt in d.

31. Eight-wheeled, nine-doored, is the impregnable stronghold of the gods; in that is a golden vessel, heaven-going (svargá), covered with light.

The verse is found also in TA. (i. 27. 2-3), which reads hiranmayas in c, and inserts lokás after svargás in d. [Reminiscences of this verse are seen in x. 8. 43 a, b.]

32. In that golden vessel, three-spoked, having three supports — what soul-possessing monster (yakṣá) there is in it, that verily the knowers of the bráhman know.

Ppp. reads in b tridive for tryare, and, in c, antar for yakṣam. [Pādas c, d recur at x. 8. 43 c, d.]

33. The bráhman entered into the resplendent, yellow, golden, unconquered stronghold, that was all surrounded with glory.

The verse is found also in TA. (i. 27. 3-4), which again reads hiranmaytm, and $brahm\tilde{a}$ $viv\acute{e}ça$ [so both ed's] (the accent has no authority, as it is full of faults in this vicinity; but the comm. explains $brahm\tilde{a}$ as $= praj\bar{a}patih$: which also does not go for much). [TA. has further vi- for pra- at the beginning and ends with $-jit\bar{a}$ (which the comm. explains as $-jit\bar{a}m$).] Ppp. likewise has hiranmaytm; and further, in d $viveç\bar{a}$ ca $par\bar{a}jitah$.

3. With an amulet of varaná.

[Atharvan. — pañcavinçakam. mantroktavaraṇadevatyam uta vāṇaspatyam; cāndramasam. ānuṣṭubham: 2, 3, 6. bhurik triṣṭubh; 8, 13, 14. pathyāpañkti; 11, 16. bhurij; 15, 17-25. 6-p. jagatī.]

Found also in Pāipp. xvi. (in the verse-order 1-7, 9, 8, 10-13, 15, 14, 16, 17, 19, 22, 21, 20, 18, 24; 23 and 25 are wanting). Quoted (vs. 1) in Kāuç. 19. 22, with three other hymns, in connection with the binding on of amulets for welfare. Not noticed in Vāit.

Translated: Zimmer, p. 60 (17 vss.); Henry, 9, 53; Griffith, ii. 11; Bloomfield, 81, 605.

1. This varaná [is] my rival-destroying, virile (vṛṣan) amulet; with it do thou take hold of thy foes, slaughter thy injurers (durasy-)

The varana is a tree, the Cratæva Roxburghii found throughout India. The name comes doubtless from the root vr 'cover, protect, ward off'; and the hymn is full of allusions to a connection with that root; [cf. the play in iv. 7. 1 and vi. 85. 1]. Ppp. reads throughout varuna, which is also in later Skt. recognized as a form of the tree-name.

2. Crush them, slaughter, take hold; be the amulet thy forerunner in front; the gods by the varaṇá warded off the hostile practice (abhyācārá) of the Asuras from one morrow to another.

The comm. to Prāt. iii. 80 quotes the beginning of the verse as example of ena after pra. It is unnecessary to view, with the Anukr., the verse as redundant. Ppp. combines te *stu in b.

3. This amulet, the varaṇá, all-healing, thousand-eyed, yellow, golden—it shall make thy foes go downward; do thou, in front, damage them that hate thee.

Ppp. reads hiranmayah at end of b, and yas for sa at beginning of c. The verse is rather svarāj than bhurij.

4. This varand [shall ward off] the witchcraft extended for thee; this shall shield thee against fear arising from men, this against all evil.

Ppp. preserves unity of construction through the verse, by reading, for b, c: pāuruṣeyam ayam vadham: ayam te sarvam pāpmānam.

5. The varand, this divine forest-tree, shall ward off; the yaksma that has entered into this man — that have the gods warded off.

We had this verse above, as vi. 85. 1. The Anukr. takes no notice in either place of the deficient syllable in a. Ppp. reads here, for b, idam devo brhaspatih; and, for c, yakşmā pratisthā yo'smin; and then tam u etc.].

6. If, having slept, thou shalt see an evil dream; if a wild beast (mrgá) shall run a disagreeable course—from overmuch (?pari-) sneezing, from the evil utterance of a bird (çakúni), this amulet, the varaná, shall shield thee.

The translation implies in b emendation of ydti to yddi, which seems unavoidable. Ppp., however, appears to have yati; it reads further in b mṛgaçrutam and ajuṣṭam, in c paricchavā, [and in d vārayātāi]. The verse is included in the duḥsvapnanāçana gaṇa: see note to Kāuç. 46. 9.

7. From the niggard, from perdition, from sorcery, also from fear, from the more violent deadly weapon of death, the varaná shall shield thee.

Ppp. reads, for d, tvam varuno vāraya.

8. What sin my mother, what my father, and what my own brothers, what we ourselves have done, from that shall this divine forest-tree shield us.

Ppp. reads tasmāt for tatas in d, and, for e, idam deva bṛhaspatiḥ: compare its version of 5 b.

9. Driven (vyath) forth by the varaná, my enemies (bhrátrvya) [who are my] kinsmen have gone unto unlighted (?asńrta) space (rájas); let them go to lowest darkness.

10. Unharmed [am] I, with unharmed kine, long-lived, having all my men; let this amulet, the varaṇá, protect me, being such, from every quarter.

Ppp. reads in b -pāuruṣaḥ (as usual, where pūr- and not pur- is meant).

11. This varaná on my breast, king, divine forest-tree—let it drive $(b\bar{a}dh)$ away my foes, as Indra the barbarians, the Asuras.

The verse is quoted in the schol. to Kāuç. 10. 2. Ppp. combines varuno 'rasi, as the meter requires, but as the Anukr takes pains not to authorize. Ppp. also exchanges the second halves of vss. 11 and 12.

12. I bear this varaná being long-lived, one of a hundred autumns; may it assign to me both kingdom and authority, to me cattle and force.

Ppp., as noted above, reads for the second half of this verse our 11 c, d, and vice versa.

13. As the wind breaks with force the trees, the forest-trees, so do thou break my rivals, those born before and after; let the varaná defend thee.

Ppp. reads jīrṇān for vṛkṣān in b; and, in c, -tnāns tvam bhandhi. [With d, cf. the Ppp. vs. cited under iii. 6. 2.]

14. As both wind and fire devour $(ps\bar{a})$ the trees, the forest-trees, so do thou devour my rivals, those born etc. etc.

Ppp. again relieves the redundancy of expression by reading sarvān instead of vrkṣān in b; also it has in c -tnāns tvam for -tnān me.

15. As, destroyed by the wind, the trees lie prostrate (nyàrpita), so do thou destroy, prostrate my rivals, those born etc. etc.

Ppp. is quite corrupt in this verse, but does not appear to offer any variant. Prá kṣiṇīhi properly ought to be divided in our text.

16. Them, O varaná, do thou cut off (pra-chid), before what is appointed (distá), before [the end of] their life-time—them who strive to damage him in respect to cattle, and who are intent to damage his kingdom.

Ppp. reads, for b, purā drstān parā "yuṣaḥ. | In c, pronounce yāt 'nam. |

17. As the sun shines exceedingly, as in it brilliancy is set, so let the varaná amulet fix (ni-yam) in me fame [and] growth; let it sprinkle me with brilliancy; let it anoint me with glory.

Part of the mss. (P.M.D.) accent asmín in b. Ppp. reads, for c etc., evā sapatnāns tvam sarvān ati bhāhi syaçvo varuņas tvā 'bhi rakṣatu. [Either Mr. Whitney took me as locative (Gram. § 492 a); or else his 'in me' is an inadvertence for 'for me.'

18. As glory [is] in the moon, and in the men-beholding Aditya, so let the varaná amulet etc. etc.

From here on, Ppp. has the same refrain [as the Berlin text], only reading at the end $m\bar{a}m$.

- 19. As glory [is] in the earth, as in this Jātavedas, so let the varaņá amulet etc. etc.
- 20. As glory [is] in the maiden, as in this constructed (sámbhṛta) chariot, so let the varaṇá amulet etc. etc.
- 21. As glory [is] in Soma-drink, as in honey-mixture [is] glory, so let the varaná amulet etc. etc.
- 22. As glory [is] in the agnihotrá, as in the váṣaṭ-utterance [is] glory, so let the varaná amulet etc. etc.

All the mss. save P.M.O. have yaço 'gnihotre in a, and this is accordingly the better-supported reading.

23. As glory [is] set in the sacrificer, as in this sacrifice, so let the varand amulet etc. etc.

Wanting in Ppp., as above noted.

24. As glory [is] in Prajāpati, as in this most exalted one, so let the varaņá amulet etc. etc.

Ppp. reads jātavedasi instead of paramesthini.

25. As in the gods [is] immortality (amṛta), as in them is set truth, so let the varana amulet etc. etc.

[The quoted Anukr. seems to say "varaṇāu" (intending varaṇo?).]

4. Against snakes and their poison.

[Garutman.— şadvinçati. takşakadāivatam. ānuştubham: 1. pathyāpañkti; 2. 3-p. yavamadhyā gāyatrī; 3, 4. pathyābrhatī; 8. usniggarbhā parātriṣṭubh; 12. bhurig gāyatrī; 16. 3-p. pratiṣṭhā gāyatrī; 21. kakummatī; 23. triṣṭubh; 26. 3-av. 6-p. brhatīgarbhā kakummatī bhurik triṣṭubh.]

Found also in Pāipp. xvi. (with one or two changes of order: see below). Not noticed in Vāit. Quoted (vs. 1), as addressed to Takṣaka (king of the serpent-divinities), in Kāuç. 32. 20, and also 139. 8, in the ceremonies of beginning Vedic study (see further under vss. 25, 26).

Translated: Ludwig, p. 502; Henry, 11, 56; Griffith, ii. 14; Bloomfield, 152, 605.

I. Indra's [was] the first chariot, the gods' the after chariot, Varuna's the third one; the snakes' chariot, the furthest one (?), hath run against the pillar: then may it come to harm (?).

There are very questionable points here; the translation of d implies emendation of apamā (p. apaomā) to apamās; yet apa-mā might perhaps be understood adverbially (like upamā, p. upaomā: twice in RV.). Ppp. reads upamā here. The translation of the last clause implies the reading āthā riṣat, which is given by several mss. (P.M.I.K.) and by Ppp., and which the meter favors; but such variants as ariṣat for arṣat are found elsewhere, and the ms. authority is decidedly in favor of arṣat, as the pada-texts read (but Kp. ardvyat, by a curious blunder)—if only we knew what to make of it. No indicative form not an aorist can be coördinated with ārat.

2. Darbhá-grass, brightness, young shoot (?tarūnaka); horse's tail-tuft, rough-one's tail-tuft; chariot's seat (?bándhura).

The translation, of course, is only mechanical. [Henry, Mém. de la Soc. de Ling., ix. 238, corrects an error of his version.] We should have expected the Anukr. at least to add bhurij to its definition of the verse as a $g\bar{a}yatr\bar{\iota}$ (8 + 11:6 = 25). O. (and E. in margin) read puruṣasya in b.

3. Smite down, O white one, with the foot, both the fore and the hind; like water-floated wood, sapless [is] the snakes' poison, fierce water $(v \acute{a} r)$.

Ppp. puts the verse after our 4, and reads at the end $v\bar{a}r$ id ugram. Part of our mss. (T.D.K.) read $v\bar{a}r$, accented, in both verses, and that seems most likely to be the true reading; the translation adopts it. | Pischel takes it as "halte auf," Ved. Stud.,

ii. 75. The first half-verse is read in several grhya-sūtras (AGS. ii. 3. 3; PGS. ii. 14. 4; QGS. iv. 18; HGS. ii. 16. 8), as part of a verse in a charm against serpents; they all begin with apa instead of ava. [Cf. also MGS. ii. 7. 1 a.] The verse (8 + 8 : 8 + 8 + 3) would be more properly called upariṣṭād bṛhatī. [Cf. xviii. 1. 32 n.]

4. The arainghusa, having immerged, having emerged, said again: like water-floated wood, sapless is the snake's poison, fierce water.

The pada-text divides aramoghuṣáh in a, and the Pet. Lexx. conjecture the meaning accordingly to be 'loud-sounding.' [Pischel discusses the vs., Ved. Stud., ii. 74.] Ppp. is corrupt at the beginning, but seems to read udanghojyonmajya punar etc.; [again it ends with vār id ugram].

5. Pāidva slays the kasarņīla (snake), Pāidva the whitish and the black; Pāidva hath split altogether the head of the ratharvī, of the pṛdākū.

Pāidva 'of Pedu' is the white snake-destroying horse given by the Açvins to Pedu (RV. i. 117-119). [Cf. Bergaigne, Rel. Véd. ii. 451.] For kasarņīlam Ppp. reads kvaṣarṣṇīlam, and, for ratharvyās, rathavrihā. The exceptional accent of pṛdākvāḥ is noted in the comm. to Prāt. iii. 60. The pada-text divides neither kasarṇīla nor ratharvī.

- 6. Go forth first, O Pāidva; we come after thee; cast thou out the snakes from the road by which we come.
- 7. Here was Pāidva born; this [is] his going-away; these [are] the tracks of the snake-slaying vigorous steed.

[For the difficult and debatable form ahighnyo, BR. and W. assume a stem ahighnit. This is probably to be considered, not as a feminine formation (cf. my Noun-Inflection, JAOS. x., p. 384), but rather as a masculine, like the masc. proper names Tiraçci (l.c., p. 367 end), or, better, like the masculines ahi, āpathi, prāvi, stari etc. (about a dozen of them, l.c., p. 369, middle: genitive ahyò etc.). In the latter case we might regard the printed accent ahighnyó, when contrasted with the ahyò of the RV., as characteristic of the AV. (cf. l.c., p. 369 top): but both W's and SPP's authorities are here uncertain as to the accent: the majority have ahighnyó, p. ahioghnyáh; K. and three of SPP's have ahighnyò; while W's D. and SPP's P.² have áhioghnyah. — Or have we, after all, to assume a stem ahighni (cf. sahasraghni, xi. 2. 12), of which this would be a genitive like ary-ás? — One wonders why the reading is not simply ahighnò; but not a ms., either of W's or of SPP's, gives that reading. — Cf. atighnyàs, xi. 7. 16.]

8. What is shut together may it not open; what is opened may it not shut together; in this field [are] two snakes, both a female and a male; those [are] both sapless.

The first half-verse we had above as vi. 56. I c, d [see note for suggested emendation], also applied to a snake. The curiously irregular verse (7+7:8[7?]+11=33) is strangely defined by the Anukr.

9. Sapless here [are] the snakes, they that are near and they that are far; with a club (ghaná) I slay the stinger (viçcika), with a staff the snake that has come.

The second half-verse is found in a suppl. to RV. i. 191; see Aufrecht's RV.2, p. 672; instead of ahim is there read aham. Ppp. reads ye 'nti te ca in b; and all our mss. [save D., which has ati] leave anti unaccented (it is emended to anti in our text), as if by some carelessness ye 'nti had been changed to ye anti; it is one of the strangest of the many strange blunders of the AV. text. [One might think that this vs. or one much like it was had in mind by Karna in his address to Calya, MBh. viii. 40. 33 = 1848.]

10. This is the remedy of both, of the ill-horse $(agh\bar{a}çvd)$ and of the constrictor; the mischievous $(agh\bar{a}y)$ snake hath Indra, the snake hath Pāidva put in my power (randhay).

The Anukr. takes no notice of any deficiency in b; it can only be supplied by the violent resolution su-aj-. Ppp. rectifies the meter by the better reading vṛçcikasya ca | cf. our 15 c, d, below |.

11. We reverence Pāidva, the staunch one, of staunch abode (-dhāman); here behind sit pṛdākus, plotting forth.

Ppp. combines at the end -dhyatā "sate. The Anukr. treats b as regular, thus sanctioning the resolution -dhā-ma-nah.

- 12. Of lost lives, of lost poison [are they], slain by the thunderbolt-bearing Indra; Indra hath slain, we have slain.
- 13. Slain [are] the cross-lined ones, crushed down the pṛdākus; slay thou the whitish [snake] that makes a great hood, the black snake, in the
- 'Hood,' dárvi, lit. 'spoon.' Ppp. reads in c kanikradam. [The first half recurs as the second of vs. 20.]
- 14. The little girl of the Kirātas, she the little one, digs a remedy, with golden shovels, upon the ridges (sánu) of the mountains.
- . 15. Hither hath come the young physician, slayer of the spotted ones, unconquered; he verily is a grinder-up of both, the constrictor and the stinger.
- 16. Indra hath put the snake in my power, [also] both Mitra and 'Varuna, and Vāta ('wind') and Parjanya, both of them.

The name given by the Anukr. to the verse is of uncertain value; it is possible to read the last pāda either as 8 or as 6 syllables. Ppp. reads in a me'hīn ajambhayat. Many of our mss. (P.I.O.R.T.K.) [and the majority of SPP's read in c-janyò'bhā, but it is contrary to all rule and analogy; [and W's Bp. and SPP's pada-text give-janyà ubhā].

17. Indra hath put the snake in my power, the $p\dot{r}d\bar{a}ku$ and the she- $p\dot{r}d\bar{a}k\dot{u}$, the constrictor, the cross-lined one, the $kasar \dot{v}ila$, the $d\dot{a}conasi$.

The accent prdākvám (instead of -kvám) is read by all the mss., and hence by our text; but it is incontestably wrong. The Anukr. takes no notice of the lacking syllable in c. Ppp. reads for a pāidvo me hīn ajambhayat, and for d | kuçiruīlain

18. Indra hath slain first thy progenitor, O snake; of them, being shattered, what forsooth can be their sap?

Ppp. reads vas instead of u in c.

*19. Since I have grasped together their heads, as a fisherman the kárvara; having gone away to the middle of the river, I have washed out the snake's poison.

The mss. do not in general distinguish st and sth, and pāunjista would be equally correct here. Ppp. reads pāunjisthī va.

- 20. The poison of all snakes let the rivers carry away; slain [are] the cross-lined ones, crushed down the pṛdākus.
- 21. I choose as it were the filaments of herbs successfully; I conduct as it were mares; O snake, let thy poison come out.

Apparently processes analogous to that of extracting the poison are referred to. The pada-division $s\bar{a}dhu\circ y\bar{a}$ is prescribed by Prāt. iv. 30. There seems to be no reason why the Anukr. should call the verse kakummatt.

22. What poison is in fire, in the sun, what in the earth, in herbs, kāndā-poison, kanáknaka—let thy poison come out; let it come.

Ppp. has karikradam [cf. vs. 13] instead of kanaknakam, and at the end vahī [intending ahe?] instead of viṣam; and it puts next our vs. 25.

23. Whichever of the snakes [are] fire-born, herb-born, whichever came hither $(\bar{a} \cdot bh\bar{u})$ [as] water-born lightnings; those of which the kinds are variously great—to those serpents would we pay worship with reverence.

Ppp. reads, for b etc., ye abhrajā vidyutā "babhūvuḥ: tāsām jātāni bahudhā bahūni tebhyaḥ sarvebhyo etc.

24. Thou art a girl, $t\bar{a}ud\bar{i}$ by name; verily thou art by name ghee-like $(ghrt\hat{a}c\bar{i})$; I take beneath thy poison-spoiling track.

That is, possibly, 'I put it beneath me, walk in it.' The obscure $t\bar{a}ud\bar{t}$ (ultimately from tud 'thrust'?) is read also by Ppp., which combines $v\bar{a}$ 'si in b, and has the easier reading pados for padam in c.

- 25. Remove thou [it] from every limb; make [it] avoid the heart; then, what keenness (téjas) the poison has, let that go downward for thee.
- Ppp. reads hrdayo in b, and combines tejo av- in c, d. The verse is quoted in Kāuç. 32. 23.
- 26. He (it?) hath come to be afar; he hath obstructed the poison; he hath mixed poison in poison; Agni hath put out the snake's poison; Soma hath conducted [it] out; the poison hath gone after the biter; the snake hath died.

Ppp. reads (corruptly) āre 'bhūd viṣam aro viṣe viṣam aprayāg api: agnir aher nir adhād viṣam somo anṛnāiḥ dviṣam ahīr amṛtaḥ. Kāuç. prescribes the use of the verse in 32. 24. [With the ideas of b and e, cf. vii. 88. 1.. With reference to the auto-toxic action of snake-venoms, see note to v. 13. 4.]

5. Preparation and use of water-thunderbolts.

[The hymn is mingled prose and verse: 22-24, 42-43, 45-50, and parts of 7-14 and 36-41 are metrical. Cf. Whitney, Index, p. 5.] This hymn, which by the mss. is given and numbered as one,* without any intimation of a subdivision, is by the Anukr. divided into four † parts, which are even ascribed to different authors. [Part A = verses 1-24; B = 25-35; C = 37-41; D = 42-50.] Verses 1-41, or the first three divisions, are found also in Pāipp. xvi.; part of the last division (vss. 45, 42 c, d, 43, 44, in this order), in Pāipp. i.—["Water-thunderbolts" appears to me to be nothing more than a highfalutin name, well befitting the black magic of this hymn, for handfuls of water hurled with much hocus-pocus.

†[Just where vs. 36 belongs — if it does not form a division by itself — is not clear; it goes well as an ending to the group of vss. 25-35 and is cited with them (Keçava, p. 35231: iti dvādaçabhih). On the other hand, the Anukr. expressly defines division B as ekādaça; and the corrupt mārtvī or mārtvī of the Anukr. seems to contain an ascription of authorship for vs. 36. Dr. Ryder suggests that Mārīca may be intended (cf. vii. 62, 63; x. 10). See my arrangement of the Anukr. extracts just before vs. 25.]

[A carefully digested report of the ritual uses of this hymn, even now that Caland has done so much to elucidate them, would require more detailed study than I can at present give to it. Vāit. takes no notice of the hymn. The principal uses are treated in Kāuç. 49. I give them, following Caland, Altindisches Zauberritual, p. 171 f.— With the first halves of vss. 1-6 the performer washes the jar for the water; with the second halves of vss. 1-6 he begins to make use of (yunakti) the water (49. 3, 4). With vss. 7-14 he heats a part of it (see Keçava, p. 35219); and with the seven vss. 15-21 and with vs. 42 and vs. 50 he hurls "water-bolts" (49. 13). This last is done seven times (Caland, p. 172, n. 6): namely, to the east, with vss. 15, 42, 50; to the south, with vss. 16, 42, 50; to the west, with vss. 17, 42, 50; and so on, to the north, nadir, center, and zenith. — With vss. 25-36 he makes his Viṣṇu-strides (49. 14) against the foe. — Other citations under the verses.

- 1. Indra's force are ye; Indra's power are ye; Indra's strength are ye; Indra's heroism are ye; Indra's manliness are ye; unto a conquering junction (yôga) with brahman-junctions I join you.

The pada-text marks a pāda-division after each stha; but the Anukr. lumps all [up to the $avas\bar{a}na$ -mark] together as an abhikrti-pāda (25 syll.), and reckons the whole verse (25:6+8=39) mechanically as a $pa\bar{n}kti$, because it contains nearly 40 syllables. Ppp. has in succession balam, nrmnam, cuklam, $v\bar{v}ryam$, and in c, $indrayog\bar{a}is$.

[Render: 'for a use conducive to victory, with uses of incantation [or with masterly uses] [or with Brahman uses] I use you.' In brahma- I am inclined to see a triple clesa, the second sense being like that in the title Brahma-jāla-sutta (of the Dīgha-nikāya), 'the boss-net, the master-net.' In the first and second senses, brahma- is pertinent: not so in the sense of Brahman, in which last, however, it serves well enough for a point of departure for ksatram, considering what black magic this is.]

2. Indra's force etc. etc.; unto a conquering junction, with kṣatrá-junctions I join you.

The connection of vss. I and 2 indicates that bráhman and kṣatrá, as often elsewhere, typify the Brahman and Kshatriya classes or castes.

3. Indra's force etc. etc.; unto a conquering junction, with Indrajunctions I join you.

Ppp. reads in c annayogāis.

4. Indra's force etc. etc.; unto a conquering junction, with Somajunctions I join you.

Ppp. has this time brahmayogāis.

5. Indra's force etc. etc.; unto a conquering junction, with water-junctions I join you.

Ppp. reads apām yogāis.

6. Indra's force etc.; unto a conquering junction; let all existences wait upon (upa-sthā) me; joined to me are ye, O waters.

The Anukr. quotes this verse by the first words that are peculiar to it, viz. viçvānī mā, but its description applies to the whole (25:6+11+6=48); probably jagatīgarbhā is an oversight for triṣṭubgarbhā. The Kāuç. quotes the common pratika of the six verses at 49. 3, in a witchcraft-ceremony; and their common second part (jiṣṇave yogāya) at 49. 4, to accompany the 'joining of waters' (ity apo yunakti). According to the editor of Kāuç., vss. 6 and 7 are quoted also in 49. 24, 25; but it does not appear why the 'sixth' and 'seventh' verses of this hymn should be intended. [Caland, p. 173, in fact understands xiii. 3. 6, 7 as intended.] According to the comm. to Kāuç. 47. 31, these verses, with vss. 15-21, 42, 50, accompany the hurling of 'water-thunderbolts' (udavajra: cf. vs. 50 below), whatever those may be; it is perhaps their preparation that is the subject of these verses; in Kāuç. 49. 13, only vss. 15-21, 42, 50 are quoted together, in connection with the same [cf. the introduction]. [See above, p. lxxvi.]

7. Agni's portion are ye, sperm (? çukrám) of the waters, O heavenly waters; put ye splendor in us; with the ordinance (dháman) of Prajāpati I set you for this world.

Ppp. reads devir apo.

- 8. Indra's portion are ye, sperm of the etc. etc.
- 9. Soma's portion are ye, sperm of the etc. etc.
- 10. Varuna's portion are ye, sperm of the etc. etc.
- 11. Mitra-and-Varuna's portion are ye, sperm of the etc. etc.

- 12. Yama's portion are ye, sperm of the etc. etc.
- 13. The Fathers' portion are ye, sperm of the etc. etc.
- 14. God Savitar's portion are ye, sperm of the etc. etc.

In these verses, Pāipp. makes 9 and 10, also 11 and 12, change places. After our 13 it inserts two more verses, beginning brhaspater and prajāpater; and in our 14 it omits devasya, and reads çuklam devīr āpo. To read dhattana for dhatta and pronounce dhāmanā would make a regular anustubh of the refrain. The Anukr., as usual, gives no real description of the agglomeration, but calls 11 and 14 paākti because they count up 40 syllables (9:8+7:8+8=40), and the others brhatī because they have nearly 36 syllables. As to the alleged quotation of vs. 7 in Kāuç. 49. 25, see above, note to vs. 6.

15. What of you, O waters, is the portion of waters within the waters, of the nature of sacrificial formula, sacrificing to the gods, that now I let go; that let me not wash down against myself; that do we let go against him who hates us, whom we hate; him may I slay (vadh), him may I lay low, with this spell (bráhman), with this act, with this weapon (ment).

[Render c: 'therewith (i.e. $ap\bar{a}m$ $bh\bar{a}gena = udavajrena$) do we let fly against (abhy-ati-srj) him or do we shoot against him who' etc.; i.e. ati-srj is used intransitively and "him" is governed by the abhi-. [Pādas b, c are repeated below as xvi. 1. 4, 5.] At the beginning of c read $t\acute{e}na$ (accent-sign slipped out of place).

- 16. What of you, O waters, is the wave of the waters within the waters, etc. etc.
- 17. What of you, O waters, is the young $(vats\acute{a})$ of the waters within the waters, etc. etc.
- 18. What of you, O waters, is the bull of the waters within the waters etc. etc.
- 19. What of you, O waters, is the golden embryo of the waters within the waters, etc. etc.
- 20. What of you, O waters, is the heavenly spotted stone of the waters within the waters, etc. etc.
- 21. What of you, O waters, are the fires of the waters within the waters, of the nature of sacrificial formula, sacrificing to the gods, them now I let go; them let me not wash down against myself; them we let go against him who hates us, etc. etc.

[For c: 'with them do we let fly against him who' etc., as in vs. 15.] In vss. 17-21, after apām, Ppp. reads bindur, vego, vatso, gāvo, garbho respectively. For the quotations in Kāuç. of the common pratīka of vss. 15-21, together with those of vss. 42 and 50, [see the introduction]. In all the verses it is possible only by violence to make out the structure called for by the Anukramaņī. [Delete the accent-mark over agnāyo.]

22. What untruth soever we have spoken since a three years' period,—let the waters protect me from all that difficulty, from distress.

We had the second half-verse as vii. 64. 1 c, d; and Ppp. has again the same variants as there; it also reads in a āikahāyanāt. The word trāihāyanāt (p. trāihāyanāt) is noted in Prāt. iv. 83. The verse is quoted in Kāuç. 46. 50 in a prāyaçcitta ceremony [Keç.: for lying or cheating]; and it is reckoned (see note to Kāuç. 32. 27) as belonging to the anholinga gaṇa. The Anukr. does not heed the redundant syllable in a.

23. I send you forth to the ocean; go ye unto your own lair; uninjured, of completed years (?); and let nothing whatever ail (am) us.

The third pāda apparently belongs to 'us,' though out of construction. [As to -hāyas, cf. viii. 2. 7, note, and Bergaigne, Rel. Véd., iii. 287.] The last pāda occurred above, as vi. 57. 3 b. The first two pādas, with the first word of the third, are found also in several sūtras: ÇÇS. iv. 11. 6; LÇS. ii. 1. 7; PGS. i. 3. 14; AÇS. iii. 11. 6; Āp. xiii. 18. 1; iv. 14. 4; the first three read in b abhi gacchata, the others api gacchata (and Āp. iv. 14. 4 has acchidrah instead of ariṣṭāḥ); the end of the verse is entirely different from ours, and more or less discordant in the various works. [See also MGS. ii. 11. 18 and the Index, p. 157.] Kāuç. quotes the verse at 6. 17, in a parvan ceremony; and with vs. 24, at 136. 6. Ppp. reads in a vo 'pasrjāmi [and inverts the order of vss. 23 and 24].

24. Free from defilement (-riprá) [are] the waters; [let them carry] away from us defilement, forth from us sin, mishap (duritá), they of good aspect; let them carry forth evil dreaming, forth filth.

The verse is in part repeated below, as xvi. 1. 10, 11.

25. Vishnu's stride art thou, rival-slaying, earth-sharpened (-sámçita), Agni-brightened; after earth I stride out; from earth we disportion him who hates us, whom we hate; let him not live; him let breath quit.

The Päipp. version of sections B. and C. agrees with that of our text with only trifling differences; the details are not furnished. It is not difficult to read this and the following verses of B. into $\varphi akvart$ and $ati\varphi akvart$ verses, as required by the Anukr. (this, for example, as 10+10:9+8:9+10=56). The whole section, apparently, is quoted by its common pratika in Kāuç. 6. 14, to accompany the taking of the Viṣṇu strides in a parvan ceremony; and again in 49. 14 [after hurling the water-bolts: cf. introd.] [Cf. vii. 31. 1 d.]

- 26. Vishņu's stride art thou, rival-slaying, atmosphere-sharpened, Vāyu-brightened; after atmosphere I stride out; from atmosphere we disportion him who etc. etc.
- 27. Vishņu's stride art thou, rival-slaying, sky-sharpened, sun-brightened; after the sky I stride out; from the sky we disportion him who etc. etc.

A single ms. (R.) reads dyāúhsamçitah.

28. Vishņu's stride art thou, rival-slaying, quarter-sharpened, mind-brightened; after the quarters I stride out; from the quarters we disportion him who etc. etc.

- 29. Vishņu's stride art thou, rival-slaying, region-sharpened, wind-brightened; after the regions I stride out; from the regions we disportion him who etc. etc.
- 30. Vishnu's stride art thou, rival-slaying, verse- $(\hat{r}c$ -)sharpened, chant-(sâman-)brightened; after the verses I stride out; from the verses we disportion him who etc. etc.

Some of the mss. (E.s.m.R.K.) read in a -hā rks-.

- 31. Vishņu's stride art thou, rival-slaying, sacrifice-sharpened, brahman-brightened; after the sacrifice I stride out; from the sacrifice we disportion him who etc. etc.
- 32. Vishņu's stride art thou, rival-slaying, herb-sharpened, sóma-brightened; after the herbs I stride out; from the herbs we disportion him who etc. etc.

Read in b krame (an accent-sign slipped out of place).

33. Vishņu's stride art thou, rival-slaying, water-sharpened, Varuņa-brightened; after the waters I stride out; from the waters we disportion him who etc. etc.

Read apó at beginning of b (an accent-sign slipped out of place).

- 34. Vishņu's stride art thou, rival-slaying, plowing-sharpened, food-brightened; after plowing I stride out; from plowing we disportion him who etc. etc.
- 35. Vishņu's stride art thou, rival-slaying, breath-sharpened, man-(púruṣa-)brightened; after breath I stride out; from breath we disportion him who etc. etc.

36. Ours [is] what is conquered, ours what has shot up; I have withstood (abhi-sthā) all fighters, niggards; now do I involve (ni-veṣṭ) the splendor, brightness, breath, life-time of him of such-and-such lineage, son of such-and-such mother; now do I make him fall (pad) downward.

[As to the place of this vs. in the general divisions of the hymn and its possible ascription to Mārīcā, see the introd. and the Anukr. excerpts above.] With this vs. compare xvi. 8. 1; [also the mantra cited at Kāuç. 47. 22]. The vs. reads naturally as 62 syllables (11 + 11:15 + 13 + 12 = 62), but can be brought by forced resolutions up to a full aṣṭi (64 syll.). Abhy aṣṭhām is by Prāt. ii. 92.

- [C. (vss. 37-41). Brahman. pañca. pratimantroktadevatyāḥ. 37. virāṭ purastādbrhatī; 38. purauṣṇih; 39, 41. ārṣī gāyatrī; 40. virāḍ viṣamā gāyatrī.]
- 37: I turn after the sun's turn $(\bar{a}v\hat{r}t)$, after his turn to the right; let it yield (yam) me property; [let] it [yield] me Brahman-splendor.

The verse is quoted in Kāuç. 6. 15, in a parvan ceremony, accompanying a turn to the right (vss. 25-35 were quoted in the next preceding rule). [Cf. also MB. i. 6. 19, where the comm. cites also GGS. ii. 10. 27.]

38. I turn toward the quarters full of light; let them yield me property, let them etc. etc.

The metrical description of the Anukr. does not fit the verse (11:8+8) quite accurately. The resolution abhi-âv- is implied in all these verses.

- 39. I turn toward the seven seers; let them yield etc. etc.
- 40. I turn toward the brahman; let it yield etc. etc.
- 41. I turn toward the Brahmans; let them yield etc. etc.
- [D. (vss. 42-50). Vihavya. navarcam. prājāpatyam. ānustubham: 44. 3-p. gāyatragarbhā 'nustubh (?); 50. tristubh.]
- 42. Whom we hunt, him will we lay low with deadly weapons; by our spell (bráhman) have we made him fall (pad) into the opened mouth of the most exalted one.

Only the latter half-verse is found in Ppp. [namely, in i.]. The pada-text in d reads bráhmaṇā: d : apīp. The quotation of the verse, with vss. 15-21, 50, in Kāuç. was noted above, | see introd.].

43. The missile hath closed upon him with the two tusks of Vāiçvānara; let this offering (āhuti) devour him, the very powerful divine fuel.

Ppp. reads samvatsarasya instead of vāiçvānarasya.

44. King Varuna's bond art thou; do thou bind so-and-so, of such-and-such lineage, son of such-and-such mother, in food, in breath.

There is apparently something wrong, perhaps an omission, in the text of the Anukr. at this point; it reads $trip\bar{a}d$ $g\bar{a}yatragarbh\bar{a}$ st anustubh, and then passes to vs. 50, taking no notice of vss. 48, 49 (which are redundant tristubhs: but see the note to vs. 49), [nor of vs. 47]. Our present verse (prose) reads most naturally as 10:12+7=29 syllables.

45. What food of thine, O Lord of earth $(bh\bar{u})$, dwells upon the earth $(prthiv\bar{t})$ — of that, O lord of earth, do thou furnish unto us, O Prajāpati.

The Anukr. implies the contraction of kṣiyati in b to kṣyati (cf. above, 2. 22, 23). Ppp. [in i.] puts this verse before our vs. 42.

- 46. The heavenly waters have I honored; with sap have we been mingled; rich in milk, O Agni, have I come; unite me here with splendor.
- 47. Unite me, O Agni, with splendor, with progeny, with life-time; may the gods know me as such; may Indra know, together with the seers.

These two verses we had above, as vii. 89. 1, 2. Neither they nor the two that follow are found in Ppp. here.

48. What, O Agni, the pair utter in curses today, what harshness of speech the reciters produce: the shaft that is born of fury of the mind — with that pierce thou the sorcerers in the heart.

49. Crush away the sorcerers with heat; crush away, O Agni, the demon with flame; crush away with burning the false worshipers; crush away the greatly gleaming ones that feed on lives.

These two verses are viii. 3. 12, 13. As usual in such a case, only the first words are given here in the mss. (both pada and samhitā): thus, yád agna iti dvé. Unfortunately it was overlooked by us that yad agne begins not only viii. 3. 12, but also vii. 61. 1; and, though both passages fit about equally ill into the connection here, yet the meter of vii. 61. 1, 2, being anustubh, implies a less oversight on the part of the Anukr., and, on the whole, the chance is in favor of the latter passage (vii. 61. 1, 2) being the one here intended. If in any one of the mss. accessible to us since the publication of the text there occurs anything to settle the question, it has been overlooked by us. | SPP. fills out the pratika with viii. 3. 12, 13; but herein he may merely have followed the Berlin edition.

50. I, knowing, hurl at this man, to split his head, the four-pointed (-bhrstt) thunderbolt of the waters; let it crush all his limbs: to this on my part let all the gods assent.

The Anukr., strictly understood, implies the resolution va-jr-am in a. For the quotations of the verse, with other verses of the hymn, by Kāuç., see above | introduction |. The hymn exceeds the norm by 20 verses and the quoted Anukr. says vinçatih. Here ends the twenty-second prapāthaka.

With an amulet.

[Brhaspati. — pañcatrinçat. mantroktaphālamanidevatyam uta vānaspatyam. [3. āpyā.] ānustubham : 1, 4, 21. gāyatrī; 5. 6-p. jagatī; 6. 7-p. virāt çakvarī; 7-10. 3-av. 8-p. asti (10. 9-p. dhṛti); 11, 20, 23-27. pathyāpankti; 12-17. 3-av. 7-p. çakvarī; 31. 3-av. 6-p. jagatī; 35. 5-p. tryanustubgarbhā jagatī.]

Found also in great part (not vss. 18, 19, 23, 24, 26, 27, 29, 30, 33, 35) in Pāipp. xvi. A number of verses and parts of verses are prescribed in Kāuç. 19 | and its schol. | to be used in various acts of a ceremony for prosperity, and a few in other connections. Verses 1 and 3 are also used in Vait. | For details, see under the several verses. |

Translated: Henry, 18, 65; Griffith, ii. 21; Bloomfield, 84, 608.

 The head of the niggardly (arātīyú) cousin, of the evil-hearted hater, I cut off with force.

The hymn (vs. 1) is quoted in Kāuç. 19. 22, with 3 and a couple of yet earlier hymns. At 8. 12, also, the verse is used in connection with the preparation of the darbha-sickle. Further, it is reckoned (note to Kāuç. 19. 1) as a puşțika mantra. In Vāit. 10. 2, it accompanies the cutting of a sacrificial post.

2. This amulet, born of the plow-share, shall make defense (várman) for me; it hath come to me filled with stir-about, with sap, together with splendor.

Ppp. reads trptas instead of purnas in c. | Pada b is cited with vss. 1, 4 c, 6 b in the schol. to Kāuç. 19. 23.

3. In that the skilful smith (tákṣan) hath smitten thee away with the hand by a knife, from that let the lively, bright (çúci) waters purify thee, that art bright.

Ppp. has in \mathbf{b} $v\bar{a}_{\zeta}y\bar{a}$, which is the more proper form of the word. But $v\bar{a}sy\bar{a}$ is read also in the Ap. (vii. 9. 9) version of the verse, which further has te for $tv\bar{a}$ in \mathbf{a} , and, for \mathbf{c} , \mathbf{d} , $\bar{a}pas$ tat sarvam jivalāh çundhantu çucayah çucim. In Kāuç. 8. 13 and Vāit. 10. 3, the verse is used to accompany the washing off of an instrument or post.

4. Let this golden-garlanded amulet, bestowing $(dh\bar{a})$ faith, sacrifice, greatness, dwell a guest in our house.

5. To it we distribute (kṣad) ghee, strong drink, honey, food after food; for us, as a father for his sons, let it provide (cikits-) what is better and better, more and more, morrow after morrow—the amulet, coming from the gods.

Ppp. omits the fifth pāda. By a curious blunder, most of our mss. (all save I.O.D.) leave surām in a unaccented; [and so do four of SPP's].

6. What amulet, plow-share, ghee-dripping, the formidable khadirá, Brihaspati bound on, in order to force—that Agni fastened on; it yields (duh) to him sacrificial butter, more and more, morrow after morrow; with that do thou slay thy haters.

The series of epithets in b, c is an obscure one; perhaps 'made of khadira-wood and shaped like a plow-share,' is meant; the comm. to Kāuç. 19. 23 says khādiryāç cibukāyāḥ kartavyaḥ. Ppp. reads after d ājyāya rasāya kam: so 'smā ājyam duhe. There is no reason why the Anukr. should call the verse virāj.

- 7. What amulet etc. etc. that Indra fastened on, in order to force, to heroism; it yields to him strength, more and more etc. etc.
- 8. What amulet etc. etc. that Soma fastened on, in order to great hearing (crótra) [and] sight (cákṣas); it yields to him splendor, more and more etc. etc.
- 9. What amulet etc. etc. that the sun fastened on; therewith he conquered these quarters; it yields to him growth (bhūti), more and more etc. etc.

Ppp. has Soma in this verse, and the sun in the preceding one; and here it reads varcas for bhūtim; for 8 e it has dravināya rasāya kam; and, for varcas, mahit (?).

10. What amulet etc. etc. — bearing that amulet, the moon conquered the strongholds of the Asuras, the golden [strongholds] of the Dānavas; it yields to him fortune, more and more etc. etc.

Ppp. reads tejas for çriyam.

11. What amulet Brihaspati bound on for the swift wind, that yields him vigor (vājina), more and more etc. etc.

A number of our mss. (I.O.R.D.) read $v\bar{a}jinam$ in c. [So do the great majority of SPP's, and he adopts it in his text. But four of his read $v\bar{a}jinam$.] In this batch of verses (11-17) Ppp. has sundry unimportant exchanges and variants; the details are not given.

- 12. What amulet Brihaspati bound on for the swift wind, with that amulet the Açvins defend this plowing (kṛṣɨ); it yields for the two physicians greatness, more and more etc. etc.
- 13. What amulet Brihaspati bound on for the swift wind, Savitar, bearing that amulet, conquered with it this heaven (svar); it yields to him pleasantness (sunrata), more and more etc. etc.
- 14. What amulet Brihaspati bound on for the swift wind, bearing that amulet the waters run always unexhausted; it yields to them immortality (amṛta), more and more etc. etc.
- 15. What amulet Brihaspati bound on for the swift wind, that healthful amulet king Varuna fastened on; it yields to him truth, more and more etc. etc.
- 16. What amulet Brihaspati bound on for the swift wind, bearing that amulet, the gods conquered by fight all worlds; it yields to them conquest, more and more etc. etc.

The pada-text resolves yudhājayan erroneously into yudhā ajayan (instead of aj-).

17. What amulet Brihaspati bound on for the swift wind, that healthful amulet here the deities fastened on; it yields to them everything, more and more etc. etc.

Part of our mss. (Bp.P.W.I.D.K.) Land a great majority of SPP's read amuñcata in d. The error has doubtless crept in by confusion with the oft repeated abadhnata below and perhaps with the amuñcata of vs. 15. Cf. my note to vi. 74. 2.

18. The seasons bound it on; they of the seasons bound it on; the year, having bound it on, defends all existence.

As noted above, this verse and the one following are wanting in Ppp.

- 19. The intermediate quarters bound on; the directions bound it on; the amulet created by Prajāpati hath made my haters beneath me (ádhara).
- 20. The Atharvans bound on; the descendants of Atharvan bound on; allied (mcdin) with them, the Angirases split the strongholds of the barbarians; with it do thou slay thy haters.
- 21. Dhātar fastened it on; he disposed (vi-klp) [all] existence; with it do thou slay thy haters.

Ppp. reads in b subhūtāny akalpayat.

22. What [amulet] Brihaspati bound on for the gods, a destruction of Asuras — that amulet hath come here to me, together with sap, with splendor.

Ppp. reads in b -kṣatim, and substitutes for c, d our 23 c, d (23, 24, 26, 27, 29, 30, 33, 35 being wanting in Ppp.).

- 23. What [amulet] etc. etc., together with kine, with goats and sheep, together with food, with progeny.
- 24. What [amulet] etc. etc., together with rice and barley, together with greatness, growth.
- 25. What [amulet] etc. etc., with a stream of honey, of ghee, together with sweet drink the amulet.
- 26. What [amulet] etc. etc., together with refreshment, with milk, together with property, with fortune.
- 27. What [amulet] etc. etc., together with brightness, with brilliance, together with glory, with fame.

The mss. vary greatly as to the accent of $k\bar{i}rty\bar{a}$, only D. having the correct $k\bar{i}rty\bar{a}$; P.M.T. have $k\bar{i}rty\bar{a}$, the rest $k\bar{i}rty\bar{a}$. [Cf. JAOS. x. 381. Correct the Berlin edition, and also that of SPP., who has $k\bar{i}rty\bar{a}$, against the majority of his authorities.]

28. What [amulet] etc. etc., together with all growths.

Ppp. reads ojasā tejasā saha.

29. This amulet here let the deities give to me in order to prosperity—the overpowering, dominion-increasing, rival-damaging amulet.

This verse and the one following are quoted in Kāuç. 19.25, in connection with earlier quotations from this same hymn; the second pāda of this verse further in the schol. to 19.22.

30. Together with brdhman, with brightness, I fasten on myself the propitious one; free from rivals, rival-slaying, it hath made my rivals beneath me.

Besides the quotation in Kāuç. 19. 25 (see just above), this verse is used in the comm. to Kāuç. 26. 40. Muñcāsi in b is a misprint for muñcāmi.

31. Let this god-born amulet make me superior to my hater; whose milked-out milk these three worlds worship, let that amulet mount here upon me, in order to supremacy, at the head.

That is, probably, 'mount upon my head.' According to Prāt. ii. 65, we ought to read manis kṛ-; [this is the reading of three of SPP's mss., but of none of W's so far as noted: both texts give manih.]. The pāda sa mā 'yam adhi rohatu (31 e, 32 c) is quoted in the comm. to Kāuç. 19. 25. The Anukr. takes no notice of the redundant syllable in a. Ppp. reads, for e, sa tvā 'yam abhi rakṣatu.

32. What gods, Fathers, men, always subsist upon, let that amulet mount here upon me, in order to supremacy, at the head.

The Anukr. passes without notice the redundant syllable in a.

33. As seed in a cultivated field $(urv\acute{a}r\ddot{a})$ grows up in what is dragged with the plow-share, so in me let progeny, cattle, food upon food, grow up.

The Anukr. seems to read c, d as 9 + 7 syllables.

34. On whom, O sacrifice-increasing amulet, I have fastened thee, propitious, him do thou quicken unto supremacy, O amulet of a hundred sacrificial gifts.

35. This fuel, laid on together, do thou, O Agni, enjoying, welcome with oblations; in him may we find favor, welfare, progeny, sight, cattle—in Jātavedas kindled with worship (bráhman).

Some of our mss. (R.T.p.m.D.) read agne without accent, and this is decidedly preferable, since a pāda-division before juṣāṇās gives an anuṣṭubh pāda followed by a triṣṭubh, while one after the same word gives a triṣṭubh followed by an irregular combination of syllables. The pada-text puts its mark of pāda-division after juṣāṇas, to correspond with its accentuation of agne. Of SPP's authorities, only four have agne against nine with agne, and his text adopts the latter reading. The concluding division is hopelessly unmetrical. The Anukr. intends us to divide 8+11 (or 11+8): 8+8+11=46, a virād jagatī. The verse is thrice quoted in Kāuç. (2.41; 19.24; 137.30) to accompany the piling of fuel on the fire. It is wanting in Ppp.

[The quoted Anukr. says for this sixth hymn pañca (i.e. 5 over 30). — Here ends the third anuvāka, with 2 hymns and 85 verses.]

7. Mystic: on the skambhá or frame of creation.

[Atharvan (kṣudra). — catuccatvārincat. mantroktaskambhādhyātmadevatyam. trāiṣṭubham*:
1. virād jagatī; 2, 8. bhurij; 7, 13. paroṣṇih; 10, 14, 16, 18, 19. upariṣṭād bṛhatī; 11, 12, 15, 20, 22, 39. upariṣṭājjyotirjagatī; 17. 3-av. 6-p. jagatī; 21. bṛhatīgarbhā 'nuṣṭubh; 23-30, 37, 40. anuṣṭubh; 31. madhyejyotirjagatī; 32, 34, 36. upariṣṭādvirād bṛhatī; 33.
paravirād anuṣṭubh; 35. 4-p. jagatī; 38, 42, 43. triṣṭubh*; 41. ārṣī 3-p. gāyatrī; 44.
ārcy anuṣṭubh (?) †.]

Found also (except vss. 13, 42-44) in Pāipp. xvii. (with slight differences of order, noted under the verses). Neither Kāuç. nor Vāit. takes any notice of the hymn. — * LIf the hymn is trāistubham, why are these verses specified? see note to 38. \| \ \tau \ As to the Anukr's description of this verse, see under the verse. \|

Translated: Muir, v. 380-384 (vss. 1-41); Ludwig, p. 400; Scherman, p. 50 (vss. 1-41: with comment); Deussen, Geschichte, i. 1. 310 (sympathetic interpretation and useful introduction); Henry, 22, 68; Griffith, ii. 26.—As to the appearance of Brahm as a new conception, as a Wunderding (yaksá: vs. 38), cf. the Kena Upanishad, § 3, vss. 14-25, and Deussen's introduction, Sechzig Upanishad's, p. 204.—The hymn is nearly related to the following one (8), and, with many a riddle and paradox, they both lead up to the fundamental conception of the Upanishads (see last verse of hymn 8), the idea of the Atman.—In the new volume of the Ved. Stud., iii. 126 ff., Geldner discusses yaksá at length.

1. In what member of him is penance situated? in what member of him is right (rtá) deposited? where is situated [his] vow (vratá), where his faith? in what member of him is truth established?

Ppp. combines in a tapo 'sya." In b, the pada-text reads asya: adhi: aohitam.

There is no reason for calling the verse virāj.

2. From what member of him flames Agni? from what member blows $(p\bar{u})$ Mātariçvan? from what member doth the moon measure out, measuring the member of great Skambha?

Skambha, lit. 'prop, support, pillar,' strangely used in this hymn as frame of the universe or half-personified as its soul. Ppp. reads in d skambhasya mahan mim-. | Read vimtmāno in d? |

3. In what member of him is situated the earth? in what member is situated the atmosphere? in what member is the sky set? in what member is situated what is beyond the sky?

This is one of the five verses (3-6, 9) which are left by the Anukr. to fall under the general description of the hymn as trāiṣṭubham. All of them are more or less redundant; this, for example, is as much bhurij as vs. 2, which was so described. Ppp. puts the verse before our 2.

4. Whither desiring to attain does Agni flame aloft? whither desiring to attain blows Mātariçvan? whither desiring to attain, the turns $(\bar{a}v\hat{r}t)$ go, that Skambha tell [me]: which forsooth is he?

Here we have two syllables in excess, unnoticed by the Anukr. Many of the mss. accent svit in d.

5. Whither go the half-months, whither the months, in concord with the year? whither the seasons go, whither they of the seasons, that Skambha tell [me]: which forsooth is he?

Again two unnoticed redundant syllables.

6. Whither desiring to attain run in concord the two maidens (yuvati) of diverse form, day-and-night? whither desiring to attain, the waters go, that Skambha tell [me]: which forsooth is he?

Here it is only the last pāda that is one syllable in excess. Ppp. puts the verse before our 5.

7. In what, having established [them], Prajāpati maintained all the worlds, that Skambha tell [me]: which forsooth is he?

Many of our mss. appear to read stabdha in a, but it is doubtless only carelessness in writing. Here again, as above and in the verses below where the refrain is written out, part of the mss. accent svit.

8. What that was highest, lowest, and what that was midmost Prajāpati created, of all forms — by how much did Skambha enter there? what did not enter, how much was that?

Or (in d) 'what he did not enter.' The Anukr. this time notices the redundant syllable (in a).

9. By how much did Skambha enter the existent? how much of him lies along that which will exist? what one member he made thousandfold, by how much did Skambha enter there?

[•] The Anukr. again passes without notice the redundant syllable in c.

10. Where men know both worlds and receptacles $(k\delta \rho a)$, waters, bráhman, within which [are] both the non-existent and the existent—that Skambha tell [me]: which for sooth is he?

A part of this verse has disappeared in Ppp. [The pada reads apah and antah.]

11. Where penance, striding forth, maintains the higher vow (vratá), where both right and faith, waters, bráhman, are set together, that Skambha etc. etc.

The verse (8+8:8+8+12=44) is, with those that agree with it, strangely named by the Anukr. [Ppp. exchanges the places of vratam and rtam in b, c, and of $\bar{a}pas$ and brahma in d.]

12. In whom earth, atmosphere, in whom sky is set, where fire, moon, sun, wind stand fixed (árpita), that Skambha etc. etc.

[The pada-text has arpitāḥ, which SPP., with many of his samhitā-mss., adopts as samhitā-reading also; Ppp. has -tā.]

13. In whose member all the thirty-three gods are set together, that Skambha etc. etc.

Wanting in Ppp., as noted above.

14. Where the first-born seers, the verses, the chant, the sacrificial formula, the great one (maht); in whom the sole seer is fixed—that Skambha etc. etc.

Mahī usually designates the earth; what in this connection it should be meant to apply to is doubtful. All the samhitā-mss. combine ekarştr (Ppp. eka ṛṣir), but most of them, with the Anukr., yátra ṛṣ- in a. Ppp. reads bhūtakṛtas for prathamajās.

15. Where both immortality $(am\hat{r}ta)$ and death are set together in man $(p\hat{u}rusa)$, of whom the ocean, the veins $(n\bar{a}d\hat{t})$ are set together in man, that Skambha etc. etc.

Ppp. reads, for b, purusaç ca samāhitāh, and puts the verse after our 16. Read in a mrtyúç ca (an accent-sign slipped out of place).

16. Of whom the four directions are $(sth\bar{a})$ the teeming (? prapyasa) veins, where the sacrifice hath strode forth, that Skambha etc. etc.

Prathamās at end of b in our edition seems to be a misprint for prathasās, intended as a correction of prapyasās, which last, however, is distinctly read by all our mss.* (p. praopyasāh); for the formation, compare -bhyasa from root bhī (through a secondary root bhyas). *[Except P., which has prathasās; SPP. puts -mās into his text against his fifteen authorities, which give prapyasās.]

17. Whoever know the bráhman in man, they know the most exalted one; whoever knows the most exalted one, and whoever knows Prajāpati, whoever know the chief bráhmaṇa, they know also accordingly (anu-sam-vid) the Skambha.

For both b and f, Ppp. reads te skambham arasam viduh (intending anusamviduh?).

- 18. Whose head [was] Vāiçvānara, [whose] eye the Angirases were, whose members the familiar demons $(y\bar{a}t\acute{u})$ that Skambha tell [me]: which forsooth is he?
- 19. Of whom they call bráhman the mouth, the honey-whip the tongue also, of whom they call viráj the udder that Skambha etc. etc.

Ppp. reads for c virājam yasyo "dhā "hus.

20. From whom they fashioned off the verses, from whom they scraped off the sacrificial formula, of whom the chants [are] the hairs (lóman), the Atharvans-and-Angirases the mouth — that Skambha etc. etc.

[Ppp. combines rco pāt- in a, and has chandānsy asya for sāmāni yasya in c.]

21. The branch of the non-existent, standing forth, people know as in a manner the highest thing; also the lower ones who worship $(upa-\bar{a}s)$ thy branch think [it?] the existent thing.

The translation of this highly obscure verse is only mechanical, and as literal as possible. Ppp. has only the first half. The definition of the Anukr. is a strange one; the verse is only a bhurig anustubh (in virtue of the iva, which properly is to be reduced to va, making a regular anustubh).

- 22. Where both the Adityas and the Rudras and the Vasus are set together; where both what is and what is to be, [and] all the worlds are established that Skambha tell [me]: which forsooth is he?
- 23. Of whom the thirty-three gods always defend the treasure (nidhi): that treasure, which, O gods, ye defend, who at present knoweth?
- 24. Where the bráhman-knowing gods worship the chief bráhman whoso verily knoweth them eye to eye (pratyákṣam), he may be a Brahman (brahmán), a knower.

Perhaps an acceptable emendation in d would be bráhma: i.e. 'he may be (may be regarded as) one knowing the bráhman': cf. ζ B. xiv. 6. 9¹¹. Ppp. reads, for c, d, yo vāi tad brahmaņo veda tam vāi brahmavido viduḥ. Read in a devā (an accent-sign dropped out).

25. Great (bṛhánt) by name [are] those gods who were born out of the non-existent; that one member of Skambha people call non-existent beyond.

The second half-verse is capable of other interpretations; Ludwig emends parás to purá; Muir, tacitly, to páram; Scherman translates it 'afterwards' (nachher); Ppp. reads instead puras. One of our mss. reads in b 'satas p-; Land so does SPP. without report of variant].

26. Where the skambhá, generating forth, rolled out the ancient one, that one member of the skambhá they know also accordingly [as] the ancient one.

Or, 'know etc. that ancient one as one member of the skambha.' Ppp. again (as in 17 b, f) arasam viduh in d. Read in our edition prajandyan in a.

27. In whose member the thirty-three gods shared severally the limbs (gátra) — those thirty-three gods verily only (éka) the bráhman-knowers know.

Or (so Muir), 'some brahman-knowers.' Ppp. reads in b gātrāņi bhejire.

28. People know the golden-embryo [as] highest, not to be overcrowed (anatyudyá); the skambhá in the beginning poured forth that gold within the world.

Ppp. puts this verse after our 30.

29. In the skambhá the worlds, in the skambhá penance, in the skambhá right is set; thee, O skambhá, I know plainly [as] set all together in Indra.

The mss. are much at variance in regard to $sk\acute{a}mbha$ in c; all save W. (the poorest and least trustworthy of all) end the word with m, and O.s.m.D. accent $skambh\acute{a}m$. That $sk\acute{a}mbha$ is really intended can hardly admit of question; Ppp. appears to read it.

30. In Indra the worlds, in Indra penance, in Indra right is set; thee, O Indra, I know plainly [as] all established in the skambhá.

The translation implies emendation in c of indram to indra. Of course, it is possible to render indram here, and skambhám in 29 c, but where the whole sense is so mystically obscure alterations help little.

31. Name with name he calls aloud, before the sun, before the dawn; as first the goat (? ajá) came into being, he went unto that autocracy beyond which there is nothing else existent.

Ppp. reads $johav \bar{v}mi$ in a, and $jag\bar{a}ma$ (for $iy\bar{a}ya$) in d. The translators all understand ajds here as 'the unborn one,' and with more reason than in most places elsewhere. The description given by the Anukr. of the very irregular verse (8+8:10+10+11=47) is altogether ill-fitting.

32. Of whom earth is model (pramá) and atmosphere belly; who made the sky his head — to that chief bráhman be homage.

In this and the two following verses and vs. 36 we have the anomaly that bráhman, neuter, is apparently referred to by the masculine relative yás (in accordance with which the genitive yásya is also doubtless to be understood as masculine); perhaps we ought to render the last pāda thus: 'to him, [who is] the chief bráhman,' etc. [Cf. Deussen, p. 312.] The verse is shorter by two syllables than verses 34 and 36, with which the Anukr. reckons it, and, on the other hand, agrees with 33, to which the Anukr. gives a different name.

33. Of whom the sun is eye, and the moon that grows new again; who made Agni his mouth — to that chief bráhman be homage.

Ppp. combines cakrā "syam in c. As to the meter, see the note to vs. 32. [The Anukr. seems to mean that this is an anuṣṭubh of which the last pāda is one of 10 syllables (virāj).]

34. Of whom the wind [was] breath-and-expiration, [of whom] the Angirases were the eye; who made the quarters fore-knowing (? prajnāna)—to that chief bráhman be homage.

Ppp. gets rid of the obscure prajñānīs by reading for c divam yaç cakre mūrdhānam. The Anukr. describes correctly vss. 34 and 36.

35. The skambhá sustains both heaven-and-earth here; the skambhá sustains the wide atmosphere; the skambhá sustains the six wide directions; into the skambhá hath entered this whole existence (bhúvana).

The pada-text has (as translated) skambhé in d. Ppp. puts the verse after our 36, and reads in a pṛthivīm dyām utā 'mūm, and in d combines skambhāi 'dam. The Anukr. takes no notice of the irregularity of the verse (14 + 11:11 + 13 = 49). [Bergaigne, Rel. Ved., ii. 122, would separate pradiças from urvīs.]

36. Who, born from toil, from penance, completely attained all worlds; who made soma all his own — to that chief bráhman be homage.

The sense of 'own' in c is given by the middle verb-form.

37. How does the wind not cease (il)? how does the mind not rest (ram)? why (kim) do the waters, seeking to attain truth, at no time soever cease?

Ppp. reads sor d pra cakramati sarvadā. [Scherman, p. 54: 'warum kommen fürwahr die strebenden Wasser niemals zur Ruhe?']

38. A great monster $(yaks\acute{a})$ in the midst of the creation $(bh\acute{u}vana)$, strode $(?kr\bar{a}nt\acute{a})$ in penance on the back of the sea—in it are set (ςri) whatever gods there are, like the branches of a tree roundabout the trunk.

The first pāda is repeated below, as 8.15 c. Ppp. combines in d to paritāi 'va. Notwithstanding the lack of a syllable in a, the Anukr. [balancing a with redundant d?] calls the verse simply a tristubh; the hymn is so long that it has apparently been forgotten that the whole was called trāistubha, and that therefore no tristubh needs a further specification. Since there are more regular anustubh-verses than tristubh also, we should expect rather the designation ānustubham for the hymn. Read at end of a mádhye (an accent-sign dropped out). [With regard to Brahm as a "wonder" (yakṣā), see introduction.]

39. Unto which with the two hands, with the two feet, with speech, with hearing, with sight; unto which the gods continually render (prayam) tribute, unmeasured in the measured out — that skambhá tell [me]: which forsooth is he?

Notwithstanding the discordance of case, vimite is perhaps coördinate with $ydsm\bar{a}i$. Ppp. omits the first two pādas. The dual and the repetition of $ydsm\bar{a}i$ make it probable that we have to supply in them 'one renders tribute,' or the like. The Anukr. takes no notice of the redundant syllable in \mathbf{d} .

40. Smitten away is his darkness; he is separated from evil; in him are all the three lights that are in Prajāpati.

41. He who knows the golden reed (vetasá) standing in the sea — he verily is in secret Prajāpati.

All the mss. have in c gúhya pr-; perhaps gúhā was the original reading; our text has emended to gúhyaḥ.

The remaining verses are wanting in Ppp.; they appear to constitute no original part of the hymn. They are also not translated by Muir and Scherman.

42. A certain pair of maidens, of diverse form, weave, betaking themselves to it, the six-pegged web; the one draws forth the threads (tántu), the other sets [them]; they wrest not off (apa-vrj), they go not to an end.

Ápa vṛṇjāte perhaps means only 'break off, finish.' [Ná gamāto, 'they shall not go' etc.] A nearly related verse is found in TB. (ii. 5.53): dvé svásārāu vayatas tántram etát sanātánam vitatam ṣáṇmayūkham: ávā 'nyāns tántūn kiráto dhattó anyān nā 'pa vṛjyāte (? both text and comm. have in the Calc. ed. nāṣapṛjyāte [and in the Poona ed. nāvapṛjyāte]) ná gamāte ántam; this is a preferable version especially of c. We have to resolve tan-tṛ-am in order to make a full triṣṭubh. [The TB. comment makes the verse refer to day and night: cf. RV. i. 113.3.]

43. Of them, as of two women dancing about, I do not distinguish $(vi-j\hbar\bar{a})$ which is beyond; a man $(p\hat{u}m\bar{a}ns)$, weaves it, ties [it] up; a man hath borne it about upon the firmament $(n\hat{a}ka)$.

The last two pādas, with 44, correspond to RV. x. 130. 2, which reads: púmān enam tanuta út kṛṇatti púmān vi tatne ádhi nāke asmin: imē mayūkhā úpa sedur ū sádaḥ sāmāni cakrus tásarāny ótave. Our úd gṛṇatti is only a corruption, but simulates a form from root gṛath, and is rendered accordingly. [For the exchange of surd and sonant, cf. Roth, ZDMG. xlviii. 110 and note to ii. 13. 3.] The true scanning in a is doubtless-yanti-or 'va; | better-tior iva, with jagatī cadence? |.

44. These pegs propped up the sky; the chants they made shuttles for weaving.

See the note to the preceding verse. Both here and in 42 b some of the mss. read mayūṣa. Bp. reads at the end yātave. The Anukr. says of the verse ime mayūkhā ity ekāvasānā paūcapadā nicṛt padapaūktir [i.e. 5+5+5+5+4=24] ārcy anuṣṭub dvipadā vā [i.e. 12+12=24] paūcapadā nicṛt padapaūktir iti. [The last three or four words seem to be mere repetition.]

The quoted Anukr. says caturdaça (i.e. 14 over 30).

8. Mystic.

Found in greater part (not vss. 1, 7, 15, 18, 30-44) in Pāipp. xvi. (in the verse-order 2, 8, 5, 9, 3, 4, 12, 6, 14, 29, 13, 11, 10, 16, 19-28, 17). Not noticed in Kāuç., and only one verse (42) used in Vāit.

Translated: Muir, v. 368 n., 386 (parts); Ludwig, p. 395; Scherman, p. 60 (parts); Deussen, Geschichte, i. 1. 318 (cf. 310); Henry, 27, 75; Griffith, ii. 34. — Deussen's interpretation should on no account be overlooked. — Cf. the introduction to hymn 7.

1. He who is set over both what is and what is to be and everything, and whose alone is the heaven — to that chief bráhman be homage.

The concluding pāda is that of some of the verses of the preceding hymn (see vs. 32, above, and note).

2. By the skambhá these two stand fixed apart, both sky and earth; in the skambhá [is] all this that has soul, what [is] breathing and what winking.

The Anukr. is scrupulous enough not to sanction the irregular combination skambhé'dám in c; why it calls the verse bṛhattgarbhā, instead of simply bhurij (like vs. 5), it were hard to say.

3. Three offspring (prajd) went an over-going; others settled (ni-vic) about the sun (?arkd); great stood the traverser (vimdna) of space (rdjas); the yellow one (m.) entered into the yellow ones (f.).

The verse is RV. viii. 90 (101). 14, which reads, for a, prajā ha tisro atyāyam īyur; at end of b, viviçre; for c, d, bṛhād dha tasthāu bhūvaneṣv antāḥ pāvamāno harīta ā viveça (the last pāda is our 40 d below). AA. (ii. 1. 14) has the same version as RV. JB. (ii. 224) has a version agreeing in the main with RV., but beginning like ours, tisro ha prajā, ending b with viviçyur, beginning c with bṛhan (but bṛhad in a following brief exposition); in c, again, with our text, rajaso vimānāi 'va (in the exposition simply vimāne); in d as RV. The Anukr. takes no notice of the defective fourth pāda. Ppp. reads na (for ha) and vimānam in c, and combines pṛrajā 'ty-, and anyā 'rkam.

4. Twelve fellies, one wheel, three naves — who understands that? therein are inserted $(\hat{a}hata)$ three hundred and sixty pins $(\hat{c}a\bar{n}k\hat{u})$, pegs $(\hat{c}khta)$ that are immovable.

The verse is also RV. i. 164. 48, which, however, has a very different second half: tásmin sākām triçatā ná çaūkāvo 'rpitāh ṣaṣṭir ná calācalāsaḥ. The 'pins' or 'pegs' must be the equivalents of spokes. The three naves are probably seasons [Hot, Wet, and Cold: cf. Bühler, Epigraphia Indica, ii. 262], though the number is unusual. Ppp. reads kelās for khīlās in d. The Anukr. does not heed that c is a jagatī pāda. [Kaṭha-reading nābhyāni, WZKM. xii. 282.]

5. This, O Savitar, do thou distinguish: six [are] twins, one [is] soleborn; they seek participation (apitvá) in him who of them is the sole sole-born.

The usual twelve months, two to a season, and the thirteenth occasional intercalary one, are doubtless meant. Ppp. reads in b yomokas (for yamā ekas). The pada-mss. of both W. and SPP. have apiotvām; but in the Index W. assumes that āpitvām is the word. Both are well authenticated in BR.; but apitvām seems to fit best here (cf. CB. iv. I. CA.

6. Being manifest (āvis), [it is] deposited in secret; the great track (padá), "aged" (járat) by name; there is set (árpita) this all, [there is] established what stirs, what breathes.

7. One-wheeled it rolls, one-rimmed, thousand-syllabled, forth in front, down behind; with a half it has generated all existence; what its [other] half is — what has become of that?

This agrees nearly with xi. 4. 22 below, and Ppp. has it there, though not here. The sun is evidently meant, with half his course lost to view.

- 8. One carrying five carries the summit (dgra) of them; side-horses, harnessed, carry also along; what is not gone of it was seen, not what is gone; the higher thing [is] closer, the lower more distant.
- [Or (c) 'of him' (asya).] The sense is wholly obscure, and the version a mechanical one. $Pa\bar{n}cav\bar{a}h\bar{t}$ may be either fem. (of $-v\bar{a}h\dot{a}$: so $catav\bar{a}h\bar{t}$ v. 17. 12) or masc. (of $-v\bar{a}hin$); Pet. Lexx. say 'mit Fünfen bespannt.' Some of the mss. read prsthayas in b, as often in such cases. Ppp. has asya instead of $cs\bar{a}m$ at end of a.
- 9. A bowl (camasá) with orifice sideways, bottom-side up—in it is deposited glory of all forms; there sit together the seven seers, who have become the keepers of it, the great one.

The verse has a correspondent in ÇB. xiv. 5.24 (BAU. ii. 2.4). This reads at the beginning arvāgbilas; in c, tāsya...tīre for tāt...sākām; and, for d, vāg asṭamī brāhmanā samvidānā. The Brāhmana itself explains the head as intended, the seven seers being the seven prānas or senses (the seven orifices of the head); this is extremely implausible. Ppp. reads at beginning of c atrā "sata.

10. The one which is applied (yuj) in front and which behind, which is applied in all cases and which in every case, by which the sacrifice is extended forward — that I ask of thee: which one of the verses is it?

The verse is quoted by pratika in GB. i. 1. 22. All our $samhit\bar{a}$ -mss. save one (R.) and the great majority of SPP's read at the end sa $rc\bar{a}m$ (Ppp. the same), and the words are quoted under Prāt. iii. 49 as example of that combination [p. sa $rc\bar{a}m$]. The Anukr. does not heed that b is a jagati pāda. Ppp. reads twice yo 'ta for $y\bar{a}$ ca.

11. What stirs, flies, and what stands, and what is breathing, not breathing, winking — that, all-formed, sustains the earth; that, combining, becomes one only.

One may conjecture apānāt for aprānat in b. The Anukr. does not heed that two of the pādas are trisṭubh. Ppp. reads at end of b ca tiṣṭhat, and, in c, dyām utā 'mum [at 7.35 it was fem.] for viçvarūpam.

12. What is endless, stretched out on many sides; what is endless, and what has an end, ending together—these (two) the lord of the firmament keeps (car) separating (vi-ci), knowing what is and what shall be of it.

Ppp. reads samakte at end of b, prajānan at end of c, and yadi for uta in d. Probably earth and heaven are intended. The metrical definition of the Anukr. fits the verse (9+10:11+10=40) fairly.

13. Prajāpati goes about (car) within the womb; not being seen, he is manifoldly born $(vi-j\bar{a})$; with a half he has generated all existence; what his [other] half is — which sign is that?

The third pāda is the same with 7 c above; the second half-verse is found below as xi. 4. 22 c, d; to the first half-verse corresponds VS. xxxi. 19 a, b and TA. iii. 13. 13 a, b: both reading djāyamānas at beginning of b; [so Katha-hss., p. 84]. Ppp. reads in b prajāyate, and, for c, d, ardhene 'dam pari babhūva viçvam etasyā 'rdham kim u taj jajāna. The Anukr. takes no notice of the jagatī pāda b.

14. Him bearing water aloft, as a water-bearer (f.) with a vessel $(kumbh\acute{a})$, all see with the eye, not all know with the mind.

Some mss. (P.M.I.) accent vidúh at the end.

15. In the distance it dwells with the full one, in the distance it is abandoned by the deficient one—the great monster (yakṣá) in the midst of existence; to it the kingdom-bearers bear tribute.

The verse, as noted above, is wanting in Ppp. [Pāda c occurs as x. 7. 38 a: see note thereon and introd. to hymn 7.]

16. Whence the sun arises, and where he goes to rest — that same I think the chief (jyeṣṭhá); that nothing whatever surpasses.

The Katha Up. [iv. 9] has a nearly corresponding verse: yataç co'd eti sūryo 'stam yatra ca gacchati: tam devāh sarve 'rpitās tad u nā 'ty eti kaç cana; and the first half of this occurs also in ÇB. xiv. 4. 334 (BAU. i. 5. 23). The Anukr. omits to define the meter (anuṣṭubh) of the verse.

17. They who hitherward, in the middle, or also anciently, speak round about him who knows the Veda, they all speak around the sun (ādityá), Agni [as] second, and the threefold swan (hansá).

The verse is found also in TA. (ii. 158), which omits $m\acute{a}dhye$ and reads $pur\~an\'e$ in a, and $trt\~iyam$ (for $triv\~retam$) in d. [Cf. Katha-hss., p. 63.] Our pada-text [as also SPP's] reads near the beginning $arv\~a\~n$, which is doubtless an error for $arv\~a\~k$ (though TA. reads $arv\~a\~n$ $ut\acutea$). Perhaps $v\acuteetam$ in b is to be rendered simply 'knowledge.' The Anukr. takes no notice of the two redundant syllables in c.

18. A thousand days' journey [are] expanded (vi-yam) the wings of him, of the yellow swan flying to heaven (svargá); he, putting all the gods in his breast, goes, viewing together all existences.

The verse is found again below as xiii. 2. 38; 3. 14. It is, as noted above, wanting here in Ppp.

- 19. By truth he burns aloft; by bráhman he looks abroad hitherward, by breath he breathes crosswise he on whom rests (critá) the chief thing.
- 20. Whoever indeed knows those two churning-sticks, with which is churned out what is good (vásu), he may think himself to know the chief thing; he may know the great bráhmana [neut.].
- 21. Footless came he into being in the beginning; he in the beginning brought the heaven (svar); having become four-footed, enjoyable, he took to himself all enjoyment $(bh\delta jana)$.

Ppp. reads, for b, so 'gre asurā 'bhavat.

22. Enjoyable shall he become, likewise shall he eat much food, who shall worship (upa-ās) the everlasting god who gives superiority (uttar-āvant).

[After bhogyo bhavat, for which there are no variants, Bp. has a mark of pādadivision; but the Anukr. evidently scans as 12:8+8, eliding the a of annam after a pragrhya.] Bhāgyo at the beginning is a misprint for bhogyo.

23. Everlasting they call him, also may he be at present ever-renewed; day and night are generated $(pra-j\bar{a})$ in each other's forms.

The pada-text reads anyah: anyasya in d, although the masc. anyas shows that the two words are virtually a compound, as later.

24. A hundred, a thousand, a myriad, a hundred million, an innumerable [number], is his own entered into him; that of him they slay, even as he looks on; therefore this god shines (ruc) thus.

Instead of esa etat at the end, Ppp. reads what appears to be agha bhavat. The version is as literal (and as unintelligent) as possible. The Anukr. takes no notice of the irregularity of the meter; it is possible, by violence, to count only 44 syllables in the verse.

25. One thing is more minute (ánu) than a child (bála), also one is hardly (ne')va seen; than that a more embracing deity, is she dear to me.

Ppp. reads, for a, ārāgramātram dadrçe, and begins c with ataṣ pa-, thus doing nothing to help our comprehension of the wholly obscure verse.

26. This beautiful one (f.) [is] unaging, an immortal in the house of a mortal; for whom she [was] made, he lies; he who made [her] grew old.

Ppp. reads $tasm\bar{a}i$ for $yasm\bar{a}i$ in c. [The natural reading of b would be martyasya $amft\bar{a}$ grhe; but] the definition of the Anukr. forbids us to make [it. Can a $s\bar{a}$ have dropped out before gdye $s\bar{a}$? Cf. note to iv. 5. 5.]

27. Thou art woman, thou [art] man, thou boy, or also girl; thou, when aged, totterest (vañc) with a staff; thou, when born, becomest facing all ways.

Ppp. politely puts $kum\bar{a}r\bar{\iota}$ first and $kum\bar{a}ras$ second in b, and reads $j\bar{a}tam$ in d. The verse is found, without variant, in Cvet. Up. iv. 3. It is so far correctly described by the Anukr. that it counts 37 syllables (7 + 10:9 + 11 = 37).

28. Both their father, or also their son; both the chief or also the meanest (kaniṣṭhá) of them; the one god, who has entered into the mind, born the first, and he within the womb.

The verse is also found, quoted as a çloka, in JUB. 85 (iii. 10. 12): utāi 'ṣām jāiṣṭha uta vā kaniṣṭha utāi 'ṣām putra uta vā pitāi 'ṣām: cko ha devo manasi praviṣṭah pūrvo ha jajāe sa u garbhe 'ntaḥ. Ppp. reads, for a, b, ute 'va jyeṣṭho 'ta vā kaniṣṭho 'tāi 'ṣa bhrāto 'ta vā pitāi 'ṣaḥ; and, in d, pūrvo jātaḥ.

29. The full from the full he bends up (ud-ac); the full is poured with the full; also that may we know today, whence that is poured out.

This verse is akin with the oft-repeated one in ÇB. xiv. 8. 1 (BAU. v. 1): pūrṇám adáḥ pūrṇám idám pūrṇát pūrṇám úd acyate etc. What follows of the hymn is (as noted above) wanting in Ppp.

30. She, everlasting, born indeed of old, she, ancient, encompassed $(pari-bh\bar{u})$ all; the great goddess of the dawn, shining forth, she looks forth by every one who winks.

The Anukr. calls the verse bhurij on account of the redundant syllable in b, not heeding the corresponding deficiency in c.

- 31. The deity, Avi by name, sits enveloped with right; by her form these trees [are] green, green-garlanded.
- Or, 'by the form of her, the green-garlanded one' (so Ludwig). Avi means 'sheep,' but is possibly here a derivative from the root av 'favor, aid.' All the samhitā-mss. combine in a, b-ta rténa.
- 32. Him that is near by he (?) deserts not; him that is near by he (?) sees not; see the wisdom $(k \acute{a} vya)$ of the god: he died not, he grows not old.

There is nothing to determine the subject of the verbs in a, b; Ludwig renders 'she.'

- 33. The voices sent forth by the unpreceded one—they speak as they should (yathāyathám); where they go speaking, that [people] call the great bráhmana | n. |.
- 34. Where both gods and men (manusya) are set (crita) as spokes in a nave—I ask thee of the flower (puspa) of the waters, where that by magic was placed.

The Anukr. takes no notice of the redundant syllable | perhaps the first ca? | in a.

35. They by whom the wind sent forth blows on, who give the five quarters together (sadhryàūc), the gods who thought themselves above (ati-man) the offering (āhuti), conductors of the waters — which were they?

The first half-verse is found also in Ppp. Lxvi., but not in connection with the rest of the hymn. The Anukr. does not heed that a is defective by one syllable. Read in b, with all LW's and SPP's mss., dádante; the form is from the same secondary root dad as the sing. dadate in 36 c. LJUB. (i. 34) has this verse, putting it in the mouth of Pṛthu Vāinya, and its answer (vs. 36), with appended Brāhmaṇa-comment. It reads samicih for sadhrīcīh of our 35 b, and āhutīs in c.

- 36. One of them clothes himself in this earth; one encompassed the atmosphere; he of them who is disposer (vidhartî) gives the sky; some defend respectively all regions (dical(q)).
 - [JUB. (see under vs. 35) has ekas for eṣām of our c and anye for eke of our d.]
- 37. Whoso may know the stretched-out string in which these offspring (prajā) are woven in, whoso may know the string of the string, he may know the great brāhmaṇa.

- 38. I know the stretched-out string in which these offspring are woven in; the string of the string I know, likewise the great brahmana.
- 39. As between heaven-and-earth Agni went, burning on, all-consuming, where stood beyond they (f.) of one husband where perchance was Mātariçvan then?

The brhatī of the Anukr. $\lfloor scanning 11 + 9:11 + 11 \rfloor$ is the second pāda, read with $\bar{a}tt$ included as a part (the pada-text so marks the division) — which is, of course, artificial and wrong. $\lfloor Read \text{ as } 12 + 8:11 + 11$, pronouncing $-d\bar{a}vtas$ and kte ' $v\bar{a}$ " $s\bar{i}n$. \rfloor Ludwig's 'spouses of the only one' for $\ell kapatn\bar{i}s$ is against the accent.

40. Mātariçvan was entered into the waters; the gods were entered into the seas; great stood the traverser of space; the purifying one entered into the green ones.

The third pāda is identical with 3 c above, and the fourth with RV. viii. 90 (101). 14 d. 'The purifying one' is probably here the wind.

- 41. Higher, as it were, than the gāyatri, upon the immortal (amṛta) he strode out; they who know completely chant with chant where then was seen the goat?
- Or, 'the unborn one' (ajá: so Ludwig); the verse is too utterly obscure to let us choose between them.
- 42. The reposer, the assembler of good things, like god Savitar, of true ordinances (-dhárman), he stood like Indra in the conflict for riches.

The verse corresponds with pādas a, c, d of RV. x. 139. 3 and of VS. xii. 66, TS. iv. 2. 54, MS. ii. 7. 12. RV. reads at the beginning rāyó budhnáh (for nivéçanah); the other texts have at the end pathīnām. The verse is quoted in Vāit. 28. 28.

43. The lotus-flower of nine doors, covered with three strands (gund) — what soulful prodigy (yaksd) is within it, that the brahman-knowers know.

The 'nine doors' indicate that the human body with its nine orifices is intended; the three gunas are probably the three temperaments familiar under that name later. The second half-verse was found above as 2.32 c, d [cf. vs. 31]. See p. 1045.]

44. Free from desire, wise (dhtra), immortal, self-existent, satisfied with sap, not deficient in any respect—knowing that wise, unaging, young soul, one is not afraid of death.

[See Deussen, Geschichte, i. 1. 334: "die erste und älteste Stelle, die wir kennen, in der rückhaltlos der Ätman als Weltprincip proklamiert wird, AV. x. 8. 44." Cf. also p. 312, end. Muir, Metrical Translations from Sanskrit Writers, p. 1, gives a metrical paraphrase of the verse.

9. With the offering of a cow and a hundred rice-dishes.

[Atharvan. — saptavinçati. mantroktaçatāudanadevatyam. ānustubham: 1. tristubh; 12. pathyāpankti; 25. dvyusniggarbhā 'nustubh; 26. 5-p. brhatyanustubusniggarbhā jagatī; 27. 5-p. atijāgatānustubgarbhā çakvarī.]

Found also in Pāipp. xvi. The hymn (vs. 1) is quoted in Kāuc. 65. 1 to accompany the closing of the mouth of a victim, and some of the verses (1-3, 26, 27) in other neighboring parts of the sūtra. In Vāit. is used a single verse (26).

Translated: Ludwig, p. 270 (in great part); Henry, 32, 83; Griffith, ii. 42.

1. Fasten thou up the mouths of the mischief-making Lones]; bring (arpay-) this thunderbolt upon our rivals; given by Indra, first, with a hundred rice-dishes, cousin-slaying, the success (gātú) of the sacrificer.

It is a cow (f.) accompanied by a whole hundred of odanas or offerings of boiled rice, that is here the subject; we had in various places above a goat (m.) with five such additions. Ppp. reads in d yajamānāya. The Anukr. does not heed that the third pāda is jagatī.

2. Be thy skin the sacrificial hearth, [be] the hairs which [are] thine the barhis; this rein (raçaná) hath seized thee; let this pressing-stone dance over thee.

The parts of this and the preceding verse are prescribed in Kāuc. 65. 1-3 to be used to accompany certain sacrificial acts to which they are adapted.

3. Be thy tail-tuft the sprinklers; let thy tongue do the cleansing, O inviolable one; do thou, having become clean, fit for sacrifice, go on to heaven, O thou of the hundred rice-dishes.

The form balas (which Ppp. also reads) [as against valas] is vouched for [incidentally] by the comm. to Prat. i. 66 [in its discussion of the exchange of r and l]. The verse is quoted in Kauç. 65.9. Sam marstu = serve as sammarjana.

4. Whoso cooks her of the hundred rice-dishes, he is adapted to the fulfilment of wishes; for all his priests (rtvij), being gratified, go as they should.

All the samhitā-mss. read in c asya rtv-.

5. He ascends the heavenly road (svargá), where is you triple heaven of the heaven (dív), who, making [her] cake-naveled, gives her of the hundred rice-dishes.

The meaning and connection of c are not very clear. Ludwig renders "and makes her the middle point of the $ap\bar{u}pa$," which is against the accent; probably 'adding cakes numerous enough to cover her.' [Is it not virtually equivalent to 'putting a cake on her navel,' as preparatory to sacrificing her?] Ppp. has hiranyajyotiṣam instead of apūpanābhim (cf. the next verse). The resolution kṛtu-ā, necessary to make the verse a regular anustubh, is rather harsh.

6. He obtains those worlds, [those] which are heavenly and [those] which are earthly, who, having made [her] lighted with gold, gives her of the hundred rice-dishes.

Ppp. reads for b yeṣa devās samāsate, and has apūpanābhim here in c, instead of in 5 c.

7. What people are thy quellers, O heavenly one [f.], and what thy cookers, they shall all guard thee: be not afraid of them, thou of the hundred rice-dishes.

Ppp. puts this verse before our 5.

- 8. The Vasus shall guard thee on the right, thee the Maruts on the left (uttarát), the Adityas behind; do thou run beyond the Agnishṭoma. That is, probably, exceed or surpass even this important ceremony.
- 9. The gods, the Fathers, men (manusyà), and they that are Gandharvas-and-Apsarases they shall all guard thee; do thou run beyond the over-night sacrifice (atirātrā).

Ppp. reads gandharvāpsaraso devā rudrāngirasas tvā. | Cf. note to vs. 8. |

- 10. He obtains the atmosphere, the sky, the earth, the Adityas, the Maruts, the quarters, all worlds, who gives her of the hundred rice-dishes.
- 11. Sprinkling forth ghee, well-portioned, the divine one will go to the gods; hurt not him who cooks thee, O inviolable one; go on to heaven, O thou of the hundred rice-dishes.

Ppp. reads in b devān devī.

12. The gods that are stationed (-sad) in the sky, and that are stationed in the atmosphere, and these that are upon the earth—to them do thou always yield (duh) milk, butter, also honey.

Several of the mss., with a carelessness common in such cases, read dhukṣa in d. We have to resolve deva-ā in a, in order to make a normal pāda. Ppp. rectifies the meter of a by reading instead pitaras for devās. [Ppp. combines -sado 'ntar- in a-b.]

13. What head is thine, what mouth is thine, what ears and what jaws are thine — let them yield to thy giver curd, milk, butter, also honey.

Ppp. reads ye te $c_r \bar{n} g e$ for second half of a, and so for second part of b yāu ca te akṣāu [cf. vs. 14].

14. What lips are thine, what nostrils, what horns, and what thine eyes—let them yield etc. etc.

Ppp. reads instead yat te mukham yā te jihvā ye dantā yā ca te hanū.

15. What lungs are thine, what heart, the puritát with the throat—let them yield etc. etc.

Y at the beginning is emended from y dt, which all the mss. [both W's and SPP's] read.

16. What liver is thine, what two mátasnās, what entrail, and what thine intestines — let them yield etc. etc.

Ppp. reads in b yā "ntrāṇi.

- 17. What plāçi is thine, what rectum (?vaniṣṭhú), what (two) paunches, and what thy skin—let them yield etc. etc.
- 18. What marrow is thine, what bone, what flesh, and what blood—let them yield etc. etc.

Ppp. reads in a yāny asthīni, thus rectifying the meter. The Anukr. does not notice the lacking syllable in the pāda. Yás at the beginning is again emendation for the yát of all the mss. [both W's and SPP's].

19. What fore-legs $(b\bar{a}h\hat{u})$ are thine, what shanks (dos dn), what shoulders [dinsa], and what thy hump—let them yield etc. etc.

Ppp. reads, after bāhū, yāu te ansāu dūhanam yā ca etc.

20. What neck-bones $(gr\bar{\imath}v\dot{\alpha})$ are thine, what shoulder-bones $[skandh\dot{\alpha}]$, what side-bones (prsti), and what ribs $(p\dot{\alpha}rcu)$ —let them yield etc. etc.

The Anukr. does not notice the lacking syllable in a.

- 21. What thighs are thine, knee-joints, what hips, and what thy rump—let them yield etc. etc.
- 22. What tail is thine, what thy tail-tuft, what udder, and what thy teats let them yield etc. etc.
- 23. What hind-thighs are thine, what dew-claws, [what] pasterns (rchára), and what thy hoofs—let them yield etc. etc.

One of our mss. (O.) reads in b rtsárās, and Ppp. supports it by giving kṛtsarās.

[The reading rtsárās seems to be supported by E. as well as by O. and Ppp. Its phonetic relation to rcchárās resembles that of Pāli ucchādana, jighacchā, bībhaccha to Skt. utsādana, jighatsā, bībhatsa (Kuhn, Pāli-gram., p. 52, gives kucchā = kutsā, vaccha = vatsa). Unless I err, our vulgate text here shows a Prākritism such as we have good right to assume also at iii. 12.4, in case of the much-discussed ucchántu, which may be a mere vernacularized rendering of ukṣántu (cf. tacchaka = takṣaka, Kuhn, l.c.).

- 24. What hide is thine, O thou of the hundred rice-dishes, what hairs, O inviolable one—let them yield etc. etc.
- 25. Let thy two breasts (krodá) be sacrificial cakes, smeared over with sacrificial butter; having made them wings, O divine one, do thou carry him who cooks thee to heaven (dív).

The Anukr. very strangely ignores the two resolutions in b and c, and reckons the pādas as 7 syllables each.

26. What in the mortar, on the pestle, and on the hide, or what rice-grain, [what] kernel in the winnowing-basket, or what the wind, Mātariçvan, blowing $(p\bar{u})$, shook (math) — let Agni as $h\dot{o}tar$ make that well-offered.

It is very much out of place to reckon five pādas (12+9:8+7+11=47) in this verse; but the pada-ms. supports the Anukr., by making a mark of pāda-division after mātariçvā; evidently either this word or pāvamānas (rather the former) is an intrusion in c. [The last pāda we had as vi. 71.1 d.] The verse is quoted in Vāit. 4.9; also (with vi. 122, 123) in Kāuç. 63. 29, to accompany the closing libations. Ppp. reads in by e vā çūrpe tandulāṣ kaṇāḥ.

27. The heavenly waters, rich in honey, dripping with ghee, I seat in separate succession in the hands of the priests (brahmán); with what desire I now pour you on, let all that fall to my lot; may we be lords of wealth.

Ppp. begins a with imā āpo madh-, and c with yatkāme 'dam. Compare the verses vi. 122. 5 and xi. 1. 27, which are in part coincident with this; [also MGS. i. 5. 4 and Index under devir āpo]. The verse (rather than i. 4. 3, which has the same pratika) is quoted in Kāuç. 65. 8, to accompany the setting of water pots. The metrical definition of the Anukr. suits well enough.

10. Extolling the cow (vaçá).

[Kaçyapa.— catustrinçat. mantroktavaçādevatyam. ānuṣṭubham: 1. kakummatī; 5. skan-dhogrīvābrhatī; 6, 8, 10. virāj; 23. brhatī; 24. upariṣṭādbrhatī; 26. āstārapañkti; 27. çankumatī; 29. 3-p. virāḍ gāyatrī; 31. uṣṇiggarbhā; 32. virāṭ pathyābrhatī.]

Found also in Pāipp. xvi. [with the verse-sequence 15 a, b, 14 c, d, 13, 14 a, b, 15 c, d, 17, 16, 18; vs. 3 is lacking]. Not noticed in Vāit., and only once in Kāuç., at 66. 20, where vs. 1 (or the hymn [rather the hymn]) is used, with xii. 4, to accompany the sprinkling of an offered cow.

Translated: Ludwig, p. 534; Deussen, Geschichte, i. 1. 234 (cf. p. 230 f., 233 f.); Henry, 35, 85; Griffith, ii. 45.

1. Homage to thee while being born, homage also to thee when born; to thy tail-tuft, hoofs, form, O inviolable one, be homage.

The Anukr. chooses to reject the common resolution -bhi-as (twice) in c.

2. Whoso may know the seven advances (? $prav\acute{a}t$), [and] may know the seven distances, whoso may know the head of the sacrifice — he may accept the cow $(vaç\acute{a})$.

Ppp. reads in b veda instead of vidyāt. The verse is quoted by pratīka in GB. i. 2. 16.

3. I know the seven advances, I know the seven distances; I know the head of the sacrifice, and the outlooking soma in her.

This verse, with a part of the preceding one, is wanting in Ppp. [Asyām, sc.

4. By whom the sky, by whom the earth, by whom these waters are guarded — the cow, of a thousand streams $(-dh dr \bar{a})$, we address with worship (br dh man).

We need to resolve $-dh\bar{a}ra-\bar{a}m$ in c in order to make out the full pada which the Anukr. assumes.

5. A hundred metal dishes (kansá), a hundred milkers, a hundred guardians, upon the back of her; the gods that breathe in her, they know the cow singly.

The verse (9+11:8+8=36) is a brhatt in number of syllables only.

6. Having the sacrifice for feet, cheer (irā-) for milk, svadhā for breath, being mahtlukā, the cow, having Parjanya for spouse, goes unto the gods with worship (bráhman).

Ppp. reads for a, b yajāapatir ākṣīrāt svadhāprāṇā mahilokāḥ, which does not solve the problem of the obscure word mahīlukā (found nowhere else). There is no need of calling the verse virāj.

- 7. After thee entered Agni, after thee Soma, O cow; thine udder, O excellent one, is Parjanya; the lightnings are thy teats, O cow.
- 8. The waters thou yieldest (duh) first, the cultivated fields after, O cow; thou yieldest kingdom third, food, milk, O cow.

The permissible resolution $r\bar{a}s$ -!r-am in c would obviate the necessity of reckoning the verse as $vir\bar{a}j$. Ppp. combines in b $urvar\bar{a}$ 'parā.

9. When, called by the Adityas, thou didst approach, O righteous one, Indra made thee drink a thousand vessels (pátra) of soma, O cow.

By a notable inconsistency, the Anukr. reckons this verse as a complete anustubh, although it requires, to make it such, precisely the same resolution ($p\vec{a}$ -tr- $\vec{a}n$) as vs. 8.

10. When thou didst go following (anváñc) Indra, then the bull called thee; therefore the Vritra-slayer, angry, took thy milk (páyas), milk (kṣīrá), O cow.

All the samhitā-mss. accent in b-bhb 'hvayat, and one pada-ms. (D.) has accordingly ahvayat. In like manner, all save R.p.m. have kruddhb 'har- in d. In both cases our edition emends to ∂ . In this verse also (as in 6, 8) the designation virāj is uncalled-for. Ppp. reads $uv\bar{u}c\bar{t}$ in a, and $\bar{a}d$ vrsabho in b.

11. When the lord of riches, angry, took thy milk, O cow, then this the firmament $(n\hat{a}ka)$ now keeps (raks) in three vessels.

Ppp. reads, in a-b, -patih kṣīram dehi bharad vaçe.

12. In three vessels the heavenly cow took that soma, where Atharvan, consecrated, sat on a golden barhis.

Ppp. reads hitam for tam in a, and advevy abharad in b.

13. Since she has united (sam-gam) with soma, and with all that has feet, the cow has stood upon the ocean, together with the Gandharvas, the kalis.

Before this verse, Ppp. sets one made up of our 15 a, b and 14 c, d. Pada-text in c adhi: asthāt. LAs to kali, cf. Bergaigne, Rel. Véd. ii. 482. LFor agata, see Gram. § 834 b.

14. Since she has united with the wind, and with all winged ones, the cow danced forth in the ocean, bearing the verses, the chants.

Ppp. combines (as above noted) our 15 a, b and 14 c, d, and then again our 14 a, b and 15 c, d, without other variant.

15. Since she has united with the sun, and with all sight, the cow has overlooked the ocean, bearing excellent lights.

Some of the mss. (P.M.E.) read in c aty aksad (K. aksyad).

16. As, O rightcous one, thou didst stand decked (abhi-vr) with gold, the ocean, having become a horse, mounted (adhi-skand) thee, O cow.

Ppp. puts this verse after our 17.

17. There the excellent ones united, the cow, the directress, also the svadhá, where Atharvan, consecrated, sat on a golden barhís.

The second half-verse is identical with 12 c, d above. Ppp. reads in a gachantt.

18. The cow is mother of the noble $(r\bar{a}jany\dot{a})$, the cow thy mother, O svadhá; from the cow was born the weapon; from it was born intent $(citt\acute{a})$.

The translation implies the obvious emendation of $yajn\ell$ in c to $jajn\ell$, as at iv. 24. 6 [see note thereto].

- 19. The globule $(bind\hat{u})$ went (car) up aloft, out of the summit $(k\acute{a}kuda)$ of the $br\acute{a}hman$; thence was thou born, O cow; thence was the invoker born.
- 20. From thy mouth came $(bh\bar{u})$ the songs $(g\hat{a}th\bar{a})$, from thy napebones, O cow, [came] force; from thy belly $(?p\bar{a}jasy\hat{a})$ was born the sacrifice, from thy teats the rays.

Ppp. reads in a bhavanti for abhavan.

21. From thy (two) fore-legs ($\bar{\imath}rm\acute{a}$) motion ($\acute{a}yana$) was born, and from thy thighs ($s\acute{a}kth\acute{i}$), O cow; from thine entrails were born eaters ($attr\acute{a}$), out from thy belly ($ud\acute{a}ra$) the plants.

Ppp. reads at the beginning ayurmābhyām, and in c yatrā jajñire. [For atrās, cf. note to i. 7. 3.]

- 22. When $(y\acute{a}t)$, O cow, thou didst enter along the belly of Varuṇa, thence the priest $(brahm\acute{a}n)$ called thee up; for he knew thy guidance $(netr\acute{a})$.
- 23. All trembled at the embryo, while being born, of her who gives not birth (?asūsū); for "the cow hath given birth," they say of her; shaped (m.) by charms (brāhman); for it is her connection.

Much here is obscure and doubtful. $As\bar{u}s\bar{u}$ (not divided in p.) ought, by its accent, to be $as\bar{u}-s\bar{u}$ 'giving birth to one who does not herself give birth' [Gram. § 1147 c]. The connection of klptas with $vac\bar{u}$ is strange; the former belongs probably to gárbhas understood. The accent of āhús indicates that hí belongs with it, and not with $sas \tilde{u}va$. The name $va \tilde{c}a$ used for the cow throughout the hymn implies non-pregnancy. Ppp. reads at the end $brahman\bar{a}$ $klpta \ R's$ Collation spells it $klipta \ uta$ bandhur asyāt. The verse may be counted as 36 syllables; but the nearest approach to a natural scansion would seem to be 8+8:11 ($ta\bar{a}m$) + 11. I will not attempt to revise W's treatment of this verse. Griffith and the other translators may be consulted.

24. One combines (sam-srj) the fighters who alone is in control (vaçin) of her; the sacrifices became energies (? táras); the cow became the eye of energies.

The Anukr. should have qualified the name of this brhatt by adding virāj. Ppp. combines at the beginning yudhe 'kas s-.

25. The cow accepted the sacrifice; the cow sustained the sun; within the cow entered the rice-dish together with the priest (brahmán).

Ppp. reads yajham instead of sūryam in b. All the mss. have brahmaṇā.

26. The cow they call immortality $(am\hat{r}ta)$; the cow they worship $(upa-\bar{a}s)$ as death; the cow became this all — gods, men, Asuras, Fathers, seers.

Ppp. reads $\bar{a}hur$ amṛtam in a. The definition of the meter by the Anukr. is bad; it [seems to be 8+8:8+14].

- 27. Whoso knoweth thus, he may accept the cow; for so doth the allfooted sacrifice yield milk (duh) to the giver, unresisting.
- 28. Three tongues glisten $(d\bar{i}d\bar{i})$ within the mouth of Varuṇa; of these, the one that shines $(r\bar{a}j)$ in the middle is the cow, hard of acceptance.

The mss., as is usual in such cases, are divided between duhpr- and duspr- in d.

- 29. The seed of the cow was quartered: the waters a quarter, the amṛta a quarter, the sacrifice a quarter, the domestic animals a quarter.
- 30. The cow [is] the sky, the cow the earth, the cow Vishnu, Prajāpati; the yield (dugdhá) of the cow did the Perfectibles (sādhyá) and they who are Vasus drink.
- 31. Having drunk the yield of the cow, the Perfectibles and they who are Vasus they verily worship the milk (páyas) of her at the summit of the ruddy one.

Ppp. reads ime instead of $te \ v\bar{a}i$ at beginning of c. The definition of the meter by the Anukr. is bad, the verse being, by usual and easy resolutions, a regular anustubh.

32. Some milk her for soma; some worship ghee; they who gave the cow to the one knowing thus are gone to the triple heaven of the heaven.

The pada-mss., by an absurd blunder, read yd before evám into ydh instead of ye. It is apparently the intrusion of vaçām into c that makes the meter irregular. [Pādas a, b are a reminiscence of RV. x. 154. I (= AV. xviii. 2. 14).]

33. Having given the cow to the Brahmans, one attains all worlds; for righteousness is set in her, also bráhman, likewise penance.

Ppp. reads in a vaçã dattvā brāh-, and in c āhitam instead of ārpitam.

34. On the cow the gods subsist; on the cow, men also; the cow became this all, so far as the sun looks abroad.

The Anukr. takes no notice of the redundant syllable in a (read, by irregular combination, devo *pa).

Book XI.

[This eleventh book is the fourth book of the second grand division of the Atharvan collection. As to the general make-up of the books of this division, see page 471. The Old Anukramaṇī describes the length of hymns 6 and 8 by stating the excess of each over 20 verses. All of the book except hymns 3 and 8 has been translated by Bloomfield in Sacred Books of the East, vol. xlii.; and all of it by Victor Henry, Les Livres X, XI et XII de l'Atharva-véda traduits et commentés, Paris, 1896. Here again we have the bhāṣya for the entire book.]

LThe ritual uses of this book are confined for the most part to the first hymn, nearly every verse of which is quoted in Kāuçika 60-63 and 65 in connection with the details of the sava sacrifice. Of the other nine hymns only sporadic citations are made by Kāuçika; and in the Vāitāna, only a single quotation (of 2.1) is made out of the whole book.

LParyāya-hymns: for details respecting them, see pages 471-2. The paryāya-hymn of this book is hymn 3, with 3 paryāyas.

Discrepancies of hymn-numeration, as between the two editions, in so far as they are occasioned by the counting of each paryāya as a separate hymn by the Bombay edition. The matter is discussed at this place because it is in this book, page 625, that Whitney has condemned the procedure of the Bombay edition. The facts are as follows:

[In book viii., the Bombay edition, counting separately each of the 6 paryāyas of our last hymn (h. 10), makes for that book a total of 15 hymns; but, since the discrepancy is confined to our last hymn, the plus of 5 does not affect the numeration of the preceding 9.]

[In book ix., the Bombay edition, counting separately each of the 6 paryāyas of our hymn 6 (its 6-11), has a plus of 5 for our h. 7 (its 12) and the following. Our h. 7 is also a paryāya-hymn; but since it has but 1 paryāya, the plus remains a constant from our h. 7 to the end. The total is again 15.]

[In book xi., the Bombay edition, counting the 3 paryayas of our hymn 3 as its 3 and 4 and 5, has a plus of 2 for our 4 (its 6) and the following. Its total is therefore 12.]

[In book xii., the Bombay edition, counting separately each of the 7 paryāyas of our last hymn (h. 5), makes for that book a total of 11 hymns; but, since the discrepancy is confined to our last hymn, the plus of 6 does not affect the numeration of the preceding 4.]

[In book xiii., the Bombay edition, counting separately each of the 6 $pary\bar{a}yas$ of our last hymn (h. 4), makes for that book a total of 9 hymns; but the discrepancy is confined to our last hymn (as in books viii. and xii.), and the plus of 5 does not affect the numeration of the preceding 3.

Book xiv. contains no paryāya-hymn. Books xv. and xvi. consist wholly of paryāyas, the former of 18 and the latter of 9, and there is accordingly no practical discrepancy between the two editions.

[I will say, however, that the uniformity of structure in books viii.-xi. as books of ten hymns each (see p. 471), which uniformity results from counting the paryāyas in groups, seems to support the procedure of R. and W. Moreover, as W. says (p. 472, top), the paryāyas of a given group taken together do "evidently constitute each [group] a whole"; and he is borne out by the comm. (at vol. iii., p. 5622), who speaks of the "rice-dish-triad," our xi. 3, as constituting one "subject-matter-hymn" (artha-sūkta: but not in its narrower technical sense).—It may be added that the Major Anukr., at the end of its 7th paṭala and of its treatment of our book xi., says evam ṣaṭ-trinṭad arthasūktāni: that is right; for books viii.-xi. have, according to the Berlin count, (4 × 10 hymns =) 40 hymns, of which 4 hymns (our viii. 10, ix. 6, ix. 7, and xi. 3) are paryāya-sūktas, leaving 36 artha-sūktas. But this does not prove that our 4 paryāya-sūktas should not be counted as 16 (cf. p. 471, end).]

[The anuvāka-division of the book (as is explained on page 472) is into five anuvākas of two hymns each. The "decad"-division likewise is as described on page 472. A tabular conspectus for book xi. follows:

Anuvākas	I		2		3		4		5
Hymns	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9	10
Decad-div. 10	+ 10 + 10 + 7	10 + 10 + 11	3P 10	+ 10 + 6	10+10+6	10+13	10+10+7	10 + 10 + 14	10 + 10 + 6	10 + 10 + 7

Here ¶ means "paragraph of a $pary\bar{a}ya$ " (such as is numbered as a "verse" in the Berlin edition) and P means " $pary\bar{a}ya$." The last line shows the "decad"-division. Of these "decads," $anuv\bar{a}kas$ 1, 2, 3, 4, and 5 contain respectively 7, 3, 5, 6, and 6 (in all, 27 "decads"); while $anuv\bar{a}ka$ 2 has 3 $pary\bar{a}yas$. The sum is 27 "decad"- $s\bar{u}ktas$ and 3 $pary\bar{a}ya-s\bar{u}ktas$ or 30 $s\bar{u}ktas$.

Nearly every verse of the hymn is quoted in Kāuç. 60-63 and 65 in connection with the description of the sava offerings; [see Bloomfield, page 610 and the following for details so far as they are helpful]. [Citations in other parts of Kāuç. are noted under the verses. The hymn is not noticed by Vāit.: see page 610.] *[This curious addition to the Anukr., vyāghrādiṣv avagantavyā, recurs in the Anukr's treatment of xiv. 1.60 and of the c of xv. 5.1-7. See note to xv. 5.7.]

Translated: Henry, 97, 133; Griffith, ii. 51; Bloomfield, 179, 610.

1. O Agni, be thou born; Aditi here, suppliant, cooks a brahmán-rice-dish, desiring sons; the seven seers, being-makers — let them churn thee here together with progeny.

Aditi's cooking of a rice-dish in order to obtain progeny is repeatedly referred to in the Brāhmaṇas — probably by way of echo of this verse: compare TS. vi. 5. 6¹; TB. i. 1. 9¹; K. vii. 15; MS. i. 6. 12; Lii. 1. 12 and references]; Lalso AV. vi. 81. 3]; the comm. quotes the TS. passage in his explanation of the verse. He defines a brahmāudana as brahmaṇe jagatsraṣṭre svāhākāreṇa deya odanaḥ, and then adds: yad vā brahmāudanasavākhye 'smin karmaṇi brāhmaṇānām bhojanāya bhāgatvena kalpita odano brahmāudanaḥ.

2. Make ye smoke, O ye bulls, companions, ye that are aided by the unhateful (?), unto speech; this Agni [is] fight-overpowering, having good heroes, by whom the gods overpowered the barbarians.

The second pāda is mechanically rendered, being quite corrupt, as appears [from the meter and] by comparison with the corresponding RV. verse (iii. 29.9), which reads instead dsredhanta itana vājam ācha. The comm. explains ādrogh- as adrohakārinām sucaritrānām yajamānām avitā rakṣitā, as if the pada-reading were -avitā instead of -avitāh. [W's Collation-book gives -avitāh as pada-reading without note of variant; and this the reading also of two or three of SPP's mss.: but he admits -avitā into his pada-text, following one or two mss.] RV. begins also kṛṇôta, and has vṛṣaṇam for vṛṣaṇas in a; also devāsas (rectifying the meter) in d. All the mss. [save one or two] read asahanta, unaccented, in d, but both editions make the necessary emendation to dsahanta — which, of course, RV. has. Ppp. is corrupt in d, reading devā 'santa*; after it çatrūn. *[A most interesting instance of haplography on the part of the AV.: cf. note to iv. 5.5. Note the fourfold occurrence of the sound-combination ās within the RV. pāda; and that three of these are reduced by Ppp. to one.]

3. O Agni, thou hast been born unto great heroism, unto the cooking of the brahman-rice-dish, O Jātavedas; the seven seers, being-makers—they have given thee birth; do thou confirm to this woman wealth with all heroes.

Ppp. reads paktaye in b, combines saptars- in c, and has in d asme and ni yachatām.

4. Kindled, O Agni, be thou kindled with kindling (samidh); mayest thou bring hither, knowing, the worshipful gods; for them cooking (crā) the oblation, O Jātavedas, make thou this man to ascend to the highest firmament (nāka).

Ppp. reads in b viçvā devān. In a, the comm. has samiddhah sa for sám idhyasva. [For d, cf. i. 9. 2, 4; vi. 63. 3.]

5. Threefold is set down the share that is yours of old—of gods, of Fathers, of mortals; know ye the portions (ánça); I share them out to you; that one that is the gods' shall set this woman across.

That is (at the end), as the comm. paraphrases it, istaphalasya pāram gamayati 'bring her to the further shore (the completion) of desired result.' Ppp. reads jātavedas in a for yah purā vah, inserts uta before martyānām in b, and has in d sāi 'vam for sa imām.

6. O Agni, powerful, overcoming, thou overcomest; put down (ni-ubj) [our] hating rivals; let this measure (mátrā), being measured, and measured, make [thy] fellows tribute-bringers to thee.

The comm. does not try to give ny ubja a more distinctive meaning than $adhomu-kh\bar{a}n$ $p\bar{a}taya$; the obscure $m\bar{a}tr\bar{a}$ he simply glosses by $nirm\bar{a}tr\bar{a}$ [as instrumental sing. masc. (supplying iyam $c\bar{a}l\bar{a}$ as subject); but the three translators take it as nom.].

7. In company with thy fellows, be thou united with milk; urge her up unto great heroism; ascend aloft to the summit (vistáp) of the firmament (ndka), which they call by the name heavenly world.

Addressed, according to the comm., to the sacrificer; the Kāuç. (61.20) makes it accompany the pouring of rice into the mortar. The comm. explains ud ubja as ud gamaya unnataçiraskām kuru. Ppp. reads sujātāiṣ in a, and viṣṭapas in c.

8. Let this great one (maht) accept the hide, the divine earth, with favoring mind; then may we go to the world of the well-done.

This accompanies, as is plain, the spreading-out of the ox-hide upon the ground (so Kāuç. 60. 30). Ppp. reads in b pṛthivyāi, and, at the end, sukṛtām u lokam. The last pāda is the same with vi. 121. 1 d; vii. 83.4 d.

9. Join thou on the hide these two allied stones; split apart the shoots $(a\dot{n}c\dot{u})$ successfully for the sacrificer; smiting down, smite them that would fight her; bearing up thy progeny aloft, lift up.

The feminine participles in \mathbf{c} , \mathbf{d} indicate that the verse is addressed to the wife of the sacrificer, though the comm. understands the first half as for the priest. $A\dot{n}\zeta u$ he regards as applied by a figure to the rice, as $gr\bar{a}v\bar{a}n\bar{a}u$ 'soma-pressing-stones,' means mortar and pestle. 'Smite down' and 'lift up' are the alternate movements of the pestle, each viewed as symbolical. $Im\bar{a}m$ is redundant in \mathbf{c} as regards both meter and sense; perhaps it has blundered in here out of 11 c. Ppp. is corrupt in c and d, but can be seen to read uddharantī in d. The verse and its parts are quoted in Kāuç. 61. 18, 22, 24.

10. Seize in thy hand, O hero, the two joint-acting (sakṛt) stones; the worshipful gods have come to thy sacrifice; three boons, which soever thou choosest—those successes do I here make successful for thee.

The comm. and one or two of SPP's authorities read $suk\acute{r}t\bar{a}u$ in a (Ppp. $sayuj\bar{a}$); $sak\acute{r}t$ is not elsewhere found used as an adjective. Ppp. further combines $hasta\ \bar{a}$ into $hast\bar{a}$ in a-b, and reads $yaj\bar{n}ey\bar{a}$ and ayus in b. The comm. renders te in b as if it were te. [The definition of the Anukr. may perhaps mean 'a $jagat\bar{t}$ of elevens ($vir\bar{a}d$ - $jagat\bar{t}$), which possesses a thirteen at the beginning, (and which is) deficient-by-two ($vir\bar{a}t$).']

11. This [is] thy thought (? dhīti) and this thy place of birth; let Aditi, of hero-sons, seize thee; cleanse away them that would fight her; confirm to her wealth with all heroes.

Said, according to Kāuç. (61.23), in connection with taking up the winnowing fan $(q\bar{u}rpa)$. The comm. explains $dh\bar{t}ti$ as $=p\bar{a}na$, taking it from the root $dh\bar{a}$ 'suck.' One would like to derive it from $dh\bar{a}$ 'put,' as 'place' or something similar. Ppp. reads at the end ni yachāt.

12. Sit ye in the wooden blower (? upaçvasá); be ye winnowed, worshipful ones, from the husks. By fortune (crt) may we surpass all [our] equals; I make [our] haters to fall under foot.

[The second half-verse recurs below, vs. 21.] The majority of SPP's authorities, and some of ours (P.M.W.O.s.m.R.T.) read thruvdye [Ppp. druye] in a; also the comm., who explains it as = dhruvāya sthirāya satyaphalāya karmane; upaçvasē [Ppp. upasvade] he absurdly takes for a verb: (he tandulā yuṣmān) upa samīpa āçvāsayāmi prabhūtān karomi! [The meaning 'das Blasen, Luftzug,' is assigned to it in OB. iii. 257 b.] [Ppp. reads pādayema at the end of d.] The verse accompanies (so Kāuç. 61. 29) the operation of winnowing. The comm. treats yajāiyāsas in b as nominative.

13. Go away, woman; come back quickly; the stall (goṣṭhá) of the waters hath ascended thee for bearing; seize then of them [f.] whichever shall be worshipful; having shared [them] out wisely, then leave the others.

The comm. explains gostha by jalarāçi; it is rather, doubtless, the vessel in which the water is brought, on the shoulder or head (adhi-ruh: comm. çirasi ā-ruh). [Cf. OB. iii. 261 b.] The comm. reads āsan at end of c. Ppp. combines yajāiā 'san in c, and in d reads vibhajya, and hvayīta for jahītāt. SPP. reads in b gostho 'dhy, with the majority of his authorities.

14. These maidens (yosit) have come, adorning themselves; stand up, woman, take hold of the mighty one; well-spoused with husband, progeny-possessing with progeny; to thee hath come the sacrifice; receive thou the vessel (kumbha).

The comm. explains the 'maidens' as the 'water-bringing women,' but they are evidently the waters (fem.) themselves: compare vss. 17, 27 below. The comm. reads tava sam, two separate words, in b; [Roth, in his Notes, adds that Ppp. reads tavas sam bharasva]; the 'mighty one' is the 'vessel' of d. Verses 13-15 are quoted in Kāuç. (60. 25-29), but not in natural sequence with the verses that precede and follow.

15. The portion of refreshment $(\hbar rj)$ [is] set down which [is] yours of old; do thou, instructed by the seer, bring these waters; let this sacrifice be for you progress-gaining $(g\bar{a}tu-vld)$, refuge-gaining, progeny-gaining, formidable, cattle-gaining, hero-gaining.

'Thou' in b is fem., the water-bearer, doubtless, of vs. 13. The 'yours' of a and the 'you' of d refer probably to those interested in the ceremony, though the comm. understands the former of the waters. Ppp. reads nihatas in a, combines and reads -stā 'pā 'harāi 'tāḥ in b, puts nāthavid before gātuvid in c, and elides vo 'stu in d.

16. O Agni, the worshipful pot hath ascended thee; bright (çúci), very hot, do thou heat it with heat; let those of the seers, those of the gods, gathering unto their share, very hot, heat this with the seasons.

The comm. understands the epithets in b as belonging to carús, which is doubtless wrong; those in c he understands of 'Brahmans' and 'attendants on Indra and the other gods'; without much question, the flames of Agni are intended. Ppp. reads in c devā 'bhisamhatya. The verse plainly accompanies the setting of the vessel for boiling on the fire: so Kāuç. 61.31; also 2.7.

17. Let these cleansed, purified, worshipful maidens, the waters, beauteous ones, creep down to the pot; they have given us abundant progeny, cattle; let the cooker of the rice-dish go to the world of the well-doers.

[Pāda a is identical with vs. 27 a and vi. 122. 5 a.] The mss. are about equally divided in c between bahulām and bahulān (our I.T.K.Kp. have the latter; O. has -lāmn); SPP. accepts the latter, we the former; the comm. has -lān; and he reads pakvā for paktā in d [or c]. Ppp. has dadat for adus in c, and eti for etu in d. The verse concerns the pouring in of the water: so Kāuç. 61. 34-5, and 2. 8.—[If we read bahulānç ca in c, and in d pakvāúdanasya as a compound (against the pada-division, which reckons paktā to c, and against the double accent) and u for etu, we get most acceptable sense and meter: lokām would be construed as coördinate with paçūn and pakvāúdanasya as coördinate with nas (cf. xi. 8. 10 c and Speyer, Vedische Syntax, § 71, end). The heroic surgery implies no worse corruptions than we have often seen. But this is all mere suggestion.]

18. Cleansed with prayer (bráhman) and purified with ghee, shoots of Soma [are] these worshipful rice-grains; enter ye the waters; let the pot receive you; having cooked this, go ye to the world of the well-doers.

A few mss. (including our O.) read etu for eta in d. Ppp. has instead eti; further, in a, utpūtās, and, in c, apa praviçyatu. The verse accompanies the pouring of the rice-grains into the water: so Kāuç. 61. 36, and 2. 9. [Read somānçāvas?] [The Anukr. seems to scan as 12 + 13 : 12 + 13 = 50; but the mark of pāda-division is after carur, not before it.]

19. Spread thyself broad, with great greatness, thousand-backed, in the world of the well-done: grandfathers, fathers, progeny, descendants (upajā): I am thy fifteen-fold cooker.

Fifteen-fold [cf. Skt. Gram. § 488], probably, as representing so many generations, or degrees of kindred. The verse accompanies the boiling [Kāuç. 61. 37: employed also in connection with other verses at 68. 27], and alludes apparently to the swelling of the mess in the process. Ppp. combines te^4smi at the end. The mss. vary between pakta and paktva in a (our T.K.Kp. have -ta); SPP. gives pakta, with the large majority of his authorities, and it is doubtless the true reading. The comm. has again pakva. [Correct the Berlin ed. to pakta.]

20. Thousand-backed, hundred-streamed, unexhausted, [is] the brahmán-rice-dish, god-traveled, heaven-going; them yonder I assign to thee; lessen (?) thou them with progeny; be gracious then to me [as] bringer of tribute.

Kāuç. makes no use of this parenthetical verse of praise, prayer, and imprecation. The comm. and two of SPP's authorities read reçaya in c, and the comment to Prāt. iii. 94 (though reading reṣayāi 'nān) quotes it as an example of a palatal or lingual or dental mute interposed between r and n, which would seem to imply recaya.* The comm. glosses his reçaya with leçaya alpīkuru, and, as the expression looks as if meant for the opposite to that in vs. 21 a, the translation has been made accordingly. [Ppp. reads akṣato at end of a.] [Where the Anukr. finds a pāda of 13 syllables I know not.— The one of 14 must be c: does para mean simply the second half-verse?] *[That is, it implies the mute (c) rather than the sibilant (c), the intervention of which was treated in the preceding rule, iii. 93.]

21. Go thou up to the sacrificial hearth; increase her with progeny; push [away] the demon; set her further forward; by fortune may we surpass all [our] equals; I make [our] haters to fall under foot.

The last half-verse is the same with vs. 12 c, d above. The whole evidently accompanies the bringing of the cooked dish to the place of offering: according to Kāuç. 61. 41, its removal from the fire. Ppp. reads enam at end of a, pratiram dhehy enam at end of b, paçyā for çriyā in c, and pādayema [cf. vs. 12] at end of d.

22. Turn thou toward her together with cattle; be opposite to her together with the divinities; let not curse attain thee, nor witchcraft (abhicārá); bear rule (vi-rāj) in thine own field (kṣétra), free from disease.

The comm. reads enān in both a and b. [All] the pada-mss. read anamīvāh in d [save SPP's J. prima manu: W's translation and the comm. imply $-v\bar{a}$, and this SPP. has adopted as his pada-reading]. Ppp. has in a prajayā sahāi 'nam, and, for c, d, a very different (and corrupt) text: svargo lokam abhi samvihīnam ādityo deva parame vyoma; [its b is corrupt]. According to Kāuç. 61. 42, with this verse the vessel is made to take a turn to the right. In b the duplication of \bar{n} before enām is overlooked in nearly all the mss., and SPP. admits in his text the ungrammatical combination.

23. Fashioned by righteousness (rtá), set by mind, this was ordained in the beginning the sacrificial hearth of the brahmán-rice-dish; apply,

O woman, the cleansed shoulder-bearer (?); on that set the rice-dish of them of the gods.

SPP. reads in c ansadrim, with rather the larger number of authorities (of our mss. Bp.P.M.W.I.K.Kp.), though only -dhrim seems to offer any etymology, and that an unsatisfactory one. The comm. has ançadhrim 'portion-holder,' which is perhaps the true reading. The pada-text leaves the word undivided. The mss. of Kāuç. (61.44), it may be noted, also vary between ansadhrim and -drim in quoting the pratika of the second half-verse. Dāivyānām would rectify the meter of d, but no ms. reads it, though two of SPP's, and the comm., give devānām. Ppp. reads in a manaso hite 'yam, in b nihantā for vihitā, in c açadhriyam, emended by another hand to -ddhiyam.

24. Aditi's hand, this second ladle (srúc), which the seven seers, being-makers, made—let that spoon, knowing the members of the rice-dish, collect it upon the sacrificial hearth.

The comm. reads in a hastam and dvittyam, indicating that he regards the adjective as qualifying hastām rather than srucam—which may well be the case. Ppp. [has hastām and] combines saptarṣayas.

25. Let them of the gods sit by thee, a cooked (çṛtá) oblation; having crept out of the fire, sit thou forward again to them; purified by soma, sit thou in the belly of the worshipers (brahmán); let not them of the seers, partakers (prāçitṛ) of thee, suffer harm.

Ppp. begins (rutain tvā havir, has for b anusrpyā 'gne punar enam pra srpyas (without any avasāna), reads in c-d brāhmanā ārscyās, and reads and combines ma rsain in d. The comm. [with two of SPP's authorities] reads devās at end of a, and treats te in d as té. Accompanies, according to Kāuc. 63. 3, the seating of 'four ārseyas, who know the bhrgvangiras' by the offering.

26. O king Soma, strew harmony for them, for whatsoever good Brahmans shall sit by thee; with good call, I call loudly to the brahmán-rice-dish the seers, them of the seers, born from penance (tápas).

In a-b, for -bhyah súbrāhmanās, Ppp. reads -bhyo brāhm- [intending perhaps ábrāhmanās? cf. vs. 32]; in c it has rṣīnām rṣayas tap-, and jātā (so also the comm.) for -tān; [and begins d with brāhmāudane]. The comm. understands suhavā in d as fem., and makes the sacrificer's wife the speaker. The verse is not quoted in Kāuç.; [but Keçava cites it just before vs. 25 in 63.3].

27. These cleansed purified worshipful maidens I seat in separate succession in the hands of the priests (brahmán); with what desire I now pour you on, may Indra here with the Maruts grant me that.

[Pāda a = vs. 17 a.] Nearly identical with vi. 122. 5, and slightly different from x. 9. 27. The verse is quoted by Kāuç. 63. 4; [so the comm.: under vi. 122. 5 he made the sūtra apply to that verse]. Ppp. has a wholly different a: iyam āpo madhumatī ghṛtaçcyuto; [it reads brāhmaṇā at beginning of b]; and combines yatkāme 'dam in c.

28. This my light (jyótis), immortal gold, cooked (pakvá) from the field, this my desire-milker; this riches I deposit in the Brahmans; I make a road to the Fathers that is heaven-going.

The construction of the nominatives in a, b is left undetermined in the translation, as it is in the text. [Cf. Griffith's version and note, p. 55.] Ppp. has hiranmayam in a, and yat svargāih at the end of d. The verse is quoted by Kāuç. at 62.22 and 68.27; and at 63.5 Kāuç. cites b [comm. b and c] as accompanying a removal of something (ity apakarṣati: it is not clear what; [the comm. thinks the rice-dish and reads upafor apa-]).

29. Strew thou the husks in the fire, in Jātavedas; wipe off far away the chaff (?kambūkān); this we have heard to be the share of the house-king; also we know the portion (bhāgadhēya) of Perdition (nirṛti).

Ppp. reads upa mṛḍhvayetām for apa mṛḍḍhi dūram in b. The comm. explains kambūkān as = phalīkaraṇān, and follows Kāuç. (63. 7) in regarding the 'wiping away' as done with the foot.

- 30. Know thou the toiling, cooking, soma-pressing one; make him to ascend the heaven-going road, by which he may ascend, arriving at the vigor that is beyond, to the highest firmament, to the furthest vault (vyòman).
- 'Know,' i.e. take note or be mindful of. The comm. takes the three participles in a as accus. pl. instead of gen. sing.; Land reads accordingly enān at end of b.]. Ppp. has, for b, svargam lokam adhi rohaye'nam, and omits d. The quotation in Kāuç. 63. 20 casts no light on the verse.
- 31. Wipe off, O serving priest (adhvaryú), this face of the bearing one (?babhrí); make thou, understanding it, room for the sacrificial butter; wipe off with ghee along all [its] members; I make a road to the Fathers that is heaven-going.

The real sense of the epithet babhri applied to the odana or rice-dish is obscure; the comm. explains it here with bharanaçīlasya poṣakasya pakvasya odanasya, 'supporting' or 'nourishing.' The comm. appears to read vidvān instead of pravidvān in b; Ppp. has prajānan. Ppp. has yat for yas in d. According to Kāuç. 62. 15, the verse accompanies the making of an āpāna (? the mss. vary as to the word) above (upari); which the comm. explains by odanasyo 'pari gartam kuryāt, glossing lokam in b with sthānam gartarūpam; what is meant is obscure.

32. O bearing one, [as] a demon, strew discord for them, for whatsoever non-Brahmans shall sit by thee; rich in ground (?purīṣin), spreading themselves forward, let not them of the seers, partakers of thee, suffer harm.

With the first half-verse compare vs. 26 a, b, above; the last pāda is the same with 25 d. The construction of rákṣas in a is doubtful; it might be vocative; the comm. combines it into a compound with samadam; and he treats te, as before, as if it were te. Ppp. reads at beginning of b, as our text in vs. 26, subrāhmaṇās. The verse is not quoted in Kāuç.

33. I set thee down, O rice-dish, among them of the seers; for them that are not of the seers there is no portion here; let Agni my guardian, and all the Maruts, let all the gods defend the cooked [offering].

- 'Is no portion for,' lit'ly 'is not also (api) of '—a common form of expression in the Brāhmaṇas. Ppp. reads rakṣanti in d. The verse is quoted with vs. 25 c in ç. 65. 12.
- 34. The offering, yielding milk (duh), constantly full (prápīna), a male (púmāis) milch-cow, seat of wealth, immortality through offspring, and a long life-time and may we sit by thee with abundance (pl.) of wealth.

The construction of the third pāda is very indeterminate; the words may be either nominative or accusative; they express in some way what the offering is to procure. To illustrate prajāmṛtatvam, the comm. quotes, quite appositely, TB. i. 5. 56 and RV. v. 4. 10, 'by progeny, O Agni, may I obtain immortality.' Prapīnam he explains as = pravrddhodhaskam, which is doubtless its true meaning. Ppp. reads in d posam for posāis.

Neither this nor the following verse, nor vs. 37, is quoted in Kāuç. [Cf. Henry's version, p. 102; and, for the awkward ca, his note, p. 139.]

35. Thou art a heaven-going bull; go to the seers, to them of the seers; sit in the world of the well-doing; there is there preparation (samskṛtá) for us both.

[Prose.] Ppp. reads readhas at the beginning, and lokam for loke in c. With the second half-verse is to be compared TS. i. 4. 43², and MS. i. 3. 37 (end) and iv. 8. 2 (end), which read: sukftām loké sīdata tán nah samskrtām; and VS. iv. 34 has the last pāda, reading tán for tátra. The pada-texts do not divide samskrtam; the case falls under rule iv. 58 of the AV. Prāt.

36. Gather thou together unto, go thou together forth after; O Agni, make ready (kalpay-) the roads traveled by the gods; by them, well-made, may we go after the offering, that stands upon the seven-rayed firmament.

All the mss. [save one or two of SPP's] leave agne unaccented, as if it belonged to a, and Bp. puts the double division-mark after it accordingly; SPP. reads with the [majority of his] mss.; we have made the necessary emendation to agne. Ppp. reads at the beginning samātanuṣva; for c it has yebhis sukṛtāir anu prajūeṣṭhans sa yajūe. The comm. regards a as addressed to the rice-dish, which is to 'gather up' all its members. The verse is quoted in Kāuç. 63. 9, but not in a way to cast any light upon it. TS.iv. 7. 134 and MS.ii. 12. 4 are to be compared with the first half-verse, but they vary much from it and from one another.

37. With what light the gods went up to the sky, having cooked the brahmán-rice-dish, to the world of the well-done, with that may we go to the world of the well-done, ascending the heaven, unto the highest firmament.

The second half-verse is identical with iv. 14.6 c, d, above [see my note]. The comm. reads jesma in c, explaining it by jayema [= prāpnuyāma]. Ppp. has, instead of this repetition, a new half-verse: tain tvā pacāmi jyotisām jyotir uttamam sa nas tad dhehi sukrtām u loke.

2. To Rudra, especially as Bhava and Carva.

Found also in Pāipp. xvi. — * [Verses 9 and 28 are tristubh, the remaining 29 being exceptions!]

[The pratika coincides with that of xi. 6. 9, bhavāçarvāv idam brūmah, and that of iv. 28, bhávāçarvāu manvé vām: see introduction to the latter. The only quotation in Vāit. is at 29. 10, where the hymn accompanies an offering to Rudra: and it is accordingly reckoned to the rāudra gana (note to Kāuç. 50. 13). Verse 31 is reckoned to the abhaya gana (note to Kāuç. 16. 8). Further citations in Kāuç. are as follows: the hymn is used (129. 3) with an oblation in deprecating an evil omen; Dārila understands it as meant at 28. 8 (see introd. to iv. 28); Keçava and the comm. hold that it is to be used with a dozen other hymns in a rite (50. 13-14) for safety on a business journey; Keçava (not the comm.) takes it to be intended with v. 6 at 51. 7 in a rite for the safety of the cattle. — According to Caland's interpretation of yuktayos at 50. 17, it is to be used (with vi. 128) in the rite there prescribed for keeping snakes etc. from house and field; but perhaps iii. 26 and 27 are rather intended (see my introduction to iii. 26).]

Translated: Muir, iv. 334; Ludwig, p. 549; Henry, 103, 139; Griffith, ii. 57; Bloomfield, 155, 618. — Cf. also Bergaigne-Henry, Manuel, p. 157; and von Schroeder, Tübinger Kaṭha-hss., p. 14–15, where the text corresponding to our verses 1–9 and 13 and 16 is given.

1. O Bhava-and-Çarva, be gracious; do not go against [us]; ye lords of beings, lords of cattle, homage to you! [the arrow] that is fitted, that is drawn, do not let fly; do not harm our bipeds nor quadrupeds.

The comm. first explains $m\tilde{a}$ in a as if it were $m\bar{a}$, object of abhi yātam, and then, alternatively, in its proper sense. [For $\tilde{a}yata$, see note to vi. 65. 1.]

- 2. Make ye not bodies for the dog, the jackal, for the buzzards (?aliklava), the vultures, and them that are black [and] greedy (aviṣyú); let thy flies, lord of cattle, let thy birds not find themselves at food.
- 'Bodies' (cartra) must be taken here in the sense of 'dead bodies.' The accent of kartam is, though rather strange, not indefensible, as in the former of two parallel clauses; the comm. reads instead kartum. Allklava is found only here and in 9.9, and is rendered purely conjecturally; the comm. reads instead aviklabebhyas, and Ppp. ariklavebhyas. All the pada-mss. separate māvidanta at the end into mā: avidanta; SPP., in his pada-text, makes, with the comm., the necessary emendation to vid. The construction and sense of d are obscure and doubtful; Ppp. has a wholly different reading: viçase mā viçyantu.
- 3. Unto thy noise (?kránda), [thy] breath, and what pangs (?rópi) are thine, O Bhava homage we pay to thee that art thousand-eyed, O Rudra, immortal one.

The comm. glosses krandāya with krandanāya çabdāya, and ropayas with ropayitryo mohayitryas tanvah; he reads at the end amartyas, explaining it as used for a dative.

4. We pay thee homage in front, above, also below; forth from the sphere of the sky, homage [be] to thine atmosphere.

The comm. explains abhīvargā as = $avakāçātmaka \bar{a}k\bar{a}çah$. The verse is mostly wanting in Ppp.

5. To thy face, O lord of cattle; the eyes that thou hast, O Bhava; to [thy] skin, form, aspect, to thee standing opposite [be] homage.

Or 'to thy mouth,' instead of 'face.' The comm. paraphrases praticināya with pratyagātmarūpiņe.

6. To thy members, belly, tongue, thy mouth, to thy teeth, smell, [be] homage.

Ppp. (omitting the first te) combines $a\bar{n}gebhyo$ 'darāya and $jihv\bar{a}y\bar{a}$ "syāya [and reads ca for te at end of b].

7. With the blue-locked archer, the thousand-eyed, vigorous, with Rudra, the half-smiter (?) — with him may we not come into collision (sam-r).

Ardhaka-ghātin, in c, is met with only here, and is of obscure meaning; the comm. says senāyā ardham hantum çīlam asya, i.e. 'able to destroy half an army at once.' No variant is reported from Ppp. Lin the Collation: but in his Notes, Roth does report adhvaga-]; the minor Pet. Lex. says "Ppp. adhvaga-," and itself conjectures andhaka-. LCf. the notes of Henry, Griffith, Bloomfield. The Kaṭha reading, however, should now be taken into account; and that has in fact adhvaga-: see Kaṭha-hss., p. 155. Ppp. has at the end samarāmasi.

8. Let this Bhava avoid us on every side; as fire the waters, let Bhava avoid us; let him not plot against us; homage be to him.

Ppp. reads $\bar{a}p\bar{a}i$ ' $v\bar{a}$ 'gnis pari in b, and combines no abhi in c. The comm. has in c the regular form mansta; but long \bar{a} in this tense occurs a couple of times in other texts also.

9. Four times [catús] homage, eight times, to Bhava; ten times, O lord of cattle, be homage to thee; thine are shared out these five creatures (paçú) — cows, horses, men, sheep and goats.

All the mss. agree in the inconsistent readings astakṛtvas and dáça kṛtvas (cf. Prāt. iv. 27); SPP. regards the comm. as having daçakṛtvas as a compound, but I do not see on what ground. Ppp. reads in d gāvo 'çvās purusāṇd aj-.

10. Thine are the four directions, thine the heaven, thine the earth, thine, O formidable one, this wide atmosphere, thine is all this that has life $(\bar{a}tm\acute{a}n)$, that is breathing upon $(\acute{a}nu)$ the earth.

Ppp. omits tava pṛthivī, thus rectifying the meter; and it has for d yad ejad adhī bhūmyām.

11. This wide vessel, holder of good things, is thine, within which are all these beings; do thou be gracious to us, O lord of cattle; homage to thee; away let the jackals, the portents (abhibhá), the dogs go, away the weepers of evil with disheveled hair.

The comm. identifies the vessel (koça) with the andakaṭāha, the shell of the world-egg. He takes abhibhās as = abhibhavitāras, and epithet of krosṭāras, and agharudas as = amaūgalam yathā bhavati tathā rodanam kurvatyah; [but see viii. 1. 19 and references]. [The meter of b would be rectified by reading viçvāni in place of imā

12. Thou bearest a yellow golden bow, a thousand-slaying, hundred-weaponed, O tufted one; Rudra's arrow goes, a god-missile; to that be homage, in whichever direction from here.

SPP. reads in b sahasraghni, with the majority of his authorities; none of ours have it, but P.M.W. have -ghnyam, with two of SPP's mss., and with the comm. [cf. note to x. 4. 7 and Henry's note]; Ppp. gives -ghni. The comm. has cikhandi at end of b.

13. He who, attacked (abhi-yā), hides himself, [who] tries to put thee down, O Rudra, him from behind thou pursuest, like the tracker (? padant) of one that is pierced.

With the last pāda compare x. 1. 26 b; the expression is apparently a familiar or proverbial one: [cf. Manu viii. 44, 'as the hunter follows the track (padain nayati) of a deer by the drops of blood'; also Dhammapada, vss. 179, 180]. Ppp. reads ugra instead of rudra in b.

14. Bhava-and-Rudra, allied, in concord, both go about, formidable, unto heroism; to them be homage, in whichever direction from here.

Ppp., instead of repeating vs. 12 d, reads tayor bhūmim antarikṣam swar dyāus tābhyām namo bhavamatyāya [cf. vs. 19 a?] kṛṇva. The comm. explains vṛryāya [alternatively] by svavṛryaprakaṭanārtham, which is doubtless correct.

15. Homage be to thee coming, homage be [to thee] going away; homage to thee, O Rudra, standing; to thee sitting also [be] homage.

SPP's text has in a te 'stv, with about half of his authorities. The verse is repeated as 4.7, below, with prāna for rudra in c; Ppp. reads prāna in both places. The first half-verse is found in AÇS. i. 12.34 and Ap. ix. 2.9, in both with rudra for astu in b.

- 16. Homage in the evening, homage in the morning, homage by night, homage by day; to Bhava and to Çarva, to both have I paid homage.
- 17. With the thousand-eyed one, seeing across in front, with Rudra, hurling in many places, inspired one, may we not come in collision, as he goes about (*tya-) with the tongue.

The comm. paraphrases atipaçyám with atiçayenā 'tikramya vā paçyati (the word is omitted in both Pet. Lexx.), and connects purastāt either with it or with asyantam; jihvāyé "yamānam he explains as jihvāgrena kṛtsnam jagad vyāpnuvantam bhakṣanārtham lihantam, which is rather absurd; perhaps jihvayā (so Ludwig) belongs rather to 'we': 'we, by what we say.'

18. We go forward (ptirva) to meet him of dark horses, black, swarthy, killing, fearful, making to fall the chariot of the hairy one (keçin); homage be to him.

The comm. understands the connection as here given, making keçin the name of an Asura; Ludwig takes ratham as object of prati 'mas and the other words as its epithets. LPpp. reads ¿yāvāsyam at the beginning, and has, in b, bhīmo and pārayantam.

19. Do not let fly at us the club (? matya), the god-missile; be not angry at us, O lord of cattle; homage to thee; elsewhere than [over] us shake out the heavenly bough.

The bough, namely (so it would seem), from which the portents that fall from the sky appear to be shaken by a hostile divinity. The comm. reads martyam instead of matyam in a. He recognizes that $sr\bar{a}s$ (i.e. $sr\bar{a}[ks]s$) is from root srj (" = vi srja"). Ppp. has $sr\bar{a}$ m. devahitam in a.

20. Do not harm us; bless us; avoid us; be not angry; let us not come into collision with thee.

Ppp. omits nas before brūhi in a, and has at the end arāmasi (as in vs. 7).

21. [Be] not [greedy] for our kine, our men; be not greedy for our goats and sheep; elsewhere, O formidable one, roll forth [thy missile]; smite the progeny of the mockers (piyāru).

The insertion in c seems unavoidable; the comm. [in a passage restored by SPP.?] supplies tava hetim; Ludwig, deinen Pfeil. [Ppp. inserts 'queşu before goşu.]

22. Of whom the takmán, the $kásik\bar{a}$, goes as one weapon, like the noise of a stallion horse, to him, leading out in succession, be homage.

The verse is very obscure, and the translation mechanical; Ppp. reads, in a-b, $ek\bar{a}$ 'cvasya, and this reading is followed; the comm. supplies, to ekam, $apak\bar{a}rinam$ purusam, and makes it object of $eti = pr\bar{a}pnoti$. Ludwig understands nirnayate as 'extracting arrows from the quiver.' [As for $v\dot{r}sanas$, cf. JAOS. x. 534, 524.]

23. He who stands propped up in the atmosphere, killing the non-sacrificing, the god-mockers — to him be homage with the ten clever ones (çákvarī).

The 'ten clever ones' are probably the fingers: cf. v. 28. 11; the comm. glosses the word with $a\bar{n}gulibhis$, as = $karmasu\ caktabhih$. Ppp. begins yas tisthati viçvabhrto antarikse 'yajvanaş pra-.

24. To thee are assigned the forest animals $\lfloor paçú \rfloor$, the wild beasts in the woods, the geese (hansá), eagles, hawks, birds; thine, O lord of cattle, is the monster (?yaksá) within the waters; for thine increase flow the waters of the heaven.

Ppp. reads, for b, tubhyam vayānsi çakunās patatrinah, elides the a of apsu in c, and combines divyā "po in d. The comm. has mrdhe at the end, explaining it as = undanāya. He takes yaksam as = $p\bar{u}jyam$ svarūpam, but does not give any reason why, etymological or other. [Our a is nearly xii. 1.49 a (with the same redundancy of a dissyllable), and b is precisely xii. 1.51 b: for paçavas, cf. also iii. 31.3, xi. 5.21, and iii. 10.6 note.]

25. The dolphins (cincumara), boas (ajagara), purīkāyas, jashās, fishes, rajasās, at which thou hurlest: there is no distance for thee nor hindrance for thee, O Bhava; at once thou lookest over the whole earth; from the eastern thou smitest in the northern ocean.

Ppp. begins siçumārā 'jagarāh purīṣayā jagā mat-. The comm. has pulīkayās (like MS.); he takes rajasā (p. -sāḥ) as if it were the instr. sing. rājasā; he passes jaṣās and mātṣyās without mention, but defines çinçumāra as 'a kind of crocodile (nakra)' and ajagara as 'a kind of serpent.' For jaṣās, some of the mss. (including our Bp.P.M.W.) have jakhās, one or two (including our l.) have jaghās, and one of SPP's jhaṣās; doubtless it is the sea-monster called later jhaṣa. Nearly all the mss. have sārvān in d (only our B. [and D.Kp.?] and two of SPP's sārvām), and SPP's text accordingly admits it, though it seems an evident error, and the comm. reads -vām. Most of the pada-mss. resolve pariṣṭhāsti into-sthā: āsti (instead of asti). We are surprised to find a 'northern' ocean spoken of, and set over against the 'eastern' one [cf. xi. 5.6], but úttara cannot well mean anything else. Consistency requires the reading-smint sam- in e, but the t is accidentally omitted in our text, and SPP's also leaves it out.

26. Do not, O Rudra, unite (sam-srj) us with the takmán, not with poison, not with the fire of heaven; elsewhere than [on] us make that lightning fall.

The comm. again correctly paraphrases sam srāh with sam srja.

27. Bhava is master (iq) of the heaven, Bhava of the earth; Bhava has filled the wide atmosphere; to him be homage, in whichever direction from here.

All our mss., and nearly all SPP's, strangely read tásyāi at beginning of c, as ff governed by the example of vs. 12 d. SPP. emends to tásmāi in his text, with the comm. and less than a quarter of his authorities; [and the translation implies the change]. Ppp. has a different c: tasya vā (with nā written over it) prāpad duchunā kā cane 'ha; it also combines bhavā "papra [urv] in b.

- 28. O king Bhava, be gracious to the sacrificer, for thou hast become cattle-lord of cattle; whoever has faith, saying "the gods are," be thou gracious to his bipeds [and] quadrupeds.
- 29. Not our great one, and not our small, not our carrying one, and not those that will carry, not our father and mother do thou harm; our own self $(tan\hat{u})$, O Rudra, do not injure.

The verse occurs also as RV. i. 114.7; VS. xvi. 15; TS. iv. 5. 102; TA. x. 52, with úkṣantam and ukṣitám for váhantam and vakṣyatás in b; vadhīs for hinsīs and mó 'tá mātáram for mātáram ca in c; and, for d, mā naḥ priyās (TS.TA. priyā mā nas) tanvò rudra rīriṣaḥ. The comm. has vakṣatas in b. [Ppp. has, for b, mā na kṣīyanta uta mā no akṣata.]

30. To Rudra's howl-making, unhymned-swallowing (?), great-mouthed dogs I have paid this homage.

The obscure asamsūktagila (Ppp. -girebhyas) is paraphrased by the comm. with asamīcīnam açobhanavacanam gṛṇanti bhāṣante. How asamsūkta should come to mean 'unmasticated,' as given in the Pet. Lexx., does not appear. The translation given conjectures 'not having a hymn with it.' The comm. reads elavak- in a.

31. Homage to thy noisy ones, homage to thy hairy ones, homage to those to whom homage is paid, homage to the jointly-enjoying—homage, [namely], O god, to thine armies; welfare [be] to us, and fearlessness to us.

The adjectives are fem., as belonging to senābhyas. Ppp. disagrees with our text in the last two thirds of the verse, but is corrupt. The comm. reads cana at the end. [The vs., as noted above, is quoted in the first abhaya gaṇa (note to 16.8).]

[Here ends the first anuvāka, with 2 hymns and 68 verses. The quoted Anukr. says tathāi 'va rāudre 'pi parās tu vinçateḥ, designating the hymn as a "Rudra-hymn."]

3. Extolling the rice-dish (odaná).

[Atharvan. — trayah paryāyāh.]

[Prose, except vss. 19-22.] A corresponding passage is found in Pāipp. xvi., but so different in detail that it would require to be given in full for comparison; and this has not been done.

SPP., without any good reason,* counts the three paryāyas or divisions of this hymn as so many independent hymns, thus not only defacing the structure of the book, but defeating all the references that had been made to it in lexicons and elsewhere.

- *[Whether Whitney's condemnation of SPP's procedure is justified or not may be decided when all the facts are before us. Some of them have been put together by me, above, pages 610, 611, which see.]
- [The hymn is not cited by Vāit.; nor in the text of Kāuç., unless vs. 31 is meant at 62.8: but Keçava (p. 3531) cites it for use in witchcraft practices (so the comm.), and also (p. 3652) for use in the bṛhaspati sava (so comm.).

Translated: Henry, 106, 145; Griffith, ii. 61. — Cf. especially Henry's introduction, p. 145. The rice-dish, hot and yellow and nourishing, is a symbol of the sun (cf. vs. 50); its ingredients and the utensils used in making it are identified with all sorts of things in the most grotesque manner of the Brāhmaṇas.

[Paryāya I. — ekatrinçat. bārhaspatyāudanadevatyam. 1, 14. āsurī gāyatrī; 2. 3-p. samaviṣamā gāyatrī; 3, 6, 10. āsurī pankti; 4, 8. sāmny anuṣṭubh; 5, 13, 15, 25. sāmny uṣṇih; 7, 19-22. prājāpatyā 'nuṣṭubh; 9, 17, 18. āsury anuṣṭubh; 11. bhurig ārcy anuṣṭubh; 12. yājuṣī jagatī; 16, 23. āsurī bṛhatī; 24. 3-p. prājāpatyā bṛhatī; 26. ārcy uṣṇih; 27.; [28, 29.] sāmnī bṛhatī (29. bhurij); 30. yājuṣī triṣṭubh; 31. alpaçaḥ (?) panktir uta yājuṣī.]

1. Of this rice-dish Brihaspati is the head, Brahman the mouth (múkha).

The comm. combines in part two or three verses of the first paryaya together in giving his explanations.

- 2. Heaven-and-earth are the ears, sun-and-moon the eyes, the seven seers the breaths-and-expirations.
 - 3. Sight (cákṣus) the pestle, desire (kāma) the mortar.
- 4. Diti the winnowing basket, Aditi the basket-holder; the wind winnowed (apa-vic).
 - 5. Horses the corns (káṇa), kine the grains (taṇdulá), flies the husks.
 - 6. Kábru the hulls, the cloud the stalk (çára).

The comm. reads kabhru, and gives a forced etymology, from ka 'head' and bhrū 'brow'; he also has çiras for çáras, and this reading is found in some of the mss. (including our B.p.m., E.s.m., O.p.m. | and some of SPP's |).

7. Dark metal its flesh, red its blood (lóhita).

That is, doubtless, iron and copper respectively.

8. Tin [its] ash, greens (? háritam) [its] color, blue lotus (púskara) its smell.

The comm. glosses hárita with heman 'gold.' [Over "greens" W. has interlined "gold? (so BR.)." He rendered hárita by "the yellow one" at v. 28. 5, 9.]

9. The threshing-floor [its] receptacle, the two splints (sphya) [its] shoulders, the two poles $(\bar{\imath}sa)$ [its] spines $(an\bar{\imath}kya)$.

The comm. reads sphāu, and defines as pravṛddhāu dhānyādhārasya çakaṭasyā 'vayavāu; and he defines anūkyè as ansayor madhyadehasya ca samdhī. Bp. reads içé for isé.

10. Entrails [its] neck-ropes (? jatrú), intestines [its] straps.

Jatrú is rendered with the commentary, who explains it as anadudgrīvāṇām çakaṭa-yojanārthā rajjavaḥ.

11. This very earth is the vessel (kumbht) of the finishing $(r\bar{a}dh)$ ricedish, heaven the cover.

[W. interlines a query over "finishing." The comm. renders radh- by pacyamānasya.]

12. The furrows [its] ribs, gravel the content of [its] bowels.

The comm. reads ūvadhyam.

13. Righteousness (rtd) [its] hand-washing, the brook ($kuly\bar{a}$) [its] pouring-on.

In order to force a parallelism into it, the comm. explains rta as a 'name for water,' and as signifying 'all the water that is found in the world.' The Pet. Lex., on the other hand, conjectures 'family custom' for $kuly\hat{a}$; it is translated above as if $= kuly\hat{a}$, as the comm. takes it.

- 14. With sacred verse $(\dot{r}c)$ is the vessel put on, with priesthood sent forth;
- 15. With sacredness (bráhman) seized about, with sacred chant (sáman) carried about.

For the sake of the parallelism again, the comm. makes 'priesthood' indicate the Yajur-Veda, and 'sacredness' the Brahma-Veda of the Atharvans.

16. Bṛhát the stirring-stick, rathamtará the spoon.

The comm. paraphrases āyavana with udake praksiptānām tandulānām miçranasādhanam kāstham.

- 17. The seasons the cooks; they of the seasons kindle fire.
- 18. Heat (gharmá) burns upon the pot of five openings, the boiler (ukhá).
- 19. By the rice-dish of him who hath an offering (?) all worlds are to be obtained together.

The translation implies emendation of the unintelligible $yaj\hbar avacas$ to $yaj\hbar avatas$, the Ppp. reading, as reported in the minor Pet. Lex. [and Roth's notes]. The comm. explains the word as $= yaj\hbar \bar{a}ir \ agnistom \bar{a}dibhih \ pr\bar{a}ptavyatveno$ 'cyamānah.

- 20. In which [rice-dish] are set (critá), one below the other, the three, sea, sky, earth.
 - 21. In the remnant (úchiṣṭa) of which took shape six times eighty gods. The comm. paraphrases akalpanta by samarthā vīryavanto bhavan.
 - 22. Thee here I ask of the rice-dish, what is its great greatness.
 - 23. He who may know the greatness of the rice-dish —
- 24. May not say "[it is] little," not "[it is] without onpouring," nor "[it is] this thing soever."

Upasecana is explained by the comm. as 'milk, butter, curd, or the like, that is poured on'— we might render by 'sauce.'

- 25. As much as the giver may set his mind upon, that one should not overbid (ati-vad).
- 26. The theologues (brahmavādin) say: hast thou eaten (pra-aç) the rice-dish as it was retiring (párāñc), or as it was coming on (pratyáñc)?

The pluta- or protracted syllables in this and the next verse are quoted in Prāt. i. 105, but nothing is said as to their accentuation, from which it seems most plausible to infer that the protraction made no difference in the accent; and though in the Brāhmaṇas a protracted syllable is always accented [see Gram. § 78 a], that is not the invariable rule in the Vedic texts (thus, only once among the three instances occurring in RV.). Here the mss. are greatly at variance. [SPP's V. (a then living crotriya) read prācish; and by his ms. De the reading prācih3 is given secunda manu. Among our mss., O.R.Kp. (and E.?) give prācih3. SPP. reports that 16 of his authorities agree in giving pratyāncā3m; and (apart from the presence or position of the 3) this seems to be the reading of many of W's mss.] SPP's text gives an accent to the protracted syllable in both cases in both vs. 26 and vs. 27.—[SPP's pada-reading in vs. 26 is prā:āci3h, and in 27 it is prā:āci3h. An accented ā in āci3h would require praoāci3h (cf. vs. 28); but one does not see why the ā should be accented.]

27. Hast thou eaten the rice-dish, or the rice-dish thee?

The mss. again disagree as to the accent of $pr\bar{a}_{\zeta}i3s$, the majority (including our Bp.P.M.) having $pr\bar{a}_{\zeta}i3s$; as odaná happens to have its natural accent on the final, there is no discordance as to odanā3h.

- 28. If thou hast eaten it retiring, thy breaths (prāṇā) will quit thee: so one says to him.
- 29. If thou hast eaten it coming on, thine expirations (apāná) will quit thee: so one says to him.
 - 30. Not I, indeed, [have eaten] the rice-dish, nor the rice-dish me.
 - 31. The rice-dish itself hath eaten the rice-dish.

* The text of the Anukr. reads enam anyābhyām çrotrābhyām (= a of 33) ity āditaḥ saptadaçā "rcyanuṣṭubhaḥ. The definition applies (perhaps with occasional forcing) to 14 of the 17 first avasānas of vss. 33-49. As for the other 3, the a of 38 and the a of 41 are accurately defined above, in the first line of the Anukr. excerpts for this paryāya; and the a of 37, in the definition next following the asterisk.

The second paryāya of this hymn is reckoned in the Anukr. as of 72 divisions in 18 ganas or paragraphs; but the actual division in the mss. is into 126 such divisions (7 to each gana), as given in both editions; and the metrical description of the Anukr. (as reported above) is also on that basis.

[The division of this paryāya into 72 avasānas. — In his Critical Notice, p. 20-21, at the beginning of his first volume, SPP. treats of this matter; and just after the end (p. 356) of the text of his third volume, he prints again this paryāya, but divided into 72 avasānas "according to the instructions contained in the Sarvānukramaṇikā" which he had printed in the Critical Notice, l.c.

[The Major Anukr. calls the 18 main divisions of this paryāya (answering to the "verses" of the Berlin ed.) by the name of dandakas. Since the dandakas are all subdivided, they are also (see p. 472) called ganas. Each dandaka falls into 7 subdivisions or avasānas, which may be designated as a, b, c, d, e, f, g. Each of these 7 is written out and counted for the first and last dandaka (vss. 32 and 49, Berlin).

[Similarly, in a sequence of refrains or anuṣañgas, the refrain is given and counted as an avasāna only for its first and last occurrence in that sequence. The third subdivision (or c: beginning tam vā aham) of each daṇḍaka, being unvaried throughout the paryāya, constitutes a sequence of 18 and is given and counted independently only for vss. 32 and 49; while for the 16 vss., 33-48, it is given (see SPP. in vol. iii.) and counted as one with b, thus making the avasāna to consist of b-c.— In like manner, the sixth subdivision (or f: beginning eṣa vā odanaḥ) and the seventh subdivision (or g: beginning sarvāñga eva), being unvaried throughout, constitute a sequence of 18 and are given and counted independently only for vss. 32 and 49; while for the other 16 vss. they are counted as one with e, thus making the avasāna to consist of e-g.

[Furthermore, and on the other hand, subdivision e varies as to its beginning between tenāi 'nam, tayāi 'nam, and tāir enam, and tābhyām enam: but we find no unvaried sequences of more than two except tenāi 'nam etc. in the 5 vss., 39-43, and tābhyām enam etc. in the 5 vss., 44-48. For vss. 40, 41, 42, accordingly, and for vss. 45, 46, 47, as well, not only is \mathbf{f} - \mathbf{g} reckoned to \mathbf{e} , but also \mathbf{e} - \mathbf{f} - \mathbf{g} is reckoned as an anuṣañga to \mathbf{d} , thus making the avasāna to consist of \mathbf{d} - \mathbf{g} .

[For these six verses, therefore, arranged and counted as 3 avasānas (a, b-c, d-g), we have the reckoning $6 \times 3 = 18$. — For verses 32 and 49 (counted as a, b, c, d, e, f, g, as above noted), we have the reckoning $2 \times 7 = 14$. — And for the remaining ten verses, we have the arrangement and count, a, b-c, d, e-g, or $10 \times 4 = 40$. This gives us (18 + 14 + 40 =) 72, which is the count, not only of the Major Anukr., but of the Old Anukr. or Paācapātalikā as well.

32. If [ca] thou hast eaten it with another head than that (tâtas) with which the ancient seers ate this, thy progeny, from the oldest down, will die: so one says to him; it verily I [have] not [eaten] coming hither (arvānc), nor retiring, nor coming on; with Brihaspati [as] head, therewith have I eaten it, therewith have I made it go; this rice-dish, verily, is whole-limbed, whole-jointed, whole-bodied; whole-limbed, whole-jointed, whole-bodied becometh he who knoweth thus.

The pada-reading of praçis in a is praoaçih.

- 33. If thou hast eaten it with other ears than those [tâtas] with which the ancient seers ate this, thou wilt become deaf: thus one says to him; it verily [have] I not [eaten] coming hither, nor retiring, nor coming on; with heaven-and-earth as ears, with them have I eaten it, with them have I made it go etc. etc.
- 34. If thou hast eaten it with other eyes than those with which the ancient seers ate this, thou wilt become blind: thus one says to him; it verily [have] I not [eaten] coming hither, nor retiring, nor coming on; with sun-and-moon as eyes, with them have I eaten it, with them etc. etc.

All the mss. read sūryācandramasābhyām, which SPP. has very properly retained in his text; ours was altered to agree with vi. 128. 3, but the alteration should have been the other way.

- 35. If thou hast eaten it with another mouth (múkha) than that with which the ancient seers ate this, thy progeny will die from in front (mukhatás): thus one says to him; it verily [have] I not [eaten] coming hither, nor retiring, nor coming on; with bráhman as mouth, therewith have I etc. etc.
- 36. If thou hast eaten it with another tongue than that with which the ancient seers ate this, thy tongue will die: thus one says to him; it verily [have] I not [eaten] coming hither, nor retiring, nor coming on; with Agni's tongue, therewith have I etc. etc.
- 37. If thou hast eaten it with other teeth than those with which the ancient seers ate this, thy teeth will fall out (çad): thus one says to him; it verily [have] I not [eaten] coming hither, nor retiring, nor coming on; with the seasons as teeth, therewith have I etc. etc.

The comm. reads satsyanti for çatsyanti.

38. If thou hast eaten it with other breaths-and-expirations than those with which the ancient seers ate this, breaths-and-expirations will quit thee: thus one says to him; it verily [have] I not [eaten] coming hither, nor retiring, nor coming on; with the seven seers as breaths-and-expirations, therewith have I etc. etc.

The mss., as usual, are divided between saptarsibhis and saptarsi- in this verse; SPP. adopts the former.

39. If thou hast eaten it with another bulk (vyácas) than that with which the ancient seers ate this, the king-yákshma will slay thee: thus one says to him; it verily [have] I not [eaten] coming hither, nor retiring, nor coming on; with the atmosphere as bulk, therewith have I etc. etc.

The comm. explains vyacasā by vyāptimatā rūpena.

- 40. If thou hast eaten it with another back than that with which the ancient seers ate this, the lightning will slay thee: thus one says to him; it verily [have] I not [eaten] coming hither, nor retiring, nor coming on; with the sky as back, therewith have I etc. etc.
- 41. If thou hast eaten it with another breast than that with which the ancient seers ate this, thou wilt not prosper with plowing: thus one says to him; it verily [have] I not [eaten] coming hither, nor retiring, nor coming on; with the earth as breast, therewith have I etc. etc.
- 42. If thou hast eaten it with another belly than that with which the ancient seers ate this, the colic (? udaradārá) will slay thee: thus one says to him; it verily [have] I not [eaten] coming hither, nor retiring, nor coming on; with truth as belly, therewith have I etc. etc.

The comm. explains udaradāra as udarasya daranātmako 'tīsārākhyo rogaḥ, or diarrhœa.

- 43. If thou hast eaten it with another bladder than that with which the ancient seers ate this, thou wilt die in the waters: thus one says to him; it verily [have] I not [eaten] coming hither, nor retiring, nor coming on; with the ocean as bladder, therewith have I etc. etc.
- 44. If thou hast eaten it with other thighs than those with which the ancient seers ate this, thy thighs will die: thus one says to him; it verily [have] I not [eaten] coming hither, nor retiring, nor coming on; with the thighs of Mitra-and-Varuna, therewith have I etc. etc.
- 45. If thou hast eaten it with other knees (aṣṭhīvánt) than those with which the ancient seers ate this, thou wilt become lame: thus one says to him; it verily [have] I not [eaten] coming hither, nor retiring, nor coming on; with Tvashṭar's knees, therewith have I etc. etc.
- 46. If thou hast eaten it with other feet than those with which the ancient seers ate this, thou wilt be much-wandering: thus one says to him; it verily [have] I not [eaten] coming hither, nor retiring, nor coming on; with the feet of the two Açvins, therewith have I etc. etc.

47. If thou hast eaten it with other front-feet than those with which the ancient seers ate this, a serpent will slay thee: thus one says to him; it verily [have] I not [eaten] coming hither, nor retiring, nor coming on; with Savitar's front-feet, therewith have I etc. etc.

Read in our text savitúh in d (an accent-mark slipped out of place).

- 48. If thou hast eaten it with other hands than those with which the ancient seers ate this, thou wilt slay a Brahman: thus one says to him; it verily [have] I not [eaten] coming hither, nor retiring, nor coming on; with the hands of righteousness (rtá), therewith have I etc. etc.
- 49. If thou hast eaten it with another firm standing (pratistha) than that with which the ancient seers ate this, without firm standing, without support (āyátana) wilt thou die: thus one says to him; it verily [have] I not [eaten] coming hither, nor retiring, nor coming on; standing firm in truth, therewith have I etc. etc.

All our samhitā-mss., and the majority of SPP's, have the false accent apratisthānó 'nāy- in b; both editions emend to -sṭhānd. Some of our mss. (B.P.M.) read pratiṣṭhāyā in d, as if aiming at pratiṣṭhāyā.

- [Paryāya III. saptakaḥ. mantroktadevatyam. 50. āsury anuṣṭubh; 51. ārcy uṣṇih; 52. 3-p. bhurik sāmnī triṣṭubh; 53. āsurī bṛhatī; 54. 2-p. bhurik sāmnī bṛhatī; 55. sāmny uṣṇih; 56. prājāpatyā bṛhatī.]
- 50. This namely, the rice-dish is indeed the summit (viṣṭápa) of the ruddy one (bradhná).

The comm. explains bradhna as sūryamandalamadhyavartī "çvaraḥ, and viṣṭapa as viyati viṣṭabdham maṇḍalam.

- 51. He cometh to have the ruddy one for his world, he resorteth (cri) to the summit of the ruddy one, who knoweth thus.
 - 52. Out of this rice dish Prajāpati verily fashioned thirty-three worlds.
- 53. In order to the knowledge (prajūána) of them he created the sacrifice.
- 54. He who becomes the on-looker ($upadrast\hat{r}$) of one knowing thus stops [his own] breath.

Upadrast! ought to have here some special and offensive sense; but what? All the mss. leave bhavati unaccented, and SPP's text follows them; ours makes the necessary emendation to bhavati. We might expect runddhe, middle, but the following verses show whose breath is meant.

55. If he does not stop [his own] breath, he is scathed a complete scathing.

The comm. explains sarvajyānim by prajāpaçvādirūpasya sarvasyā 'bhimatasya vastunaḥ . . . hānir yathā bhavati tathā. [Cf. GB. i. 3. 13, p. 52¹⁸; LÇS. x. 17. 7.]

56. If he is not scathed a complete scathing, before old age breath quits him.

The quotations from the Old Anukr. for the paryāya-sūkta are given piecemeal at the end of each paryāya. They may here be given together in their metrical form:

ekatrinçad bhavet pūrvas tasmād dvāsaptatih parah: tṛtlyah saptako dṛṣṭo "bṛhaspatih çirasy" api:

'In the [hymn beginning] "bṛhaspatiḥ çiraḥ"' etc. — The summations of gaṇas and (gaṇa-)avasāna-rcas are as follows: I. g., o; av., 31; II. g., 18; av., 72; III. g., o; av., 7. Total of av., 110. — The second paryāya-sūkta is called also a gaṇa-sūkta.

4. Extolling the breath (prāṇá).

[Bhārgava Vāidarbhi. — ṣadvinçakam. mantroktaprāṇadevatyam. ānuṣṭubham: 1. çaūkumatī; 8. pathyāpaūkti; 14. nicṛt; 15. bhurij; 20. anuṣṭubgarbhātriṣṭubh; 21. madhyejyotir jagatī; 22. triṣṭubh; 26. bṛhatīgarbhā.]

Found also in Pāipp. xvi. The whole hymn (together with a considerable number of others) is quoted by its opening words in Kāuç. 55. 17; 58. 3, 11, but not in a way to cast the least light upon its meaning and value. [The hymn is reckoned to the āyuṣya gaṇa (note to Kāuç. 54. 11); the comm. quotes further uses from Nakṣatrakalpa 19, Çāntikalpa 15, and a Pariçiṣṭa.]

Translated: Muir, v. 394 (the greater part); Scherman, p. 69 (nearly all); Deussen, Geschichte, i. 1. 301 (with a general introduction); Henry, 111, 147; Griffith, ii. 64; Bloomfield, 218, 622. — The hymn to Prāṇa, introduced into the second praçna of the Praçna Upanishad, contains reminiscences of this hymn: cf. vs. 19, and Deussen, Upanishads, p. 562.

- 1. Homage to breath (prāṇā) in whose control is this All, who hath been lord of all, in whom all stands firm.
- 2. Homage, O breath, to thy roaring, homage to thy thunder; homage, O breath, to thy lightning, homage to thee raining, O breath.

Ppp. reads in c'stu for prana.

3. When breath with thunder roars at the herbs, they are impregnated (pra-vi), they receive embryos, then they are born many.

Ppp. makes up the material of our vss. 3 and 4 differently, giving first 4 a, b and 3 c, d, and then 3 a, b and 4 c, d. It reads garbham in c, and vi jāyate in d. The comm. paraphrases pra viyante with garbham grhnanti [cf. xii. 4. 37]. [For "many" one might better say 'in great numbers.']

4. When, the season having come, breath roars at the herbs, then all is delighted, whatever is upon the earth.

In \mathbf{d} in our text, $ki\dot{m}$ is a misprint for $ki\dot{m}$. With \mathbf{c} , \mathbf{d} is to be compared the similar half-verse RV. v. 83. 9 \mathbf{c} , \mathbf{d} .

5. When breath hath rained with rain upon the great earth, then the cattle are delighted: "verily there will be greatness for us."

[Cf. vs. 17 below.] Ppp. has, for a, b: yadā prāno abhyakrandīd varṣeṇa stana-yitnunā. [Pāda d doubtless means precisely the same thing as the English slang, 'that'll be great for us!']

6. The herbs, being rained on, have talked with breath: "verily thou hast extended our life-time; thou hast made us all fragrant."

Ppp. reads in b avāciram, and in c actcarat.

7. Homage be to thee coming, homage be to [thee] going away; homage to thee, O breath, standing; to thee sitting also [be] homage.

Compare 2.15 above, which differs only in the vocative used. Ppp. puts the verse after our 8, and reads te 'stu in a, and namo 'stu in b; a few of SPP's authorities make the same combinations.

8. Homage to thee breathing, O breath; homage be to [thee] making expiration; homage to thee turned away, homage to thee turned toward [us]; to the whole of thee [be] this homage.

Ppp. reads in b namo 'stu, and makes parācīnāya and pratīcīnāya change places in c. d.

9. The dear body that is thine, O breath, and the dearer one that is thine, O breath, likewise what remedy is thine, assign thou of it to us in order to life $(j\bar{\imath}vds)$.

For $y\delta$ in b (to be read $y\bar{a}u$) the comm. has $y\bar{a}u$, regarding it as dual.

10. Breath clothes (anu-vas) human beings (praja), as a father a dear son; breath is lord of all, both what breathes and what does not.

Ppp. combines prajā 'nu in a, and in d reads twice yas for yat. Prānāti in d remains undivided in pada-text by Prāt. iv. 57.

11. Breath [is] death, breath takmán; breath the gods worship (upa-ās); breath may set the truth-speaker in the highest world.

Ppp. has for a prāno mṛtyuṣ prāno amṛtam [cf. RV. x. 121. 2], which is less devoid of sense; at the end it reads lokam dadhat.

12. Breath is virtij, breath the directress; breath all worship; breath is the sun, the moon; breath they call Prajāpati.

Ppp. reads prano sarvam [sandhi!] for pranam sarve in b, and its c is prano gnic candramās sūryas. The comm. explains destrī as = svasvavyāpāresu sarvesām prerayitrī paradevatā.

13. Breath-and-expiration are rice-and-barley; breath is called the draft-ox; breath is set in barley; expiration is called rice.

Ppp. combines prāṇā "hito in c. Our P.M.W. read yavena for yave ha in c.

14. A man breathes out (ápānati), breathes (pránati) within the womb; when, O breath, thou quickenest, then he is born again.

Ppp. reads, in b and beyond: garbhe antah: yā vā tvam prāna jinvah sa damba vāyase tvat. The comm. has atho in d.

15. Breath they call Mātariçvan; breath is called the wind; in breath what has been and what will be, in breath is all established (prátisthita).

Ppp. has at the end samāhitāh.

16. They of the Atharvans, they of the Angirases, they of the gods, also those born of men—the herbs are generated $(pra-j\bar{a})$, when thou, O breath, quickenest.

Ppp. has ca yās instead of uta at end of b, and, for c, sarvā pra modanty oṣadhīḥ. The adjectives are feminine, denoting the herbs.

17. When breath hath rained with rain on the great earth, the herbs are generated, likewise whatever plants [there are].

Compare vs. 5 above, of which this is an imitation; Ppp. makes it yet closer, by reading modante for jāyante in c. Some of the samhitā-mss. read jāyante 'tho (losing the accent of ātho) in c-d.

18. He who knoweth this of thee, O breath, and in whom thou art established — to him shall all bring tribute in you highest world.

Ppp. separates prāna idam in a.

19. As, O breath, all these human beings (prajā) are tribute-bearers to thee, so shall they bring tribute to him who shall hear thee, O thou of good report (sugrāvas).

Ppp. has for d yas tvā çuçrāva çuçruvaḥ; and the comm. also reads çuçruvaḥ. | With this vs., cf. Praçna Upanishad, ii. 7. |

20. He moves, an embryo, within the divinities; having come into being ($?abh\bar{u}ta$), having been ($bh\bar{u}ta$), he is born again; he, having been, entered with might ($çac\bar{v}bhis$) what is to be, what will be, [as] a father a son.

The understanding of this very obscure verse is not helped by the comm., and Ppp. offers no variants. The comm. reads $bh\bar{u}tam$ instead of bhavyam in c. A part of the mss. read $vive \bar{c}a$ (not $-\bar{c}a$) in d.

21. The swan (hansá), ascending, does not extract (ut-khid) one foot from the sea; verily, if he should extract that, there would not be today nor tomorrow; there would not be night nor day; at no time soever would it dawn (vi-vas).

Ppp. reads utpapadam at end of b, and goes on thus: imam sa tum utkhide ahnāi-vācya nah çyo na rātrī nna ha syā hnas prajñā tu ki cana. The comm. explains the verse first as relating to the sun, for which it appears to be really intended, and then as applied to breath, to which it may be conceived to belong as being for the microcosm what the sun is to the macrocosm. [Cf. my note to viii. 7. 24. Here one would indeed be reluctant to translate hansa by 'goose.']

22. The eight-wheeled [thing, neut.] rolls, having one rim, thousand-syllabled, forth in front, down behind; with a half it has generated all existence; what its [other] half [is] — which sign is that?

This verse also evidently belongs to the sun; with its mystic ascriptions are to be compared those of the partly corresponding verses x. 8. 7, 13. Ppp. ends instead with kim u tasya ketuh; it also combines vartate 'kanemi in a. The comm. reads paccāt at end of b, and two or three of the mss. (including our O.) do the same. 'In front' and 'behind' are, of course, = 'in the east' and 'in the west.' The \bar{a} of $ast\bar{a}cakra$, and its retention in the pada-text ($ast\bar{a}cakram$) are by Prāt. iii. 2 and iv. 94.

23. He who is lord of this that has every (viçva) [kind of] birth, of every stirring thing—to thee being such, O breath, having a quick bow among the unexhausted (?ánya), be homage.

The very rare ánya is rendered, at a venture, with the Pet. Lexx. [see BR. under ányā, and OB. i. 66 a, end]; [and the parallelism of the next vs., with its átandra, favors this rendering]. The wholly obscure pāda in which it occurs is explained by the comm. to mean prānicarīresu kṣipram gacchate vyāpnuvate: he takes ánya from the root an 'breathe,' and -dhanvan from dhav 'go.' Ppp. has no variants to help us.

24. He who is lord of this that has all $(s\acute{a}rva)$ [kinds of] birth, of all that stirs, unwearied, wise by $br\acute{a}hman$ —let breath go after $(anu-sth\bar{a})$ me.

Ppp. has at the end the easier reading mām abhi rakṣatu. [W. interlines "attend" as a rendering of anu-sthā.]

25. Upright among the sleeping he wakes; by no means $(nan\hat{u})$ does he fall down horizontal $(tiryd\bar{n})$; no one soever has heard of his sleeping among the sleeping.

The comm. reads in a jāgara and understands it as impv. 2d sing. Ppp. has in c [? or in a?] svapnesu. The combination of suptám and asya seems to make it necessary to take the former in the sense of svapna, or of svāpa, as the comm. glosses it. The activity of the breath while the other powers and senses of the body are asleep is a theme of wonder elsewhere also. For suptésú in a, read suptésu (an accent-mark slipped over the wrong syllable).

26. O breath, turn not about from me; not another than I shalt thou be; like the embryo of the waters, in order to life (jīvás), I bind thee to me, O breath.

The obscure second pāda is by the comm. explained to mean mayā saha tādātmyāpanna eva vartase. Some mss. (including our O.) accent mát both times, and SPP.
follows them in his text: compare xii. 3. 46.

[Here ends the second anuvāka, with 2 hymns and 82 verses, according to the count of the Berlin edition: that is I paryāya-sūkta with 3 paryāyas and 56 verses and 1 artha-sūkta with 26 verses. But some mss. sum up the anuvāka as containing 136 "verses of both sorts," that is the 110 avasāna-rcas of our h. 3 (see p. 632, top, and p. 629, top) and the 26 rcas of our h. 4.

[The following quotation from the Old Anukr. seems to be put after the end of h. 4 as pertaining to the anuvāka: trayas "tasyāu'dano" bhavet. Does this mean that we have no right to count the "tasyāudana" as less than 3 hymns? Cf. p. 611, \P 4.

5. Extolling the Vedic student (brahmacārin).

[Brahman. — ṣaḍvincakam. mantroktabrahmacārīdevatyam. trāistubham: 1. puro'tijāgatavirādgarbhā; 2. 5-p. brhatīgarbhā virāt çakvarī*; 6. çākvaragarbhā 4-p. jagatī; 7. virādgarbhā; 8. puro'tijāgatā virād jagatī; 9. brhatīgarbhā; 10. bhurij; 11. jagatī; 12. çākvaragarbhā 4-p. virād atijagatī; 13. jagatī; 15. purastājjyotis; 14, 16-22. anustubh; 23. purobārhatātijāgatagarbhā; 25. 1-av. ārcy usnih; 26. madhyejyotir usniggarbhā.]
*[The words virāt çakvarī are lacking in the London ms. and are supplied from the Berlin ms. The latter adds parā urobrhatī: but vs. 3 is hardly metrical, and at any rate no urobrhatī.]

Found also in Pāipp. xvi. (with slight differences of order, which will be pointed out under the verses). Not quoted either in the Kāuçika or in the Vāitāna Sūtra; [but the schol. to Kāuç. 55.18 prescribe vs. 3 for use in the upanayana]. [It is cited also at the beginning of GB. (i. 2. 1-8), the chapter on the brahmacārin.]

Translated: Muir, v. 400 (18 vss.); Ludwig, p. 452; Scherman, p. 84 (19 vss.); Deussen, Geschichte, i. 1. 277; Henry, 114, 150; Griffith, ii. 68; Bloomfield, 214, 626. — Cf. also Bergaigne-Henry, Manuel, p. 161; Hillebrandt, Ved. Mythol., i. 471. Henry, p. ix of his preface to Books X-XII, cites this hymn in his discussion of brahman, which he connects with root bhrāj; and Oldenberg reviews the matter in IFA. viii. 40-41. Deussen entitles the hymn "The Brahman-pupil as incarnation of Brahm," and gives a general interpretation of its content by way of introduction. This should be consulted. The rendering "Vedic-studentship" is too rigid to fit everywhere: cf. vs. 18, note.

1. The Vedic student goes on setting in motion (is) both firmaments; in him the gods become like-minded; he maintains earth and heaven; he fills his teacher with fervor (tápas).

Ppp. has yasmin for tasmin in b; it rectifies the meter of c by reading at the end dyām utā 'mūm; it combines sā "cāryam, and ends the verse with bibharti. The comm. explains piparti with pālayati both here and in vs*2.

2. The Fathers, the god-folk, all the gods individually assemble after the Vedic student; the Gandharvas went after him, thirty-three, three hundred, six thousand; he fills all the gods with fervor.

Ppp. puts the verse after 3, and reads, after pitaras in a, manusyā devajanā gandharvā 'nusamyantu sarve: trayastrinçatam triçatam saṭsahasrān sarvān sa devāns tapasā bibharti. None of the mss., nor either edition, reads ṣaṭtsahasrāḥ, as required by Prāt. ii. 8.

3. The teacher, taking [him] in charge $(upa-n\bar{\imath})$, makes the Vedic student an embryo within; he bears him in his belly three nights; the gods gather unto him to see him when born.

 $Upa-n\bar{\imath}$ probably already a technical term for 'receive as pupil, initiate.' [Prescribed in the schol. to Kāuç. 55. 18, as noted above.] [The first line seems to be prose: see at end of Anukr.-extracts.]

4. This piece of fuel [is] earth, sky the second; also the atmosphere he fills with fuel; the Vedic student fills the worlds with fuel, girdle, toil, fervor.

Ppp. reads $mekhal\bar{a}v\bar{\imath}$ for $-l\bar{a}y\bar{a}$, and at the end again [for the third time] bibharti. [We have the converse variant at xiii. 1. 1.]

5. Prior born of the bráhman, the Vedic student, clothing himself with heat (gharmá), stood up with fervor; from him [was] born the bráhmana, the chief bráhman, and all the gods, together with immortality (amṛta).

Ppp. reads tapaso 'dhi tisthat at end of b. Of a the meaning may probably be 'was born before the brahman' (so the translators).

6. The Vedic student goes kindled with fuel, clothing himself in the black-antelope-skin, consecrated, long-bearded; he goes at once from the eastern to the northern ocean, having grasped the worlds, again and again violently shaping (?ācarikṛ) [them].

Ppp. reads in b kārṣṇim, and in c sadyet pūrvād. The comm. has in d samgrhya; he explains muhur ācarikrat by atyartham ābhimukhyena karoti. ['Northern ocean': cf. note to xi. 2. 25.]

7. The Vedic student, generating the bráhman, the waters, the world, Prajāpati, the most exalted one, the viráj, having become an embryo in the womb of immortality; having become Indra, he has shattered (tṛh) the Asuras.

Ppp. reads in d amṛtan instead of asurān. More than half of SPP's authorities read bhūtvā amṛt- uncombined in c.

8. The teacher fabricated both these envelops (nábhas), the wide, profound, [namely] earth and sky; them the Vedic student defends by fervor; in him the gods become like-minded.

The last pāda is identical with 1 b above. Ppp. is more original, reading for c, d: tāu brahmacārī tapasā 'bhi rakṣati tayor devās sadamādam madanti; it also omits ime in a; and it puts the verse after our vs. 9. The comm. Land two of SPP's authorities | read tam for tc at beginning of c.

9. This broad (prthivt) earth, and the sky, the Vedic student first brought [as] alms (bhikṣá); having made them [both] fuel, he worships; in them are set (árpita) all beings.

Ppp. omits the meter-disturbing \dot{a} in b, and reads for c, te brahma kṛtvā samidhā upāsata. 'Worships': i.e., as the comm. explains, 'tends the fire with them.'

10. The one this side, the other beyond, the back of the sky, in secret [are] deposited [ni-dhā] the two treasures (nidhi) of the brāhmaṇa; them the Vedic student defends by fervor; the whole of that he, knowing, makes brāhman for himself.

The construction and sense of the last pāda are very doubtful. For c, Ppp. has its version of our 8 c over again: tāu brahmacārī tapasā 'bhi rakṣati; it also combines parā 'nyo in a. [To bring out the play of the original, one might render nidhī by 'deposits.']

11. The one this side, the other hence, from earth, the two fires come together between these two envelops; upon them are set (cri) the firm rays; these the Vedic student stands upon by fervor.

For our obscure first pāda Ppp. substitutes a more translatable version: arvāg anyo divas prsthād ito 'nyaṣ prthivyāh; and it reads ati for 'dhi in c; and the comm. has also ati, combining it with the following to atidrdhās. [The comm. also has tām (misprinted tā: see "Corrections") for tān in d.]

12. Roaring on, thundering, the ruddy white-goer has introduced (?anu-bhṛ) in the earth a great virile member; the Vedic student pours seed upon the surface (sánu), on the earth; by that live the four directions.

Extremely obscure, and there are no valuable variants. Ppp. has at the beginning abhikrandann irunac chatingo; the comm. reads varunah çyatingo, explaining the latter word by çyetavarnam jalapūrnam megham prāptah. The last pāda is found elsewhere, as ix. 10. 19 d, RV. i. 164. 42 b.

[For consistency, the Berlin ed. should have abhikrándant.] [The Anukr. defines the vs. as of 50 syllables and appears to scan it as 13 + 11 : 11 + 14 = 49. The ms. puts the mark of pāda-division before pṛthivyām. This last is a most palpable gloss of sānāu. If we reject it, pādas b, c, d are good triṣṭubhs.]

13. In the fire, in the sun, in the moon, in Mātariçvan, in the waters, the Vedic student puts fuel; their gleams (arcis) go about separately in the cloud; their sacrificial butter (diya) is man, rain, waters.

Ludwig conjectures "purisam fog" in d for purusas. Ppp. is too corrupt in c, d to be of service. 'Their' in c, d is tāsām fem., apparently relating to samidhas 'sticks of fuel,' though we had only the singular in b; but the comm. regards it as 'of fire etc.,' the fem. being used because the last of the series ([the meter-disturbing] apsu' waters') was feminine — which is possible.

14. The teacher [was] death, Varuna, Soma, the herbs, milk; the thunder-clouds were warriors; by them [was] this heaven (svàr) brought.

This verse stands in Ppp. before our vs. 13; it reads at the beginning parjanyas instead of ācāryas, reads in c jīmūtā "san, and in d svar ābharam. The comm., in order to put some sense into the identification of the teacher with death and Varuṇa, regards it as alluding to the instruction of Naciketas by Death (Kaṭha Upanishad, etc.) and of Bhṛgu by Varuṇa [TA. ix. 1, etc.]. [For c, d, Roth compares ÇB. xi. 8. 12.]

15. Varuṇa, having become teacher, makes his own (?amā) the entire ghee; whatever he sought of Prajāpati, that the Vedic student furnished, a friend (mitrā) from his own self.

The translation implies svat as the proper pada-reading in d, and the comm. also understands this; but all the pada-mss. read svat, as if accus. pl. The end of this verse and the beginning of the next are unfortunately wanting in Ppp.; it reads at the beginning amad idam krn. The mss. put the avasana after prajapatau instead of after vat vat and SPP. divides accordingly [see his note]; our division is changed in obedience to the requirements of the sense. Ludwig understands mitras as signifying the god Mitra.

- 16. The teacher [is] the Vedic student; the Vedic student [is] Prajāpati; Prajāpati bears rule (vi-rāj); the virāj became the controlling Indra.
- 17. By Vedic-studentship, by fervor, a king defends his kingdom; a teacher by Vedic-studentship (brahmacárya) seeks a Vedic student.

Ppp. reads raksate in b, and ichati in d.

18. By Vedic-studentship a girl wins (vid) a young husband; by Vedic-studentship a draft-ox, a horse strives to gain (ji) food.

Instead of jiglisati at the end, SPP. reads jiglisati 'strives to swallow,' finding it in the comm., and in less than a quarter (four out of seventeen) of his authorities; none of ours give it, so far as noted. Ppp. suggests yet another and a better reading, namely jihīrṣati— if, as seems probable, that underlies its corruption jāhiruṣati. As between jigīṣati and jigīrṣati, the former seems preferable. [These verses will seem much less inept if we give a less rigid interpretation to brahmacarya: see Deussen, p. 281, p. 278.]

19. By Vedic-studentship, by fervor, the gods smote away death; Indra by Vedic-studentship brought heaven (svàr) for the gods.

Ppp. reads apā 'jayan at end of b | and amrtam for devebhyah in d |.

20. The herbs, past and future, day and night, the forest tree, the year together with the seasons — they are born of the Vedic student.

All the samhitā-mss. chance to agree in c in reading sahā rtūbhis, which SPP. accordingly gives in his text. Ppp. also has it; and further bhūtābhavyam in a, and brahmacārinā at the end.

21. The earthly, the heavenly cattle, they of the forest, and they that are of the village, the wingless and they that are winged — they are born of the Vedic student.

Ppp. again reads at the end -cāriṇā. [For paçavas, cf. xi. 2. 24 note.]

22. Individually do all that are of Prajāpati bear breaths in their bodies (ātmán); all these the bráhman defends, brought in the Vedic student.

Ppp. reads at end of b bibhrate; one would like to emend to bibhratas. [But cf. Deussen's interpretation, p. 282.] Ppp. also has in c sarvāns tān.

23. That, sent forth (?pariṣūtá) of the gods, not mounted onto, goes about shining; from that [was] born the brāhmaṇa, the chief brāhman, and all the gods, together with immortality.

The translation of the first half-verse is merely mechanical. The second is identical with 5 c, d, above. Ppp. puts the verse after our vs. 24, reads puruhūtam instead of the obscure parisūtam in a, and gives the verse a last half of its own: tasmin sarve paçavas tatra yajñās tasminn annam saha devatābhih; and this version of the second half-verse is given in GB. i. 2. 7. The comm. explains parisūtam as parigrhītam; ātmatayā sākṣātkrtam.

24. The Vedic student bears a shining brahman; in that [are] woven together all the gods; [he] generating breath-and-expiration, then outbreathing (vyāná), speech, mind, heart, bráhman, wisdom.

Ppp. reads in b asmin for tasmin; its verse has for second half our 26 c, d, and our 24 c, d is added at the end of our 23, which, as above noticed, comes second of the two verses; it reads for d cakṣuç çrotram janayan brahma medhām. [The sequence is, therefore, 24 a, b, 26 c, d, 23, 24 c, d.] The GB. cites prāṇāpānāu janayan as a pratīka at i. 2. 8.

25. Sight, hearing, glory put thou in us; food, seed, blood (lbhita), belly.

Ppp. begins differently: vācam çreṣṭhām yaço 'smāsu. [Deussen renders udáram by 'Leibessegen.']

26. Shaping (?) these things, the Vedic student stood performing penance (tapas tapya-) on the back of the sea (salilá), in the ocean; he, bathed, brown, ruddy (pingalá), shines much on the earth.

The comm. explains 25 and 26 together, as if one verse. The translation implies the emendation, apparently unavoidable, of kálpat to kálpan; the comm. makes no scruple of glossing it with kalpayan.

6. To many different gods: for relief.

[Çanitāti. — trayovinçakam. cāndramasam uta mantroktadevatyam. ānustubham *: 23. brhatīgarbhā.] * [The Anukr. omits the definition of 18 as pathyāpankti.]

Found also (except vss. 3, 20, 23) in Pāipp. xv. (in considerably altered verse-order: 1, 2, 4, 6, 5, 7, 15, 8, 9, 14, 17, 10, 11, 19, 13, 12, 18, 16, 22, 21).

[The hymn is included by Kāuç. 9. 2, 4 in the çānti gaṇas, major and minor; and all of the hymn except vss. 7, 9, 22, 23 (those in which the word aṅhas is missing) is reckoned to the aṅholiāga gaṇa (note to 32. 27). The last verse is cited separately at 58. 25 in a rite for long life. The same verse is variously cited by the subordinate works and the schol.: see note to 9. 2; 42. 13 (student's return); 53. 8 (godāna); 55. 1 (upanayana); Keç. to 44. 5 (vaçāçamana). Verse 9 is reckoned to the rāudra gaṇa, note to 50. 13.]

Translated: Henry, 117, 155; Griffith, ii. 72; Bloomfield, 160, 628.

1. We address $(br\bar{u})$ Agni, the forest trees, the herbs and the plants, Indra, Brihaspati, the sun: let them free us from distress.

The comm. questions whether to render brūmas by stumas or by iṣṭaphalam yācāmahe.

- 2. We address king Varuna, Mitra, Vishnu, likewise Bhaga; Ança, Vivasvant we address: let them free us from distress.
- 3. We address god Savitar, Dhātar and Pūshan; we address Tvashṭar at the head (agriyá): let them free us from distress.

MS. has nearly the same verse in ii. 7. 13, but with a like our 2 a.

- 4. The Gandharvas-and-Apsarases we address, the (two) Açvins, Brahmaṇaspati, the god that is Aryaman by name: let them free us from distress.
- 5. Day-and-night now we address, sun-and-moon both; all the Adityas we address: let them free us from distress.

Ppp. combines, in b, -masā ubhā, and reads in c ādityān sarvān.

- 6. The wind we address, Parjanya, the atmosphere, also the quarters, and all regions we address: let them free us from distress.
- 7. Let day-and-night, likewise dawn, free me from what comes from a curse; let god Soma free me, whom they call the moon.

Ppp. reads at end of b vṛṣā for uṣāḥ, and in c ādityas for devas. [Cf. Hillebrandt, Ved. Mythol., i. 270.]

8. The earthly, the heavenly cattle, also the beasts (mṛgá) that are of the forest; we address the hawks (çakúnta), the birds (pakṣin): let them free us from distress.

Or, 'the winged hawks.' Ppp. has a better and more independent a (ours = 5. 21 a, above): ye grāmyās sapta paçavah | cf. iii. 10. 6 note |.

9. Bhava-and-Çarva now we address, Rudra and him that is lord of cattle; the arrows of them which we well know $(sa\dot{m}-vid)$ — let those be ever propitious to us.

Ppp. reads in b ugras for rudram, and, instead of d, the refrain te no municantv anhasah. The comm. has vidmas for ma in c. [Pāda d is nearly repeated at vs. 22 d.]

10. We address the sky, the asterisms, the earth, the yaksás, the mountains; the oceans, the rivers, the pools—let them free us from distress.

Ppp. reads in b bhāumam. The comm. explains yakṣāṇi as pūjyāni tatratyāni puṇyakṣetrāṇi. MS. has the verse in ii. 7. 13, but reads samudrān and veçantān in c.

11. The seven seers now we address, the heavenly waters, Prajāpati; the Fathers with Yama as their chief (créstha) we address: let them free us from distress.

Most of the mss. (including all of ours that are noted) read saptarsin in a, and SPP. gives it in his text; the comm. has saptarsin.

12. The gods that are seated in the sky, and that are seated in the atmosphere, the mighty ones (cakra) that are set (cr) on the earth—let them free us from distress.

[We had a, b above at x. 9. 12. In a read devaso?]

13. The Adityas, the Rudras, the Vasus, the gods in heaven, the Atharvans, the Angirases full of wisdom—let them free us from distress.

Perhaps b is rather 'the divine Atharvans in heaven'; Ppp. reads devā dāivā atharvanah.

14. We address the sacrifice, the sacrificer, the verses (\hat{rc}) , the chants $(s\hat{a}man)$, the remedies; the sacred formulas $(y\hat{a}jus)$, the invocations we address: let them free us from distress.

Bheṣajā, which probably refers to material like that included in the Atharva-Veda, is explained by the comm. as çāntikarāṇi vāmadevyādīni; no hymns in our collection receive any such title in the Kāuçika.

15. The five kingdoms of plants, having Soma as their chief (créstha), we address; the darbhá, hemp, barley, sáha — let them free us from distress.

Ppp. rectifies the meter of b by reading brūmasi; in c it puts bhañgas before darbhas. The mss., as usual, differ as to the accent of rājya; several (including our O.) read rājyāni, and our R.s.m. has rājyāni. The comm. calls saha simply 'a kind of herb.'

16. The niggards we address, the demons, the serpents, the pure-folk, the Fathers; the hundred-and-one deaths we address: let them free us from distress.

[With b, cf. viii. 8. 15, and 9. 24 below. Cf. note to iii. 11. 5 for the "hundred-and-one deaths." Cf. also Chandogya Up., viii. 73, 93, 103, where Indra passes three thirty-two-year terms of studentship with Prajapati and is then bidden (viii. 113) to pass five years more, to make out the full tale of 101 years.

17. The seasons we address, the lords of the seasons, the year-divisions and the winters, the summers, the years, the months: let them free us from distress.

The verse nearly agrees with iii. 10. 9. The comm. quotes from Tāitt. Brāh. ii. 6. 19 in explanation of what gods are lords of the several seasons. $\bar{A}rtav\bar{a}n$ he defines as tattadrtuviçes as ambandhinah padārthān; hāyana and samā are to him simply other names for 'year.'

18. Come, ye gods, from the south; from the west come up eastward; from the east, from the north, mighty, all the gods, coming together: let them free us from distress.

Ppp. rectifies the meter of b by adding nas at the end.

- 19. All the gods now we address, of true agreements, increasers of righteousness, together with all their spouses: let them free us from distress.
- 20. The collective gods now we address, of true agreements, increasers of righteousness, together with their collective spouses: let them free us from distress.

This verse (omitted in Ppp.) differs from the preceding only by twice reading sarva instead of viçva. The epithet rtāvrāh may also signify 'increasing by righteousness.'

21. Existence we address, the lord of existences, and who is controller of existences; all existences, assembling — let them free us from distress.

Bhūtám at the beginning may be adjective, 'him who is.' Ppp. reads patis for vaçī at end of b, and, for c, bhūtāni sarvā brūmas.

22. They that are the five divine directions, that are the twelve divine seasons, that are the fangs of the year — let them be ever propitious to us.

All the samhitā-mss. happen to read together in b dvådaça rtávaḥ, which SPP. adopts; Ppp. makes the same combination. [Pāda d is nearly 9 d above.]

23. The immortal remedy, chariot-bought, which Mātalī knows — that Indra made enter into the waters; that remedy, O waters, give ye.

The pada-text reads mātalī also. [Concerning Mātalī, see Weber, Sb. 1895, p. 837.] All the mss. accent āpo in d, and it accordingly is read by both editions; but the sense requires the emendation to āpo, as translated; [so the comm.: he āpah]. The verse is so discordant with the rest of the hymn as to seem an addition made to it; [it is not found in Ppp.].

The comm. [p. 123] regards the verse as referred to in Vāit. 3. 13, quoting the whole sūtra, but with mātalyā instead of pātrāņy at the beginning; the mss. of Vāit. read mātalyā or mārttalyā.

[Here ends the third anuvāka, with 2 hymns and 49 verses. The quoted Anukr. says agnim-brūmake tisrah: i.e. 'in the hymn agnim brūmah, there are three [over twenty].']

7. Extolling the remnant (úcchista) of the offering.

Found also (except vs. 25) in Pāipp. xvi. [The hymn is not cited in the text of Kāuç. nor of Vāit.]

Translated: Muir, v. 397 (part); Scherman, p. 87 (part); Deussen, Geschichte, i. 1. 305-310; Henry, 120, 156; Griffith, ii. 75; Bloomfield, 226, 629. — See Deussen's valuable introduction. He does not believe that ucchista means 'remnant of the offering' in this hymn, but rather 'residuum in general,' the remainder that we get after subtracting from the universe all the forms of the world of phenomena.

1. In the remnant [are set] name and form, in the remnant [is] set the world; within the remnant both Indra and Agni, everything is set together.

The comm. connects the hymn with hymn 3, above, making the ucchiṣṭa the remnant of Aditi's rice-dish; he quotes Tāitt. Brāh. i. 1. 9¹, where it says "they gave her what remained" (uccheṣaṇa) etc. Ppp. reads rūpāṇi for rūpaṁ ca in b.

2. In the remnant heaven-and-earth, all existence is set together; in the remnant the waters, the ocean, the moon, the wind is set.

Ppp. combines at the end vātā "hitah.

3. In the remnant [are] the being one and the non-being one, both, death, vigor, Prajāpati; they of the world $(l\bar{a}uky\acute{a})$ are supported $(\bar{a}-yat)$ on the remnant, both $vr\acute{a}$ and $dr\acute{a}$; also fortune $(cr\acute{a})$ in me.

Ppp. reads 'sanç [for asanç] in a; in d, where we should welcome its aid in making sense, it is corrupt, reading precadrecavectr mayi; it also combines ucchista "yattas

- in c. The comm. has āhitās again instead of āyattās in c; he supplies prajās to lāu-kyās; and he explains vras as vārako varuņah and dras as drāvako 'mṛtamayah somah, and the last clause by tatprasādāc chrīh sampad mayi viduṣy āhitā "sthitā bhavatu.
- 4. Being fixed, fix thou, being stanch, nyá, the bráhman, the ten all-creators; as the wheel on all sides of the nave, the divinities [are] set (critá) in the remnant.

Ppp. gives no variant in a; at the end it has devatā hitāḥ (i.e. "hitāḥ?). SPP., against the authority of all the pada-mss., combines dṛṇhasthiras into one word, merely because the comm. so explains it (dṛṇhaṇena sthirīkṛto lokaḥ) — which is no reason at all for such an absurdity. Nyas the comm. glosses with netāras tatratyāḥ prāṇinaḥ, which gives us no help.

5. The yerse $(\bar{r}c)$, the chant (sdman), the formula (ydjus) [are] in the remnant, [also] the song $(udg\bar{\imath}thd)$, the introductory praise (prdstuta), the praise (stutd); the sound hing [is] in the remnant, the tone (svdra), and the ring (?medi) of the chant; that in me.

The comm. gives alternative explanations of svåra and medi, showing that their technical meaning was doubtful to him, as to us. Ppp. has for b udgitas prastutam sthitam; in d it has midhus for medis. [To the last clause the comm. supplies bhavatu: cf. vss. 12, 14.]

6. That relating to Indra-and-Agni, that to the purifying [Soma] (pāva-mānā), the great-named ones (f., mahānāmnīs), the great ceremony (mahāvratā) — within the remnant are [all] the members of the sacrifice, like an embryo within a mother.

The āindrāgna and pāvamāna are explained by the comm. as two sāmans; for the mahānāmnīs he refers to Ait. Ār. iv. 1.

7. The rājastya (royal consecration), the vājaptya (vigor-drinking), the agnistoma (fire-praise), then the sacrifice (adhvara), the arka and açvamedha (horse-sacrifice) [are] in the remnant, the one having a living barhis, most intoxicating.

Ppp. has in b the preferable reading tato 'dhvarah.

8. The establishing of a fire, also the consecration, the desire-fulfiller, together with the meter (chándas); the removed (?útsanna) sacrifices, the sacrificial sessions (sattrá), are set together in the remnant.

All the pada-mss. read in b kāmaopráh: chándasā:, but no samhitā-ms. gives correspondingly kāmapráç chán-; they vary between -prá chán- (thus the majority) and -práh chán- (including our I.K.); both editions emend to -práç chán-; the comm. understands the two words as one compound. He also reads utsannayajñās as a compound in c, and takes it to mean sacrifices that have gone out of use and knowledge.

9. Both the fire-offering (agnihotrá) and faith, the váshat-exclamation, the vow (vratá), penance, the sacrificial gift (dákṣiṇā), what is offered (iṣtá) and what is bestowed (pūrtá) — are set together in the remnant.

Ppp. reads 'ti instead of 'dhi in d. The comm. explains istá as çrutivihitam homādi karma, and pūrtá as smrtipurānābhihitam vāptkūpataṭākadevāyatanārāmādinirmānam.

10. The one-night [sacrifice], the two-night, the same-day-purchase (sadyahkri), the purchasable (?prakri), the praiseworthy (ukthyà) — [it] is woven, deposited, in the remnant; the minute things of the sacrifice, by wisdom.

Ppp. betters the grammar of the last half-verse by reading for d yajñasyā 'no nu vidyayā. The comm. reads in b sadyaskrīḥ; sadyaḥkrī is especially prescribed by Prāt. ii. 62.

11. The four-night [sacrifice], the five-night, and the six-night, of both kinds, together, the one of sixteen (sodaçin), and the seven-night — from the remnant were born all the sacrifices that are put in immortality.

Ppp. combines yajāā 'mṛte near the end. The comm. understands by ubhayas in b the doubles of the numbers of nights given. Soḍaçin is the subject of Prāt. iv. 51, and catūrātra (p. catuhorātraḥ) of Prāt. iv. 80.

12. The response (pratīhārá), the conclusion (nidhána), both the all-conquering and the on-conquering (abhijít) one, the same-day and overnight ones [are] in the remnant, the twelve-day one: also that in me.

Ppp. has at the beginning pratihāro. [The comm. joins the "also" to what precedes and says that "that in me" (supply bhavatu) is to be understood as a prayer: cf. vss. 5, 14.]

13. Pleasantness, compliance (sámnati), comfort (kṣéma), custom (? svadhá), refreshment, immortality, power — in the remnant all occurring (pratyáñc) desires are satisfied with desire.

Ppp. reads at the end trmpanti. Most of the pada-mss. and many of the samhitā-mss. read simply kṣéma in a (including our Bp.O.D.R.K.Kp.).

14. The nine earths, oceans, skies, are set (critá) in the remnant; the sun shines in the remnant; day-and-night: also that in me.

The pada-mss. in general read simply crita (or crita) in b. Two or three mss. (including our O.) read pi in d. Ppp. reads in a, b bhūmyām samudrasyo chiste, and has ca for api in d. [The comm. treats the last words of the vs. as under vs. 12.]

15. The added oblation (upahávya), the dividing [day], and the sacrifices that are put in secret, the remnant bears, bearer of all, father of the generator.

Ppp. reads divi çrutaḥ [intending çritāḥ?] for guhā hitāḥ in b. The mss. are divided between upahāvyam and upaḥavyām; the latter is read by our B.W.O.s.m. D.R.T.; and K. has -havyām.

16. The remnant, father of the generator, of breath (dsu) the grandson, grandfather—he dwells, ruler of all, an overpowering (? atighnyà) bull upon the earth.

Ppp. reads in b 'sāu putraç ca, which, without the ca, is an acceptable improvement.

17. Righteousness, truth, penance, kingship, toil, and virtue (dhárma) and deed (kárman), being (bhūtá), what will be, [is] in the remnant; heroism, fortune (lakṣmī), strength in strength.

Ppp. has dīkṣā for rāṣṭram in a: a better reading. The comm. explains ṛṭa here by manasā yathārthasamkalpanam 'right conception'; bale at the end he makes = balavati tasminn ucchiṣṭe.

18. Success, force, design, dominion, kingship, the six wide [quarters], the year [is] in the remnant, $id\bar{a}$, the orders $(pr\bar{a}is\hat{a})$, the dips $(gr\hat{a}ha)$, the oblation.

Ppp. combines ojā "kūtiķ in a. [W. interlines 'potions' as an alternative for 'dips.']

19. The four-priest (cátur-hot?) [sacrifices], the $\bar{a}prls$, the seasonal [oblations], the nivids — in the remnant [are] the sacrifices, the invocations, the victim-offerings (paqubandha), then the offerings (lsli).

Tádistayah at the end in our edition is a misprint for tád istayah.

20. Both the half-months and the months, the year-divisions (ārtavá) with the seasons; in the remnant [are] the noisy waters, the thunder, the great sound (? crúti).

The comm. reads quei in d, so we lack his conjecture as to the meaning of quei.

21. Pebbles, gravel, stones, herbs, plants, grasses, clouds, lightnings, rain — in the remnant [are they] set together, set.

Ppp. combines sikatā 'çm- in a. [Read oṣadhīr?]

22. Success (ráddhi), attainment, obtainment, permeation, greatness, prosperity [edhatú] — in the remnant over-attainment and growth (bhúti) [is] put in, put down, put.

Several of our mss. (P.M.W.I.O.) accent wyapti in b. All the mss. save one or two (including our B.) leave edhatuh unaccented, as if it were taken for a 3d dual perfect; both editions read edhatuh. The comm. strangely reads at the end hitah; but the pada-text makes all three words of d singular.

- 23. Both what breathes with breath and what sees with sight: from the remnant were born all the gods in heaven, heaven-resorters.
- 24. The verses $(\acute{r}c)$, the chants, the meters, the ancient $(pur\bar{a}n\acute{a})$, together with the formula $(y\acute{a}jus)$: from the remnant were born etc. etc.

Ppp. reads, for reah sāmāni, rgyajussāmāni, and also prefixes to the verse our 27 a, b (combining devās pit-).

25. Breath-and-expiration, sight, hearing, indestructibleness and destruction: from the remnant etc. etc.

The first half-verse is found below as 8. 4 a, b, 26 a, b. The verse, as noted above, is wanting in Ppp.

26. Delights, joys, enjoyments, and they that enjoy enjoyments—from the remnant etc. etc.

[The first half-verse recurs as 8. 24 a, b.] [In the Berlin ed., there should be a space between $m\delta d\bar{a}h$ and pra-.]

27. The gods, the Fathers, human beings, and they that are Gandhar-vas-and-Apsarases: from the remnant etc. etc.

[The quoted Anukr. says "uchiste."]

8. Mystic: especially on the constitution of man.

Found also (except vss. 33, 34) in Pāipp. xvi. (in the verse-order 1-6, 8-10, 7, 12, 11, 13, 15, 14, 16-32). | The hymn is noticed neither by Kāuç. nor by Vāit. |

Translated: Ludwig, p. 402; Scherman, p. 67 (8 vss.); Deussen, Geschichte, i. 1. 270-277 (with introduction and interpretation); Henry, 123, 160; Griffith, ii. 80.

1. When fury $(many\acute{u})$ brought his wife away from the house of contrivance $(sa\acute{m}kalp\acute{a})$, who were the groomsmen $(j\acute{a}nya)$? who the wooers $(var\acute{a})$? who also was chief wooer?

Ppp. combines in $c k\bar{a}$ "san. | Its c, d = our 6 c, d.]

2. Penance and also action were within the great sea (arṇavá); those were the groomsmen, those the wooers; the bráhman was chief wooer.

The pada-mss. (save one of SPP's) divide evāstām in a into evā : āstām, and the accent of the verb is perfectly defensible, though SPP. alters to āstām. Some of the mss. (including our Bp.P.M.E.) leave mahati unaccented: cf. vs. 6 b, and iii. 6.3.

- 3. Ten gods were born together from gods of old; whoever may know them plainly, he verily may talk big to-day.
 - 'May teach the unlimited brahman' is the comm's understanding of the last clause.
- 4. Breath-and-expiration, sight, hearing, indestructibleness and destruction, out-breathing and up-breathing, speech, mind they verily brought design (dkūti).

The first half-verse occurs also as 7.25 a, b above, and the first three padas as vs. 26 a, b, c below. Ppp. combines $v\bar{a}$ "kūtim in d.

5. Unborn were the seasons, likewise Dhātar, Brihaspati, Indra-and-Agni, the two Açvins, at that time: whom did they worship (upa-ās) [as] chief?

The comm. reads at the end asate.

6. Both penance, namely, and action were within the great sea; penance was born from action; that did they worship as chief.

The comm. again has asate at the end. SPP. reads astam in pada-text, this time with two of his mss. Some mss. again (cf. vs. 2) read mahati (so our Bp.E.; P.M. mahaty árṇavé).

7. The earth that was previous to this one (itás), which the sages (addhātí) indeed knew—whoever may know that by name, he may think himself knowing in ancient things.

The translation implies emendation of $t\bar{a}n$ in c to $t\bar{a}m$, which SPP. gives in his text, with about half of his mss. Ppp's version is quite different; it reads for a ye'to bhūmis $p\bar{u}rv\bar{a}$ "sīt; and, for c, d, ke tasyan devā "sate kasmin sā 'dhi çrutaḥ [intending tasyām and çritā?].

8. Whence was Indra, whence Soma, whence Agni born? whence did Tvashtar come into being? whence was Dhātar born?

Ppp. has for d dhātā sam abhavat kutah.

9. From Indra Indra, from Soma Soma, from Agni Agni was born; Tvashtar was born from Tvashtar; from Dhātar Dhātar was born.

Ppp. arranges in d dhātā dhātur.

10. The ten gods that were of old, born from gods — having given the world to [their] sons, in what world sit they?

Ppp. combines $t\bar{a}$ "san in a, and reads purah for purā in b. [For consistency, the Berlin ed. should have $dattv\hat{a}$.]

11. When he brought hair, bone, sinew, flesh, marrow, having made a body with feet, what world did he afterward enter?

The comm. reads sam abharat in b.

12. Whence brought he the hair, whence the sinew, whence the bones? the limbs, the joints, the marrow, the flesh who brought from whence?

Ppp. combines at the end kutā "bharat. The comm. appears again to read sam abharat at end of b. A few mss. (including our Bp.R.) read snāvaķ in a.

13. Pourers-together namely are those gods who brought together the bringings-together; having poured together the whole mortal, the gods entered man.

Ppp. reads çansatas for sansicas in a, and sansrjya for sansicya in c.

14. Thighs, feet, knee-joints, head, hands, also face, ribs, nipples (? barjahyà), sides: what seer put that together?

The comm. has nothing to say for barjahyè except 'the parts so called.' Ppp. reads instead majjahye; and it has cront for ciras in b. It also makes our 14 c, d and 15 c, d exchange places.

15. Head, hands, also face, tongue and neck, vertebræ—all that, having enveloped with skin, the great putting-together put together.

Ppp. reads [bāhu for mukham in a and has] in c tat sarvam. The comm. paraphrases sandhā in d with sandhānakartrī devatā.

16. The great body which lay there, put together by the putting-together — who brought into it the color with which it shines (ruc) here today?

Ppp. reads adadhat for açayat in a, mayi for mahat in b, and ko 'smin in d. SPP. reports all his pada-mss. as having at the end $\bar{a} \circ dbharat$, which he emends to $\bar{a} : abharat$; our pada-mss. give the latter.

17. All the gods assisted (!upa-ciks); that she who was a woman knew; she who was wife of control (!vaca), mistress (ica), brought color into it.

Ppp. reads in a upāsikṣan, and viṣasya for vaçasya in c; the comm. (with two or three of SPP's mss.) has instead of the latter viçvasya. There are, failing help from sense, various questionable points in the construction.

18. When Tvashtar bored through [him?] who [was] the superior father of Tvashtar, having made the mortal a house, the gods entered into man.

Probably c is adjunct of devās; whether b is object of the verb in a is more doubtful. Ppp. gives no help. The comm. makes b define Tvaṣṭar himself, and understands the 'boring' of the openings for the senses, the eyes and ears etc. [Ludwig renders c: "machten die götter den sterblichen zu [ihrem] hause."]

19. Sleep, weariness, misery (nirrii), the deities named evils, old age, baldness, hoariness, entered the body afterward (ánu).

The comm. reads tandri in a, and khālityam in c. Anu perhaps rather 'one after another.'

20. Theft, ill-doing, wrong, truth, sacrifice, great glory, both strength, dominion, and force, entered the body afterward.

Ppp. has the better reading sahas for brhat in b.

21. Both growth (bhūti) and diminution, generosities and niggardlinesses, both hungerings and all thirstings, entered the body afterward.

Ppp. combines vā 'bhūtiç in a.

22. Both revilings and non-revilings, both what [says] "come on" (hánta) and "no," faith, the sacrificial fee, and non-faith, entered the body afterward.

Ppp. combines $v\bar{a}$ 'nindaç in a. The majority of mss. (including our Bp.B.P.M.E. T.R.K.) read dakṣiṇā in c; [if I understand W's Collation Book, only Bp.T.K. among his mss. are noted as so reading;] both editions give dakṣiṇā. The comm. explains the word as meaning dhanasamṛddhi. [Cf. Oldenberg, ZDMG. l. 449.]

23. Both knowledges and ignorances, and what else is to be taught (upa-dic); the brahman entered the body; the verses, the chant, also the formula.

Ppp. combines $v\bar{a}$ 'vidyāç in a, and reads for c çarīram sarve prā 'viçan [= our 25 c]. Brāhman perhaps is here the 'charm,' representing the Atharvan hymns.

24. Delights, joys, enjoyments, and they that enjoy enjoyments, laughter, sport, dances, entered the body afterward.

Ppp. reads for a ananda nandas pramado. The comm. reads nur istas in c [see SPP's note, p. 163]. The first half-verse is identical with 7. 26 a, b above.

25. Both appeals $(\bar{a}l\bar{a}p\acute{a})$ and pratings $(pral\bar{a}p\acute{a})$, and they who utter (-lap) addresses $(abh\bar{\iota}l\bar{a}pa-)$ — all entered the body, joiners-on $(\bar{a}y\acute{u}j)$, joiners-forth $(pray\acute{u}j)$, joiners.

Ppp. reads $pr\bar{a}yujas$ in d. The comm. explains the last words as = $\bar{a}yojan\bar{a}ni$, $prayojan\bar{a}ni$, and $yojan\bar{a}ni$. The first half-verse is as it were a change rung on 24 a, b.

26. Breath-and-expiration, sight, hearing, indestructibleness and destruction, out-breathing and up-breathing, speech, mind — they go about (īya-) with the body.

The first three padas are the same with 4 a, b, c, above.

27. Both blessings (āçís) and precepts (praçís), demands (samçís) and explanations (viçís), thoughts, all devisings, entered the body afterward.

The comm. explains the difficult compounds of -çis as mechanically as those of -yuj in vs. 25: āçāsanāni, praçāsanāni, samçāsanāni, vividhāni çāsanāni.

28. Both those of the blood and those of the bladder, the hasting and those that are pitiable, the secret, the clear, the thick waters — those they caused to settle in the repugnant one.

That is, apparently, in the body that was loth to receive them. SPP reads unaccountably at the beginning dsteyis, against the great majority of his mss., the comm, and the sense. The reading has not been noted at all among our mss., but sn and st are very imperfectly distinguished in general by the scribes, and the latter may possibly have been intended by some among them. The comm. derives the word from d + snd, instead of from asan; the form in which he gives it is dsneyyas. The second word he reads vdsneyyas, and derives it from vd or or dsneyyas. Then he adds another derivation for both words, from dsney asan sitting, and dsney asan or respectively. He reads then dsney asan in c. Ppp. reads dsney asan in c.

29. Having made bone [their] fuel, then they caused eight waters to settle; having made seed [their] sacrificial butter, the gods entered man.

The first part of the verse is spoiled in Ppp. The comm. has the more regular accus. pl. apas in b (the pada-text aṣṭā: ắpaḥ, as required by the accent; the comm. in general pays no heed to accent). He acutely refers to Tāitt. Brāh. i. 1.94, where bone is identified with fuel, and seed with sacrificial butter.

- 30. What waters [there are], and what deities, what virāj, with brāhman; brāhman entered the body; on (ādhi) the body [is] Prajāpati.
- 31. The sun, the wind, shared [respectively] the eye, the breath of man; then his other self the gods bestowed (pra-yam) on Agni.

'Shared' (vt bhejire, pl.) is ungrammatical as taken with the subject (which is only two-fold) given in the text. The comm. understands that the other 'senses' with their deities are viewed as included with these two. Ppp. reads tathā instead of atha in c.

32. Therefore, indeed, one who knows man [púruṣa] thinks "this is brāhman"; for all deities are seated in him, as cows in a cow-stall.

Our text should read at the end iva "sate with SPP, and nearly all the mss. (our Bp.B. iva "sate). Ppp. has a less naïve d: çarīre 'dhi samāhitāḥ.

33. By the first dying, it goes apart dividing threefold: yonder goes it with one [part]; yonder goes it with one; here with one it dwells (?ni-sev).

This verse and the one following are (as above noted) wanting in Ppp. The comm. reads ni for vi in b. He regards the two 'yonders' as pointing respectively to heaven and hell, and paraphrases ni sevate by nitarām sukhaduḥkhātmakān bhogān sevate. [He makes jīvātmā the subject: and a masculine subject seems required by $visva\bar{n}$, unless we read ni just after it.]

34. Within waters that are sluggish (?stīmá), old, is the body placed; within that is might (?çáva, çávas?); thence is it called might.

There is perhaps in c, d a play upon the word cávas, which may mean either 'might' (as neut.) or (as masc.) 'corpse.' The comm. paraphrases it both times with balātmakah sūtrātmā [i.e. the parameçvara]. He explains stīmāsu as anārdram sarvam jagad ārdram kurvatīsu.

[Here ends the fourth anuvāka, with 2 hymns and 61 verses. The quoted Anukr. says with reference to this eighth hymn "yan manyur" ity atra caturdaça ca: that is 14 over 20.]

9. To conquer enemies: to Arbudi.

[Kāñkāyana.— ṣadvinçakam. mantroktārbudidevatyam. ānuṣṭubham: 1. 7-p. virāṭ çakvarī 3-av.; 3. paroṣṇih; 4. 3-av. uṣṇigbṛhatīgarbhā parātriṣtup 6-p. atijagatī; 9, 11, 14, 23, 26. pathyāpañkti; 15, 22, 24, 25. 3-av. 7-p. çakvarī; 16. 3-av. 5-p. virāḍ uparɪṣṭājjyotis tri-ṣṭubh; 17. 3-p. gāyatrī.]

This and the following hymn are wanting in Pāipp., although bits of vss. 15-17 of this one are to be found in Pāipp. xvii. The opening words of the two are quoted together in Kāuç. 16. 21, in connection with rites for insuring success in war. [The use of the two hymns forms a sequel to the rites described in the introduction to viii. 8, which see; and cf. under viii. 8. 24.]

Translated: Ludwig, p. 530; Henry, 126, 164; Griffith, ii. 84; Bloomfield, 123, 631.

I. What arms $(b\bar{a}h\hat{u})$ [there are], what arrows, and the powers $(v\bar{i}ry\hat{a})$ of bows, swords (asi), axes $(parac\hat{u})$, weapon, and what thought-and-design in the heart—all that, O Arbudi, do thou make our enemies to see; and do thou show forth specters $(ud\bar{a}r\hat{a})$.

The comm. refers to AB. vi. I, where Arbuda is named and called a serpent-sage, and declares Arbudi and Nyarbudi to be his two sons. Udārān he explains as udgatān antarikṣacarān rakṣaḥpiçācādīn mantrasāmarthyodbhāvitān, or also as sūryaraçmiprabhavā ulkādaya āntarikṣyā utpātāh, specters or portents. Pāda d, below, vs. 13 b.

2. Stand up, equip ye yourselves (sam-nah), O friends, god-folk; beheld, concealed of you be [those] who are our friends, O Arbudi.

The occurrence of mitrās m. and mitrāṇi n. in the same verse is puzzling, also the conjunction of samdṛṣṭa and gupta, and of vas with the singular arbude. The comm. reads samdṛṣṭās and guptās in c. Our Bp. reads yāh in d. [Pāda a = 26 b and 10. I a.] [W. interlines "protected?" over "concealed."]

3. Stand ye (two) up, take ye hold; with tying up, with tying together, gird ye the armies of our enemies, O Arbudi.

The dual verbs doubtless imply, as the comm. also points out, the inclusion of Nyarbudi in the address to Arbudi [cf. vs. 11]. The comm. reads senām in c.

4. The God that is Arbudi by name, and the lord ($iq\bar{a}na$) Nyarbudi, by whom the atmosphere is involved (\bar{a} -vr), and this great earth — by those (two) who are allied with Indra, I go after what is conquered with an army.

Probably 'I follow up with my army what is already conquered by them.' The two last pādas are by the comm. reckoned as the first line of the next verse.

5. Stand thou up, O god-folk, Arbudi, with the army; breaking (bhañj) the army of our enemies, envelop it with [thy] coils (bhogá).

The comm. explains bhogébhis as ātmīyāih sarpaçarīrāih.

6. Presenting to view, O Nyarbudi, the seven kinds of specters, with them all do thou stand up, when the butter is offered, with the army.

The pada-text reads in a jātān: nioarbude; but the reading is plainly false, and should be either jātā: nioarbude, or jātāni: arbude; either of these, considering that to the scribes nya and nnya are entirely equivalent and exchangeable (see my Skt. Gr. §§ 229, 232), would correctly represent the samhitā-reading. [Cf. the reading of the comm. at 10. 21.]

- 7. Smiting herself, tear-faced, and crop-eared (?), let her yell, with disheveled hair, when the man is slain, bitten (?rad), O Arbudi, of thee.
- 'Her'—namely, the wife or sister or the like; more distinctly pointed to in the next verse. Radita ought to mean rather 'scraped' or 'scratched'; there seems to be no other example of it in the sense 'bitten': perhaps as a mere scratch from the fang of a serpent is enough to kill. The comm. takes radita as a noun (like ruta, smita, citta, etc.), = dantāir vilekhane khādane sati. Of kṛdhukarṇī the comm. says: kṛdhv iti hrasvanāma: karṇābharaṇaparityāgena hrasvakarṇī. The verse is translated (also vs. 14, and 10.7) by Bloomfield, in AJP. xi. 340.
- 8. Drawing in her karūkara, seeking with her mind her son, husband, brother, also her people (svá) in case of thy bite, O Arbudi.

The ending is the same with that of vs. 7, understood as the comm. takes it; we might also supply '[he being] bitten' etc. The Pet. Lex. renders karūkara 'vertebræ of the neck and spine': rather (in CB. xii. 2. 4¹⁰, 14), perhaps, 'a point or spinous process of a vertebra.' The comm. explains karu as an imitative word, and karūkara as meaning anything that makes the sound karu, and so designating hastapādādyavayavagatam samdhimad asthijātam; and he goes on loke hi bhayavaçād ubhayor hastayoh parasparāngulinipīdanena tādrçam çabdam utpādayanti. This is far from relieving satisfactorily the obscurity. Most of our mss. accent svān in c.

9. Let the buzzards, jāṣkamadás, vultures, falcons, winged ones, let the crows, the birds (çakúni), satisfy themselves — exhibiting among the enemies — in case of thy bite, O Arbudi.

We have here two refrain-phrases, neither of which stands in any grammatical connection with its surroundings (the pple. 'exhibiting' being nom. sing. masc.). The comm. reads in a aliklabāh and yāh klamadāh; and some of the mss. have jāhkam-(so our B.O.s.m.).

10. Then let all wild beasts, let the fly, let the worm satisfy itself upon the carrion of men, bitten, O Arbudi, of thee.

Here the refrain stands again in grammatical connection.

11. Take ye (two) hold, tear out (sam-bṛh) [their] breath-and-expiration, O Nyarbudi; let groaning (?nivāçá) noises assemble — exhibiting among the enemies — in case of thy bite, O Arbudi.

Again (as in vs. 3) the other serpent-deity is included in a in the invocation [this time of Nyarbudi]. The comm. reads vrhatam in a. He explains nivāçās as nīcīnam vāç yamānā ābhāsyamāṇāh.

12. Make thou [them] tremble; let them quake together; unite our enemies with fear; with broad-gripping arm-hooks pierce thou our enemies, O Nyarbudi.

The comm. reads in c ūrugrāhāis (which is not bad) and bāhuvañkāis, explaining the latter by bāhunā vakrabandhanāiḥ. Our P.M.W. read at the end amttrāny arbude: compare 6 a, above.

13. Let their arms be confounded, and what thought-and-design is in their heart; let not anything of them be left—in case of thy bite, O Arbudi.

The second pada is the same with vs. 1 d, above.

14. Smiting themselves let them (f.) run together, smiting on the breast, the thighs (?paţāurá), not anointing, with disheveled hair, wailing when the man is slain, bitten, O Arbudi, of thee.

Translated by Bloomfield, ib. (see vs. 7). I follow both translators in rendering $pat\bar{a}ur\dot{a}$ by 'thigh,' although it is not too acceptable, considering the familiarity of $\bar{u}ru$ as name for 'thigh.' SPP. reads instead $pat\bar{u}r\bar{a}\dot{u}$, with a very small minority of his mss. (of ours, only B.s.m. has it), and with the comm. The latter defines it simply as tat- (i.e. urah) pradecau. He makes $agh\bar{a}rin$ from agha and root r: aghena bhartr-viyogajanitena $duhkhen\bar{a}$ " $rt\bar{a}h$!

15. Dog-accompanied Apsarases, she-jackals (?rtpakā) also, O Arbudi, the riçā, licking much in the inner vessel, seeking what is ill-deposited—all these (f.), O Arbudi, do thou make our enemies to see, and do thou show forth specters;—

The conclusion is nearly the same with vs. I e, f, g, above, and is also repeated below [vss. 22, 24]. The accent of çvànvatīs seems certainly wrong, but it is read by all the mss., and avouched by the commentary to Prāt. iii. 73. The translation of $r\bar{u}pak\bar{a}$ is that of the minor Pet. Lex., apparently founded solely on an Avestan analogue; the comm. defines it as māyāvaçāt kevalam rūpamātreņo 'palabhyamānāh senārūpakāh. He reads antah and pātre as two independent words, according to his custom of caring nothing for accent. For riçām ("tearing one, as designating some small animal," minor Pet. Lex.) he reads vaçām 'cow,' so that we lose any light he might have cast on the obscure description. Bp. reads riṣām. Prāt. iii. 75 and iv. 77 prescribe the pada-reading durnihita-.

16. Her that strides upon the khadura, mutilated, wearing what is mutilated(?); the specters that are concealed, and what Gandharvas-and-Apsarases [there are], serpents, other-folk, demons;—

The comm. reads at the beginning khadūre, and explains it as ākāçe dūradeçe; our Bp.Kp. have sadūre. Again neglecting the accent, he takes adhi and cañkramām as two independent words. He also reads -vāçinīm in b; -vāsin might be 'dwelling' (so understood by the Pet. Lexx. and Ludwig). Finally, he reckons the last (irregular) pāda to the following verse. | Pāda e = 10.1 c. |

17. The four-tusked ones, the black-toothed, the pot-testicled, the blood-faced; they that are self-frighting and frighting.

The first four epithets are accus. pl. masc.; probably, like the accus. fem. at beginning of vs. 16, objects of prå darçaya 'show forth' in vs. 15. The comm. explains svabhyasās and udbhy- by svāyattabhītayo rākṣasāh and udgatabhītayah.

18. Do thou, O Arbudi, make to tremble yonder lines (sic) of our enemies; let both the conquering one and the conqueror, allied with Indra, conquer our enemies.

SPP. reads in his samhitā-text jdyānç ca in c, with the large majority of his mss., and with part of ours (E.O.s.m.K.). The prolongation being so anomalous, and unsupported by the Prāt., I think jdyanç ca decidedly the more acceptable reading. The comm. gives it. He also has çucas for sicas in b. Read amitrān at end of c, with anusvārasign, not anunāsika. [Pāda b = 10.20 b.]

19. Let our enemy lie squelched, crushed, slain, O Nyarbudi; let tongues of fire, tufts of smoke, go conquering with the army.

The comm. reads in a pravlinas, in accordance with the more usual form.

- 20. Of our enemies, pushed forth by it, O Arbudi, let Indra, lord of might (cácīpáti), slay each best man (vára); let no one soever of them be freed.
- 'By it'—i.e. by the army; the comm. reads instead tvayā 'by thee.' With a, b compare vi. 67. 2 c, d. [Our d occurs several times: see note to iii. 19.8.]
- 21. Let their hearts burst open (ut-kas), their breath pass up aloft; let dryness of mouth follow after our enemies, [and] not those who are friendly.

The comm. renders ut kasantu by çartrād udgacchantu, and ud īsatu equivalently.

22. Both they who are wise (dhtra) and they who are unwise, those going away and they who are deaf, they of darkness and they who are hornless (tūpará), likewise those that smell of (?) the goat—all those (m.), O Arbudi, do thou make our enemies to see, and do thou show forth specters.

The meaning of -abhivāsin is wholly uncertain [cf. Pāli $v\bar{a}sita$]; the Pet. Lex. conjectures instead -abhivāçin, and the comm. reads bastāvivāçin, as from basta + avi + $v\bar{a}$ çin. He also, in defiance of pada-text and accent, renders tamasās as tāmasā. [cf. nabhasá-s (not nábhas-as), ix. 4. 22.]

23. Let both Arbudi and Trishandhi pierce through our enemies, in order that, O Indra, Vritra-slayer, lord of might, we may slay of them, of our enemies, by thousands.

Trisandhi, lit. of three joints,' is conspicuous especially in the next hymn. The comm. explains it here as kaçcit senāmohako devah samdhitrayopetavajrāyudhābhimānī vā.

24. The forest-trees, them of the forest-trees, herbs and plants, Gandharvas-and-Apsarases, serpents, gods, purc-folk (punyajaná), Fathers—all those, O Arbudi, do thou make our enemies to see, and do thou show forth specters.

The comm. identifies the 'pure-folk' with the yakşas. [With c, d, cf. viii. 8. 15, above.] [Cf. Kāuç. 73. 5.]

25. Mastery over you have the Maruts [gained], the heavenly Āditya, Brahmaṇaspati; mastery over you have both Indra and Agni, Dhātar, Mitra, Prajāpati; mastery over you have the seers gained (kṛ) — exhibiting among the enemies — in case of thy bite, O Arbudi.

One would like to emend devás to devás in a.

26. Masters (t̄çāna) of them all, stand ye up, equip yourselves, ye friends, god-folks; having wholly conquered in this conflict, scatter ye to your several worlds.

The mss. set the avasāna in this verse after $y\bar{u}y\delta m$, and SPP. very properly does the same. | Our b, c = 2 a, b: b = 10.1 a. |

10. To conquer enemies: to Trishandhi.

[Bhrgvañgiras. — saptavinçati. mantroktatrişandhidevatyam. ānuşţubham: 1. virāţ pathyābrhatī; 2. 3-av. 6-p. tristubgarbhā 'tijagatī; 3. virāḍ āstārapañkti; 4. virāj; 8. virāṭ tristubh; 9. purovirāṭ purastājjyotis tristubh; 12. 5-p. pathyāpañkti; 13. 6-p. jagatī; 16. 3-av. 6-p. kakummaty anustuptristubgarbhā çakvarī; 17. pathyāpañkti; 21. 3-p. gāyatrī; 22. virāṭ purastādbṛhatī; 25. kakubh; 26. prastārapañkti.]

Not found in Pāipp. [For its use by Kāuç. in connection with hymn 9, see introduction to hymn 9.]

Translated: Ludwig, p. 531; Henry, 129, 169; Griffith, ii. 88; Bloomfield, 126, 637.

1. Stand ye up, equip yourselves, ye specters, together with ensigns; ye serpents, other-folks, demons, run after our enemies.

[Pāda $\mathbf{a} = 9.2 \, \mathbf{a}, 26 \, \mathbf{b}; \mathbf{c} = 9.16 \, \mathbf{e}.$]

2. Your mastery I know, [your] kingdom, O Trishandhi, together with red ensigns; what in the atmosphere, what in the sky, and what men (mānavá) [are] on the earth, let those ill-named ones sit (?upa-ās) in the mind (cétas) of Trishandhi.

The translation implies veda rājyam in a, while all the pada-mss. treat the word as a compound (vedaorājyam). The comm. takes veda as an independent word, but renders it as a 3d sing., with triṣandhis supplied as subject; and he understands the enemies as addressed by vas in a. He supplies ketavas to the three ye's in c, d, regarding mānavās as adj., 'human.' And he cuts off the last two pādas, adding them instead to vs. 3, and reading at the beginning trisandhe tve ("= tava"); explaining upāsatām by sambhajantām, and making the following nouns its subject. For durṇāmānas he has -nam (as also our B.O.).

3. Iron-(áyas-)mouthed, needle-mouthed, likewise thorn-tree-(vikan-kaṭī-)mouthed, let the flesh-eaters, of wind-swiftness, fasten on our enemies with the three-jointed (trisandhi) thunderbolt.

The comm. regards the epithets as signifying flesh-eating birds, and supplies [alternatively] 'sent forth' (preritās) to the concluding instrumentals.

4. O Jātavedas, Āditya, put thou between much human flesh; let this army of Trishandhi be well-placed in my control.

Most of SPP's pada-mss. give sénāḥ in c; no such reading has been noted among our mss. One would like to improve meter and sense together by emending triṣandhes to -dhinā, understanding the 'army' to be the enemy's. Antar dhehi at the beginning may also mean 'hide'; and the comm. juggles the line into signifying, 'O Jātavedas, make the corpses of our enemies hide the sun'!

5. Stand thou up, O god-folk, O Arbudi, with the army; this tribute is offered $(\bar{a}-hu)$ to you | pl. |; the offering [is] dear to Trishandhi.

The comm. reads $\bar{a}hutis$ (for -tas) in c, and $\bar{a}hutipriy\bar{a}$ as compound in d. [In some copies the i of $priy\bar{a}$ is broken.]

6. Let the white-footed one tie together, this shaft (çaravyà), four-footed; O witchcraft, be thou for our enemies, together with the army of Trishandhi.

The comm. reads for dyatu, in a, patatu: cf. vs. 7 a. By çitipadī he understands a white-footed cow, called a çaravyà as being a çaraṇām bāṇānām samūhah.

7. Let the smoke-eyed (f.) one fall together, and the crop-eared one (f.) yell; it being conquered by the army of Trishandhi, let the ensigns be red.

The comm. supplies parakiye bale to jite; the pada-reading (simply jite) forbids us to regard the word as fem. dual. He takes the epithets in the first half-verse first as applying to the enemy's army, and then to the kṛtyā which is invoked against it. The verse is translated by Bloomfield, as noted above (see 9.7), at AJP. xi. 340.

8. Let the winged ones descend, the birds, they that go about in the atmosphere, in the sky; let the wild beasts, the flies, take hold together; let the raw-flesh-eating vultures scratch at the human carrion.

The comm. explains radantām by svatuņdāih pādāiç ca vilikhantu. [Read divi ca yé?]

9. The agreement (saindhá) which thou hast agreed on with Indra and with the bráhman, O Brihaspati, by that Indra-agreement do I call hither all the gods: conquer ye on this side, not on that!

The comm. (with two or three of SPP's authorities) reads -adhattās in a; and he treats indra-samdhayā as two independent words in c. Samdhām in a is clearly proved an intrusion by the meter.

10. Brihaspati of the Angiras race, the seers sharpened by the bráhman, set up (ā-qri) in the sky the Asura-destroying weapon, Trishandhi.

One would like to emend $\bar{a}\bar{n}giras\dot{a}s$ to $\dot{a}\bar{n}girasas$ (as Ludwig translates). The comm. renders \dot{a} 'crayan by asevanta, as if it were \dot{a} 'crayanta.

- 11. By whom yonder sun, and Indra, both stand protected Trishandhi the gods shared, in order to both force and strength.
- 12. All worlds did the gods completely conquer by means of that offering (ahuti) the thunderbolt which Brihaspati of the Angiras race poured, an Asura-destroying weapon.
 - 'Poured,' i.e. 'cast': a term used also elsewhere of the thunderbolt (BR. vii. 980).
- 13. The thunderbolt which Brihaspati of the Angiras race poured, an Asura-destroying weapon therewith do I blot out (ni-lip) you army, O Brihaspati; I slay the enemies with force.

The comm. renders nt limpāmi by nitarām chinadmi. He also has the strange reading amūs for amūm before sénām.

- 14. All the gods come over hither, who partake of [the offering] made with vásat; enjoy ye this offering; conquer ye on this side, not on that!
- 15. Let all the gods come over hither; the offering [is] dear to Trishandhi; defend ye the great agreement by which in the beginning the Asuras were conquered.

The comm. appears to read in a -yanti, as in vs. 14 a, but he interprets it as an imperative this time.

16. Let Vāyu bend up the arrow-points of the enemies; let Indra break back their arms; let them not be able to set the arrow; let Āditya make their missile weapon (astrá) disappear; let the moon put (yu) them on the track of what is not gone.

The last clause is very doubtful and difficult; the comm. gives no aid, explaining with aprāptasyā "jigamiṣataḥ çatroḥ . . . panthānam asmatprāptyupāyabhūtam mārgam yutām tataḥ pṛthakkurutām (taking yutām from yu 'separate,' and adding) tādrçam mārgam çatrur na paçyatv ity arthaḥ. He divides the verse into two, making the second begin with ādityá eṣām.

17. If they have gone forward to the gods' strongholds, have made the bráhman their defenses; if (?yát) they have encouraged (?upa-vac) themselves, making a body-protection, a complete protection—all that do thou make sapless.

The verse occurred above as v. 8. 6, and the comm. declines to repeat his explanation there given — which, however, is not in our hands.

18. Causing to follow the purbhita with the flesh-eating [fire] and with death, O Trishandhi, go forth with the army; conquer the enemies; go forward.

The last pada is identical with iii. 19.8 c.

19. O Trishandhi, do thou envelop our enemies with darkness; of them yonder, thrust forth by the speckled butter, let none soever be freed.

The last half-verse is nearly identical with viii. 8. 19 c, d. [For the stock-phrase d, see iii. 19. 8, note.]

20. Let the white-footed one (f.) fall upon (?sam-pat) yonder lines of our enemies; let yonder armies of our enemies be confounded today, O Nyarbudi.

The second pāda is identical with 9. 18 b; to be put in any connection with it, the words of the first pāda require to be rendered otherwise than in 6 a, 7 a, above. The comm. again reads queas for sicas, as in the other passage [9. 18: comm. p. 18117].

21. Confounded [be] our enemies, O Nyarbudi; slay thou of them each best man (vára); slay [them] with this army.

The comm. strangely reads amitrān beside $m\bar{u}dh\bar{a}s$. [The rationale of his variant is perhaps as in 9. 6 above (nnya = nya). The pada-text has amitrāh. But the comm. also takes $m\bar{u}dh\bar{a}h$ as $= m\bar{u}dh\bar{a}n$.]

22. Whoever is mailed, and who without mail, and what enemy is in march (? djman); by bowstring-fetters, by mail-fetters, smitten by the march let him lie.

The mss. are in good part awkward about the combination jm (in ajmani, ajmana), writing what looks like a fm or fm, but there is no real variant. The comm. explains djman as ajati gacchaty anene'ty ajma rathādi yānam. He gives abhihitas, a preferable reading, in d.

23. Who have defenses, who have no defenses, and the enemies who have defenses—all those, O Arbudi, being slain, let dogs eat on the ground.

The accent $y\ell$ 'varmāṇaḥ, though read by all the mss. [save R.], is wholly inadmissible, and should be emended to $y\ell$ 'v-.

24. Who have chariots, who have no chariots, those without seats and they who have seats $(s\bar{a}d\dot{a})$ — all those, being slain, let vultures, falcons, birds (patatrin) eat.

We may fairly question whether 'seat' means here 'seat on horseback.' The comm. explains asādās by açvādiyānarahitāh padātayah, and sādinas by açvārūdhāh 'mounted on horses.'

25. Let the army of our enemies lie with thousand corpses (-kúnapa) in the conflict of weapons, pierced through, cut to pieces (?).

The obscure $kakaj\bar{a}krt\bar{a}$ at the end is guessed by the comm. to mean $kutsitajanan\bar{a}$ $vilolajanan\bar{a}$ $v\bar{a}$ $krt\bar{a}$, he attempts no etymology, but evidently sees in it the root $j\bar{a}$. In a he has the strange reading $sen\bar{a}m$ for $cet\bar{a}m$.

26. Let the eagles (suparná) eat him, pierced to the vitals, crying loudly, lying crushed, the evil-minded one — what enemy of ours wishes to fight against this opposing offering.

The translation implies the emendation (which Ludwig's version also makes) of suparnāts to suparnāts in a. The comm. takes it as qualifying çarāis understood and adjunct of marmāvidham: 'pierced etc. by well-feathered arrows.' In the irregular meter of the first line, the division is perhaps best made before adantu; a small minority of SPP's mss. so regard it, and accent adántu accordingly, and he follows them in his text; our Bp. puts its pāda-division after adantu, and, with one other ms., leaves the word without accent. [See Henry's elaborate conjectures, p. 172: marmāvidho rōruvatah suparnā ganātr adantu mrdītām çdyānam. The other versions imply mārmaviddham, and Bloomfield expressly conjectures marmaviddhām, overlooking the accent; but the comm. to Prāt. iv. 68 quotes marmāvidham as an instance of non-separation in padatext.]

27. [The offering] which the gods follow (anu-sthā), of which there is no failure — with that let Indra, Vritra-slayer, slay, with the three-jointed thunderbolt.

The sum of the verses for hymns I-2 and 4-10 is (68+189=) 257. Reckoning hymn 3 (with the Berlin ed.) as of 56 vss., we get for the book (257+56=) 313: and this is the summation given by codex I. On the other hand, reckoning hymn 3 as of (3I+72+7=) 110 vss. (see pp. 632, 628), we get for the book (257+110=) 367. But the summation given by four of W's mss. (including P.W.B.) is 365. How to account for the discrepancy I do not see. One ms. sums up the last anuvāka as 51 (i.e. 26+25?—instead of 26+27=53) verses, and 10.17 is indeed a galita-verse; but the Old Anukr. reckons hymn 10 as 27, not 25.

[Three or four mss. sum up the sūktas "of both kinds" as 12.] Here ends the twenty-fifth prapāṭhaka.]

Book XII.

LThis twelfth book is the fifth and last of the second grand division of the Atharvan collection. For a general statement as to the make-up of the books of this division, page 471 may again be consulted. The Old Anukramanī describes the length of the artha-sūktas, hymns 1, 2, 3, and 4, by giving the overplus of each hymn over 60 verses. The assumed normal lengths in the case of books ix., x., xi., and xii. seem to be respectively 20, 30, 20, and 60 verses. The whole book has been translated by Victor Henry, Les livres X, XI et XII de l'Atharva-véda traduits et commentés, Paris, 1896. The bhāsya is again lacking. The fifth or last hymn is made up of 7 paryāyas (see pages 471-2), which, if they be counted separately, make the hymns number 11 instead of 5: see page 611, top.]

[The anuvāka-division of the book (as noted above, page 472) is into five anuvākas of one hymn each. The "decad"-division likewise is as described on page 472. A tabular conspectus for this book also may be added:

Anuvākas	I	2	3	4	5
Hymns	1	, 2	3	4	5
Decad-div.	5 tens + 13	5 tens + 5	6 tens	4 tens + 13	7 P

Here, as before, ¶ means "paragraph of a paryāya" (such as is numbered as a "verse" in the Berlin edition) and P means "paryāya." The last line shows the "decad"-division. Of these "decads," anuvākas 1, 2, 3, and 4 contain respectively 6, 6, 6, and 5 (in all, 23 "decads"); while anuvāka 5 has 7 paryāyas. The sum is 23 "decad"-sūktas and 7 paryāya-sūktas or 30 sūktas. Cf. the summation at the end of hymn 5.

Found also in Pāipp. xvii. (excepting vss. 62, 63). Many of the verses are used by the Kāuç., as also the whole hymn (which is also by itself an anuvāka), under the name bhāuma, '[hymn] to earth': so at 38. 12, 16, in a ceremony for giving firmness to buildings; at 98. 3 (with vi. 87, 88), for safety from earthquake; and in 8. 23 it is (with iii. 12, vi. 73, 93) reckoned a vāstospatya hymn. The first 7 verses (Kāuç. 24. 27) and the first 9 (? 24. 31, 35) are used in the āgrahāyanī ceremony. [Further, cf. Keç. to 70. 8, 9.] In Vāit., vss. 1, 13, 27, 30, and others are quoted. [The whole hymn is prescribed in Nakṣ. Kalpa, 18, in a mahāçānti called pārthivī: see SPP. iii. 2025.]

Translated: by Charles Bruce, Journal of the Royal Asiatic Society, Old Series, xix. 321 ff. (with comparisons from Greek writers); Ludwig, p. 544; Henry, 179, 215; Griffith, ii. 93; Bloomfield, 199, 639.

1. Great (bṛhánt) truth, formidable right, consecration, penance, bráhman, sacrifice sustain the earth; let her for us, mistress of what is and what is to be—let the earth make for us wide room (loká);—

Found also in MS. (iv. 14. 11), which reads yajāās in b, and bhūvanasya (for bhūv-yasya) in c. The Anukr. does not heed that pāda a is jagatī. The verse (unless more of the hymn is meant to be included with it) is, according to Vāit. 12. 6, to be repeated by one who relieves on the ground the needs of nature. It is quoted by Kāuç. 24. 24 in the āgrahāyanī ceremony; also in the comm. to 24. 35 (cf. above); and it, with vs. 38, is reckoned (see note to Kāuç. 19. 1) among the pustika mantras.

2. Unoppressedness in the midst of men $(m\bar{a}nav\acute{a})$. Whose are the ascents $(udv\acute{a}t)$, the advances $(prav\acute{a}t)$, the much plain $(sam\acute{a})$; who bears the herbs of various virtue $(n\acute{a}n\bar{a}v\bar{i}rya)$ — let the earth be spread out for us, be prosperous for us.

The mss. vary in a between badhyatás and madhyatás (Bp.P.M.I. have ba-), but only the latter can be right, and the translation adopts it; the former (which Ppp. also has, and mānaveṣu) seems to have come in under the influence of -bādham. [Correct the edition.] As the text stands, pāda a can only be an adjunct to vs. 1, and so Ppp. reckons it, and begins our b with asyās. But MS. (iv. 14. 11) reads asambādhā yā madhyató mānavébhyo; it also has mahát for bahú at end of b, and nānārūpās and bibhārti in c. This time the Anukr. notices that b has 12 syllables. Kāuç. 137. 16 quotes the verse [in the preparation of the vedi].

3. On whom [are] the ocean and the river (sindhu), the waters; on whom food, plowings, came into being; on whom quickens this that breathes, that stirs—let that earth (bhūmi) set us in first drinking.

That is, doubtless, give us precedence over others (but MS. reads pūrvapėyam: see note to vs. 5). Ppp. reads for b yasyām devā 'mṛtam anvavindan; and for second half-verse it has our 4 c, d, giving our 3 c, d as second half of vs. 5, with the easier reading jīvati, [followed by] viçvam ejāt in c. We should expect kṛṣdyas in b.

4. Whose, the earth's, [are] the four quarters; on whom food, plowings, came into being; who bears manifoldly what breathes, what stirs—let that earth (blatimi) set us among kine, also in inexhaustibleness (?ánya).

Ppp. reads in a yasyām and pṛthivyām, and in b gṛṣṭayas [cf. note to ii. 13. 3]. As second half-verse it has our 5 c, d, giving our 4 c, d as 3 c, d, reading (after bahudhā) pṛāṇine jāṇgano bhūmir goṣv açveṣu pinve kṛṇotu, thus relieving us of the difficult anye. Kāuç. (137. 17) uses the verse next after vs. 2, in connection with making the sacrificial hearth four-cornered. The description given by the Anukr. of this and the two following verses is so wholly wrong that we cannot help suspecting a corrupt text. This verse is, if we make no resolutions in d, a regular triṣṭubh.

5. On whom the people of eld (pūrvajanā) formerly spread themselves (?vi-kṛ); on whom the gods overcame the Asuras; the station (?viṣṭhā) of kine, of horses, of birds (váyas)—let the earth assign us fortune (bhága), splendor.

Ppp. reads in a nicakrire, and in b atyavartayan; also in c (found as its 4 c) vayasayya ?. MS. has a verse made up of our 5 a, b (without variant), 4 c (accenting bibharti), and 3 d (with pūrvapēyam). The verse is mixed tristubh and jagatī. In Ppp. this verse precedes our 4.— The sequence of the half-verses of the Vulgate as they stand in Ppp. seems therefore to be as follows: 3 a, b, 4 c, d, 5 a, b, 3 c, d, 4 a, b, 5 c, d.

6. All-bearing, good-holding, firm-standing, gold-backed (-vákṣas), reposer of moving things (jágat), bearing the universal (vāiçvānará) fire, let the earth (bhūmi), whose bull is Indra, set us in property.

The verse is found also in MS. (iv. 14. 11), which reads, in a-b, puruksúd dhíranyavarnā jágatah pratisthā; and in d drávinam (the editor also admits in his text the bad reading indra rsabhā). It is quoted in Kāuç. 137. 28. [I do not see why W. has preferred 'gold-backed' to 'gold-breasted' here and in vs. 26.] [By 'reposer' he means 'bringer-to-rest.']

7. She the earth (bhūmi pṛthivt), whom the gods, sleepless, defend all the time without failure — let her yield (duh) to us honey, what is dear; then let her sprinkle us with splendor.

The verse is found also in MS. (iv. 14. 11), which reads in c ghṛtâm instead of priyâm.

8. She who in the beginning was sea $(salil\acute{a})$ upon the ocean $(arṇav\acute{a})$; whom the skilful $(man\bar{\imath}s\acute{\imath}n)$ moved after with their devices $(m\bar{a}y\acute{a})$; the earth whose immortal heart covered with truth is in the highest firmament $(vy\acute{o}man)$ — let that earth $(bh\acute{u}mi)$ assign to us brilliancy, strength, in highest royalty.

The verse is properly 11 + 12 : 11 + 11 : 8 + 8 = 61 syllables, and not very well described by the Anukr. The last two clauses perhaps have independent construction: '[assign] to us brilliancy [and] strength, [and] set [us] in highest royalty.'

9. On whom the circulating waters flow the same, night and day, without failure—let that earth (bhūmi), of many streams (-dhārā) yield (duh) us milk; then let her sprinkle [us] with splender.

The Anukr. does not heed that c is a jagatt pada. [In Ppp., this verse precedes our 7.]

10. Whom the Açvins measured; on whom Vishnu strode out; whom Indra, lord of might $(cdc\bar{c})$, made free from enemies for himself — let that earth (bhuni) to us, a mother to a son, release (vi-srj) milk [to me].

Some of the mss. read in d-trắn chácī-, and Bp. has accordingly -trắn. Ppp. also has cakrā "tmane 'namitrān cchacī-; and, at the end, naṣ payaḥ. [Ppp's repetition of nas is more tolerable than the harsh change from pl. to sing. which W. seems to have overlooked.]

11. Let thy hills (girt) [and] snowy mountains (párvata), let thy forest-land (áranya), O earth, be pleasant (syoná); upon the brown, black, red, all-formed, fixed (dhruvá) earth (bhūmi), the earth guarded by Indra—I, unharassed, unsmitten, unwounded, have stood upon the earth.

Ppp. reads in b āraṇyaṁ corrected to ar-, and naḥ after astu; also in c lohinīṁ, and in f adhi ṣṭhāṁ, which is better. [Roth's Collation has in fact addhi.] The verse (11+11:11+11:8+8=60) should be called atiçakvarī rather than virāḍ aṣṭi. Verses 11 and 12 are reckoned to the svastyayana gana (see note to Kāuç. 25. 36).

12. What is thy middle, O earth, and what thy navel, what refreshments $(\hat{u}rj)$ arose $(sam-bh\bar{u})$ out of thy body — in them do thou set us; be purifying $(p\bar{u})$ toward us; earth $(bh\hat{u}mi)$ is mother, I am earth's son; Parjanya is father — let him save (fill? pr) us.

Ppp. reads at end of a yaç ca nādyā.

13. On what earth (bhimi) they enclose the sacrificial hearth; on what [earth] men of all works extend the sacrifice; on what earth are set up (mi) the sacrificial posts, erect, bright, before the oblation—let that earth (bhimi), increasing, make us increase.

Ppp. reads in b viçvakarmanah, and in d reads and combines çukrā "hutyā pur. All the mss. accent at the end vardhamānā. In Vāit. 15. 8, the verse is used to accompany the enclosing of the sacrificial hearth. In virtue of one jagatī pāda (b), the verse is a full çakvarī (56 syll.).

- 14. Whoso shall hate us, O earth; whoso shall fight [us]; whoso shall vex [us] with mind, who with deadly weapon him, O prior-acting earth (bhūmi), do thou put in our power.
- 'Prior-acting,' i.e., apparently, 'getting the start of him'; we should expect a nom. rather than a vocative case. Ppp. reads instead $p\bar{u}rvakrtvane$; also, in b, 'bhimanyā tāindanamā dhanena. Read in our text prtanyād yò (an accent-sign omitted); one of our mss. Land five of SPP's authorities, and his text!, however, read yò. According to the usual nomenclature of the Anukr., the verse is a $vir\bar{u}d$ $g\bar{u}yatr\bar{u}$ (11 + 11: 12 = 34, hence bhurij). LDr. Ryder suggests that the mahābrhatī here intended is one of 3 jāgata pādas (see Ind. Stud. viii. 243-4). Both this vs. and 17 may be scanned as 12 + 12: 12—cf. under vs. 17.
- 15. Born from thee, mortals go about upon thee; thou bearest bipeds, thou quadrupeds; thine, O earth, are these five [races] of men, for whom, mortals, the rising sun extends with his rays immortal light.

Ppp. reads in b ca instead of the second tvam.

16. Let those creatures, without exception (samagrá), together yield fruit (duh) to us; the honey of speech, O earth, do thou assign unto me.

 $T\ell$ for $t\hat{a}s$ at the beginning, allowing us to regard $praj\hat{a}s$ as accus., would be a welcome emendation.

17. The all-producing (-st) mother of herbs, the fixed earth (bht), the earth maintained by ordinance, the auspicious, the pleasant, may we go about over always.

This verse (10 [properly 11] + 12:12 = 34 syll.) is overlooked by the Anukr.; it nearly accords in structure with vs. 14, above. [Dr. Ryder observes that the dual ($mah\bar{a}brhaty\bar{a}u$) of the Anukr.-text suggests the possible falling out of the pratika of this verse. See under vs. 14.] [There is a play of words in $dharman\bar{a}$ $dhrt\bar{a}m$ which cannot easily be reproduced in translation.]

18. Thou hast become great, a great station (sadhástha); great is thy trembling, stirring, quaking; great Indra defends thee unremittingly. Do thou, O earth (bhūmi), make us to shine forth as in the aspect (saindfe) of gold; let no one soever hate us.

Ppp. reads viryena for apramādam in c, and from e $\lfloor samdrçi \rfloor$ passes directly on to our 19 c (agnir antas pur- etc.): probably an accidental omission. The verse (12+11:11:8+8+8=58) lacks two syllables of a full atiçakvari.

19. Agni is in the earth (bhūmi), in the herbs; the waters bear Agni; Agni [is] in the stones (áçman); Agni is within men; in kine, in horses are Agnis.

This and the two following verses are quite out of connection here, and seem to be an intrusion. They are quoted together in Kāuç. 2. 41 as accompanying the feeding of the fire with fuel; in 120. 5, in a ceremony against the cleaving open of the ground; and in 137. 30 (each singly) to accompany the strewing of the sacrificial hearth in the ājyatantra. The first part of the verse (as noted above) is wanting in Ppp.

20. Agni sends heat from the sky; the wide atmosphere is god Agni's; mortals kindle Agni [as] oblation-bearer, ghee-lover.

Ppp. combines in a divā "tapaty.

21. Let the earth, fire-clad, black-kneed, make me sharpened, brilliant (tviṣīmant).

This verse is quoted by pratīka in GB. i. 2. 9. As to the ritual uses of it and of vs. 20, see the note to vs. 19. Ppp. reads tviṣtvantam in b.

22. On the earth $(bh\dot{u}mi)$ they give to the gods the sacrifice, the oblation, duly prepared; on the earth $(bh\dot{u}mi)$ mortal men (manusyd) live by svadhd, by food; let that earth $(bh\dot{u}mi)$ assign us breath, life-time; let earth make me one who attains old age.

The verse (8+8:8+8:11+11=54) should be called by the Anukr. svarāj instead of virāj. Ppp. reads in a juhvati instead of dadati.

23. What odor of thine, O earth, came into being, which the herbs, which the waters bear, which the Gandharvas and Apsarases shared — with that do thou make me odorous; let no one soever hate us.

Ppp. adds, after bhejire, yas te gām açvam arhati; and it reads for our d tenā 'smān surabhīṣ kṛṇu, and, in our e, dvakṣata. The verse (11 + 11 : 12:8 + 8 = 50) is as well described by the Anukr. as the latter's system admits. Verses 23-25 [so the schol.] are called in Kāuç. 13. 12 and 54. 5 gandhapravādās (likewise in the comm. to 24. 24); they are also reckoned as belonging to the second varcasya gaṇa (see note to Kāuç. 12. 10).

24. What odor of thine entered into the blue lotus; which they brought together at Sūryā's wedding—the immortals, O earth, [what] odor in the beginning—with that do thou make me odorous; let no one soever hate us.

Ppp. has again tenā 'smān surabhīṣ kṛṇu, and dvakṣata. [To the definition of the] verse (11+11:11+8+8=49) [should be added "bhurij"].

- 25. What odor of thine is in human beings (púruṣa); in women, in men, [what] portion, pleasure; what in horses, in heroes, what in wild animals and in elephants; what splendor, O earth (bhūmi), in a maiden—with that do thou unite us also; let no one soever hate us.
- Or, in d, mrgesu hastisu may mean simply 'elephants' (lit. 'wild beasts having a hand'). Ppp. reads yas te bhāume puruṣeṣu . . . rucir yo vadhūṣu: yo goṣv açveṣu yo mrgeṣu: . . . yad bhāume abhi sam srja; and in g dvakṣata. If the verse contains an uṣṇih pāda (namely c, the resolution aç-u-eṣu being rejected), it is nicṛt as a çakvarī.
- 26. Rock [is?] earth (bhūmi), stone, dust; this earth (bhūmi) [is] held together, held; to that earth, gold-backed (-vākṣas) have I paid homage.

Ppp. reads, in a-b, pānsv aryā bhūmi strtā dhrtā, and omits c, d. [Cf. note to vs. 6.]

27. On whom stand always fixed the trees, the forest trees (vāna-spatyá), the all-supporting earth that is held [together] do we address.

Ppp. reads for d bhūmyāi hiranyavakṣasi dhṛtam acchāv-. Vāit. 2. 8 quotes the verse to accompany the laying down of the enclosing sticks.

28. Arising $(ud-\bar{i}r)$, also sitting, standing, striding forth, with right and left feet, let us not stagger upon the earth.

The Anukr. seems to assume the resolution -kṛ-ā- in b. This verse and 33 below are quoted in Kāuç. 24. 33 to accompany the taking of three steps, while looking around, in the āgrahāyaṇī ceremony.

29. The cleansing (vimígvan) earth do I address, the patient (kṣamá) earth (bhūmi), increasing by worship (bráhman); may we sit down, O earth (bhūmi), upon thee, that bearest refreshment, prosperity (puṣṭá), food-portion, ghee.

Ppp. reads at the beginning vimargvāya, in b vāvṛdhānaḥ, in c puṣṭim, in d bhāume. The verse is quoted four times in Kāuç.: in 3. 8; 24. 28; 137. 40, to accompany a sitting down in different ceremonies; and in 90. 15, when causing a guest to stand upon a cushion.

30. Let cleansed (cuddhá) waters flow for our body; what mucus (? syédu) is ours, that we deposit on him we love not (ápriya); with a purifier (pavitra), O earth, do I purify myself.

Part of the pada-mss. (Bp. [and one of SPP's]) accent $m\hat{a}$ in c. Ppp. has $m\bar{a}$ for nas in a; and, in b, yo me selinur. The verse is quoted in Kāuç. 58.7 (and at second hand under 24. 24) in connection with rinsing the mouth after spitting; also in Vāit. 12. 6 in connection with easing nature.

31. What forward directions are thine, what upward, what are thine, O earth (bhūmi), downward, and what behind, let those be pleasant to me going about; let me not fall down [when] supported (çri) on creation (bhūvana).

The verse is found also in MS. (iv. 14. 11), which reads, for b, yắç ca bhūmy adharāg yắç ca paçcấ; also çivấs for syonắs in c. Ppp. has in b bhūume 'dharād, and in d çuçriyāne. This and the following verse are reckoned to the svastyayana gaṇa: see note to Kāuç. 25. 36.

32. Do not push (nud) us behind, nor in front, nor above and below; become thou welfare for us, O earth (bhūmi); let not the waylayers find [us]; keep very far off the deadly weapon.

The directions 'forward' etc., in this and the preceding verse, are also equivalent, as elsewhere, to 'eastern' etc. Pāda doccurs below as xiv. 2. II a; e was found above as i. 20. 3 d etc. Ppp. reads $m\bar{a}$ for nas in a, omits b, reads in c bhāume me kṛṇu, and makes d and e change places, reading also $v\bar{a}yas$ for $var\bar{i}yas$ and vidhan for vidan. The werse (II + 8:8 + 8 + 8 = 43) is curiously defined by the Anukr.

33. How much of thee I look forth upon, O earth $(bh\bar{u}mi)$, with the sun for ally (medin), so far let my sight not fail $(m\bar{i})$, from one year $(sam\bar{a})$ to another.

Ppp. has again bhāume in b. For the use of the verse in Kāuç., see note to vs. 28. It is quoted also in Vāit. 27. 7 as used by one gazing at the earth after mounting the sacrificial post. [Pāda d we had at iii. 10. 1; 17. 4.]

34. In that, lying, I turn myself about upon the right [or] the left side, O earth (bhāmi); in that we with our ribs lie stretched out upon thee that meetest us—do not in that case injure us, O earth (bhāmi), thou underlier of everything.

'Underlier,' lit. 'counter-lier, one whose lying answers to that of another.' In a, b, perhaps rather 'in that I turn over toward [thee] the one or the other side ' [cf. vii. 100. I]. Our Bp. puts its sign of pāda-division between c and d before instead of after ydt, and the Anukr. supports it by counting a brhatt element in the verse (which is properly 8 + 11 : 8 + 8 : 8 + 8 = 51). The verse is prescribed in Kāuç. 24. 30, to accompany the act of turning over while lying down, in the āgrahāyant ceremony. All the mss., with the edition, [likewise SPP's mss. and ed.,] accent paryāvarte; it should be paryāvarte. Ppp. puts the verse after 35, and reads api for abhi in b; and, for d, pṛṣṭvā yad ṛdva cemahe; and bhāume both times for bhūme.

35. What of thee, O earth (bhūmi), I dig out, let that quickly grow over; let me not hit (arpay-) thy vitals nor thy heart, O cleansing one.

'Grow over,' i.e. heal up, like a wound. Ppp. has again bhāume in a; also oṣam for kṣipram in b, and arpitam in d; this time (cf. vs. 29) it agrees with our text in the peculiar epithet vimṛgvari, lit. 'wiping off.' Kāuç. (46.51) quotes the verse to accompany an act of digging in a prāyaçcitta ceremony; and again similarly at 137.12.

36. Let thy hot season, O earth (bhūmi), rainy season, autumn, winter, cool season, spring — let thine arranged seasons, years, let day-and-night, O earth, yield milk (duh) to us.

One would expect in c hāyanās 'belonging to or constituting the year'; and Ppp., combining hāyanā 'hor-, favors that reading. Ppp. has also again bhāume in a. The irregularity of the verse (8+11:10+11=40) indicates corruption; it is a $pa\bar{n}kti$, of course, only by the sum of syllables. It is quoted in Kāuç. 137. 9, as one approaches to measure out the sacrificial hearth. [Cf. 137. 4, note.]

37. She who, cleansing one, trembling away the serpent; on whom were the fires that are within the waters, abandoning the god-insulting barbarians, choosing, she the earth, Indra [and] not Vritra, kept herself (dhr) for the mighty one (cakra), the virile bull.

The first pāda is extremely obscure; it is here translated mechanically, as closely as possible to the text. Bruce understands at the beginning $y\vec{a}:\vec{a}pa$ (instead of the $y\vec{a}:\vec{a}pa$ of the pada-text); and that would be a natural and easy emendation, if only the resulting sense were more acceptable. Ludwig renders as if we read $sarp\bar{a}t$ ('trembling at the serpent'). The totally different reading of Ppp., $ya\ \bar{a}pas\ sarpan\ yataman\bar{a}$ vimrgvari, indicates that the text is corrupt. Ppp. further reads in $b\ agnayo\ psv$, and stops the verse at dadati, then adding our vs. 40. Our verse (12+11:11+11:11=56) adds up as a true qakvari.

38. On whom are the seat and oblation-holder; on whom the sacrificial post (yipa) is planted; on whom worshipers (brahmán) praise (arc) with verses, with the chant, knowing the sacrificial formulas; on whom are joined the priests (rtvij), for Indra to drink the soma;—

Ppp. reads in e yujyante 'syām rtyavas s.. The verse is quoted in Kāuç. 24. 37 to accompany an oblation and by Dārila to 24. 24, in the āgrahāyant ceremony. It is also reckoned with vs. 1 among the pustika mantras (see note to Kāuç. 19. 1). In Vāit. 15. 4, this verse and the two following are prescribed to accompany the subrahmanyā recitation; in 10. 8, it is used at the setting up of the sacrificial post.

39. On whom the former being-making seers sang out (ud-arc) the kine—the seven pious ones (vedhás), by their session, together with sacrifice [and] penance;—

Ppp. reads udānāt for udānṛcus in b; all our mss. accent úd ānṛcus, but the edited text has emended to udān. Vāit. 22. I gives the verse as prescribed by a certain authority to be used instead of iii. 14. 2, in driving out the kine from the place of sacrifice.

40. Let that earth (bhūmi) appoint unto us what riches we desire; let Bhaga join on after; let Indra go [as our] forerunner.

For consistency, our text should read in c-yuntām, as called for by Prāt. ii. 20 (see the note). As noticed above, this verse is in Ppp. joined on to 37 as a part of it; in its place, as conclusion of 39, is given here sā naṣ paçūn viçvarūpān dadhātu jaradaṣṭim mā pṛṭhivī kṛṇotu. Līn d of our vs. 40, Ppp. reads indro yātu.

41. On whom, the earth $(bh\dot{u}mi)$, mortals sing [and] dance with loud noises (? $vy\bar{a}ilaba$); on whom they fight; on whom speaks the shout $(\bar{a}kranda)$, the drum — let that earth $(bh\dot{u}mi)$ push forth our rivals; let earth make me free from rivals.

Yudhyánte should be emended to yúdhyante. The verse (8+8:8+8:11+11=54) has no kakubh element in it, but as çakvarī it is virāj. Ppp. puts the verse after our vs. 42, and reads for $b: janā martyā dvāilavā; [in c yudhyante 'syām;] and, for <math>e, f, s\bar{a}$ no bhūmis pra dadhatām sapatnān: yo no dvesty adharam tam krņotu.

42. On whom is food, rice-and-barley; whose are these five races (krsti)—to the earth, whose spouse is Parjanya, fattened (-midas) by the rain, be homage.

With the irregular, but not infrequent, combination yásye 'māḥ in b, the verse is a regular anuṣṭubh; for the epithet swarāj of the Anukr. there is no [sufficient] reason. Ppp. reads for b yatre 'māṣ pañca gṛṣṭayaḥ, and ends with -medhase. Kāuç. uses the verse at 24. 38 (next after vs. 38), and at 137. 24, with homage to the [earth (bhūmi)].

43. Whose are the god-made strongholds; in whose field [men] fall out (? vi-kr) — the earth, womb of everything, let Prajāpati make pleasant (ránya) to us, spot by spot.

[BR. render viçvágarbha by 'Alles im Schoosse tragend.'] Ppp. reads yasyām both times for yasyāh; also, at the end, niṣ ṭanotu. The Anukr. is more than usually scrupulous in calling the verse virāj. Read in b vikurváte.

44. Bearing treasure [and] good in many places hiddenly, let the earth give me jewel (mani), gold; giver of good, bestowing good things on us, let the divine one assign [them to us] with favoring mind.

Ppp. [puts the verse after our 30, and] reads at end of b dadhātu naḥ. Kāuç. quotes the verse at 24. 39, as used by one who desires jewels or gold. [So Keç., p. 322: also SPP. (manihiranyādikāmaḥ) at p. 20118; but at 20126 he cites the sūtra with Bl's reading (manim hir-); cf. Caland, p. 66.]

45. Let the earth, bearing in many places people of different speech, of diverse customs (-dhárman), according to their homes, yield (duh) me a thousand streams of property, like a steady (dhruvá) unresisting milchcow.

Ppp. reads in a janam yam bibhratī bahuvācasam, and in c nas for me. The Anukr. does not heed that the last pāda in this verse, and the last two in vs. 44, are trisṭubh. LKeç., p. 32231, couples this vs. with the preceding: cf. note to vs. 44.

46. What stinging (viccika) harsh-biting serpent of thine lies in secret, winter-harmed, torpid (? bhrmala); whatever worm, O earth, becoming lively, stirs in the early rainy season—let that, crawling, not crawl upon us; be thou gracious to us with that which is propitious.

Ppp. reads in a veccakas, and for b ff. hemantalabdho bhramalo (!) kymir lisam prthivyāi prāveṣt yad ejati. The treatment of krimis in c as neuter is very strange. Is it a collective neuter like Gewürm? cf. Noun-Inflection, JAOS. x. 570. In the description of the verse (11 + 12 : 7 + 8 + 8 + 8 = 54) by the Anukr. there is perhaps something omitted (or we are to read virāt çakvarī for parāç-). The verse is used according to Kāuç. 50. 17 (with [iii. 26 (see introduction thereto) and 27 and] vi. 56. 1) in the removal of vermin; also, according to 139. 8, with a number of other verses about serpents and the like; and it is reckoned to the rāudra gaṇa (note to Kāuç. 50. 13). In Vāit. 29. 10 it accompanies a libation to Rudra.

47. What many roads thou hast, for people to go upon, a track (vártman) for the chariot, and for the going of the cart, by which (pl.) men of both kinds, excellent and evil, go about — that road, free from enemies, free from robbers, may we conquer; be thou gracious to us with that which is propitious.

Ppp. reads bahudhā (for bahavas) in a, yebhiç car- at beginning of c, and panthām in d; and it omits the last pāda [repeated from vs. 46]. The pratīka (ye te panthānaḥ), quoted in Kāuç. 50. 1, might refer either to this verse or to vii. 55. 1; the comm. to vii. 55 declares the latter to be intended.

48. Bearing the fool, bearer of what is heavy, enduring (titikṣú) the death (? nidhána) of the excellent and of the evil, the earth, in concord with the boar, opens itself to the wild (mṛgá) hog.

Ludwig understands gurubhrt in a as 'bearer of the wise' (guru as antithesis of malva); the Pet. Lexx. translate nidhana as 'residence' (and so Bruce, 'abode'). Ppp. has at the beginning a very different text: sarpan bibhratt surabhir; and it reads sūkareņa in c and varāhāya in d.

49. What forest animals of thine, wild beasts set in the woods, lions, tigers, go about man-eating — the jackal (? ulá), the wolf, O earth, misfortune, the rkstkā, the demon, do thou force (bādh) away from us here.

The translation here given agrees with its predecessors in assuming emendation of $t\ell$ in a to te. Some of our mss. read in c-d itd raksikām; and Bp. has after it fksah. Ppp. gives eta raksikām rakso 'pa $b\bar{a}dh\bar{a}$ mat; and, at the beginning, $yat\bar{a}rany\bar{a}s$ pac; and ulam in c like our text]. With a compare the nearly identical xi. 2. 24 a; in spite of their agreement, one can hardly help regarding $mrg\bar{a}s$ as an intruded word. The Anukr. apparently accepts the two redundant syllables as making up for the deficiency in b and d, since 14 + 11 : 12 + 11 = 48 syllables. LAs to the "man-eaters," cf. note to xv. 5. 7.

50. What Gandharvas, Apsarases [there are], and what aráyas, kimīdins: the piçācás, all demons — them do thou keep away from us, O earth (bhūmi).

Ppp. combines in a gandharvā 'ps-, and has at the end bhāume yāvayah.

51. She to whom two-footed winged-ones fly together, swans, eagles, hawks, birds; on whom the wind, Mātariçvan, goes about, making clouds of dust (? rájas) and setting in motion the trees — flame (arcis) blows after the forth-blowing, the toward-blowing, of the wind.

The second pāda is identical with xi. 2. 24 b. Upavām is metrically an intrusion into $e^{\frac{\pi}{4}}$ with the pāda is to be compared RV. i. 148. 4 c (which, however, casts little light upon it). Ppp. reads in c-d vātayate mātariçvā raj-; and, in e, it omits upavām, and has at the end arcise. The Anukr. appears to divide the last redundant pāda into two, an anustubh (8) and a kakubh (6); the whole makes two syllables more than a proper çakvarī (11+11:11+11:8+6=58). [Hopkins, JAOS. xx.² 217, thinks that fire caused by the friction of branches is here alluded to, and cites parallels. We may add Indische Sprüche, 3759, which is very clear.

52. On whom the black and the ruddy, combined, [namely] day-and-night, [are] disposed upon the earth (bhūmi); the broad (pṛthivī) earth (bhūmi), wrapped [and] covered with rain — let her kindly (bhadráyā) set us in each loved abode.

Ppp. reads grstam for krsnam in a, reads and combines sambhrte 'horātre in a-b, and reads vrtāvrdhā in c, and dhāmnidhāmni in e. In c is to be understood, with the pada-text, vrtā: āovrtā. An accent-mark under the final tā is needed in order to indicate the acute of sā in the next line. The verse (11+12:12+8+8=51) is not well described by the Anukr. $[A\ ca\ with\ syllabic\ value,\ inserted\ after\ krsnām,\ would be an effective, albeit cheap, means of improving the meter of a. <math>[A\ ca\ with\ syllabic\ value,\ inserted\ after\ various\ of\ the\ preceding\ verses)$, as accompanying a mouthrinsing and head-splashing with rainwater; and pāda c, again, in 137.23, with a sprinkling with water.

53. Both heaven and earth and atmosphere [have given] me this expanse; fire, sun, waters, and all the gods have together given me wisdom (medhā).

The translation of a, b is doubtful; vyácas may be in apposition with antárikṣam, and the gift as in the second line. The Anukr. takes no notice of the irregular combination me 'dam in a, which is needed to make the verse a simple anuṣṭubh. Ppp. combines māi 'dam, and it has at the end sam dadhāu. Not this verse, but vi. 53. I (according to the comm. on the latter), is quoted in Kāuç. 10. 20, in a ceremony for wisdom; but Dārila understands our verse as the one intended.

54. I am overpowering, superior by name on the earth (bhūmi); I am subduing, all-overpowering, vanquishing in every region.

The treatment of the compounds of sah (p. also abhīṣāt, viçvāṣāt) is the subject of several rules in the Prāt. (ii. 82; iii. 1; iv. 70). [Cf. above, iii. 18. 5.] The verse is by Kāuç. 38. 30 prescribed to be repeated as one goes to an assembly (pariṣad).

55. When yonder, O divine one, spreading thyself forward, told by the gods, thou didst expand (vi-sṛp) to greatness, then entered into thee well-being; thou didst make fit the four directions.

Ppp. at the beginning puts yat before adas; it has in b srsta instead of ukta, and mahitva (which is better); and in c a valanta mabhatam av. The Anukr. does not heed the redundant syllable in a.

56. What villages, what forest, what assemblies, [are] upon the earth (bhūmi), what hosts, gatherings—in them may we speak what is pleasant (cáru) to thee.

With the first half-verse may be compared VS. iii. 45 a, b. Ppp. reads for a ye grāmyā yāny aranyāni, and for c, d teşv akam devi prthvi vibhyāsam mayu satva ca.

57. As a horse the dust, she has shaken apart those people who dwelt upon the earth since (yát) she was born—pleasing, going at the head, keeper of creation (bhúvana), container of forest trees, of herbs.

Ppp. reads at the beginning açvī 'va, and is corrupt throughout; [but it reads grbhir like our text]. The Anukr. calls the first pāda an atijagatī rather than admit the abbreviated form 'va for iva.

58. What I speak, rich in honey I speak it; what I view, that they win (?van) me; brilliant am I, possessed of swiftness; I smite down others that are violent (?dódhat).

The sense of b is obscure. Ppp. reads vadantu (for vananti); Bp. has vadanti, and O.s.m. (p.m.?) vahanti. Ppp. has at the end dodhata. Kāuç. quotes the verse at 24. 14 and 38. 29, each time adding mantroktam 'as expressed in the verse.' [Ppp. puts this verse before our 57.]

59. Tranquil, fragrant, pleasant, with sweet drink in her udder, rich in milk, let earth (bhūmi) bless me, earth together with milk.

Ppp. reads at the beginning santivā [cf. iii. 30. 2, note], and in c no dhi (in place of adhi). The verse is quoted in Kāuç. 24. 31, among many other verses from this hymn; [further, by Dārila to 3. 4, and by Keç. to 70. 8, 9].

60. Whom Viçvakarman sought after with oblation within the ocean, when she was entered into the mist (? rájas); an enjoyable vessel that was deposited in secret became manifest in enjoyment (bhóga) for them that have mothers.

Ppp. reads for b yasyām āsann ugrayo [intending agnayo?] *psv antaḥ; and, in c, d, guhā çāir āvir bhor abhavan mātṛmadbhiḥ: which casts no light on the strange and obscure meaning.

61. Thou art the scatterer (?āvápana) of people, [art] a wish-fulfilling (kāmadúgha) Aditi, spreading out; what of thee is deficient, may Prajāpati, first-born of righteousness, fill that up for thee.

The word āvāpana seems to mean sometimes, and perhaps here, a (wide, shallow?) receptacle onto which things are strewn or scattered. Ppp. has at the beginning vim for tvam, and in b viçvarūpā for paprathānā; for c, d it reads yat tāu "nam tat tāpūrayāti prajāpatiķ prajābhis samvidānām; and it ends the hymn here. The Anukr. refuses to admit two familiar resolutions in a, and gratuitously calls the pāda a bārhata

- (9 syll.). The second half-verse is twice quoted in Kāuç. (46. 52; 137. 13) in connection with filling up a hole that has been dug (iti samvapati); and the verse, in 137. 14, with removing elsewhither the dirt taken out.
- 62. Let standers upon thee, free from disease, free from yákṣma, be produced (prásūta) for us, O earth; awakening to meet our long lifetime, may we be tribute-bearers to thee.

The sense of $upasth\bar{d}s$ (p. $upaosth\bar{d}h$) in a is doubtful; Ludwig renders 'laps,' as if $up\bar{d}sth\bar{d}s$; [and so Bloomfield]; Bruce 'that shall dwell in thee.' The verse is quoted in Kāuç. 50. 10, in a ceremony for success. The description of the Anukr. is unintelligible, as the verse is a perfectly regular tristubh.

63. O mother earth $(bh\dot{n}mi)$, do thou kindly set me down well established; in concord with the heaven, O sage $(k\dot{a}vi)$, do thou set me in fortune, in prosperity $(bh\dot{n}ti)$.

The verse is used by Kāuç. (24.27) in connection with vss. 1-7; also by the comm. to 58.19 in the annaprāçana ceremony. Vāit. 27.8 prescribes it on descending from the sacrificial post (cf. note to vs. 33). [For crivan, the only form of its kind in the AV., see JAOS. x. 389.]

[Here ends the first anuvāka, of 1 hymn and 63 verses. The quoted Anukr. says bhāumas tryadhikā ṣaṣṭiḥ.]

2. The flesh-eating and the householder's fires.

[Bhṛgu. — pañcapañcāçat. āgneyam uta mantroktādevatyam; 21-33. mārtvyaḥ. trāiṣṭubham; 2, 5, 12-20, 34-36, 38-41, 43, 51, 54. anuṣṭubh (16. kakummatī parābṛhatī; 18. nicṛt; 40. purastātkakummatī); 3. āstārapañkti; 6. bhurig ārṣī pañkti; 7, 45. jagatī; 8, 48, 49. bhurij; 9. anuṣṭubgarbhā viparītapādalakṣmī pañkti; 37. purastādbṛhatī; 42. 3-p. 1-av. bhurig ārcī gāyatrī; 44. 1-av. 2-p. ārcī bṛhatī; 46. 1-av. 2-p. sāmnī triṣṭubh; 47. 5-p. bārhatavāirājagarbhā jagatī; 50. upariṣṭādvirāḍ bṛhatī; 52. purastādvirāḍ bṛhatī; 55. bṛhatīgarbhā.]

Translated: Ludwig, p. 479 (omitting here vss. 21-26, 30-31); Henry, 188, 227; Griffith, ii. 102. — The RV. correspondents of a number of the verses (7, 8, 21-25, 26, 30, 31) are discussed in my Skt. Reader, pages 380 ff., 388.

1. Ascend the reeds (nadá); no place for thee is here; this lead is thy portion; come! what yákṣma is in kine, [what] yákṣma in men, in company with that do thou go forth downward.

This and vss. 11, 54, and 55 are quoted together in Kāuç. 71. 5, when putting fuel on the flesh-eating (kravyād) fire; also, in 71. 8, vss. 1-4, 42, 43, 15, 16 (with iii. 21. 8), with quenching it. Ppp. combines te tra in a.

2. By evil-plotter and ill-plotter, by actor and helper, both all yákṣma and death do we thereby drive out from here.

Ppp. reads in c, d mrtyunç ca sarvāns tene'to yaksmānç ca nir etc. The first half-verse is like a half-verse in MS. iv. 14. 17; TA. ii. 47: duhçansānuçansābhyām ghanēnā 'nughanēna ca [cf. Kaṭha-hss., p. 72].

3. Out from here do we drive death, perdition, out the niggard; whoso hates us, him, O non-flesh-cating Agni, do thou eat; whomso we hate, him do we impel to thee.

The pada-text has in c, adhi; and most of the samhitā-mss. adhy agne, in accordance with it, though one or two (Bs.E.) have addhy agne, which is no various reading, but only an allowed equivalent. The case is like those in i. 22. 1 and v. 20. 12 above; the abbreviated reading adhy has been mistaken for adhi instead of addhi, and then accented accordingly. Bp. accents also akravyaoát. Our text emends to addhy àgne akravyāt, but should read instead agne, since there is no reason whatever for the accentuation addht. A better reading would seem also to be kravyāt. Ppp. has adhy agne kravyād; but that, of course, might mean kravyāt. Ppp. also has simply am for yam u in d, omits the second u, and ends with suvāmah. [Ppp. reads yakṣmas for dviṣmas in d. So the Ppp. reading is adhy agne kravyād am yakṣmas tam te pra suvāmaḥ.]

4. If the flesh-eating Agni, or if the tiger-like, hath entered this stall (gosthá), being not at home (?), him, having made him to have beans for sacrificial butter, I send far forth; let him go unto the Agnis that have seat in the waters.

Part of the mss. (E.I.O.R.T.K.) have vyāghrás in a, and that is perhaps the true reading, since -ghrya seems to be found nowhere else. Ppp. reads in b anyokā vineça, and in c tan mā. The Anukr. takes no notice of the redundant (tám intruded?) syllable in c. In Kāuç. 71.6 the verse is used (with vss. 7 and 53) in making a libation of crushed beans with mother-of-pearl (? cukti) to the flesh-eating fire which is to be banished. | The verse contains reminiscences of 7 and 8 below. |

5. If angry men put thee forth (pra-kr), with fury, a man having died, that, O Agni, is easy to be arranged by thee; we make thee flame up again.

Ppp. reads krtvā for kruddhās in a, mite for mrte in b, and ca for tat in c. The Anukr. appears to sanction the resolution cakr-ur in a. The verse is quoted in Kāuç. 70.6; also in Vāit. 5.13, to accompany the removal of fire from the householder's to the other two fires.

6. The Adityas, the Rudras, the Vasus [have set] thee again; again, O Agni, the priest (brahmán), conductor of good; Brahmaṇaspati hath set thee again, in order to length of life-time to a hundred autumns.

With the first half-verse is to be compared that of VS. xii. 44 (also in TS. iv. 2. 3^5 ; MS. i. 7. 1), which inserts sám indhatām after vásavas, and reads, for b, púnar brahmāno (Ppp. also brahmāno) vasunītha (MS. vasudhīte) yajñāth [MS. agne]. [But see also WZKM. xi. 120.] The verse (10 + 10:10 + 11 = 41; but c has really 11 syll.) is artificially described by the Anukr. It is made in Vāit. 28. 22 to accompany the laying of fuel in the ukhya.

7. If the flesh-eating Agni hath entered our house, seeing this other Jātavedas, him I take afar for the Fathers' sacrifice; let him kindle the hot drink (gharmá) in the highest station.

The verse is also RV. x. 16. 10, where is read vas for nas in a, devám for darám in c, and invāt for indhām in d. It is used in Kāuç. 71. 6 with vs. 4 (see note to latter).

8. I send far forth the flesh-eating Agni; let him go, carrying evil (riprá-), to Yama's subjects; here let this other Jātavedas carry the oblation, a god to the gods, foreknowing.

The verse is also RV. x. 16. 9 (and VS. xxxv. 19 [with yamarājyam]): our text defaces the meter of c, d by omitting evá after ihá and inserting devás. [Cf. MGS. ii. 1. 8 and p. 149.] This and the two following verses are used in Kāuç. 71. 12 to accompany the removed fire. [The same three vss. are quoted by the comm. to 81.33.]

9. I, being sent, take the flesh-eating Agni, a death, making people fixed with the thunderbolt; I, knowing, separate (? ni-çās) him from the householder's fire; also in the world of the Fathers be he [their] portion.

Ppp. reads iṣitaṁ in a, and, in d, lokaṁ paramo yotu. The sense of b is so strange that we cannot but suspect a corrupt text. [Roth would read tṛṅhantam, ZDMG. xlviii. 107.] In d, nearly all the saṁhitā-nss. (all save Bs.E.) read loké 'pi, which is therefore probably the true text. The description by the Anukr. of this fairly regular triṣṭubh is very strange.

10. The flesh-eating Agni, active, praiseworthy, I send forth by the roads that the Fathers go; come thou not back by those that the gods go; be thou just there (átra); watch thou over the Fathers.

Ppp. reads, in c-d, mā devayānāis pathibhir ā gā 'trāi' va, which does not help the defective meter; of this the Anukr. takes no notice.

11. They kindle the devouring one (sámkasuka) in order to well-being, becoming cleansed, bright, purifying; he abandons evil (riprá), passes over sin; Agni, kindled, purifies with a good purifier.

Ppp. combines ene 'ti in c. The Anukr. does not heed that the first pāda is properly jagatī. The verse is quoted in Kāuç. 71. 5 (see note to vs. 1). [Caland, WZKM. viii. 368, thinks that this verse (not xviii. 4.41) is intended at Kāuç. 86. 18.] [Over "devouring," as rendering of sámkasuka (which occurs in vss. 11-14, 19, 40), W. has interlined 'crushing' in three instances.]

12. God Agni the devouring hath ascended the backs of the sky; being released out of sin, he hath released us from imprecation.

Some of our mss. (P.M.W.E.) read ntr enaso in c. Ppp. reads, here and below, samkusika.

13. On this devouring Agni do we wipe off evils; we have become fit for sacrifice, cleansed; may he prolong our life-times.

The verse is found also in Ap. ix. 3. 22 (following a verse resembling our vs. 14), which reads samkusuke 'gnāu in a-b. Our mss., as often in such cases, vary between tāriṣat and tārṣat at the end (Bs.E.D.R.K. have tārṣat). The verse is quoted (with vss. 19, 40) in Kāuç. 71. 16 and 86. 19, to accompany the act of washing off (ity abhyavanejayati).

14. The crushing [sámkasuka], the bursting (víkasuka), the destroying (nirṛthá) and the noiseless (?nisvará) — they, of like possessions (?sávedas), have made from far thy yákṣma to disappear afar.

The translation implies emendation at the end to aninaçan, which seems altogether necessary. Yet MS. (iv. 14. 17) and TA. (ii. 45) strangely have instead of it acicatam (not-tan). [But see Kaṭha-hss., p. 72, where the Berlin ms. is reported as reading cicatan. The TA. comm. renders acicatam by cāṭayantu.] In b, TA. reads nisvanāḥ, and MS. nirṛto and nisvanaḥ; in c, MS. has 'smad (not 'smād!) for tc, and TA. te ye 'smād (but the ye perhaps a blunder of the edition*); both ānāgasas instead of sāvedasas (which looks like a mere blunder, intended to have the sense of sanvidānās). Then TA. has sānkus-, vikus-, in a, and with it agrees Āp. (ix. 3. 22, a and b only, with vikiro yaç ca viṣkiraḥ for b). Moreover, both MS. and TA. accent yakṣmām.* Some of our mss. (Bp.I.K.) read nirrathās in b, but this is only an example of the frequent confusion of r and ra. Ppp. has [vikasukas in a, like our text], savedhasas in c, and ucidyavo (for anīnaçam) at the end. *[The Poona ed., p. 126, gives te 'smād, but notes one ms. as having te ye 'smad; and it accents yākṣmam.]

15. The flesh-eating one that is in our horses, heroes, that is in our kine, goats-and-sheep, do we thrust out — the fire that obstructs the people.

Ppp. combines in a no 'çv-, and reads for b yo goşu yo 'jāvişu; [and puts the verse after 16]. This verse and the one following are quoted with others (see note to vs. 1) in Kāuç. 71. 8.

16. Thee from inexhaustible (? ánya) men, kine, horses, thee the flesheating one do we thrust out — the fire that obstructs life.

Ludwig gets rid of the difficulty of dnya by taking it as anyd and the nouns in a, b as datives. Ppp. reads $aj\hbar\bar{a}n\bar{a}$ for $anyebhyas tv\bar{a}$; in c it puts nis after $kravy\bar{a}dam$. Some of our mss. (Bs.I.) combine nis kr- (nlh and kr- should be separated in our edition). The Anukr. very unnecessarily scans the verse as 8+6:8+9, while it is easily read into a regular anustubh.

17. On what the gods wiped off, on what human beings (manuṣyà) also—on that having wiped off the drops of ghee (?), O Agni, do thou mount the sky.

All our mss. have amrjata unaccented save one (E.), which has asrjata. [All of SPP's have amrjata save his J., which has, s.m., amrjata.] Ghrtastāvas in c is translated after the Pet. Lexx., but the rendering is in the highest degree doubtful, on account both of form and of sense. Probably the reading is corrupt. Ppp. gives no help, as most of vss. 17, 18 is lost out of the ms.; [but their order appears to be inverted]. Our mss. seem to read -stā- very plainly [and SPP. reports no variant], but that need not prevent our understanding instead -snā-, if more acceptable.

18. Being kindled, O Agni, thou to whom oblations are made, go (kram) thou not away against us; shine just here by day, and that [we] long see the sun.

Or dyavi, in c, 'in the sky' (so Ludwig). The last pada is also i. 6. 3 d. [Cf. also note to vi. 19. 2.] There is no good reason for calling the verse nicrt.

19. Wipe ye off on the lead; wipe ye off on the reeds; and what on the consuming fire; likewise on the dark $(r\bar{a}m\dot{a})$ ewe; headache on the pillow.

The rendering is very literal, and does not disguise the obscurity of the connection. Ppp. reads for b agnis samkusikaç ca yah, which is more manageable: 'and on [that] which [is] the consuming fire': i.e. 'on the fire.' [Caland, KZ. xxxiv. 457, comparing Avestan locutions, says that agnāu samkasuke ca yat is locative to agnih samkasukaç ca yah: cf. vs. 40 and i. 30. 1.] The verse is quoted in Kāuç. 71. 16; 86. 19, with vss. 13 and 40: see above, under vs. 13. The mss. in general, according to their wont, read in a mrdhvam (but Bs. mrdhdham). [For cirsakti, see ref's under i. 12. 3.]

- 20. Having settled what is foul upon the lead [and] headache upon the pillow, having wiped off on the black ewe, be ye cleansed, fit for sacrifice. Compare xiv. 2.67. | Cf. MGS. ii. 1.10. |
- 21. Go away, O death, along a distant road which is thine here, other than that the gods go upon; I speak to thee having sight, hearing; let these many heroes be here.

The verse (except d) is RV. x. 18. 1, and found also in VS. (xxxv. 7), TB. (iii. 7. 145), and TA. (iii. 15. 2: vi. 7. 3). RV. has svás for our esás in b, and, for d, må nah prajám rīriṣo mỏ 'tá vīrān, and the other texts agree with it, save that VS. has anyás for svás in b. Ppp. omits iha in d. [Cf. MB. i. 1. 15; also MGS. ii. 18. 2 m.] The verse is used several times in Kāuç.: at 71. 11, 21; 72. 13; 86. 24.

22. These living ones have turned away from the dead; our invocation of the gods hath been auspicious (bhadrá) today; we have gone forward unto dancing, unto laughter; may we, rich in heroes, address counsel.

The verse (again with exception of d) is RV. x. 18. 3, and found also in TA. (vi. 10. 2). The last pāda in the other texts is drāghtya āyuḥ pratarām (TA. -rām) dádhānāḥ; our d is identical with RV. i. 117. 25 d. TA.* has ā 'vavartin in a, and agāmā in c. [With b cf. RV. x. 53. 3 d.] The verse is used (with vs. 29) in Kāuç. 71. 18 and 86. 21. [At vs. 30, W. wrote "speak to the counsel," and then interlined suggestion of "council."] *[TA. has also prānjo for prānco.]

23. I set this enclosure for the living; let not another of them now go to that goal; living a hundred numerous autumns, let them set an obstacle to death with a mountain.

The verse is RV. x. 18. 4, and found also in VS. (xxxv. 15), TB. (iii. 7. 113), TA. (vi. 10. 2), and Ap. (ix. 12. 4; xiv. 22. 3). RV. differs from our text only by reading jivantu in c, and antár (for tirás) in d. VS. agrees throughout with RV.; TB. differs only by having (like AV.) tirás in d (eṣắn nu in b is doubtless a misprint, as mátyám in d is a misprint for mṛtyúm: see the comm. [the Poona ed., p. 1137, corrects them both], and árdham in b. TA. reads må nó nu gād and árdham in b, and tirás and dadmahe in d. Āp. agrees exactly with TB. the first time; but the second time it has no nu (or nu) in b, and dadhmahe in d. [Cf. MP. ii. 22. 24.] Ppp. gives, in c, jyok for çatam, and combines çaradaş pu-. In Kāuç. 72. 17 the verse accompanies the setting down (of a stone) in the door; in 72. 2 the last pāda is recited while stepping over the stone.

24. Mount, choosing old age for life-time, pressing on, one after another, as many as ye be; you here let Tvashtar, him of good births, in accord [with you], lead on to living your whole life-time.

The verse is (once more with exception of the last pāda) RV. x. 18.6, and found also in TA. (vi. 10. 1). RV. reads sthá after yáti in b, and ihá for tắn vas in c, and ib d is dirghám ấyuh karati jĩ váse vah. TA. differs from RV. by having grṇānās in a, surátnas (for sajóṣās) in c, and karatu in d. Ppp. puts the verse after our 25, and combines in a-b vṛṇānā 'nu. The verse is used in Kāuç. 72. 13 with vss. 21, 32, 44, 55, and others from elsewhere.

25. As days take place $(bh\bar{u})$ one after another, as seasons go along with seasons, as an after one does not desert $(h\bar{a})$ a preceding — so, O creator $(dh\bar{a}tr)$, arrange their life-times.

This verse is RV. x. 18. 5, found also in TA. (vi. 10. 1). For sākám, at end of b, RV. reads sādhú, and TA. kļptāh.

26. The stony one flows $(r\bar{\imath})$; take ye hold together; play the hero, pass over, O friends; quit here them that are of evil courses; may we pass up unto powers (?vdja) that are free from disease.

The verse is RV. x. 53. 8, and found also in VS. (xxxv. 10) and TA. (vi. 3. 2). RV. has út tiṣṭhata for vīrāyadhvam in b, jahāma and (for durēvās) açevās in c, and çivān vayām (for anamīvān) in d. [VS. agrees with RV. save that it accents sākhāyaḥ in b and reads, for c, ātra jahīmō 'çivā yē āsan.] TA. agrees in general with RV., but has revatīs [unaccented] for rīyate in a, and in d puts út tarema after abhī vājān. Vss. 26 and 27 are quoted in Kāuç. 71. 24 and 86. 27 to accompany the symbolical act of crossing over northward; and in Vāit. 12. 11 to accompany (at any time) the crossing of streams.

27. Stand up, pass over, O friends; the stony river here runs (syand); quit ye here them that are unpropitious; may we pass up unto propitious pleasant powers.

This variation of vs. 26 gives part of the RV. variants to that vs. [For a discussion of the RV. verse, see notes to my Skt. Reader, p. 388.] Ppp. makes b identical with 26 a. The use by Kāuç. was stated in the preceding note.

28. Take ye hold on that of all the gods in order to splendor, becoming cleansed, clear, purifying; stepping over difficult tracks, may we revel a hundred winters with all our heroes.

The first half-verse is identical with vi. 62.3 a, b, save that the latter begins with vāiçvānarīm. We have doubtless to supply nāvam 'boat.' But Ppp. has sūnrtām for varcase in a; and the comm. to Nirukta vi. 12 quotes the pratīka in this form, explaining sūnrtām by vācam (Roth). According to Kāuç. 72.6, it is a young heifer (vatsatarī) that is caused to be laid hold on.

29. By upward roads, full of wind, by distant (pára) ones, stepping over those that are lower (ávara), thrice seven times did the departed (páreta) seers bear back death with the track-obstructor.

Ppp. reads for b apakrāmanto duritam parehi. In Kāuç. 71. 18 and 86. 21, this verse is quoted with vs. 22 'for the purpose expressed in the texts' (mantroktam); and in 71. 19 and in 86. 22 the second half-verse is quoted to accompany 'the effacement (lup) of the tracks to the streams.' [W's "(lup)" was intended to express his doubt as to the warrantableness of Bloomfield's change of lup to yup. Caland expresses the same doubt, WZKM. viii. 369: cf. his Todtengebräuche, p. 120.]

30. Come ye, obstructing the track of death, assuming further on a longer life-time; sitting in your station, thrust ye [away] death; then may we, living, speak to the council.

The first half-verse is RV. x. 18. 2 a, b, and is found also in TA. (vi. 10. 2); for our & 'ta, RV. reads ydd ātta, TA. ydd ātma (ātma unaccented, unless there is a misprint Poona ed. rightly ātma, p. 444]); and TA. has pratarām in b. [Cf. MGS. ii. 1. 13 and p. 153.] The verse is quoted in Kāuç. 71. 20 and 86. 23 in connection with doing something to (symbolical) boats; and the second half-verse in Kāuç. 72. 10. Ppp. reads pratiram in b, and jīvās in d, thus in the latter pāda rectifying the meter. The Anukr. takes no notice of the irregularities in a and d, perhaps because they balance each other. As to vidātham, cf. note to vs. 22, and Bloomfield in JAOS. xix. 2 14.]

31. Let these women, not widows, well-spoused, touch themselves with ointment, with butter; tearless, without disease, with good treasures (-rátna), let the wives ascend first to the place of union (yôni).

This verse is repeated below, as xviii. 3. 57. It is RV. x. 18. 7, and found also in TA. (vi. 10. 2). RV. has viçantu, and TA. mṛçantām, for our spṛçantām in b, and TA. suçēvās for surātnās in c; RV. also combines anaçrāvo nam- in c. Ppp. reads sam viçanta in b; and it adds another corresponding verse for the men: ime virar avidhavās sujānayā narā narā njanena sarpisā etc. (d) syonād yoner adhi talpam vṛheyuh [intending ruheyuh]. With our verse, in Kāuç. 72. 11, grass shoots dipped in butter are handed to the women; and 72. 12 appears to quote the Ppp. verse (the pratīka is given as ime jīvā avidhavāh sujāmayah) to accompany a similar act to the men.

32. I separate (vy-ā-kṛ) these two by oblation; I shape them apart with a spell (bráhman); I make for the Fathers unwasting svadhā; I unite these with a long life-time.

Ppp. reads for c sudhām pitṛbhyo amṛtam duhānā. From Vāit. 6. 2 the separation would appear to be that of the other two fires when taken from the householder's fire; but Kāuç. 70. 10 has it repeated while one looks upon the householder's and the flesheating fires; the latter is most likely to be its true application. It is also quoted in Kāuç. 72. 13 with several other verses, from this hymn and elsewhere, as noted under vs. 24.

33. What Agni, O Fathers, hath entered into our hearts, an immortal into mortals, that god do I enclose in me; let him not hate us, nor let us [hate] him.

Ppp. reads in b amartyas for amṛtas, and, in c, mahyam tam prati gṛh. The verse is found also in TS. (v. 7.91) and MS. (i. 6.1); both read, for b, amartya martyam aviveça; for c, d, TS. has tam atman pari gṛhṇīmahe vayam mā so asmān avahāya parā gāt, and MS. tam ātman pari gṛhṇīmasī ha ned eṣo asmān avahāya parāyat. The verse is quoted in Kāuç. 70. 15 for recitation while the hearts are touched.

- 34. Having turned away from the householder's fire, go ye forth to the right with the flesh-eating one; do ye what is dear to the Fathers, to self, what is dear to the priests (brahmán).
- Ppp. reads, for a, b, apāvartyā 'gnim gārhapatyam kravyādā 'py etu dakṣiṇā; and, in d, kṛṇuta (not -tā). Kāuç. 71.4 quotes the verse, to accompany a corresponding action. [Caland, Todtengebräuche, Note 417, would read krāvyādaḥ, as voc.]
- 35. The flesh-eating Agni that is unremoved (d-nir-ā-hita), taking to himself the double-portioned riches of the oldest son, destroys [him] with ruin.

Ppp. begins with vibhā-; it omits our vs. 36.

36. What one plows, what one wins (van), and what one gains (vid) by pay (vasná) — all that is not a mortal's, if the flesh-eating one be unremoved.

As usual in such cases, in most of the mss. it is wholly doubtful whether vastena or -sne- or -sne- is intended in b; the true reading is vasnéna. The verse, as noted above, is wanting in Ppp. Bp. reads ásti at end of c.

37. He becomes unfit for sacrifice, of smitten splendor; not by him is the oblation to be eaten; [him] the flesh-eating one cuts off from plowing, kine, riches, whom it pursues.

Ppp. reads, in a, ye agnayo for ayaj $\bar{n}iy\delta$; and, in c, krstim $g\bar{a}m$ dhanam. Bp. has in b $n\dot{a}$: énena. The bhavati which spoils the meter of a is doubtless an intrusion | although Ppp. also has it |.

38. A mortal, going down to mishap, speaks forth repeatedly with greedy ones (? gṛ́dhya); whom (pl.) the flesh-eating Agni, from near by, after-knowing, follows (? vi-tāv).

The translation is purely mechanical, the sense being wholly obscure. Nothing corresponding to vitāvati is und anywhere else; the Pet. Lex. suggests emendation to vidhāvati; Ludwig, alternatively, to vitāmyati or vitāmati. Yet c, d are repeated below as 52 c, d (that verse is wanting in Ppp., which, however, has these two pādas in vs. 50). The much corrupted version of Ppp. gives no help as to the verse in general: bahu krudhīs pra vadanty anti tarmato nveti ca: kravyādam agnir [intending kravyād yam ag-?] anuvidvān vibhāvati (vitāvati?).

39. The houses are united with seizure (grāhi) when a woman's husband dies; a knowing priest (brahmān) is to be sought, who shall remove the flesh-eating one.

Ppp. reads in b yat striyām mriyate. 'United' (in a), i.e. 'caused to be affected.'

40. What evil (riprá), pollution we have committed, and what ill-doing, from that let the waters cleanse me, and from the crushing Agni what.

The last clause seems a false construction, the true one being something like the version of Ppp.: agnis samkusikaç ca yah; but Ludwig fills it out to "and [from that] which [arises] from Agni Samkasuka." [As to the construction, see Caland as cited under vs. 19.] [As to samkasuka, cf. note to vs. 11.] Ppp. further reads duritam (for camalam) in a; and it has cundhantu in c [cf. note to vi. 115.3 and the VS. variant there]. The Anukr. understands the verse as 6+8:8+8=30 syllables; but the padamss., less acceptably, mark the pāda division as occurring after cakṛmā. The verse is quoted in Kāuç. 71. 16 and 86. 19 in company with others, as noted under vs. 13.

41. These fore-knowing ones (f.) have turned hither upward from below by roads that the gods go upon; upon the back of the virile (vrṣabhá) mountain the ancient streams (sarít) go about new.

'Waters' (åpas) is doubtless to be supplied with the adjectives in a, b. Ppp. combines tā 'dharād at the beginning, and reads rṣabhasya in c. It is doubtless by a blunder (catasras for tisras) that the Anukr. appears to reckon this regular triṣṭubh to the anuṣṭubhs of the hymn. The verse is quoted in Kāuç. 72. 3.

42. O non-flesh-eating Agni, push out the flesh-eating one; bring the god-sacrificing one.

The Anukr. scans this verse as 5+6+8=19 syllables, acknowledging the unelided a of akravyāt, and separating nuda $\frac{1}{6}$ dev. The prose yajus (as it really is) is quoted in Kāuç. 69. 8 as accompanying the bringing of a light from the frying-pan (bhraṣṭra), and in 71. 8 with other verses, as noted under vs. 1 above. [The first half-verse is defaced in Ppp.]

43. The flesh-eating one entered into this man; he has gone after the flesh-eating one; having made two tigers severally, I take him, who is other than propitious.

Ppp. reads pra viveça in a, and nānā 'ham in c. The verse is quoted, with others (see note to vs. 1), in Kāuç. 71. 8.

44. Concealment of the gods, defense (paridhi) of men (manusyà), the householder's fire is set (crita) between both classes.

In accordance with the Anukr., the mss. interpose no stroke of interpunction in this verse, which plainly is not metrical, though the last 8 willables read like an anuṣṭubh pāda. It is quoted, with others (see note to vs. 24), in Kāuç. 72. 13. Ppp. reads ubhayād in c. [The medial avasāna is lacking in SPP. and should be deleted from the Berlin ed.]

45. Lengthen thou out, O Agni, the life-time of the living; let them who are dead go unto the world of the Fathers; do thou, a good house-holder's fire, burning away the niggard, assign to this man an ever better dawn.

Ppp. reads, for a, jīvānām agnes pratar dīrgham āyus, and, in c, d, arātīr uṣām-uṣām crayam crayasi dadhat. Kāuc. and Vāit. quote as pratīka only the beginning of c; this looks rather as if they made one verse of our 45 c, d and 46. In Kāuç. (71.2) it accompanies setting down fuel on the householder's fire; in Vāit. (4.8) it is used with one of the offerings of the sacrificer's wife. It (11+13:11+11=46) is very ill defined as simply a jagatī.

46. Overcoming, O Agni, all [our] rivals, do thou assign to us their refreshment [and] wealth.

The Anukr. agrees with the mss. in reckoning these two tristubh pādas as a whole verse.

47. Take ye hold after this saving (pápri) carrier (váhni) Indra; he shall carry you out of difficulty [and] reproach; by him smite away the on-flying shaft; by him ward off (pari-pā) Rudra's hurled [missile].

Ppp. reads, for b, sa yo vidvān vijahāti mṛtyum; [and its d is like ours]. The verse (13+11:11+11=46) is unintelligibly ill described by the Anukr. One of the four dissyllabic words in a is apparently an intrusion—perhaps most probably tndram, since one does not see why Indra should make his appearance in this Agni hymn (but see vs. 54), and the epithet vahni belongs especially to Agni. In Kāuç. 72. 7 the verse is used (next after vs. 28) to accompany laying hold on a bull [cf. introd. to iv. 22].

48. Lay ye hold after the draft-ox [as] float (plavá); he shall carry you out of difficulty [and] reproach; mount this boat of Savitar; may we cross over misery by the six wide [directions].

This and the remaining verses of the hymn are given by Ppp. in the order 49-51, 54, 53, 55, 48 (52 being wanting). [Cf. MGS. ii. 1. 14 and p. 146.] In Kāuç. 72. 8, this verse and the next are used (next after vss. 28, 47) in laying hold on a couch (talpa); the third pāda in 71. 23 and 86. 26, in causing some one to embark on a (symbolical) boat containing gold and barley. There is no good reason for calling the verse bhurij.

49. Day-and-night thou goest after, bearing, standing comfortable (kṣemyá), prolonging [life], having good heroes; bearing, O couch, healthful (ánātura), well-minded ones (m.), do thou long be for us smelling of men (púruṣagandhi).

The description of the Anukr. seems to require us to resolve -ra-ā-tre in a. 'I'he use by Kāuç, was noticed under the preceding verse.

50. They fall under the wrath of the gods, they live always evilly, after whom the flesh-eating fire, from near by, like a horse, scatters reeds.

Ppp. reads in a devesu, and this is the usual and regular construction with a-vraçc. Further, for d it has our 38 d and 52 d. The Anukr. gives iva two syllables in d. Our Bp. reads antikan (instead of -kat) here and in 38 c and 52 c. [One could easily scan d as an anustubh pada, açvevānvapate nadam (Gram. § 233 a), if it were worth scanning.]

51. Whoever, without faith, from desire of riches then sit together with the flesh-eating one, they verily feed the fire $(\bar{a}-dh\bar{a})$ about the pot $(kumbh\bar{t})$ of others [always].

· Salar

That is, doubtless, never have a fire of their own. The pada-text in a-b is dhanao-kāmyā: $\hat{a}t$: kravyao ada; Ppp. has a different reading, $-k\bar{a}my\bar{a}s$; krav, thus getting rid of the difficult $\hat{a}t$. [The mark of pāda division is after $\hat{a}t$; it should be before it.] The Anukr. seems to authorize the resolution sa-ām in c.

52. He desires, as it were, to fly forth with his mind; repeatedly he returns again — they whom the flesh-eating Agni, from near by, after-knowing follows.

We had the obscure second half-verse above as 38 c, d. The verse is wanting in Ppp., as already noted. The substitution of patati for pipatiṣati would rectify the meter of a. [Pāda b seems clearly to refer to rebirth: cf. Praçna Upanishad, i. 9.]

53. A black ewe [is] of cattle [thy] portion; lead, too, they call thy gold (?candrá), O flesh-eating one; ground beans [are] thy portion [as] oblation; seek (sac) thou the thicket of the forest-spirit (aranyāni).

Ppp. reads (better) uta for api in b. The verse is quoted in Kāuç. 71.6 (with vss. 4 and 7: see note to vs. 4), and again in 71.14, in connection with setting down the light (dipa).

54. Having made offering of withered (? járat) cane (iṣt̄kā), of tilptīnja, of dáṇḍana, of reeds; having made fuel of this, Indra removed Yama's fire.

Various kinds of reed or cane are doubtless named in a, b. Jarant is lit. 'aged.' Ppp. reads in c tān indre 'dhmam'. The Anukr. does not note c as defective; we may resolve either indr-a or krtu-ā. The verse is quoted (with vss. 1, 11, 55: see note to vs. 1) in Kāuç. 71. 5, to accompany the feeding of the flesh-eating fire.

55. Having sent in opposition an opposing (pratyáñc) song (arká), I, foreknowing, have entered abroad on the road; I have directed away the lifebreaths of them yonder; these here I unite with long life-time.

The first half-verse is difficult and doubtful. The use made of the verse by Kāuç, gives no help; it is quoted in 71.5 as noted above, under vs. 54; and in 72.13 with several other verses, as noted under vs. 24. Ppp. reads ācakāra at end of b. [W. has overlooked the ht and the accent of the two perfects: perhaps, 'since I have entered [and] have directed . . . , [accordingly] I unite' etc. Henry, p. 238, inserts another ht after antsām. |

3. Cremation as a sacrifice.

[Yama.— şaştih. mantroktasvargāudanāgnidevatyam. trāistubham: 1, 42, 43, 47. bhurij; 8, 12, 21, 22, 24. jagatī; 13. l; 17. svarād ārṣī pañkti; 34. virādgarbhā; 39. anuṣtub-garbhā; 44. parābṛhatī; 55-60. 3-av. 7-p. çañkumaty atijāgataçākvarātiçākvaradhārtya-garbhā 'tidhṛti (55, 57-60. kṛti; 56. virāṭ kṛti).]

natural order, and combined especially with xi. I (often a verse from each hymn being quoted in the same rule), in the sava ceremony; very few verses anywhere else. Vāit. quotes only 4 verses.

Translated: Henry, 195, 238; Griffith, ii. 110; Bloomfield, 185, 645.

1. Stand, a man (púmāns), upon men; go to the hide; call thither her who is dear to thee; of what age (? yávant) ye two first came together in the beginning, let that be your same age in Yama's realm.

Ppp. combines puiso adhi and omits ihi in a. Kāuç. 60. 31 has the verse used when the sacrificer is made to stand upon the ox-hide which is to be his station during the ceremony. The various antecedents have been prepared to the accompaniment of the first verses of xi. 1.

2. So much [be] your sight, so many your powers $(v\bar{\imath}ry\dot{\alpha})$, so great your brilliancy $(t\acute{e}jas)$, so many-fold your energies $(v\acute{\alpha}jina)$; Agni fastens on (sac) the body when [it is his] fuel (?); then, O paired ones $(mithun\acute{\alpha})$, shall ye come into being from what is cooked $(pakv\acute{\alpha})$.

The pada-text has yadā: edhaḥ in c, as translated. Ppp. reads before it agnim çarīram sajate, and after it atha; and in a, b it makes cakṣus and tejas change places. In OB. v. 258, pakvā is defined as 'the charred remains and ashes of a corpse.' Pāda d recurs in vs. 9. \[W. makes a query on the margin: "the husband and wife burnt together?? and born anew and alike out of the cremation?" \]

3. Together in this world, together on the [road] the gods travel, together also unite ye (du.) in the realms of Yama; purified by purifiers, call ye to yourselves whatever seed (rétas) came into being from you.

All the mss. agree in the unaccented asmin in a. The verse appears to be quoted (as 'third verse') in Kāuç. 60. 33, to accompany a calling upon their offspring (apatya).

4. Enter together, ye sons, into the waters, coming together, ye rich in life, unto this living one (m.); of them (f.) share ye the one which (m.) they call immortal, the rice-dish which your (du.) generatrix cooks.

The meaning and connection are very obscure. 'Of them' seems to refer to the waters (f.). Ppp. removes one difficulty by reading vas instead of $v\bar{a}m$ in d; it has in $b \lfloor -dhany\bar{a}t \rfloor$ sametā $\lfloor cf.$ vs. 25 \rfloor . In Kāuç. 60. 35 the verse is used when the pair lie down together, accompanied by their offspring, after a vessel of water has been set on the hide.

5. What one your (du.) father cooks, and what one [your] mother, in order to release from evil ($ripr\acute{a}$) and from pollution of speech—that hundred-streamed, heaven-going rice-dish hath permeated ($vi-\bar{a}p$) with greatness both firmaments ($n\acute{a}bhas$).

Ppp. reads at the beginning yam vas pitā.

6. Both firmaments, and world of both kinds, what heaven-going ones are conquered of the sacrificers — which one of them is chiefly (? ágrc) full of light, full of honey, in that combine ye (du.) with your sons in old age.

Ppp. combines in c yo 'gre, and part of our mss. (P.M.W.T.) read the same.

7. Take ye (du.) hold upon each forward direction; to this world they that have faith attach themselves (sac); what of you that is cooked is served up in the fire, combine ye, O husband-and-wife, in order to its guarding.

The verse is nearly accordant with vi. 122. 3. 'Forward' (pranc) is also 'eastern.' [Note here again the sequence of the cardinal points (pradaksina), and cf. end of introd. to iii. 26.] The Anukr. passes the irregularity of the second half-verse (11 + 11: 10 + 12 = 44) without notice. Kāuç. 61. I quotes this verse alone; and 61. 2 quotes 7-10 as used while they follow around the vessel of water. Ppp. reads, for c, d, as follows: mimāthām pātr tad vām pūrnam astu çivām pakvas pitryāyane 'ty ('bhy?') āmayat.

8. Attaining unto the southern quarter, turn ye (du.) about unto this vessel; in it shall Yama, in concord with the Fathers, assure abundant protection unto your cooked [offering].

'In it': i.e., as the gender shows, in the vessel. Some of our mss. make very bad work with $v\bar{a}m$ in c, reading $v\bar{a}y\bar{a}m$ (P.M.W.), $vay\bar{a}m$ (Bs.s.m.), $var\bar{a}m$ (R.), $v\bar{a}m$ yam (T.). It is absurd of the Anukr. to reckon the verse (11 + 11: 12 + 11 = 45) a $jagat\bar{i}$.

9. This western of the quarters verily is a thing to be preferred, in which Soma is over-ruler and favorer; to it resort (ρ ri) ye (du.); attach yourselves to the well-doers; then. O paired ones, shall ye come into being from what is cooked.

The last pāda is identical with 2 d above. But Ppp. reads instead adhā pakvena saha sam bhavema, which is nearly identical with vi. 119. 2 d and the concluding pāda of 55-60 below. The Anukr. takes no notice of the deficiency of the first pāda.

10. A superior realm, having superiority by progeny, may the northern of the quarters make our (pl.) apex (? agra); a five-fold (pāūta) meter hath the man become; may we come into being together with all, having all their limbs.

Ppp. reads $pa\bar{n}ktic$ chandas at the beginning of c. We have to resolve $pa-\bar{a}\bar{n}$ - in order to make a full pāda.

11. This fixed [quarter] is viráj; homage be to it; let it be propitious to [my] sons and to me; do thou, O goddess Aditi, having all choice things, like an active herdsman defend our cooked [offering].

The verse is quoted in Kāuç. 61.3, next after the four preceding ones.

12. Do thou embrace us, as a father his sons; let propitious winds blow here for us on the earth; what rice-dish the two deities cook here, let that know our penance and also truth.

Ppp. reads cagdā for bhūmāu in b, and vittam for vettu at the end. 'That' (tát) in d is neuter, and so not correlative to 'what' (yám m.) in c. P.M.W. read svaja nah at end of a. The verse lacks two syllables of being a good jagatī. [The verse is quoted at Kāuç. 61. 4.]

13. Whenever the black bird, coming hither, hath sat upon the orifice, surprising (tsar) what is resolved (vi-sanj), or when the barbarian woman $(d\bar{a}si)$ with wet hands smears over — cleanse, ye waters, the mortar [and] pestle.

Ppp. combines in a cakune 'ha, and reads in c dāsī vā yad, and in d cf. vss. 21 and 26 and note to vi. 115. 3 cundhatā "paḥ. Kāuç. quotes the verse in 8. 14, and the comm. also under 2. 6, but they cast no light on the obscure first half-verse. The verse is a good triṣṭubh, yet the Anukr. attempts to give it some special description, of which the text is corrupt and unintelligible (yad-yat kṛṣṇa ity āthā).

14. Let this pressing-stone, broad-based, vigor-bestowing, purified by purifiers, smite away the demon; mount thou the hide; yield great protection; let not the husband-and-wife fall into evil proceeding from sons (pāútra).

Ppp. has at the end gāthām, with which, of course, dampatī would have to be understood as vocative, unaccented. Expressions like that in d are found in several of the Sūtras: in AGS. i. 13. 7, mā 'ham pāutram agham ni yām (should be gām, probably); in PGS. i. 5. 11, yathe 'yam strī pāutram agham na rodāt; and the same in HGS. i. 19. 7, with pāutram ānandam as antithesis to it. The verse is quoted in Kāuç. 61. 18 (in connection with xi. 1. 9), to accompany the setting of mortar, pestle, and winnowing basket, after sprinkling, upon the hide.

15. The forest tree hath come to us together with the gods, forcing off the demon, the piçācás; he shall rise up (ut-çri), shall speak forth his voice; with him may we conquer all worlds.

Ppp. reads and combines sāu'cchrāyātāi in c, and reads api for abhi in d. According to Kāuç. 61. 21, one sets up the pestle with this verse; in 125. 3 the verse is used with reference to the sacrificial post [in case it puts forth fresh shoots]; and similarly in Vāit. 10. 8 [in the paçubandha].

16. Seven sacrifices (médha) the cattle enclosed — which [the relative pronoun] of them was full of light, and which was pining; to them thirty deities attach themselves; do thou (m.) conduct us (pl.) unto the heavenly (svargá) world.

Our Bp. reads tām in c, and a few of the samhitā-mss. (P.M.W.E.) agree with it; tām is certainly wrong, but tām would be an acceptable improvement. Ppp. has medhasvān instead of jyotismān (and the latter must be taken as having the sense of the former); also cakarṣa in b, and neṣi in d. [For neṣa, see Gram. § 896.] The verse is quoted in Kāuç. 61.13, to accompany the handling or stroking of something by the two spouses [with their offspring]. Pāda b has a dundant syllable, unnoticed by the Anukr., unless we contract to yāi 'ṣām.

17. Unto the heavenly world shalt thou conduct us (pl.); may we be united with wife, with sons; I grasp [her (?)] hand; let her (?) come here after me; let not destruction pass us, nor the niggard.

The last pāda is nearly the same with vi. 124. 3 d; cf. also ii. 7. 4 c, d. Ppp. ends d with no 'rātiḥ. The verse is a good tristubh, and its description by the Anukr. is absurd. Kāuç. 61. 14 uses the latter half-verse, not in a way to cast light on its meaning.

18. The seizure (grāhi), evil (pāpmān)—may we go beyond them (pl.); dissipate thou the darkness; mayest thou speak forth what is agreeable; made of forest tree, uplifted, do not injure; do not crush to pieces [vi-çr] the god-loving rice-grain.

Jihinsīr in c is a misprint for jihinsīr, which all the Lie. W's mss. read. So read 9 of SPP's authorities: and 4 have jahinsīs; but SPP. prints jihinsīs, accentless, with 3 of his mss. Perhaps the accent is to be regarded as antithetical. A part of our mss. (O.T.K.D.R.p.m.) read carīs in d; Ppp. has carāis see the references under vi. 32. 2. The verse (with xi. 1. 9 b) accompanies in Kāuç. 61. 22 the pounding with the pestle.

19. About to become all-expanded, ghee-backed, go thou, of like origin (sáyoni), unto that world; hand thou (upa-yam) the rain-increased sieve; let that winnow away the husk, the chaff.

The first half-verse is identical with 53 c, d below. Some mss. (I.O.D.K.: also half of the Kāuç. mss.) read palāvām in d. Ppp. has vidvān instead of etam in b. With c, according to Kāuç. 61. 23, the çūrpa is grasped; with a (or the whole verse?), according to 24, it is raised; with d, according to 25, the sifting is done. The third pāda lacks a syllable, unless we may resolve çu-ūrpam. [For "sieve," here and in vs. 20, read rather "winnowing-basket"?]

20. The three worlds are commensurate with the brāhmaṇa: yon heaven, namely, earth, atmosphere; having seized the [soma-]stalks, take ye (du.) hold after; let them swell up $(\bar{a}-py\bar{a})$; let them come again to the sieve.

All our mss. (except D.) read asāu, unaccented, in b; emendation to asāú was plainly necessary. All the samhitā-mss. (except E.) separate in c gṛbhītvā anv-, which, accordingly, might perhaps as well have been left, though the Prāt. does not recognize the case of irregular hiatus. Ppp. seems to combine the two words in the usual fashion; but it has -rabhetām; also, in b, pṛthivyām ant-. The verse is quoted in Kāuç. 61.27 in connection with touching the winnowed grains (?); and, in 28, the last words of d (punar etc.), with scattering them, apparently, again on the sieve.

21. Manifoldly separate [are] the forms of cattle; thou becomest one-formed together with success; that red skin—that thrust thou [away]; the pressing-stone shall cleanse like a fuller (? malagá) the garments.

Or b may be 'thou comest into being one-formed with success.' Malagá occurs nowhere else; its use with iva makes it impossible to tell whether the pada-text would divide malaogah. Ppp. reads bhavati in b and malagāi 'va in d. [Again, as in vss. 13 and 26, it reads cundhāti for cumbhāti: cf. note to vi. 115.3.] The quotation in Kāuc. 61. 26 casts no light on the meaning. Our text ought to read sámṛddhyā at end of b. The verse is very ill named jagatī by the Anukr.; the treatment of iva in d as only one syllable makes a regular tristubh of it.

22. Thee that art earth I make enter into earth; this like body of thee [is] separated; whatever of thee is burnt (? dyuttá), [or] scratched by driving (drpaṇa); with that do not leak; I cover that over by a spell (bráhman).

Ppp. reads, for a, $bh\bar{u}my\bar{u}m$ $bh\bar{u}mim$ adhi $dh\bar{u}ray\bar{u}mi$; in c, arpanam ca; in d, queror apa tad, thus restoring the meter. The verse (12+11:11+13=47) is very ill defined simply as a jagatt. In Kāuç. 61. 30, the verse accompanies the smearing of a vessel (kumbht); in Vāit. 28. 12, the fashioning of a kettle.

23. Mayest thou welcome as a mother a son; I unite $(sam-dh\bar{a})$ thee that art earth with the earth; a kettle, a vessel, do not stagger upon the sacrificial hearth, overhung by the implements of offering [and] by sacrificial butter.

The first pāda is apparently addressed to the earth, differently from the others. Ppp. puts the verse before our vs. 22, and reads in c kumbhīr vedyām sam carantām. One or two of our mss. (Bs.O.) read uṣā in c.

24. Let Agni, cooking, defend thee on the east; let Indra, with the Maruts, defend on the south; may Varuṇa fix thee in the maintenance (dharúṇa) of the western [quarter]; on the north may Soma give thee together.

Ppp. corrects the meter of b by reading rakṣāt; and that of d by having varuṇas instead of somas. The verse is irregular, but by no means a jagatt. Lif we make varuṇas and somas exchange places, as suggested by Ppp., and read rakṣāt with Ppp., the vs. becomes a good triṣṭubh. In Kāuç. 61. 32 it is used when arranging the fire about the kettle.

25. Purified with purifiers, they purify themselves from the cloud; they go both to heaven and to earth [as their] worlds; them, lively, rich in life, firm-standing, poured into the vessel (pátra), let the fire kindle about.

Ppp. puts the verse after our vs. 26, and reads at end of b dharmaṇā (cf. RV. x. 16. 3 b), and in c, d jīvadhānyāt sametā [cf. vs. 4] pātrā "siktāt. The verse is defective by a syllable in a, but the Anukr. passes this without notice. Kāuç. 61. 34 quotes the verse to accompany putting into the strainer.

26. They come from the sky, they fasten on (sac) the earth; from the earth they fasten upon the atmosphere; being cleansed, they just cleanse themselves; let them conduct us to the heavenly world.

The accent of çúmbhante in c is unmotived. Ppp. reads [cf. vss. 13 and 21, and note to vi. 115. 3] çundhanti, which (or çumbhanti) is decidedly preferable. That the reading in a is diváḥ p- is noted in the comm. to Prāt. ii. 68.

27. Both as it were prevailing (prabhú) and also commensurate, also bright and clean, immortal — as such do ye, I waters, directed, helping, cook the rich-dish for the two spouses, ye of good refuge.

The translation implies in d emendation of āpaḥoçikṣantth to āpaḥ çikṣ-, the former seeming wholly unacceptable. Ppp. combines and reads praçiṣṭā "pas sīkṣ-. Our text reads with the mss.

28. The numbered drops (stoká) fasten on the earth, being commensurate with breaths-and-expirations, with herbs; being scattered on, unnumbered, of good color, the clean ones have obtained all cleanness.

This verse, as noted above, is wanting in Ppp. It is quoted in Kāuç. 61. 36 to accompany the scattering in of the rice-grains after washing.

29. They struggle up (ud-yudh), they dance on, being heated; they hurl foam and abundant drops (bindu); like a woman that is in her season, seeing her husband, unite yourselves, O waters, with these ricegrains.

The translation assumes the emendation, made in our edited text, of ftviyā yā, for the ftviyāya of all the mss. [See SPP's note on this matter, p. 231. He says ftviya = māithuna.] Ppp. reads ftviyāvāis tāis tand. In Kāuç. 61. 37 the verse accompanies the making of the water to boil.

30. Make thou them stand up, as they sit on the bottom; let them touch themselves all over with the waters; I have measured with vessels (pâtra) the water that is here; measured are the rice-grains that are these directions.

The last pāda is translated as if yádīmāḥ (p. yádī imāḥ) were meant as equivalent to yád imāḥ, corresponding to the yád etát of c. Ppp. has srjantām at end of b.

31. Reach thou forth the sickle $(p\acute{a}r\varsigma u)$, hasten, take [it] quickly; let them, not harming, cut $(d\bar{a})$ the herbs at the joint; they of whom Soma compassed the kingship—let the plants be without wrath toward us.

One or two of our mss. read in a páraçum (M.W.; O. párárçum); and, as usual, some (O.D.R.) accent rājyam in c. Ppp. has harantu for harāu'sam in a; and, in c, somo yāsām. Amanyutāh is undivided in the pada-text. In Kāuç. 61. 38 the first pāda is used with handing over the sickle for gathering the darbha-grass; the second pāda,* in 61. 39, with cutting it above the joints; and in 1. 24, 25 both for a similar purpose; so also the first pāda (or the verse) in 8. 11; and yet again both in the comm. to 137. 4. *[Quoted as oṣadhīr dāntu parvan at i. 25 and 61. 39. According to Daç. Kar. (note to 137. 4), the quotation pra yacha parçum covers a pāda and a half, that is, it includes the ahinsantas which is omitted in the quotation of b.]

32. Strew ye a new barhis for the rice-dish; be it dear to the heart, agreeable to the eye; on it let the gods [and] the divine ones (f.) settle (vic) together; sitting down (ni-sad), let them partake of this with the seasons.

The mss. read in b priyām, but our text makes the unavoidable emendation to -yām. Some of the mss. also are bothered over the unusual combination lgva in b: Lthus Bs. has vaglāv astu; R. valgāv astu; T. valgvustu. And again, in d, Bs. reads -qnan rt., and O.s.m.R. -qnanty rt. The verse accompanies in Kāuç. 61. 40 the strewing of the barhis.

33. O forest tree, sit on the strewn barhis, being commensurate with the Agni-praises (agnistomá), with the deities; like a form well made by an artisan (tváṣṭṛ) with a knife, so (enā) let the eager ones be seen round about in the vessel (pātra).

Bp. and Bs.s.m. read svádhiyā at end of c. The anomalous hiatus enā (p. enā) ehāḥ is noted in Prāt. iii. 34. Ppp. reads svadhityāināhyāṣ pari pātre dadṛçyām, which is welcome as ridding us of the wholly unsupported form dadṛçrām; [cf. Gram. § 813]. In Kāuç. 61. 43, the verse accompanies the setting of a vessel (pātrī) upon the barhis; in Vāit. 10. 7, the laying of the sacrificial post upon the same (the editor of Kāuç. regards it as quoted also in 15. 11, but the verse there intended must be rather vi. 125. 1).

34. In sixty autumns may he (?) seek unto the treasure-keepers; may he attain unto the sky with the cooked [offering]; may both fathers [and] sons live upon him; make thou this one to go unto the heaven-going end of the fire.

The last pāda admits of various other constructions. Both here and in vs. 41 (where pāda a is repeated) Bp. reads at the beginning casthyām. In c, O.p.m.R. accent jīvān. Ppp. puts the verse after our vs. 35, and reads, for a, sastyām caradbhyas paridadhma enam; for c, upāi 'nam putrān pitaraç ca sīdām; in d, imam for etam. There is no reason why the Anukr. should regard the verse as anything but a regular tristubh. In Kāuç. 62.9 it accompanies the setting down of the rice-dish westward from the fire.

35. A maintainer, maintain thyself in the maintenance of the earth; thee that art unmoved let the deities make to move (cyu); thee shall the two spouses, living, having living sons, cause to remove (ud-vas) out of the fire-holder.

Ppp. combines -vyā 'cyutam in a-b, omits the meter-disturbing (and probably intrusive) tvā of c, reads in c -putrā, and in d ud vāsayāthas p. The Anukr. takes no notice of the redundant syllable in our c. In Kāuç. 61. 41, the verse accompanies the removal of the vessel; in Vāit. 10. 9, the insertion of the end of the sacrificial post in the ground.

36. Thou hast come together unto all the worlds, having conquered; however many [be] the desires, thou hast made them wholly satisfied; plunge ye (du.) in — both the stirring-stick [and] the spoon; take thou him up upon one vessel.

This obscure verse wins no light from Kāuç. (62. 1), which says simply iti mantroktam, connecting it with xi. 1. 24. Some of our mss. (P.M.W.T.) read abhi for ádhi in d. We should expect in c gāhetām, as the nouns are not vocative. Pop. reads in a samāgān abhicikya, and in b kāmān samitāu purastāt.

[See p. lxxxviii.]

- 37. Strew thou on, spread forward, smear over with ghee this vessel; as a lowing cow (usrá) [toward] a young, [calf] desiring the teat, do ye, O gods, utter the sound hing toward this one.
- 'Strew on': i.e., specifically, make an upastarana or covering of butter. In Ppp. the second half-verse is wholly corrupt. The verse is quoted in Kāuç. 61.45, as accompanying the operation described, and the next verse is added in 61.46 when the operation is completed.
- 38. Thou hast strewn on, hast made that world; let the broad unequalled heavenly world (svargá) spread itself out; to it shall resort (cri) the mighty eagle; the gods shall reach him forth to the deities.

Ppp. begins with apāskārāir, and makes crayātāi and suparnas change places in c.

39. What in any case thy wife cooks beyond thee, or thy husband, O wife, in secret from thee, that do ye unite; that be yours together; agreeing (? sampāday-) together upon one world.

Kāuç. 62. 11 quotes the verse (iti mantroktam), but casts no light upon it. [Has a second pácati fallen out after jäye?]

40. How many of her fasten on (sac) the earth, what sons came forth into being from us (pl.) — all those do ye (du.) call to you in the vessel; knowing the navel, the young ones (clcu) shall come together.

The mss. (excepting R.D.) leave sacante in a unaccented. Ppp. reads after it 'smat. The verse, especially the first pāda, is obscure. 'Navel' = 'central point, place of union.' The Anukr. does not heed the deficiency of a syllable in c; it means us, perhaps, to resolve $ta-\bar{d}n$.

41. What streams $(dh \acute{a} r \ddot{a})$ of good $(v \acute{a} s u)$ [there are], fattened with honey, mixed with ghee, navels of immortality—all those doth the heaven-goer (? $svarg \acute{a}$) take possession of; in sixty autumns may he seek unto the treasure-keepers.

The last and obscurest pāda is identical with 34 a. The Anukr. perhaps accepts the redundant syllable of b and the deficient of c as balancing each other. The verse is used, with 44 below, in Kāuç. 62. 18, to accompany the further pouring in of juices. Ppp. reads samaktās for prapīnās in a, and dhāmayas at end of b, and combines -pā 'bh- in d.

42. He shall seek unto it, [as] treasure-keepers unto a treasure; let those who are others be not lords $(án\bar{\imath}\varsigma vara)$ about; given by us, deposited, heaven-going, with three divisions it has ascended to three heavens $(svarg\acute{a})$.

Ppp. again combines in a -pā 'bhy. Kāuç. 62. 10 makes the verse accompany the division of the rice-dish into three parts. There is no reason for calling it bhurij, as the Anukr. does.

43. Let Agni burn the demon that is godless; let the flesh-eating piçācá not have a draught here; we thrust him, we bar him away from us; let the Adityas, the Angirases, fasten on him.

Doubtless we should emend to rundhmas in c. Ppp. reads in d ādityā no aūg-, thus rectifying the meter. The Anukr. notices this time the redundance of the pāda. Doubtless, as often elsewhere, we are to contract to ādityāt 'nam. In Kāuç. 62. 14 the verse is made to accompany the carrying of fire around the offering. BR. render the force of pra by defining pra-pā as 'sich an's Trinken machen.'

44. To the Ādityas, the Angirases, I announce this honey mingled with ghee; with cleansed hands, not smiting down [anything of] the Brahman's, go ye (du.), O well-doers, unto this heavenly world (svarga).

The description by the Anukr. is quite wrong. The use by Kāuç. 62. 18 was noted above, under vs. 41. [For the use of the genitive, W. has noted a reference to Delbrück's Altindische Syntax, p. 161.]

45. I have obtained this highest division of it, from which world the most exalted one obtained [it] completely; pour thou on the butter (sarpis); anoint with ghee; this is the portion of our Angiras here.

Ppp. has in a a different order of words: idam kāndam uttamam prāpam asya. The verse (with xi. 1. 31: the first half of each) is quoted in Kāuç. 62. 15, and again (the second half of each) in 62. 17, in connection with anointing the vessel with butter.

46. Unto truth, unto penance, and unto the deities, we deliver this deposit (nidhi), [this] treasure (evadhi); let it not be lost $(ava-g\bar{a})$ in our play, nor in the meeting; do not ye release it to another in preference to (purd) me.

One or two of our mss. (R.D.) accent at the end mát; and the word is not found without accent unless here and at xi. 4. 26. [SPP. reads mát with 8 of his authorities, against 7. that have mat.] Ppp. reads in b dadhmas. This and the two following verses are quoted, with a number of others, in Kāuç. 68. 27, at a later point in the rice-dish ceremony. [With c, cf. 52 a.]

47. I cook; I give; verily upon my action [and] deed (?karúna) the wife; a virgin (?kāúmāra) world hath been born, a son; take ye (du.) hold after vigor (váyas) that hath what is superior.

The translation here is purely mechanical. Ppp. puts the verse after our vs. 48, and reads in a, for dadāmi, ud vadāmi [thus suggesting the probably correct restoration of the pāda (aham u dadāmi)], and in c putrās. The verse (10+11:11+11=43) is very ill described by the Anukr.

48. No offense is here, nor support (?ādhārá), nor that one goes agreeing (sam-am) with friends; this vessel of ours is set down not empty; the cooked [dish] shall enter again him that cooked it.

This verse is little more intelligible than the preceding. Ppp. puts c after d, and reads at the end of c astu instead of etat. LIt is hardly worth while to discuss the accent of ásti.

49. May we do what is dear to them that are dear; whosoever hate [us], let them go to darkness; milch-cow, draft-ox, each coming vigor (váyas)—let them thrust away the death that comes from men.

Or, 'that concerns, comes upon, men' (pāuruṣeya). The Anukr. seems to accept the two redundant syllables of c (evá an intrusion) as compensating for the deficiency in a. According to Kāuç. 62. 19, the verse is use of 'the milch-cow etc.' north of the fire.

50. The fires are in concord, one with another — he that fastens on the herbs, and he that [fastens on] the rivers; as many gods as send heat (ā-tap) in the sky — gold hath become the light of him that cooks.

Ppp. reads sindhum in b, and dadhatu* (for pacatas) in d. In Kāuç. 62. 22, the verse (with xi. 1. 28) is made to accompany the laying on of a piece of gold; it is also quoted in 68. 27, with vss. 46-48, etc.: see note to vs. 46. The Anukr. does not notice the lack of a syllable in a. *[Intending dadhato?]

51. This one of skins (tvdc) hath come into being on man; not naked are all the animals $(paq\dot{u})$ that are other; ye (du.) cause to wrap $(pari-dh\bar{a})$ yourselves $(\bar{a}tmdn)$ with authority $(k\bar{s}atrd)$, a home-woven garment, the mouth of the rice-dish.

The translation is as literal as possible; but other constructions may be made in the second half-verse. Ppp. leaves the hiatus between a and b, babhūva an-; it combines -gnās sarve in b; and it reads in c dhāpayeta, with a division-line after it. Kāuç. 62. 23 makes the verse accompany the depositing of such a garment, with gold. LHas the vs. anything to do with the legend, cited under ii. 13. 3, about the cow and her skin, which the gods took from man and gave to the cow?

52. What [untruth] thou shalt speak at the dice, what at the meeting, or what untruth thou shalt speak from desire of gain—clothing yourselves (du.) in the same web (tántu), ye shall settle in it all pollution.

Ppp. rectifies the meter of a by reading vadasi; in b it has dhane instead of vadās; in c it gives saha for abhi. The Anukr. does not notice the deficiency in a. The verse is quoted in Kāuç. 63. 1 (next after vs. 51), with the explanation 'the two become dressed in the same garment.' [With a, cf. 46 c.]

53. Win thou rain; go unto the gods; thou shalt make smoke fly up out of the skin; about to become all-expanded, ghee-backed, go thou, of like origin, unto that world.

The second half-verse is identical with 19 a, b above. Ppp. begins b with tatas instead of tvacas; and it has a different second half: viçvavyacā viçvakarmā svargas sayonim lokam upa yāhy ekam, which seems less unintelligible. In Kāuç. 63. 5 the verse is quoted (together with xi. 1. 28 b) with the direction 'he draws off [the garment?].'

54. The heaven-goer hath variously changed his body, as he finds (? vidé) in himself one of another color; he hath conquered off the black one, purifying a shining one (riical); the one that is red, that I offer (hu) to thee in the fire.

The adjectives here are all fem., relating to 'body' (tanū). The defective meter of b helps to make the isolated [or rather, unusual?] vidé [see Gram. § 613] suspicious; the Anukr. takes no notice of the deficiency. The first half-verse is corrupt in Ppp., so that the comparison gives us no help. In Kāuç. 63. 8 the verse accompanies the scattering on of other husks (phalīkaraṇān). [For the form ajāit, see the references under vi. 32. 2.]

55. To the eastern quarter, to Agni as overlord, to the black [serpent] as defender, to Aditya having arrows, we commit thee here; guard ye him for us until our coming; may he lead on our appointed [life-time] here unto old age; let old age commit us unto death; then may we be united with the cooked [offering].

[Vss. 55-60 are partly unmetrical.] We are surprised to find the pause before instead of after the phrase etám pári dadmah. With the items in the first division of these verses are to be compared the corresponding ones in iii. 27. 1-6. The concluding pāda of the metrical refrain is identical with vi. 119. 2 d. The pada-reading at the end of the prose is d:asmākam: aoetoh. In every verse, Ppp. omits $tv\bar{a}$ before $diç\ell$ (an improvement) and reads dadhmas for dadmas. In the refrain of every verse, apparently, it has dadhatv adha for dadatv atha. In this verse it combines diçe agnaye. The metrical description of the Anukr. is very puzzling; the part common to all the verses is 6 + 10:11 + 11 + 11 = 49 syllables; then the varying parts range with some resolutions from 25 to 31 syllables: all together, from 74 to 80 syllables; and atidhrti is regularly 76, and atidhrti 80; but the Anukr., after calling all atidhrti, appears to call all but one atidhrti. The verses are quoted in Kāuç. 63. 22, in connection with the rest of the hymn.

- 56. To the southern quarter, to Indra as overlord, to the cross-lined [serpent] as defender, to Yama having arrows, we commit thee here; guard ye etc. etc.
- 57. To the western quarter, to Varuna as overlord, to the $p\hat{r}d\bar{a}ku$ as defender, to food having arrows, we commit thee here; guard ye etc. etc.
- 58. To the northern quarter, to Soma as overlord, to the constrictor as defender, to the thunderbolt having arrows, we commit thee here; guard ye etc. etc.

Our edition follows all the mss. in accenting rakṣitre 'çányāi; it should be, of course, -trè.

59. To the fixed quarter, to Vishnu as overlord, to the spotted-necked [serpent] as defender, to the herbs having arrows, we commit thee here; guard ye etc. etc.

Ppp. reads virudbhyas for oṣadhībhyas.

60. To the upward quarter, to Brihaspati as overlord, to the white [serpent] as defender, to rain having arrows, we commit thee here; guard ye etc. etc.

[Here ends the third anuvāka, with I hymn and 60 verses. The quoted Anukr. says svargaḥ ṣaṣṭiḥ, i.e., 'the svarga[-hymn] is sixty.' The stem svarga, in one form or another, occurs a dozen times in the hymn.]

4. The cow (vaçá) as belonging exclusively to the Bahmans.

[Kaçyapa.— tripañcāçat. mantroklavaçādevatyam. ānuṣṭubham: 7. bhurij; 20. virāj; 32. uṣṇigbrhatīgarbhā; 42. brhatīgarbhā.]

Found also in Pāipp. xvii. (with slight differ spaces of verse-order [4, 6, 5, 8, 7, 9 and 17, 19, 18, 20]). Not noticed at all in Vāit., and in Kāuç. only once, in 66. 20, where, with x. 10, it (or the first verse) is to be spoken by the giver of a cow, after sprinkling etc.

Translated: Ludwig, p. 448; Henry, 203, 248; Griffith, ii. 120; Bloomfield, 174, 656.

I. I give [her] — thus should he say, if they have noticed (? anu-budh) her — [I give] the cow (vaçā) to the priests (brahmán) that ask for her; that brings progeny, descendants.

Perhaps anu abhutsata is rather 'have recognized': i.e., have made her out to be the kind of cow that is called vaca; or there may be in it something of the meaning of anu-jñā: 'have approved, or taken a liking to.' [Cf. MGS. i. 8. 6 and p. 150.]

2. He bargains away his progeny and becomes exhausted of cattle who is not willing to give the cow $(g\delta)$ of the gods to the sons of seers that ask for her.

Pādas c, d recur as 12 a, b.

3. By a hornless one they are crushed for him; by a lame one he falls (? ard) into a pit; by a crippled one his houses are burned; by a one-eyed one his possessions are taken away (?).

The adjectives are feminine, and the sense doubtless is that as the result of giving such defective cows the thing threatened will happen. In a, probably the subject to be understood is $grh\bar{a}s$, as in c; b and c have perhaps become transposed — and, in that case, svām might be the subject also of ardati. [Ppp. has $k\bar{a}tam$, like the Vulgate.] The translation of d implies emendation (which seems advisable [cf. W. in AJP. xiii. 302]) of $k\bar{a}ndy\bar{a}$ to $k\bar{a}ndy\bar{a}$: i.e. $k\bar{a}ndy\bar{a}: \dot{a}:dtyate$. Ppp. has jtyate 'is harmed,' which would remove the difficulty. [On $k\bar{u}td$, see von Bradke, KZ. xxxiv. 157.]

4. Anæmia (vilohitá) from the station of the dung visits (vid) the master of kine; so is the agreement (?) of the cow; for door-damaging (?) art thou called.

Nearly everything in the second half-verse is doubtful. The majority of our mss. read sámvidyam (p. sámovidyam), but sắm- instead is given by M.s.m.O.s.m. and D.; and in R. sắm- is emended to sām-. Sắmvidya seems a much more probable form of stem. The Pet. Lexx. render 'possession,' which is very unsatisfactory. Duradabhnå (also in vs. 19) seems pretty clearly the reading of nearly all our mss. in c, though it might, as usual in such cases, be -bhrå in most; Bp. has (both times) apparently -bhdnā, and O. [in vs. 4] -bdnā or -b-h-nā (the b and h separate letters, as again below in xiii. 1. 25 c). The word is not divided in the pada-text. The translation given is [suggested by] that of the Pet. Lexx.; Ludwig renders here 'unbetrieglich' (undeceivable), but leaves the word untranslated in vs. 19. The second person ucyáse is quite unexpected; [most of our] samhitā-mss. read hy ù3cyáse; [and SPP's are much at variance]. [As alternative rendering in a, b, W. notes 'from standing on her dung.'] Ppp. reads, in c, d, svām vidyum duritagrāhy uccase.

5. From the station of the two feet of her, soaking (? viklindu) namely visits [him]; unexpectedly (?) are they crushed who snuff at her with the mouth.

Here, too, much is obscure and doubtful. The first part might be: 'From the station of her [or 'from standing on her,' as W. queries], soaking of the feet visits [him],' as it is hard to see what two feet have to do with a cow. And in d yds can be either subject or object, and jighrati either sing. or pl. I take anamanat from root man; Ludwig renders it 'without becoming ill'; the Pet. Lexx. explain the word as meaning a kind of disease. Ppp. reads, in a, b, asyā 'dhiṣṭhānād vikulam dvin nāma.

6. Whoever punches $(\bar{a}$ -sku) the two ears of her, he falls under the wrath of the gods; if he thinks "I am making a mark," he makes his possessions less.

Ppp. begins yo 'syāṣ karṇāv āskanoty, and reads in c lakṣmīṣ kurvīta. [Pāda b recurs as 12 c. For the construction, cf. 26 d, 47 d: and, per contra, 12 d, 34 d, and

- 51 c.] We are to make the combination kurve'ti. [As to the marking of cattle's ears, cf. vi. 141. 2 and note, and Zimmer, p. 234. In a marginal note, W. compares MS. iv. 2. 9 (p. 315). The MS. passage and this vs. and the root aks are discussed by Delbrück, Gurupūjākaumudī, p. 48-49.—Ppp. puts the vs. between 4 and 5.]
- 7. If, for any one's advantage, any one cuts off the tail-tuft of her, then his colts die, and the wolf slays his calves.
- Or (in a), 'for any advantage or use.' Ppp. makes 7 c, d and 8 c, d change places. It reads also $v\bar{a}l\bar{a}n$ in b.
- 8. If of her, while being with her master, a crow hath vexed $(h\bar{i}d)$ the hair, then his boys die, [and] the $y\dot{a}ksma$ visits him unexpectedly (?).

As to anāmanāt, see note to vs. 5. The first pāda apparently means 'in presence of her master,' and so, 'without his interference for her protection.' [Ppp. combines tatas k- in c.]

9. If the lye, the dung of her a barbarian woman flings together, then is born what is deformed, what will not escape from that sin.

All our mss. appear to read distinctly $palp\bar{u}l$ - in a, yet they are never to be trusted to make the distinction between lp and ly. Apparently the word is used here for 'urine,' and the meaning is 'if such precious stuff is carelessly treated by a slave-woman $(d\bar{a}s\bar{\iota})$.' Ppp. reads ' $pir\bar{u}pa\dot{m}$ in c. We have to resolve $as-i-\bar{a}h$ to fill out the meter of a.

10. When being born, the cow (vacd) is born for (abhi) the gods together with the Brahmans; therefore she is to be given to the priests (brahman); that people call the guarding (gópana) of one's possessions.

The pada-text makes the extraordinary division $g \circ panam$ [for the sake of the play upon $g \circ cow$?], as if the word were not a simple derivative from root g u p! 'For' (abht): more literally 'unto, into the possession of.'

II. They who come to the winning (vani) of her, theirs is the god-made cow [vaçi]; they called it brahman-scathing, if anyone keeps her to himself.

Pāda b seems to mean virtually 'she is by the gods made theirs.' Ppp. reads at the end (as also in vss. 21, 25) nu priyāyate, and nipr- is certainly very questionable, since no nipriya nor even root $pr\bar{i} + ni$ occurs. The minor Pet. Lex. gives the word two totally different explanations, under $nipriy\bar{a}y$ and $priy\bar{a}y$ respectively.

12. Whoever is not willing to give the cow $(g\delta)$ of the gods to the sons of seers that ask for her, he falls under the wrath of the gods and the fury of the Brahmans.

Ppp. reads, for a, b, ya enām yācadbhya ārṣeyebhyo nirucchati. [We had a, b above as 2 c, d, and c as 6 b.]

13. Whatever may be his use for the cow (vaçā-), he should then seek another [cow]; she, ungiven, harms a man, if he is not willing to give her when asked for.

Ppp. has a quite different version of a-c: yasyā 'nya syād vaçābhogo 'nyām icchetu barhiṣah: hinsrā ni dhatsva gopatim. We should expect pūruṣam at end of c, as elsewhere in such a position.

- 14. As a deposited treasure (cevadhi), so of the Brahmans is the cow (vaci); accordingly cetat they come unto her, in whosesoever possession she is born.
- 15. They come thus unto their own property, namely the Brahmans unto the cow; as one might scathe them in any other respect (?), so is the keeping back of her.

The third pāda is unclear, and the bad meter makes the reading suspicious; yet Ppp. has the same, and varies only in combining brāhmaṇā 'bhi in b, and combining and reading 'syā 'dhirohaṇam in d. Most of our mss. (all except D. and R.s.m.) have the false accent brāhmaṇās in b; our text emends. The Anukr. takes no notice of the redundant syllable in c.

16. She may go about until $\lfloor \dot{a} \rfloor$ the space of three years, being of unrecognized $(vi-j\bar{n}\bar{a})$ speech (-gada); should he know the cow, O Nārada, then the Brahmans are to be sought.

This is obscure, but appears to mean that the cow may not betray herself as a $va_{\ell}\bar{a}$ for as much as three years; but, as soon as she is recognized as such, she must be delivered over to the Brahmans. The pada-text has in a, of course, $eva: \bar{a}: tr$.

- 17. Whoever declares her to be not the cow, the deposited deposit of the gods, at him Bhava-and-Çarva, both, striding about, hurl the arrow.
- 18. Whoever knows not the udder of her, and likewise the teats of her, to him she yields milk with both, if he has been able to give the cow.

That is, probably, if her owner has sought no profit from her (cf. Ludwig). The first pāda is quoted under Prāt. ii. 52, as an example of ūdho (not ūdhar) before a sonant. A number of our mss. read veda, without accent.

19. Door-damaging (?) lies she on him, if he is not willing to give her when asked for; he does not succeed in the desires which, without having given her, he would fain accomplish (cikīrṣa-).

The translation implies the obviously necessary emendation of y d m to y d n in $d \mid so$ Ludwig.] As to duradabhnd at the beginning, see the note to vs. 4. That the conjectural rendering is extremely unsatisfactory is plain. Ppp. has instead, for a, duritavina-p d q a y e; and, in c, d, apparently k d a m a s a m r d h y a te y a m a d, thus supporting our emendation. | In Ppp. this verse precedes our 18.|

20. The gods asked for the cow, having made the Brahman their mouth; the wrath (héḍa) of them all incurs (ni-i) the man (mánuṣa) who gives not.

The translation implies emendation in b to brāhmaṇām. Ppp. reads in a yācanti, which does not rectify the meter. [Read devāso?]

21. He incurs the wrath of cattle (paçú) who gives not the cow to the Brahmans—if a mortal keeps to himself the deposited portion of the gods.

The samhitā-mss. accent in b brāhmanébhyo dadat, and the pada correspondingly adadat (instead of adadat). Our text makes the necessary emendation. Ppp. gives for d rtāse nu priyāyate. [See note to 11, above.]

22. If a hundred other Brahmans should ask the cow of its master, yet (átha) the gods said of her: the cow is his who knoweth thus.

All our mss. save two (I. and [?] E.s.m.) read etām (without accent) in c; our text follows the two.

23. Whoever, not having given her to one who knoweth thus, then shall give the cow to others, hard to go upon for him in his station is the earth with its deity.

In b the pada-text has anyébhyah: adadat, and the samhitā-mss. correspondingly -bhyo dadad v-; this is emended in our text to -bhyo 'd- (as if ádadat, as in vs. 21); but a decidedly better emendation would be to -bhyo dádat, as translated. Ppp. reads anyasmāi d-, which favors this understanding of the pāda; it also combines tasmā 'dhin c.

24. The gods asked the cow [of him] in whose possession she was first (ágre) born; that same one may Nārada know; together with the gods he drove her away.

The connection of c, d is obscure, and tempts to conjectural emendations; Ludwig suggests vidvān for vidyāt: 'knowing her to be such, Nārada together with the gods drove her away (as theirs)'; this is quite acceptable. Ppp. reads at the end udājitā. One or two of our mss. (D.R.p.m.) accent nāradáḥ. The Anukr. takes no notice of the lack of a syllable in a. [Read devāso as in 20?]

25. The cow makes a man $(p \acute{u} rus a)$ destitute of descendants, poor in cattle, if, when she is asked for by the Brahmans, then he keeps her to himself.

Ppp. reads in b pāuruṣam, and in d nu priyāyata. The Anular takes no notice of any deficiency in c; we may best resolve bṛ-āh-. [Read brāhmant hiç?]

- 26. For Agni-and-Soma, for Love (káma), for Mitra and for Varuṇa—for these the Brahmans ask her; un der their wrath falls he who gives not.
- 27. So long as the master of he should not himself overhear the verses (n), so long may she go about among his kine $(g\delta)$; she may not abide in his house after he has heard.

The translation implies the evidently necessary emendation of vacet at the end to vaset; R., indeed, has the latter; Land so have 8 of SPP's authorities, against 7 with vacet; Ppp. is corrupt: nā'sya crutā grhe sya. The Anukr. takes no notice of any redundancy in b; but it can hardly expect us to make a pāda-division between no and pacrnuyāt. The 'verses' are doubtless those with which the Brahmans come to claim their rightful property.

28. If any one, having overheard the verses of her, has then made her go about among his kine $(g\delta)$, both the life-time and the growth of him do the gods, made wrathful, cut off (vracc).

Nearly all our mss. (E. has dcf.) [and all of SPP's] leave acticarat in b unaccented; and then, as if by way of compensation, they mostly (except Bs.s.m.D.R.) accent viccanti.

29. The cow, going about variously, the deposited deposit of the gods, manifests her forms, when she desires to go (?) to her station (sthāman).

That is, her rightful and appointed place. The translation implies in b the reading krnute instead of krnusva, although the former is found only in O.p.m.D.T. (-uti). Three of SPP's pada-mss. have krnute. The comm. to Prāt. ii. 63 quotes āvis krnute rūpāni, which is not found in the text unless here. The translation also implies at the end jigānsati. The Prāt. (i. 86) seems to imply the occurrence in the text of such forms, and the sense obviously calls for them here and in the next verse; see the note to Prāt. i. 86. Ppp. reads in d yathā for yadā.

30. She manifests herself when she desires to go to her station; then the cow $\lfloor vacd \rfloor$ makes up her mind for the asking of the priests (brahmán).

That is, prepares herself to be asked for by them; brahmabhyas, dat. by attraction. [Read again jigānsati: see note to vs. 29.] Read in dyācāyāya, though the mss. mostly have -ācy-, as they often blunder over such an unusual consonant-group. Ppp. reads uto for atho in c.

- 31. She plans (sam-klp) [it] with her mind; then she goes unto the gods; thence the priests (brahmán) go on to ask for the cow.
- 32. By offering of svadhá to the Fathers, by sacrifice to the deities, by giving of the cow, the noble $(r\bar{a}jany\dot{a})$ does not incur (gam) the mother's wrath.

Ppp. reads devebhyah at end of b. The description of the Anukr. very unnecessarily forbids us to resolve -bhi-ah in b.

33. The cow is mother of the noble; so came it (n.) into being in the beginning; they call it a non-abandonment (? ánarpaṇa) of her that she is presented to the priests (brahmán).

The Pet. Lexx. render the difficult ánarpaṇa by 'a not giving away'; Ludwig, by 'no restitution.' Ppp. combines tasyā "hur in c.

34. As one might snatch (? \bar{a} -lup) from the spoon sacrificial butter held forth for the fire, so he who gives not the cow $\lfloor vaq\bar{a} \rfloor \lfloor$ to the priests \rfloor falls under the wrath of Agni.

Perhaps, 'as [the fire] might snatch,' etc. — seizing on the butter before it is duly offered. •Ppp. reads for a yad ājyam pratijagrāha, and in d omits ā, thus rectifying the meter. The Anukr. takes no notice of the redundant syllable in our text; we are doubtless to get rid of it by contracting to agnāy'ā. [Were emendation necessary, one might be tempted to suggest agnāvā: but cf. note to vs. 6 b.]

35. With the sacrificial cake as calf, milking well, she draws near to him in the world; she yields (duh) to him all his desires — [namely,] the cow [vaça] to him who has presented her.

Ppp. reads, in b, loke 'syo 'pa; and, for c, sahasmāi sarvān kāmān mahe. The Anukr. takes no notice of the irregular meter in pādas a and c. All the samhitā-mss. accent loké 'smā in b; our text emends to loké.

36. All his desires, in Yama's realm, does the cow [vaça] yield to him who has presented her; likewise they call hell the world of him who keeps her back when asked for.

The pada-text reads nárakam, and the difference of the two texts is noted in Prāt. iii. 21; iv. 90. Ppp. reads tathā for atha in c.

- 37. Being impregnated, the cow [vaçá] goes about angry at her master: thinking me barren, let him be bound in the fetters of death.
- 38. And he who, thinking her barren, cooks the cow $\lfloor vaça \rfloor$ at home (ama)—his sons and sons' sons also does Brihaspati cause to be asked for.

Ppp. reads in b, for amā ca, the equivalent grhesu; further, in c, d, asya svaputrān pāutrāç cātayate brh. [Over "at home" W. interlines "in private": see vs. 53.]

- 39. She sends down great heat, going about a cow $(g\delta)$ among kine; further, to the master who has not given her the cow $(vac\delta)$ milks poison.
- In b, apparently, 'being treated as an ordinary cow.' The 'milks' in d does not necessarily mean that she gives actual milk. Ppp. reads tato in c, for atho ha, thus rectifying the meter; the Anukr. takes no notice of the redundancy of the pāda, caused by the apparently intrusive ha.
- 40. It is a thing dear to the cattle that she is presented to the priests (brahmán); further, that is a thing dear to the cow $\lfloor vaça \rfloor$, that she be an oblation to the gods.

Lit. 'among the gods' (p. devaotrá).

41. What cows the gods shaped out (ut-klp), rising up from the sacrifice, of them Nārada selected for himself the fearful villett.

The root k!p (kalpay-) with ud occurs nowhere else. In c, P.M.W.I.E.p.m.R. read viliptim, which would be the more normal accus of -ti, but the meter is against it. But the accent-tyâm is entirely inadmissible; it must be emended to -tyâm; [cf. JAOS. x. 379, 369]. What sort of a cow (vaçā) is intended by vilipti (which ought to signify smeared over') is altogether obscure. Ppp. reads instead vilapatim.

42. The gods questioned ($m\bar{\imath}m\bar{a}ns$ -) about her: is this a cow $\lfloor \nu \iota$ or not a cow? Of her Nārada said: she is of cows the most truly cow ($va\varsigma \acute{a}tama$).

The more proper reading in b would seem to be dvacditi; but all the same dvacditi mass. read dvacditi, as in our text, although the pada gives the sign of protraction (3) also after avacditii, as it should be. But the Prat. (i. 97) requires -cditiii simply: see the rules i. 97 and 105, and the notes to them. The verse (8 + 8:7 + 10) is very ill described by the Anukr. Ppp. reads in a devā 'mīm-; for b, vaçe 'yām ntavaçe 'ti; and it omits iti at the end. | For the use of the superlative in d, cf. the punning lampoon on the name of Gotama, Indische Sprüche², 4875.

43. How many, pray (nú), Nārada, are the cows which thou knowest, born among men (manusya-)? those I ask of thee who knowest; of which may a non-Brahman not partake (ac)?

Ppp. reads, for c, katimā "sām bhīmatamā. (like our vs. 45 c).

44. The vilipti, O Brihaspati, and the cow [vaça] that has given birth to [such] a cow — of that one a non-Brahman who should hope for prosperity (bhūti) may not partake.

The translation implies at the beginning emendation to vilipti yā (as in vs. 46); the proper reading might also be viliptyàs, nom. pl.; -tyås seems inadmissible; Ppp. reads vilaptyā (for -ās?). Ppp. has further tāsām for tasyās in c. Sūtávaçā is rendered according to the requirement of the accent; the Pet. Lexx. define as 'a cow remaining barren after the birth of one calf'; and the legends told in explanation of the name in TS. vi. 1. 36 and MS. ii. 5. 4 support that understanding. | Cf. Henry's translation, p. 208, and note, p. 256. | Pāda c is redundant in this verse, as are also 46 c and 43 d; the Anukr. heeds none of these cases.

45. Homage be to thee, O Nārada; [be] the cow to him who at once Which one of them is the most fearful, not having given which, one would perish?

Ppp. reads in a te 'stu, and in b vaçām, which is easier (Ludwig translates | as if the text were $vac\hat{a}h$ |). In d, our text might better read $\acute{a}dattv\bar{a}$.

46. She that is vilipti, O Brihaspati, further the cow that has given birth to [such] a cow — of that one a non-Brahman who should hope for prosperity may not partake.

Ppp. reads at the beginning viluptim brhaspataye yā ca sū-, and in c again (as in vs. 44) tāsām.

47. Three verily are the kinds of cow: the vilipti, she that has given birth to [such] a cow, the [simple] cow [vaça]; these one should present to the priests (brahmán), [then] he falls not under the wrath of Prajāpati.

Ppp. once more reads viluptis sū- in b; it is easier to conjecture a meaning for vilupti than for vilipti. Most of our samhitā-mss. accent so 'nāv- in d; our text makes the necessary correction to sd. The irregularities of b and c are unnoticed in the Anukr.; [or rather, it lets them balance each the other].

- 48. This, O Brahmans, is your oblation so, when asked [therefor], should he think, if they should ask of him the cow, which in the house of him who has not given her is fearful.
- 49. The gods talked about the cow in wrath, saying: he hath not given it to us; with these verses (n) [they talked about] Bheda; therefore indeed he perished.

Ppp. reads upa for pari in a, and, for b, sa no rājata heditā; and in c it rectifies the meter by giving bhedasya. The Anukr. does not heed the deficiency in our verse.

50. And Bheda gave her not, when asked by Indra for the cow [vaça]; for that offense the gods cut him off in the contest for superiority.

Some of our mss. (Bp.E.D.K.) read etām (unaccented) in a; nearly all (not Bs.s.m.D.) accent āgasó 'vrççan in d. Ppp. has at the beginning utāi 'tām bh-; its second half-verse is corrupt.

51. They who, wheedling, advise (vad) to the non-giving of the cow [vacd], the villains fall under the fury of Indra through ignorance.

Ppp. combines in a vaçāyā 'dā-, and in c-d jālmā "vrç-.

52. They who, leading away her master, then say: do not give—they, through ignorance, go to meet the hurled missile of Rudra.

Pari yanti is rendered as if prati y-, for which it is perhaps a misreading. Ppp. reads cetasas for acittyā. Part of our mss. (Bp.R.K.) leave $\bar{a}hus$ unaccented, and all have te instead of $t\dot{e}$ in c.

53. If as offered (hu) and if as unoffered one cooks the cow $\lfloor vaça \rfloor$ in private (ama), coming into collision with the gods accompanied by the Brahmans, he goes supine (jihma) out of the world.

All the samhitā-mss. curiously read in c sábrāhmaṇānn (O.-ṇāmn) rtvā; the padatext has sáobrāhmaṇān: rtvā. [For amā, cf. vs. 38.]

[Here ends the fourth anuvāka, with I hymn and 53 verses. The quoted Anukr. says saptabhir ūnā tu "vaçāh," i.e. 'the cows[-hymn] is a [sixty] deficient by seven.']

5. The Brahman's cow.

[Atharvācārya.* — sapta paryāyāḥ. brahmagavīdevatāḥ.]

[Partly metrical: vss. 15-17, 47-53, 55-70 are so recked by W. in the Index, p. 6.] Found also in the main in Pāipp. xvi., but in the central parts with omissions and disorder of which the details are not given; [vss. 58, 60, 64-73 are wanting]. Not quoted at all by Vāit., nor probably by Kāuç., since 'the two Brahman-cow hymns' mentioned in Kāuç. 48. 13 are doubtless v. 18, 19; although the comm. [Dārila: cf. Keçava, p. 35120] declares these [v. 18, 19] to constitute one of the 'two,' and xii. 5 the other. *[The Berlin ms. reads prāguktarṣibrahmaga ˈidevatāh: so also SPP's citation, Critical Notice, p. 21. This seems to mean that K. çyapa is the rṣi; h. 4 clearly has the same "deity" as this.]

Translated: Muir, i2. 288 (vss. 4-15); Ludwig, p. 529 (vss. 47-73); Henry, 209, 257; Griffith, ii. 127.

[Paryaya I. — sat. 1. prājāpatyā 'nustubh; 2. bhurik sāmny anustubh; 3. 4-p. svarād usnih; 4. āsury anustubh; 5. sāmnī pankti. [For 6, see under that verse.]]

1. By toil, by penance [is she] created, acquired by bráhman, supported (critá) on righteousness.

All our samhitā-mss. combine vittā rtē. The appearance of meter in the verse (8+8) is perhaps not accidental; but there is no metrical structure elsewhere in the section.

2. Covered with truth, enclosed with fortune, enveloped with glory.

Why the verse is called sāmnī rather than prājāpatyā, like its predecessor, cannot be told. The pada-text does not divide prāvṛtā, although, in the apparently parallel case, it divides pāriovṛtā.

3. Set about with svadkā, surrounded with faith, guarded by consecration, standing firm in the offering, the world her post (nidhána).

The pada-mss. absurdly write pratiosthitah (instead of -tā). The metrical description of the Anukr. is not less absurd; to make the required 30 syllables, we have to resolve pari-ūdhā.

4. Bráhman her guide, the Brahman her over-lord.

Ppp. combines brāhmaņo adh-. The á-needs to be restored in order to make the 13 syllables required by the definition of the Anukr.

- 5. Of the Kshatriya who takes to himself that Brahman-cow, who scathes the Brahman,
 - 6. There departs the happiness (sūnṛtā), the heroism, the good luck.

[The London Anukr. text reads prathamā bhāu prājāpatyānuṣṭu pakrāmatīti (vs. 6) satyena (etc., vs. 2): may be the pratīka of vs. 6 is misplaced and should be put before [u]bhāu (vs. 6 can be stretched to 16 syllables), or else the definition of 6 is fallen out.] Ppp. reads punyalakṣmī.

[Paryāya II.—pañca. 7. sāmnī tristubh; 8,9. ārcy anustubh (8. bhurij); 10. uṣṇih; [7-10. 1-p.: see under vs. 11;] 11. ārcī nicṛt pañkti.]

- 7. Both force, and brilliancy, and power, and strength, and speech, and sense (indriyá), and fortune, and virtue (dhárma),—
- 8. And holiness (bráhman), and dominion [kṣatrám], and kingdom, and subjects (viças), and brightness (tviṣi), and glory, and honor, and property,—
- 9. And life-time, and form, and name, and fame, and breath, and expiration, and sight, and hearing, —
- 10. And milk, and sap, and food, and food-eating, and righteousness, and truth, and sacrifice (ista), and bestowal $(p\bar{u}rta)$, and progeny, and cattle:—
- 11. All these depart from the Kshatriya who takes to himself the Brahman-cow, who scathes the Brahman.

Lit. 'all these of the K.,' 'that belong to him.' Ppp. omits vs. 10, and abbreviates vs. 9 to āyuç ca çrotram ca, and vs. 11 to tāni sarvāny apa krāmanti kṣatriyasya. All our samhitā-mss. read in vs. 10 ca rtām. The Anukr. says of vss. 7-10, etāç catasrah punah punah pādāntarena padābhyāsād ekapadāh: [that is, they are 1-p. because repeatedly or in each case the groups ending with ca have to be recited with a pāda-interval, i.e. (as Dr. Ryder suggests) because there is in each verse no main cesura].

- [Paryāya III. sodaça. 12. virād visamā gāyatrī; 13. āsury anustubh; 14, 26. sāmny uṣṇih; 15. gāyatrī; 16, 17, 19, 20. prājāpatyā 'nustubh; 18. yājuṣī jagatī; 21, 25. sāmny anustubh; 22. sāmnī brhatī; 23. yājuṣī tristubh; 24. āsurī gāyatrī; 27. ārcy uṣṇih.]
- 12. This same Brahman-cow [is] fearful, having deadly poison, witch-craft incarnate (sāksāt), kūlbaja when covered.
- *Kūlbaja occurs only here and in vs. 53 below; in the latter verse, Ppp. reads instead pūlyājām.
 - 13. In her are all terrible things and all deaths.
 - 14. In her are all cruel things, all men-killers (puruṣavadhá).
- 15. This Brahman-cow, when taken to oneself, binds the Brahman-scather, the god-reviler, in the shackle of death.

Several of the samhitā-mss. (Bs.P.M.W.E.) read -gavy à3diyá-, curiously enough. All our mss. have pádv-, and one or two -vinç- or -vinç-. The verse admits of being read as a gāyatrī, probably not by accident, and might better have been printed as such.

- 16. Verily (ht) a hundred-killing weapon (ment) is she; verily the destruction of the Brahman-scather is she.
- 17. Therefore indeed is the cow of the Brahmans hard to be dared against by one who understands $(vi-j\bar{n}\bar{a})$.
- 18. [She is] a thunderbolt when running, Vāiçvānara when driven up (údvīta).
- 19. A missile when extracting (ut-khid) her hoofs, the great god when looking away.
- 20. Keen-edged (ksurápavi) when looking; when bellowing, she thunders at one.

Bp. reads våsya. Vss. 19 and 20 were perhaps intended as metrical (8 + 8). [As to ment, vs. 16, cf. Geldner, Festgruss an Böhtlingk, p. 32.]

21. Death when uttering hing; the formidable god when slinging about her tail.

All the samhitā-mss. read -tyū3gró [K. $\dot{u}g$ -]. This verse also has 16 syllables, divisible into 8+8, but evidently only by accident.

22. Total scathing when twisting about her ears; king-yákṣma when urinating.

The Anukr does not heed that the vere has one syllable too many for a regular sāmnī brhatī.

- 23. A weapon (meni) when being milked; headache when milked.
- 24. Debility when approaching (upa-sthā); mutual strife when felt of. Pārāmṛṣṭā might also come from root mṛj and mean 'rubbed off.'
- 25. A shaft when her mouth is being fastened up; mishap (iti) when being slain.

The pada-text has apionahyámāne, and two or three of our sainhitā-mss. (P.M. O.p.m.K.R.) retain the e before ftir.

- 26. Deadly poisonous when falling down; darkness when fallen down.
- 27. Going after him, the Brahman-cow exhausts the breaths of the Brahman-scather.
- [Paryāya IV. ekādaça. 28. āsurī gāyatrī; 29,37. āsury anustubh; 30. sāmny anustubh; 31. yājusī tristubh; 32. sāmnī gāyatrī; 33,34. sāmnī brhatī; 35. bhurik sāmny anustubh; 36. sāmny uṣṇih; 38. pratisthā gāyatrī.]
- 28. [She is] hostility when being cut up, the eating of one's children when being shared out.

Two of the pada-texts (D.Kp.) read $p\bar{a}\dot{u}tra\circ\bar{d}dyam$. It is so difficult in most mss. to distinguish dy and gh, that the reading $p\bar{a}\dot{u}tr\bar{a}gham$ (cf. $p\bar{a}\dot{u}tram$ agham, xii. 3. 14), which Pet. Lex. conjectures as an emendation, might possibly be intended here.

29. A gods' missile when being taken, failure when taken.

The participles, especially the present passive ones, in these verses, are very much bungled over by the mss. For hriyamāṇā here are read hriy-, hriy-, hiy-; and Bp. has rtā for hrtā. It is necessary to make the awkward renderings with 'being,' to distinguish present participle from past. The definition of the Anukr. implies the resolution vi-rā.

- 30. Evil when being set on, harshness when being set down.
- 31. Poison when heating (?pra-yas), takmán when heated.

All the mss. read práyastā, but Bp. has praoyánchantī, Bs. -yachantī, emended to -yasy-, P.M.W. -yásyanchantī (M. emended to -yasy- [?]).

- 32. Evil (aghá) when being cooked, bad dreaming when cooked.
- The description of the Anukr. implies the resolution -pni-am.
- 33. Uprooting when being turned about (? pari-ā-kṛ), destruction when turned about.

The participles are rendered according to the Pet. Lexx. The Anukr. expects us to resolve pari-ā- once, but not both times. Bp. reads -ākrīyá-.

34. Discord by smell; pain $(c\hat{u}c)$ when being taken up, a poison-snake when taken up.

The pada-text leaves both participles undivided, as prescribed by Prāt. iv. 62. 'Taken up,' doubtless in preparation for being served up as food. Bp. reads udhrīyd-.

35. Non-prosperity when being served up, disaster when served up.

The mss. again fluctuate between -hriyá-, -hrīyá-, -hiyá-, and, at the end, between -hritā, -hatā (P.M.p.m.W.), and -hūtā (D.). The Anukr. notices this time that the verse is bhurij.

- 36. Çarva angered when being dressed (piç), Çimidā when dressed.
- 37. Ruin when being partaken of, perdition when partaken of.

38. When partaken of, the Brahman-cow cuts off the Brahman-scather from the world, from both this one and the one yonder.

Bp. appears to read lokan, and M.R.T. correspondingly -an ch-; O. [D.Kp.] have -at ch-; the rest -a ch-, which means -ac ch-, since ch and cch are equivalent and exchangeable. The metrical definition of the Anukr. is ambiguous.

- [Paryāya V.— aṣṭa. 39. sāmnī pañkti; 40. yājuṣy anuṣṭubh; 41, 46. bhurik sāmny anuṣṭubh; 42. āsurī bṛhatī; 43. sāmnī bṛhatī; 44. pipīlikamadhyā 'nuṣṭubh; 45. ārcī bṛhatī.]
- 39. The slaying of her is witchcraft, her cutting up $(\bar{a}casana)$ is a weapon (meni), the contents of her bowels a secret charm.

All of these, of course, understood as directed against the offender. Ppp. combines tasyā "han-.

40. [She is] homelessnes, when hidden (?pari-hnu).

The Pet. Lexx. conjecture pari-hnu (not found elsewhere) to mean 'disavow, disown.'

- 41. The Brahman-cow, having become the flesh-eating Agni, entering into the Brahman-scather, eats him.
 - 42. All his limbs, joints, roots, she cuts off (vracc).
- 43. She severs (chid) his paternal connection, makes perish his maternal connection.
- 44. All the marriages, acquaintances of the Brahman-scather does the Brahman-cow scorch (?api-kṣā), when not given back by a Kshatriya.

Some of our mss. (O.D.T.R.) accent $-diy \Delta m \bar{a} n \bar{a}$, although part of them (O.T.R.) have accented $-triyen \bar{a}$ 'pun-. The description of the passage (7+6:8+10=31) by the Anukr. is very strange, and valueless.

45. Without abode, without home, without progeny, she makes him; he becomes without succession (?); he is destroyed:—

The translation of aparāoparaná (so the pada-text) is according to the conjecture of the Pet. Lexx. The metrical definition of the Anukr. implies reading karoti ap.

- 46. Whatever Kshatriya takes to himself the cow of a Brahman who knoweth thus.
- [Paryāya VI. pañcadaça. 47, 49, 51-53, 57-59, 61 (?). prājāpatyā 'nuṣṭubh; 48. ārṣy anuṣṭubh; 50. sāmnī bṛhatī; 54, 55. prājāpatyo 'ṣṇih; 56. āsurī gāyatrī; 60. gāyatrī.]
 - 47. Quickly, indeed, at his killing the vultures make a din (āilabá).

Ppp. reads at the end kurvatāi 'lavam'. The text of the Anukr. seems defective here. All that is said about the nine verses of 16 syllables is as follows: ādyā skandhogrīvīs tvayā pramūrnam [vs. 61] prājāpatyānuṣṭubhaḥ. All the verses not of this measure are regularly described. Ludwig translates this whole section [and the next], p. 529.

48. Quickly, indeed, about his place of burning dance the long-haired women, beating on the breast with the hand, making an evil din.

The mss. write no avasāna-mark between the two halves of the verse. Ppp. again reads āilavam. Prāt. iii. 92 notes the non-lingualization of nrt after pari. [Bloomfield discusses the vs., AJP. xi. 339 or JAOS. xv., p. xlv.]

49. Quickly, indeed, in his abodes do the wolves make a din.

Ppp. reads, after vāstusu, gangānam kurvate 'pa vrsāt.

50. Quickly, indeed, they ask about him: what that was, is this now that?

We should expect rather kim tid $\bar{a}si_3t$ [instead of yi tid etc.], since without a question there is no good reason for the protracted i. Ludwig translates as if that were the reading. O.D.R. accent $\bar{a}si_3d$, as is the rule in the Brāhmaṇas. Ppp. reads, after prchanti, etad $\bar{a}sid$ atam nu $d\bar{a}$.

- 51. Cut thou, cut on, cut forth, scorch, burn $(k s \bar{a})$.
- 52. O daughter of Angiras, exhaust thou the Brahman-scather, that takes to himself [the cow].

Ppp. reads ādadhānam.

53. For thou art called belonging to all the gods, witchcraft, kūlbaja when covered.

Cf. vs. 12 above. Ppp. reads (as there noted) pūlyājām.

- 54. Burning (us), consuming, thunderbolt of the bráhman.
- 55. Having become a keen-edged death, run thou out.

Ppp. reads vibhāvasuḥ instead of vi dhāva tvam; the latter reading probably carries on the figure implied in kṣurapavi, which applies especially to the armed wheels of a battle-chariot.

56. Thou takest to thyself the honor of the scathers, their sacrifice and bestowal, their expectations.

Istám pūrtám ca: i.e., as later, the fruits of these good works. The Anukr. would have done much better to accept the resolution ca $\bar{a}c$, and reckon the verse as 16 syllables.

- 57. Taking to thyself what is scathed for him who is scathed, thou presentest [it to him] in yonder world.
- 58. O inviolable one, become thou the guide of the Brahman out of imprecation.

The translation implies emendation of $abht_{\xi}asty\bar{a}$ to $-ty\bar{a}h$. The verse is wanting in Ppp.

- 59. Become thou a weapon (meni), a shaft; become thou deadly poisonous from evil (aghá).
- 60. O inviolable one, smite forth the head of the Brahman-scather that has committed offense, of the god-reviler, the ungenerous.

This verse also is wanting in Ppp. | Pādas b, c recur below, vs. 65. |

61. Let Agni burn the malevolent one, slaughtered, crushed (mrd) by thee.

Ppp. reads tayā pravrķņo rucitam agnir dahatu duṣķṛtam.

- 62. Cut (vrace) thou, cut off, cut up; burn thou, burn off, burn up.
- 63. The Brahman-scather, O divine inviolable one, do thou burn up all the way from the root.

Or 'to the root.' Bs.P.M. read mûlān. In Ppp., Lvss. 62-63 are somewhat altered and I the remaining vss. are wanting.

- 64. That he may go from Yama's seat to evil worlds, to the distances.
- 65. So do thou, O divine inviolable one, of the Brahman-scather that has committed offense, of the god-reviler, the ungenerous,—
 - 66. With a thunderbolt hundred-jointed, sharp, razor-pronged, —
 - 67. Smite forth the shoulder-bones, forth the head.
 - 68. His hairs (loman) do thou cut up (sam-chid); his skin strip off;—
 - 69. His flesh cut in pieces; his sinews wrench off;—
 - 70. His bones distress $(p\bar{i}d)$; his marrow smite out;—
 - 71. All his limbs, [his] joints unloosen.
- 72. Let the flesh-eating Agni thrust him from the earth, burn (us) up; let Vāyu [do so] from the atmosphere, the great expanse (varimán);—
 - 73. Let the sun thrust him forth from the sky, burn him down.

The Anukr. accepts the resolution ni osatu.

[The quotations from the Old Anukr. for the seven paryāyas may here be given together: I. vacanāni ca ṣaṭ; II. paāca; III. ṣoḍaça; IV. ekādaça; V. aṣṭa ca; VI. brahmagavyām paācadaça; VII. tasmād dvādaçakah paraḥ. The sum is 73.— As is readily seen, these quotations together make an anuṣṭubh çloka; and they are printed in metrical form by SPP., vol. i., p. 21 (Critical Notice). For vacanāni, see above, p. 472.]

[Here ends the fifth anuvāka, with I hymn (or 7 paryāyas) and 73 vacanas or vacana-avasānarcas.]

By some mss. the book is summed up as of 4 artha-sūktas [their vss. number 231] and 7 paryāya-sūktas [73 "verses"], or as of "11 sūktas of both kinds," with a total of 304 verses.]

[The twenty-seventh prapāthaka ends here.]

Book XIII.

[Hymns to the Ruddy Sun or Rohita.]

LWe come now to the third grand division of the text, books xiii.-xviii. In the first division (books i.-vii.) we had the short hymns of miscellaneous subjects, and in the second (books viii.xii.) we had the long hymns of miscellaneous subjects. In the third, the principle governing the arrangement and division of the material is in the main clearly that of unity of subject (compare the General Introduction and the Table of Contents): thus book xiii. consists of hymns to the Ruddy Sun or Rohita; xiv. consists of wedding verses; xv. is the book about the Vrātya; and xviii. consists of hymns for the dead. Accordingly, it is perhaps worthy of note that the Old Anukramanī does not describe the length of any hymn in book xiii. by reference to a certain length assumed as a norm. The whole book has been translated by Victor Henry, Les hymnes Rohitas. Livre XIII de l'Atharvavéda traduit et commenté, Paris, 1891. Henry's work was made the subject of a detailed review by Bloomfield in the American Journal of Philology (xii. 429-443) for 1891. Then, at Paris in 1892, appeared Le mythe de Rohita, traduction raisonnée du 13e livre de l'Atharva-véda, by Paul Regnaud. As appears below, Ludwig's translation covers the first three of the four hymns of the book; Deussen's, the first and third; and Bloomfield's, the first. For books xii.-xvi. inclusive, the bhāsya is wanting.]

LParyāya-hymns: for details respecting them, see pages 471-2. The fourth or last hymn of this book is a paryāya-sūkta with 6 paryāyas. For the discrepancy of numeration as between the two editions, see page 611.]

[The anuvāka-division of the book is into four anuvākas of one hymn each, and is thus (like the anuvāka-division of book xii.) coincident with the hymn-division. A conspectus for book xiii. follows:

Anuvākas	1	2	3	4
Hymns	1	2	3	4
Decad-division	6 tens	4 tens + 6	s tens + 6	6 P

Here ¶ means "paragraph of a paryāya" (such as is numbered as a "verse" in the Berlin edition) and P means "paryāya." Of the "decads," anuvākas 1, 2, and 3 contain respectively 6, 5, and 3 (in all, 14 "decads"); while anuvāka 4 has 6 paryāyas. The sum is 14 "decad"-sūktas and 6 paryāya-sūktas or 20 sūktas (cf. p. 737).

1. To Rohita (the sun, as ruddy one).

Found also in Pāipp. xviii. Lwith vs. 30 after 31; vss. 56-57, 59-60 are lacking; vs. 58 is lacking in Pāipp. xviii., but is found in Pāipp. xx. L. A number of the verses are used in various parts of Kāuç., and several (four) in Vāit. *LSO the Berlin ms. (against jagatī of the London ms.): and atijagatī more nearly fits the vs. L. † Here the Anukr. text looks as if in disorder: it seems as if yam vāta (vs. 51) iti ṣaḍ anuṣṭubhaḥ ought to refer to the 6 vss. 51, 53-54, 56-58.

Translated: Muir, v. 395 (parts); Ludwig, p. 536; Scherman, p. 73 (parts); Henry, I, 21; Deussen, Geschichte, i. I. 218 (cf. his introduction, p. 212 ff.); Griffith, ii. 133; Bloomfield, 207, 661. — Furthermore, Bloomfield, in his review (AJP. xii. 429-443) of Henry, discusses a considerable number of passages from this hymn. These discussions will be briefly cited by reference to "AJP. xii." He considers that the hymn is secondarily "an allegorical exaltation of a king and his queen."

1. Rise up, O powerful one (?vājín) that [art] within the waters, enter into this kingdom [that is] full of pleasantness; the ruddy one (rôhita) that generated this all—let him bear thee, well-borne, unto kingdom.

Rôhita is evidently a name or form of the sun; and the $v\bar{a}jin$ (Henry, 'conqueror of booty') addressed is also the sun. The verse with faulty accents is found also in TB. (ii. 5.21), which reads with after yô in a, \bar{a} viça in b, and, for \bar{d} , sô no rāṣṭréṣu súdhitām dadhātu, which seems better, as removing the difficulty of the sun establishing the sun. Ppp. reads viçvabhrtam for viçvam idam in \bar{c} ; and it has pipartu for bibhartu at the end; we had the converse at xi. 5.4. The resolution ud- \bar{a} -ihi is required to fill out the meter of a. All the four hymns of the book (under the name rohitās) are prescribed in Kāuç. 99.4 to be used in case of a darkening (eclipse) of the sun. The first half-verse is, according to Kāuç. 49.18, to be used in the witchcraft ceremony of the 'water-thunderbolts' (see x. 5) 'when the boat sinks.' Cf. AJP. xii. 431.

2. Up hath arisen the power (?vdja) that is within the waters; mount $(\bar{a}\text{-}ruh)$ thou the clans (viq) that are sprung from thee (tvddyoni); assuming $(dh\bar{a})$ the soma, the waters, the herbs, the kine, make thou the four-footed, the two-footed ones to enter here.

In b begins the play of words upon the root ruh 'ascend, mount, grow,' and its compounds and derivatives; this play is suggested by the at least apparent relationship between ruh and rohita, [and is found with considerable elaboration throughout] these hymns. Here it doubtless signifies 'have supremacy over.' Ppp. combines in b viçā "roha, in c dadhānā 'po 'ṣadh-, and in d dvipadā "veç-; and this last we have to accept in order to make a triṣṭubh pāda. In a the resolution of ā agan, and in b that of tuád-, make the meter right. The Anukr. takes no notice of any irregularity in the verse.

3. Do ye [who are] formidable, O Maruts, sons of the spotted mother, with Indra as ally, slaughter our foes; the ruddy one shall listen to you, ye liberal ones (sudánu), ye thrice seven Maruts that enjoy sweets together.

The first half-verse occurred above as v. 21. 11 a, b. We can hardly help emending triṣaptāso to triṣaptāso. Ppp. reads instead triṣaptā. The verse is found also in TB. (ii. 5. 23), which reads in a ugrā (which is better), in b sayújā prá nītha (corrupt), in c aṣṛṇod abhidyavaḥ, and in d (with the desired accent) trisaptāso. The verse lacks a syllable (in b) of being a proper jagatī.

4. The ruddy one ascended (ruh), mounted the ascents (rih); [he,] the embryo of the wives, [mounted] the lap of births; him, taken hold of by them (f.), the six wide [spaces] discovered; seeing in advance the track, he hath brought $(\bar{a}-hr)$ hither the kingdom.

The verse is found also in TB. (ii. 5. 21), which reads in a (much better) rôham-roham (for rûho ruroha), at the beginning of b prajābhir vṛddhim, and in c sāmrabdho avidat. Such variations are of interest especially as showing how little connected sense was recognized in these verses by those who established the texts. This verse has no right to the name of jagatī, since all its pādas have a trochaic close; the two redundant syllables in a and c are removed by the TB. readings. $[For \, ahah, see \, Prāt. ii. 46.]$ [With regard to the transition-sound between -dan and sād, see Prāt. ii. 9, note.]

5. The ruddy one hath brought hither thy kingdom; the scorners have scattered; fearlessness hath become thine; unto thee, being such, let heaven-and-earth, by the revátīs, yield (duh) here thy desire by the çákvarīs.

Our mss. are divided in d between duhāthām and -tām: the majority give -thām (so Bs.s.m.Bp.O.D.R.T.K.); while P.M.W.E.p.m. have -tām; [and so has Ppp.]. Kp. reads āsthat in b, the other pada-mss. -an; if -at is accepted, it will mean 'he has scattered the scorners'; the form may best be viewed, probably, as coming from sthā, like ādat from dā and ādhat from dhā [see Skt. Gram. § 847]; a root asth is extremely improbable; [it is discussed at AJP. xii. 439 and IF. v. 388, where references to previous discussions are given; to these add KZ. xxxii. 435; cf. also note to vii. 76. 3 above]. The verse occurs also in TB. (ii. 5. 21), which has very different readings: āhārṣīd rāṣṭrām ihā rôḥito mṛdho vy àsthad ābhayam no astu: asmābhyam dyāvāpṛthivī cākvarībhī rāṣṭrām duhāthām ihā revātībhiḥ. The verse is no jagatī; by the frequent and permissible contraction to -pṛthvī in c it becomes a fairly good triṣṭubh (badly constructed in a). It is reckoned as belonging to the abhaya gaṇa: see note to Kāuç. 16. 8. [Ppp., like TB., puts mṛdho before vy ā- in b.] [For vss. 4-5, see AJP. xii. 432.]

6. The ruddy one generated heaven-and-earth; there the most exalted one stretched the line (tántu); there was supported (cri) the one-footed goat (?ajá); by strength he made firm (drh) heaven-and-earth.

Ppp. reads in c ekapād ye. The verse occurs in TB. (ii. 5. 23), with only slight variants: tásmin for tátra in b and c, and ékapāt in c. [Cf. AJP. xii. 443.]

7. The ruddy one made firm heaven-and-earth; by him was established the sky (sv dr), by him the firmament (ndka); by him the atmosphere, the spaces (rdjas) were measured out; by him the gods discovered immortality $(am\tilde{r}ta)$.

The verse is found in TB. (ib.), the second half-verse reading quite differently: só antárikṣe rájaso vimānas téna devāḥ súvar ánv avindan. Ppp. combines and reads in d devā 'mṛtatvam.

8. The ruddy one examined $(vi-mr_i)$ the all-formed, collecting to himself the fore-ascents and the ascents; having ascended the sky with great greatness, let him anoint $(sam-a\tilde{n}i)$ thy kingdom with milk, with ghee.

The TB. version (ii. 5. 22) has, for a, vi mamarça róhito viçvárūpaḥ; in b, samā-cakrāṇāḥ; in c, gatvāya (for rūḍhvā [improving the meter]); for d. vi no rāṣṭrām unattu pāyasā svēna. Ppp. combines in a -to 'mṛçat, and reads in b samākṛṇvānaṣ.

9. What ascents, fore-ascents thou hast, what on-ascents $(\bar{a}rilh)$ thou hast, with which thou fillest the sky, the atmosphere, with the bráhman, with the milk of them increasing, do thou watch over the people (viq) in the kingdom of the ruddy one.

Though the first three pādas count 12 syllables each, only a is jagatī in structure. With a, b compare xviii. 2. 9 a, b. [For vss. 8-9, see AJP. xii. 433.]

- 10. What clans (vl_i) of thine came into being out of ardor (tdipas), those have come hither after the young (vatsd), the $g\bar{a}yatri$; let them enter $(\bar{a}-vi_i)$ into thee with propitious mind; let the ruddy young with its mother go against [them].
- Or (in a) 'what clans came into being out of thy heat.' In b, the pada-text has ihá: ā: aguḥ. In d, sámmātā means more probably 'having a common mother,' but the sense is too obscure to allow of much confidence in any translation. The TB. version (ii. 5. 2²) reads in a tápasā (better); for b, gāyatrám vatsám ánu tās ta ā 'guḥ; in c, māhasā svēna; in d, putró (for vatsó). The Anukr. does not heed that the last pāda is jagatī. Ppp. combines in d vatso 'bhy.
- 11. The ruddy one hath stood aloft upon the firmament (ndka), generating all forms, [he,] young, poet; Agni shineth forth with keen light; in the third space (rájas) he hath done dear things.

Ppp. reads $bh\bar{a}si$ in c. The Anukr. again passes without notice the $jagat\bar{\imath}$ pāda b. [W. suggests by interlineation as alternative, 'hath made for himself dear forms.']

12. The thousand-horned bull Jātavedas, offered to with ghee, somabacked, having good heroes — let him not abandon me; let me not, a suppliant, abandon thee *; assign thou to me both prosperity in kine and prosperity in heroes.

The verse is found also in TB. (iii. 7. 27), K. (xxxv. 18), and Ap. Lix. 3. 1]. TB. (with which Ap. [substantially] agrees throughout) has, for b, stomaprsthe ghrtdvant supratikah; and, for c, d, må no hāsīn metthito nét tvā jahāma goposam no vīraposam ca yaccha. Ppp. reads in b ghrtāhutis so-. The irregular verse (12 + 11: 12 + 12, but with tristubh cadences throughout) is very ill described by the Anukr. as simply a jagatī. *[All the translators, with W., seem to overlook the accent of jāhāni: nét can hardly mean aught else than 'lest.']

13. The ruddy one is generator and mouth of the sacrifice; to the ruddy one I make oblation with speech, with hearing, with mind; to the ruddy one go the gods with favoring mind; let him cause me to ascend with ascensions $(r\delta ha)$ of meeting $(s\bar{a}mitya)$.

The pada-texts read blunderingly in \mathbf{d} sāmoityāt (instead of -yāth). Henry emends to samityāt 'in order to union with him'; but sāmiti has the well-established sense of 'meeting, gathering, assembly'; hence Ludwig (for rohāth s-) 'with abundant success in the samiti.' [See AJP. xii. 434.] Ppp. reads at the end rohayāti. The verse is kindred with ii. 35. 5 in general expression. Its metrical structure (12 + 15:13 + 11 = 51) is wholly irregular; the definition of the Anukr. [52 syllables] [nearly] fits it mechanically.

14. The ruddy one disposed the sacrifice for Viçvakarman; therefrom have these brilliancies come unto me; may I speak thy navel (nābhi) upon the range (majmān) of existence.

The last pāda is repeated below as vs. 37 d. Ppp. reads in a vi dadhāt. The metrical definition implies the resolution vi ad-, and two resolutions in b (-si úpa and $m\bar{a}$ im-, doubtless), to make a $pa\bar{n}kti$ (14 + 12:14 = 40).

15. Unto thee ascended bṛhati and paīkti, unto [thee], O Jātavedas, kakúbh with honor; unto thee ascended the uṣṇthā syllable, the váṣaṭ-utterance; unto thee ascended the ruddy one along with seed.

Or $usnih\bar{a}oaksarah$ (so p.) is, in spite of its accent, an adjective to $vasaik\bar{a}rah$ (so Henry). Read in a brhaty uid; though all our mss. except [O.] K. happen to agree here in lengthening the ui. Saha at the end is, of course, a misprint for saha. Ppp. reads at for uia in a, and vicvavedah in b. [The Anukr. appears to count the syllables as 11+10:13+13=47.] The metrical irregularities in this book exceed the ordinary measure. [For vss. 15, 17-20, cf. AJP. xii. 434.]

16. This one clothes himself in the embryo (womb?) of the earth; this one clothes himself in the sky, the atmosphere; this one, on the summit of the reddish one, has penetrated the heaven (svàr), the worlds.

Ppp. reads viṣṭapas sv- in c-d, and sam ānaçe in d. The verse (9+9:8+8=34) seems to be overlooked in the Anukr., or its definition has dropped out of the mss. Verses 16-20 are prescribed in Kāuç. 54. 10 to accompany, in the godāna-ceremony, the dressing of the child in a new garment. They are much better suited to that use than to their surroundings here.

17. O lord of speech, [be] earth pleasant to us; [be] the lair (yóni) pleasant, [be] our couch very propitious; just here be breath in our companionship; thee here, O most exalted one, let Agni surround with life-time, with honor.

Henry understands sakhyd as dat. of sakhi, against the accent. The Anukr. apparently views the verse as [10+10:10+12+6=48]. The verse (with the two following?) is included among the $v\bar{a}caspatili\bar{n}g\bar{a}s$, used in Kāuç. 41.15 in a ceremony for good luck. Ppp. reads at the end -sthi pary aham varcasā dadhāmi.

18. O lord of speech, the five seasons that are ours, that came forth into being as Viçvakarman's—just here be breath in our companionship; thee here, O most exalted one, let the ruddy one surround with life-time, with honor.

The mss. read in a $y\ell$ $n\bar{a}u$ (but 1.R. $y\delta$ $n\bar{a}u$ [$y\delta$ $n\bar{a}u$]); [SPP's text and most of his authorities have $y\ell$ $n\bar{a}u$: but two have $y\delta$ $n\bar{a}u$; the edition makes the apparently necessary correction to $y\ell$ no. [The Anukr. seems to scan as 11 + 12 : 10 + 14 + 6 = 53.] Ppp. omits $y\ell$ $n\bar{a}u$ (or no) in a, and $s\ell$ and $s\ell$ $a\ell$ near the end.

19. O lord of speech, [generate] well-willing and mind; generate kine in our stall (gostha), progeny in our wombs (yóni); just here be breath in our companionship; thee here, O most exalted one, I surround with life-time, with honor.

Ppp. reads in b prajām, and in d avaham (for aham), omitting, as before, āyuṣā, and having again dadhātu at the end, repeated unintelligently from the preceding.

20. May Savitar, god Agni, surround thee [with honor]; with honor may Mitra-and-Varuṇa deck $(abhi[+dh\bar{a}])$ thee; striding down all niggards come thou; thou hast made this kingdom full of pleasantness.

The shift from pari in a to abht in b makes a mixed and difficult construction. Ppp. combines devo gnir in a and sarvā rātīr in c, and reads (better) krnuhi in d.

21. Thou whom the spotted one (f.), the side-horse, draws (vah) in the chariot, O ruddy one, thou goest with brightness (çúbh), making flow the waters.

This verse corresponds to RV. viii. 7. 28, which, however, has considerable variants: for a, yád eṣām pṛṣatī (p. -tīḥ) ráthe; in b, róhitah; in c, yắnti çubhrā (p. -rấḥ). As is usual in such cases, some of our mss. read pṛṣṭis in b, and ṛṇán in c. And most read rohitaḥ [unaccented] at end of b (only Bs.R.K. -ta), as if under influence of the RV. version. [SPP. adopts in his text rohita, but reports six of his mss. as giving rohitaḥ, without accent.] Ppp. adds at the end tene 'mam brahmanaspate ruham rohayo'ttamam. The verse is quoted in a ceremony for prosperity by Kāuç. (24. 42), which volunteers the added explanation dyāuḥ pṛṣaty ādityo rohitaḥ; and it is also included among the puṣṭika mantras: see note to Kāuç. 19. 1. Kāuç. 24. 43 states further that a spotted cow is given (as sacrificial fee); and the comm. appears to direct that vss. 21-26 accompany the gift.

22. She that is ruddy $(r\acute{o}hin\bar{i})$ is submissive to the ruddy one, being liberal $(s\bar{u}r\acute{t})$, of beautiful color, vast $(brhat\acute{t})$, very splendid; by her may we conquer booty $(?v\acute{a}j\bar{a}n)$ of all forms; by her may we overcome all fighters.

Rôhinī, doubtless the dawn. Our pada-mss. read in c -rūpām, by a blundering misapprehension of the assimilated nasal in the combination -pān ja- Prāt. ii. 11]. M.p.m. [and SPP's C.] read at end syāma; the passage is quoted as an instance of syin the comm. to Prāt. ii. 107. Ppp. reads sūryas suv- in b, and combines prtanā bhi in d. In the Anukr. (by an exceptional usage hardly met with elsewhere) this verse and the next, and a little later vs. 27, are specified as prākrta [mss. prakrta]: i.e., as following the established norm of the hymn, which is tristubh.

23. Here the seat (sádas), she that is ruddy, of the ruddy one; yonder the road by which the spotted one (f.) goes; her the Gandharvas, the Kaçyapas, lead up; her the poets defend unremittingly.

All the mss. except O.D. (and these differ perhaps only by accident) read in c gandharvāh, as if vocative.

24. The sun's yellow (hári) bright (ketumánt) horses, immortal, constantly draw the easy-running chariot; the ghee-drinking ruddy one, shining (bhrāj), the god, entered the spotted sky.

Bs.E. combine in b amrtas su-. The Anukr. does not heed the jagati pada b.

25. The ruddy one, the sharp-horned bull, who encompassed Agni, the sun, who props as under (vi-stabh) the earth and the heaven — out of him do the gods create creations.

Ppp. begins with ayam roh. The curious reading of O. in c, stab-h-nāti (the b and h two different letters), was noted above, under xii. 4. 4. ["Encompassed": Bloomfield, "became superior to," AJP. xii. 443.] Kāuç. 18. 25 gives the verse, in company with several others, as to be used in the so-called citrākarman (ceremony concerning the asterism citrā) to accompany the partaking of a milk rice-dish; and the Paddhati includes both it and the following verse in the salila gana.

26. The ruddy one mounted the sky, out of the great sea (arṇavá); the ruddy one ascended all ascents.

That the verse is reckoned as belonging to the salila gana was noted under the preceding verse.

27. Measure thou out (vi-mā) the milk-giving, ghee-dripping (ghṛtán̄c) [cow]; this is the unresisting milch-cow of the gods. Let Indra drink the soma; let there be comfort (kṣéma); let Agni commence praising; do thou thrust away the scorners.

Ppp. reads eṣām at end of b. With the verse is to be compared Ap. xi. 4. 14: vi mime tvā payasvatīm devānām dhenum sudughām anapasphurantīm: indrah somam pibatu kṣemo astu naḥ, which accompanies the measuring out of a vedi in shape of a cow. In Vāit. 15. 7; 28. 23, it is used in a like manner; and so also in Kāuç. 137. 10, in preparing for the ājyatantra; [cf. also note to 137. 4].

28. Agni, kindled, being kindled, increased with ghee, offered to with ghee — let the overpowering, all-overpowering Agni slay them who are my rivals.

This verse (though there are others having the same pratīka) is doubtless the one quoted (next after vs. 1) in Kāuç. 49. 19, to accompany the laying of bonds upon the "boat" there treated of; [rather, the laying of sticks with strings on them upon the fire: Caland, p. 173]. The description of the Anukr. strangely forbids us to make the elision -dho 'gnth' in a.

29. Let him slay them, burn [them] away, — the enemy (ári) who fights us; by the flesh-eating fire do we burn away our rivals.

Ppp. reads in a enām; we require enam, as antecedent to b, which, as the verse now stands, seems to describe the subject of the verbs in a. Ppp. has also agnis for aris in b.

30. Do thou, O Indra, having arms, smite them down downward with the thunderbolt; then my rivals have I taken to myself with Agni's brightnesses (téjas).

Ppp. puts the verse after our 31, and reads at the end \bar{a} dadhe. Or \bar{a} disi may be referred to $d\bar{a}$ 'cut' + \bar{a} : so W. in a ms. note to his Index, and so BR. But BR's forms from vi. 104 are referred by W. to $d\bar{a}$ 'tie.'

31. O Agni, make our rivals fall below us; stagger the truculent (utpipāna) fellow, O Brihaspati; O Indra-and-Agni, O Mitra-and-Varuņa, let them fall below [us], impotent in their fury.

Lit. 'not making their fury effective against' us. The Anukr. apparently understands the structure of the verse as 12 + 14:8+6+8=48; but there is no good reason for dividing the last redundant pāda into two. Ppp. reads utapidānam (for utpipānam [discussed AJP. xii. 441]) in b.

32. Do thou, O heavenly sun, arising, smite down my rivals; smite them down with the stone; let them go to lowest darkness.

Ppp. appears to read avāi 'nām raçmibhir jahi rātrīṇām tamasā vudhīs tam hantv adhamam tamaḥ. [We had our d at x. 3. 9 d.]

33. The young $(vats\acute{a})$ of the $vir\acute{a}j$, the bull of prayers $(mat\acute{a})$, mounted, bright-backed, the atmosphere; with ghee they sing (arc) the song $(ark\acute{a})$ unto the young; him, being $br\acute{a}hman$, they increase with $br\acute{a}hman$.

Ppp. combines in b-pṛṣṭho ant. TB. (ii. 8. 89) has a corresponding verse, but with numerous variants: pitā virājām ṛṣabho rayīṇām antarikṣam viçvārupa ā viveça: tām arkātr abhy àrcanti vatsām brāhma sāntam brāhmaṇā vardhāyantaḥ. [Bloomfield, AJP. xii. 441, would emend arkām to aktām; but the TB. variant is very much against it.] Our verse is quoted in Kāuç. 12. 4, at the end of a charm for securing one's wishes.

34. Both ascend thou to heaven and ascend to earth; both ascend to kingdom and ascend to property; both ascend to progeny and ascend to immortality; make thyself contiguous with the ruddy one.

The verse is quoted in Vait. 13. 5 to accompany the leading up of the cow that is to be exchanged for the soma-plant.

35. The kingdom-bearing gods who go to surround (abhitas) the sun—in concord with them let the ruddy one, with favoring mind, assign kingdom to thee.

The combination $t\bar{a}is$ te is quoted as example under Prāt. ii. 84. The verse (7+8:9+11: or 8 in a, if we resolve deva-ā or $r\bar{a}str-a-$) is far too irregular to be defined simply as an uparistādbrhatī.

36. Sacrifices purified by bráhman carry thee up; yellow (hári) roadsters draw (vah) thee; thou shinest over (ati-ruc) across the ocean, the sea.

The verse might better be called virāj than nicṛt (11+11:12). Ppp. reads in b abhyaktum (for adhvagato); and in c-se arṇavam, as do some of our mss. (O.R.T.K.). Pādas a and b recur below, vs. 43.

37. On the ruddy one are set (critá) heaven-and-earth, on the goods-conquering, kine-conquering, booty-conquering one, of whom the births are a thousand and seven; may I speak thy navel on the range of existence.

Ppp. reads for b vasujid gojit saindhanājiti, and in c dravināni saptatir. The obscure last pāda is identical with vs. 14 c.

38. Glorious thou goest to the directions and quarters, glorious of cattle and of people (carsant); glorious in the lap of earth, of Aditi, may I become pleasant (carya-11). Savitar.

Ppp. reads nu instead of ca in a, and asmi instead of $bh\bar{n}y\bar{a}sam$ in d; and it combines $prthivy\bar{a}$ 'di- in c. There is a deficiency of a syllable, unnoticed in the Anukr., in a, unless we resolve $ya-\bar{a}si$.

39. Being yonder, thou knowest here; being on this side, thou seest those things; from this side they see the shining space (rócana), the inspired sun in the sky.

Ppp. begins c with yatas paç-.

- 40. Thou, a god, molestest (mrc) the gods; thou goest about within the sea (arṇavá); they kindle the same fire; it the high (pára) poets know.
- 'It,' i.e. 'the fire' (tám). Ppp. reads marcayati and carati. [Bloomfield, AJP. xii. 437, emends to devám arcayasi; but Ppp., and the antithesis of a and b, admirably suggested by Deussen's dennoch, are in favor of marc-.]
- 41. Below the distant, thus beyond the lower, bearing her calf with her foot, the cow hath stood up; whitherwards, to what quarter, hath she forsooth gone away? where giveth she birth? for [it is] not in this herd.

This is a repetition of ix. 9. 17, and, as there are two successive verses beginning with avah parena, this one is quoted here in the mss. with the unusual expression avah

- ''ti pūrvā. [The Anukr. doubtless balances the extra syllable in a by counting kúa as one syllable in d.]
- 42. One-footed, two-footed [is] she, four-footed; having become eight-footed, nine-footed, thousand-syllabled, a series of existence; out from her flow apart the oceans.

This verse is the pādas b—e of ix. 10.21 (RV. i. 164.41 b—d, 42 a) [see under ix. 10.21 for variants]. It and the preceding are very little in place in our hymn. [With d cf. 3.2 b, below.]

43. Mounting the sky, immortal, do thou favor my words; sacrifices purified by bráhman carry thee up; yellow roadsters draw thee.

Pādas b and c are identical with 36 a, b. Instead of adhvagatas, Ppp. reads ghṛtam pibantam. Bp. accents prá: áva.

44. I know that of thine, O immortal one, namely (yát) thy climb (ākrámaṇa) in the sky, thy station (sadhástha) in the highest firmament.

Vyòmani would make a more regular parosnih, but the Anukr. takes no notice of the deficiency.

- 45. The sun overlooks (ati-paç) the sky, the sun the earth, the sun the waters; the sun, the one eye of what exists, hath mounted the great sky.
 - The verse is made in Vait. 16.11 to accompany the antaryamahoma after sunrise.
- 46. The wide ones (urvi) were the enclosures; the earth took shape as sacrificial hearth; there the ruddy one set $(\bar{a}-dh\bar{a})$ these two fires, cold and heat.
- 47. Having set cold and heat, having made the mountains sacrificial posts $(y\dot{n}pa)$, having rain as sacrificial butter, the two fires of the sky-finding ruddy one performed sacrifice (yaj).

The Anukr. appears to ratify the resolution kṛtu-ā in b. Ppp., in this verse as later, combines agnī "jāte. [For 46, Hillebrandt, Ved. Mythol. i. 179, cites CB. i. 2. 57.]

48. The fire of the sky-finding ruddy one is kindled with bráhman; therefrom heat, therefrom cold, therefrom the sacrifice was born.

The majority of mss. read correctly $yaj\tilde{n}\delta$ ' $j\tilde{a}y$ - at the end; the rest vary between $-\tilde{n}\delta$ aj- and $-\tilde{n}\delta$ aj-. Ppp. reads $-\tilde{n}o$ aj-; and, in b, $sam\tilde{a}hitah$ for sam idhyate.

49. The two fires [are] increasing by bráhman, increased with bráhman, offered to with bráhman: kindled with bráhman, the two fires of the skyfinding ruddy one performed sacrifice.

Ppp. reads for a brahmanā 'gnis samvidāno, and in b -ddho, -hutah, and again combines in c agnī "jāte. With b compare vs. 28 b.

50. The one is all set in truth, the other is kindled in the waters: kindled with etc. etc.

Ppp. reads in b samāhitas [again: cf. 48] for sam idhyate, and adds another pāda: satye adbhis samāhitah.

51. What one the wind adorns about, or what one Indra, Brahmanaspati: kindled with etc. etc.

Ppp. omits $v\bar{a}$ in b.

- 52. Having shaped (k!p) the earth as sacrificial hearth, having made the sky sacrificial fee, then having made heat his fire, the ruddy one made all that has soul, with rain as sacrificial butter.
- 53. Rain as sacrificial butter, heat as fire, earth as sacrificial hearth took shape; there, with songs (gir), the fire shaped these mountains aloft.

Ppp. reads 'gnir in a, and some of our mss. (P.M.p.m.W.) give the same. P.M.W. also have in common the blunder bhūmipr ak- in b. It is doubtless by a loss of part of its text that the Anukr. does not define vss. [57-58] as anuṣṭubh, although it describes a minor feature of vs. 57, taken as an anuṣṭubh. [With 52, cf. vs. 46.]

54. Having shaped [them] aloft by songs, the ruddy one said to the earth: in thee let this all be born, what is $(bh\bar{u}td)$ or what is to be.

Ppp. reads at the end bhavyam.

55. That first sacrifice was born [as] the one that is, that is to be; from that was born this all, whatsoever shines out (vi-ruc) here, brought $(\bar{a}\text{-}bh\underline{r})$ by the ruddy one [as] seer.

Ppp. ends the hymn with this verse, although vs. 58 is found in another place. It combines $jaj\bar{n}e'da\dot{m}$, as we are doubtless to read, though not with the sanction of the Anukr., which calls the pāda $brhat\bar{i}$. [Cf. iv. 23. 7.]

56. Whoever both kicks a cow with the foot and urinates in face of the sun — of such a one I hew off (vraçc) thy root; thou shalt not further cast (kr) shadow.

[Cf. the note on the vs. concerning posture in urination at vii. 102: and add that Buddhaghosa, in his comment on the description of the Acelakas, at Dīgha Nikāya, viii. 14 (as reported by Davids, Translation, p. 227), speaks of the standing posture as wrong. — As to making water with face towards the sun, cf. MBh. xiii. 104. 75 (5029), and note to Manu iv. 48 in my Reader, p. 349, and the references there given, especially the reference to Jolly's Viṣṇu, SBE. vii. 194 f. — As for the loss of the shadow, cf. the Peter Schlemihl story; also Jātaka, i. 1029; vi. 33711.]

The character of this and the following verses shows that Ppp. has reason for not making them a part of the hymn. This verse makes its appearance in Kāuç. 49. 26, at the conclusion of a series of witchcraft ceremonies. [For the theoretical k of $praty d\bar{n}k$, see note to vi. 51. 1.]

57. Thou that goest past me shading me, and between me and the fire, I hew off thy root; thou shalt not further cast shadow.

The connection appears to demand this pregnant rendering of abhichāyām 'so as to cast thy shadow on' (so also Ludwig). It is easy to fead b as a regular anuṣṭubh pāda, though the Anukr. allows it only six syllables.

58. Whoso this day, O heavenly sun, shall go between both thee and me—on him we wipe off evil-dreaming, pollution, and difficulties.

This verse is found in Ppp. xx., which reads for c tasmin duşvapnyam sarvam.

59. Let us not go forth from the road, nor, O Indra, from the sacrifice with soma; let not the niggards stand between us.

That is, between us and something else, so as to cut us off from our desire or object. The verse is, without variant, RV. x. 57. 1, and found also in JB. iii. 168. It is used once in Vāit. (18. 8), and several times in Kāuç. (54. 18; 82. 6; 89. 11; also by the schol. under 42. 15; 58. 17).

60. What line, accomplisher of the sacrifice, is stretched clear to the gods, that, sacrificed unto, may we attain.

The verse is RV. x. 57. 2, which reads at the end naçīmahi. It is used by the schol. to Kāuç. 58. 17, with vs. 59, in the ceremony of name-giving.

[Here ends the first anuvāka, I hymn and 60 verses. The quoted Anukr. says sastih.]

2. To the sun.

[(Brahman. — ādhyātmam; rohitādityadevatyam. trāistubham:) 1, 12-15, 39-41. anustubh; 2, 3, 8, 43. jagatī; 10. āstārapankti; 11. brhatīgarbhā; 16-24. ārṣī gāyatrī; 25. kakummaty āstārapankti; 26. purodvyatijāgatā bhurig jagatī; 27. virād jagatī; 29. bārhatagarbhā 'nustubh; 30. 5-p. uṣṇigbrhatīgarbhā 'tijagatī; 34. ārṣī pankti; 37. 5-p. virādgarbhā jagatī; 44, 45. jagatī (44. 4-p. puraḥçākvarā bhurij; 45. atijāgatagarbhā).]

Found also in Pāipp. xviii. Only twice (vs. 1) quoted in Kāuç., but several times (eight different verses) by Vāit.

Translated: Ludwig, p. 540; Henry, 8, 36; Griffith, ii. 143. — In this hymn, the sun is mentioned by the name rôhita only in vss. 25 and 39-41. Verses 39-41 are translated also by Muir, v. 396; Scherman, p. 75 (with vss. 25-26); Deussen, Geschichte, i. 1. 213 (also vss. 25-26 at p. 226). — The verses 16-24, which are RV. i. 50. 1-9, are translated by the RV. translators, and are commented and in part translated by me in Skt. Reader, p. 362-3.

1. The bright (çukrá) shining lights (ketú) of him go up in the sky—of the men-watching Āditya, him of great courses (-vratá), liberal (mīḍhváns).

Ppp. reads in d mahīvr-. Kāuç. 58. 22 prescribes the use apparently of the whole hymn (with xvi. 3 and xvii.) in an act of worship to the rising sun, in a ceremony for long life; also (with the same and other hymns, and xiii. 1. 25) in 18. 25, in the citrā-karman: see the note to 1. 25 above. Vāit. 9. 16 uses it in the cāturmāsya ceremony when turning toward the sun in the east.

2. [Him,] shining (svar) with the brightness (arcis) of the foreknowing quarters, well-winged, flying swift in the ocean (arnavá) — we would praise the sun, the shepherd of existence, who with his rays shines unto all the quarters.

The Pet. Lex. (followed by Henry) emends prajnānam to prajnānam, with much plausibility; yet it is opposed by x. 7. 34, diço yáç cakré prajnānih. Ppp. reads prajnānam svadayanto arc-; and it combines in d diçā "bhāti. The verse lacks two syllables of being a proper jagatī.

- 3. In that thou goest swiftly eastward, westward, at will (svadháyā), makest by magic (māyā) the two days of diverse form that, O Āditya, [is] great, that thy great fame (çrávas), that thou alone art born about the whole world (bhūman).
 - 'The two days,' i.e. 'day and night.' The first pada is tristubh.
- 4. The inspired, hasting (taráni), shining one, whom seven numerous (bahú) yellow steeds (harít) draw, whom out of the liquid (?srutá) Atri conducted up the sky thee here they see going around upon thy race.

Half of our mss. appear plainly to read stutat in c, but the apparent distinction is of no value; sr and st are virtually one in ms. use. Ppp. helps to establish sru-, by reading, for c, d, crutad divam atri divam anyanaya tam tva pacyema paryantim ajim. GB. i. 2. 17 has c (the published text reads stutad), with vs. 12 a, b, as if a verse. As for the Atri story, cf. my essay on RV. v. 40 in Festgruss an Roth, p. 187. For the construction of ajim, see Ved. Stud. ii. 261.

- 5. Let them not damage thee going around upon thy race; happily do thou cross the difficulties quickly; when, O sun, thou goest to both sky and divine earth, measuring out day-and-night.
- Or, 'sky' and 'earth' may be joint objects of 'measuring' (so Henry, and apparently Ludwig). Ppp. reads paryantam in a, and sugena durgam in b. We have to make the, in its situation, awkward resolution tu- \bar{a} in a in order to fill out the meter; a or a or a or a or a in a in order to fill out the meter; a or a
- 6. Well-being, O sun, [be] to thy chariot for its moving, wherewith thou goest at once about both borders (anta) which thy yellow steeds, of excellent draught, draw: a hundred horses, or else seven, numerous.
- 'At once' (sadyás), doubtless 'on one and the same day'; 'borders,' i.e. 'horizons.' Half the mss. read báhiṣṭhās, both in this and in the next verse. Ppp. has in a carato rathāsi, and in b paryāsi;* and for d, instead of repeating 7 d, it gives tam ā roha sukham āsy açvam. ["Numerous" is fem.; and we may think of "horses" as fem.] *[For the relation of pariyāsi to paryāsi, cf. that of -āni yasya to -ānsy asya, above, x. 7. 20, and see Gram. § 233 a.]
- 7. Mount (adhi-sthā), O sun, thine easy-running chariot, rich in rays, pleasant, well-horsed, powerful (?vājin), which thy yellow steeds, of excellent draught, draw: a hundred horses, or else seven, numerous.

All our mss. accent $s\bar{u}rya$ in a; our edition emends to $s\bar{u}rya$. Ppp. has in b syono-syavahnim. The Anukr. perhaps regards the redundant syllable in b as balanced by the deficiency in a. [Cf. 6 c, d.]

8. The sun hath yoked in his chariot, in order to go, his seven great yellow steeds, golden-skinned; the bright one hath been freed from the dimness (?rájas) in the distance; shaking away the darkness, the god hath mounted the sky.

Ppp. reads çūras for sūryas in a, and çakras for çūkras in c, and apparently ayuñkta in b. The verse is very ill defined as simple jagati; the true reading in b would seem to be hiranyatvacas.

9. The god hath come up with great show (ketú); he hath wasted away the darkness, hath set up (abhi-çri) the light; that hero, heavenly eagle, son of Aditi, hath looked abroad unto all beings.

Abhi-çri, more literally, 'affix, fasten on.' (to the sky). [For the form açrāit, see Gram. § 889 a, and note to vi. 32. 2. For avṛk, Gram. § 832 a.] Ppp. reads in c sthaviras for sa vīras, and has a curious d: ādityāṣ putram nāthagām abhayām atttā.

10. Rising, thou extendest thy rays; thou adornest thyself with all forms; thou illuminest $(vi-bh\bar{a})$ with might $(?kr\dot{a}tu)$ both oceans, encompassing all worlds, shining.

Ppp. has an altogether different b: prajās sarvā vi paçyasi. [It may be that "adornest" is a slip on W's part. Cf. Henry's note, p. 37-38.]

11. They two move on one after the other by magic; two playing young ones go about the ocean; the one looks abroad upon all beings; yellow steeds draw the other with golden [trappings?].

The first three pādas are identical with vii. 81. 1 a-c (repeated at xiv. 1. 23), and are found in other texts: see the note to that verse; the last pāda is peculiar, and, as applying only to the sun, spoils the description of the pair of luminaries, sun and moon, which the verse sets out to make. Henry regards the daily and the nightly sun as intended, and the hāiranyas as the stars, by means of which the latter finds his way back to the eastern horizon. It would have been better to read yāto rnavám here, as in vii. 81. 1, since the majority of our samhitā-mss. (all save Bs.E.) give it in this place also.

12. Atri maintained thee in the sky, O sun, to make the month; thou goest well-maintained, heating, looking down upon all things that exist.

All our mss. read in b $s\vec{u}ry\bar{a}$, as if we had here the compound $s\vec{u}ry\bar{a}m\hat{a}s\hat{a}$; the padamss. have $s\vec{u}ry\bar{a}:m\hat{a}s\bar{a}ya$; the correction to $s\vec{u}rya$ seems unavoidable. GB., which has the first two pādas (see note to vs. 4), also gives $s\vec{u}ry\bar{a}$ -; Ppp. also has it; and, for d, $svar\ bh\bar{u}t\bar{a}\ vic\bar{a}kacat$ so Roth: perhaps a slip for $vic\bar{a}k$ -].

13. Thou rushest alike (?sam-ṛṣ) to both borders, as a calf to two joint mothers; surely (nanú), that bráhman you gods have long known.

A naïve extension of the usual naïve figure of the calf: as if he had two mothers, to each of which he showed equal attachment. Bráhman, apparently 'sacred mystery' (so Henry). In d, lit. 'know of old from now.'

14. What is set (critá) along the ocean, that the sun desires to gain (san); great is stretched out his road, which is both eastern and western.

The pada-text has in b sisāsati [misprinted and corrected by SPP.], and the passage is quoted as an example under Prāt. ii. 91; iv. 29, 82. Ppp. reads adhi for anu in a.

15. That one he attains completely (sam-āp) with his swiftnesses; that he desires not to neglect (?apa-cikits); by that [men] do not appropriate the gods' draught of immortality (amṛta).

Apa-cikits, lit. 'desire to think away from,' with abl.; the expression is found only here. The logic of d is not obvious; Henry supplies 'the demons' as subject of dva rundhate; Ludwig renders it as a singular. Ppp. reads jigitsati in b; and, in c etc., bhakṣaṇam devānān nam va ru-; bhakṣaṇam is an improvement; the meter of c halts badly without it.

16. This heavenly Jātavedas the lights (ketú) draw (vah) up, for every one to see the sun.

Or stryam may be in apposition with jātāvedasam. 'Draw,' i.e. as horses do. This verse, with the eight that follow, constitute RV. i. 50. 1-9, in the same order of verses, and with few variants; they are also all found in one or more other Vedic texts: this one in SV. (i. 31), VS. (7.41; 8.41; 33.31), TS. (i. 2.82; 4.431), and MS. (i. 3.37)—in all, without a variant. The whole hymn [i.e. vss. 16-24] is repeated further in xx. 47. 13-21. This verse is used three times in Vāit.: at 21. 23; at 33.5 (with the following five verses); and at 39. 16 (with the following two verses). [The pratīka is cited at MGS. i. 2.4. The frequency of the citation or occurrence of the verse may be judged by consulting MGS. Index, p. 148.]

17. Away go, like thieves, these asterisms with their rays (aktú), for the all-beholding sun.

Or c may possibly mean 'for all to behold the sun.' The remaining verses (17-24) of the RV. hymn [i.e. i. 50. 1-9] are found in SV. only in the Näigeya appendix to the first book; this one (i. 634) has no variant. Henry renders aktúbhis 'with the night.'

18. The lights $(ket\hat{u})$, the rays of him have been seen abroad among the peoples, like shining fires.

Of the other texts, only VS. (viii. 40) follows RV. in reading at the beginning adrṣṣram; the others (SV. i. 635; MS. i. 3. 33) agree with our text.

19. Speedy, conspicuous to all, light-making art thou, O sun; thou shinest unto everything, O bright space (rocaná).

All our mss. read at the end rocana, save Bs., which has rocanam, and M., rocanam, and the translation follows them, although the word is a senseless variant of rocanam, which is given by RV., and by all the other texts: SV. (i. 636), VS. (xxxiii. 36), TS. (i. 4.311), TA. (iii. 16. 1), and MS. (iv. 10. 6). Ppp. has rocana.

- 20. In front of the clans of the gods, in front of those of men thou risest; in front of every one, for seeing the sky (svàr).
 - RV. reads at end of b mānuṣān, and SV. (i. 637) has the same.
- 21. With whom [as] eye thou, O purifying Varuṇa, seest him that busies himself among the people (jánān).
- SV. (i. 638) reads at the beginning yéna; VS. (xxxiii. 32) agrees with RV. and our text.

- 22. Thou goest through the sky, the broad welkin $(r\acute{a}jas)$, fashioning $(m\bar{a})$ the day with [thy] rays, seeing the generations $(j\acute{a}nman)$, O sun.
- RV. reads áhā in b. SV. (i. 639) has the same, and also úd for vi at the beginning, and rájah p. Henry again renders aktúbhis 'with the night.'
- 23. Seven yellow steeds, O heavenly sun, draw in the chariot thee the flame-haired, the out-looking.
- RV. reads at the end vicakṣaṇa, and SV. (i. 641) and TS. (ii. 4. 144) agree with it. MS. (iv. 10. 6) has instead purupriya, and, in the preceding word,
- 24. The sun hath yoked the seven neat (qundhyú) daughters of the chariot; with them, [who are] self-yoked, he goeth.
- SV. (i. 640) reads in b naptryah, and TB. (ii. 4. 54), according to its commentary, has [naptriyah], although na priyah is printed instead in the text [of Calcutta, and naptriyah in the Poona text, p. 518]. So also in c, [in the Calc. ed.] the printed text has yāsi, but the comm. yāti; [while in the Poona ed. both text and comm. give yāti].
- 25. The ruddy one hath mounted the sky with penance, [he] rich in penance; he comes to the womb $(y \delta n i)$, he is born again; he hath become over-lord of the gods.

Ppp. reads in a \bar{a} 'kramīt. The Anukr. regards the verse as one of four pādas (8+6:12+11); but the first two are plainly one tristubh pāda, with tapasā intruded into it. Rohita appears here for the first time in this second hymn, instead of simply the sun; nor do we meet him elsewhere, save in vss. 39-41.

26. He who belongs to all men (-carṣant) and has faces on all sides, who has hands on all sides and palms on all sides — he brings together with his (two) arms, together with his wings (pl.), generating heaven-and-earth, sole god.

The verse is, with considerable variations, RV. x. 81. 3, found also in VS. (xvii. 19: same text as RV.), TS. (iv. 6. 24), TA. (x. 1. 3), and MS. (ii. 10. 2). None of the other texts has yás in b, and only MS. in a; they begin viçvátaçcakṣur (but MS. yó viçvácakṣur); in b, RV.VS. begin with viçvátobāhur, TS.TA.MS. -hasta, and all end with viçvátaspāt; in c, for bhárati, RV. (and VS.) has dhámati, TS.TA. námati, MS. ádhamat; in d, RV.VS.MS. give dyāvābhūmī. Ppp. agrees with RV. in b-d. The meter, fairly regular in RV., is distorted greatly in our text (13 + 13:11 + 12 = 49); the Anukr. gives an acceptable definition of it. The sense also is much defaced in the first line as we have it. Vāit. 29. 14 uses the verse to accompany a certain graha in the building of the fire-altar.

27. The one-footed strode out more than the two-footed; the two-footed falls upon (abhi-i) the three-footed from behind; the two-footed strode out more than the six-footed; they sit together [about] the body of the one-footed.

Sam-ās has no good right to an accusative object; and one of our mss. (D.) reads tanvām, loc., which would be grammatically an acceptable emendation; as regards the sense, that is too obscure for us to derive any help from it. Pādas b and c are wanting in Ppp., probably by accident. The first half-verse nearly agrees with RV. x. 117.8 a, b, which (whole) verse corresponds to the first half of our 3.25 below: see the note there. It is only here and in 3.25 that we find the accentuation dripat and tripat. The pratika is quoted by GB. ii. 9, p. 28, l. 19. The description of the Anukr. implies an unfounded rejection of one of the resolutions abhi eti or tanú-am.

28. When, about to go unwearied, he hath approached $(\bar{a}\text{-}sth\bar{a})$ his yellow steeds, he, shining (ruc), makes for himself two forms; rising rich in lights $(ket\hat{u}\text{-})$, overpowering the dim spaces $(r\acute{a}jas)$, thou illuminest $(vi\text{-}bh\bar{a})$, O \bar{A} ditya, all the advances.

Ppp. has for b divi rūpam [kṛṇuṣe; it further combines viçvā "ditya in d]. [Pāda b is identical with 42 b.] [Pischel translates the vs., Ved. Stud. ii. 76.]

29. Verily (bát), great art thou, O sun; verily, O Āditya, great art thou; great is the greatness of thee the great one; thou, O Āditya, art great.

This verse is RV. viii. 90 (or 101). 11, and is found also in VS. (xxxiii. 39) and SV. (i. 276; ii. 1138), while its prattka is given by TB. (i. 4. 53: very strange, since the whole verse occurs in no Tāittirīya text). RV. and VS. read, for c, d, mahás te sató mahimá panasyate 'ddhá deva mahán asi; [the vs. is repeated in RV. form at xx. 58. 3;] and SV. the same, except panistama mahná for panasyate 'ddhá.

30. Thou shinest (ruc) in the sky, thou shinest in the atmosphere, O flying one; on the earth thou shinest, thou shinest within the waters; both oceans thou hast penetrated ($vi-\bar{a}p$) with thy sheen (rici); a god, O-god, art thou, a heaven-conquering bull ($mahi \not = a$).

Ppp. reads at the end svarvit. The Anukr. understands the structure of the verse as 12+9+7:12+11=51; but it is plainly a mixed tristubh-jagatī, rather, with patanga intruded at the end of a, and possibly one rócase in b. All the mss. accent pátanga, because they reckon it, with the Anukr., as first word in a pāda; it should properly be patanga.

31. Hitherward from afar, extended (pra-yam) in mid-route, swift, inspired, flying, he the flying one, perceived (?vicitta) [as] Vishnu, surpassing (adhi-sthā) with strength—he overpowers with his show (ketú) all that stirs.

Ppp. reads at the beginning arvāk. ['Perceived as Viṣṇu': cf. note to xiii. 4. 46.]

32. Wondrous, understanding ($cikitv\acute{a}is$), a bull ($mahis\acute{a}$), an eagle, making to shine the two firmaments ($r\acute{o}das\bar{i}$), the atmosphere — day-and-night, clothing themselves about with the sun, lengthen out all his heroisms.

The adjectives in a, b are nom. masc. sing., and the shift of construction in the second half-verse is a notable one. Ppp. combines suparnā "roc-, and reads rodasim in b. The verse is used in Vāit. 33. 8 in a sacrificial session, with the remaining verses to the end of the hymn. Ppp. puts our vs. 33 before this. The first pāda is nearly the same as 42 c. Henry discusses the vs. in Mém. de la Soc. de linguistique, x. 86.

33. Keen (tigmá), shining out (vi-bhrāj), sharpening himself, granting the helpful (?araingamá) advances, a winged one full of light, a vigorbestowing bull (mahiṣá), he hath approached $(\bar{a}$ -sthā) all the directions, arranging (klp).

Ppp. reads in a-b tanvaç çiçãno ramgamāsun dhravato rarānāh, and in d combines viçvā "sthāt. [Pischel translates the vs., Ved. Stud. ii. 75-6.] [See my discussion of accusatives pl. fem. in -āsas and of this passage in Noun-Inflection, p. 363.]

34. Wondrous front [and] show $(ket\acute{u})$ of the gods, the sun, full of light, going up the directions $(prad\acute{l}\varsigma)$, the day-maker, bright $(\varsigma ukr\acute{a})$, hath overpassed with brightnesses $(dyumn\acute{a})$ the glooms $(t\acute{a}mas)$ [and] all difficulties.

This verse and the next are repeated as xx. 107. 13, 14. The definition of this one by the Anukr. [as 40 syllables is right from its point of view; but the verse] is evidently meant for a tristubh, and can easily be read into a respectable one, according to the low standard of AV. tristubhs, by a few judicious resolutions. The harshness and obscurity of the constructions in a, b are indications of a corrupted text; Henry renders pradiças by 'toward the celestial regions,' Ludwig by 'from the horizon'; the translation above simply adheres to the usual sense of the word. Verses 34-36 are directed in Vāit. 39. 16 to be used alternatively in the praise of the sun; in 21.23, the pratika, namely citram devānām (quoted with vs. 16), might apply either to this verse or to the next.

35. The wondrous front of the gods hath arisen, the eye of Mitra, of Varuṇa, of Agni; he hath filled heaven-and-earth, the atmosphere; the sun is the soul of the moving creation (jágat) and of the stationary (tasthivāis).

The verse is RV. i. 115. I (only variant $\delta : apr\vec{a}h$ in $\mathbf{c}$), and it is found almost everywhere else: thus, in SV. (i. 630: N\vec{a}igeya appendix), VS. (vii. 42; xiii. 46), TS. (i. 4. 43\structure{1}; ii. 4. 14\structure{1}), TB. (ii. 8. 7\vec{3}), TA. (i. 7. 6; ii. 13. 1), MS. (i. 3. 37), AA. (iii. 2. 3); all have the same text as RV.; and so, apparently, has Ppp., [combining, however, $\vec{a}pr\vec{a}dy\vec{a}-\]. [Deussen, $Geschichte$, i. 1. 213, interprets the vs.] The quotation in V\vec{a}it. 33. 6 evidently applies to the verse as AV. xx. 107. 14. [In $\vec{d}$, $jágas tas-$ is a misprint for $jágatas tas-$: an interesting instance of most modern haplography.]

36. Flying on high (uccá), the red eagle, in the midst of the sky hasting, shining — may we see thee, whom men call the impeller (savitṛ), the unfailing light which Atri found.

Ppp. has the better reading paçvema in c. [Restore the lost accent-mark under the nim of taránim.]

37. To the eagle running on the back of the sky, to the son of Aditi, I, frightened, approach $(upa-y\bar{a})$, desiring refuge; do thou, O sun, lengthen out for us a long life-time; may we take no harm; may we be in thy favor.

The verse is obviously a regular tristubh, with nāthákāmas intruded in b: its description by the Anukr. Lgives the verse 48 syllables; but how pañcapadā virādgarbhā is to be understood is not clear]. LThe verse is quoted in Vāit. 18. 7, in the agnistoma.

38. A thousand days' journey are expanded the wings of him, of the yellow swan flying to heaven; he, putting all the gods in his breast, goes viewing together all existences.

We had the verse above as x. 8. 18, and it is repeated again below as 3. 14. Ppp. reads in c sa viçvān devān.

39. The ruddy one became time, the ruddy one in the beginning Prajāpati; the ruddy one [is] face (mouth?) of the sacrifices; the ruddy one brought the bright sky (svàr).

Ppp. reads in a loko 'bhavat (our 40 a), and, for d, rohito jyotir ucyate.

- 40. The ruddy one became the world; the ruddy one overheated the sky; the ruddy one with his rays goes about over the earth, the ocean.
- Or (b) 'went heating across the sky' (so Henry). Ppp. reads in a bhūto 'bhavat, omits b, and has bhūmyam in c cf. its nāryam for nārīm, xiv. 1. 59, note].
- 41. All the quarters did the ruddy one, over-lord of the sky, go about upon; the sky, the ocean, also the earth all that exists doth he defend.

Ppp. has in a (better) same carati; in b it combines rohito adh-; in c it has again bhūmyam; in d, sarvalokān vi.

42. He, mounting, glowing [and] unwearied, the great [spaces], makes for himself, shining (ruc), two forms; wondrous, understanding, [bull,] wind-going (??), when he shines out $(vi-bh\bar{a})$ upon as many worlds [as there are].

That is, 'upon all existing worlds.' The second pāda is 28 b above; the third, nearly 32 a. The rendering of $v\bar{a}tam\bar{a}y\bar{a}s$ (p. $v\bar{a}tam\circ\bar{a}y\bar{a}h$) in c is purely to fill up the text. Henry emends to $v\bar{a}tam$ $\bar{a}pas$; Ludwig renders 'possessing wind-magic.' The Anukr. passes without notice the redundant syllable in c. Ppp. has a quite different version of much of the verse: $\bar{a}roha\bar{n}$ chakro vṛhatīr yumktor amartyāṣ kṛṇuṣe vīryāṇi: divyas suparņo muhiṣam vātaraṅhāya: sarvānl lokāṅ abhi etc. This would suggest vātaraṅhās 'wind-swift' as emendation of vātamāyās.

43. The one he falls upon (abhi-i), the other he casts about — the bull, arranging with day-and-night; we, imploring, call upon the trackfinding sun, dwelling in the welkin (rájas).

In the very obscure first half-verse, the two anyat's may be subjects instead (so Ludwig and Henry), asyate being taken as passive — which would seem more natural, save that then the nominative in b is left without construction. Ppp. reads in a-b eti sadyo 'yam vasāvam aho-, and in d nāthamānāḥ. The verse (12+12:11+12=47) is a very irregular "jagatī."

44. The earth-filling bull (mahisa), track of the implorer, of undamaged sight, hath encompassed the all; beholding (sam-paç) the all, beneficent, reverend, let him hear this which I say.

'Track' (in b), i.e. facilitation or facilitator of progress. Mahisas is an evident intrusion, and the verse is strictly a tristubh with redundant syllables. Ppp. reads in a prthivipro m. bādhamānasya; for b, adbhutacaksus pari sam babhūva; and, for d, civāyā nas tanvā çarma yacchāt, which is found nowhere in our text. All our mss. Lexcept D. sagree in accenting babhūva, for no discoverable reason. Five of SPP's authorities (as well as W's D.) read babhū· a without accent.

45. The greatness of him exceeds (p dri) the earth, the ocean; shining abroad with light, it exceeds (p dri) the sky, the atmosphere; beholding the all, beneficent, reverend, let h a hear this which I say.

Ppp. again objects to our second half-verse, and gives instead: ahorātrābhyām saha samvasānā uṣā nīyus pratarād avistam. The "jagatī" is again a very rough one [as the Anukr. in part admits]. [W. interlines "encompasses" as an alternative to "exceeds."]

46. Agni hath been awakened by the kindling of men to meet the dawn coming like a milch-cow; like young (yahvá) [birds?] rising forth to a branch, the lights (bhānú) go forth unto the firmament (náka).

Ppp. reads in d sasrje. The verse is RV. v. 1. 1, and is found also in other texts: SV. (i. 73; ii. 1096), VS. (xv. 24), TS. (iv. 4. 41), and MS. (ii. 13. 7), everywhere without a variant. [SV. (both occurrences) reads sasrate in d; TS. accents achd at the end.] It is quoted in Vāit. 29. 8, apparently in connection with the verses that follow it in RV. (iti trāiṣṭubhīḥ).

[Here ends the second anuvāka, with 1 hymn and 46 verses. The quoted Anukr. says sat catvārincat.]

3. To the sun (with imprecation on the evil-doer).

[(Brahman. — ādhyātmam; rohitādityadevatyam. trāistubham.) 1. 4-av. 8-p. ākṛti; 2-4. 3-av. 6-p. (2, 3. aṣṭi, 2. bhurij; 4. atiçākvaragarbhā dhrti); 5-7. 4-av. 7-p. (5, 6. çākvarātiçākvaragarbhā prakṛti; 7. anuṣṭubgarbhā 'tidhṛti); 8. 3-av. 6-p. atyaṣṭi; 9-19. 4-av. (9-12, 15, 17, 7-p. bhurig atidhṛti, 15. nicṛt, 17. kṛti; 13, 14, 16, 18, 19. 8-p., 13, 14. vikṛti, 16, 18, 19. ākṛti, 9. bhurij); 20, 22. 3-av. 6-p. atyaṣṭi; 21, 23-25. 4-av. 8-p. (24. 7-p. kṛti; 21. ākṛti; 23, 3. vikṛti).]*

Of this hymn only one verse is found in Pāipp., namely vs. 10 in iv. Vāit. makes use of no part of it; and Kāuç. [49.19] only of the first verse. [Caland, p. 173, understands the whole hymn to be intended at 49.19; and takes 49.24 and 25 as referring to vss. 6 and 7 of this hymn.] *[The definition of vs. 26 (anuṣṭubh) appears to be omitted.— The individual pādas of this hymn are largely of genuine triṣṭubh measure and cadence, occasionally jagatī; and this is possibly the intention of the "trāi-ṣṭubham" of the Anukr. (for not a single verse foots up as 44 syllables): then, again, if to the verse proper in each case we add the refrain and reckon up the totals, we get the ākṛṭis etc. of the Anukr.]

Translated: Ludwig, p. 543; Henry, 14, 45; Deussen, Geschichte, i. 1. 226; Griffith, ii. 150.

I. He who generated these two, heaven-and-earth; who clothes himself in existences, making them a garment (drapi); in whom abide the six wide directions, toward which he, the flying one, looks all abroad—against that god, angered, [is] this offense (dgas); whoso scathes a Brahman that knows thus, do thou, O ruddy one, make him quake, destroy him; fasten on the fetters of the Brahman-scather.

All the mss. agree in the accent of $dr\dot{a}pi$ (RV. always $dr\ddot{a}pt$). As is their habit, they give of the refrain only the single word $t\dot{a}sya$ except in vss. I and 25; and there they set the $avas\bar{a}na$ not before $t\dot{a}sya$, but after $dev\dot{a}sya$: in our edition this perversion of the natural division is corrected. The refrain, if we contract $y\dot{a}$ evam to $y\bar{a}t$ 'vam, is a regular tristubh; its addition to a preceding verse makes this hymn one of especially long meters; the first verse, 8 pādas of 11 syllables each, is an exact $\bar{a}krti$. The verse [or the hymn: see introduction] is (though v. 12. 9 has the same pratika) doubtless the one quoted in Kāuç. 49. 19, with xiii. I. 28 and xvi. 6. I, to accompany the laying on of fetters; and Bloomfield suggests that the whole hymn (or $anuv\bar{a}ka$) is intended also in 63. 21, one does not see why.

2. From whom the winds in their season go purifying $(p\bar{u})$, out of whom the oceans flow forth — against that god etc. etc.

With b compare 1.42 d. The verse (10 + 11:44 = 65) has one more syllable than a regular $a_i t_i$, as the Anukr. notices. [The longer grammatical equivalent of vatas would improve the rhythm.]

3. Who causes to die [and] causes to breathe; from whom all existences breathe — against that god etc. etc.

An exact asti (9 + 11:44 = 64).

4. Who gratifies heaven-and-earth with breath; who fills the belly of the ocean with respiration — against that god etc. etc.

The meter is correctly enough described by the Anukr. The omission of either apānena or samudrasya would rectify the meter of b.

5. In whom is set (çritá) Virāj, the most exalted one, Prajāpati, Agni Vāiçvānara with the series (pankti); who took to himself the breath of the lofty one, the brilliancy of the loftiest one — against that god etc. etc.

We had nearly the same combination of divine personages above in viii. 5. 10 c, d; and the $pa\bar{n}kti$ here perhaps corresponds to the 'all the seers' there. The verse, of very irregular meter (12 + 12:15:44 = 83), is very nearly a prakrti (84 syll.).

6. Upon whom are set (critá) the six wide [spaces], the five quarters, the four waters, the three syllables (?akṣára) of the sacrifice; who, angered, looked with his eye between the two firmaments (ródasī) — against that god etc. etc.

All our mss. read at end of b $aksár\bar{a}$ (not $-r\bar{a}k$), doubtless under the influence of the ordinary use of aksára as neuter. The omission in c of $cáksus\bar{a}$ would better both sense and meter. The verse as best read (12 + 12:14:44 = 82) lacks two syllables of a full prakrti, but could easily be filled up by resolution. [For the transition -t after yásmin, cf. Prāt. ii. 9 note.] [Caland, p. 173, understands this vs. and the following to be intended at Kāuç. 49. 24, 25, for use in the ceremony of the "water-thunderbolts": cf. introd. to x. 5.]

7. Who became food-eater, lord of food, and also Brahmanaspati (lord of worship); who is and shall be lord of existence—against that god etc. etc.

The translation implies bhavisyán instead of -yát in c; either this emendation or that of bhūtás to bhūtám (which Ludwig and Henry assume in their versions) seems unavoidable. Our samhitā-mss. are divided between -dó ánnapatir and -dó 'nna- in a. The verse (11 + 8:12:44 = 75) is very near a regular atidhṛti (76 syll.). [Cf. note to vs. 6 for use by Kāuç.]

8. He who measures out the thirteenth month, fabricated $(vi\text{-}m\bar{a})$ of days-and-nights, having thirty members — against that god etc. etc.

The verse $(6 \times 11 = 66)$ lacks two syllables of a full atyasti (68 syll.).

9. Black the descent, the yellow eagles, clothing themselves in waters, fly up to the sky; they have come hither from the seat of righteousness—against that god etc. etc.

The first three pādas are RV. i. 164.47 a-c, found also twice above, as vi. 22. I; ix. 10. 22. The verse $(7 \times 11 = 77)$ is accurately described by the Anukr. It, with a good part of those that follow (11-16, 18-21, 23, 25), appears to have nothing to do with the refrain.

10. What of thee, O Kaçyapa, is bright (candrá), full of shining (rocanávant), what that is combined (samhitá), splendid (puṣkalá), of wondrous light, in which seven suns are set (árpita) together—against that god etc. etc.

One of our mss. (T.: [and perhaps also M.]) [and one of SPP's] accent púskalam (like púskara) in b. All [of W's and of SPP's] agree in the anomalous and probably incorrect accent samhitám. [Cf., however, Gram. § 1085 b. Perhaps the case of samskrtám at xi. 1. 35 is not parallel.] Ppp. has (as noticed above) this verse, reading in a kaçyapo ro-, combining in c sūryā "rpitās sapta, and [without avasāna after sākam] having, as was to be expected, a wholly different apodosis: tasmin rājānam adhi vi çraye "mam (cf. our ix. 5. 4 d), for which the refrain of this hymn is a senseless substitute. The verse is found also in K. xxxvii. 9. Our Bp. omits, by accident, the division-sign of rocandovat in a.

- 11. The brhát dresses itself in him in front; the rathamtará accepts [him] behind: [both] clothing themselves always in light unremittingly—against that god etc. etc.
- 12. The bṛhát was his wing on the one side, rathaintará on the other, [both] of like strength, of like motion (?sadhryàūc), when the gods generated the ruddy one against that god etc. etc.

This verse counts 77 syllables, as required, but is irregular (9 + 13:11:44).

- 13. This Agni becomes Varuna in the evening; in the morning, rising, he becomes Mitra; he, having become Savitar, goes through the atmosphere; he, having become Indra, burns (tap) through the midst of the sky. Against that god etc. etc.
- Or (a) 'he becomes Varuna at evening [and] Agni' (so Henry: cf. Ludwig). The verse is very irregular, but can be made to count a vikṛti (92 syll.).

14. A thousand days' journey are expanded the wings of him, of the yellow swan flying to heaven; he, putting all the gods in his breast, goes viewing together all existences. — Against that god etc. etc.

The verse proper here is a repetition of x. 8. 18 and xiii. 2. 38; it is written in full in all the mss., because they have no other way of indicating the attachment here of the refrain. It is properly an $\bar{a}krti$ (8 × 11 = 88 syll.).

15. This is that god within the waters, the thousand-rooted, many-powered (?) Atri; he who generated all this existence — against that god etc. etc.

Henry makes in b the naturally-suggested emendation to puruçākhas, 'many-branched'; [cf. Bloomfield, AJP. xii. 436, and, per contra, Deussen, p. 228, note]. The verse is most naturally read as (9+11:11:44=75) a nicrd atidhṛti, in accordance with the description of the Anukr.

16. Swift-running yellow [horses] draw the bright one (çukrá), the god shining with splendor in the sky, whose lofty bodies heat the sky; hitherward with well-colored gleams (?paṭará) he shines forth. — Against that god etc. etc.

Our edition ought to give in c tanvàs, since that is the pada-reading, and it is only by accident that nearly all the sainhitā-mss. (all save R.K.) unite in protracting the \dot{a} to \dot{a} . The verse reads most naturally as a bhurig $\bar{a}krti$ (12 + 11:11 + 11:44 = 89).

17. By whom the yellow steeds draw the Adityas together; by what sacrifice go many foreknowing; which, sole light, shines forth variously—against that god etc. etc.

Vajhėna 'sacrifice' in b looks as if it needed emendation, and the irregularity of the pāda suggests corruption. Our mss. read at the end vt bhāti and the pada-text has vlobhāti*; our text makes a change of accent to vibhāti. The verse (II + I4:II:44 = 80) counts up a precise krti.

- *[A similar pada-reading, impossible with the accentless verb-form, we met at vi. 74. 2 (see the note thereto) and at vi. 114. 2 (see note). And here, as at vi. 74. 2, a suspicion arises that an error has come in from confusion with a similar form near by, here with the ending of vs. 16 proper, where vi bhāti is called for. All SPP's authorities have vi bhāti, except his P², which has viobhāti. This reading he also adopts. The rationale of the blunder at xiv. 2. 59 (see note) appears to be similar. Cf. also the accent of sarvé at xiii. 4. 21, and note.]
- 18. Seven harness a one-wheeled chariot; one horse, having seven names, draws [it]; of three naves [is] the wheel, unwasting, unassailed, whereon stand all these existences. Against that god etc. etc.

We had the verse (which is RV. i. 164. 2) above as ix. 9. 2. The mss. all give it in full here (as in the case of vs. 14 above).

19. Harnessed eight-fold draws the formidable draft-horse (váhni), father of gods, generator of prayers (mati); measuring with the mind the line of righteousness, Mātariçvan goes cleansing $(p\bar{u})$ to all the quarters. — Against that god etc. etc.

Or perhaps 'he goes as Mātariçvan,' identifying the action of sun and of wind. Mimānas in c should be emended to mimānas, which is read only by D. The Anukr. notices this time the redundant syllable in a.

- 20. A united (samyáñc) line along all the directions, within the gāyatri, the womb (embryo?) of the immortal. Against that god etc. etc.
- 'Line' here is accus., as taking up and carrying on the idea of 19 c. The verse lacks two syllables of being a full atyaṣṭi (68 syll.).
- 21. Three settings, dawnings also three; three welkins, skies verily three: we know, O Agni, the birth-place of thee threefold; threefold the births of the gods we know. Against that god etc. etc.

The verse is regular if $tredh\vec{a}$ in c (not in d) is made, as often elsewhere, trisyllabic.

22. He who in birth (jāyamāna) opened out the earth, [who] set the ocean in the atmosphere—against that god etc. etc.

The meter is the same as that of vs. 20.

23. Thou, O Agni, impelled by powers $(kr\acute{a}tu)$, by lights $(ket\acute{u})$, didst shine up, a kindled song $(?ark\acute{a})$ in the sky; unto what did the Maruts, having the spotted one for mother, sing, when the gods generated the ruddy one? — Against that god etc. etc.

Pischel (Ved. Stud. i. 26) takes arkd as 'sun'; the connection with abhy $\bar{a}rcan$ in c is strongly opposed to this. The last pāda is the same with 12 c above. The verse (12+12:12+11:44) counts properly 91 syllables, one short of a full vikrti.

24. He who is self-giving, strength-giving, of whom all, of whom [even] the gods wait upon the direction, who is master of these bipeds, who of quadrupeds — against that god etc. etc.

The verse proper is identical with the first three padas of iv. 2. 1 (found also in other texts: see the notes to that hymn). Bp. here reads (doubtless by accident) asya in c. Two more syllables are needed to make a full krti (80 syll.).

25. The one-footed strode out more than the two-footed; the two-footed falls upon the three-footed from behind; the four-footed acted within the call of the two-footed ones, beholding the series (panti), drawing near (upa-sthā). — Against that god etc. etc.

The first two pādas are identical with 2. 27 a, b, and the whole verse corresponds to RV. x. 117. 8. RV. reads in a bhūyo dvipādo, in b dvipāt tripādam, in c eti (for cakre) dvipādām, in d paūktīr up. The accentuation dvipāt and tripāt (only in these verses) was noticed under 2. 27. Here we lack two syllables of a full vikrti.

26. The white son of the black [mother], the young of night, was born; he ascends upon the sky; the ruddy one ascended the ascents.

[Here ends the third anuvāka, with 1 hymn and 26 verses. The quoted Anukr. says sadvinçat (sadvinça?).]

4. Extolling the sun.

[(Brahman. — ādhyātmam; rohitādityadevatyam. trāistubham.*) sat paryāyāḥ. mantrokta devatyāh.]

[Partly prose, and vss. 14-15, 22-26, and 46-56 are so designated in W's Index, p. 6.] This hymn is not found in Pāipp., nor noticed either in Kāuç. or in Vāit. *[Here, indeed (but cf. introd. to hymn 3), the general definition for the whole kānḍa as "trāi-sṭubham" does not seem to apply.]

Translated: Henry, 17, 51; Griffith, ii. 154.

[Paryāya I. — trayodaça. 1-11. prājāpatyā nustubh; 12. virād gāyatrī; 13. āsury usnih.]

- 1. He goes [as] impeller (Savitar) to the heaven (svàr), looking down upon the back of the sky.
- 2. To the cloud-mass (nábhas) brought by rays he goes [as] great Indra, covered.
- 3. He [is] the Creator $(dh\bar{a}t\hat{r})$, he the disposer, he Vāyu, the upraised (ut-cri) cloud-mass.

A syllable is lacking, unless we make harsh resolution, in a.

- 4. He [is] Aryaman, he Varuna, he Rudra, he the great god.
- 5. He [is] Agni, he also the Sun, he indeed great Yama.

Parts of this verse are quoted as examples under Prāt. ii. 21, 24; iii. 35, 36; iv. 116.

6. On him wait $(upa-sth\bar{a})$ young ones $(vats\dot{a})$, ten, united, having one head.

Henry acutely suggests emendation in b to -no 'yútā dáça 'ten myriads'—i.e. of rays, all heading in the sun itself. It seems probable that the original text had <code>&kaçir-sas</code>: cf. dáçaçīr-sas, iv. 6. I; the verse as it stands is redundant.

- 7. From behind they stretch on forward; when he rises, he shines forth. Vibhāsati would seem a better reading at the end.
 - 8. His is this troop of Maruts; he goes sling-made.

That is (?), 'as if hung in slings' [OB. 'an Schnüre gehängt']. Henry makes a venturesome and unacceptable emendation, and regards the adjective as referring to the 'troop'—which is not impossible.

9. To the cloud-mass brought by rays he goes [as] great Indra, covered.

This is a repetition of vs. 2; all the mss. give it in full.

10. His are these nine vessels (kóça), the props set nine-fold.

The pada-text reads vistambhah, undivided.

11. He looks abroad for living creatures (prajá), both what breathes and what does not.

Cf. vs. 19, below: 'for,' apparently 'for the advantage of.'

12. Into him is entered (ni-gam) this power; he himself is one, single (ekavrt), one only.

The verse lacks four syllables of the $g\bar{a}yatr\bar{\iota}$ number, instead of two, as the Anukr. counts.

13. These gods in him become single.

The Anukr. counts fourteen syllables in the verse; one does not see where it finds more than thirteen.

[Paryāya II. — aṣṭāu. 14. bhurik sāmnī triṣṭubh; 15. āsurī pañkti; 16, 19. prājāpatyā 'nuṣṭubh; 17, 18. āsurī gāyatrī.]

14. Both fame and glory and water (?ámbhas) and cloud-mass and Brahman-splendor and food and food-eating.

The Pet. Lex. regards nábhaç ca as intruded here, and ámbhas as having the sense of 'might.'

- 15. He who knows this single god -
- 16. Not second, not third, also not fourth is he called.
- 17. Not fifth, not sixth, also not seventh is he called.
- 18. Not eighth, not ninth, also not tenth is he called.
- 19. He looks abroad for everything, both what breathes and what does not.
 - 20. Into him is entered this power; he himself is one, single, one only.
 - 21. All the gods in him become single.

The last three verses are nearly identical with 11-13 above. Of the last two the Anukr. does not define the meter, perhaps by an omission in the ms. (or else because they were defined just above). All our mss. save one (D.) [and all SPP's authorities, except P²] accent sarvé in 21, as if because of eté in 13. [Both editions emend to

[Paryāya III. — sapta. 22. bhurik prājāpatyā tristubh; 23. ārcī gāyatrī; 25. 1-p. āsurī gāyatrī; 26. ārcy anustubh; 27, 28. prājāpatyā 'nustubh.]

22. Both worship (bráhman) and penance and fame and glory and water and cloud-mass and Brahman-splendor and food and food-eating —

This is vs. 14 over again, with two more items prefixed.

23. And what is and what shall be and faith and sheen and heaven (svargá) and svadhá.

The mss. vary between bhavyam (Bp.), bhavyam (Bs.p.m.D.), and bhavyam (Bs.s.m., and all the rest). [SPP's authorities show a similar disagreement. He reads bhavyam; and the same reading] in our text is evidently called for.

24. He who knows this single god -

This verse is identical with vs. 15 above, and is accordingly not separately described by the Anukr.

25. He verily [is] death, he immortality (amṛta), he the monster (abhvà), he the demon.

The verse is probably quoted under Prāt. iii. 65 (see the note there). In order to make out the fifteen syllables of the Anukr., we have to read so amftam so abhuam.

26. He [is] Rudra, winner of good, in the giving of good; in the expression of homage, [he is] the utterance vásat, put together after.

The connection here is very doubtful. Henry understands it as above; Muir (iv. 338) quite differently. The verse is very peculiarly treated by the Anukr.; first it is quoted in its proper place thus: sa rudra ity ārṣt (so the Berlin ms., but the London ms. has āsurī) gāyatrī; and then, after the definition of vss. 27, 28, the London ms. says again sa rudro vasuvanir ārcy anuṣṭup. The descriptions ārṣt gāyatrī and ārcy anuṣṭubh (each implying 24 syllables) both apply equally well, if we restore -kārô ánu.

- 27. All these familiar demons (yātú) wait upon his direction (praçis).
- 28. In his control are all you asterisms, together with the moon.

[Paryāya IV. — saptadaça. 29, 33, 39, 40, 45. āsurī gāyatrī; 30, 32, 35, 36, 42. prājāpatyā 'nusṭubh; 31. virāḍ gāyatrī; 34, 37, 38. sāmny uṣṇih; 41. sāmnī bṛhatī; 43. ārṣī gāyatrī; 44. sāmny anusṭubh.]

29. He verily was born of the day; of him the day was born.

The Anukr. unaccountably ratifies the elision dhno 'j-, instead of restoring aj- and recognizing the pāda for what it is, eight syllables.

- 30 He verily was born of the night; of him the night was born.
- 31. He verily was born of the atmosphere; of him the atmosphere was born.

The verse lacks four syllables, instead of two, of the twenty-four that make a gāyatrī.

- 32. He verily was born of Vāyu (wind); of him Vāyu was born.
- 33. He verily was born of the sky; out of him the sky was born. Here again the Anukr. requires us to read divd 'j-.
- 34. He verily was born of the quarters; of him the quarters were born. Here we are to make both elisions, in a and b.
- 35. He verily was born of the earth; of him the earth was born. Nearly all our mss. (all save Bp.D.R.) accent bhūmés and bhūmís.
- 36. He verily was born of fire; of him fire was born.
- 37. He verily was born of the waters; of him the waters were born.

The metrical description is the same as that of vs. 34, and with the same lack of good reason (the mss. read sa vā adbhya rgbhyah sāmnyuṣniganuṣṭubhāu, which is senseless, and should doubtless be emended to -uṣṇihāu).

38. He verily was born of the verses (iv); of him the verses were born. As to the meter, see the note to the preceding verse.

- 39. He verily was born of the sacrifice; of him the sacrifice was born.
- The Anukr., as above, forces the elision yajñδ 'j-.
- 40. He is the sacrifice; his is the sacrifice; he [is] made the head of the sacrifice.
 - 41. He thunders; he lightens; he indeed hurls the stone.

That is, the thunderbolt. The second pada is one of the examples under Prat. iii. 36.

- 42. Either for the evil [man] or for the excellent; for man or for Asura.
 - 'For,' i.e. 'at,' Ltaking the verse as a continuation of 41].
- 43. Either when thou makest the herbs, or when thou rainest excellently, or when thou hast increased him of the people (? janyá).

This appears to be the only example known of the accent janya instead of janya, and how little authoritative it is may be inferred from the fact that all our mss. leave avivrdhas unaccented after it. Our text makes the necessary emendation to dv. [All SPP's authorities, however, agree in reading not only janyam but also avivrdhas. The latter he also emends to dv.]

44. Such, O bountiful one, is thy greatness; and thine, too (úpa), are a hundred bodies.

There is no difficulty in counting the verse into 16 syllables, as required by the Anukr. [It reads naturally as 9+8.]

45. Thine, too, are two billions, [many] billions (?); or else thou art a hundred million.

The translation implies the readings bádve bádvāni, which, on account of the accent, seem probably meant by the mss., which vary between bádhv-, báddh-, báddhv-; K. reads baddhve vádvāni, D. báddhe bæddhāni. [SPP's authorities also exhibit very wide disagreements, which reflect a corresponding uncertainty of the tradition.] The word is just such a one as the mss. might be expected to boggle and blunder over, both they and we being left without help from the sense. Henry, who accepts the same emendation, understands bádve as locative, which is perhaps better, and at any rate favored by the fact that the pada-text does not read bádve tti.

[Paryaya V. — şat. 46. āsurī gāyatrī; 47. yavamadhyā gāyatrī; 48. sāmny uṣṇih; 49. nicṛt sāmnī bṛhatī; 50. prājāpatyā 'nuṣṭubh; 51. virād gāyatrī.]

46. More is Indra than non-dying (??); more art thou, O Indra, than the deaths.

'Non-dying' is the conjecture of the Pet. Lexx. for namurá, which occurs nowhere else; it is adopted here, simply for lack of anything better, although in itself of a high degree of implausibility. [Henry also adopts it; but see his note, p. 54.] It is surprising to find Indra brought in here at the end for address, instead of the sun; there is nothing to show that the two remaining paryāyas are not for him. [Note, however, the praise of the sun under the names of Indra and Viṣṇu, so prominent in book xvii., below: see page 805. Perhaps we have here a similar identification.]

47. More than the niggard, lord of strength (cácī) art thou, O Indra; as called mighty, prevailing, do we worship (upa-ās) thee.

Prāt. ii. 71 expressly forbids the combination $\varphi dcy \bar{d}s$ p-, which we should have expected here. The verse (9+8:8=25) is strangely defined by the Anukr.

48. Homage be to thee, O conspicuous one (paçyata); see [páçya] me, O conspicuous one.

Paçyata is an anomalous and forced substitute for darçata, made in this passage only, for assonance with paçya. The Anukr. ratifies the combination te astu.

- 49. With food-eating, with glory, with brilliancy (téjas), with Brahman-splendor;
- 50. As called water (?ámbhas), force (áma), greatness, power, do we worship thee.

The Anukr. ratifies the combination ambho amo. By a usage that is rare, all the mss. omit in this verse [what follows] after tti, although the repetition is not of the end of the next preceding verse, but of vs. 47. Then, of course, the following verses are written in the same curtailed way until vs. 54, which is filled out to the end.

51. As called water (ámbhas), red, silvery (rajatá), welkin (rájas), power, do we worship thee.

Again [as at vs. 31] we have a verse called virāḍ gāyatrī which lacks four syllables of being 24.

52. As called wide, broad, happy $(subh\tilde{u})$, earths $(?bh\tilde{u}vas)$, do we worship thee.

Bhúvas is here rendered literally, in the only sense which the word has elsewhere in AV. If it is a first appearance of the vyāhṛti common later, its meaning is wholly obscure in this connection. [Aufrecht, KZ. xxxiv. 458, makes some observations about the relations of the noun-forms and adjective-forms in vss. 52-53.]

- 53. As called breadth, width, expanse, world, do we worship thee.
- 54. As called one of arising good, of increasing (??) good, of gathering good, of coming good, do we worship thee.

The translation implies the heroic substitution of vrdhádvasu for the wholly senseless idádvasu. The Pet. Lexx., to be sure, conjecture for the latter the meaning 'rich in this and that' (which Henry follows); but, besides the fact that idát = idám is not less heroic than idát = vrdhát, the signification given does not belong rightly to the compound, nor has it any application here. Our rendering has at least concinnity — unless, indeed, in a text of this character, that be an argument against its acceptance. All the compounds are evidently possessive.

- 55. Homage be to thee, O conspicuous one; see me, O conspicuous one.
- 56. With food-eating, with glory, with brilliancy, with Brahman-splendor.

These two verses are identical with vss. 48, 49, above Land are therefore not defined by the Anukr. J.

[The quotations from the Old Anukr., given piecemeal for this paryāya-sūkta at the end of each paryāya, may here be given together: I. trayodaça; II. aṣṭāu ca; III. tataḥ paraḥ sapta; IV. saptadaça; V. ṣaṭ ca bodhyāḥ; VI. ṣaṣṭhaḥ pañcaka ucyate.— They are given by SPP. in his "Critical Notice," vol. i., p. 21, with the introductory words, caturthasyā 'vasānāni vakṣyamāṇāni tāni çṛṇu.]

In paryāya V., vss. 47, 50, and 51 have the refrain; and in VI., vss. 52, 53, and 54 have it: these verses are styled ganāvasānarcah, and the rest avasānarcah (as was already noted above, p. 472). But since none of the former is divided in two by an avasāna-mark, the distinction does not affect the sums of the "rcah of both kinds," which are (as just stated) 3 + 3 for V. and 3 + 2 for VI.

[Here ends the fourth anuvāka, consisting of 1 paryāya-sūkta with 6 paryāyas and 56 verses.]

[Some mss. reckon up the hymns as 20 (that is 14 of the decad-divisions of our hymns 1-3, plus 6 paryāyas of our hymn 4) and the verses as 188.]

[Here ends the twenty-eighth prapāthaka.]

Book XIV.

| Nuptial Hymns. |

[Nuptial ceremonies. — This fourteenth book is the second of the six books (xiii.—xviii.) that form the third grand division of the Atharvan collection, and shows very clearly that unity of subject which is the distinguishing characteristic of the books of that division. The book has been translated by Weber, Indische Studien, vol. v. (1862), pages 178–217; and the parts peculiar to our text by Ludwig in his Der Rigveda, vol. iii. (Die Mantralitteratur), pages 470–476. The bhāṣya is again lacking.]

[The subject of the book has been often treated: thus, by that great scholar, Colebrooke, in 1801, in vol. vii. of the Asiatic Researches (the paper is reprinted in Cowell's edition of H. T. Colebrooke's Essays, vol. i., pages 217-238); by E. Haas, in the volume of Weber's Studien, just cited, pages 267-412, Die Heirathsgebräuche der alten Inder, nach den Grihyasūtra; and latterly by Dr. M. Winternitz, in the Denkschriften of the Vienna Academy for 1892, vol. xl., Das altindische Hochzeitsrituell nach dem Āpastambīya-grihyasūtra etc., with a detailed comparison of the nuptial ceremonies prevailing among the other Indo-European peoples. Then, some five years later (in 1897), in the Anecdota Oxoniensia, Dr. Winternitz published The Mantra-pāṭha or the Prayer Book of the Āpastambins, which contains very many of the mantras cited in the editor's Hochzeitsrituell; and for this reason the citations of those mantras are given below in duplicate, in order that they may be easily found in either work.—Here may be mentioned also the elaborate comments given in my Sanskrit Reader, pages 398-401, upon chapters 5, 7, and 8 of Āçvalāyana's Gṛhyasūtra, book i., which treat of the wedding customs and the wedding-service.]

[Division into anuvākas. — This book is divided into two anuvākas, the first with 64 verses, and the second with 75. This division is confirmed by the Old Anukr. or Pañcapaṭalikā (as quoted at the end of each anuvāka), which says ādyaḥ sāuryaç catuḥṣaṣṭiḥ and pañcasapṭatir uttaraḥ. Here ādyaḥ and uttaraḥ doubtless refer to anuvākaḥ understood. It is also confirmed by AV. xix. 23. 24.]

[The decad-division is shown in the mss. as usual: thus hymn 1 is divided into 6 "decad"-sūktas (5 tens and 1 "decad" of 14 vss.), and hymn 2 is divided into 8 "decad"-sūktas (7 tens and 1 "decad" of 5 vss.). The sum is 14 "decad"-sūktas.]

[Division into hymns. — This seems to be a matter more or less questionable. By the Berlin edition, and also by that of SPP., the book is in fact divided into two hymns, each of which coincides with an anuvāka, as is the case with books xii. and xiii. The Old Anukr. seems to offer no evidence either for or against the division into hymns.]

[The mss. seem to support the division of the book into two hymns: thus, at the end of anuvāka 1, several mss. say anuvāke arthasūkta 1; rcā (!) 64; [supply presumably daçatayaḥ] 6. And, at the end of the second, they say anuvāke arthasūkta 1; rcā 75. Moreover, as noted on page 768, some mss. sum up the book as of two hymns.]

[The Major Anukr., on the other hand, seems rather to indicate that the book should not be divided into two hymns: 1. by its mingling the verses of the whole book together (see the next paragraph, which is by Mr. Whitney) in its metrical and other definitions; and 2. by its expression catatamyā [rcā] 'hundredth verse,' which implies a continuous counting from the beginning of the book beyond the limits of the first anuvāka (or hymn?), which contains only 64 verses. Per contra, this method of designating a verse by any ordinal higher than the first few ordinals is very unusual, and (so far as I have noted) unexampled, save by the expression trayovincatikayā in the next clause and by the ordinals of Kāuç. 49. 24, 25 (see note to x. 5. 6).

The descriptions of meter etc. are Lby the Major Anukr. J given together for the whole book; they are here separated for the two recognized divisions (anuvākas, treated as hymns) in accordance with the method elsewhere followed. The order of verses is so much disregarded in the metrical etc. descriptions as to make one wonder whether the arrangement contemplated by the Anukr. was the same with that which we have Lcf. p. 740, top J; yet minor deviations from the order are not very rare elsewhere. Other special points are mentioned in the notes to the verses.

[The Major Anukr. begins its treatment of the book as follows: satyene 'ti (xiv. 1. 1) sāikonacatvārinçachatam dvayānuvākakāṇḍam. Sāvitrī Sūryā. ātmadāivatam. ānuṣṭubham. prathamābhiḥ pañcabhiḥ (xiv. 1. 1-5) somam astāut; parābhiḥ (xiv. 1. 6-?) svavivāham; çatatamyā [?] (xiv. 2. 36) devān; trayovinçatikayā (xiv. 1. 23) somārkāu; parayā (xiv. 1. 24) candramasam.

[That is to say: 'The double-anuvāka-book (the expression dvaya is a little strange: the phrase would fit also books xv. and xvi.) that begins with satyena has [verses] a-hundred-and-forty-save-one (64+75=139). [The seer is] Sūryā,' daughter of Savitar (cf. AV. vi. 82. 2; xiv. 2. 30; Bergaigne, Rel. Véd. ii. 486 f.). The deity is the same. The meter, anustubh. With the first five verses she praised (or mentioned, laudavit: see note to i. 7. 1) Soma; with the next verses (does this mean the verses from 6 to the end of the book? or to the end of the Sūryā-hymn proper, vss. 6–16?), her own wedding; with the hundredth verse (100 = 64 [vss. of h. 1] + 36 [vss. of h. 2]: hence xiv. 2. 36), the gods²; with the twenty-third verse (xiv. 1. 23), moon and sun; with the next (xiv. 1. 24), the moon.']

² This statement does not fit xiv. 2. 36. On the other hand, Dr. Ryder points out that it does fit xiv. 2. 46 and that the RV. Anukr. makes $dev\bar{a}h$ the deity of RV. x. 85. 17 (which = AV. xiv. 2. 46): and he accordingly offers the suggestion that $catatamy\bar{a}$ may be a text-error for $daca-catatamy\bar{a}$.

[The Major Anukr. continues: parā [?] (xiv. 1. 25-?) nṛṇām vivāhamantrāçiṣah.
parā dehy (xiv. 1. 25) açlīlā tanūr (xiv. 1. 27) iti dve vadhūvāsahsamsparçamocanyāu. ye vadhva (xiv. 2. 10) iti yakṣmanāçanī. parā (xiv. 2. 11) dampatyoh

[The statements of the RV. Anukr. as to "deity" correspond quite closely with those just given, but with some differences: thus it says -nindā for -mocanyāu; etc. In particular, the description nrnām vivāhamantrā āçiṣaç ca is applied by the RV. Anukr. to RV. x. 85. 20-28. All these 9 RV. verses have more or less close correspondents in AV. xiv.: they are, respectively, AV. xiv. I. 61; 2. 33 (cf. RV. vss. 21 and 22); I. 34; I. 19, 18, 20, 21, 26. All this, it seems, fails to square with the parāh of the text of our Anukr., and reinforces Mr. Whitney's suspicion (above, p. 739) that the arrangement of the verses contemplated by that text may have been different from that which appears in the Berlin edition. — In connection with this suspicion should be considered also the fact that the Anukr. adds at the end the pratīkas iii. 30. I, ii. 36. I, and xx. 126. I: see below, p. 768.

[In the Major Anukr., moreover, a curious addition is inserted after the definition of xiv. 1.60, as follows: (the text of its beginning is uncertain: ity? or parāviny?) edhiṣīmahīti vyāghrādiṣv avagantavyaḥ. Cf. the introduction to xi. 1 and especially the note to xv. 5.7.]

1. Marriage ceremonies.

[Sāvitrī Sūryā. — ātmadāivatam (1-5. somam astāut; 6-[?]. svavivāham; 23. somārkāu; 4. candramasam; — 25[?]-[?]. nṛṇām vivāhamantrāçiṣaḥ; 25, 27. vadhūvāsaḥsamsparçamocanyāu). [As to the foregoing, see above, p. 739.] ānuṣṭubham: 14. virāṭ prastārapaūkti; 15. āstārapaūkti; 19, 20, 23, 24, 31-33, 37, 39, 40, 45, 47, 49, 50, 53, 50, 57, [58, 59, 61]. triṣṭubh (23, 31, 45. bṛhatīgarbhā); 21, 46, 54. 64. jagatī (54, 64. bhurik triṣṭubh); 29, 55. purastādbṛhatī; 34. prastārapaūkti; 38. purobṛhatī 3-p. paroṣṇih; [48. pathyāpaūkti;] 60. parānuṣṭubh.]

The hymn (except vss. 4, 62, which are wanting altogether, and 41, 42, which occur in other books) is found also in Pāipp. xviii., with petty differences of order, noted under the verses. A large part of the $anuv\bar{a}ka$ or hymn corresponds to the wedding hymn (x. 85) in the Rig-Veda. The Vāit. does not treat the marriage ceremony, and only four or five of the verses of the book are quoted by it; but a large part of them are used in the sections (75-79) of the Kāuç. which deal with the subject.

Translated: in so far as it corresponds to RV. verses, by the RV. translators; further, the parts that are peculiar to our text, by Ludwig, p. 470; and, as AV. hymn, all of it, by Weber, Ind. Stud. v. 195-204 (see 178 ff.); Griffith, ii. 159.—A large part of the wedding-hymn is given in my Sanskrit Reader, pages 89-90: the notes thereon (at pages 389-390) may be consulted, and also the notes at pages 398-401.

1. By truth is the earth established (ut-stabh); by the sun is the sky established; by righteousness the Ādityas stand; Soma is set (crita) upon the sky.

The verse is RV. x. 85. 1, without variant. The pada-text also reads úttabhitā, by Prāt. iv. 62, the s being omitted by ii. 18. Kāuç. directs vss. 1 and 23 to be used in preparing the sacrificial fire, at the beginning of the chapter on the marriage-rites (75.6: according to the comm., vss. 1–16 are meant, and 23–24); and again, near the end of the chapter (79. 16), the whole book is directed to be so used. [Ppp. has satvena for satyena at the beginning.] [Cf. MP. i. 6. 1, and Wint., p. 66.]

2. By Soma are the Adityas strong; by Soma is the earth great; likewise in the lap of these asterisms is Soma placed $(\bar{a}-dh\bar{a})$.

- Is RV. x. 85. 2, without variant. [Cf. MP. i. 9. 2; Wint., p. 74; MGS. i. 14. 8 and p. 157.]
- 3. One thinks himself to have drunk Soma when they crush up an herb; what Soma the priests (brahmán) know, of that no earthly man partakes.
- RV. (x. 85. 3) reads at the end káç caná for pārthivas. In b, Bs.P.M.W.T. read -piṣanti, D. -piṣanti; Ppp. has -piṣanti. The pratika is quoted in GB. i. 2. 9 [printed 8].
- 4. When, O Soma, they drink thee [up], then thou fillest thyself up again; Vāyu is Soma's defender; the month is norm (dkṛti) of the years (sámā).
- RV. (x. 85. 5) reads deva for soma in a. The verse (as noted above) is wanting in Ppp.
- 5. Guarded by covering-arrangements, defended by watchmen (?? bār-hata), O Soma, thou standest hearing the pressing-stones; no earthly one partakes of thee.
- Is RV. x. 85. 4, without variant. All this talk about the moon as identical with Soma at the beginning of the Sūryā-hymn seems very meaningless unless Sūryā is really the moon, who every month "goes to" her spouse the sun.
- 6. Intention (citti) was the pillow, sight was the ointment, heaven [and] earth were the coffer $(k\delta \epsilon a)$, when Sūryā went to her husband.
 - Is RV. x. 85. 7, without variant.
- 7. The $r\bar{a}ibh\bar{i}$ was the parting [song] (??anudéy \bar{i}), the $n\bar{a}r\bar{a}canst$ was the welcoming one (?nyócan \bar{i}); Sūryā's garment verily was excellent; she goes adorned with song ($gath\bar{a}$).
- Is RV. x. 85. 6, which reads at the end pariskrtam (p. pariskrtam) for pariskrtā (which our p. and s. both have). The translation given ventures new conjectures for anudéyī (lit. 'to be given after') and nyôcanī (lit. 'making wonted or at home'); the Pet. Lexx. say 'dowry' [so BR. iii. 569, OB. i. 52: but cf. BR. i. 205 and v. 987] and 'ornament'; Ludwig 'vom Hause mitgegeben' and '[ins neue Haus] einführend'; Weber, 'train' and 'hand-maid.'
- 8. The laudations (stóma) were the cross-pieces (?? pratidhí); meter was the kurira, the opaçá; of Sūryā the Açvins were the wooers, Agni was the forerunner.
- Is RV. x. 85.8, without variant. For kurira and opaçá, women's head-dresses or parts of such, compare vi. 138. In this connection the commentators' explanation of pratidhi "cross-pieces on the chariot-pole" is extremely unlikely; it must rather be some article of a woman's dress. Ppp. reads and combines paridhayas k-.
- 9. Soma was the bride-seeker; both Açvins were wooers, when Savitar gave to her husband Sūryā, praising (çans) with her mind.
- Is RV. x. 85. 9, without variant, save that our pada-mss. falsely leave adadāt unaccented. 'Praising,' apparently 'assenting gladly.' Ppp. reads at end 'dadhāt.

- 10. Mind was her cart; heaven also was [its] canopy; the two draft-oxen were white (cukrá), when Sūryā went to her husband.
 - RV. (x. 85. 10) has at end grham instead of patim.
- II. Haltered with verse (ic) and chant (sáman), thy two oxen went peaceful (sāmaná); ears were thy (two) wheels; in the sky the wandering track.

Abhihita seems to be the correlative to abhidhānī. Our 'ears' (p. çrôtre tti) is a bad variant to RV. (x. 85. 11) çrôtram, 'hearing.' RV. also has in b itas for āitām. We have to gain in c a syllable by harsh resolution in order to make a full pāda. Ppp. reads in a upahitāu.

- 12. Clean were the (two) wheels of thee as thou wentest; out-breathing (vyāná) was the inserted axle; a cart made of mind did Sūryā ascend when going forth to her husband.
- Is RV. x. 85. 12, without variant. The pada-reading manasmayam in c is by Prāt. iv. 24. [Here Roth's Collation says "çacī wie Vulgata"!]
- 13. The bridal (vahatú) of Sūryā, which Savitar sent off (ava-srj), has gone forth; in the Maghās are slain the kine; in the Phalgunīs is the wedding.
- RV. (x. 85. 13) reads in c aghāsu* [Ppp. has the same], and hanyante without the antithetical accent which all our mss. give, and which our text ought to read, and, for d, arjunyoḥ pāry uhyate. The Maghā stars are what we call the Sickle, in the neck of Leo; the Phalgunī stars are the rectangle β , θ , δ , 93 Leonis; arjunī = phalgunī; the moon is in the latter either one or two days after it is in the former.† From such utterly indefinite data the attempt to extract a date is wasted labor. 'Is the wedding': vy ùhyate is the verb corresponding to vivāha 'wedding,' lit. 'driving away'; Ppp. reads instead vi havyate. The second half-verse is quoted in Kāuç. 75. 5, in the general definition of the time for wedding. [With reference to this much-discussed verse, see: Weber, in Abh. der Berliner Ak. for 1861 (Nakṣatra-essay), p. 364, and in Sb. for 1894, p. 804; Jacobi, Festgruss an Roth, p. 69; Wint., p. 32.]
- *[Weber discusses the readings aghāsu and maghāsu, and deems the RV. reading to be in this case the secondary one: Sb. 1894, p. 807.] †[Concerning these asterisms (no's 10, and 11, 12) see Whitney, JAOS. vi. 332-4, or Oriental and Linguistic Studies, ii. 352-3. It is not impertinent to note that the regents of the Phalgunīs are Bhaga and Aryaman, and that those of the Maghās are the Manes. For the latter, cf. TB. iii. 1. 48: só 'tra juhoti: pitrībhyah svāhā, maghābhyah svāhā, 'naghābhyah svāhā, gadābhyah svāhā, 'rundhatībhyah svāhē, 'ti; but better TS. iv. 4. 10.]
- 14. When, O Açvins, ye went asking, with your three-wheeled [chariot], to Sūryā's bridal, where was one wheel of yours? where stood ye for pointing out?

The verse corresponds, without variant, to RV. x. 85. 14 a, b and 15 c, d. The sense of the questions is wholly obscure.

15. When ye went, O lords of beauty, unto the wooing of Sūryā, all the gods assented to that [deed] of yours; Pūshan as son chose a father.

This verse, again, corresponds to parts of two in the RV., namely x. 85. 15 a, b and 14 c, d; the only variant is that RV. reads pitárāu for -ram in d, and Ppp. pitarā 'vṛ-, which doubtless means the same. Metrically the verse is as much virāj as vs. 14.

- 16. The two wheels of thee, O Sūryā, the priests (brahmán) know seasonably; further, the one wheel that is in secret—that, verily, the enlightened (addhāti) know.
- Is RV. x. 85. 16. All our mss. accent in a sūrye and in d [all save D.] vidúh; our edition corrects both words to accordance with RV. Close correspondence with RV. x. 85 ceases with vs. 16, at the end of the Sūryā-hymn proper. [SPP. reads sūrye with all his authorities, and vidúh with nearly all. He adds: "the correction to viduh is not inevitable." But I do not see how the accented form is to be rendered.
- 17. We make offering to Aryaman of good connections, husband-finder; like a gourd from its bond, from here I release, not from yonder.

This verse is found as RV. vii. 59. 12, a late and ungenuine appendage to that hymn, and having no pada-text; its reading is very different, namely: tryàmbakam yajāmahe sugándhim puṣṭivárdhanam: urvārukám iva bándhanān mṛtyór mukṣīya mā 'mṛtāt; and with this agree TS. (i. 8. 6²) and MS. (i. 10. 4), except that they accent sugandhim in b; VS. (iii. 60) has tryàmbakam in a; for b, sugandhim pativédanam; for d, itô mukṣīya mā 'mútah. Ppp. has at end muñca mā 'mutah. Vāit. 9. 19 quotes the RV. verse in the cāturmāsya ceremony, giving the text in full; Kāuç. 75. 22 makes our verse accompany an oblation offered when the wooer comes in. The Anukr. takes no notice of the redundant syllable in c (read -kám 'va). [For 17, 18, cf. MP. i. 5. 7, and Wint., p. 56.]

- 18. I release [her] from here, not from yonder; I make her well-bound yonder, that she, O gracious Indra, may be rich in sons, well-portioned.
- Is RV. x. 85. 25, without variant [save that our text does not give muñcāmi the antithetical accent]. Prāt. ii. 65 teaches the combination -tas karam. Ppp. begins pre 'to muñcata mā 'mutaḥ. The mantrapāṭha [MP. i. 4. 5] of the Āpastamba Gṛḥya-Sūtra (see Winternitz, Altind. Hochzeitsrituell etc., p. 54) has a varying version, reading in a muñcāti mā [Oxford text nā], and in b karat.
- 19. I release thee from Varuna's fetter, with which the very propitious Savitar bound thee; in the lair $(y\delta ni)$ of righteousness, in the world of the well-done, be it pleasant for thee accompanied by the wooer (-sambhalá).

The first three pādas are the same with RV. x. 85. 24 a-c, the only RV. variant being sucévah at end of b; for d, RV. has áristām tvā sahá pátyā dadhāmi. TS. (i. 1. 10²; iii. 5. 6¹) has a nearly corresponding verse: imám ví syāmi várunasya pāçam yám dbadhnīta savitā sukétah: dhātúç ca yónāu sukrtásya loké syonám me sahá pátyā karomi. Our first half-verse is repeated below as 58 a, b; and the pratīka quoted in Vāit. 4. 11 doubtless belongs to the latter, and not to this verse as assigned by the editor. On the other hand, the pratīka quoted in Kāuc. 75. 23, used in connection with loosing the scarf (veṣṭa) tied about the bride, doubtless belongs here. The Āpastambatext (Winternitz, p. 63) gives two slightly differing versions of the verse [MP. i. 5. 16].

Ppp. puts the verse next after our vs. 16; [but further it makes our 19 c, d change place with our 58 c, d, reading, however, 'stu sahapatnī vadhū for our astu sahāsambhalāyāi].

- 20. Let Bhaga lead thee hence, grasping thy hand; let the Açvins carry thee forth by a chariot; go to the houses, that thou mayest be housewife; thou, having control, shalt speak unto the council.
- RV. (x. 85. 26) begins with $p\bar{u}_{\bar{s}}$ instead of bhágas. In Kāuç. (76. 10) the verse accompanies the leading of the bride out of her house.
- 21. Let what is dear succeed (sam-rdh) here for thy progeny; watch thou over this house in order to housewife-ship; mingle thy self (tant) with this husband; then shalt thou in advanced age speak to the council.
- RV. (x. 85. 27) reads in a prajdyā (as does also Ppp.), and in c-d srjasvā 'dhā jtvrī vidātham ā vadāthaḥ. Our d is the same with viii. 1.6 d above, and our mss. here also read jtrvis (except Bs.I., jtvis), which ought to have been adopted in our text. The Apastamba text (Winternitz, p. 74 [MP. i. 9. 4]) has jīvrī. The verse, with several others, is quoted in Kāuç. 77. 20 in connection with the bride's entering her new abode. The verse lacks two syllables of being a full jagatī. [Vs. discussed by Bloomfield, JAOS. xix.² 14; cf. Baunack, KZ. xxxv. 495, 499.]
- 22. Be ye (two) just here; be not separated; attain your whole lifetime, sporting with sons [and] grandsons, rejoicing, well-homed.
- RV. (x. 85. 42) reads své grhé instead of svastakāú, and Ppp. has the same. Ppp. also has dirgham for viçvam in b. [Cf. MP. 1. 8. 8 and note.]
- 23. These two move on one after the other by magic; two sporting young ones go about the ocean; the one looks abroad upon all beings; thou, the other, disposing the seasons art born new.
- 24. Ever new art thou, being born; sign of the days, thou goest to the apex of the dawns; thou disposest to the gods their share as thou comest; thou extendest, O moon, a long life-time.

These two verses are repeated here from vii. 81. 1, 2; [see the notes to those verses: also the Anukr. extracts at p. 739, ¶ 4, which refer vs. 23 to sun and moon and vs. 24 to the moon]. Most of verse 23 we had also as xiii. 2. 11. In order to make sure that the two right ones are reproduced, all our mss. read here pūrvāparām nāvonavah (instead of, as usual, pūrvāparām tti dvé). They are RV. x. 85. 18, 19, and are found also in other texts, as to which and the various readings see the notes to vii. 81. 1, 2. Ppp. has in 23 d (with RV.) jāyate punah, and in 24 (also with RV.) bhavati, eti, and dadhāti (but apparently tirase). In Kāuç. 75. 6, vs. 23 (according to the comm., both 23 and 24) is used with vs. 1; in 79. 28, vs. 64 is allowed instead of vs. 24, in case the latter is not known.

- 25. Give thou away the çāmulyà; share out goods to the priests (brahmán); it, becoming a walking (padvánt) witchcraft, enters the husband [as] a wife.
- RV. (x. 85. 29) differs only by reading $bh\bar{u}tv\hat{i}$ in c; our pada-text has $bh\bar{u}tv\hat{a}:\hat{a}:j$ -. According to Kāuç. 79. 20, the verse accompanies the giving away of the bride's undergarment, which is regarded as extremely ill-omened if not so disposed of and expiated by gifts to the Brahmans. [Cf. the Anukr. extracts, p. 739, end.] Çāmulyà is defined in the Pet. Lexx. as "a woolen shirt," as identical with çāmūla, which is so defined by the comm. to LÇS. ix. 4. 7. The Apastamba text (Winternitz, p. 100 | MP. i. 17. 7 |) reads instead

- 26. It becomes blue-red; [as] witchcraft, infection, it is driven away (?); her relations (jñātl) thrive; her husband is bound in bonds.
- Is RV. x. 85. 28, without variant. Vy djyate is translated as coming from root aj instead of anj, 'is smeared.' Pāda a perhaps refers to the bloody discoloration of the garment; d to its ill effects if not duly expiated. The Ap.-text (Wint., p. 67 MP. i. 6. 8) has for a nilalohité bhavatah, as if the garments were two. RV. and AV. pada-texts have āsaktth undivided.
- 27. Unlovely becomes [his] body, glistening in that evil way, when the husband wraps his own member with the bride's garment.
- RV. (x. 85. 30) reads at the beginning açrīrā, and at the end-dhitsate; Ppp. also has açrīrā; [and tanus for tanūs]. Most of our mss. (all save P.M.W.) give vāsasas in c, and this is accordingly more probably to be regarded as the AV. reading. [So SPP. with all his authorities.] [The Berlin ed. has vāsasā, to accord with the RV.] Anga might mean 'body' (so the translators). [For vss. 27, 28, 29, cf. respectively MP. i. 17. 8, 10, 9, and see Wint., p. 100.]
- 28. Carving on, carving open, also cutting over apart; see the forms of Sūryā; them also the priest (brahmán) cleans (cumbh).
- RV. (x. 85. 35) reads at the end tú çundhati [cf. BR. vii. 261, top]. Weber [p. 190] sees in the verse a comparison of the blood on the bride's garment with that from the sacrificial victim when dismembered, the priest having power to cleanse both stains away.
- 29. Harsh is that, sharp, barbed, poisoned; that is not to be eaten; what priest (brahmán) knows Sūryā, he indeed deserves the bride's [garment].
- RV. (x. 85. 34) inserts another etát after kátukam, and reads vidyāt for véda in c. The omission of kátukam (with, in RV., etát) would rectify the meter of a; as it stands, it is an extremely poor "bṛhatī" pāda. Áttave 'to be eaten' is very strange here. Sūryā in c is generally understood to mean 'the Sūryā-hymn.'

The following four verses are found in no other text.

30. That priest verily takes this garment, pleasant, well-omened, who goes over the expiation, by whom the wife takes no harm.

The pada-text reads prāyaçcittim, undivided; if we had -ttam, yéna would apply to it, instead of to brahmā. Ppp. reads, for a, b: sa vāi tam syono harati brahma vāsas sumangalan.

31. Do ye (two) bring together a successful (sámrddha) portion, speaking right in right-speakings; O Brahmanaspati, make the husband shine (ruc) for her; let the wooer (sambhalá) speak this speech agreeably (cáru).

According to Kāuç. 75.8, 9, this verse is addressed to the wooer and his companion, when they are sent out to win the bride; the second half-verse to the priest (who is one of them?). 'Make shine,' doubtless 'set in a favorable light.' The verse $\lfloor scanned \rfloor$ by the Anukr. as $11+9:12+12=44 \rfloor$ may best be read as 11+11:12+12; $\lfloor but d \rfloor$ has a bad cadence $\lfloor scanned \rfloor$. Ppp. reads mrtyodyena at end of b, and sumbhalo in d.

32. May ye be just here; may ye not go away; may ye, O kine, increase this man with progeny; going in beauty. ruddy, with somasplendor — may all the gods turn (kt) your minds hither.

In Kāuç. 79. 17 this verse (according to the commentators, this and the next) seems to be directed to accompany the paying (in kine) the price demanded for the bride; but surely that cannot have been its original sense. The first pāda is identical with iii. 8. 4 a; c has a redundant syllable. The pada-text writes çúbham: yatīh, but the expression is, so far as accent is concerned, treated as if a compound: compare 2. 52 below. No reason is discoverable for the accent of krán in d.

33. May ye, O kine, enter this man together with progeny; this man minisheth $(m\bar{i})$ not the share of the gods; for this man shall Pūshan, and all the Maruts, for this man shall Dhātar, Savitar quicken $(s\bar{u})$ you.

Ppp. reads viçadhvam at end of a. This verse indicates distinctly that the preceding one is meant as a wish for prosperity in respect to kine.

34. Free from thorns, straight, let the roads be by which [our] comrades go a-wooing for us; together with Bhaga, together with Aryaman—let Dhātar unite [us] with splendor.

The first half-verse is RV. x. 85. 23 a, b, which, however, reads with MP. $\rho anth as$ for our metrically bad -th anas; the second half goes on: $\rho anth anas$ for our metrically bad $\rho anas$; the second half goes on: $\rho anas$ and $\rho anas$ for our deviation of $\rho anas$ for our deviation of $\rho anas$ for our deviation of $\rho anas$ for $\rho anas$

35. Both what splendor is placed in dice, and what in strong drink — what splendor, O Açvins, is in kine, with that splendor favor (av) ye this woman.

All our mss. accent açvinā in c; our edition makes the necessary correction to açvinā. LSPP. adopts and defends the reading açvinā. Ppp. puts the verse after our vs. 36. The Anukr. does not heed that the first pāda lacks a syllable. According to Kāuç. 75. 27, this verse, with 43 below, is used in connection with pouring of water on the bride; and again, in 139. 15, this and the next, with several others from different books, accompany a libation [in the fire] in the ceremony of initiation into Vedic study; both also (35, 36) are reckoned as belonging to the varcasya gaṇa (see note to Kāuç. 13. 1). [Cf. ix. 1. 18; vi. 69. 1.]

36. With what [splendor] the backsides of the courtezan (mahānagnī), O Açvins, or with what the strong drink, with what the dice were flooded (abhi-sic), with that splendor favor ye this woman.

That is, apparently, give her all the attractions which these various seductive things are known to possess. 'Courtezan,' lit. 'great naked woman,' emending to -nagnyās: but all authorities, both SPP's and W's, have -naghnyās]. The verse has a distant likeness to one in PGS. ii. 6. 12. The s of asicyanta is by Prāt. ii. 92, where this example is quoted in the commentary. The redundant syllable in the first pāda passes unheeded by the Anukr. For the use of the verse in Kāuç. see the note to the preceding verse. Ppp. puts the verse before our 35 as noted above, and the ms. reads for a: yan mā nagnā jaghnam.

37. He who shines $(d\bar{\imath})$ without fuel within the waters, whom the devout (vipra) praise at the sacrifices (adhvara) — O child of the waters, mayest thou give waters rich in honey, with which Indra increased, full of heroism.

The verse is RV. x. 30. 4, which accents didayat, and reads at the end viryàya. Ppp. combines in a yo 'nidhmo. Kāuç. 75. 14 makes the verse accompany the piercing (pra-vyadh) of a stick of wood (loga) in the water.

38. Now do I remove $(apa-\bar{u}h)$ the glistening seizer $(gr\bar{a}bh\acute{a})$, bodyspoiling; what sheen is excellent, that I draw up (ud-ac).

Ppp. reads in the first half-verse $tan\bar{u}d\bar{u}sim$ athi $nud\bar{u}mi$. For its second half it has yac civo bhadro rocanas tena $tv\bar{u}m$ api $nud\bar{u}mi$, making a fair half-anustubh. According to Kāuc. 75. 15, 16, the thing (the pierced piece of wood) is removed with the first two pādas; and with the third water is drawn up $(anv\bar{v}pam)$ in the direction of the current') and is then presented with vs. 39. The verse (9+8:11=28) is described by the Anukr, with mechanical correctness.

39. Let the Brahmans take for her [water] for bathing; let them draw up (?) waters that slay not a hero; let her go about the fire of Aryaman, O Pūshan; father-in-law and brother-in-law are looking on (prati-īkṣ).

The translation implies the obvious emendation of ajantu to acantu in b. [Cf. the MP. reading acantu, and also xi. 1. 2, where vácam answers to the RV. reading vájam.] There is also something wrong about d, where a plural verb is made to agree with two singular subjects. The Apast. mantra-text (Wint., p. 43 [MP. i. 1. 7-8]) has in both pādas (as well as in other respects) better readings: å 'syāt brāhmaṇāh snāpanam harantu: dvīraghnīr úd acantv āpah*: aryamnō agnīm pāri yantu kṣiprām prātī "kṣantām çvaçrūvo devārāç ca. Ppp. reads in a-b ā 'smāi harantu snapanam brahmaṇā 'vīr-; and in c, 'gnīm pary eti kṣipram. [The kṣipram of Ppp. and MP. suggests that] our pūṣan in c may be a corruption for oṣām; [cf. also vii. 73. 6 a]. The use of the verse by Kāuç. 75. 17 was noticed in the preceding note; in 76. 20, the second half-verse accompanies the leading of the bride thrice about the fire (in Āpast. the laying of a ring of darbha-grass upon her head). The Anukr. does not heed the lack of a syllable in b. * Oxford text āpaḥ: misprint?]

40. Weal be to thee gold, and weal be waters; weal be the post (methi), weal the perforation (tárdman) of the yoke; weal be for thee the waters having a hundred cleansers (-pavitra); for weal, too, mingle thyself with thy husband.

Ppp. is much corrupted in this verse, but can be seen to read metis for methis in b; in c it combines $t\bar{a}$ "pah, and in d it omits u. In Kāuç. 76. 12, the verse is muttered (according to the paddhati, it and the following verse) while the bride is bound to the right yoke-pole and the left yoke-hole, and a piece of gold is fastened to her forehead. Purification by the yoke-hole (apparently growing out of the occurrence of the next verse in RV.) plays a part in various versions of the marriage-rites; [cf. note to vs. 41]. Apast. (Wint., p. 44 [MP. i. 1. 10]) has this same verse with unimportant variations (medhī in b, etc). [Cf. Wint., p. 46.] The verse (11+12:11+11=45) is slightly irregular [but has trisṭubh-cadences throughout].

41. In the hole of the chariot, in the hole of the cart, in the hole of the yoke, O thou of a hundred activities, having thrice purified Apālā, O Indra, thou didst make her sun-skinned.

The verse is RV. viii. 80 (91). 7, which has for sole variant pātvī in c. Prāt. ii. 64 prescribes the combination tris p-, but part of our mss. (O.R.K.) read trih. The Apast. version (Wint., p. 43 [MP. i. 1. 9]) is quite corrupt. [Cf. MGS. i. 8. 11 and p. 149.] In Ppp. the verse is not found among the marriage verses, but in book iv., [and without variant]. [For a careful treatment of the Apālā story, see H. Oertel, in JAOS. xviii. 26.] [The MP. version of this verse furnishes Böhtlingk occasion for some interesting general critical remarks, Berichte der sächsischen Gesellschaft, Feb. 5, 1898, p. 4.]

42. Hoping for well-willing, offspring, good-fortune, wealth, becoming obedient (dnuvrata) to thy husband, gird thyself in order to immortality.

This verse also is found in Ppp. away from the rest, in book xx., and with much difference of text: thus, b-d, praco bahur atho balam: indrāny anuvratā san nahye amṛtāya kam. In Kāuç. 76. 7, the verse is used, with 2. 70, when the bride is girded with a bond, a yoke-rope (yoktra). The Āpast. version (Wint., p. 45 [MP. i. 2. 7]) has tantīm for rayim in b, agnēr for pātyur in c, and, for d, sām nahye sukṛtāya kām. Vāit. 2. 6, again, makes it accompany the girding of the sacrificer's wife at the sacrifice. In the Berlin ed., correct kam to kām.

43. As the [mighty $(?v\dot{r};\bar{s}\bar{a})$] river (sindhu) won $(?s\bar{u})$ the supremacy of the streams $(nad\dot{t})$, so be thou supreme $(samr\dot{a}j\bar{n}\bar{\iota})$, having gone away to thy husband's home.

Perhaps sindhu should be rendered 'Indus' (so Zimmer, p. 317; Weber, p. 199). Susuve, lit. 'impelled for one's self,' is employed here in an unusual sense; the word is quoted as example under Prāt. ii. 91; iv. 82. Ppp. reads sūsuve wrkāt. By Kāuç. 75. 27, the verse accompanies the emergence of the bride from the bath (with vs. 35, above).

44. Be thou supreme among fathers-in-law, supreme also among brothers-in-law; be thou supreme over sister-in-law, supreme also over mother-in-law.

The verse is RV. x. 85. 46, which, however, reads for a, s. cváçure bhava; for b, s. cváçure bhava; for c, nánāndari s. bhava; for d, s. ádhi devṛṣu; and MB. (i. 2. 20) agrees throughout with RV. (cvaçryām in b must be a blunder). [MP. i. 6. 6 follows RV., but with cvaçruvām in b: cf. Wint., p. 66.]

45. They (f.) who spun, wove, and who stretched [the web], what divine ones (f.) gave the ends about, let them wrap thee in order to old age; [as] one long-lived put about thee this garment.

Ppp. combines in a yā 'kṛntan. The verse is found also in PGS. (i. 4. 13), HGS. (i. 4. 2), MB. (i. 1. 5). All end a with yā atanvata; in b, all insert ca after yās; and PGS. reads tantūn abhito * tatantha, and MB. devyo antūn abhito tatantha; for c, they have tās tvā devīr (MB. devyo) jarasā (PGS. -se) samvyayantv (PGS. -yasva); in d, only HGS. has āyuṣmān. [Cf. MP. ii. 2. 5, and Wint., p. 47, and MGS. i. 10. 8 and p. 154.] The verse has an extra syllable in a which the Anukr. does not notice. In Kāuç. 76. 4, this and vs. 53 accompany the putting of a hitherto unused garment upon the bride. [The same two vss. are referred to by the name paridhāpanīye at 79. 13: so the schol.] *[This sandhi is of course not to be laid at the door of the accurate Stenzler: it is doubtless the true reading of PGS., and occurs (not only in MB., but also) in Bhavadeva's Paddhati, as Stenzler observes in his Transl., p. 12.]

[The corruption of abhito 'dadanta (so AV.) to abhito tatantha (PGS. MB. Bhavadeva) is of peculiar text-critical interest, not merely because it is a senseless and unintelligent perversion, but because it is revealed as a corruption by the ignorant failure of the persons responsible for it to change their sandhi in such a way (abhitas tatantha) as to fit their blunder. — This interest is heightened by the fact that we can see the probable occasion of the perversion, to wit, the occurrence in the preceding pāda of the words for 'spun,' 'wove,' 'stretched web' (root tan). These technical terms of cloth-making lend a semblance of appropriateness to the introduction of tantūn tan 'stretch the warp' in pāda b. — Roth had already booked tatantha among the cases of exchange between sonants and surds at ZDMG. xlviii. 108.]

46. They bewail the living one (m.); they lead away the sacrifice $(adhvar\acute{a})$; the men sent their thoughts after $\lfloor root \ dh\bar{\iota} \ldots \acute{a}nu \rfloor$ a long reach $(pr\acute{a}siti)$; what is lovely $(v\bar{a}m\acute{a})$ for the Fathers who came together here; joy to the husbands for embracing the wife.

This is a literal version of this extremely obscure verse. RV. (x. 40. 10) reads in a vi mayante adhvaré; in b, the equivalent didhiyus [so also Ppp.]; in c, the equivalent sameriré; in d, jánayas (for our janáye, which might better have been emended in the edition to jánaye); [Ppp. reads and combines janayas]. The Apast. text (Wint., p. 42 [MP. i. 1. 6]) reads at the beginning jīvām. The verse is used, with 2. 59, in Kāuç. 79. 30, simply to accompany a libation, at the very close of the marriage rites. In two Sūtras (AGS. [i. 8. 4] and CGS. [i. 15. 2]) it is directed to be used when the bride, on the journey to her new home, wails or cries; this is plainly only on account of the word 'bewail' (rudanti) at the beginning. [Cf. Lanman's Skt. Reader, p. 387; Winternitz, p. 42; and Bloomfield, who devotes 9 pages to the stanza in AJP. xxi. 411-9.]

47. I maintain for thee, in order to progeny, a pleasant, firm (dhruvá) stone in the lap of the divine earth; stand thou on that, one to be exulted after, of excellent glory; let Savitar make for thee a long life-time.

Ppp. puts syonam after dhruvam in a, reads pṛṭhivyām in b, and tam ā rohā 'numadyā suvīrā for c, and tvā for te in d [i.e., it has tvāyus for ta āyus]. In Kāuç. 76. 15, the first half-verse accompanies the setting of a stone in a lump of dung, and in 76. 16 the second accompanies the stepping of the bride upon it: this at the bride's home; and the same is repeated (Kāuç. 77. 17, 19) in the new home of the pair after their arrival there. Pāda a has 12 syllables, unnoticed by the Anukr.

48. Wherewith Agni grasped the right hand of this earth, therewith grasp I thy hand; do not stagger in company with me, with both progeny and riches.

The last pāda [prajayā etc.] is wanting in Ppp., which puts the vs. after 50]. The verse accompanies in Kāuç. 76. 19 the seizing of the bride's hand to lead her about the fire. The Anukr. seems to overlook the vs.; though, if the last pāda were omitted, it would fall under the general definition of the hymn, as an anuṣṭubh. [As to vss. 48-51, cf. Wint., p. 48 f. For the pānigrahana, he cites Rāmāyana, i. 75 (Gorresio: or i. 73 Schlegel).]

49. Let god Savitar grasp thy hand; let king Soma make thee to have good offspring; let Agni, Jātavedas, make the spouse well-portioned, long-lived, for her husband.

Ppp. has this verse next after our vs. 47, by removing [as noted] 48 to after 50. The Anukr. takes no notice of the deficiency of two syllables in c.

50. I grasp thy hand in order to good-fortune, that with me as husband thou mayest be long-lived; Bhaga, Aryaman, Savitar, Purandhi \[p\u00fcramdhi \] — the gods have given thee to me in order to housewifeship.

The verse is RV. x.85.36, which varies only by reading at the beginning grbhnāmi. MB. (i. 2.16) has precisely the RV. form of the verse; HGS. (i. 20.1) and Āpast. (Wint., p. 49 [MP. i. 3.3]) read in a suprajāstvāya, and HGS. has also grhnāmi and (at end of b) asat. [Cf. MGS. i. 10. 15 a, and p. 150.] [As to puramdhi, cf. WZKM. iii. 268; and Pischel, Ved. Stud. i. 202-216.]

51. Bhaga hath grasped thy hand; Savitar hath grasped thy hand; thou art [my] spouse by ordinance (dhárman), I thy house-lord.

Ppp. reads dhātā for bhagas in a, inserts te before hastam in b, and adds after b two pādas: bhagas te h. a. and aryamā te h. a., [then finishing with our c, d]. One of the subsidiary treatises (see note to Kāuç. 76. 10) substitutes the verse for vs. 20 above (see note there).

52. Be this woman mine, bringing prosperity (pósya); Brihaspati hath given thee to me; in company with me [as husband] do thou live, rich in offspring, a hundred autumns.

Bp. and Bs.p.m. give in c (as does Ppp.) prajāvatī, and I.K. prajāvatī; prajāvatī is evidently the preferable reading; [and is implied in the translation]. [Of SPP's authorities, 4 have prajāvatī against 6 with prajāvatī (which latter he adopts): but not less than 7 have (like W's I.K.) the impossible prajāvatī, which supports both readings or neither!] The verse is found also in PGS. i. 8. 19, and in a khila to RV. x. 85 (Aufrecht², p. 682); both have prajāvatī; in a, both have dhruvāi 'dhi posye (RV. -syā) mayī. [See also MP. i. 8. 9: that also has prajāvatī.]

53. Tvashṭar disposed (vi- $dh\bar{a}$) the garment for beauty, by direction of Brihaspati, of the poets; therewith let Savitar and Bhaga envelop this woman, like Sūryā, with progeny.

In Kāuç. 76. 4, this verse is used with vs. 45, above [which see], with dressing the bride in a new garment [cf. Wint., p. 47]; and the same is repeated in Kāuç. 79. 13 at another point in the ceremonies. The full number of syllables is to be obtained in b only by a harsh resolution. Ppp. has in c nāryam [cf. note to vs. 59], and at the end the decidedly better reading prajāyāi.

54. Let Indra-and-Agni, heaven-and-earth, Mātariçvan, Mitra-and-Varuṇa, Bhaga, both Açvins, Brihaspati, the Maruts, the bráhman, Soma, increase this woman with progeny.

Ppp. has again $n\bar{a}rya\dot{m}$ in d. Only a is a real $jagat\bar{i}$ pada, even by number of syllables (and doubtless we are to read -prthvi); the second definition of it in the Anukr. notices this.

55. Brihaspati first prepared (k!p) the hairs on the head of Sūryā; with this, O Açvins, do we thoroughly adorn (ςubh) this woman for her husband.

It looks as if prathamás were an intrusion in a. $\lfloor \ln c$, Ppp. has for a third time $n\bar{a}rya\dot{m}$. \rfloor In Käuç. 79. 14 the verse is made to accompany the parting of the bride's hair with a blade of darbha-grass; according to the paddhati, this verse and the next are used together for the purpose.

56. This [is] that form in which the young woman $(y \delta s \bar{a})$ dressed herself; I desire to know with [my] mind the wife $(j \bar{a} y \delta)$ moving about; I will go after her with nine-fold (?návagva) comrades: who, knowing, unloosened (vi-cyt) these fetters?

This obscure verse gets no light from Ppp., the other texts, or the sūtras. The padatext reads in c ánu: artisye; doubtless it is only a contraction for ánu vartisye.

57. I loosen (vi- $s\bar{a}$) in me the form of her; he verily shall know, seeing the nest of mind; I eat not stolenly; I was freed (ud-muc) by mind, myself untying (crath) the fetters of Varuna.

Ppp. reads at the end $p\bar{a}cam$. This verse and doubtless the next (its pratika, which is $pratv\bar{a}$ $mu\bar{n}c\bar{a}mi$, would also designate vs. 19 above) are used, with vii. 78. 1, by Vāit. 4. 11, to accompany the ungirding of the sacrificer's wife. Both are used also by Kāuç. 76. 28 with the ungirding of the bride.

58. I release thee from Varuṇa's fetter, with which the very propitious Savitar bound thee; wide space $(lok\acute{a})$, an easy road here, do I make for thee, O bride $(vadh\acute{a})$, with thy husband.

The first half-verse is identical with vs. 19 a, b, and corresponds with RV. x. 85. 24 a, b (which reads at end sucevah). Ppp. reads for a-b imām vi syāmi varuņasya pāçam tena tvā etc.; [cf. the TS. version of our 19 a]. [As noted under vs. 19, Ppp. makes our 58 c, d change place with our 19 c, d, reading, however, sūgam itra for our sugām ātra and sahapatnī vadhūh for our sahāpatnī vadhūh.] Vss. 58, 59, 61 appear to be overlooked by the Anukr., probably by a loss of something out of the text: this (11 + 11 : 10 + 12 = 44) is an irregular tristubh; the longer form pánthānam would relieve the difficulty: cf. vs. 34, where, as between the longer and shorter equivalent forms, our text is most clearly at fault.

59. Raise ye [your weapons]; may ye smite away the demon; set this woman in what is well done; inspired Dhātar found for her a husband; let king Bhaga go in front, foreknowing.

[Ppp. combines a-b thus: hanāthe imām; and that is followed by] nāryam [for nārīm, as in 53, 54, 55*] in b. Kāuç. 76. 32 uses vss. 59, 60, 62 at the setting out of the bride for her new home. This verse also is an irregular tristubh (11 + 10:12 + 11 = 44). *[Cf. the Ppp. variant bhūmyam for bhūmim, xiii. 2. 40, 41.]

60. Bhaga fashioned the four feet; Bhaga fashioned the four framepieces (?úṣyala); Tvashṭar adorned (piç) the straps (?várdhra) along in the middle; let her be to us of excellent omen.

Kāuç. uses the verse not only as stated in the preceding note, but also (76.25), more properly, with 2.31, when the bride mounts the couch (talpa). Ppp. reads in a padas; in b, catvāry aspadāni; in c, madhyato varadhrām. [For úsyala, cf. note to vi. 139.3.] [For the addition to the Anukr. at this point, see above, p. 740, ¶ 2, and especially the note to xv. 5.7.]

61. The well-flowered (sukinçuká), all-formed bridal-car (vahatú), golden-colored, well-rolling, well-wheeled, do thou mount, O Sūryā, to the world of the immortal; make thou a bridal-car pleasant to husbands.

The verse is RV. x. 85. 20, which reads calmalim in a for vahatum, and in d patye for patibhyas, and kṛṇṇṣva for kṛṇu tvām. MB. (i. 3. 11) also has calmalim, patye, and kṛṇṇṣva, but further in b suvarṇavarṇam sukṛtam, and in c nābhim for lokam. [Cf. MP. i. 6. 4; MGS. i. 13. 6 and p. 157.] Kāuç. 77. 1 combines it with 2. 30, as used when the bride is made to mount the vehicle that takes her to her new home. Ppp. has in c sukṛtasya loke. The verse is a good triṣṭubh.

62. Her, not brother-slaying, O Varuna; not cattle-slaying, O Brihaspati; not husband-slaying, possessing sons, O Indra — bring [her] for us, O Savitar.

The Apast text (Wint., p. 41 [MP. i. 1. 3]) has a corresponding but quite different verse: reading apatighnim in b, and, for c, d, indrå putraghnim laksmydm tam asyai savitah suva. The Anukr does not heed the deficiency of a syllable in a. For the use of the verse in Kāuç. (76. 32), see the note to vs. 59. It is wanting (as above noticed) in Ppp.

63. Injure ye not the maiden (kumārt), ye (two) pillars, on the god-made road; the door of the divine house we make pleasant, a road for the bride.

Or, 'we make a pleasant road' etc. In Kāuç. 77. 20, the verses 2. 26; 1. 21, 63, 64, in this order, are used to accompany the bride's stepping forward into the house. [Cf. Wint., p. 72, top.]

64. Let the bráhman be yoked after, the bráhman before, the bráhman at the end, in the middle, the bráhman everywhere; going forward to an impenetrable stronghold of the gods, do thou (f.), propitious, pleasant, bear rule in thy husband's world.

Besides the use of the verse in Kāuç. 77. 20, as noticed just above, it is quoted, with 2. 8, in 77. 2, when the bride sets out, with a Brahman in front. In 79. 28, it is allowed to be substituted for vs. 23; and in that case (? 79. 32) the ceremony is called brāhmya instead of sāurya.

2. Marriage ceremonies (continued).

The Anukramaṇī, as we have it, omits the description of several of the verses (26, 34, 36, 38, 47, 50, 68); Land, on the other hand, it defines verses 13 and 33 each twice, each once right and once wrong; and it mixes the order of others compare Whitney's remarks, above, page 739, $\exists$ 3, and mine, page 740, top.

The verses (except 50, 58) of this anuvāka or hymn are found also in Pāipp. xviii. (for slight differences of order, see under the verses). Labout a dozen verses of this anuvāka or hymn also occur in the RV. wedding-hymn, x. 85. Only one verse (47) is used by Vāit., but nearly all by Kāuç.

Translated: parts, of course, by the RV. translators; and the parts peculiar to our text by Ludwig, p. 472; and, as AV. hymn, by Weber (as above), Ind. Stud. v. 204–217. For vss. 59–62, see Bloomfield, AJP. xi. 336–341, or JAOS. xv., p. xliv, = PAOS. for Oct. 1890.

1. For thee in the beginning they carried about Sūryā, together with the bridal-car; mayest thou, O Agni, give to us husbands the wife, together with progeny.

The verse is RV. x. 85. 38, RV. reading púnah for sá nah in c. All our mss. accent in dágne, but it has been emended to agne in our edition. Ppp. agrees with RV. in having in c punas pat. [Cf. PGS. i. 7. 3; MP. i. 5. 3; MGS. i. 11. 12 b, and p. 150.] Kāuç. 78. 10 quotes this verse with 45 below, both preceded by vi. 78. 1, and followed by a long prose-passage, when the pair approach the priest to receive a sort of baptism.

2. Agni hath given back the spouse, together with life-time, with splendor; of long life-time, may he who is the husband of her live a hundred autumns.

Is RV. x. 85. 39, without variant. [Cf. MP. i. 5. 4; MGS. i. 11. 12 c, and p. 152.] The combination ydh pátih in c is assured by Prāt. ii. 70.

3. Soma's wife first; the Gandharva thy next husband; Agni thy third husband; thy fourth, one of human birth.

The verse is RV. x. 85. 40, which, however, has for a, b somah prathamo vivide gandharvo vivida úttarah. It is found also in PGS. (i. 4. 16) and HGS. (i. 20. 2); the former agrees entirely with RV.; the latter deviates from it only in d, where it gives turiyo 'ham man-: Ppp. combines in b aparas p. [Cf. MP. i. 3. 1.]

4. Soma gave to the Gandharva; the Gandharva gave to Agni; both wealth and sons hath Agni given to me, likewise this woman.

Is RV. x. 85. 41, without variant. Found also in MB. (i. 1.7) and HGS. (i. 20. 2): in the latter, with very different readings: somo 'dadād gandharvāya gandharvo 'gnaye 'dadāt: paçūnç ca mahyam putrānç cā 'gnir dadāty atho tvām. [Cf. MP. i. 3. 2; MGS. i. 10. 10 a, and p. 157; also Wint., p. 48.]

5. Your favor hath come, O ye (two) of abundant good things (?vājínīvasu); [our] desires have rested in [your] hearts, O Açvins; ye have been twin keepers, O lords of beauty; may we, being dear, attain favorers (aryamán) of our homes (?dúrya).

The verse is RV. x. 40. 12, RV., however, reading ayansata at end of b. $\lfloor MP.i.7.11$ follows the RV. text, but with $k\bar{a}m\bar{a}n$ for $k\bar{a}m\bar{a}s$: cf. Wint., p. 70. \rfloor More points than one in the translation are doubtful.

6. Do thou (f.), rejoicing with propitious mind, assign wealth having all heroes, to be extolled; an easy crossing ($t\bar{\imath}rthd$), well provided with drink, O lords (du.) of beauty; do ye smite away the pillar standing in the road, [namely] disfavor.

This verse is altered from RV. x. 40. 13 in a strange and senseless manner. RV. reads for a, b tā mandasānā mānuṣo duroṇā ā dhattām rayim sahāviram vacasyāve, thus making the verse concern the Açvins throughout; who is our 'thou' (sā) does not appear. In c the sense is destroyed by altering the RV. verb kṛtām (as if it were misunderstood for a participle) to sugām; and in d patheṣṭhām (p. patheoṣṭhām) is turned to pāthiṣṭhām (p. pāthioṣṭhām) and accented as if it were a superlative; [cf. the confusion at vi. 28. 1]. The verse is used also in the Āpast. sūtra (Wint., p. 68 [MP. i. 6. 12]), with daṣavīram in b as its only variant from RV. Ppp. appears to read with our text. The verse lacks two syllables of being a real jagatī. In Kāuç. 77. 8 the verse is directed to be used on arriving at a ford or river-crossing on the bridal journey.

7. What herbs [there are], what streams, what fields, what forests—let these, O bride, defend from the demon thee, possessing progeny, for thy husband.

The Apast text (Wint., p. 70 [MP. i. 7.9]) has the same verse, but with different readings: for b, yani dhanvani ye vanah [Oxford text vana]; in c, te for tas; for d, pra tve muncantv anhasah. Kauç. 77. 11 uses it on the bridal journey under the circumstances mentioned in the verse.

8. We have mounted this road, easy, bringing welfare, on which a hero takes no harm, [but] finds others' goods.

The Apast. text (Wint., p. 67 [MP. i. 6. 11]) has the same verse, but with sugam panthanam å 'rukṣam ariṣṭam svas- in a, b. Kāuç. uses it in 77.2, with 1.64: see the note to 1.64. [For yasmin in c Ppp. has the sense-equivalent yatra: cf. its oṣam for our kṣipram at xii. 1.35; etc.]

9. Pray hear ye now of me, O men, by what blessing $(\bar{a}\varsigma is)$ the two spouses attain what is agreeable $(v\bar{a}md)$: what Gandharvas [there are] and heavenly Apsarases, who stand upon these forest trees $(v\bar{a}naspatyd)$, let them be pleasant unto this bride; let them not injure the bridal-car as it is driven.

The last four pādas form a verse also in the Āpast. text (Wint., p. 70 [MP. i. 7.8]), where for our d is read esú vṛkṣéṣu vānaspatyéṣv āsate, further çivās (for syonās) and vadhvāì in e, and ūhyámānām in f. In TS. iii. 2.84 is found the phrase yám āçṭrā dámpatī vāmám açnutāh, and āçṭrdāyā dámpatī vāmám açnutām. The verse is to be used, according to Kāuç. 77. 9, when the bridal train passes great trees. The Anukr. [appears to scan as 9 + 12:11 + 12:11 + 11 = 66; but pāda a is essentially defective]. All our mss. [and SPP's authorities] read in e te, which our edition emends to te; [but SPP. reads te, construing a-d together, and e-f separately: 'unto thee, the bride herè'; which seems hard]. Ppp. combines in c gandharvā 'ps-.

10. What yákṣmas go to the bride's brilliant (candrá) car among the people, let the worshipful gods conduct those back whence they came.

The verse is RV. x. 85. 31; RV. reads in b jánād ánu. The Apast. text (Wint., p. 67 [MP. i. 6. 9]) has the same verse. [The Anukr. calls the vs. yakṣmanāçanī.]

11. Let not the waylayers who pursue $(\bar{a}\text{-}sad)$ [them] find the two spouses; let them go over what is difficult by an easy [road]; let the niggards run away.

Is RV. x. 85.32, whose only variant is sugébhis in c. We had a as xii. 1. 32 d, and d as vi. 129. 1-3 d. MB. (i. 3. 12) and Apast. (Wint., p. 67 [MP. i. 6. 10]) have the RV. reading. The verse is used (Kāuç. 77. 3), with 1. 34, when the bridal train starts. [The Anukr. calls the vs. dampatyoḥ paripanthināçanī.]

12. I cause the bridal-car to be viewed by the houses with worship (bráhman), with a friendly, not terrible eye; what of all forms is fastened on about, let Savitar make that pleasant for the husbands.

Ppp. reads at the end krnotu tat. According to Kāuç. 77.14, the verse is uttered when the train comes in sight of the house. Apast. vi. 6 (Wint., p. 70 $\lfloor MP$. i. 7.10 \rfloor) has the same verse, with the variants $m\bar{a}ltrena$ in b, $asy\bar{a}m$ for asti in c, and (like Ppp.) krnotu tât at the end. The comm. to Apast. understands c of the ornaments worn by the bride, as indicated by the reading $asy\bar{a}m$. The verse (13 + 11:11 + 12 = 47) is but a poor $jagat\bar{t}$.

13. Propitious hath this woman come to the home; Dhātar appointed this world (sphere) to her; her let Aryaman, Bhaga, both Açvins, Prajāpati, increase with progeny.

The Anukr. takes no notice of the irregularities of the meter (9 + 11 : 10 + 11 = 41). Let defines the verse twice, first as tristubh, then as purobrhatī (cf. vi. 126. 3). Pādas b and d are good tristubh pādas; and a and c will pass if we resolve naārī iyam and taām.

14. [As] a soulful cultivated field hath this woman come; in her here, O men, scatter ye seed; she shall give birth to progeny for you from her belly (vakṣáṇās), bearing the exuded (dugdhá) sperm of the male (ṛṣabhá).

A couple of our mss. ([E.]D.) read asyām in c. The first pāda is capable of being compressed into 11 syllables, but with violence. Ppp. has for b yasyān naro vapanta bījam asyāḥ, and in c janayāt.

[The likening of the woman to the field is very familiar later: cf. Manu ix. 33 f. Cf. also the ματρὸς ἄρουραν of Aeschylus (Septem, 753); Sophocles' ἀρώσιμοι γὰρ χάτέρων εἰσὶν γύαι (Ant., 569); Eurip. Phoen. 18; etc. My colleague, Professor George F. Moore, calls my attention to Koran ii. 22, "Your women are your plow-land," in Arabic, harth. — Griffith's (not very close) version suggests a different interpretation: he takes dugdhám as 'milk' of the maternal breast. Perhaps after all we should (with W.) join it with retas, and in the sense of 'milked'; but with this difference, that it refers to the retas which is "milked" as a result of the action implied in páso nt galgalīti dhārakā at VS. xxiii. 22. Mahīdhara says vīryam kṣarati (cf. kṣīram). — This interpretation is fortified by the use of dhayati at RV. i. 179. 4, Lópāmudrā vṛṣaṇam (nadám) dhayati ⟨vasántam.]

15. Stand firm; virāj art thou; as it were, Vishņu here, O Sarasvatī; O Sinīvālī, let her have progeny; may she be in the favor of Bhaga.

Kāuç. 76. 33 uses the verse to accompany the act of making the bride stand firm after rising from the couch. The Anukr. forbids us to abbreviate to νa in b. In Ppp. a considerable part of the verse is lost. The second half-verse appears again below as 21 c, d.

16. Let your wave smite up the pegs; O waters, release the yokeropes (yóktra); let not the two inviolable [kine], not evil-doing, free from guilt, come upon what is unpropitious (?áçuna).

The verse is RV. iii. 33. 13, which, however, reads $\zeta \tilde{u}nam$ for $d\zeta unam$ in d, and $vy \partial nas \bar{a}$ for $-s\bar{a}u$ in d; and Ppp. agrees with RV. [W's "[kine]" seems to overlook the gender of $aghny \bar{a}u$: see Griffith's note, p. 174.] Kāuç. 77. 15 makes the verse accompany the sprinkling of the car and unyoking of the oxen at the end of the bridal journey.

17. With an eye not terrible, not husband-slaying, pleasant, helpful (çagmá), very propitious, of easy control (suyáma) for the houses, herobearing, loving brothers-in-law (?), with favoring mind — may we thrive together with thee.

The concluding word is here rendered as the text gives it, but there is little question that it ought to be emended (with Ppp.) to -mānāḥ, as qualifying 'we.' This verse and the next are a sort of duplication and variation of RV. x. 85. 44; our a here is nearly the same with the first pāda of that verse, which, however, reads edhi for our syonā. Ppp. makes our 17 c, d and 18 c, d change places, reading for the former vīrasūr devakāmā syonām tvedhiṣīmahi sumanasyamānāḥ. Our mss. are divided in c between devṛkāmā and devdk-, the majority (not Bp.Bs.p.m.E.O.D.) having, with RV. and Ppp., the latter, which is therefore more probably the true reading. Ppp. has in a (like RV.) edhi but with syonā after it [a "blend-reading" such as the Vulgate shows at vs. 18?]; and, in b, sūyamā gṛheṣu. [Cf. MP. i. 1. 4; MGS. i. 10. 6, and

- p. 146. The verse accompanies in Kāuç. 77. 22 the leading of the bride thrice about the fire. PGS. i. 4. 16 and HGS. i. 20. 2 have it in its RV. form, with slight variants in HGS. Our verse (11+11:7+13=42) is metrically much too irregular to be set down as simply a tristubh.
- 18. Not brother-in-law-slaying, not husband-slaying be thou here, propitious to the cattle, of easy control, very splendid, having progeny, hero-bearing, loving brothers-in-law(?), pleasant, do thou worship (sapary) this householder's fire.

Our mss. differ, as in the preceding verse, between devṛkāmā and devāk- in c. The first three pādas agree nearly with RV. x. 85.44 a-c, but the latter begins a with aghoracakṣus (like our 17 a) [and omits ihā], reads sumānās instead of suyāmā in b, and in c omits prajāvatī and gives devākāmā; its fourth pāda is the commonplace phrase çām no bhava dvipāde çām cātuṣpade. Ppp. reads for a, b: adevaraghni patiraghny edhi syonas paçubhyas sumanas suvīraḥ; and, for c, d (given, as noted above, as second half of the preceding verse): prajāvatī vīrasūr devṛkāme mam agn- etc.; it thus gets rid of the syonā whose apparent intrusion spoils the triṣṭubh-character of our c, d. [The ms. reckons syonā to d (by placing the mark of pāda-division before it); but the integrity of imām etc. as a pāda (without syonā) is palpable. Likely our text represents a blend of two readings: vīrasūur devākāmā sionā (RV.), and prajāvatī vīrasūr devṛkāmā (Ppp.): cf. under vs. 17. — Perhaps the corruption at xviii. 1.39 below is in part due to a confused blending of two readings.]

19. Stand up from here; desiring what hast thou (f.) come hither? I [am] thine overcomer, O Ida, out of [my] own house; thou that hast come hither, O perdition, seeking the empty—stand up, O niggard; fly forth; rest not here.

This exorcism accompanies, according to Kāuç. 77. 16, a complete sprinkling of her new home by the bride. All our mss. [and all SPP's authorities] have at end of c ājagāndha; our edition [not SPP's] makes the, as it seems, necessary emendation to -ntha, which Ppp. also appears to have. [See Roth, ZDMG. xlviii. 108.] Ppp. further reads in a -thā 'daṣ kim, combines ā 'gā 'ham, and begins c with açūnyeṣī. In b the translation assumes the pada-reading ide—not ide, as previous translators prefer to understand; it is hard to tell which word is more out of place. The verse is once more a very poor sort of tristubh. [It may be counted as 44 syllables. Pādas a, b, c scan easily as 11 + 12:11; but the good tristubh cadence of d casts suspicion on the integrity of its prior part.]

20. When this bride hath worshiped the householder's, the former (ptiva) fire, then, O woman, do thou pay homage to Sarasvatī and to the Fathers.

Ppp. (which not rarely substitutes $\bar{a}i$ for $\bar{\imath}$) seems to agree with all our mss. in reading asaparyāit [see the note to vi. 32. 2]. Prāt. ii. 65 prescribes the combination námas kin d. The first pāda (10 syll.) is both irregular and defective. By Kāuç. 77. 23, the verse, with vs. 46 below, is to accompany the homage paid by the bride to the deities mentioned.

21. Take this protection, defense, to spread under this woman; O Sinīvālī, let her have progeny; may she be in the favor of Bhaga.

The second half-verse is the same with 15 c, d above. The rendering implies [after $n\vec{a}ry\vec{a}i$ in b] an emendation to upastire (infinitive), which is the reading of Ppp. The Apast. text (Wint., p. 71 [MP. i. 8. 1]) also has it; further, in a it has idám á bhara, and, in d, iyám inserted before bhágasya. In Kāuç. 78. 1, the verse is directed to be uttered while he (the bridegroom?) brings the hide of a red ox.

22. What rushes (bálbaja) ye cast down, and [what] hide ye spread under, that let the girl (kanyā) of good progeny mount, who finds a husband.

Balbaja is the Eleusine indica, a coarse rush-like grass. In Ppp., the parts of vss. 22 and 23, and of 24 and 25, are more or less exchanged. In Kāuç. 78, the second pāda is first quoted (in 2), after our vs. 21; then follows (in 3) a, then (in 4) the first part of vs. 23, then (in 5) our c, then (in 6) the second half of vs. 23, all accompanying the corresponding acts of preparing a seat for the bride, that she may take a Brahman-boy into her lap, to encourage the obtainment of male progeny. It may be that Ppp. follows with its changed order the succession of the acts as given in Kāuç.

23. Spread under the rushes upon the red hide; sitting down upon it, of good progeny, let her worship this fire.

Bp.E. Land SPP's C. read at the end saparyata. For the use in Kāuç., see the preceding note. The second half-verse is used again in 79.5, when the bride sits down on the nuptial bed.

24. Mount the hide; sit by the fire; this god slays all the demons; here give birth to progeny for this husband; may this son of thine be of good primogeniture.

The last pāda is used by Kāuç. 78.8 as the boy is seated in the bride's lap, though unsuited to the purpose unless forced out of its natural meaning. [Cf. Wint., p. 75.] There must be some error in the Anukr. text relating to this verse and vs. 25 (which are trisṭubh) and vs. 32 (see below).

25. Let there come forth $(vi\text{-}sth\bar{a})$ from the lap of this mother animals $(paç\hat{u})$ of various forms, being born; as one of excellent omen, sit thou by this fire; with thy husband $(s\acute{a}mpatn\bar{i})$, be thou serviceable to the gods here.

In Kāuç. 78. 9 this verse accompanies the removal of the boy again from the bride's lap. The verse is a pure trisṭubh. [W. pencils the note "cf. K. xxxix. 10."]

26. Of excellent omen, extender (pratárana) of the houses, very propitious to thy husband, wealful to thy father-in-law, pleasant to thy mother-in-law, do thou enter these houses.

The comm. to Prāt. iii. 60 notes the accent of çvaçrvāl. The verse seems to be overlooked altogether in the Anukr. as we have it; it should be called a 3-p. virān nāma gāyatrī (11 + 11: 11 = 33). It is used in Kāuç. 77. 20 as the bride enters her new abode.

27. Be thou pleasant to fathers-in-law, pleasant to husband, to houses, pleasant to all this clan; pleasant unto their prosperity (pusta) be thou.

Ppp. puts this verse at the end of the book.

28. Of excellent omen is this bride; come together, see her; having given unto her good-fortune, go asunder and away with ill-fortunes.

The verse is RV. x. 85. 33, which, however, has a different ending: asyāi dattvāyā 'thā 'stam vi pāre 'tana; and this is read also by PGS. (i. 8. 9) and MB. (i. 2. 14). [Cf. MP. i. 9. 5; Wint., p. 74; MGS. i. 12. 1, and p. 157.] According to Kāuç. 77. 10, it is to be addressed to women who come to look at the bride on her journey. Ppp. reads in d dāurbhāgyena par. Our edition should read dattvā.

29. What evil-hearted young women, and likewise what old ones, [are] here — do ye all $\lfloor s\acute{a}m \rfloor$ now give splendor to her; then go asunder and away home.

The last pāda is nearly identical with RV. x. 85. 33 d: see the preceding note. All our mss. Land SPP's read in b jaratīs, as if vocative; our edition Lnot SPP's emends to jār-, as seems unavoidable.

30. The gold-cushioned (?-prastarana) vehicle, bearing all forms, did Sūryā, Savitar's daughter, mount, in order to great good-fortune.

[Nearly] all our mss. [and four of SPP's] accent rukmáprást- (p. rukmáoprást-) in a; our edition emends to rukmápra-. [SPP., with 13 of his authorities, reads rukmaprá-.] The verse is used with 1.61 (Kāuç. 77.1), when the bride mounts the car. [Note bibhratam joined with vahyám, neuter! is the case like those of cakrám āçúm, rátnam brhántam, gotrám hariçrtyam of RV.? cf. my Noun-inflection, p. 600, s.v. Genders.]

31. Mount the couch with favoring mind; here give birth to progeny for this husband; like Indrāṇī, waking with good awakening, mayest thou watch to meet dawns tipped with light.

Ppp. reads in c suptā for subūdhā, of which the stem and sense are questionable (it occurs elsewhere only in vs. 75, below); at the end it has cākaraḥ (for jāgaraḥ). LCf. Wint., p. 92. Let c The excess of syllables in c is a very poor reason for calling the verse (11+11:11+13=46) a jagatī. In Kāuç. 76. 25 the verse is used, with 1. 60, when the bride mounts the couch; and again, 79. 4, when she ascends the nuptial bed (vs. 23 immediately follows: see above).

32. The gods in the beginning lay with (ni-pad) their spouses; they embraced (sam-spṛç) bodies with bodies; like Sūryā, O woman, all-formed, with greatness, having progeny, unite (sam-bhū) here with thy husband.

Ppp. combines at the beginning devā 'gre. The verse (11+11:12+11=45) is almost a good tristubh, in spite of the Anukr. LI would be a perfect tristubh in cadence and otherwise if we had the right to excise $n\bar{a}ri$, the intrusive character of which is very likely. It is used in Kāuç. 79. 6 when the bride enters the nuptial bed; and also, in 75. 11, vss. 32-36 are strangely made to accompany the strewing of grasses by the wooers who have gone out to arrange for the bridal.

33. Stand up from here, O Viçvāvasu; with homage do we praise thee; seek thou a sister (jāmi) sitting among the Fathers, inserted (?nyàktām); that is thy portion by right of birth; know thou that.

This verse corresponds to RV. x. 85. 22 a, b and 21 c, d; but RV. reads at the beginning úd īrṣvā 'to viç-; and in c anyām for jāmim, and vyāktām for nyāktām, which seems a mere ignorant substitution for it. Our mss. are divided between nyāktām and -tām; I.E.p.m.O.s.m.R.T.D.K. give -tām, which ending is doubtless to be accepted as the true reading. Ppp. reads with RV. at the beginning, but goes on independently: ud īrṣvā 'taṣ patī hy eṣām viçvāvasum namasā gīrbhir tide. The Āpast. text (Wint., p. 89 [MP. i. 10. 1-2]) reads vittām for vyaktām. Compare Hillebrandt also in ZDMG. xl. 711; he renders vyāktām simply by 'bride,' one does not see why. [Cf. also Ved. Mythol. i. 435.] [For the metrical definitions of the Anukr., see above.]

34. The Apsarases revel a joint reveling, between the oblation-holder and the sun; they are thy birthplace; go away to them; homage I pay thee with the Gandharva-season.

The first half-verse is identical with vii. 109. 3 a, b. The verse, a fairly good tristubh, appears, with vss. 36 and 38, to be passed over by the London Anukr. The Berlin ms. gives the three pratikas, followed, without iti, by agastatakse (!). Ppp. begins the verse with yā 'psarasas s- (for yā aps-), and in b puts antara (for -rā) before havirdhānam.

35. Homage to the Gandharva's mind (?), and homage to his terrible (bháma) eye we pay; O Viçvāvasu, homage [be] to thee with worship (bráhman); go away unto thy wives, the Apsarases.

The translation implies the naturally suggested emendation in a of námase to mánase, which Ppp. supports, reading manaso. Ppp. has further bhāsāya for bhāmāya in b; and, for c, viçvāvaso namo brahmaṇā te kṛṇomi, and, in d, combines jāyā 'ps-. The addition of 'stu at the end of our c would rectify the meter of the pāda and make the definition of the Anukr. exact.

36. With wealth may we be well-willing; we have made the Gandharva go (vṛt) up from here; that god hath gone to the highest station (sadhástha); we have gone where they lengthen out [their] life-time.

The prefix d in b seems out of place. The last pāda appears twice in RV. (i. 113. 16 d; viii. 48. 11 d). The definition of the verse (as noted under vs. 34) appears to be omitted in the Anukr. For the application made in Kāuç. of this and the preceding verses, see under vs. 32; it does not seem at all suitable. Ppp. has in d for yatra the variant vayam [implying, perhaps, that the Kashmir Vāidikas understood pratiranta (p. praotirante) as pratirantas]. [With regard to an Anukr. statement that seems to concern this verse, see above, p. 739, \P 's 4, 5, 7.] [Cf. xviii. 2. 29 n.]

37. Unite (sam-srj), O ye (two) parents $(pit\tilde{r})$, the (two) things that are seasonable; ye shall be mother and father of seed; as a male $(m\acute{a}rya)$ a female $(y\acute{o}s\ddot{a})$, do thou mount her; make ye (two) progeny; here enjoy (pus) wealth.

[For "mount her," W. suggests in pencil "make her mount"; but I suspect that the full expression would be âdhi rohaya çêpa enām.] In a, ftviye is regarded by the pada-text as dual, and is translated accordingly; it probably means the respective contributions of the two to the embryo. Ppp. reads instead (-rā) vrdahaye, a welcome emendation. Further, in b, it puts pitā before mātā and has ja for ca and ends b with bhavātha; and it makes our 37 d and 39 c change place, but with pusyatu no for our pusyatam. Pronounce máryeva in c: the verse then scans easily as 11 + 11: 11 + 12, if we accept the resolution rtuive in a. According to Kāuç. 79. 8, it is used in the act of coition. Concerning the matter as an essential element of the ritual, see Winternitz, p. 92. Ppp. arranges this and the following six verses in the order 37, 40, 38, 39, 42, 41, 43.

38. Send, O Pūshan, her, most propitious, in whom men scatter seed (blja); who, eager, shall part our thighs; in whom we, eager, may insert the member.

The verse is RV. x. 85. 37, which, however, reads at end of c (with Ppp.) -crayāte ['who, eager, shall part her thighs for us'], and of d -hárāma çépam. All our mss. accent pūṣan in a; Bp. begins c with yāḥ: naḥ. The same verse is found in HGS. i. 20. 2, with nas after tām in a, visrayātāi in c, and -harema cepam in d. PGS. (i. 4. 16) has a corresponding, but quite different, text: sā naḥ pūṣā civatamām e "raya sā na ūrū uçatī vi hara: yasyām uçantaḥ praharāma cepam yasyām u kāmā bahavo niviṣtyāi. The Āpast. text (Wint., p. 90 [MP. i. 11. 6]) has the RV. version, except -cráyātāi at end of c. [Barring the bad cesura in a, the verse is a good triṣṭubh; but the definition (as noted under vs. 34) is omitted by the Anukr.]

39. Mount thou the thigh; apply the hand; embrace thy wife with well-willing mind; make ye (two) progeny here, enjoying; let Savitar make for you a long life-time.

The first half-verse is found also in the Apast. text (Wint., p. 90 $\lfloor MP.$ i. II. 7 \rfloor), with the variant (after $\bar{u}r\dot{u}m$) $\dot{u}pa$ barhasva $b\bar{a}h\dot{u}m$. $\lfloor Ppp.$, as just noted, makes our 37 d change place with our 39 c, reading, however, rodamānāu for mod-; and in its d it has tu for $v\bar{u}m$, combining tv $\bar{u}yus$ sav-. \rfloor The verse is ill defined as a jagatī or bhurik trisṭubh; it is properly a svarāt trisṭubh.

40. Let Prajāpati generate progeny for you (two); let Aryaman unite $(sam-a\tilde{n}j)$ [you] with days-and-nights; not ill-omened, enter thou this world of thy husband; be weal to our bipeds, weal to [our] quadrupeds.

The verse is RV. x. 85. 43, which, however, begins a with a nah pr., b with ajarasaya, and c with adurmangalih p. Ppp. also reads the latter (-lis p.); and, in d, astu for bhava. RV. further omits imam in c. [MB. at i. 2. 18 follows RV.] The Apast. text (Wint., p. 90 [MP. i. 11.5]) has precisely the RV. version. MS. (ii. 13. 23) has pāda a only. The verse is almost a good jagatī, only a little damaged by the intrusion of imam in c; [and a perfect jagatī, if (with RV. MB. MP.) we omit imam].

41. This bridal garment and bride's dress, given by the gods together with Manu, whoso gives to a knowing (cikitváis) priest (brahmán), he verily slays the demons of the couch (?).

The translation implies at the end the emendation (suggested also by Weber, p. 211) of tálpāni to tálpyāni, as required by both sense and meter, and supported by the Ppp. reading tṛpyāni. For b, Ppp. gives vādhūyam baddho (vadhvo?) vāso 'syāh, which, though metrically awkward, is not redundant in expression. In Kāuc. 79. 21, the verse accompanies the priest's acceptance of the bridal garment, given him with 1. 25. The verse is a good triṣṭubh, if emended as proposed in d. [Cf. vii. 37. 1 n.]

42. What priest's portion they (dual) give to me the bride-seeker (vadhūyú), the bridal garment and bride's dress, do ye, O Brihaspati and Indra, assenting, together give it to the priest (brahmán).

The anomalous accent dattam at the end is read by all our [and SPP's] authorities. 'Ppp. varies considerably: yan no 'diti brahmabhāgam vadhūyor vāso vadhvaç ca vastram; and dhattām at the end.

43. Awaking out of a pleasant lair $(y\delta ni)$, mightily enjoying yourselves, merry, having good kine, good sons, good houses, may ye, living, pass the outshining dawns.

Ppp. reads in c, d subhāu suputrāu sukṛtāu carātāu jīvā uṣ-; our P.M.W. have carātho. To accent tárāthas, counting it to d instead of c, would be an improvement. The verse (which scans 11+11:8+11 or 11+8=41) is very ill described by the Anukr. According to Kāuç. 79. 12, it accompanies the rising from the nuptial bed.

44. Clothing myself anew, fragrant, well-dressed, I have risen alive unto the outshining dawns; as a bird from the egg, I have been released out of all sin.

Ppp. combines a-b suvāso 'dā-. According to Kāuç. 79. 27, the verse is used when the priest comes back after washing the bridal garment.

45. Beautiful [are] heaven-and-earth, pleasant near by, of great courses; seven divine waters have flowed; let them free us from distress.

This verse is a repetition of vii. 112. 1. Ppp. reads in b yantusumne, and, for c, āpas sapta sravantīs (tā etc.). The redundant syllable in c is not noticed by the Anukr. here, although it was so at the other occurrence. The verse is used by Kāuç. 78. 10 with vs. 1 (see the note to that verse), and again in 78. 13 it accompanies the pouring of water into the folded hands of the pair; and yet again, in 79. 25, the pouring of water on the bridal garment; this use is evidently the one which gives the verse its place here.

46. Unto Sūryā, unto the gods, unto Mitra and Varuṇa, unto them who are forethoughtful of that which exists, have I paid this homage.

The verse is RV. x. 85. 17, with a differently ordered d, idám tébhyo 'karam námaḥ, by which is avoided the redundancy of a syllable — which the Anukr. passes unheeded. [Ppp. avoids it in yet another way by reading tebhyo 'ham akaram namaḥ.] Kāuç. uses it twice in 77; once in 5, on the wedding-journey; and again in 23, on arrival at the new home. [As to the "deity" of the verse, see above, p. 739, ¶'s 4, 5, 7.]

47. He who, without a clamp (?abhiçris), before the piercing of the neck-ropes (?jatrú), combines (sam-dhā) a combination—he the bountiful, the one of much good—removes again what is spoiled (vthruta).

[Or 'joins a joining' and 'mends again what is damaged,' as W. suggests in pencil.] This obscure verse is RV. viii. 1. 12, and is found also in several other texts, as SV. (i. 244), MS. (iv. 9. 12), TA. (iv. 20. 1), PB. (ix. 10. 1), KÇS. xxv. 5. 30. The RV. text differs from ours only by having in d iskartā for nisk-; KÇS. alone agrees with RV. in this; SV. is throughout as AV.: PB. begins yakṣate cid, and has vihṛtam in d; TA.

begins yad rte, has jartfbhyas in b, purovasus in c, [and vihrtam in d in the Calcutta ed.: the Poona ed., p. 327, prints it vihrutam, with a virāma after the h!]. MS. has a very corrupt text for a, b (jari cetia etc.), and samahis and puruv- in c; and the Apast. text (Wint., p. 69 [MP. i. 7. 1]) agrees throughout with TA. Ppp. writes ārdaḥ for ātrdaḥ. The needed description of the verse as a pathyābṛhatī is omitted by our Anukr. Vāit. 12.7 has the verse used as expiation when anything is broken during the sacrifice; Kāuç. 77.7, when anything on the bridal car needs mending; and also, 57.7, when a student's staff is broken.

48. Away from us let the darkness shine (vas), that is deep blue, brown ($piqd\bar{n}ga$), also red; she who is consuming, spotted, her I fasten (\bar{a} -saj) on this pillar.

The latter half-verse is corrupt in Ppp. beyond intelligibility. [The definition satah-paākti (cf. my note to vi. 20.3 and Ind. Stud. viii. 45) presumably means 9+11:9+11. If we could dispense with the $y\vec{a}$ in c, the verse would be excellent so far as rhythm and cadence go (8+11:8+11).] It is used in Kāuç. 79. 22 in connection with taking away the bridal garment to cleanse it. The 'she' is perhaps the female demon supposed to belong to the defiled article.

49. How many witchcrafts in the outer garment (?upavásana), how many fetters of king Varuṇa, what failures, what non-successes — them I cause to sit upon this pillar.

Ppp. has paçcācāne in a for upavāsane; and, for d, asmin tā stāno muñcāmi sarvām. Our P.M.W. read in d tān sth-; the rest, tāh sth-. In Kāuç. 79. 23 the verse is used immediately after the preceding. The lack of a syllable in a is disregarded by the Anukr.

50. What is my dearest self $(tan\hbar)$, that of me is afraid of the garment; of it do thou, O forest-lord, make first $(\acute{a}gre)$ for thyself an inner wrap $(n\bar{\imath}v\acute{\iota})$; let us not suffer harm.

This verse is used in Kāuç. 79. 24 next after the two preceding, the person who has the garment in charge wrapping a tree with it. The Anukr. contains no definition of the meter (8+8:8+11=35). The verse, as noted above, is wanting in Ppp.

51. What ends [there are], how many edges (síc), what webs, and what lines; what garment woven by the spouses—may that touch us pleasantly.

More lit., '[as] a pleasant one.' With this verse, according to Kāuç. 79. 26, the new possessor of the garment puts it on, then coming back with vs. 44. The Anukr. notices this time the redundant syllable in b (we are doubtless to contract to yāú 'tavo). Ppp. reads, for c, d, vāso yat patnībhṛtam tanvā syonam upa spṛṣaḥ.

52. Eager, these young girls, going to a husband from the father's world, have let go the consecration: hail!

All our mss. Land SPP's authorities leave yatth in b unaccented, as in 1.32 c, as if patim yatth were a sort of compound word, Lalthough the pada-text treats them as separate words! LCf. MP. i. 4. 4, and Wint., p. 54, vs. 4, p. 55 n. 1. The Anukr. counts in svaha at the end as a metrical part of the verse. According to Kāuç. 75. 24, this verse is uttered as the bride lays fuel on the fire; then [75. 25], with seven verses, (apparently, this and the six that follow [so schol.]), the prepared water is heated, and with vs. 65 below, the bride is bathed.

- 53. Her, let go by Brihaspati, all the gods maintained; what splendor is entered into the kine, with that do we unite this woman.
- [Cf. Böhtlingk, ZDMG. liv. 614.] Besides the use of vss. 53-58 made by Kāuç. 75. 25, as noticed in the preceding note, they are again applied in 76. 31, when at the end of the wedding ceremony the bride is sprinkled with fragrant powders. The connection of dvasṛṣṭām with dvā 'sṛṣṣata in vs. 52 c, suggests dīkṣām as the word to be supplied in the first lines of these verses; and so Ludwig translates.
 - 54. Her, let go etc. etc.; what brilliancy (téjas) is entered etc. etc.
 - 55. Her, let go etc. etc.; what fortune (bhága) is entered etc. etc.
 - 56. Her, let go etc. etc.; what glory is entered etc. etc.
 - 57. Her, let go etc. etc.; what milk (páyas) is entered etc. etc.
 - 58. Her, let go etc. etc.; what sap is entered etc. etc.
- Of these six verses, differing from one another only in one word, Ppp. omits one (58), and puts 55 after 56.
- 59. If these hairy people have danced together in thy house, doing evil with wailing from that sin let Agni and Savitar release thee.

This and the three following verses are discussed by Bloomfield in AJP. xi. 336 ff. Lor JAOS. xv., p. xliv. = PAOS. for Oct. 1890]. They evidently have no connection originally with marriage ceremonies, but rather with wailings for the dead, which are regarded as ill-omened and requiring expiation.* LCf. the following verses. LKāuç. quotes only this one (79.30), and for no definite purpose, combining it with 1.46 (see note to the latter). Ppp. reads in a yad ami for yadi 'me, and in c krnvatīs. The false accent krnvantās (which our edition has not corrected) is read by all our mss. save one (D.).

[krnvanto] appears ancient, traditional, and general." A note in my copy of AV. suggests that the blunder may have crept in from vs. 61; and I find my surmise confirmed not only by SPP. (who, however, attributes the wrong accent and kampa to vs. 60; see his note), but also by the fact of similar occurrences elsewhere: cf., for example, the curious avagraha of sámojñapayāmi at vi. 74. 2 (and my note); the impossible violhāti at xiii. 3. 17, and note; etc.]

- * Cf. Francis James Child, The English and Scottish Popular Ballads, part x., p. 498, under the heading "Tears destroy the peace of the dead," and the citation from MBh. xi. 1. 42-43 given on p. 294 of the same part: "For they [the tears], like sparks, 'tis said, do burn those men [for whom they're shed]." See Lüders, ZDMG. lviii. 507.
- 60. If this daughter of thine has wailed with loosened hair (vikeçá) in thy house, doing evil with wailing from that sin etc. etc.
- Ppp. has a very different text: yad āsāu [! yadā 'sāu?] duhitā tava vikresv arujat: bahu rodhena kṛṇvaty agham.

61. If $(y\acute{a}t)$ sisters $(j\ddot{a}m\acute{t})$, if young women, have danced together in thy house, doing evil with wailing — from that sin etc. etc.

Because of the redundant syllable [the second ydd, intrusion?] in a, the Anukr. absurdly separates this verse from the others here, and calls it a tristubh.

- 62. If in thy progeny, in thy cattle, or in thy houses is settled $(ni\text{-}sth\bar{a})$ any evil done by the evil-doers from that sin etc. etc.
- 63. This woman, scattering shrivelled grains (ptilya) appeals: be my husband long-lived; may he live a hundred autumns.

Ppp. reads in b pūlpāni instead of our pūlyāni. For the distinction between lpa and lya (note to vi. 127. 1), nāgarī mss. are of course not to be trusted. All but one of SPP's read pūlpāni and his two then living crotriyas recited pūlpāni. But in view of the Prākrit pulla etc. he reads pūlyāni.] Instead of our d, Ppp. reads edhantām pitaro mama. The same verse is found in several Sūtras: PGS. (i. 6. 2), HGS. (i. 20.4), MB. (i. 2.2), and the Āpast. text (Wint., p. 56 [MP. i. 5.2]); but with sundry various readings in b and d: for pūlyāni, the Āpast. text has gūlpāni [Oxford ed. kūlpāni], and PGS. lājān, while HGS. and MB. give for the whole pāda gnāu lājān āvapantī; in d the Āpast. text reads jīvātu, and the other three (nearly agreeing with Ppp.) for the whole pāda edhantām jūātayo mama; MB., moreover, inserts between c and d catam varṣāṇi jīvatu. [PGS. has in c āyuṣmān for dīrghāyus.] [Cf. MGS. i. 11. 12 d, and p. 148.] According to Kāuç. 76. 17, the verse is repeated while the bride stands firm upon the stone and scatters the grains. [For āvapantikā, cf. ii. 3. 1; iv. 37. 10; v. 13. 9 and notes.]

. 64. Here, O Indra, do thou push together these two spouses like two cakravākás; let them, with [their] progeny, well-homed, live out all their life-time.

Ppp. has in c the better reading prajāvantāu sv-, and, in d, dīrgham for viçvam. Some of our mss. (Bp.E.T.K.) and three of SPP's read at the end -nutam. The Kāuç. (79.9), on account of the verb sam-nud, has the verse used to accompany the act of coition.

65. What is done on the chair (āsandi), on the cushion (upadhāna), or what on the covering (upavāsana); what witchcraft they have made at the wedding (vivāhā) — that do we deposit in the bath.

Ppp. reads in a äsandhyā up. By Kāuç. 75. 26, the verse is used at the bride's bath, next after vss. 52-58, and before 1. 35, 43. [Griffith would seem to take yád as virtually equivalent to yām kṛtyām.]

[The āsandi appears to be now a throne (cf. AB. viii. 5, 6, 12), and now something between a lounging chair and a bed, 'a long reclining chair 'such as Anglo-Indians use today with more comfort than elegance. That it was usable also as a bier carried by four bearers appears from Dīgha Nikāya, ii. 23, and Buddhaghosa's scholion. Compare also the description below, AV. xv. 3. 3 ff. — In Hāla's Saptaçataka, āsandiā is glossed by khaṭvā (no. 112, ed. 1870) or paryaūkikā (no. 700, ed. 1881).]

66. What ill deed, what pollution at the wedding, and what on the bridal car — that difficulty do we wipe off on the dress (kambalá) of the wooer.

Ppp. reads in c sambharasya. Kāuç. 76. I makes the verse accompany the rubbing of the bride dry after the bath with a garment, which is then carried to the woods and fastened to a tree.

67. Having settled the defilement on the wooer, the difficulty on the dress, we have become worshipful, cleansed (qudh); may be extend our life-times.

Ppp. also has this time sambhale in a; in d, it combines nā "yūnsi and reads tārisam. [Here, as at iv. 10.6 and ii. 4.6: see notes,] part of our mss. (Bs.E.O.D.) read tārsat. With the verse compare xii. 2. 20 above. The Anukr. passes without notice the extra syllable in a.

68. The artificial hundred-toothed comb (?) that is here shall scratch away the defilement of the hair of her, away that of her head.

The majority of our mss. (all but Bs.s.m.P.R.) read kānṭakas 'thorn' in a. Ppp. has kān̄kadas. The Kāuç. text, 76. 5, with the subsidiary texts (see note to that rule), gives kan̄kata, with our edition. There is little to choose between the two readings. Ppp. reads in b apā 'syāt k-. The verse, which is a purauṣṇih, is not defined by the Anukr. Kāuç. 76. 5 makes it accompany the combing of the bride's hair after she has been bathed and (with 1.45, 53) clothed in a new garment.

69. Away from every limb of her do we deposit the yákṣma; let that not attain (pra-āp) the earth nor the gods; let it not attain the heaven, the wide atmosphere; let that defilement not attain the waters, O Agni; let it not attain Yama and all the Fathers.

Ppp. reads in a, b yo 'yam asyām upa yakṣmam ni dhatta nah. Kāuç. 76. 14 uses the verse to accompany the purifying of the bride. The metrical structure (8+8:11+11:11+11=60) is described as well as the Anukr. knows how.

70. I gird thee with the milk of the earth; I gird thee with the milk of the herbs; I gird thee with progeny, with riches; do thou, being girded, win $(\bar{a}$ -san) this strength $(?v\delta ja)$.

TS. (iii. 5.61) has a corresponding verse, of which this seems an artificial variation: sám tvā nahyāmi páyasā ghṛténa s. t. n. apá óṣadhībhiḥ: s. t. n. prajāyā 'hám adyá sā dīkṣitā sanavo vājam asmć. [Cf. MGS. i. 11.6 (with adbhls for apás), and p. 156.] Kāuç. 76. 7 uses the verse (with 1.42) at the girding of the bride.

71. He am I, she thou; chant am I, verse thou; heaven I, earth thou; let us (two) come together here; let us generate progeny.

The verse (8+8+8:7+8=39) is strangely called a brhatī by the Anukr. It is found, with more or less variation, in a host of other texts: AB. (viii. 27.4), TB. (iii. 7.19), K. (xxxv. 18), CB. (xiv. 9.419), AGS. (i. 7.6), PGS. (i. 6.3), HGS. (i. 20.2), Āp. (ix. 243). In the first pāda, TB. (with which HGS. and Āp. agree throughout) has the unintelligent reading ámūhám; AB. has sa for sā, which seems also a mere blunder. After this, AB.CB.AGS.PGS. add the same, inverted: sā (AB. sa again) tvám asy ámo hám (CB. PGS. ahám). As regards our third pāda, there is no variant in reading, but AB.TB.AGS.HGS.Āp. put it before our second. In our second pāda, the same texts omit the asmi; the whole pāda is wanting in Ppp. For our d, AB. has tāv eha sam vahāvahāi, and ends there; TB. etc. give as ending to the verse tāv & hi sám bhavāva sahā rēto dadhāvahāi pumsē putrāya vēttavāi; ÇB. nearly the same, but with samrabhāvahāi, dadhāvahāi, and vēttave; AGS. instead tāv e'hi vi vahāvahāi prajām pra janayāvahāi; PGS. spins out the longest ending: tāv e'hi vi vahāvahāi saha reto dadhāvahāi prajām pra janayāvahāi putrān vindāvahāi bahūn te santu jaradaṣṭayaḥ. [Cf. MP. i. 3.14, and Wint., p. 52; also MGS. i. 10. 15 d, and p. 146, and i. 10. 15 e, and p. 150, s.v. tā; also GB. ii. 3. 20; JUB. i. 54.] Kāuç. 79. 10 uses the verse, with i. 34. 1, after the consummation of the union.

- 72. The unmarried of us seek a wife, the liberal seek a son; may we (two), with uninjured life-breath, be companions (sac), in order to what is great, to winning of strength (?vdja-).
- 'Of us' in \mathbf{a} is dual $(n\bar{a}u)$ in the text, but requires, doubtless, emendation to nas or to $n\dot{u}$. The corresponding half-verse in RV. (vii. 96.4 \mathbf{a} , \mathbf{b}) has $n\dot{u}$; it reads janīyánto nv ágravaḥ putrīyántaḥ s. That our denominatives have a right to their short i is further vouched for by their quotation as examples for it under Prāt. iii. 18. Whether one should emend in \mathbf{d} to bṛhatyāi, or translate as is done above, may be made a question; it seems most likely to be a mixed construction, meaning virtually 'in order to the gaining of great vāja.' Vājasātaye is never joined with an adjective in RV. Ppp. reads with our text throughout.
- 73. What bride-beholding Fathers have come to this bridal-car, let them bestow on this bride, with her husband, protection accompanied with progeny.

The pada-text has the bad reading \hat{a} : agaman, instead of $\bar{a} \circ \acute{a}gaman$. Part of our mss. (Bp.P.M.W.O.) read in c sámpatyāi, but doubtless only by the scribes' oversight. According to Kāuç. 77. 12, the verse is to be used when the bridal train passes by a burial-place.

74. She who hath come hither before, girdling herself (?), having given to this woman here progeny and property — her let them carry along the road of what is not gone; this one, a viráj, having good progeny, hath conquered.

This obscure verse is not made clear by Kāuç. 77. 4; though the latter perhaps means it to be used if another bridal procession goes athwart the track at a cross-roads. The pada-text in a divides without any reason raçanāoyámānā. Perhaps, too, we ought to resolve pūrvāgan into pūrvā: āoágan, instead of pūrvā: ágan, as the p. does. The third pāda is perhaps a mere ill-wish with contempt: 'she may go to grass.' Ppp. reads in b dhattām, in c abhi for anu, and combines in d suprajā 'ty-. [For consistency, the Berlin text should have dattvā.]

95. Continue thou awake, waking with good awakening, unto length of life of a hundred autumns; go to the houses that thou mayest be house-mistress; let Savitar make for thee a long life-time.

Ppp. reads for c gṛhān pre 'hi sumanasyamānā, and combines in d tā "yus sav-. We had [part of a, above, in 31 c]; c above as 1. 20 c; and d as 1. 47 d [nearly =] 2. 39 d. According to Kāuç. 77. 13, the verse is to be used if the bride falls asleep on the road.

The Anukr. is not content with this length of hymn, but adds three more pieces from other parts of the Veda to fill up the "wedding of Sūryā": sahrdayam (iii. 30. 1) ity atharvā sāumyam [sāmmanasyam?] ānuṣṭubham ā no agna (ii. 36. 1) iti pativedanaḥ sāumyam trāiṣṭubham vi hī (xx. 126. 1) 'ti tryadhikāi "ndro [tryadhikam āindro?] vṛṣākapir indrāṇī 'ndraç ca (mss. -drasya) samūdire pāūktam ity eṣa sāuryavivāha iti.

[Here ends the second anuvāka, with 1 hymn (but see pages 738-9) and 75 verses. The quoted Anukr. says pañcasaptatir uttarah (see p. 738).]

Some mss. sum up the book as of 2 hymns and 139 verses (see p. 739). Here ends the twenty-ninth prapāṭhaka.

Book XV.

| The Vrātya. |

[This fifteenth book is the third book of the third grand division (books xiii.-xviii.) of the Atharvan collection; and (like books xiii. and xiv.) it clearly shows that unity of subject which is the distinguishing characteristic of the books of the division. Books xv. and xvi. are unlike all the others in that they consist exclusively of paryāya-sūktas, the former of 18, and the latter of 9. The book has, I believe, the distinction of being the first book of the Atharva-veda ever translated into an Occidental language: not only a translation of it, but also the original text, was published by Theodor Aufrecht, in the very first part of the first volume of the Indische Studien, pages 121-140, in August, 1849 (title-page, 1850: but see ZDMG. iii., pages 484, 482), some five or six years before the first part of the Berlin edition, the provisional preface of which is dated February, 1855. The bhāṣya is again lacking.]

[The word vrātya is defined by BR. as 'belonging to a roving band (vrāta), vagrant; member of a fellowship that stood without the Brahmanical pale.' It is further applied to the son of an uninitiated man (Bāudhāyana, i. [8.] 1616: cf. Manu, x. 20), or also to one who has let the proper time for the sacrament of initiation slip by (Manu, ii. 39). And the MBh., at v. 35. 46 = 1227, classes the vrātya with the offscourings of society, such as incendiaries, poisoners, pimps, adulterers, abortionists, drunkards, and so on.—In the St. Petersburg Lexicon, vi. 1503, BR. express the opinion that the praise of the vrātya in this book is an idealization of the pious vagrant or wandering religious mendicant. In this connection, Weber's History of Indian Lit., p. 112, may be consulted; also Bloomfield's more recent paragraph in his contribution to Bühler-Kielhorn's Grundriss, entitled The Atharvaveda, p. 94.]

The Anukr., in its statements as to the "deity" of the book, says adhyātmakam (see p. 773); and the Cūlikā Upanishād (see Deussen's Upanishads, pages 637, 640) reckons the vrātya as one among the many forms in which Bráhman is celebrated in the AV., mentioning in the same verse with vrātya (celebrated in AV. xv.) also the brahmacārin and the skambha and the palita (celebrated respectively at AV. xi. 5 and x. 7, 8 and ix. 9), etc.—And this view accords well with the penultimate verse of the fifth prapāthaka of the Chāndogya Upanishad (v. 24.4), where it is said of the sacrificial remnant that, if it be offered even to an outcaste, it is as good as if offered to the omnipresent All-soul, provided only it be done with the right knowledge. And a similar idea is perhaps meant to be expressed by our text here, AV. xv. 13. 8, 9.

[In spite of its puerility and surface-obscurity, the book is not unworthy of a searching investigation. That investigation should be one of much wider scope than I can now make; but I presume that the principal passages of the literature which would here come into consideration are those that treat of the vrātya-stomas (ceremonies by which vrātyas gain admission to the Brahmanical order), namely the seventeenth adhyāya of the PB. (parts I-4) and the eighth prapāṭhaka of LÇS. (part 6).—Excerpts from these passages were given by Weber (1849), Ind. Stud. i. 33, 52; and, more recently, the main points were reported by Hillebrandt, Ritual-litteratur, p. 139. And the whole matter has been made the subject of an article by Rājārām Rāmkrishṇa Bhāgavat, in the Journal of the Bombay Branch of the RAS., vol. xix., pages 357-364. He regards the vrātyas as non-Aryans. It is noteworthy that a number of the articles of the outfit of a vrātya as rehearsed by these two texts are found also in our AV. text: so, for example, the turban, the goad, the vipatha.

[The divisions of the book.—To begin with, the division into two anuvākas or 'lessons,' the first of 7 and the second of 11 paryāyas, is clearly avouched by the Old Anukr. (see next ¶ but one); and it is also proved by AV. xix. 23. 25, where the vrātya-book is mentioned as a dual, the text reading vrātyābhyām [accent!: sc. anuvākābhyām?] svāhā, 'to the anuvākas about the vrātya hail!'—The decad-division is wanting.]

[In the foregoing books, the Berlin edition has grouped together for the purposes of numeration the combinable paryāyas (see pages 471-2) so as to form the groups which it numbers as viii. 10 (with 6 paryāyas); ix. 6 (with 6); [ix. 7 has but 1;] xi. 3 (with 3); xii. 5 (with 7); and xiii. 4 (with 6). For theoretical consistency, the same procedure should have been followed in this book and the next: but the practical difference would have amounted to little (we should have had to cite, for example, xv. 1. 181 instead of xv. 18. 1, or xvi. 1. 91 instead of xvi. 9. 1); moreover, the procedure of the Berlin edition is questionable and has not been followed by the Bombay edition. For an account of the discrepancies thus arising, see pages 610-611; and for SPP's detailed defense of his procedure, see the Critical Notice in his first volume, pages 21-22, where he prints the pertinent text of the Old Anukr. in full and that of the Major Anukr. in large part.

— A comparison of the two texts shows that the later work has quoted the precise words of its predecessor throughout.]

[The quotations from the Old Anukr. are given piecemeal at the end of the anuvāka or paryāya or group of paryāyas to which they severally refer. They may here be given in metrical form. Of the first line, the prior half refers to the first anuvāka as a whole, and the latter half to the second. Lines 2-4 refer to the paryāyas of the first anuvāka; and lines 5-10 refer to those of the second. The numbers in parentheses refer to the paryāyas as counted from the beginning of the anuvāka; and those in brackets refer to the paryāyas as counted from the beginning of the book. vrātyādyāh sapta paryāyā ekādaça paro bhavet:

[A conspectus of the divisions in tabular form follows. In each of the two tables, the first line gives the number of the anuvāka, and that of the paryāya as counted from the beginning of the anuvāka; the second line gives the number of the paryāya as counted from the beginning of the book; the third gives the number of such divisions (gaṇas: p. 472) of a paryāya as show minor subdivisions; and these subdivisions are shown in the fourth line of the first table and in the fourth and fifth lines of the second table (the subdivisions of the fourteenth paryāya being called vacanāni: p. 472). In each table, the last line gives the number of divisions of a paryāya which are not further subdivided. — Observe that the statements of the two tables are all contained in the text of the Old Anukr., excepting those concerning the number of gaṇas (the third line in each table), which statements are taken from the summations noted by some mss. at the end of the gaṇa-paryāyas, and excepting the "sums" in the last column, and excepting the distribution of the avasānarcas of paryāyas 13 and 11 into 2 categories (as explained in the fourth paragraph of the next page).

Note that the "fourteen" and "eleven" assigned respectively to paryāyas ii. 6 (or 13) and ii. 4 (or 11) represent non-coördinate divisions, as explained below, p. 772. — Some mss. sum up the avasānarcas of the first anuvāka as 112. This agrees with the Old Anukr. (and the table). At the end of the second, we find the summation: gaṇas, 20; gaṇa-avasānarcas, 16; vacana-avasānarcas, 24; paryāya-avasānarcas, 71; in all, 16+24+71=111. This agrees with the table except in the last item, 71, which exceeds the 68 of the table by 3; and the sum for the whole book, (112+111=)223, shows the same excess.}

Differences between the two editions in the divisions of the paryāyas. There are no differences between them in the paryāyas proper (as distinguished from the gaṇa-paryāyas), i.e. in those eleven paryāyas which have no subdivided divisions, to wit, paryāyas 1, 3, 7, 8, 9, 10, 12, 15, 16, 17, 18. But for 15 and 16 and 17, this statement needs to be modified by rehearsal of the fact that SPP. prefixes to the $y\partial$ 'sya of each of the avasānarcas of the Berlin ed. from 15. 3 to 17. 7, and also to the 3 remaining avasānarcas of 17, the words tásya vrátyasya with an avasāna-mark, but nevertheless makes his numbering as does the Berlin ed.

[The differences accordingly are confined to the remaining seven $pary\bar{a}yas$ (those which have subdivided divisions), that is, to the $gana-pary\bar{a}yas$ 2, 4, 5, 6, 11, 13, 14.— In $pary\bar{a}ya$ 14, each of the 12 numbered divisions of the Berlin ed. is really a gana and is subdivided (alike in both editions, by a mark just after $krtv\bar{a}$) into 2 vacanas: but the vacanas are numbered as 24 only by SPP.—A similar statement applies to $pary\bar{a}ya$ 4, save that here the subdivision is each time into 3: thus the 6 divisions of the Berlin ed. become 18 with SPP.—We should expect the case of $pary\bar{a}ya$ 6 to be just like that of 4: namely that the 9 panas of the Berlin ed. would become $(9 \times 3 =) 27 pana-avas\bar{a}narcas$ in the Bombay ed.; but in fact the mss. divide one pana (the eighth: see note thereon) into only 2 subdivisions; so that the sum is only 26. Note here especially that the anomalous division is supported by the Old Anukr. and that the two editions do not differ in the marking of the subdivisions, but only in the numbering.]

[With paryāyas 5 and 2, the case is as explained on pages 628-629: in a sequence of refrains or anuṣañgas, the refrain is given in full and counted as a separate avasāna only for its first and last occurrence in that sequence.— In paryāya 5 (see note), there are 7 gaṇas, each with 3 subdivisions (the first ending with akurvan and the second with ½ānak): therefore we have 2 gaṇas (the first and last), each with 3 subdivisions, making 6; and the remaining 5, each with 2 (a and b-c), making 10; and so, in all, 16.— In paryāya 2 (for minor differences, see notes), we have the first and last, each with 8 subdivisions, making 16; and the remaining 2, each with 6 (a, b, c, d, e, and f-h), making 12; and so, in all, 28.]

[Finally, in the case of paryāyas 13 and 11, we have divisions which are not coördinate. In 13, each of the first 5 divisions as numbered in the Berlin ed. is really a gana with 2 subdivisions (the prior one ending with våsati); and each of the remaining 4 is undivided: SPP. therefore numbers them as $(5 \times 2 =)$ 10 gana-avasānarcas and 4 paryāya-avasānarcas, thus making "14 avasānarcas of both kinds," as required by the Old Anukr. — In the case of paryāya 11, the Old Anukr. requires the division into 11 avasānarcas, and this is the division of both editions. The requirement of the non-coördinate subdivisions, namely into $5 + (3 \times 2 =) 6 = 11$, is made only by the summations of the mss., and only by some of them, not all. This division, if made at all, is doubtless to be made by taking the first 5 as paryāya-avasānarcas and the last 6 as gana-avasānarcas (3 ganas of 2 each).

LOf this book we find in Pāipp. (in xviii.) only the first paryāya and a phrase from the second.* Moreover, neither Kāuç. nor Vāit. make any citations from the book; but it may be noted that xv. 5. 1 is reckoned to the rāudra gaṇa by the schol. to Kāuç. 50. 13. In respect of contents and style, the book is quite like the Brāhmaṇas, and it is all in prose. Occasional sequences of words are rhythmical (so the first phrase of 17.8 and the relative clauses of 15 and 16 and 17); but these are doubtless mere casual lapses into meter (cf. p. 869).]

[Whitney's ms. appears to indicate that he intended to give to each paryāya-sūkta a heading (in Clarendon type, as before); and I have thought it well, for the sake of convenience and typographical clearness, to carry out his apparent intent. — Moreover, to facilitate reference to the Bombay edition, I have added, in ell-brackets ([___]), the numbers of SPP's minor divisions, wherever the latter differ from those of the Berlin edition.

[The excerpts from the Major Anukr. which concern the kāṇḍa as a whole may first be given.]

[aṣṭādaça paryāyāḥ. adhyātmakam; mantroktadevatyā uta vrātyadāivatam.]

1. Paryāya the first.

[aṣṭāu. 1. sāmnī pankti; 2. 2-p. sāmnī brhatī; 3. 1-p. yajurbrāhmy anuṣṭubh; 4. 1-p. virāḍ gāyatrī; 5. sāmny anuṣṭubh; 6. 3-p. prājāpatyā brhatī; 7. āsurī pankti; 8. 3-p. anuṣṭubh.]

Translated: Aufrecht, Ind. Stud. i. 130; Griffith, ii. 185.

1. A Vrātya there was, just going about; he stirred up Prajāpati.

Ppp. reads: vrātyo vā ida agra āsīt. The verse lacks one syllable of a full sāmnī paūkti (20 syll.).

- 2. He, Prajāpatī, saw in himself gold (suvárņa); he generated that. For suvarnam ātmann, Ppp. reads: ātmanas suparņam.
- 3. That became one; that became star-marked (laláma); that became great; that became chief; that became bráhman; that became fervor; that became truth; therewith he had progeny.

Ppp. has the same text with slight differences of order. The verse counts the required 48 syllables if we restore the elided a in ttpo abhavat.

- 4. He increased; he became great; he became the great god (mahādevá). In this verse both elided initial a's have to be restored, making 19 syllables.
- 5. He compassed the lordship of the gods; he became the Lord (içāna).

We need to read pári āit and -no abhavat to make 16 syllables. [Of this verse, Ppp. has only the last three words.]

6. He became the sole Vrātya; he took to himself a bow; that was Indra's bow.

Ppp. inserts devānām before ekavr-, and reads tad indradhanur abhavat. To read abhavat, again, fills out the 20 syllables.

7. Blue its belly, red [its] back.

That is, apparently, of the bow (the rainbow); though 'its' (asya) might equally well be 'his.'

8. With the blue he envelops (pra-vṛ) a hostile cousin, with the red he pierces one hating him [— he who knows thus]: so say the theologians (brahmavādin).

If we read -ti tti, the syllables are 32; but to call the passage an anustubh is absurd. It can hardly be questioned that the addition in brackets is called for by the sense.

2. Paryāya the second.

The Anukr. professes to count 28 divisions in this paryaya; but its metrical definitions are of 32 divisions, 8 in each; in the translation they are marked by introduced letters. [The reckoning is explained above, at page 772, ¶ 3.]

Translated: Aufrecht, Ind. Stud. i. 130; Griffith, ii. 186.

I. a. [I.] He arose; he moved out (vi-cal) toward the eastern quarter; b. [2.] after him moved out both the bṛhát and the rathamtará and the Ādityas and all the gods; c. [3.] against both the bṛhát and the rathamtará and the Ādityas and all the gods doth he offend (ā-vraçc) who revileth a thus-knowing Vrātya; d. [4.] of both the bṛhát and the rathamtará and of the Ādityas and of all the gods doth he become the dear abode (dháman) [who knoweth thus]. Of him in the eastern quarter e. [5.] faith is the harlot, Mitrá the māgadhá (bard?), discernment the garment, day the turban, night the hair, yellow the two pravartás, kalmalí the jewel (maṇt), f. [6.] both what is and what is to be the two footmen (pariṣkandá), mind the rough vehicle (vipathá), g. [7.] Mātariçvan and Pavamāna (the 'cleansing' wind) the two drawers (-vāhá) of the rough vehicle, the wind the charioteer, the whirlwind the goad, h. [8.] both fame and glory the two forerunners: to him cometh fame, cometh glory, who knoweth thus.

The natural division of the matter of this and the following verses is in the latter half strangely violated by the tradition. Division d should most certainly have at its end ya evám véda, as is shown by the requirements of the sense and by the occurrence of these words in the same connection in 6.1-9, 8.3, and 9.3; but the phrase is wanting in all the mss.; we have introduced it in our text, and the translation gives it (in brackets). Then the mss. most senselessly reckon to d the words which really introduce e-h, or the second half of the verse; i.e., they set no avasāna before tásya, but have one after dict; and the Anukr. follows the same method; it is corrected in our text | although the division by letters in the translation follows the mss. |; the analogy of the verses of hymns 4 and 5 is a sufficient justification for so doing. In the second half, the only natural division is after purahsarāú; very strangely, however, the mss. and Anukr. set no avasāna here, but one, altogether out of place, after pratodás, and two that are uncalled for after mants and vipathám respectively; of these two we have retained only that after mants (as it denoted a certain change of subject), while we have shifted forward to its proper place the one after pratodás. The metrical definitions of the Anukr. are evidently applicable, with the usual degree of exactness, to the divisions as made by the mss.

The translation follows the mss. in reading in e mitro (but all save Bs.s.m.D.R. accent mitro) māgadho. [Correct the Berlin ed. from mántro to mitro.] The Pet.

Lex. conjectures pravarta to signify a rounded ornament. [As for turban, goad, etc., see p. 770, ¶ 2.] [Ppp. has sa prācīm diçam anuvyacalat; the remainder of the book is wanting.]

2. a. [9.] He arose; he moved out toward the southern quarter; b. [10.] after him moved out both the yajñāyajñiya and the vāmadevyá and the sacrifice and the sacrificer and the cattle; c. [11.] against both the yajñāyajñiya and the vāmadevyá and the sacrifice and the sacrificer and the cattle doth he offend who revileth a thus-knowing Vrātya; d. [12.] of both the yajñāyajñiya and the vāmadevyá and the sacrifice and the sacrificer and the cattle doth he become the dear abode [who knoweth thus]. Of him in the southern quarter e. [13.] dawn is the harlot, the mántra the māgadhá, discernment the garment, day the turban, night the hair, yellow the two pravartás, kalmali the jewel, f. [14.] both new moon and full moon the two footmen, mind the etc. etc.

All the mss. have in e mántro; [so also SPP.: correct the Berlin ed.]; in our text it and the mitro of 1 e have been made to change places, for the sake of better adaptation to the surroundings. Why 2 d (44 syllables) should be called by the Anukr. an ārṣī parānuṣṭubh is obscure; perhaps triṣṭubh is to be added (or implied from the next preceding definition). [For paṭavas, perhaps 'victims' would suit the connection better than 'cattle,' here and below.]

3. a. [15.] He arose; he moved out toward the western quarter; b. [16.] after him moved out both the $v\bar{a}ir\bar{u}p\acute{a}$ and the $v\bar{a}ir\bar{u}j\acute{a}$ and the waters and king Varuṇa; c. [17.] against both the $v\bar{a}ir\bar{u}p\acute{a}$ and the $v\bar{a}ir\bar{u}j\acute{a}$ and the waters and king Varuṇa doth he offend who revileth a thus-knowing Vrātya; d. [18.] of both the $v\bar{a}ir\bar{u}p\acute{a}$ and the $v\bar{a}ir\bar{u}j\acute{a}$ and the waters and king Varuṇa doth he become the dear abode [who knoweth thus]. Of him in the western quarter e. [19.] cheer is the harlot, laughter the $m\bar{a}gadh\acute{a}$, discernment the garment, day the turban, night the hair, yellow the two pravartás, kalmalí the jewel, f. [20.] both day and night the two footmen, mind the etc. etc.

All our earlier mss. accent $ir\bar{a}$ in e, and our edition followed them, but some of the later ones (O.D.R.s.m.K.) have correctly $ir\bar{a}$, and the text should be emended accordingly. [SPP., p. 322, maintains that the mss. showing $ir\bar{a}$ are influenced by the RV. accentuation of the word, and holds that $ir\bar{a}$ is the true AV. reading.] Some mss. (Bs.R.s.m.D.) accent hasas.

4. a. [21.] He arose; he moved out toward the northern quarter; b. [22.] after him moved out both the cyāitá and the nāudhasá and the seven seers and king Soma; c. [23.] against both the cyāitá and the nāudhasá and the seven seers and king Soma doth he offend who revileth a thus-knowing Vrātya; d. [24.] of both the cyāitá and the nāudhasá and the seven seers and king Soma doth he become the dear abode [who knoweth thus]. Of him in the northern quarter e. [25.] lightning is the harlot, thunder the māgadhá, discernment the garment, day the turban, night the hair, yellow the two pravartás, kalmalí the jewel, f. [26.] both what is heard and what is heard abroad the two footmen, mind the [rough vehicle, g. 27. Mātariçvan and Pavamāna the two drawers of the rough vehicle, the wind the charioteer, the whirlwind the goad, h. 28. both fame and glory the two forerunners: to him cometh fame, cometh glory, who knoweth thus.]

The majority of our mss. read çāitá in b, c, d; çyāitá is given by I.O.D.R.K. In b, I.O.K. have saptars-; in c, d they agree with the rest in saptars-. [The çyāita and nāudhasa are mentioned together at KBU. i. 5.]

*3. Paryāya the third.

[ekādaça. 1. pipīlikamadhyā gāyatrī; 2. sāmny uṣṇih; 3. yājuṣī jagatī; 4. 2-p. ārcy uṣṇih; 5. ārcī bṛhatī; 6. āsury anuṣṭubh; 7. sāmnī gāyatrī; 8. āsurī pañkti; 9. āsurī jagatī; 10. prājāpatyā triṣṭubh; 11. virād gāyatrī.]

Translated: Aufrecht, Ind. Stud. i. 131; Griffith, ii. 188. — In part also by Zimmer, p. 155.

1. He stood a year erect; the gods said to him: Vrātya, why now standest thou?

One ms. (O.) accents $\bar{u}rdhv\delta^{\epsilon}t$. The Anukr. apparently reads $-v\delta$ at and scans as 10+6+8=24.

- 2. He said: Let them bring together a settle [āsandi] for me. The Anukr. implies sô ab- and -tu tti.
- 3. For that Vrātya they brought together a settle.

The Anukr. implies -yāya ās-. With the description that follows compare that of a similar structure in KBU. i. 5, and JB. ii. 24, LAB. viii. 12, and my note to xiv. 2. 65].

- 4. Of it, both summer and spring were two feet, both autumn and the rains [were] two.
- 5. Both bṛhát and rathamtará were the two length-wise [pieces], both yajñāyajñíya and vāmadevyá the two cross[-pieces].

Nearly all our mss. (not Bp., which has -cye tti) give anūcyè; [and SPP. so reads without note of variant]. At the end, the majority have tiraccé or else -ccè (E.O.K. have -ccè: but Bp. has -cce tti); and this accent [the svarita] points distinctly toward tiraccyè, which is doubtless the true reading; it is given by R.T., and I. has -ccyé, with wrong accent; our text is to be emended accordingly to tiraccyè (cf. adharācyà, anūcyà, apīcyà, udicyà, praticyà, prācyà). [SPP. reads tiraccyè with no less than six of his authorities; and these are supported, pro tanto, by nine others that read -ccè.]

6. The verses (re) the forward cords (tántu), the sacrificial formulas (yájus) the cross ones.

The descriptions in KBU. and JB. have ātāna instead of tantu.

7. The Veda the cushion (āstáraṇa), the bráhman the pillow (upabárhaṇa).

8. The chant (sáman) the seat, the udgīthá the support (?).

The translation implies that udgīthò 'paçrayáḥ at the end (p.-tháḥ: apaoçrayáḥ) is a corruption for -thá upaçrayáḥ, this being favored by udgītha upaçrīḥ so the Poona ed., p. "II4-I3," top sin KBU.; the Pet. Lexx. conjecture 'cushion' (Polster) for apaçrayá, but one does not see how the word should get any such sense; Aufrecht conjectures 'coverlet,' as does M. Müller [SBE. i. 278] for upaçrī: but the latter should be something that leans against or is leaned against.

- 9. That settle the Vrātya ascended.
- 10. Of him the god-folk were the footmen, resolves (samkalpá) the messengers (prahāyyà), all beings the waiters (upasád).

The mss. vary considerably in their readings of prahāyyàs; Bp.O. Land five of SPP's authorities have -āryy-, R.p.m. -āry-, R.s.m. -āy-, E. -āyyà v-, P.M.W. -āyyàn. LSPP. reads prahāyyàḥ with twelve of his authorities.

- 11. All beings become his waiters who knoweth thus.
- R. is the only ms. that has the last two words.

4. Paryāya the fourth.

Translated: Aufrecht, Ind. Stud. i. 131; Griffith, ii. 188.— For a table of the seasons and months, see the Introduction to my translation of the Karpūra-mañjarī (ed. Konow), p. 214.

I. [I.] For him, from the eastern quarter, [2.] they made the two spring months guardians, and brhát and rathamtará attendants. [3.] The two spring months guard from the eastern quarter, and brhát and rathamtará attend (anu-sthā), him who knoweth thus.

The subdivisions of verses [see page 772, ¶ 2 above] acknowledged by the Anukr. in this hymn are those marked by the mss. and edition; I a has one syllable less than belongs to it by the definition (and so also I b, but there is no name * for a division containing 23 syllables). In b is to be read in all the verses dkurvan, with the mss. The Pet. Lexx. render anuṣṭhātf by 'accomplisher,' which does not suit well with anu-sthā in c. *[That is, no express name: $g\bar{a}yatr\bar{\iota}$ nicrt is a description by reference to another metrical unity.]

- 2. [4.] For him, from the southern quarter, [5.] they made the two summer months guardians, and yajñāyajñiya and vāmadevyá attendants. [6.] The two summer months guard from the southern quarter, and yajnāyajñiya and vāmadevyá attend, him who knoweth thus.
- 3. [7.] For him, from the western quarter, [8.] they made the two rainy months guardians, and vāirūpá and vāirājá attendants. [9.] The two rainy months guard from the western quarter, and $v\bar{a}ir\bar{u}p\dot{a}$ and $v\bar{a}i$ - $r\bar{a}j\dot{a}$ attend, him who knoweth thus.

The Anukr. implies in a pratici-ās. For c, the definition bhāumārcī [so the Berlin ms. and SPP's excerpts in his Critical Notice, p. 224] is elsewhere unknown, and appears to be equivalent to simple ārcī.

4. [10.] For him, from the northern quarter, [11.] they made the two autumn months guardians, and çyāitá and nāudhasá attendants. [12.] The two autumn months guard from the northern quarter, and çyāitá and nāudhasá attend, him who knoweth thus.

Here again (as in 2.4), the mss. vary between $cy\bar{a}it\dot{a}$ and $c\bar{a}it\dot{a}$ in b and c, but Bp. this time has $cy\bar{a}i$.

- 5. [13.] For him, from the fixed quarter, [14.] they made the two winter months guardians, and earth and fire attendants. [15.] The two winter months guard from the fixed quarter, and earth and fire attend, him who knoweth thus.
- 6. [16.] For him, from the upward quarter, [17.] they made the two cool months guardians, and heaven and Aditya attendants. [18.] The two cool months guard from the upward quarter, and heaven and Aditya attend, him who knoweth thus.

5. Paryāya the fifth.

[sodaça. mantroktarudradevatyāh. 1 a. 3-p. samaviṣamā gāyatrī; 1 b. 3-p. bhurig ārcī triṣṭubh; c of 1-7. 2-p. prājāpatyā 'nuṣṭubh; 2 a. 3-p. svarāṭ prājāpatyā pañkti; b of 2-4, 6. 3-p. brāhmī gāyatrī; a of 3, 4, 6. 3-p. kakubh; a of 5, 7. bhurig viṣamā gāyatrī; 5 b. nicrd brāhmī gāyatrī; 7 b. virāj.]

In this hymn, again, the division made by the mss. and the Anukr. is very strange and obviously opposed to the sense. Sixteen subdivisions the reckoning is explained above at p. 772, 3 are made by reckoning the last 16 syllables following $\sqrt[4]{anah}$ and (beginning with na 'sya) as belonging only to verses 1 and 7; and the mss. set no avasāna-mark after tiṣṭhati, where alone it has reason, but, in vss. 1, 7, introduce it after $\sqrt[4]{anah}$, in the middle of a sentence. Rather than put it in so out of place, we have omitted it in our text. One ms. (R.), it may be noticed, fills out to tiṣṭhatio: na 'sya paṭūn na sa-o, showing that it understands vss. 2-6 to be carried out in full, like 1 and 7; the other mss. stop at $\sqrt[4]{anah}$, but at anuṣṭhātā in vs. 6].

Translated: Aufrecht, Ind. Stud. i. 132; Muir, iv.2 338; Griffith, ii. 189.

1. [1.] For him, from the intermediate direction of the eastern quarter, they made the archer (iṣvāsá) Bhava attendant. [2.] The archer Bhava attends him [as] attendant from the intermediate direction of the eastern quarter; not Çarva, not Bhava, not Içāna ('the lord') [3.] injures him nor his cattle nor his fellows who knoweth thus.

A resolution is needed in a to make 24 syllables (10+6+8), also in b to make the meter bhurij. [This paragraph is reckoned to the rāudra gaṇa; see note to Kāuç. 50. 13.] [The word "him" after "injures" is part of the second avasāna.]

- 2. [4.] For him, from the intermediate direction of the southern quarter, they made the archer Çarva attendant. [5.] The archer Çarva attends him as attendant from the intermediate direction of the southern quarter; not Çarva etc. etc.
- 3. [6.] For him, from the intermediate direction of the western quarter, they made the archer Paçupati ('lord of cattle') attendant. [7.] The archer Paçupati attends him as attendant from the intermediate direction of the western quarter; not Çarva etc. etc.
- 4. [8.] For him, from the intermediate direction of the northern quarter, they made the archer, the formidable god, attendant. [9.] The archer, the formidable god, attends him as attendant from the intermediate direction of the northern quarter; not Çarva etc. etc.

At the beginning, read in our text tasmā for tasmāi.

- 5. [10.] For him, from the intermediate direction of the fixed quarter, they made the archer Rudra attendant. [11.] The archer Rudra attends him as attendant from the intermediate direction of the fixed quarter; not Çarva etc. etc.
- 6. [12.] For him, from the intermediate direction of the upward quarter, they made the archer Mahādeva ('great god') attendant. [13.] The archer Mahādeva attends him as attendant from the intermediate direction of the upward quarter; not Çarva etc. etc.
- 7. [14.] For him, from all the intermediate directions, they made the archer Içāna attendant. [15.] The archer Içāna as attendant attends him from all the intermediate directions; not Çarva, [not Bhava, not Īçāna, 16. injures him nor his cattle nor his fellows who knoweth thus].

The mss. vary in a and b between sarvebhyo ant- and -bhyo nt-; in a, only P.M.W.E. have -bhyo nt-; in b, [at least two, E. and Bs. Probably our text ought to give in both places -bhyo ant-; [so SPP. with all but two of his authorities].

After the definition of the c of 1-7 the Anukr. adds: hinasti vyāghrādiṣv avagantavyaḥ; which apparently means that in 2-6 is to be understood the verb hinasti, which is expressed only in 1 c and 7 c; vyāghrādiṣu is probably a corruption.

[After its metrical definition of xi. 1. 36, the Anukr. inserts the words vyāghrādiṣv avagantavyā; and after that of xiv. 1. 60 occur the words (see p. 740) ity, or parāviny, edhiṣīmahīti vyāghrādiṣv avagantavyaḥ. — One ritual use of xiv. 1. 60 is as a prayer for the safety of the bride as she sets out for her new home. In that connection, a specification of the safety as "in respect of tigers and so forth" would be entirely appropriate. And it is also appropriate here, at xv. 5. — The verse xi. 1. 36 is used in the ritual (Kāuç. 63. 9) with iv. 14. 5 in the sava offering: the former, as a prayer for safety on the road to heaven (ágne patháḥ kalpaya devayānān); the latter, somewhat similarly (svàr yantu yājamānāh svastī). Although tigers more frequently accelerate than retard a Hindu's transit to heaven, the verses may nevertheless be conceived as used secondarily for safety on terrestrial paths. — Accordingly the remark of the Anukr is perhaps intended as exegetical, but it is at any rate most unexpected. — The vs. AV. xii. 1.49 furnishes testimony (quite superfluous) to the familiarity of the ancient Hindus with "man-eaters."]

6. Paryāya the sixth.

[ṣaḍvincati. 1 a, 2 a. āsurī paūkti; a of 3-6, 9. āsurī bṛhatī; 8 a. paroṣṇih; 1 b, 6 b. ārcī paūkti; 7 a. ārcy uṣṇih; 2 b, 4 b. sāmnī triṣṭubh; 3 b. sāmnī paūkti; 5 b, 8 b. ārcī triṣṭubh; 7 b. sāmny anuṣṭubh; 9 b. ārcy anuṣṭubh; 1 c. ārṣī paūkti; 2 c, 4 c. nicṛd bṛhatī; 3 c. prājāpatyā triṣṭubh; 5 c, 6 c. virāḍ jagatī; 7 c. ārcī bṛhatī; 9 c. virāḍ

In this paryāya, the division of the Anukr. and of the mss. suits (except in vs. 8, which see) the sense, and has therefore been retained unchanged in our text.

Translated: Aufrecht, Ind. Stud. i. 132; Griffith, ii. 190.

I. [I.] He moved out toward the fixed quarter; [2.] after him moved out both earth and fire and herbs and forest trees and they of forest trees and plants. [3.] Verily both of earth and of fire and of herbs and of forest trees and of them of forest trees and of plants doth he become the dear abode who knoweth thus.

To make the metrical descriptions fit closely the subdivisions, we need to read vt-acal- in a and b, and $s\phi$ ag- in c: and so more or less throughout the hymn.

2. [4.] He moved out toward the upward quarter; [5.] after him moved out both right and truth and sun and moon and asterisms. [6.] Verily both of right and of truth and of sun and of moon and of asterisms doth he become the dear abode who knoweth thus.

In c, ca is to be inserted after rtdsya.

- 3. [7.] He moved out toward the highest quarter; [8.] after him moved out both the verses and the chants and the sacrificial formulas and the bráhman. [9.] Verily both of the verses and of the chants and of the sacrificial formulas and of the bráhman doth he become the dear abode who knoweth thus.
- 4. [10.] He moved out toward the great quarter; [11.] after him moved out both the itihāsá ('narrative') and the purāṇá ('story of eld') and the gáthās ('songs') and the nārāçansis ('eulogies'). [12.] Verily both of the itihāsá and of the purāṇá and of the gáthās and of the nārāçansis doth he become the dear abode who knoweth thus.
- 5. [13.] He moved out toward the most distant quarter; [14.] after him moved out both the fire of offering and the householder's fire and the southern fire and the sacrifice and the sacrificer and the cattle. [15.] Verily both of the fire of offering and of the householder's fire and of the southern fire and of the sacrificer and of the cattle doth he become the dear abode who knoweth thus.

6. [16.] He moved out toward an unindicated quarter; [17.] after him moved out both the seasons and they of the seasons and the worlds and they of the worlds and the months and the half-months and day-and-night. [18.] Verily both of the seasons and of them of the seasons and of the worlds and of the worlds and of the months and of the half-months and of day-and-night doth he become the dear abode who knoweth thus.

Most of the mss. accent loka in both b and c (R.s.m.K.D. have lokas; only R.s.m. has lokanam); our text makes the needed correction. [With the almost unanimous support of his authorities, SPP. prints lokas, lokanam, which accentuation (albeit so isolated) he takes in this case to be "the genuine Atharvan accent": see his notes, p. 330 f.]

7. [19.] He moved out toward an unreturned quarter; from it he thought not that he should return; [20.] after him moved out both Diti and Aditi and Idā and Indrānī. [21.] Verily both of Diti and of Aditi and of Idā and of Indrānī doth he become the dear abode who knoweth thus.

Anāvṛtta in a is obscure: the Pet. Lexx. render 'untrodden,' and Aufrecht, 'unvisited'; but both against the analogy of nā "vartsyān (also of anāvṛt and anāvartin; perhaps the true reading is anāvṛtyām 'not to be returned from.' Bp. reads avartsyān, the other pada-mss. āovartsyān. I. accents indrānyāç.

8. [22.] He moved out toward the quarters; [no avasāna!] after him moved out the virāj and all the gods and all the deities. [23.] Verily both of virāj and of all the gods and of all the deities doth he become the dear abode who knoweth thus.

There seems to be no good reason why this verse should not be divided, like all the rest, into three parts; but the Anukr. does not so prescribe, nor do the mss. set an avasāna-mark after the first vy àcalat: \lfloor compare above, p. 772, \P 2 \rfloor . The mss. all agree in accenting the second ánu.

9. [24.] He moved out toward all the intermediate directions; [25.] after him moved out both Prajāpati and the most exalted one and the father and the grandfather. [26.] Verily both of Prajāpati and of the most exalted one and of the father and of the grandfather doth he become the dear abode who knoweth thus.

7. Paryāya the seventh.

[pañcaka. 1. 3-p. nicrd gāyatrī; 2. 1-p. virād brhatī; 3. virād uṣṇih; 4. 1-p. gāyatrī; 5. pañkti.]

Translated: Aufrecht, Ind. Stud. i. 133; Griffith, ii. 191.

1. That greatness, becoming sessile (?sádru), went to the end of the earth; it became ocean.

- [Or, 'He, becoming a sessile greatness, went' etc.: so W. suggests in a pencilled note.] Aufrecht and the Pet. Lexx. suspect a play of words between $s \acute{a} dru$ and $s a mu-dr \acute{a}$, but the likeness is too slight to make the matter certain. Aufrecht renders $s \acute{a} drur$ $b \acute{h} \ddot{u} t v \acute{a}$ by "setting itself in motion," as if s a + dr u, and the Pet. Lexx. seem to favor the same etymology as had in view by the writer, but it is hardly to be credited. Aufrecht reads in the third pāda s a s a mudro; I have noted $s \acute{a}$ only as inserted s e c. m a n u in one ms. (O.); if read, it would make the verse answer better the metrical description. [SPP. does in fact read $s \acute{a}$ s a mudro, with the support of all his authorities.]*
- 2. After it, turned out both Prajāpati and the most exalted one and the father and the grandfather and the waters and faith, becoming rain.
- 3. To him come waters, to him cometh faith, to him cometh rain, who knoweth thus.

All our mss. read gachati after apas; | and so all of SPP's authorities |.

- 4. Unto it turned about both faith and sacrifice and world and food and food-eating, coming into being (bhūtvá).
- 5. To him cometh faith, to him cometh sacrifice, to him cometh a world, to him cometh food, to him cometh food-eating, who knoweth thus.

[Here ends the first anuvāka with 7 paryāyas: see above, p. 770, end. For the summation of avasānarcas (112), see p. 771, near end.]

8. Paryāya the eighth.

[trika. 1. sāmny usnih; 2. prājāpatyā nustubh; 3. ārcī pankti.]

Translated: Aufrecht, Ind. Stud. i. 134; Griffith, ii. 192.

- He became impassioned (raj); thence was born the noble (rājanyà).
 Both elided initial a's need to be restored in order to fill out the metrical description of the Anukr.
- 2. He arose toward $(abhi^{\circ})$ the tribes (vl_{ξ}) , the kinsmen, food, foodeating.

Half the mss. (Bp.Bs.p.m.E.O.D.K.) omit dnnam; the metrical definition of the Anukr. implies its presence.

- 3. Verily both of the tribes and of the kinsmen and of food and of food-eating doth he become the dear abode who knoweth thus.
- *[Upon the margin of his ms., opposite this passage, Whitney has pencilled the memorandum "? Ask Weber and Rost and Roth." He evidently intended to ask them to examine upon this point the Berlin and London and Tübingen mss. respectively and to tell him whether any of them did in fact read sa samudro. In the brief interval since that query was noted, all those three distinguished men of learning have passed away, and likewise he who would have asked them. Meantime, the question has been cleared up (vyākṛta) by the edition of that admirable Hindu scholar, S. P. Pandit, and he too, alas, is no more here!

Translated: Aufrecht, Ind. Stud. i. 134; Griffith, ii. 192. — Cf. Zimmer, p. 194.

- 1. He moved out toward the tribes.
- 2. After him moved out both the assembly and the gathering and the army and strong drink.
- 3. Verily both of the assembly and of the gathering and of the army and of strong drink doth he become the dear abode who knoweth thus.

- 1. So then, to the houses of whatever king a thus-knowing Vrātya may come as guest, —
- 2. He should esteem him better than himself; so does he not offend (ā-vraçc) against dominion; so does he not offend against royalty.

[That is, 'he [the king] should esteem him [the Vrātya] better,' etc.] The Berlin mss. read, as the sense requires, $m\bar{a}nayet$ $táth\bar{a}$, nor was any deviation from this noted in the mss. collated before publication; those compared later, however, all give $m\bar{a}naye$ $táth\bar{a}$; [and so do all of SPP's authorities, including his then living reciters, but excepting his ms. C^p , which has $m\bar{a}nayet$ $táth\bar{a}$, secunda manu, and $m\bar{a}naye$ t-, prima manu. — Compare the case of yame dirgham, yamed dirgham, at xviii. 2. 3.]

- 3. Thence verily arose both sanctity (bráhman) and dominion; they said: Whom shall we enter?
- 'Thence' (átas) Aufrecht understands to mean "out of him (the Vrātya)" which is possible, but doubtful: compare átas in vs. 5.
- 4. Let sanctity enter Brihaspati [and] dominion Indra; thus verily: it was said (iti).

Or the iti means 'he (the Vrātya) said'; Aufrecht so understands it. The mss. make very bad work over the verb in this verse: Bp. reads praviçatu, Bs.P.M.O.T.K. $pr\bar{a}viçatu$, all without accent; E. has $pr\bar{a}$ viçatu, R. $pr\bar{a}vicetu$, D. pravicetu. The true reading is doubtless pravicetu, and our text should be emended to this; the situation is one in which an accent on the verb-form is called for. There is no reason for understanding $pra-\bar{a}$, and the prolongation of simple pra to $pr\bar{a}$ is wholly unsuited to this book. [SPP's authorities show a fairly bewildering variety of differences, in respect to pra to pra authorities show a fairly bewildering variety of differences, in respect to pra to pravicetu: see his note, p. 334.] The metrical definition of the Anukr. [6+7+8: Ind. Stud. viii. 129] does not fit at all.

5. Thence (átas) verily sanctity entered Brihaspati [and] dominion Indra. For prāviçat the pada-text has prā: aviçat; doubtless it should be praodviçat.

- 6. This earth verily is Prajāpati, the sky is Indra.
- 7. This fire verily is sanctity, yonder Aditya is dominion.
- 8. To him comes sanctity, he becomes possessed of the splendor of sanctity (brahmavarcasin),
 - 9. Who knows earth as Brihaspati, fire as sanctity.
- 10. To him comes Indra's quality, he becomes possessed of Indra's quality,
 - 11. Who knows Aditya as dominion, the sky as Indra.

[For convenience of comparison, the passage from Ap. Dharma-sūtra, ii. 3. 7, parallel to our vss. 1-2, may here be given: āhitāgnim ced atithir abhyāgacchet, svayam enam abhyudetya brūyāt: vrātya kvā 'vātsir iti: vrātya udakam iti: vrātya tarpayanstv (!) iti. 13. purā 'gnihotrasya homād upānçu japet: vrātya yathā te manas tathā 'stv iti: vrātya yathā te vaças tathā 'stv iti: vrātya yathā te priyam tathā 'stv iti: vrātya yathā te nikāmas tathā 'stv iti. 14.]

1. So then, to whosesoever houses a thus-knowing Vrātya may come as guest, —

All that the mss. give for this verse is the two words <code>vrātyo</code> 'tithih. But this is obviously in virtue of their usual abbreviation in case of repeated matter; the verse is the same with 10. I except for the omission of <code>rājħas</code> between <code>vrātyas</code> and <code>ātithis</code>. The abbreviation is continued in 12. I and in 13. I-4, and then 13. 5 reads in full <code>tād yāsyāi</code> 'vām viðvān vrātyah, because it is the last case of occurrence of the phrase. All this admits of no real question, and the verses are all thus filled up by Aufrecht in his translation, although he leaves the Sanskrit text in its abbreviated form; it is worth so many words here only because the Anukr. commits the blunder of regarding <code>vrātyo</code> 'tithih as the whole verse, and defines it as one of five syllables (restoring the elided <code>a</code>). He has never committed the same blunder in the numerous, but less striking, cases of the same kind that we have had hitherto.

- 2. Himself coming up toward him, he should say: Vrātya, where hast thou abode (vas)? Vrātya, [here is] water; Vrātya, let them gratify [thee]; Vrātya, be it so as is dear to thee; Vrātya, be it so as is thy will (vaca); Vrātya, be it so as is thy desire $(nik\bar{a}ma)$.
- 3. In that he says to him: Vrātya, where hast thou abode? he thereby gains possession of the roads that the gods travel.
- 4. In that he says to him: Vrātya, [here is] water, he thereby gains possession of the waters.

- R. is the only ms. that writes out at the beginning of this verse and the next ydd enam dha. It seems a blunder of the Anukr. to include this verse with 3, 5, 6, 8, 10 in one definition, as it is shorter than they by some six syllables; one of the mss. does in fact omit it here, but gives no definition of it elsewhere. LAt AB. viii. 24 is a passage bearing some similarity to this.
- 5. In that he says to him: Vrātya, let them gratify [thee], he thereby makes his breath (prāná) longer.

[We had the last clause above at ix. 6. 19.]

- 6. In that he says to him: Vrātya, be it so as is dear to thee, he thereby gains possession of what is dear.
- 7. To him cometh what is dear, he becometh dear to his dear one (m.), who knoweth thus.
- 8. In that he says to him: Vrātya, be it so as is thy will, he thereby gains possession of [his] will.

Here again all the mss. save one (R.) omit the first four or five words, because they occur again in vs. 10. The majority of mss. (except E.D.R.s.m.K.) accent $va_{\zeta}dm$, though all have $va_{\zeta}as$. [Eight or nine of SPP's have $va_{\zeta}dm$.]

9. Unto him cometh [his] will, a will-possessor of will-possessors becometh he who knoweth thus.

Most of the mss. (except D.R.s.m.) again accent vaçās; Land so twelve of SPP's, but not his corrivas; O. has vacinām. Read at the beginning in our text ai 'nam (an accent-sign slipped out of place).

- 10. In that he says to him: Vrātya, be it so as is thy desire, he thereby gains possession of [his] desire.
- 11. To him cometh [his] desire, he cometh to be $(bh\bar{u})$ in the desire of desire, who knoweth thus.

One would like to emend nikāmé to -mī.

12. Paryāya the twelfth.

[ekādaçaka. 1.3-p. gāyatrī; 2. prājāpatyā brhatī; 3, 4. bhurik prājāpatyā 'nuṣṭubh (4. sāmnī); 5, 6, 9, 10. āsurī gāyatrī; 8. virāḍ gāyatrī; 7, 11. 3-p. prājāpatyā triṣṭubh.]

Translated: Aufrecht, Ind. Stud. i. 135; Griffith, ii. 194.

[The passage from Ap. Dharma-sūtra, ii. 3. 7 (see introd. to paryāya 11), parallel to our vss. 1-3, may here be given: yasyo'ddhṛteṣv ahuteṣv agniṣv atithir abhyāgacchet svayam enam abhyudetya brūyāt: vrātya atisṛja hoṣyāmi: ity atisṛṣṭena hotavyam: anatisṛṣṭaç cej juhuyād doṣam brāhmaṇam āha. 15.]

1. Now then, to whosesoever houses a thus-knowing Vrātya may come as guest when the fires are taken up and the fire-offering (agnihotrá) set on,—

Not one of the mss. writes the first four words of the verse, they being viewed as repeated from 10.1; and here also (compare note to 11.1) the Anukr. reckons them as not belonging to the verse. Bp.O.Kp. write údhṛteṣu (the compound being inseparable by Prāt. iv. 62). Bp. further has ádhioqṛte.

- 2. Himself coming up toward him, he should say: Vrātya, give permission; I am about to make oblation.
- 3. If he should permit, he may make oblation; if he should not permit, he may not make oblation.
- 4. He who, being permitted by a thus-knowing Vrātya, makes oblation,— Prājāpatyā and sāmny anuṣṭubh are each of sixteen syllables; what the Anukr.

 means by its use of both terms in regard to this verse and not in regard to vs. 3 is difficult to see. [His words are...iti dve prājāpatyānuṣṭubhāu; dvitīyā sāmnī; tatho'bhe bhurijāu. He appears to set up a class of two vss. (3 and 4) of 17 syllables (16+1) each: from which he then proceeds to except one vs. (4) by saying that it is sāmnī or has only 16. He might have expressed himself much less awkwardly by writing (instead of the last two clauses) pūrvā bhurik.]
- 5. He foreknows the road that the Fathers go, the road that the gods go. A couple of the mss. (D.R.) accent jānāti, which is better; [and so do seven or eight of SPP's authorities].
 - 6. He does not offend against the gods; his oblation is [duly] made.
- 7. There is left over in this world a support (āyátana) for him who, being permitted by a thus-knowing Vrātya, makes oblation.
- 8. Now then, he who, being unpermitted by a thus-knowing Vrātya, makes oblation, —
- 9. He knows not the road that the Fathers go, nor the road that the gods go.

The same mss. accent jānāti here as in vs. 5.

10. He offends against the gods; his oblation is not [duly] made.

The majority of mss. (except Bs.E.) read vrçcate ah-, which is therefore probably the true text; [and so SPP reads with all but two of his authorities]. The accent ahutam (for ahutam) is probably an error.

11. There is left in this world no support for him who, being unpermitted by a thus-knowing Vrātya, makes oblation.

13. Paryāya the thirteenth.

[caturdaça. 1 a. sāmny uṣṇih; 1 b, 3 b. prājāpatyā 'nuṣṭubh; a of 2-4. dsurī gāyatrī; 2 b, 4 b. sāmnī brhatī; 5 a. 3-p. nicrd gāyatrī; 5 b. 2-p. virād gāyatrī; 6. prājāpatyā paūkti; 7. dsurī jagatī; 8. sataḥpaūkti; 9. akṣarapaūkti.]

[As to the minor divisions of this paryāya, see page 772, ¶ 4, above.] Translated: Aufrecht, Ind. Stud. i. 135; Griffith, ii. 195.

[The passage from Ap. Dharma-sūtra, ii. 3. 7 (see introd. to paryāya 11), parallel to our vss. 1-5, may here be given: ekarātram ced atithīn vāsayet pārthivāni lokān abhijayati, dvitīyayā 'ntarikṣyāns, trtīyayā divyānç, caturthyā parāvato lokān, aparimitābhir aparimitāni lokān abhijayatī 'ti vijāāyate. 16.]

1. [1.] Now in whosesoever house a thus-knowing Vrātya abides one night as guest, [2.] he thereby gains possession of those pure (púnya) worlds that are on the earth.

Here again, and in the following verses through 4, the Anukr. fails to make any account of the first four words, tád yásyāi 'vám vidvān, omitted by the mss. on account of repetition (see note to 11.1); they are restored in our text.

2. [3.] Now in whosesoever house a thus-knowing Vrātya abides a second night as guest, [4.] he thereby gains possession of those pure worlds that are in the atmosphere.

Part of the mss. (I.O.R.T.), [with nine of SPP's authorities], read yé ant- at beginning of b.

- 3. [5.] Now in whosesoever house a thus-knowing Vrātya abides a third night as guest, [6.] he thereby gains possession of those pure worlds that are in the sky.
- 4. [7.] Now in whosesoever house a thus-knowing Vrātya abides a fourth night as guest, [8.] he thereby gains possession of those worlds that are pure of the pure.

That is, doubtless, that are especially pure. In a, read vidvån (an accent-mark slipped out of place).

5. [9.] Now in whosesoever house a thus-knowing Vrātya abides unlimited nights as guest, [10.] he thereby gains possession of those pure worlds that are unlimited.

In a, read again vidvān (same error). [Instead of the tripadā of our mss. of the Anukr. in the description of 5 a, SPP. prints dvipadā, Critical Notice, p. 2217.]

6. [11.] Now to whosesoever houses may come as guest a non-Vrātya, calling himself a Vrātya, bearing the name [only], —

Nāmaobibhratī (so in p.) is so anomalous a formation that we can hardly regard it as otherwise than corrupt, perhaps for nāma bibhrat or nāmabibhrāt.

7. [12.] He may draw him, and he may not draw him.

That is, apparently, whether he invite him urgently or not. But the Pet. Lex. takes the verb as meaning 'treat with violence, punish'—which is unacceptable, as the entertainer is not supposed to be certain whether his guest is a real Vrātya or not. Aufrecht leaves the verse untranslated. There is [with this interpretation] no perceptible reason why the second kārṣet should be accented. Another interpretation, however, may be suggested as possible: that kārṣed enam is apodosis to the preceding verse: 'he may tousle (maltreat) him'; and the rest, protasis to vs. 8: 'if he do not tousle him' (because he is not sufficiently certain of his real character), then he may pay him honors under protest, as stated in vs. 8. But then we should expect vs. 7 to be divided into two pādas, which is done neither by the pada-mss. nor by the Anukr.

8. [13.] For this deity I ask water; this deity I cause to abide; this, this deity I wait upon — with this thought he should wait upon him.

xv. 13-

That is, my attentions are meant for the deity whom a Vrātya represents, and not for this particular individual. [See above, p. 770, top.] The repetition imām imām is very strange, and seems unmotived. The pada-text sets its avasāna-mark, as if denoting a pāda-division, both times between imām and devátām, in palpable violation of the sense.

9. [14.] In that deity doth that become [duly] offered of him who knoweth thus.

14. Paryāya the fourteenth.

[Respecting the subdivisions of the paryāya, see page 772, top.] Translated: Aufrecht, Ind. Stud. i. 136; Griffith, ii. 195.

I. [I.] As he moved out toward the eastern quarter, the troop (cardhas) of Maruts, coming into being (bhūtvā), moved out after, making mind [their] food-eater; [2.] with mind as food-eater doth he eat food who knoweth thus.

Aufrecht understands the meaning to be as just given, and takes it correspondingly in the verses below. But it would be admissible also to render thus: 'when he moved out toward the eastern quarter, he moved out toward [it] after becoming the troop of Maruts'—and correspondingly in all the other verses. It is possible, by due resolution, to read the first subdivision as 32 syllables and the second as 15—and so in general in the other verses; no remark will be made upon them unless the cases are especially difficult.

- 2. [3.] As he moved out toward the southern quarter, Indra, coming into being, moved out after, making strength [his] food-eater; [4.] with strength as food-eater doth he eat food who knoweth thus.
- 3. [5.] As he moved out toward the western quarter, king Varuṇa, coming into being, moved out after, making the waters [his] food-eaters; [6.] with the waters as food-eaters doth he eat food who knoweth thus.

Most of the mss. accent apó 'nnādiḥ (but Bs. has - δ). One or two (I.K.) combine -dis kṛtvā.

- 4. [7.] As he moved out toward the northern quarter, king Soma, coming into being, moved out after, making the offering (thuti) in what is offered by the seven seers [his] food-eater; [8.] with the offering as food-eater doth he eat food who knoweth thus.
- 5. [9.] As he moved out toward the fixed quarter, Vishnu, coming into being, moved out after, making virāj [his] food-eater; [10.] with virāj as food-eater doth he eat food who knoweth thus.
- 6. [11.] As he moved out toward the cattle, Rudra, coming into being, moved out after, making the herbs [his] food-eaters; [12.] with the herbs as food-eaters doth he eat food who knoweth thus.

- 7. [13.] As he moved out toward the Fathers, king Yama, coming into being, moved out after, making the call svadhá [his] food-eater; [14.] with the call svadhá as food-eater doth he eat food who knoweth thus.
- 8. [15.] As he moved out toward men (manuṣyà), Agni, coming into being, moved out after, making the cry svāhā ('hail') [his] food-eater; [16.] with the cry svāhā as food-eater doth he eat food who knoweth thus.
- 9. [17.] As he moved out toward the upward quarter, Brihaspati, coming into being, moved out after, making the cry váṣaṭ [his] food-eater; [18.] with the cry váṣaṭ as food-eater doth he eat food who knoweth thus.

The first pada is not metrically defined by the Anukr.

10. [19.] As he moved out toward the gods, Içāna ('the lord'), coming into being, moved out after, making fury [his] food-eater; [20.] with fury as food-eater doth he eat food who knoweth thus.

If $n\bar{a}g\bar{i}$ $g\bar{a}yatr\bar{i}$ means 9+9+6 (Colebrooke, Miscellaneous Essays, ii. 136, as cited by BR.), the first subdivision here comes so near it as to be capable of being read as 9+9+7 (being bhurij).

- II. [21.] As he moved out toward progeny, Prajāpati ('lord of progeny'), coming into being, moved out after, making breath [his] foodeater; [22.] with breath as food-eater doth he eat food who knoweth thus.
- 12. [23.] As he moved out toward all the intermediate directions, the most exalted one, coming into being, moved out after, making the bráhman [his] food-eater; [24.] with the bráhman as food-eater doth he eat food who knoweth thus.

The metrical definition of the first subdivision is wanting in the Anukr.

15. Paryāya the fifteenth.

*[The Anukr. counts 'sya as asya in vss. 3, 4, 7, and 8, and thus makes them count as 16, 17, 17, and 17 syllables respectively. The text says simply tisro bhurijas; but vss. 4, 7, and 8 must be meant.]

Translated: Aufrecht, Ind. Stud. i. 137; Griffith, ii. 197.

1. Of that Vrātya ---

Bp. combines this verse and the following into one, reckoning only eight verses in the hymn. And one ms. (R.) regards every verse * in hymns 15, 16, 17 as beginning with tasya vratyasya [followed by an avasāna-mark, as, in fact, SPP. prints them: see my statement at page 771, end]; this, which is opposed to the Anukr., seems also quite uncalled for and wrong. [But, for our vss. 3 and 4 at least, SPP. notes that his procedure is in accord with all his authorities.] *[Except 15. 2, which, however, ought properly to form one verse with 15. 1, as it does in fact in Bp.]

- 2. [There are] seven breaths, seven expirations $(ap\bar{a}n\acute{a})$, seven outbreathings $(vy\bar{a}n\acute{a})$.
 - 3. His breath that is first, upward by name, that is this fire.
- 4. His breath that is second, preferred (?prāúdha) by name, that is yon sun (ādityá).

The pada-mss. accent, doubtless falsely, praoûdhah (instead of práoūdhah); Bs. and O.p.m. read prodh-: see Prāt. iii. 45, note.

5. His breath that is third, inferred (?abhyùdha) by name, that is you moon.

Some mss. [of W's and of SPP's also] accent 'bhyūdho, and Bp. has accordingly abhioūdhaḥ (but D. abhioū-); our text makes the necessary correction to abhyù-; [and so SPP.].

6. His breath that is fourth, mighty (vibht) by name, that is this cleansing one (pavamana).

That is, doubtless, the wind, and not soma.

xv. 15-

- 7. His breath that is fifth, womb $(?y\delta ni)$ by name, that is these waters.
 - 8. His breath that is sixth, dear by name, that is these cattle.
- 9. His breath that is seventh, unlimited by name, that is these creatures (prajá).

16. Paryāya the sixteenth.

[saptaka. 1, 3. sāmny uṣṇih ; 2, 4, 5. prājāpatyo 'ṣṇih ; 6. yājuṣī triṣṭubh ; 7. āsurī gāyatrī.]

[The metrical definitions of the Anukr. imply in every verse the inclusion of the words yo 'sya (pronounced as yo asya), and the reading of apānaḥ as 3 syllables. — As noted at p. 771, end, SPP. puts each time before yo 'sya the words tásya vrātyasya with an avasāna-mark.

In this hymn, the mss. in general omit at the beginning both $y\delta$ and asya, while in 15 and 17 they omit only $y\delta$. Some, however, have asya here also (so K.; R. $y\delta$ asya throughout).

Translated: Aufrecht, Ind. Stud. i. 137; Griffith, ii. 198.

- 1. His expiration that is first, that is the day of full moon.
- 2. His expiration that is second, that is the day of the moon's quarter $(dstak\bar{a})$.
 - 3. His expiration that is third, that is the day of new moon.
 - 4. His expiration that is fourth, that is faith.
 - 5. His expiration that is fifth, that is consecration.
 - 6. His expiration that is sixth, that is sacrifice.
 - 7. His expiration that is seventh, that is these sacrificial gifts.

Bloomfield, AJP. xvii. 411, makes some observations on the word craddhā, vs. 4.]

- 2. His out-breathing that is second, that is the atmosphere.
- 3. His out-breathing that is third, that is the sky.
- 4. His out-breathing that is fourth, that is the asterisms.
- 5. His out-breathing that is fifth, that is the seasons.
- 6. His out-breathing that is sixth, that is they of the seasons.
- 7. His out-breathing that is seventh, that is the year.
- 8. The gods go about the same purpose (ártha); thus (etát) verily the seasons go about after the year and the Vrātya.

One ms. (R.) prefixes tasya vrātyasya also to this and the two following verses. [In the Bombay ed., each verse begins with tasya vrātyasya and an avasāna-mark: see p. 771, end.] The sense of the three is obscure; Aufrecht leaves them untranslated.

9. As they enter together into the sun (ādityá), just so [do they] also into new-moon day and full-moon day.

The great majority of the mss. (all save Bs.D.K.) accent amāvāsyām.

10. One [is] that immortality of theirs: to this effect (tti) [is] the offering.

Except two (D.R.), all the mss. accent éṣām.

Here ends the thirtieth prapathaka.

Book XVI.

[Unity of subject not apparent.]

LThis is the fourth book of the third grand division (books xiii.-xviii.) of the Atharvan collection. By what warrant it has found a place among the books whose distinctive feature is their unity of subject it is hard to say; and the same is in a measure true of the next book, book xvii.: but see Whitney's General Introduction; also Bloomfield's contribution to the Bühler-Kielhorn Grundriss, p. 94. The study of the ritual applications of the book distinctly fails, in my opinion, to reveal any pervading concinnity of purpose or of use.

[In the Indische Studien, xiii. 185, Weber has suggested that parts of the book are evening prayers, to be recited before going to rest, and especially for the warding off of evil dreams (see 1. 11; 5; 6; 7. 8-11); and 9. 3-4, at the end of the book, may well be taken as the words of them "that watch [have watched] for the morning" and as expressing the "joy" that "cometh in the morning," and are accordingly placed, as is usual and appropriate, at the end of the mantras concerned, in order to indicate the successful accomplishment of the purpose of those mantras. One is half tempted to give to the book the title "Against the 'terror by night'?"]

Laying apart book vi., which has received great attention from the translators (see p. 281), it may be noted that this is the first book of the Atharvan samhitā of which no translation has as yet been published by the translators of single books. Here again the bhāṣya is lacking.]

[No. 7] For "Paritta" as title of book, see p. 1045.]

The [Major] Anukr. calls the whole book prājāpatya: prājāpatyasya nava paryā-yāḥ; and both of its two anuvākas are evidently called by the same name [prājā-patyābhyām] in xix. 23. 26; whether this means to ascribe the authorship of the book to Prajāpati is not certain.—[On the other hand, the Old Anukr. seems rather to imply by its prājāpatyo ha catuskah; pañcaparyāya uttarah that the name prājāpatya pertains only to the first anuvāka, 'the one of four paryāyas.' It may, however, be added that the prājāpatyasya in the first line of the printed extract below may mean the whole book or else only the first anuvāka.

[Quotations from the Old Anukr. are given piecemeal through the mss. of the book. They may here be given in connected form as printed by SPP. in his Critical Notice, p. 23.—Line I refers to the 'prior' and the 'last' (that is the 'latter') of the two anuvākas of the 'prājāpatyan' book: unless indeed the relation of the first two words is appositive ('of the prior, the prājāpatyan' [anuvāka]: see the preceding paragraph). — At the end of the first anuvāka, 8 of W's mss. say prājāpatyo ha catuṣkaḥ; and at the end of the second is read pañcaparyāya uttaraḥ: the two quotations make a half-cloka which we may expect to find in the text of the Old Anukr., standing between lines 1 and 2 of our extract. — Line 2 refers to the paryāyas of the first anuvāka; and lines 3-6 refer to those of the second. — The numbers in parentheses refer to the paryāyas as counted from the beginning of the anuvāka; and those in brackets refer to the paryāyas as counted from the beginning of the book.

prājāpatyasya pūrvasya paramasya punah çṛṇu:

trayodaçã "dyam (i. 1) vijānīyād, dvāu (i. 2, 3) saṭkāu, saptakaḥ paraḥ (i. 4).

The quoted bit of the Old Anukr. at the end of paryāya 6 (or ii. 2) is hyekādaçakam (or hyāu-): the fact that the verse is so divided by piecemeal quotation as to bring hi at the beginning of its fragment seems to oppugn the correctness of the reading hi; and the word, as noted below, is not incorporated into the Major Anukr., the Berlin ms. of which, moreover, boggles at this point.—A comparison of the text of the Old Anukr. (above) with that of the Major Anukr. shows that the later text has quoted every word of lines 2-6 of the older, excepting tasmāc ca param and aparaḥ and the questionable hi.]

[A conspectus of the divisions of the book in tabular form follows. The explanations given on page 771 (which see: in book xv.), apply for the most part also to this table.

Vacanāni										4	4
Paryāyāvasānarcas	13	6	6	7		4	11	13	25		5 3

Note that the "ten" (6+4) and the "thrice eleven" (8+25) assigned by the Old Anukr. to $pary\bar{a}yas$ 5 (or ii. 1) and 8 (or ii. 4) represent non-coördinate divisions, as noticed and explained above, p. 771, and p. 772, ¶ 4.—Some mss. sum up the $avas\bar{a}narcas$ of the first $anuv\bar{a}ka$ as 32 (correctly). Those of the second are summed up as follows: $pary\bar{a}ya$ -avas $\bar{a}narcas$, 53 (correctly); gana-avas $\bar{a}narcas$, 14 (correctly); $avas\bar{a}narcas$ "of both kinds," 68 (! but by D. correctly as 67). The 67 with the 4 vacanas make 71 (so Bs. correctly). And 71 + 32 make 103 for the whole book, and so one ms. at least sums them up.

[Since the book consists wholly of paryāya-sūktas, there is no difference between the two editions in respect to the hymn-numbers: compare pages 611 and 770.— The division into decads is wanting.]

[See pp. clxi, cxxx end, cxxxvii top, clx.]

Differences between the two editions in the division of the paryāyas. The differences occur (as above, p. 771) only in the gana-paryāyas 5 (or ii. 1) and 8 (or ii. 4). In these, SPP. has, as the Old Anukr. requires, 10 and 33 divisions respectively (as against 6 and 27 of the Berlin edition). The explanation is as on pages 628-629 and on page 772: namely, that, in a sequence of refrains, the refrain is given in full and counted as a separate avasāna only for its first and last occurrence in that sequence. — In paryāya 5 there are properly 6 ganas, each with 3 subdivisions: therefore we have 2 ganas (the first and last), each with 3 subdivisions, making 6; while in each of the remaining 4, the refrains (b, c) are counted as one with a (thus a-b-c), making 4; and so, in all, we have 10. — In like manner, in paryāya 8, there are properly 27 ganas, each with 4 subdivisions: therefore we have 2 ganas (the first and last), each with 4 subdivisions, making 8; and (27—2=) 25, each counted as one (a-b-c-d), making 25; and so, in all, we have 33.

[The book is mainly prose: Whitney, Index, p. 5, excepts verses 1. 10, 12, 13; 4. 2, 6; 6. 1-4, 11; 9. 1, 2.]

In Pāipp. (xviii.) are found only fragments of the book, namely 1. 1-3; 4. 7 (beginning with mo 'pa), the first words of 5. 1, then 8. 1, and finally 9. 4, the concluding verse. This looks as if the whole book were acknowledged as part of the text, but its complete presentation deliberately declined for some reason. [The fragments in question follow immediately the fragment of book xv. cited in the note to xv. 2. 1.]

[In the Vāit., the book is noticed only twice: see under 2.6 and 9.3. And in the Kāuç., it is noticed only about a dozen times: see under 1.1; 2.1,6; 3.1; 4.1; 5.1; 6.1; 9.3,4.]

1. Paryāya the first.

[Prajāpati (?). — trayodaça. 1, 3. 2-p. sāmnī bṛhatī; 2, 10. yājuṣī triṣṭubh; 4. āsurī gāyatrī; 5, 8. sāmnī paūkti (5. 2-p.); 6. sāmny anuṣṭubh; 7. nicṛd virādgāyatrī; 9. āsurī paūkti; 11. sāmny uṣṇih; 12, 13. ārcy anuṣṭubh.]

Translated: Griffith, ii. 201.

1. Let go [is] the bull of the waters; let go [are] the heavenly fires.

The verse, or the hymn (paryāya), is quoted in Kāuç. 9. 9, in the process of preparing holy water (çāntyudaka); with it one "lets go the waters," and then follow question and answer respecting the preparation. In Ppp. the initial a of atisrṣṭās is not elided.

- 2. Breaking, breaking about, killing, slaughtering; --
- 3. Dimming [mroká], mind-slaying, digging, out-burning, self-spoiling, body-spoiling.

All these epithets are nom. sing. masc.; as $mrok \hat{a}$ and $nird \bar{a}h \hat{a}$ are found together in v. 31.9 as epithets of the flesh-eating fire, they are probably names of the fires mentioned in vs. 1: cf. also vs. 7, below; Ppp. combines $-d \bar{a}h \bar{a}$ "tma. Weber (Ind. Stud. xiii. 185), discussing $mrok \hat{a}$ as it occurs above at ii. 24.3 in the long string of epithets, takes our $pary \bar{a}ya$ here as an evening prayer (see p. 792), and notes the names of the ten Agnis here rehearsed in vss. 2, 3.

- 4. That one now I let go; that one let me not wash down against myself;
 - 5. That one do we let go against him who hates us, whom we hate.

These two verses form a part of vss. 15-21 in the water-thunderbolt (udavajra) hymn, above, x. 5 [see my note]; and fragments of the same hymn are found further on in this paryāya and in 7. 6, 13, indicating some connection of application with that hymn, though Kāuç. suggests such connection only for xvi. 2. 1.

6. Thou art tip (dgra) of the waters; I let you go down unto the ocean.

With the second part compare the opening words of x. 5. 23.

7. The fire that is in the waters, it do I let go, the dimming, digging, body-spoiling one.

With this verse compare PGS. ii. 6. 10, used in the ceremonies commemorating the end of Vedic study. | The definition of the Anukr. seems to be wide of the mark. |

- 8. The fire that entered into you, O waters, this is that; what of you is terrible, this is that.
 - 9. May [it] pour upon you with Indra's Indra-power (indriyá).
- 10. Free from defilement (-riprá) [are] the waters; let them [carry] away from us defilement;—
- 11. Let them carry forth from us sin; let them carry forth evildreaming.

With the last two verses compare parts of x. 5. 24.

12. With propitious eye look at me, O waters; with propitious body touch my skin.

We had this verse above as i. 33. 4 a, b.

13. We call the propitious fires that sit in the waters. Put in me dominion [and] splendor, O divine [waters].

2. Paryāya the second.

[satka. vāgdevatya. 1. āsury anustubh; 2. āsury uṣṇih; 3. sāmny uṣṇih; 4. 3-p. sāmnī bṛhatī; 5. ārcy anustubh; 6. nicṛd virādgāyatrī.]

Translated: Griffith, ii. 202.

1. Out of evil-eating (?) with refreshment [comes] speech rich in honey.

The translation implies the change of durarmanyàs to duradmanyàs, as proposed by the Pet. Lexx. (add TB. iii. 3.99 as a reference for duradmant). The reading of the mss. is, however, assured by its quotation in the Prāt. (4. II. 16 [i.e. Add'l Note, p. 592]), and three times in the Kāuç.: namely, in 49. 27, at the very end of the chapter of witch-craft ceremonies, after use of x. 5. 6, 7 and xiii. 1. 56, with the direction iti samdhāvyā 'bhimrçati; and again, twice (58. 6, 12) in the ceremony for long life after initiation to Vedic study, once with the direction iti samdhāvya, and once with a smearing with fragrant powders. The word ūrjā in our text might also be nominative, and 'comes' is of course doubtful. The metrical definition implies the resolution -nt-a.

- 2. Rich in honey are ye; may I speak speech rich in honey.
- 'Ye': i.e., the waters, the adjective being feminine. [We had a phrase like to our second clause at iii. 20. 10: cf. Gram. § 738 a.]
 - 3. Invoked of me [is] the guardian (gopá); invoked [is] guardianship.

The different metrical designation of these two 14-syllabled verses is apparently wholly arbitrary.

- 4. Well-hearing ears, ears hearing what is excellent; may I hear excellent encomium (clóka).
 - 'Ears' is both times dual; we might fill out to 'well-hearing are my ears' etc.
- 5. Let both well-hearing and listening (úpaçruti) not desert me—eagle-like sight, unfailing light.

[For the $m\bar{a} \dots m\bar{a}$, cf. below, 3.2, etc.]

6. Spread (prastará) of the seers art thou; homage be to the spread of the divine ones (dālva).

The verse is used twice in Kāuç. (2. 18; 137.33), and once in Vāit. (2.9). In the former, it accompanies the taking up of part of the darbha-grass provided, and making a seat for the brahman-priest south of the fire, once at the parvan sacrifice and once in the ājyatantra ceremony. In the latter, it accompanies the making of such a spread in the parvan ceremonies. In all the three cases, it is evidently taken because of its specific meaning, and not because of any connection of those ceremonies with the one implied here.

3. Paryāya the third.

[Brahman. — şaṭka. ādityadevatya. 1. āsurī gāyatrī; 2, 3. ārcy anuṣṭubh; 4. prājāpatyā triṣṭubh; 5. sāmny uṣṇih; 6. 2-p. sāmnī triṣṭubh.]

Translated: Griffith, ii. 202.

1. May I be the head (mūrdhán) of riches, the head of my equals.

Or, perhaps, 'I am the head of the one, may I be so of the other.' The verse (or the paryāya) is quoted twice in Kāuç., once (18.25) in the citrā ceremony, together with a whole series of other hymns or verses, in partaking of a milk-rice-dish; and once (58.22), in the ceremony of giving food to a young child (annaprāçana), with a part of the same hymns.

2. Let both breaking (?rujá) and longing (vená) not desert me; let both the head (mūrdhán) and the distributer (?vidharman) not desert me.

The nouns in this and the following verses are in part of obscure meaning and reference.

3. Let both the kettle (?) and the cup (camasá) not desert me; let both the maintainer (dhartr) and the supporter (dhartna) not desert me.

The translation follows the suggestion of the Pet. Lexx., to emend urvá at the beginning to ukhá.

- 4. Let both the releaser (vimoká) and the wet-rimmed one not desert me; let both him of wet drops (-dánu) and Mātariçvan not desert me.
 - 5. Brihaspati my soul, manly-minded by name, hearty (hṛdya).
- 6. Free from torment my heart, a wide pasture, an ocean am I by extent (vidharman).

4. Paryāya the fourth.

[Brahman. — saptaka. ādityadevatya. 1,3. sāmny anustubh; 2. sāmny uṣṇih; 4. 3-p. anustubh; 5. āsurī gāyatrī; 6. ārcy uṣṇih; 7. 3-p. virādgarbhā 'nuṣtubh.]

Translated: Griffith, ii. 203.

1. May I be the navel of riches, the navel of my equals.

The scholiast (pariçista) adds this verse (or paryāya) to 3. 1 under Kāuç. 18. 2\frac{1}{5}. | Cf. note to 3. 1.

2. Of good seat (?svāsát) art thou, of good dawns, an immortal among mortals.

The adjectives are sing. masculine. The pada-text reads suoāsát and suouṣāh.

3. Let not breath quit me; nor let expiration, deserting me, go away.

[For 'deserting me' one might perhaps say 'leaving me low.' For the combination with $p \dot{a} r \bar{a} g \bar{a}$, cf. TS. v. 7. 9¹.] Most of our mss. (all except D.R.) leave $m \dot{a} m$ unaccented; [the curious blunder is made also by nine of SPP's mss., as against five mss. and two reciters that gave $m \dot{a} m$]. All our mss. save one (R.) combine $a p \bar{a} n \delta$ 'valinstead of $-n \partial$]. The verse is [almost] identical with vii. 53. 4 a, b [which has me' mam for $m \dot{a} m \dot{a} m$].

4. Let the sun protect me from the sky, Agni from the earth, Vāyu from the atmosphere, Yama from men (manuṣyà), Sarasvatī from them of the earth.

The verse can be read into 32 syllables, but the metrical definition of the Anukr. is altogether absurd. [Griffith gives alnás its usual meaning: possibly W's "sky" is not intentional, but a mere slip. Cf., however, 7.6, below.]

- 5. O breath-and-expiration, do not desert me; let me not perish $(pra-m\bar{\iota})$ among the people $(j\dot{a}na)$.
- 6. With well-being today, O waters, may I, whole [and] with my whole train (-ganá), attain dawns and evenings.

The verse is really composed of two tristubh padas.

7. Puissant (çákvarī) are ye; may cattle approach me; let Mitra-and-Varuṇa [assign] me breath-and-expiration; let Agni assign me dexterity.

Nearly all our mss. (not T.s.m.R.) give sthesu instead of sthesus; Land so do three of SPP's |. | For the form, see Gram. § 894 c.]

Here ends the first anuvāka, with 4 paryāyas and 32 avasānarcas: see the summations at page 793, above. The piece here quoted from the Old Anukr. is prājāpatyo ha catuskah: see p. 792.

5. Paryāya the fifth.

[Yama. — daçaka. duhsvapnanāçanadevatya. a of 1-6. virād gāyatrī (5 a. bhurij; b a. svarāj); 1 b, 6 b. prājāpatyā gāyatrī; 1 c, 6 c. 2-p. sāmnī brhatī.]

[Both the Anukramaṇīs reckon the paryāya as of 10 avasānas: that is, they count the anuṣañgas (b-c) only in their first and last occurrences, as explained at p. 793, end (cf. pages 628-9, 772).] One or two of the mss. (W.R.) indicate by fragments of b and c given also with verses 2-5 that they regard all the six verses [or gaṇas, rather] as of equal length. [It is true that the summations (see p. 793 and table) number the gaṇas as 2 and call the avasānarcas of the remaining 4 by the name of paryāya-avasāṇarcas; but it is not apparent why the gaṇas should not be counted as 6, just as those of the second paryāya of xi. 3 are counted as 18 (p. 632, top, p. 628, ¶ 10).— The numbers of the avasānas as given by SPP. in accord with the Anukr. are added by me in ell-brackets.]

Translated: Ludwig, p. 468; Griffith, ii. 203.

I. [1.] We know thy place of birth (janttra), O sleep; thou art son of seizure (grāhi), agent of Yama; [2.] ender art thou, death art thou; [3.] so, O sleep, do we comprehend thee here; do thou, O sleep, protect us from evil-dreaming.

The verses of this hymn are nearly [vs. 6 exactly] identical with vi. 46. 2; and whether they or it are quoted in Kāuç. 46. 9, 13, it is impossible, and wholly unimportant, to determine [cf. introd. to vi. 46].

- 2. [4.] We know thy place of birth, O sleep; thou art son of perdition, agent etc. etc.
- 3. [5.] We know thy place of birth, O sleep; thou art son of ill-success (dbhūti), agent etc. etc.
- 4. [6.] We know thy place of birth, O sleep; thou art son of extermination $(nirbh\bar{u}ti)$, agent etc. etc.
- 5. [7.] We know thy place of birth, O sleep; thou art son of calamity (párābhūti), agent etc. etc.
- 6. [8.] We know thy place of birth, O sleep; thou art son of the wives (jāmi) of the gods, agent of Yama; [9.] ender art thou, death art thou; [10.] so, O sleep, do we comprehend thee here; do thou, O sleep, protect us from evil-dreaming.

This verse agrees [precisely] with vi. 46. 2, and the [words devānām patnīnām garbha yāmasya kara (the readings are not quite certain)] appear in xix. 57. 3; the other verses are therefore most probably varied repetitions of this one.

6. Paryāya the sixth.

[Yama.—ekādaça. duḥsvapnanāçanadevatya; uṣodevatya. 1-4. prājāpatyā 'nuṣṭubh; 5. sāmnī paūkti; 6. nicṛd ārcī bṛhatī; 7. 2-p. sāmnī bṛhatī; 8. āsurī jagatī; 9. āsurī bṛhatī; 10. ārcy uṣṇih; 11. 3-p. yavamadhyā gāyatrī vā "rcy anuṣṭubh (see under vs. 11).]

Translated: Griffith, ii. 204.

1. We have conquered today, we have won today; we have become guiltless.

The verse corresponds to the first two pādas of RV. viii. 47. 18, which differ only by reading ca in place of the second adyá. It and its two successors (or also vs. 4) are really metrical, half anuṣṭubhs. The verse, or the paryāya, is used in Kāuç. 49. 19, nearly at the end of the abhicāra or witchcraft chapter, with xiii. 1. 28 and 3. 1, to accompany the putting on of adhipāças (conjectured 'gag' in the minor Pet. Lex.).

2. O dawn, of what evil-dreaming we have been afraid, let that fade away (apa-vas).

The verse | cf. note to vs. 1 | is, without variant, RV. viii. 47. 18 c, d.

- 3. Carry that away to him that hates; carry that away to him that curses.
 - 4. Whom we hate, and who hates us, to him we make it go.

Our yds (in ydç ca no) is an emendation for ydt, which all the mss. read. [SPP] reads ydt with all his authorities.

5. Heavenly dawn, in concord with speech; heavenly speech, in concord with dawn; —

Part of the mss. read in b devy usásā.

6. The lord of dawn, in concord with the lord of speech; the lord of speech, in concord with the lord of dawn:—

The Anukr. mss. read $\bar{a}rs\bar{\iota}$ instead of $\bar{a}rc\bar{\iota}$ in their definition of the meter of this verse.

- 7. Let them carry away for you man the niggards (ardya), the illnamed ones, the sadánvās,
 - 8. The kumblikās, the spoilers (dūṣikā), the revilers (piyaka), —
 - 9. Waking evil-dreaming, sleeping evil-dreaming.

Literally 'of one waking' and 'in sleep.' The pada-text reads odusvapnyám both times. The Anukr. twice resolves -ni-am.

10. Boons that will not come, plans of non-acquisition, fetters of hatred that does not release:—

That is, probably, plans or desires that issue in failure. [Griffith takes drúh here and at ii. 10 as a female fiend.]

11. That, O Agni, let the gods carry away for you man, that he may be impotent (vádhri), faltering, not good (sādhú).

'For him,' here and in vs. 7, is plainly equivalent to 'to him,' or that they may be his. All the mss. accent vithuras; so SPP. reads with all his authorities. As gāyatrī and ārcy anuṣṭubh both imply 24 syllables, the Anukr. seems willing to give us our choice between them.

[Perhaps we should understand the definition 3-p. yavamadhyā gāyatrīvārcy anustup as an 'anustubh of 24 syllables, like (iva: not vā) a 3-p. yavamadhyā gāyatrī' (7+10+7: Ind. Stud. viii. 129): only this one divides rather as 8+10+6.— One is tempted to deem agne an intrusion and to regard the verse as a couple of simple tristubh pādas: and the temptation is strengthened by the fact that the sole mark of pādadivision in W's Collation Book comes after vahantu.

7. Paryāya the seventh.

[Yama. — dvyadhikam vihitam. duḥsvapnanāçanadevatya. 1. pañkti; 2. sāmny anuṣṭubh; 3. āsury uṣṇih; 4. prājāpatyā gāyatrī; 5. ārcy uṣṇih; 6, 9, 11. sāmnī bṛhatī; 7. yājuṣī gāyatrī; 8. prājāpatyā bṛhatī; 10. sāmnī gāyatrī; 12. bhurik prājāpatyā 'nuṣṭubh; 13. āsurī tristubh.]

The definition of number of verses in the paryāya is taken by the Anukr. verbatim from the Old Anukr. (cf. p. 793, line 12), and appears to mean that the number of verses exceeds by two that of the preceding paryāya.

Translated: Griffith, ii. 205.

1. With that I pierce him; with ill-success I pierce him; with extermination I pierce him; with calamity I pierce him; with seizure I pierce him; with darkness I pierce him.

The 'that' of the first clause doubtless refers to 6. 11.

2. I demand against him with the terrible, cruel demands (prāiṣá) of the gods.

The word prāiṣā seems here to be used, not in its ritual sense which is common later, but rather in a sense suggested by its etymology.

3. I set him in the two tusks of Vāiçvānara.

seems to be an unmetrical version of iv. 36. 2 c, d.]

So, not so, may she swallow down.

ext reads eva: dneva: dva, and the translation follows it. The text is probably corrupt; the 'she' $(s\vec{a})$ seems unmotived. Neither Pet. Lex. contains dneva [in its main part; but the word is given in a supplement to the minor Lex., iii. 250 c].

- 5. Whoso hates us, him let [his] self (ātmán) hate; whomso we hate, let him hate [his] self.
- 6. Let us disportion our hater from heaven, from earth, from atmosphere.

Compare x. 5.25 etc.; we should expect bhajāmas here as there.

7. O thou of good ways (suyāman), of sight (cākṣuṣá).

Both the words may be proper names. Our P.M. read cākṣuṣaḥ, accentless.

- 8. Now (idám) do I wipe off evil-dreaming on him of such-and-such lineage, son of such-and-such a mother.
- 9. What I went at on such-and-such an occasion, what at evening, what in early night;—

The translation follows our emendation, abhyágacham; all the mss. read -chan (one or two in pada perhaps -chat); the true sense is very doubtful. [SPP. reads -chan with all his authorities: see his note, vol. iii., p. 352.]

- 10. What when awake, what when asleep, what by day, what by night;
 - II. What day by day I go at, from that do I cut him off (ava-day).
- 12. Him do thou smite, with him amuse thyself (?mand), his ribs do thou crush in.
 - 13. Let him not live; him let breath quit.

This verse also forms a part of x. 5. 25 etc.

8. Paryāya the eighth.

[ekādaça vāi trigunāni. a of 1-27. 1-p. yajur brāhmy anuṣṭubh; b of 1-27. 3-p. nicṛd gāyatrī; 1 c. prājāpatyā gāyatrī; d of 1-27. 3-p. prājāpatyā triṣṭubh; c of 2-4, 9, 17, 19, 24. āsurī jagatī; c of 5, 7, 8, 10, 11, 13, 18. āsurī triṣṭubh; c of 6, 12, 14-16, 20-23, 27. āsurī paūkti; c of 25, 26. āsurī bṛhatī.]

[The discrepancy in the numeration of the subdivisions of the paryāya, as between the Bombay edition (which follows the Old Anukr.) and the Berlin edition, is of the same kind as in paryāya 5, above, and the explanation given above (p. 794, top) may be consulted. The numbers of the avasānas as given by SPP. are added by me in ell-brackets.

Translated: Griffith, ii. 206.

I. [I.] Ours [is] what is conquered, ours what has shot up, ours right (rtá), ours brilliancy, ours brálman, ours heaven (svàr), ours the sacrifice, ours cattle, ours progeny, ours heroes. [2.] From that we disportion him yonder: so-and-so, of such-and-such lineage, son of such-and-such mother, who is yonder; [3.] let him not be released from the fetter of seizure. [4.] Of him now (idám) I involve the splendor, brilliancy, breath, lifetime; now I make him fall downward.

Here is again a partial correspondence with x. 5. 36. Compare also Apast. iv. 15. 3. The addition yajus to the name $br\bar{a}hmy$ anustubh (48 syllables) in the Anukr. seems, [in the light of the corresponding expression at xvii. 1. 22, 23, intended to inform us that subdivision a is a yajus; but it is not apparent why the author should give this bit of information, which is (of its kind) so isolated: cf. third note to xv. 5. 7 |.

- 2. [5.] Ours is etc. etc.; let him not be released from the fetter of perdition. Of him now etc. etc.

- 9. L12. Ours is etc. etc.; let him not be released from the fetter of the seers. Of him now etc. etc.

All our mss. except one (D.) accent rṣiṇām; our text emends to rṣiṇām. [In like manner, SPP. reads rṣiṇām with four or three of his authorities, against twelve or thirteen that have rṣiṇām.]

- 10. [13.] Ours is etc. etc.; let him not be released from the fetter of them of the seers. Of him now etc. etc.

- 17. [20.] Ours is etc. etc.; let him not be released from the fetter of the seasons. Of him now etc. etc.
- 18. [21.] Ours is etc. etc.; let him not be released from the fetter of them of the seasons. Of him now etc. etc.
- 19. [22.] Ours is etc. etc.; let him not be released from the fetter of the months. Of him now etc. etc.
- 20. [23.] Ours is etc. etc.; let him not be released from the fetter of the half-months. Of him now etc. etc.
- 21. [24.] Ours is etc. etc.; let him not be released from the fetter of day-and-night. Of him now etc. etc.
- 22. [25.] Ours is etc. etc.; let him not be released from the fetter of the two congruent (sam-yánt) days. Of him now etc. etc.

There is nothing elsewhere in the text to show what these two days are. Perhaps they are day and night over again, viewed as each a form or aspect of a day. [The use of the obscure samyant (with rtu and crt) at ix. 5. 33 should here be noted.]

23. [26.] Ours is etc. etc.; let him not be released from the fetter of heaven-and-earth. Of him now etc. etc.

- 24. [27.] Ours is etc. etc.; let him not be released from the fetter of Indra-and-Agni. Of him now etc. etc.
- 25. [28.] Ours is etc. etc.; let him not be released from the fetter of Mitra-and-Varuna. Of him now etc. etc.
- 26. [29.] Ours is etc. etc.; let him not be released from the fetter of king Varuna. Of him now etc. etc.
- 27. [30.] Ours [is] what is conquered, ours what has shot up, ours right, ours brilliancy, ours bráhman, ours heaven, ours the sacrifice, ours cattle, ours progeny, ours heroes. [31.] From that we disportion him yonder: so-and-so, of such-and-such lineage, son of such-and-such mother, who is yonder; [32.] let him not be released from the fetter, the shackle of death. [33.] Of him now I involve the splendor, brilliancy, breath, life-time; now I make him fall downward.

Some of the mss. read pádvinçāt or pádvinçāt. [There should be an avasāna-mark in vs. 26 of the Berlin ed. after the second circle indicating omission.]

9. Paryāya the ninth.

[catvāri vāi vacanāni. 1. prājāpatyā; 2. mantroktabahudevatyā; 3, 4. sāurye. 1. ārcy anustubh; 2. ārcy uṣṇih; 3. sāmnī pañkti; 4. paroṣṇih.]

Translated: Griffith, ii. 208.

1. Ours [is] what is conquered, ours what has shot up; I have withstood all fighters, niggards.

The verse is identical with the first part of x. 5. 36; and its second part, with vs. 2, is found in MS. i. 5. 3 (reading abhy àsthām).

2. That Agni says; that, too, Soma says: may Pūshan set me in the world of the well-done.

The two pādas are second and fourth pādas of a verse in MS. i. 5. 3 (which rectifies the meter by reading na \vec{a} dhāt in place of $m\vec{a}$ dhāt: our own text probably ought to read $m\vec{a}$, i.e. $m\vec{a}$ \vec{a}). With either of these readings, we have two faultless tristubh pādas; but the Anukr. sanctions only 21 syllables. The first pāda is also found as viii. 5. 5 a and xix. 24. 8 c.

3. We have gone to heaven (svàr); to heaven have we gone; we have united (sam-gam) with the sun's light;—

The first half is the beginning also of TS. i. 6. 6. In Kāuç. 6. 16, the verse is used in the parvan ceremonies, while one looks at the sun; but according to Dārila, this verse with the next is to be so used: [and his view is accepted by SPP. (iii. 350^{16}) and is supported by the suspension of the sense (see note to vs. 4)]. In Vāit. 24. 5, it is used, together with a RV. verse, to accompany the coming up from the bath in the agniṣtoma ceremony. [For the general import of this vs., see p. 792, ¶ 2.]

4. In order to becoming better (vásyas-). Rich in good (vásu-) [is] the sacrifice; good may I win (van); rich in good may I be; good put thou in me.

The first word seems to belong in sense rather to the preceding verse; [see note thereon]. All the mss. read vancistya, and the edition follows them; but we ought unquestionably to have emended to vansistya. There is even probably a play on words intended between vasu and vans. [Yet SPP. reads vancistya without note of variant: as to the form, see Gram. § 914 b.] [For use by Kāuç., see under vs. 3.]

[Here ends the thirty-first prapāṭhaka.]

Book XVII.

Prayer to the Sun, identified with Indra and with Vishnu.

[This is the fifth book of the third grand division (books xiii.-xviii.) of the Atharvan collection, and its unity of subject (as indicated by the title, above, which is slightly modified from Whitney's, p. 806) is sufficiently apparent. It is the only book of the entire collection that consists of a single anuvāka. At xix. 23. 27, it is called the Viṣāsahi (viṣāsahyāi svāhā: note the singular number); and the Old Anukr., as noted below at page 812, gives it the same designation. As was true of the preceding book (see page 792), no translation of this book has been published by the translators of single books; but from here on to the end of xx. 37 we have the bhāsya.]

[The Atharvaṇīya-paddhati, in a chapter on veda-vratas (note to Kāuç. 57. 32), nominates a viṣāsahi-vrata; and the same vrata is mentioned by Keçava, in his note to Kāuç. 42. 12, p. 344²⁴, together with the çiro-vrata, which latter is known as a necessary preliminary to the study of the "Shaveling Upanishad" (see Muṇḍaka, iii. 2. 10). "Doubtless this hymn figured prominently in it" [the viṣāsahi-vrata], says Bloomfield, in his part of the Grundriss, p. 95.]

[The hymn consists of just 30 verses: and so again we find the decad-division, — here into three precise decads. This, however, is a mechanical division. Structurally, the hymn is composed of five parts, as follows.]

[Part I., verses 1-5.—This is a sequence of 5 verses of 6 pādas each and of the scheme 8+8:8+12:8+8=52. All 5 verses are identical in the first 5 pādas, which are made up mostly of words containing the roots sah 'overpower' and ji 'win by conquest'; and they differ only in the sixth pāda, which is characterized by the phrase 'may I be' $(bh\bar{u}y\bar{a}sam)$, with an $\bar{u}ha$ which makes vs. 1 fall short of the full tale of syllables and makes an overplus for vs. 5.]

[Part II., verses 6-19. — This is a sequence of 14 verses characterized by the refrain 'Thine, O Vishnu' (tavéd viṣno). It is a curious fact that the mss. do not separate this refrain from the stock of the verse by an avasāna-mark; and herein they are supported by the Anukr. (see below), which describes verses [1-8: that is, 1-5 of Part I. and] 6-8, 10-13, 16, 18-19, and 24 as try-avasāna. In all the taved viṣno verses (6-19, and 24), the Bombay ed. follows the mss.: the Berlin ed., on the other hand, inserts an avasāna-mark before the taved; and, so far as the sense and structure go, it is imperatively demanded. — All the vss. of this part are of 7 pādas except 9, 14-15, and 17, which are of 5 each, and except 10, which is of 8.

[Part III., verses 20-23. — This consists of 4 bits of prose. The verses contain: praise and prayer to the Sun (20-21: 'brilliant art thou; may I be brilliant'); and homage to the Sun, rising, setting, etc. (22-23: namas).

[Part IV., verses 24-26. — These are 3 perfectly regular anustubh verses, to the first of which is added the anusanga that is characteristic of Part II. The 3 verses are closely related and are addressed to the Sun as Aditya or Sūrya, the first and last being appropriate for use at sunrise, and the second for use at sundown. — It may be noted that of the Pāli paritta verses (Jātaka, ii. p. 33-35) cited in the introduction to iii. 26, one set is used at sunrise and the other at sundown.

[Part V., verses 27-30. — These (if we disregard the palpably intrusive brahmaṇā of 27 a) are 4 perfectly regular stanzas, of which all the pādas are trisṭubh except 30 a and 30 c, which are jagatī in count and cadence. We might call them paritta-verses, charms for defense and protection; they show various derivatives of the roots vṛ and gup, and references to Kaçyapa (see note to iv. 20.7).

The Anukr. has some bad readings and confusions in its account of the book, but they do not concern things of much consequence. LSo Whitney, in a note to vs. 5, which note I have transposed hither. He had altered (as often, for brevity) the order of his excerpts from the Anukr.: but I have restored them in this case to the order of the original. Moreover, there are several trifling items which he has omitted or misapprehended: and these I have added or tried to set right without marking them with the usual ell-brackets.

Partly prose — verses 20-23: see ¶ 1, on this page.

The hymn, or anuvāka, or book, occurs (except vss. 13, 14, 24) also in Pāipp. xviii., following immediately upon what represents our xvi.

A few of the later verses (18, 21-23) are used in Vāit. The hymn (or the first verses of it) is reckoned to the salila gana, according to Kāuç. (18. 25); and the Pariçiṣṭa Lgiven under Kāuç. 54. 11 reckons it also to an āyuṣya gaṇa. It is used (with i. 30; iii. 8; etc.) in the ceremony of reception of a Vedic student (Kāuç. 55. 17); and (with iii. 31; iv. 13; etc.) in the following ceremony for long life (58. 3, 11); and in the anna-prāṣana rite (58. 22); further, in a solar eclipse (the whole hymn or sūkta: 99. 3; and Keçava, in his note to 100. 3, p. 3725, adds it also for use in a lunar eclipse). [Vss. 1-5 are quoted by the schol. to Kāuç. 7. 21. As to the use of the hymn in the viṣāsahivrata, see above, p. 805, \P 2.]

Translated: Griffith, ii. 209. — Perhaps the Sun is elsewhere variously identified: thus at xiii. 4. 46 (see note) with Indra; and at xiii. 2. 31 with Viṣṇu.

- I. Indra of mighty power, overpowering, having overpowered, very powerful, overpowering, power-winning (saho-jit), heaven-winning, kinewinning, booty-winning, to be praised $(\bar{\imath}d)$, by name, do I call: may I be long-lived.
- 2. Indra of mighty power etc. etc. do I call: may I be dear to the gods.
- 3. Indra of mighty power etc. etc. do I call: may I be dear to living beings (prajá).
 - 4. Indra of mighty power etc. etc. do I call: may I be dear to cattle.
- 5. Indra of mighty power etc. etc. do I call: may I be dear to my equals (samāná).

Ppp. reads [in the above 5 verses] every time viṣāsahyam; and, for c-f, s. s. viçvajitam svarjitam abhijitam vasujitam gojitam samjitam samdhanājitam: ūdyam nāma bhūyā indram āyuṣmān priyā bhūyāsam; in the repetitions, hūya (in place of its previous bhūyā), and indra devānām priyo bhūyāsam. Here, and everywhere else in the hymn, the comm. insists that by indra is intended the sun, and not Indra, quoting in proof of it TS. i. 7. 63: asāú vā ādityá indraḥ. [For the structure and count of the

6. Arise, arise, O sun; arise upon me with splendor; both let my hater be subject to me, and let not me be subject to my hater. — Thine, O Vishņu, are heroisms manifold; do thou fill us with cattle of all forms; set me in comfort in the highest firmament (vyòman).

Ppp. reads in the concluding pāda of the refrain svadhāyām no dh-; the comm. also has svadhāyām. The mss. commit the absurdity throughout of setting no avasāna between the verse proper and the refrain; we have, as required by the sense, introduced it in our text; [the matter is further discussed above, p. 805, ¶ 5]. The refrain is, as usual, represented in vss. 7–18 only by the word tava in the mss. (except in R., which fills it out a little further). [With reference to the main stock of the verse, the comm. cites most appositely TB. iii. 7.623, úd agād ayám ādityó víçvena sáhasā sahá: dvisántam máma randháyan mó ahám dvisató radham, although it does not appear why he did not cite rather our verse 24 a-d, below, which see.]

[The refrain seems to count as 11:12+11=34 syllables with the Anukr.; but the true tristubh cadences (viçvárūpāiḥ, vloman) of its second and third pādas suggest the suspicion of metrical disorder in the prior part of each of those pādas. One is tempted to think of pṛṇthi as an ill-considered modernization of pūrdhi; and to wish that mā (before dhehi) might be excised, as superfluous in meter and in sense and as making a harsh change from plural (nas) to singular.— The change from singular to plural as between the main stock and the refrain, considering the looseness of their connection, is not to be called harsh.

7. Arise, arise, O sun; arise upon me with splendor; both those whom I see and those whom I do not — among them make thou favor for me. Thine, O Vishņu etc. etc.

We should expect me for $m\bar{a}$ in d; and the comm., on account of $m\bar{a}$, takes sumatim as an adjective (= cobhanabuddhiyuktam) — which is not grammatically impossible, but against all Vedic usage. Verses 6 and 7, Lif the main stock of each verse be read rhythmically, J are undoubtedly to be counted as 66 syllables, two less than a true atyaṣṭi (68), Lbut also, on the other hand, two more than a true aṣṭi (64); but the a and the b of each can be read as 7 so as to make totals of just 64: see above, page 806, \P 6, note 3 |. | Concerning the refrain, see notes to vs. 6. |

8. Let them not damage thee in the sea, within the waters—they who approach there having fetters; quitting imprecation, thou hast ascended that sky; be thou then gracious to us; may we be in thy favor.—Thine, O Vishnu etc. etc.

Ppp. reads in b $p\bar{a}cinam$, and in c \bar{a} ruha $ct\bar{a}n$. The verse counts most naturally 78 syllables (11 × 4: 34); a proper atidhrti has 76. Bp. reads in d $\bar{a}: ruksah$; D.Kp. and all SPP's authorities have $\bar{a}: ar$, which is doubtless the true pada-text.

9. Do thou, O Indra, in order to great good-fortune, protect us about with unharmed rays. — Thine, O Vishnu etc. etc.

The comm. takes aktúbhis in its sense of 'night.' Ppp. reads adabdhāis pari in b.

10. Do thou, O Indra, with propitious aids, be most wealful to us—ascending to the triple heaven of the heaven (div), besung unto somadrinking, having a dear abode (-dhāman) unto well-being.—Thine, O Vishņu etc. etc.

Ppp. reads in a indro adbhiç (ϵ -). The comm. gives us our choice between -sthāna and -tejas as meanings of -dhāman in e. The verse has two syllables too many for a regular dhṛti (72); Lit reads properly as 5×8 and 34; but pāda a may be read as 6].

11. Thou, O Indra, art all-conquering, all-gaining (sarva-vid); much invoked [art] thou, O Indra; do thou, O Indra, send onward this well-invoking praise; be thou gracious to us; may we be in thy favor. — Thine, O Vishņu etc. etc.

Ppp. reads in a viçvavit; and instead of our d = 8 d it has çivābhis tanubhir abhi nas sajasva. The verse is a true atidhṛti by number of syllables, but very irregular in structure (8 + 10:13+11:34=76).

12. Unharmed in the heaven (div), also on earth, art thou; they have not attained thy greatness in the atmosphere; increasing with unharmed worship (bráhman), do thou there, O Indra, being in the heaven (dív), bestow protection (çárman) on us. — Thine, O Vishņu etc. etc.

Ppp. reads divas p- in a. [In d, all of SPP's authorities give sdn or sdn: and W's Collation Book notes nothing to the contrary; but] the comm. omits the word, as the meter plainly requires. The verse (11 + 12:11 + 12:34 = 80) is by number of syllables an exact krti.

13. What body of thine, O Indra, is in the waters, what on the earth, what within the fire; what of thine, O Indra, is in the heaven-gaining (svarvid) purifying one (pávamāna); with what body, O Indra, thou didst permeate (vi-āp) the atmosphere — with that body, O Indra, bestow thou protection upon us. — Thine, O Vishņu etc. etc.

In nearly all our mss. (all save D. and R.p.m.) $vy\bar{a}pitha$ (p. $vio\bar{a}pitha$) is most strangely left unaccented, and the reading was in our text emended to $vy\bar{a}pitha$, in accordance with the invariable accentuation of such forms in RV. and AV. elsewhere. But a minority of SPP's authorities are reported by him as accenting $vy\bar{a}pitha$, and he accordingly prints $vy\bar{a}pitha$ in his edition (our D.R.p.m. have the same). The 'purifying one' is doubtless here the wind ($v\bar{a}yu$: so comm.). The verse (12 + 16 : 12 + 12 : 34 = 86) counts two more syllables than a proper prakrti.

14. Increasing thee, O Indra, with worship (bráhman), the imploring seers have sat down [for] the session (sattrá). — Thine, O Vishņu etc. etc.

The verse (11 + 12:34 = 57) has one more syllable than a regular çakvarī. [Verses 13 and 14, as was noted above, are wanting in Ppp.]

15. Thou goest about Trita (?), thou about the fountain of a thousand streams, the heaven-gaining council. — Thine, O Vishnu etc. etc.

All the mss., and hence both editions, read trtām in a; but the ms. of the comm. has tritam, and we cannot well believe that the latter is not the true reading; though the sense of the whole verse is extremely obscure. The comm. explains tritam mysteriously, as either vistīrnam antarikṣam or meghāir āvṛtam udakam. Vidatha, he says, = yajña. The verse is capable of being read as 56 syllables. Ppp. puts it after our verse 17.

16. Thou defendest the four directions; thou shinest abroad with brightness (cocis) unto the two firmaments (nábhas); thou pursuest (anusthā) all these beings; thou, knowing, followest (anu-i) the way of right-eousness. — Thine, O Vishnu etc. etc.

The samhitā-mss. read vidvāns tave 'd between verse and refrain. The whole (11+11:12+11:34=79) reads naturally as three more syllables than belong to an atidhṛti.

17. With five thou heatest upward $(p\acute{a}r\bar{a}\bar{n})$, with one hitherward; thou goest driving off the imprecation in good weather (sudina). — Thine, O Vishņu etc. etc.

The comm. supplies, as is natural, didhiti or marīci 'ray' for the missing noun, and explains the five as required in order to illuminate so many worlds beyond the sun.

But Ppp. reads instead saptabhis p-' with seven.' [With reference to the rays, Griffith (note to xi. 1.36) cites Mahīdhara as quoted by Eggeling on ÇB. i. 9. 3¹⁶.] The comm. has the bad reading nādhamānas for bādh-. We have to resolve a samdhi in a in order to make 58 syllables in the verse.

18. Thou art Indra, thou great Indra, thou the world, thou Prajāpati; for thee the sacrifice is extended; to thee the offerers make oblation. — Thine, O Vishņu etc. etc.

Ppp. reads viṣṇus for lokas in b, and, in c, yajāyate for vi tāyate. Our Bp.P.M.W. T.R.p.m. also have jāyate for tāyate. To make the verse only bhurig aṣṭi (65 syll.), we have to read the first pāda as seven syllables, though it easily makes eight. In Vāit. 3. 3 the verse, with vi. 5. 2, is made to accompany a sāmnāyya offering to Indra, in the darçapūrṇamāsa ceremony. In our edition, the m of tvām before lokās is lost in printing.

19. In the non-existent is the existent made firm; in the existent is being $(bh\bar{u}td)$ made firm; being is set in what is to be; what is to be is made firm in being. Thine, O Vishnu etc. etc.

Ppp. combines bhavyā "hitam [double sandhi after -e as at ix. 1. 14] in c, and has samāhitam for pratisthitam in d. The verse, like 6 and 7, lacks two syllables of a full atyaṣṭi; but see note to vs. 7 and p. 806, ¶ 6, note 3, above].

20. Brilliant (çukrá) art thou; shiny art thou; as thou art shiny by the shining one (bhrájant), so may I by the shining one shine.

The Ppp. text of this verse is in confusion. Our P.M.I.T. combine (second time) $bhr\bar{a}j\partial$ 'si, as if we had here, as the first time, asi (instead of ási). The first pāda is the same with the beginning of ii. 11. 5. MS. iv. 9. 5 has passages resembling this verse and the next. This prose bit is a queer kakubh: the kakubh calls for 8+12+8=28; and this may be read as 8+11+9.

21. Brightness art thou, bright art thou; as thou by brightness art bright, so may I by both cattle and Brahman-splendor be bright (ruc).

Our P.M.T. have again (second time) rocd 'si; and one of SPP's pada-mss. has correspondingly asi without accent. The MS. version is in some respects better: ructr asi rucd (or rocyd) 'si sá yáthā tvám rucyấ rócasa evám ahám rucyấ rociṣṣya. Ppp. also gives rociṣṣya. For ruciṣṣya or roc-, see Gram. § 907. The metrical definition of the Anukr. is absurd, the "verse" being prose, and having only three possible divisions; it can be made 36 syllables by reading roco asi either in a or in b. It is used in Vāit. 14. 2, in the agniṣṭoma ceremony.

22. To the rising one be obeisance; to the one coming up be obeisance; to the arisen one be obeisance; to the wide ruler (v*ráj) be obeisance; to the self-ruler (svaráj) be obeisance; to the universal ruler (samráj) be obeisance.

We should expect, by the analogy of the next verse, udesyate for udāyate. The comm. explains the latter by ardhvam isad gacchate. In Vāit. 11. 16, the verse accompanies worship of the rising sun in the agnistoma ceremony. It is so far an anustubh that it contains 32 syllables. [The Anukr. informs us that this verse is a yajus; and so of the next. A similarly isolated bit of information we had concerning xvi. 8. 1 a.]

23. To the setting one be obeisance; to the one about to set be obeisance; to the one that has set be obeisance; to the wide ruler be obeisance; to the self-ruler be obeisance; to the universal ruler be obeisance.

In Vāit. 11.13, the verse accompanies worship of the setting sun in the agnistoma ceremony. The Anukr. restores both the elided initial a's in the first half-verse, thus counting 35 syllables.

24. This Aditya hath arisen, together with all ardor (tápas), making subject to me my rivals; and let me not be subject to my hater. — Thine, O Vishņu etc. etc.

We have repeated here once more the refrain of vss. 6-19. The verse is wanting in Ppp. Pādas c, d are nearly identical with our 6 c, d above. The main stock of the vs., without the refrain, corresponds to RV. i. 50. 13, which reads sáhasā in b, and dviṣántam (for sapátnān) in c; also mó for mā ca in d; and it is also TB. iii. 7. 623, quoted above in full under vs. 6, which reads like RV., save that it has máma for máhyam in c, and dviṣató for dviṣató in d.—In the Calcutta ed. of TB., sáhasā is misprinted máhasā in the text, but is given aright in the comm. (p. 504), and aright in the Poona ed., p. 1105.

25. O Aditya, thou hast ascended a boat of a hundred oars in order to well-being; thou hast made me to pass over the day, make thou me likewise (satrá) to pass over the night.

The comm. explains satrā by sahāi 'va, ahnā saha; he gives also as admissible alternative explanation "I have ascended thee as a boat" etc., understanding the second person to be used as a first! Ppp. reads, in fact, ā 'ruham; and, in c, ahar no 'ty.

26. O sun, thou hast ascended a boat of a hundred oars in order to well-being; thou hast made me to pass over the night, make thou me likewise to pass over the day.

Passages analogous and in part accordant with the two preceding verses are found in MB. ii. 5. 13, 14. Ppp. reads in a ā 'rikṣam'; and, in c, rātrī no 'ty.

27. With Prajāpati's worship (brāhman) [as] defense am I covered, with Kaçyapa's light and splendor; long-lived, of finished heroism, vigorous (?vīhāyas), having a thousand life-times, well-made, may I go about.

[Or, to bring out the connection between varman and āvṛta, one may render, 'with P's defense am I defended,' 'with P's covering am I covered.'] It is plain that bráhmaṇā, which is metrically redundant, has slipped in here out of 28 a; but it appears to be found also in Ppp., as in the text of the comm. The latter explains vthāyās by vividhagamanaḥ, sarvatrā 'pratibaddhagatiḥ; [cf. Bergaigne, Rel. Véd. iii. 287]. The verse (14 + 11:11 + 10[or 11?] = 46) has nothing of a jagatī character; [but, if we excise bráhmaṇā, it is a perfectly good triṣṭubh].

28. Encompassed with worship [as] defense am I, with Kaçyapa's light and splendor; let not the arrows that are the gods' attain me, nor those of men, let loose in order to slay (vadháya).

SPP. reports his pada-mss. as reading yā instead of yāh at end of c; I have not observed the blunder in ours. All, both his and ours, give ava-sṛṣṭā instead of -ṭāh in d. The comm. adds the visarga in both words. A part of the verse is wanting in Ppp.

29. Guarded by righteousness and by all the seasons, guarded by what is and by what is to be am I; let not evil attain me, nor death; I interpose with a sea of speech.

That is, I set my uttered charms like a sea between me and them.

30. Let Agni [as] guardian protect me all about; let the sun, rising, thrust [away] the fetters of death; out-shining dawns, firm mountains—let a thousand breaths abide (ā-yat) in me.

Ppp. reads in a gopaș pari, transposes pādas b and c (corrupting to vicchantīr, and combining uṣaṣaṣ p-), and ends d with mayu te ramantām; and it then adds our xviii. 4. 49. The connection of our c is obscure; the comm. understands $mrtyup\bar{a}c\bar{a}n$ nudantām or else $m\bar{a}m$ anugrhnantu: the former is possible. [The verse is to be read as 12 + 11 : 12 + 11.]

[Here ends the first and sole anuvāka, with 1 hymn and 30 verses. The words prathamo 'nuvākah are not printed here in either edition, but are found in several of W's mss. The quotation from the Old Anukr. is ity etat samanukrāntam reas trinçad "viṣāsahiḥ."]

[Here ends also the thirty-second prapāṭhaka.]

Book XVIII.

Funeral verses.

[Funeral ceremonies. — This eighteenth book is the sixth and last book of the third grand division (books xiii.—xviii.) of the Atharvan collection, and shows very clearly that general unity of subject which is the distinguishing characteristic of the books of that division. In particular, however, the verses of the book do not show an orderliness of arrangement corresponding with that unity of subject. In large part, the verses of this book appear also in the Rigveda and in book vi. of the Tāittirīya Āranyaka, and the readings of these two texts are wont to agree together rather than with those of the Atharvaveda. As appears from the excerpts below, p. 814, the Pañcapatalikā seems to have a special name for this book, 'The Yamas' or 'Yama-hymns.' The book has been translated by Weber in the Sitzungsberichte der königlich Preussischen Akademie der Wissenschaften zu Berlin (cited below as "Sb.") for 1895 and 1896. The bhāṣya is not wanting.]

| The funeral ceremonies of the ancient Hindus (like their nuptial ceremonies - see p. 738) have been often treated: thus, as early as 1801, by Colebrooke, in vol. vii. of the Asiatic Researches (the paper is reprinted by Cowell in his edition of H. T. Colebrooke's Essays, vol. i.: see pages 172-206); by H. H. Wilson, Works, ii. 270 f.; by R. Roth, ZDMG. viii. 467-475; by Max Müller, ZDMG. ix., appendix, pages i-lxxxii; by Monier-Williams in his Religious Thought and Life in India, chapter xi.; and by H. Oldenberg, Religion des Veda, pages 570-591. Closely akin in subject is Whitney's essay on The Vedic doctrine of a future life, reprinted in his Oriental and Linguistic Studies, i. 46-63. - See also my notes upon the customs and ritual of cremation and burial (AGS. iv. 1-6) in my Sanskrit Reader, pages 401-405, and my notes on RV. x. 18 etc., Reader, pages 382-386: in both places I have given many pertinent bibliographical references. — The sixth prapathaka of the Taittirīya Āranyaka is devoted to the funeral rites, and contains much of the material of this book of the AV. Rājendralāla Mitra's analysis of the prapāṭhaka (pages 41-48 of the "Contents" prefixed to his text-edition) may well be consulted, and also pages 33-58 of his Introduction. — The most comprehensive treatment of the subject has been given by Dr. W. Caland, under the title Die Altindischen Todten- und Bestattungsgebräuche mit Benutzung handschriftlicher Quellen dargestellt, Verhandelingen der Koninklijke Akademie van Wetenschappen te Amsterdam, Afdeeling Letterkunde, Deel I. No 6, Amsterdam, 1896, pages xiv + 193.

[Hymns (or anuvākas) 1 and 2 are treated by Weber (as above) in the Sitzungs-berichte for 1895, pages 815-866; and hymns (or anuvākas) 3 and 4, in the Sitzungs-berichte for 1896, pages 253-294.—Weber's essays give first a general introduction for the whole book (Sb., 1895, pages 815-819); and then, for each anuvāka, a special introduction followed by a translation with running comment. Each special introduction treats of the ritual uses of the anuvāka concerned and of the provenience of the various verses or groups of verses which enter into its composition and also of some general matters relating to that anuvāka.

[Divisions of the book. — The material of this book is divided by our text into 4 anuvākas and this division coincides with the division into 4 hymns. (Compare the anuvāka-division of books xii. and xiii. and xiv.) A conspectus for book xviii. follows:

Decad-division	5 tens + 11	6 tens	6 tens + 13	8 tens + 9
Vers es	61	60	73	89
Hymns	1	2	3	4
Anuvāk as	1	2	3	4

Of the "decads," anuvākas 1, 2, 3, and 4 contain respectively 6, 6, 7, and 9. The sum is 28 "decad"-sūktas. These 4 anuvākas and 28 sūktas are recognized by the Major Anukr., as noted below, next ¶. The sum of verses is 283, as is also stated by the same treatise, if we disregard an apparent misreading, ibidem.

[The Major Anukr. begins its treatment of the book thus: o cit sakhāyam (xviii. 1. 1) iti caturanuvākam aṣṭāvinçatisūktakam tryaçītidviçatanavatyarcam (? read -dviçatarcam) yamadevatyam trāiṣṭubham kāṇḍam atharvā mantroktabahudevatyam ca.

[That is to say: 'The book that begins with o cit sakhāyam has four anuvākas and twenty-eight sūktas and two-hundred-and-eighty-three verses and is in tristubh meter; the seer is Atharvan; and the deities are Yama and many others mentioned in its mantras.'

[The Pancapatalika. — The excerpts from the Old Anukr. are given piecemeal at the end of each anuvaka and may here be reconstructed into a metrical couplet:

ekașaștiç ca șaștiç ca saptatis tryadhikă parah: ekonanavatiç căi 'va yameșu vihită rcah.

That is to say: 'Sixty-one; and sixty; the next [anuvāka] three-over-seventy; and ninety-less-one: are the verses disposed among the Yama-hymns.' These excerpts are quoted in part and verbatim by the Major Anukr.

[It would thus appear from the Old Anukr. that the division into anuvākas is indeed of considerable antiquity. On the other hand, we cannot claim much intrinsic significance for the coincident division into hymns: at all events, the fact that a ritual sequence runs over the division-line between hymns 1 and 2 (see my note to 1.49) makes against such significance; and my suggestion (p. 848) as to a possible misdivision between hymns 3 and 4 points the same way.]

[See p. clx, near end.]

The whole book is wanting in Pāipp., although a very few of the verses (namely, 1.46; 2.13, 17; 3.56; 4.49) are found here and there in its text. In the Vāit., which has no chapter devoted to funeral rites, only fifteen scattered passages [covering about a score of verses] are used; but in the Kāuç., most of the verses from 1.40 on to the end of the book are quoted, solely in the chapter (adhyāya xi.: sections or kandikās 80-89) which deals with funeral rites and rites to the Fathers or Manes. [See p. 1016.]

1. [Funeral verses.]

[Atharvan.—ekaşaşti. yamadevatyam mantroktabahudevatyam ca (41-43. sarasvatīdevatyās; 40. rāudrī; 44-46. mantroktapitrdevatyās; 51, 52. pitrye). trāistubham: 8, 15. ārşī pañkti; 14, 49, 50. bhurij; 18-20, 21-23. jagatī; 37, 38. paroṣṇih; 56, 57, 61. anuṣtubh;

[Only one verse (46) is found in Pāipp., and that in book ii. Only four sūtras of the Vāit. cite verses from this hymn, and those verses are 44-46, 51, and 55. In the Kāuç., as already noted by Whitney, p. 814, nearly all the verses from 1.40 to the end of the book have their uses in the ritual. That Parts I. and II. and III. of the hymn as divided below are utterly impertinent to the proper subject of the book and therefore without ritual application, is a fact on which Weber, Sb. 1895, p. 819, has already animadverted.

LA clear synoptic statement of the provenience of the different groups of verses, or of the single verses, that enter into the composition of this hymn appears so desirable for the critical study thereof, that I subjoin the following:

Part I., verses 1-16. — This is the hymn of Yama and Yami, RV. x. 10, of 14 vss., but covering 16 in our text by reason of the strange insertion of RV. i. 84. 16 between the RV. vss. 5 and 6 (our 5 and 7) and the expansion of the RV. vs. 12 to two (our 13 and 14). — See Weber, Sb. 1895, p. 819.

Part II., verses 17-26. — This is the Agni-hymn, RV. x. 11, of 9 vss. The order of the last two is inverted, and to the whole part is prefixed a vs. (our 17) not found in other texts. — See Weber, Sb. 1895, p. 828.

Part III., verses 27-36. — This is the Agni-hymn, RV. x. 12, of 9 vss., with the order of vss. 3 and 4 inverted and with its last vs., 9, which we had above as our vs. 25, not repeated. To the whole is prefixed (as our 27, 28) a repetition of the Agni-vss., AV. vii. 82. 4, 5: perhaps vs. 5 (our 28: of which all four pādas begin with prati) is put here as a parallel to our 29 (on account of its pratyān); in that case, vs. 4 (our 27) might be regarded as a mere variation of vs. 5, with anu four times for prati, etc. — See Weber, Sb. 1895, p. 830.

Part IV., verses 37, 38. — To Indra, RV. viii. 24. 1, 2. See Weber, l.c., p. 819 n.

Part V., verse 39. — Corresponds to RV. x. 31.9.

Part VI., verse 40. — Here begin the vss. used in the ritual. — To Rudra, RV. ii. 33.11.

Part VII., verses 41-43. — To Sarasvatī with the Fathers, RV. x. 17. 7-9.

Part VIII., verses 44-46. — To the Fathers, RV. x. 15. 1, 3, 2.

Part IX., verse 47. — To the Fathers, RV. x. 14. 3.

Part X., verse 48. — To Soma, RV. vi. 47. 1.

Part XI., verses 49, 50. — To Yama, RV. x. 14. 1, 2.

Part XII., verses 51, 52. — To the Fathers, RV. x. 15.4, 6.

Part XIII., verse 53. — Tvastā duhitre etc., RV. x. 17. 1.

Part XIV. a, verse 54. — To the dead man, RV. x. 14.7.

Part XIV. b, verse 55. — Averruncatio, RV. x. 14. 9.

Part XV., verses 56, 57. — Fire-kindling, RV. x. 16. 12 and variation.

Part XVI., verses 58-60. — To Yama and the Fathers, RV. x. 14. 6, 5, 4.

Part XVII., verse 61. — To the Fathers (?), SV. i. 92.

[It thus appears that every verse of our hymn has its correspondent in the RV. save four (or five, if one wishes to count vs. 57): to wit, vs. 17, which is not found to my knowledge in any other text; vss. 27, 28, repeated from AV. vii. (see above); and vs. 61, found in SV.

Translated: as AV. hymn, by Weber, as already noted, Sb. 1895, pages 825-842; Griffith, ii. 215. — Translated, furthermore, in so far as it corresponds to RV. material (see above), by the RV. translators, Wilson, Ludwig, Grassmann; 8 of the 14 verses 47 to 60 are from RV. x. 14, which has been translated by Geldner, Siebenzig Lieder des Rigveda, p. 146. In particular, Part I. (RV. x. 10), "Yama and Yamī," has been rendered by Muir, v. 288-291; Geldner, l.c., p. 142; Ludwig, in his Rigveda, vol. ii., no. 989, with comment in vol. v., p. 510. With reference to this same Part I., J. Ehni, Die ursprüngliche Gottheit des vedischen Yama, Leipzig, 1896, pages 139-141, may be consulted. Most important is Geldner's article in the Gurupūjākaumudī, pages 19-22, in which he subjects his older views concerning RV. x. 10 to a critical revision in the light of Sāyaṇa's interpretation.

1. Unto a friend would I turn with friendship; having gone through much ocean, may the pious one take a grandson of [his] father, considering further onward upon the earth (kṣám).

That is, 'making thoughtful provision for the future.' The verse is, without variant, RV. x. 10. I. Our Bs.E. have puru in samhitā. The verse is also SV. i. 340, which has a considerably different text: for a, å tvā sākhāyah sakhyā vavrtyus; in b, arnavān jagamyāh; for d, asmin ksāye pratarām dīdyānah. The comm. takes vavrtyām as of causative value, = vartayāmi: dīdhyānas he explains first (as if it were dīdyānas) by dīpyamānas, 'becoming illustrious over the whole earth'; but also, alternatively, by "thinking [upon a means of impregnating me]."—The word sakhyā he takes as instr. of sakhyā 'friendship' [so Lanman, Noun-Inflection,]AOS. x. 336], and renders by sakhitvena; but also alternatively as instr. of sakhī, 'by means of a female friend,' a go-between!

[An oxytone feminine stem sakhi corresponding (cf. JAOS. x. 368) to a barytone masculine sakhi should accent its instr. sakhyà (JAOS. x. 368, top, 381), not sakhyå.] [Aufrecht, Festgruss an Böhtlingk, 1888, page 1, took sakhyå as a dative of sakhyá; and Pischel, Ved. Stud. i. 65 (title-page dated 1889), made a cogent and interesting argument against my view and came (independently, without doubt) to the same conclusion as Aufrecht. — For Geldner's interpretation of the whole verse, see Gurupūjākaumudī, p. 19-20.]

2. Thy friend wants (vac) not that friendship of thine, that she of like sign should become of diverse form; the sons of the great Asura, heroes, sustainers of the sky (div), look widely about.

That is, Varuna's spies are on the watch against such unpermitted acts. Our Bp.Bs. read in b sálak smyā. The comm. understands salak smā as ekodarat valak sanam ya syāḥ 'marked as from the same womb,' and visurāpā as "changing from sister to wife." The same expression occurs below in 1.34, and variations of it in TS. i. 3.101 (quoted further at vi. 3.112) and MS. i. 2.17 (a passage corresponding to, but different from, that in TS.); also VS. vi. 20 b (do.). It seems to have a kind of proverbial currency, as applied to things that change from one character to another. The comm. renders pari khyan by pari vadanti or nirākarisyanti. The verse is RV. x. 10.2.

3. Truly those immortals want that — posterity (?tyajás) of the one mortal; may thy mind be set in our mind; mayest thou enter [as] husband a wife's body.

The verse shows no variant from RV. x. 10. 3. Bs.E. read in d tanvam. The comm. explains tyajásam by tyāgam, garbhān nirgamanam, utpattim. [Cf. Weber, Sb., p. 824.]

- 4. What we (pl.) did not do formerly, why [do that] now? speaking righteousness, should we prate unrighteousness? The Gandharva in the waters and the watery woman $(y \delta s \bar{a})$ —that is our (du.) union $(n \delta b h i)$, that our [du.] highest relation $(j \bar{a} m i)$.
- RV. x. 10. 4 reads $rt\bar{a}$ in b, and $s\bar{a}$ no n- in d, but $n\bar{a}u$ at the end. [The inconcinnity of number as between no and $n\bar{a}u$ tempts one to think that here at least the text of the AV. has scored a point against that of the RV.] Anrta seems to be used here, as hardly elsewhere, in the directly opposed sense to $rt\bar{a}$. The comm. explains rapema by spastam brūmah. [Cf. Weber, Sb., p. 825.]
- 5. Verily, the generator made us (du.) in the womb man and spouse god Tvashṭar, Savitar of all forms; none overthrow (pra-mī) his ordinances (vratd); earth knows us [two] as such, also heaven.
- RV. x. 10. 5 has no variants. The treatment of pṛthivi in d as pṛagṛḥya is noticed in Prāt. iii. 34 c. [Presumably, W's literal version of d would be 'earth is cognizant of that [fact] of us two, also heaven.']
- 6. Who yokes to the pole today the kine of righteousness, the diligent, the bright, the slow to wrath (?durhṛṇāyú), that have arrows in the mouth, that shoot at the heart, amiable ones? whoso shall prosper their burden, he shall live.

This strangely intruded verse [cf. Weber, Sb. 1895, p. 819 n.] is RV. i. 84. 16 (also found in TS. iv. 2. 113; MS. iii. 16. 4), without variant [save that TS. accents dúr-hṛṇāyūn]. SV. has it at i. 341 (next after our verse 1), with the bad variants āsánn eṣām apsuvāhaḥ in c. [Cf. Aufrecht's Rigveda², vol. i., preface, p. xliv.] The comm. understands bhṛṭyām ṛṇādhat in d as here translated; also durhṛṇāyūn [alternatively] in b.

- 7. Who knows of that first day? who saw it? who shall proclaim it here? Great is the ordinance (dhāman) of Mitra, of Varuṇa; why, O lustful one, wilt thou speak to men with deceit (?vīci)?
- RV. x: 10. 6 has no variants. The comm. blunderingly attributes the verse to Yamī; he also takes $vicy\bar{a} \lfloor p.\ vicy\bar{a} \rfloor$ as for $vicy\bar{a}s$, an adj. meaning $vividham\ a\bar{n}canto\ gacchantah\ samcarantah$, and qualifying $n \neq n$, which is used as nominative, = $nar\bar{a}s$ / [See Geldner, $Gurup\bar{u}j\bar{a}kaumud\bar{t}$, p. 21-22.]
- 8. Desire of Yama hath come unto me Yamī, in order to lying together in the same lair $(y \delta ni)$; I would fain yield (ric) my body, as wife to husband; may we whirl off, like two chariot wheels.

That is, probably, like the wheels of two chariots interlocked with each other in battle. RV. x. 10. 7 has no variants from our text. The comm. makes vi vrheva mean samçlesam karavāva, adding itaretarayoh samçleso vivarhā; and his first explanation of rathyā is as = rathyayā on the carriage road! Our P.M.I. accent vrheva. The metrical definition of the Anukr. as $pa\bar{n}kti$ is very strange, though the vere can be reduced to 40 syllables by refusing to make ordinary resolutions.

9. They stand not, they wink not, those spies of the gods who go about here; with another than me, O lustful one, go quickly; with him whirl off like two chariot wheels.

The verse is RV. x. 10. 8, without variant. The comm. reads eke at end of a; he explains tuyam in c by turnam, and supplies ramasva: 'hasten to enjoy thyself.'

- 10. By nights, by days one may pay reverence (daçasy) to him; the sun's eye may open (?ún mimīyāt) for a moment; with heaven, with earth paired, of near connection; Yamī must bear the unbrotherly (djāmi) [conduct] of Yama.
- RV. x. 10. 9 differs from our text only by reading in d bibhryāt; and this reading the translation implies, vivṛhāt seeming unexplainable save as a corruption, suggested by the forms of vi-vṛh in the two preceding verses. The connection of the verse is very loose, and the sense of b especially doubtful. One is tempted to emend to mimīlyāt; but ā mimīyāt is found in TB. iii. 6. 13 [2d prāiṣa], explained by its commentary as meaning āgatya praviçeyuḥ. Our comm. explains ún m- as ūrdhvam gacchet (the RV. comm. as ud etu). Our comm. further reads at the end ajāmis, and understands it of Yamī. The adjectives in c are dual; the comm. supplies "earth with heaven and heaven with earth." [Cf. Weber, Sb., p. 823.]
- II. Verily there shall come those later ages $(yug\acute{a})$ in which next of kin $(j\bar{a}m\acute{t})$ shall do what is unkinly $\lfloor \acute{a}j\bar{a}m\acute{t}\rfloor$. Put thine arm underneath a hero $(vr;abh\acute{a})$; seek, O fortunate one, another husband than me.

The verse is, without variant, RV. x. 10. 10. Upa barbṛhi in c means 'make an upabarhaṇa (cushion, pillow) of.' Our comm. regards the anomalous barbṛhi [Gram. § 1011 a] as barbṛ + hi, -bṛ- being for -bṛh- by Vedic license.

12. What should brother be when there is no protector? or what sister, when destruction impends (ni-gam)? Impelled by desire, I prate thus much; mingle thou thy body with my body.

The first half-verse apparently means that the matter of near kindred is overborne in importance by the consideration of her loneliness and of the necessity for continuing their race. The verse agrees throughout with RV. x. 10. 11. The comm. renders -mūtā in c by mūrchitā.

13. I am not thy protector here, O Yamī; I may not mingle my body with thy body; with another than me do thou prepare enjoyments; thy brother wants not that, O fortunate one.

All our mss. save Op.K. accent yâmi in a; SPP. reports only one of his as doing so. RV. x. 10. 12 is in our text expanded into two verses, its second half being our c, d, without variant. The comm. reads nānam for tanām in b; he explains nāthâm in a by abhimatārthasampādakas.

14. Verily, I may not mingle my body with thy body; they call him wicked $(p\bar{a}pd)$ who should approach his sister. That is not consonant (?asamyát) with my mind [and] heart, that I, a brother, should lie in a sister's bed (çáyana).

The first half-verse [cf. vs. 13] is RV. x. 10. 12 a, b, which latter, however, reads in a te tanvà tanvàm sám. All the mss. leave çayīya at the end unaccented, and both editions read accordingly; we ought in ours to have made the necessary emendation to çâyīya. The mss. vary in c between ásamyat, asamyát, ásamyát, and asamyat; SPP. gives in his text ásamyat, which is better than our asamyát; the pada-text divides asamoyat. The comm. reads instead asum yat, and supplies a verb, apaharet, to govern asum.

- 15. A weakling (?batá), alas, art thou, O Yama; we have not found mind and heart thine; verily, another woman shall embrace thee, as a girth a harnessed [horse], as a twining plant (libujā) a tree.
- RV. x. 10. 13 varies from this only by reading (as also our Bp.) in \mathbf{d} svajāte. The translation given of kaksyè 'va yuktám agrees with the comm. (also the comm. to RV.), which renders yuktam by svasambaddham açvam. Pāda \mathbf{b} evidently alludes to 14 \mathbf{c} , where Yama talks of his mind and heart. If batás is a genuine word (the metrical disarray intimates corruption), it looks like being the noun of which the common exclamation bata is by origin the vocative. The RV. Anukr. takes no notice of the defective meter; ours requires the verse to be read as only 40 syllables, which is possible (10+9:10+11=40); $[\mathbf{c}$ and \mathbf{d} are good trisṭubh pādas and \mathbf{b} has a trisṭubh cadence.]
- 16. Another man, truly, O Yamī, another man shall embrace thee, as a twining plant a tree; either do thou seek his mind or he thine; then make for thyself very excellent concord (samvid).
- RV. x. 10. 14 has for a the much better version anyâm ũ sử tvâm yamy anyâ u tvấm, and in b again svajāte. Our D., and a single ms. of SPP's (with the comm.), also have anyam [at the beginning], and SPP. accordingly admits anyâm into his text, in spite of the absence of tvâm. But the comment on the Prāt. three times (under ii. 97; iii. 4; iv. 98) reads anya ũ su, and it cannot well be questioned that this is the true text of our AV. Our P.M.E. accent again yâmi. The Anukr. takes no notice of the lacking syllable in a; | perhaps it balances c against a |.
- 17. Three meters the poets extended (?vi-yat) the many-formed one, the admirable, the all-beholding; waters, winds, herbs these are set (árpita) in one being (bhúvana).

The verse is extremely obscure, in meaning and in connection. The mss. vary much as regards the accent of pururūpam; two of ours (O.D.) and several of SPP's accent -rūp-, which, as it is found in other texts, the latter has very properly admitted in his edition. The comm. renders vi yetire by yatnam kṛtavantaḥ. The Anukr. takes no notice of the irregularity of the meter. [Concerning this prakṣipta-verse, "glossenartige Parallelstelle," see Weber, Sb. 1895, p. 819 note, and p. 828.]

18. The bull yieldeth (duh) milks for the bull with the milking of the sky (div), he the unharmable son (?yahvá) of Aditi; everything knoweth he, like Varuṇa, by thought (dhi); he, sharing the sacrifice (yajniya), sacrificeth to the seasons that share the sacrifice.

The verse is RV. x. 11. 1, whose only variant is yajatu for $-\mathbf{n}$ in d. The comm. explains $v\hat{r}_s\hat{a}$ as Agni, and $v\hat{r}_sne$ as the sacrificer, $d\delta has\bar{a}$ as $= dohanas\bar{a}dhanena$ $yaja\bar{a}din\bar{a}$, $yahv\hat{a}s$ as $mah\bar{a}n$ and qualifying $v\hat{r}_s\bar{a}$ together with $\hat{a}d\bar{a}bhyas$, while $\hat{a}dites$ means "indivisible" and qualifies $div\hat{a}s$, which is ablative: the general sense being that the god procures rain for his worshiper. His understanding of c agrees with the translation given above. Compare Pischel's version of the verse and general explanation of the RV. hymn in Ved. Stud. i. 183 ff.; his exposition is excessively ingenious and extremely unsatisfactory.

- 19. Prateth the Gandharvi and watery woman; in the noise of the noisy one (nadá) let [her] protect our mind; let Aditi set us in the midst of what is desired (?ista); our oldest brother shall first speak out.
- RV. x. 11. 2 has for sole variant me for nas in b. The comm. to the first half-verse appears to be defective; but it certainly understands the goddesses Bhāratī and Sarasvatī to be intended in a; iṣṭasya is either phalasya or yāgasya; the "brother" is Agni. Leichel discusses the RV. verse at Ved. Stud. i. 183.
- 20. She now, the excellent, rich in food, full of glory the dawn hath shone for man $(m \acute{a} n u)$, full of light $(sv \grave{a} r)$; since they have generated for the council [as] $h\acute{o}tr$ Agni, the eager one, after the will $(kr\acute{a}tu)$ of the eager ones.

This is RV. x. 11. 3, without variant. The comm. renders kṣumátī in a by mantra-rūpaçabdavatī, and vidáthāya (of course) by yajñāya, and understands ánu krátum as "for each several ceremony."

- 21. Then that mighty (vibhi) conspicuous drop did the bird, the lively falcon, bring at the sacrifice; if the Aryan tribes (viq) choose the wondrous one, Agni, [as] hot, then prayer (dhi) was born.
- RV. x. 11. 4 differs only by reading iṣitās in b. The comm. makes a couple of references, to TB. iii. 2. 11 and TS. vi. 1.61, where the legends of the bringing of soma from heaven by the falcon are given. Prāt. iii. 25 notes the short final of ádha in a and d.
- 22. Ever art thou pleasant (ranvá), as pastures to him that enjoys (pus) them, being, O Agni, well sacrificed to with the offerings of man (mánus); or when, active, praiseworthy, having won the strength (vája) of the inspired one (vipra), thou approachest with very many.
- RV. x. 11.5 differs only by reading ukthyàm at end of c. The construction and meaning of the second half-verse are difficult and obscure. The comm. explains çaçamānas by çansan yajamānam praçansan (similarly the comm. to RV.); and bhūribhis as "accompanied by many desires or else by many gods" (RV. comm. only the latter).
- 23. Send thou up the (two) fathers, [as] a lover, unto enjoyment (bhága). The welcome one (haryatá) desires to sacrifice; he sends from the heart; the bearer (váhni) speaks out; the merry one (?makhá) does a good work; the Asura shows might (tavisy); he trembles with purpose (?mati).

The verse is RV. x. 11. 6, without variant. It is extremely obscure, and the general sense, as well as the meaning of several words, is in a high degree doubtful; the translation given is no more than mechanical. [Cf. Weber, p. 829.] The 'two fathers' (parents) are declared by the comm., probably rightly, to be heaven and earth; $j\bar{a}ras$ is explained as $\bar{a}dityas$, and \bar{a} as = iva. Or, alternatively, $j\bar{a}ras$ is "praiser," coming from $jar\bar{a}$ "praise," and to \bar{a} is to be supplied hvayati. The isyati is made = icchati; vahni is Agni; makhas is $makhas\bar{a}dhano$ mahhaniyo $v\bar{a}$; tavisyate is vardhisyate. All this is of interest only as showing that no help is to be obtained from the native exegetes.

- 24. Whatever mortal hath seen thy favor, O Agni, son of power, he is renowned exceedingly; acquiring $(dh\bar{a})$ food (is), borne by horses, he, lightful, vigorous, passes $(?\bar{a} \cdot bh\bar{u}s)$ the days (div).
- RV. x. 11. 7 reads in a dksat, of which our dkhyat is doubtless only a corruption. Our Bp. and one of SPP's authorities have aksat. The comm. renders \bar{a} $bh\bar{u}sati$ by $\bar{a}bhavati$; [he adds alternatively: $bh\bar{u}sati = bubh\bar{u}sati$, $dyum\bar{a}n \dots bhavitum$ icchati]. In b he reads abhi instead of ati.
- 25. Hear us, O Agni, in thy seat, thy station; harness the speedy chariot of the immortal (amṛta); bring to us the two firmaments (ródasī), parents of the gods; be thou of the gods never (mākis) away; mayest thou be here.

The verse is RV. x. 11.9 (and 12.9), without variant. The comm. comfortably supplies sample in \mathbf{d} to govern the genitive devānām. Then, as alternative explanation, he understands bhūs and syās as third persons, and mākis as "no one."

26. That, O Agni, this meeting may take place $(bh\bar{u})$, divine, among the gods, worshipful, thou reverend one, and that thou mayest share out treasures, O self-ruling one, do thou enjoy here our portion filled with good things.

The verse is, without variant, RV. x. 11.8 (also found in MS. iv. 14. 15).

- 27. Agni hath looked after the apex of the dawns, after the days, [he] first, Jātavedas; a sun, after the dawns, after the rays; after heaven-and-earth he entered.
- 28. Agni hath looked forth to meet the apex of the dawns, to meet the days, [he] first, Jātavedas, and to meet the rays of the sun in many places; to meet heaven-and-earth he stretched out.

These two verses we had above as vii. 82. 4, 5. They are here again written out in full by two of our mss. (O.R.). [Cf. my introduction, above, p. 815.]

29. Heaven and earth, first by right, truth-speaking, are within hearing, when the god, making mortals to sacrifice, sits as $h\delta tr$, going to meet his own being (dsu).

The verse is RV. x. 12. 1, without variant. Some of our mss. (Bp.Bs.Op.) read abhisrāve in b. The comm. explains the word by stotuh çravaṇayogye.

30. A god, encompassing the gods with right, carry thou first our offering, understanding [it]; smoke-bannered by the fuel, light-beaming, a pleasant, constant hôte, skilled sacrificer with speech.

The verse is RV. x. 12. 2, without variant. The majority of SPP's mss., with one of ours (Op.), read bhārcīko in c. Neither our Anukr. nor that of the RV. notes the deficiency of a syllable in a.

31. I praise (arc) your (du.) work unto increase, ye ghee-surfaced ones; O heaven-and-earth, hear me, ye two firmaments $(r \acute{o} das \vec{\imath})$; when days, O gods, went to the other life $(\acute{a} sun \vec{\imath} ti)$, let the two parents $(pit \acute{a} r \vec{a})$ sharpen us here with honey.

The rendering is only mechanical, the obscurity of the verse being unresolved. It is RV. x. 12. 4, which, however, reads for c $dh\bar{a}$ ydd $dy\bar{a}vb$ 'sunitim dyan. Our mss. and the authorities of SPP. vary in c between $dev\bar{a}s$, $dev\bar{a}s$, and $dev\bar{a}s$; SPP. reads $dev\bar{a}s$, with $\lfloor at \ least \rfloor$ two of his; our $dev\bar{a}s$ is not defensible; the translation implies $dev\bar{a}s$. The comm. makes the word the subject of $\bar{a}yan$, taking $dh\bar{a}$ (p. $dh\bar{a}$) as for ahahsu; he explains $dev\bar{a}s$ by $stot\bar{a}ras$ or rtvijas. Our Bp. is the only pada-ms. that reads (with the RV. pada) dpah in a; the others have $\bar{a}pah$; but, as the comm. gives the former, SPP. adopts it in his text. A majority of SPP's mss. accent $ghrtasn\bar{u}$, but only one of ours (O.) does so.

32. If the god's immortality $(am\dot{r}ta)$ is easy to appropriate for the cow, thence those who are born maintain themselves on the broad [earth]; all the gods go after that sacrificial formula of thine, when the hind yields (duh) the ghee, heavenly liquor (vdr).

The verse is RV. x. 12. 3, without variant. It is all extremely obscure, especially the first pāda, which admits of being rendered in half-a-dozen different ways; the translation given is purely tentative. The comm. gives little help. The pada-text does not divide or otherwise change svāvṛk, which indicates that its makers did not see in the word the formation su-ā-vṛj, which is plausibly seen in it by western scholars and by our comm. The latter takes urvī (p. urvī ti) as dual, but in the Prāt. it is quoted by the comment (to i. 74) as example of a locative in ī, which it doubtless is. Our comm. derives yājus first from root yuj and makes it = karman; devās is again, as above (vs. 31), stotāras, ṛtvijas. [With the expression divyām vāḥ, applied to ghee, compare the expression at x. 4. 3, vār ugrām, applied to snake-venom, which may well be called a 'terrible fluid': but see note to x. 4. 3.]

33. Why forsooth hath the king seized (grah) us? what have we done in transgression of (dti) his ordinance (vratd)? who discerns [it]? for even Mitra, swerving the gods, like a song of praise (çlóka), is the might also of them that go.

The verse is RV. x. 12. 5, without variant. The second half-verse, especially the last pāda, is bafflingly obscure. The accent of dsti, as well as the absence of other construction for mitras, strongly indicates that the whole of the second half-verse forms one sentence; in which case vajas is perhaps most probably a corruption. The comm. understands raja in a as Yama, and jagrhe as signifying his "acceptance" of offerings — which is very ill guessed; doubtless it is Varuṇa (so Ludwig; the RV. comm. makes it

- Agni). He then renders juhurānās most absurdly by āhvayan, [saying that "the root hvṛ 'crook' is here used in the sense of root $h\bar{u}$ 'call'"]. He reads in d (as do some of the mss., including our O.Op.R.) yātān, as accus. of the pple yāta, qualifying devān understood, rendering devān abhigacchato no 'smān rakṣitum! and so on. The version of the line given above is of course mechanical only.
- 34. Hard to reverence (?durmántu) here is the name of the immortal, that she of like sign should become of diverse form; whoso shall reverence Yama with proper reverence (?sumántu), him, O Agni, exalted one, do thou protect, unremitting.

This verse is found also as RV. x. 12. 6, without variant, but the RV. comm. passes it without notice, as if recognizing it as not genuine. It is very strange to find repeated here as b vs. 2 b, above, as the connection this time does not explain the feminine words in it. The comm. first explains (like Grassmann) the pāda as quoted from the other verse; but goes on to add other interpretations. He defines durmántu by durmananam durvacam.

35. In whom the gods revel at the council, maintain themselves in Vivasvant's seat—they placed light in the sun, rays in the moon: the two, unfailing, wait upon (pari-car) the brightness (dyotani).

The verse is x. 12. 7, without variant. The comm. separates yásmin from vidáthe, supplying agnāu for the former to qualify (the RV. comm. does the same); perhaps rather manmani is to be inferred from the following verse. [W. suggests by a note to his ms. as an alternative for a, 'In what council the gods revel.'] Our comm. also explains, in d, dyotanim by dyotamānam agnim, and it reads ajasram, understanding it adverbially; aktūn in c is either raçmīn or rātrīs. [This vs. and the next are discussed by Foy, KZ. xxxiv. 228.]

36. In what secret $(ap\bar{\imath}cy\dot{a})$ devotion $(m\acute{a}nman)$ the gods go about (sam-car) — we know it not; may Mitra, may Aditi, may god Savitar declare us here guiltless to Varuṇa.

The verse is RV. x. 12. 8, without variant. Our comm. explains mánmani by mantavye sthāne varuṇākhye.

37. O companions, we would supplicate $(\bar{a}$ - $\zeta \bar{a}s)$ worship (brahman) for Indra, possessor of the thunderbolt, to praise, indeed, the most manly, the daring.

The verse is RV. viii. 24. I (also SV. i. 390), which reads in a ciṣāmahi (SV. -he), and inserts in c vas after \bar{u} $\dot{s}\dot{u}$, as required by the meter. The comm's text (but not his exposition) also has the vas. Our Anukr. takes no notice of the lack of a syllable in the pāda. The comm. explains \dot{a} ciṣāmahe by \bar{a} cāsmahe, and supplies kartum; he renders stuṣe by either stāumi or stotum. The particles \dot{u} $\dot{s}\dot{u}$ are included in the prescriptions of Prāt. ii. 97; iii. 4; iv. 98. [Weber, Sb. 1895, p. 819 n., can assign no reason why vss. 37-38 should appear here.]

38. For thou art famed for might (cdvas), for Vritra-slaying, a Vritra-slayer; thou out-bestowest the bounteous with thy bounties, O hero.

The verse is RV. viii. 24. 2, and without variant, if, with SPP., we read crutás at end of a. Our text has critás, with a part of the mss.; they vary between crutás (our O.Op.D.R., and half of SPP's; also the comm.), critás (our P.M.T., and two of SPP's), and crtás (our Bp.Bs.E.I.K.Kp., and three or four of SPP's authorities) — which last is doubtless only a careless variant of critás. The translation given above implies crutás. The comm. perhaps reads in b vrtrahatye 'va.

39. Thou goest over the earth as a stegá over the ground; let winds blow here on the great earth $(bh\dot{u}mi)$ for us; Mitra for us there $(\dot{a}tra)$, Varuna, being joined, hath let loose heat $(\dot{c}\dot{o}ka)$, as fire does in the forest.

RV. x. 31. 9 corresponds, but has very considerable differences of reading: in a, eti pṛthvim; for b, miham ná vấto vi ha vặti bhūma; in c, yátra (for no átra) and ajyámānas (for yuj-); in d, 'gntr v-. Part of the AV. mss. also have 'gntr v- (our O.R., and nearly half of SPP's), which accordingly might well be adopted in the text; but SPP., like our edition, reads agnir v. One or two of our mss. (Op.R.s.m.) read in d asrsta (vyds-), and so do a minority of SPP's; and the latter gives in his samhitā-text vydsrsta, but (apparently by an oversight) in his pada-text vt: asrsta; one sees no reason at all for the accentuation of the verb | in the AV. text, with its átra |.* Our text is plainly an unintelligent corruption of an unintelligible verse. The RV. comm. guesses raçmisanighāty ādityah to be the meaning of the | very rare | stegd, but only on the ground of a worthless etymology. Our comm. is defective here, but the lacuna is filled up by the editor, who makes it signify "a frog "! | a meaning possibly suggested by the passage at TS. v. 7. 11 (which is parallel to VS. xxv. 1) |. Ludwig conjectures "a plowshare" [and Weber follows him]. Our pada-text reads in b maht tti, and the case is quoted under Prat. i. 74 as that of a locative in I; our comm. renders it | alternatively | by mahatīm; he also renders vyásṛṣṭa by nāçayatu! The m of pṛthivin is almost or quite illegible in our text. The Anukr. takes no notice of the metrical irregularities of the verse (10 + 11 : 12 + 11 = 44).

* The RV. reads vy dsrsta, and has the difficult pada-reading vt: dsrsta: here the RV's accentuation of dsrsta is accounted for by the RV's ydtra; and the accent of vt is to be put with the remarkable cases (some thirty) mentioned by W., Gram. § 1084 a, whether we regard it as a blunder helped by the wavering tradition as to dtra, ydtra, or not. (Cf. what is said about "blend-readings" under xiv. 2. 18 and, just below, under xviii. 1. 42.) Whitney's Bp. follows the RV. in giving vt: dsrsta and his Bs. has vydsrsta: cf. the vt: ddadhus of xix. 6. 5 a.]

40. Praise thou the famed sitter on the hollow of men (jána), the terrible king, formidable assailant (?upahatnú); being praised, O Rudra, be gracious to the singer; let thine army (?sénya) lay low (ni-vap) another than us.

The verse corresponds to RV. ii. 33. II (also found in TS. iv. 5. 103, without variant from RV.), which reads in a-b-sádam yúvānam mṛgám ná bh-, and, for d, 'nyám te asmán nt vapantu sénāh. The substitution in our text of sényam for sénās at the end throws into confusion sense and construction. The comm. first takes it as = senās, and then as accus. qualifying anyám and signifying tava senārham, in the latter case supplying senās as subject of the verb. Gartasádam he takes first in the Nirukta sense of çmaçānasamcaya, and then in its "ordinary" (prasiddha) meaning, adding tasyā 'ranye samcārād gartasadanam yujyate. The Kāuç. (85. 19) uses the verse in connection with the digging of a hollow (garta) in the middle of the measured space at the pindapitṛyajña, and the scattering into it of a number of heterogeneous substances.

Our comm., by some rare and strange oversight, makes no mention of this viniyoga, and so does not take it into account in the explanation of the verse. Apparently it is only the occurrence of gartasad in the verse that suggests the use; of real applicability to the situation there is none.

- 41. On Sarasvatī do the pious call; on Sarasvatī, while the sacrifice is being extended; on Sarasvatī do the well-doers call: may Sarasvatī give what is desirable to the worshiper (dāçvāis).
- RV. x. 17. 7 is the same verse, but makes better meter by having ahvayanta for havante in c; and the comm. agrees with it. Verses 41-43, with others to Sarasvatī (vii. 68. 1-2; also xviii. 3. 25), are used by Kāuç. (81. 39) in the pitrmedha ceremony, accompanying offerings to Sarasvatī. [And they recur below, as noted under vs. 43.] The Anukr. takes no notice of the deficiency of a syllable in 41 c, and 42 a, nor of the excess of two syllables in 43 a.
- 42. On Sarasvatī do the Fathers call, arriving at the sacrifice on the south; sitting on this barhis do ye revel; assign thou to us food (iṣas) free from disease.

Here again the RV. version (x. 17. 9 a, b, 8 c, d) makes the meter good by inserting [or rather (cf. vs. 59), by not omitting] yām in a before pitāras (and hence accenting hāvante*); it also accents dakṣiṇā in b, as other texts do; two of our mss. (O.s.m.Op.) do the same, with the majority of SPP's, whence the latter adopts dakṣiṇā in his edition; it is undoubtedly the correct reading [as is explicitly stated also by the comm. to xix. 13. 9, page 325²¹]. RV. also avoids the change of subject in the second line by reading mādayasva in c. *[It is interesting to note that SPP's CP accents hāvante, as if the missing yām were not missing: cf. my note about "blend-readings" under xiv. 2. 18, and the end of my note under xviii. 1. 39; also note to 4. 57.]

43. O Sarasvatī, that wentest in company (sarātham) with the songs (ukthā), with the svadhās, O goddess, reveling with the Fathers, assign thou to the sacrificer here a portion of refreshment (id) of thousandfold value, abundance of wealth.

Here, once more, the AV. disturbs the meter by the intrusion into a of ukthāts, which is wanting in the RV. version (x. 17.8 a, b, 9 c, d). [RV. reads yájamāneṣu in d.] The three Sarasvatī verses are repeated below as xviii. 4. 45-47. The comm. gives annasya as equivalent of iḍás.

44. Let the lower, let the higher, let the midmost Fathers, the somadrinking (?somyá), go up; they who went to life (ásu), unharmed (avrká), right-knowing—let those Fathers aid us at our calls.

The verse is found, without variant, as RV. x. 15.1, VS. xix. 49, and in TS. ii. 6. 123, MS. iv. 10. 6. It is used twice by Kāuç. in the funeral book: once (80. 43) at the piling of the funeral pile, and once (87. 14), in the pindapitryajña, at the digging of a pit for receiving certain offerings. Verses 44-46 appear together (87. 29) in the latter ceremony with the bringing in of certain water-pots [i.e. the pouring in (of their contents)?]. In Vāit. (30. 14), vss. 44 and 45, with 51, and 3. 44, 45, are prescribed to be repeated after the pouring of surā into a perforated vessel, in the sāutrāmanī ceremony; and again, vss. 44-46 accompany (37. 23) the binding of a victim to the sacrificial post in the puruṣamedha.

45. I have won hither (ā-vid) the beneficent Fathers, both the grandson and the wide-striding of Vishņu; they who, sitting on the barhis, partake of the pressed drink with svadhā—they come especially hither.

The verse is, without variant, RV. x. 15. 3, VS. xix. 56, and found in TS. ii. 6. 123 and MS. iv. 10. 6 (MS. puts ye after svadháyā in c). Our comm. is uncertain from which root vid to make avitsi, and casts no light on the obscure second pāda; he renders āgamisthās either by āgamaya or āgacchantu. The abbreviated form barhisádas (p. barhisádah) is one of those quoted by the Prāt. comment as aimed at by rules ii. 59; iv. 100. For the use of the verse by Kāuç. and Vāit., see under vs. 44.

46. Be this homage today to the Fathers, who went first, who went after, who are seated in the space (rájas) of earth, or who are now in regions (díq) having good abodes (suvrjána).

The verse is RV. x. 15. 2, which, however, reads in b úparāsas, and in d vikṣú; and with it in both respects read the corresponding verses in TS. ii. 6. 124 and MS. iv. 10. 6; also VS. xix. 68 (but this, with our E., has nāmo 'stu in a). Ppp. also gives the verse in book ii., reading in b ye parāsas pareyuh, and in d suvrjināsu vikṣu. Some of our mss. (P.M.I.R.T.), and one of SPP's, agree with RV. in reading úparāsas; the comm. divides u parāsas; and our E. has vikṣú, while P.M. give divikṣú, and I. prikṣú. For the use of the verse in Kāuç. and Vāit. with vss. 44-45, see under 44; it also (or else, more probably, 4. 51: see under that verse) is prescribed alone (80. 51) to accompany the scattering of darbha-grass in preparing the funeral pile.

- 47. Mātalī with the kavyds, Yama with the Angirases, Brihaspati increasing with the rkvans ('praisers'); both they whom the gods increased and who [increased] the gods—let those Fathers aid us at our calls.
- RV. x. 14. 3 has the first three pādas, but, instead of repeating our 44 d, reads for the fourth svāhā 'nyé svadháyā 'nyé madanti; and TS. (ii. 6. 125) and MS. (iv. 14. 16) agree with it in so doing.
- 48. Sweet verily is this [sóma], and full of honey is this; strong (tīvrá) verily is this, and full of sap is this; and no one soever overpowers in conflicts (āhavá) Indra, having now drunk of it.

The verse is RV. vi. 47. 1, without real variant; its applicability in the funeral book is not apparent, and neither Kāuç. nor Vāit. uses it. Part of our mss. (O.R.K.), with nearly all SPP's, combine at the beginning svādúṣ k-, which RV. also has; and SPP., with good reason, adopts this in his text.

49. Him that went away to the advances called great, spying out the road for many, Vivasvant's son, gatherer of people, king Yama, honor (sapary) ye with oblation.

The verse is RV. x. 14. 1, which, however, reads anu for tti at end of a, and duvasya for saparyata in d. A verse in MS. iv. 14. 16 has the RV. version throughout. TA. (in vi. 1. 1) gives at the end the genuine variant duvasyata, but also in a and b the incredible blunders pare yuvānsam and anapaspaçānam; [so even the Poona ed., p. 405]. With the first half-verse is to be compared our vi. 28. 3 a, b. The tti of our version, at end of a, seems a worthless corruption (SPP. thinks it certainly "a mistake for dti"; but that is not very plausible, though our I., doubtless by an accidental slip, has dti, and P.M. have ata); the comm. reads anu, with the other texts. [With this vs. and the next, cf. 3. 13 below: the second half of 3. 13 is identical with the second half of this vs.] In Kāuç. (81.34), recital of the verse accompanies offerings to Yama at the lighting of the funeral pile. Metrically, it is svarāj (12 + 11:11 + 12 = 46) rather than bhurij.

[Caland, Todtengebräuche, p. 65, observes that "Kāuç. 81. 34-36 [meaning 34-37] form one single whole." They indicate the eleven verses (translated by C., p. 64) that are to be used to accompany the eleven oblations to Yama (yāmān homān), offered in the pitṛmedha, after the lighting of the fire. The vss. are: xviii. 1. 49, 50, for the first two oblations; xviii. 1. 58, 59, 60, 61 (the last vs. of the hymn) and xviii. 2. 1, 2, 3, for the next seven; and xviii. 3. 13 and 2. 49, for the last two: in all, eleven, ity ekādaça. Whereupon follow the oblations to Sarasvatī. — It should be noted that the group 1. 58 to 2. 3 (Kāuç.: iti samhitāh sapta) disregards the existing division of the book into anuvāka-hymns.]

50. Yama first found for us a track $(g\bar{a}t\acute{u})$; that is not a pasture to be borne away; where our former Fathers went forth, there $(en\acute{a})$ [go] those born [of them], along their own roads.

The corresponding RV. verse (x. 14. 2) reads pareyús at end of c, and MS. (in iv. 14. 16) agrees with it. The comm. has yena instead of enā in d. The verse (with vs. 51?) is used by Kāuç. (81. 35) next after the preceding one, in the same ceremony.

51. Ye barhis-seated Fathers, hitherward with aid! these offerings have we made for you; enjoy [them]! do ye come with most wealful aid; then assign to us weal [and] profit, free from evil.

The corresponding RV. verse (x. 15. 4) has $ath\bar{a}$ at beginning of d. VS. (xix. 55) agrees throughout with RV.; TS. (in ii. 6. 122) spoils the meter of d by changing nas to asmábhyam; MS. (in iv. 10. 6) has at the end dadhātana; [so has W's Op.]. The comm. also reads atha. The verse is used by Kāuç. (87. 27), along with 3. 44-46 and 4. 68, to accompany the untying and strewing of the barhis in the pindapitryajña. In Vāit. 30. 14, it appears with 1. 44, 45 etc. (see under 1. 44); and again (9. 8), in the cāturmāsya sacrifice, accompanying (with 3. 44, 45 and 4. 71) a libation to Soma and the Fathers.

52. Bending the knee, sitting down on the right, let all assent to (abhi-gr) this libation of ours; injure us not, O Fathers, by reason of any offense (agas) which we may do to you through humanity.

That is, through human frailty. The corresponding RV. verse (x. 15.6) reads for b imám yajñam abhí gṛṇīta viçve; and VS. (xix. 62) agrees with RV.; the comm., too, so far as to have gṛṇīta. In Kāuç. (83. 28), the verse accompanies the arranging of the bone relics of the deceased at their place of burial (repeated, with two other verses, in the pindapitṛyajña, 87. 28). The Anukr. takes no notice of the redundant syllable in b.

53. Tvashṭar makes a wedding-car for his daughter; by reason of this, all this creation comes together; the mother of Yama, wife of great Vivasvant, being drawn about, disappeared.

The corresponding RV. verse (x. 17. 1) has tti for ttna at beginning of b; and the comm. also reads iti. With the first half-verse compare iii. 31. 5 a, b, which is a sort of travesty of it. The second verse of the curious and obscure and much discussed (see Bloomfield in JAOS. xv. 172 ff.) bit of legend is found below, as 2. 33, as much out of all connection with its surroundings as this one here. Neither of the two is used by Kāuç. or Vāit. The comm. quotes a passage of eight verses from the Bṛhaddevatā in explanation of the legend.

54. Go thou forth, go forth by roads that go to the stronghold (pūr-yāṇa), as (yénā) thy Fathers of old went forth; both kings, reveling with svadhā, shalt thou see, Yama and god Varuṇa.

Or svadháyā may be 'at their pleasure' or 'according to their wont.' The corresponding RV. verse (x. 14. 7) has in a-b pathtbhih pūrvyébhir yátrā nah pūrve pitārah pareyūh, and, in c, rājānā and mādantā; and MS. (in iv. 14. 16) agrees with it except in reading, with our text, pāretās [in b, and in having pūrvébhis in a]. Our comm. reads rājānā in c. Prāt. iii. 83 prescribes the n in pūryānāis (p. pūhoyānāih); the comm. absurdly explains the word as = pumānso yena . . . yānti! for the pūr, compare x. 2. 28 ff.; xix. 17 and 19. The Anukr. takes no notice of the metrical irregularity in the verse. [It is due to the displacement of pūrviébhis by pūryānāis: the secondary character of the latter (occurring elsewhere only at 4. 63 below) is palpable in more ways than one.] Kāuç. does not quote the verse; but our comm. declares it to accompany the laying of the dead body on the cart (for transportation to the funeral pile).

55. Go ye away, go asunder, and creep apart from here; for this man the Fathers have made this world; adorned with days, with waters, with rays (aktú), a rest (avasána) Yama gives to him.

The verse is RV. x. 14. 9, without variant; and TA. (in i. 27. 5; vi. 6. 1) has the first, third, and fourth pādas; while VS. (xii. 45) and TS. (in iv. 2. 41), TB. (i. 2. 116), and MS. (ii. 7. 11), have only the first (agreeing with TA. in the second). TA., however, reads dadātv av- in d, and that is found also in our P.M.I. The comm. has for b the pāda of the other texts: ye tra stha purāṇā ye ca nūtanāḥ. [My discussion of the verse in Skt. Reader, p. 378, may be consulted.] The verse, with 2. 37, accompanies in Kāuç. (80. 42) the sprinkling of the place of cremation with holy water; in Vāit. (28. 24), the sweeping of the site for the householder's fire, in the agnicayana ceremony. [Weber, Sb. 1895, p. 839, takes the verse as a call, addressed to all creatures (whether animals or demons) that may infest the resting-place of the dead man, to quit the same (averruncatio).]

Böhtlingk, in his paper Ueber esha lokah, discusses this verse at Ber. der sächsischen Gesell. for 1893, xlv. 131. — He would read vita, not vita, referring to Whitney's Grammar ² § 128, and suggesting that diviva is perhaps the only example for the circumflex; but I have noted vindra, RV. x. 32. 2, viva, vii. 55. 2, nita, AV. iii. 11. 2, and bhindhìdám, vii. 18. 1, and suspect that Whitney has collected all the prāçliṣṭa svaritas from AV. (nearly a score) in his note to the Prāt. iii. 56.]

56. Eager (uçáni) would we light thee, eager would we kindle; do thou, eager, bring the eager Fathers to eat the oblation.

The corresponding verse in RV. (x. 16. 12; also VS. xix. 70) has nt dhtmahi for idhin a; TS. (in ii. 6. 121) and MS. (in i. 10. 18) read instead havāmahe, and with these our comm. agrees. Used in Kāuç. (87. 19: the comm. says, with vs. 57 also) to accompany, in the piṇḍapitṛyajña, the lighting of two pieces of wood. [The next vs. is a variation of this.]

57. Lightful (dyumánt) would we light thee, lightful would we kindle; do thou, lightful, bring the lightful Fathers to eat the oblation.

More than half the mss. (including all ours except O.Op.T.K. which have dyumatá, p. dyuomatáh) read dyumantás in c, which we accordingly adopted in our text, though the form is of course ungrammatical; SPP. reads correctly dyumatás. [Cf. my Noun-Inflection, p. 521.] [This vs. is a mere variation of the preceding, with dyumánt-forms in place of uçánt-forms. Perhaps in this connection the fact is noteworthy that W's codex I. does not accent the vs. Here again the comm. reads havāmahe for idhtmahi.]

58. The Angirases, our návagva Fathers, the Atharvans, the Bhrigus, soma-drinkers $(somy\acute{a})$ — may we be in the favor of those worshipful ones, likewise in their excellent well-willing.

The verse is RV. x. 14. 6, also VS. xix. 50, and in TS. ii. 6. 126, all without variant; the second half is met with further at AV. vi. 55. 3 [reading as here]; and in other verses of RV. and AV.: [namely, RV. iii. 1.21; vi. 47. 13; x. 131.7; AV. vii. 92. 1: but with tasya yajātyasya instead of our plural]. It is used by Kāuç. (81. 36) in the cremation service [with vss. 59-61 and 2. 1-3: see note to vs. 49].

59. Come thou hither with the worshipful Angirases; revel here, O Yama, with the Vairupas — I call Vivasvant, who is thy father — sitting down upon this barhis.

The verse is found as RV. x. 14. 5, and in TS. ii. 6. 126 and MS. iv. 14. 16. All these rectify the meter by inserting [or rather (cf. vs. 42), by not omitting] $yaj\bar{n}\dot{e}$ after asmin in \mathbf{d} , and they have in \mathbf{a} the equivalent reading $d\bar{n}girobhir$ \bar{d} gahi $yaj\bar{n}iyebhih$. The AV. version is brhati [possibly because one can count its \mathbf{d} as 9 syllables: $pur\bar{a}brhati$ does not seem to occur elsewhere and perhaps it is wrong].

60. Ascend thou, O Yama, this cushion (prastará), in concord with the Angiras Fathers; let the sacred utterances (mántra) made in praise by the poets bring thee; then (ená), O king, revel thou in the oblation.

This verse also is found as RV. x. 14. 4, and in TS. ii. 6. 126 and MS. iv. 14. 16, all of which have sida for rôha in a, and havisā for sas in d. The comm., too, reads sida. The only one of our mss. that accents rôha is Op., and our reading the word with an accent was an emendation; SPP. gives the same, on the authority of most of his mss. [The comm. calls hi an expletive.] Kāuç. 84. 2 uses the verse with an offering to Yama in the ceremony of interment of the bones; and the comment appears to quote the same rule under 45. 14, in the vaçāçamana rite.

61. These ascended up from here; they ascended the backs of the sky (div); the Angirases have gone forth to heaven (div), like $bh\bar{u}rjis$, by the road.

The verse is found in SV. (i. 92), which combines in b diváh pr., accents bhūrjáyas in c, and inserts úd before dyấm and leaves yayus unaccented in d. It also accents udåruhan in a, as does our edition; but the mss. decidedly favor úd å 'ruhan (p. út: å: aruhan), and SPP. rightly adopts this reading. The comm. reads etad instead of ete in a; it makes bhūrjdyas (p. bhūhojdyah; SV. p. bhūh: jdyah, this pada-text dividing compound words without any hyphen or its equivalent between the parts) an epithet of the Angirases, rendering it by bharanavanto bhuvam jitavanto vā, and justifies the accent of yayús by treating yáthā as = yādrçena "by what road the bhūrjis went" etc. SPP. accents bhūrjdyas on the authority of a single one of his mss.; all ours leave it without accent (in our text the accent-mark under its final syllable has become lost in printing); both Pet. Lexx. ignore the word entirely; its real meaning is wholly obscure, as it seems to have been to the makers of the pada-text; for their suggested etymology is plainly valueless. The verse is used by Kāuç. (80.35), with 2.48, 53; 3.8, 9; 4.44, in preparing for taking the body of the deceased person to the funeral pile; the six verses are called harinis, and are repeatedly employed in other parts of the funeral and ancestral rites (82.31; 83.20,23; 84.13); also by Vāit. (37.24), in a like connection.

[Here ends the first anuvāka, with 1 hymn and 61 verses. The quoted Anukr. says ekaṣaṣṭiç ca.]

[Atharvan. - sasti. yamadevatyam mantroktabahudevatyam ca (4, 34. āgneyyāu;

29. pitryā). trāistubham: 1-3,6,14-18, 20,22,23,25,30,34,36,46,48,50-52,56. anustubh; [4,] 7, 9, 13. jagatī; 5, 26, 49, 57. bhurij; 19. 3-p. ārṣī gāyatrī; 24. 3-p. samaviṣamā "rṣī gāyatrī; 37. virād jagatī; 38-44. ārṣī gāyatrī (40,42-44. bhurij); 45. kakummaty anustubh.]

[Of the eight "measuring-verses," 38-45, the first (vs. 38) is a true $g\bar{a}yatr\bar{t}$; the next six (39-44) are mere repetitions of vs. 38, with an $\bar{u}ha$ in the first pada which sometimes spoils the meter; and the last (vs. 45) agrees in its last two padas with the rest, but has a prior half which is true prose.

[Of this hymn, only vs. 13 a, b and vs. 17 are found in Pāipp., in books xix. and xx. respectively. The ritual uses by Vāit. are naturally very meagre: namely, we find vss. 19-20 used once, and that in the puruṣamedha. On the contrary, all but about 18 of the 60 vss. are cited by Kāuç. (see under the verses). Bloomfield's Index may be corrected on page 410 by the insertion of vss. 1-3 (see under vs. 1). Verses 1-3 and 49 constitute, with verses from hymns 1 and 3, parts of an important ritual sequence of 11 verses, as noted under 1.49. And verses 4-18, the anuṣṭhānīs, constitute (with the exception of vs. 10) another such sequence.]

The provenience of the material of this hymn.— Whereas nearly all of the preceding hymn (all but 4 or 5 out of 61 verses) is found also in the RV., of this hymn, on the other hand, but little more than a third part (hardly 25 vss. out of 60) is RV. material. As elsewhere noted, the hymn begins with 3 vss. which form part of a ritual sequence (of 11 vss.) continuous with the last verses of the preceding hymn.

Part I., verses 1-13. — These are two groups of verses from RV. x. 14 (to wit: our vss. 1-3, which sub-group we may call I. a, and which equals RV. x. 14. 13, 15, 14; and our vss. 11-13, which sub-group we may call I. b, and which equals RV. x. 14. 10, 11, 12), between which are interposed the first 5 vss. of RV. x. 16, our vss. 4-5 and 7-8 and 10, which sub-group we may call I. c. — Again, between the second and third verses of I. c (our vss. 5 and 7) is interposed the single verse, RV. x. 14. 16 (our 6); and between the fourth and fifth verses of I. c (our vss. 8 and 10) is interposed a single verse (our 9) which appears to be a parallel to our 8, but is not found in other texts to my knowledge, though its prior half resembles that of xiii. 1. 9.

Part II., verses 14-18. — The Yama-verses of RV. x. 154, in the order 1, 4, 2, 3, 5.
The "measuring-verses," 38-45, form a sequence by themselves, and do not recur elsewhere, so far as I know. Compare Caland's Todtengebräuche, p. 145.
For the rest, RV. verses occur only sporadically:

our 19 = RV. i. 22. 15 our 54 = RV. x. 17. 3

our 33 = RV. x. 17. 2 our 55 = RV. x. 17. 4

our 35 ab = RV. x. 15. 14 ab our 58 = RV. x. 16. 7

our 35 cd = RV. x. 15. 13 cd our 59 cd = RV. x. 18. 9 cd our 50 cd = RV. x. 18. 9 ab

It may be added that a considerable part of the material of the hymn is naturally found in the pitrmedhaprapāṭhaka (vi.) of the TA.: that is to say, all the RV. verses of Part I. or all of it save our vs. 9; and 3 verses of Part II., our 14, 17, 16 = RV. verses 1, 3, 2; and, besides, our vs. 25 and about 8 of the last 11 verses. Of the verses last mentioned, vs. 25 and vss. 56 and 57 seem to be peculiar to AV. and TA. — Finally, several fragments (9 ab, 26 ab, 49 ab) recur elsewhere in the AV.; and 33 is properly inseparable from 1. 53. — The TA. readings correspond more nearly with those of RV. than with those of AV.—Verse 51 is a variation of 50: compare the relation of 1. 57 and 56.

Translated: by Weber, Sb. 1895, pages 842-866; Griffith, ii. 227; — verses 9 and 20-59, by Ludwig, pages 482-484 (for vss. 32-33, see p. 332); a considerable number also by Muir, v. 293-296, 304; and the RV. verses, of course, by the RV. translators. — For an analysis of the hymn with reference to its contents, see Weber, p. 843.

1. For Yama the soma purifies itself; for Yama is made the oblation; to Yama goes the sacrifice, messengered by Agni, made satisfactory.

The verse corresponds to RV. x. 14. 13, which, however, in a reads sómam sunuta, and in b juhutā (for kriyate). TA. (vi. 5. 1) agrees with RV. in both points, but has gachatu in c. The comm. reads at the end alamkṛtas.

[Verses 1, 2, and 3 of this hymn are used (Kāuç. 81. 36) in one continuous sequence with the last four of the preceding hymn (iti samhitāḥ sapta!), to accompany the oblations to Yama in the cremation ceremony: for details, see my note to xviii. 1. 49.

2. Offer ye to Yama what is most honeyed, and stand forth; this homage to the former-born, the former, the path-making seers.

This verse and the next correspond to RV. x. 14. 15 and 14, save that RV. makes our 2 b and 3 b change places * and they become respectively its 14 b and 15 b, the double inversion thus leaving our 2 b and 3 b in the same relative position in both texts. TA. (in vi. 5. 1) agrees throughout with RV., both in this verse and the next. Our 2 b agrees also with RV. i. 15. 9 b. But RV. in both places has, like TA., juhóta for our juhótā.

* The case is interesting as showing how easily the component elements of many of these verses may be shuffled about without detriment to what we may, out of politeness to the Rishis, call the "sequence of thought." The result of the transpositions is best shown by parallel columns, thus:

RV. x. 14. 14 ab.
yamāya ghṛtávad dhavir
juhota prá ca tiṣṭhata.
RV. x. 14. 15 ab.
yamāya mádhumattamam
rājñe havyám juhotana.

AV. xviii. 2. 3 ab.
yamāya ghṛtávat páyo
rājñe havir juhotana.
AV. xviii. 2. 2 ab.
yamāya mādhumattamam
juhotā prā ca tiṣṭhata.

Roth has beautifully illustrated the matter by shuffling together verses from Schiller's Riddles ("Von Perlen baut sich eine Brücke" and "Es steht ein gross geräumig Haus"): see ZDMG. xxxvii. 109. — Cf. notes to xviii. 2. 35; 3. 47.

3. Unto Yama the king offer ye an oblation, milk rich in ghee; he furnishes $(\bar{a}\text{-yam})$ to us among the living a long life-time, for living on.

The verse is RV. x. 14. 14 (found also in TA. vi. 5. 1), except that b is 15 b: [see note to the preceding verse]. [TA. agrees with RV.] For pdyas in a, RV. reads havis; for havis in b, havyam; and in c, d, it has devesv ā yamad dīr. SPP. reads in c-d yamed dīr- [so also Caland, Todiengebräuche, note 243], which is certainly better than yame dīr-: half his authorities give the former; but of our mss. only Op. has yamet, while D. has yamat, like RV. [TA. and the comm.]. [The case is strikingly like that of mānaye tathā, mānayet tathā, at xv. 10. 2.]—The Prāt. (ii. 76) distinctly requires āyus prā to be read in d, but of our mss. only O.s.m. (in margin) gives it; nearly half of SPP's samhitā-mss., however, have it, and it ought to be received as the true AV. text, though both editions read āyuḥ. These three verses make no appearance in Kāuç. [This last statement now appears to be wrong: see note to vs. 1.]

| Considering the exaggerated nicety of the theory of the Hindus respecting consonant groups (cf. Whitney, AV. Prāt., p. 584-90), and in particular their doctrine of the varnakrama ("At the end of a word, a consonant is pronounced double," padānte vyanjanam dvih, Prat. iii. 26), it is strange that the mss. sometimes fail to come up even to the simple requirements of orthography as set by grammar and sense. On the other hand, it can hardly be said that the mss. in the cases of these shortcomings are a less truthful representation of the actual connected utterance of the text than would be for instance the graphical representation of the English some more by the words some ore. — I have thought it worth while to assemble a few notable cases where the one of two needed double letters is omitted. Thus besides yame[d] dīrgham and mānaye[t] tathā, just mentioned, we have: at xviii. 3. 3, jīvām [m]rtébhyas (a most striking example: there is abundant ms. authority for the false rtébhyas, which is yet shown beyond all peradventure to be a blunder by the mṛtaya jīvām of TA.); at xviii. 4. 40, juṣantām | asīnām urjam upa ye sacante, shown to be a gross corruption by HGS., which reads jusantam | māsī 'mām ūrjam etc.; at xix. 31. 2, sasm mā srjatu puṣṭyā, where Ppp. has in fact sam mā, and where sam is supported by the parallelism of our vi. 5.2; and, at xix. 7.3, arista[m] mulam, where all authorities agree in omitting the -m. — On the other hand, a superfluous double is sometimes written. Thus we find: at xix. 42. 3, sumatim [m]āvrnānáh, where the pada-text reveals its modernity and lack of insight by reading unaccented mā and vrņānāh instead of āovrnānāh; and at xix. 58. 4, pūrah krņudhvam [m] ayasth. At xix. 46. 6, the ghrtad durluptas or urluptas of some authorities, instead of -ad úllup-, is a blunder of similar origin. Cf. sadana[t] te, xviii. 3. 52, note. The well-known sám [m]ahema of RV. i. 94. 1, as taken by BR. at vii. 1609, i. 567, would belong in this category; but Grassmann manages to refer it to root mah. |

4. Do not, O Agni, burn him up; do not be hot upon (abhi-çuc) him; do not warp (kṣip) his skin, nor his body; when thou shalt make him done, O Jātavedas, then send him forward unto the Fathers.

This verse and the next are RV. x. 16. 1 and 2, but RV. makes our 4 c and 5 a change places (cf. note to our vs. 2). RV., however, reads cocas for caccas in a, and at the end pitrbhyas | as in our 5 b | for pitrnr upa. In d, SPP. reads, with RV., athe "m enam, alleging for his reading three out of eight authorities, as against two or three that have imam. The comm. appears to read im. Of our mss., all save O.Op.R. give athe 'mam enam (and O. is corrected once to this, but the correction struck out again), as our edition reads; this is so bad a corruption that the authority for the other should be regarded as sufficient. TA. (in vi. 1.4) agrees with RV. except in having karávas in its c | our 5 a |. The text of the comm. agrees with RV. and TA. in having pitrbhyas for pitrir upa, while the comm. quotes pitrbhyas and then adds and explains upa | constructively a blend-reading]. Our Bp. appears to give in a ququcah, as it [apparently] ought to do according to Prāt. iv. 86, though the example is not quoted in the comment on that rule; but the other pada-mss. | and SPP. | have çüçucah. The Anukr. is questionable in its reading as to the verse, whether tristubh or jagatī: the RV. version is pure tristubh; the AV. one is mixed (12+11:11+12). Kāuç. (81.33) prescribes this verse to be used, with 2.36; 3.71, and ii.34.5, when the youngest son lights the funeral pile, some of the schol. declaring vss. 4-7 to be intended instead | cf. the comm., page 8620 ; then, in 81.44, vss. 4-9 and 11-18 are called anusthānīs, and are to be repeated by the anusthatr during the cremation. | Root kṣip properly means 'warp' in its obsolete sense 'cast or throw.' If, as I think, W. is right in rendering the causative here by 'warp' = 'twist out of shape, contort,' the cases present an interesting semantic parallel. BR. render by 'platzen machen.' Different is the sense of ava-kṣip at 4. 12: see my note.

5. When thou shalt make him done, O Jātavedas, then commit him to the Fathers; when he shall go to that other life (ásunīti), then shall he become a controller (?vaṭanī) of the gods.

The verse is RV. x. 16. 2, but RV. makes our 5 a and 4 c change places: see note to vs. 4. RV. has $yad\hat{a}$ [for our $yad\hat{o} = yad\hat{a}$ u] at beginning of c, and $ath\hat{a}$ at beginning of d. TA. (in vi. 1. 4) agrees throughout with RV. save in accenting kardsi in a. Both, of course, read athe "m enam in b; but this time the AV. mss. are as good as unanimous in the corruption of lim to lim am, and both the published texts are compelled to read it; the Anukr., too, seems to ratify it, by calling the verse lim am in the comm. has instead lim am, and one or two of SPP's authorities follow it. The comm. explains as lim am by lim am indexinam nayati lok am indexinam, and hence lim am by lim am indexinam indexinam; while lim am is lim am indexinam indexinam indexinam; while lim am is lim am indexinam indexinam; while lim am is lim am indexinam indexinam; while lim am is lim am indexinam; lim am in

6. With the trikadrukas it purifies itself; six wide ones, verily one great one; tristúbh, gāyatri, the meters: all those [are] set in Yama.

RV. x. 14. 16, the corresponding verse, has in a patati, and at the end āhitā; TA. (in vi. 5. 3) agrees with it, but transposes tristubh and gāyatrī in c. The sense of the verse is wholly obscure. According to our comm., the trikadrukas are the jyotistoma, gostoma, and āyuṣtoma; the "six wide ones" (f.) are heaven and earth and day and night and waters and herbs; "the great one" (n.) is taken [alternatively] as applying to Yama (m.): mahāntam yamam uddiçyāi 'va pravartante! The commentator's ignorance is as great as our own; only he has no mind to acknowledge it. [Hillebrandt cites passages akin with this, Ved. Mythol. i. 500.]

7. Go thou to the sun with thine eye, to the wind with thy soul (ātmán); go both to heaven and to earth with [their] due shares (?dhárman); or go to the waters, if there it is acceptable (hitá) to thee; in the herbs stand firm with thy bodies.

In the corresponding RV. verse (x. 16. 3) is read in a caksur gachatu and ātmā; in b, dyām and dhārmaṇā; TA. (vi. 1. 4: cf. 9. 2) has the same, but also inserts te in a after sūryam, and accents gacha, Brāhmaṇa-wise, in b—as does also SPP. in his text, with a minority of his authorities (and our Op.): there is the same reason (but no authority) for gacha in a also, but none in c, where, nevertheless, our Op. and R.s.m. have gacha. The verse lacks a syllable of being a full jagatī. [Cf. the note to this vs. in my Reader, p. 379.]

8. The goat is the share of the heat $(t\acute{a}pas)$; heat thou that; that let thine ardor (cocis) heat, that thy flame (arcis); what propitious bodies (tanti) are thine, O Jātavedas, with them carry him to the world of the well-doing.

The RV. version of this verse has (x. 16. 4) tdpasā in a; in this case, as seldom, the AV. reading is better. TA. (in vi. 1. 4) also gives tdpasā, and it ends differently: vahe 'mām sukṛtām yātra lokāh; and it reads ajó 'bhāgās, which is explained by its comm. as bhāgarahitah]. The comm. also has tapasā. Kāuç. (81. 29) directs the verse, with 2. 22 (some mss. say, with 2. 57), to be repeated while "binding a goat on the south," the anustaranī (as which, nevertheless, the goat is here meant) having been already laid, as a cow, on the body to be burned. But see Weber's treatment of the vs., Sb. 1895, p. 847.

9. What ardors (coct), swiftnesses (ránhi) are thine, O Jātavedas, with which thou fillest the sky, the atmosphere, let them collect (sam-r) after the goat as he goes; then with other most propitious ones make him propitious.

With the first half-verse is to be compared xiii. 1. 9 a, b. SPP. reads in d crtam for civam, with the decided majority of his authorities; of our mss., only O.Op.R.K. have crtam. The comm. has crtam; and further, in b, prinasi, rendering it by either purayasi or tarpayasi. He takes ranhdyas as an adj., = vegavatyas, which is not unacceptable. The verse is no proper jagati, either in movement or in number of syllables (12 + 12 : 11 + 14 = 49). [The comm. has civatarabhih in d.]

10. Release again, O Agni, to the Fathers him who goes (car) offered to thee, with svadhá; clothing himself in life (áyus), let him go unto [his] posterity (?çɛ́sas); let him be united with a body, very splendid.

The corresponding verse in RV. (x. 16. 5) reads at end of b swadhābhis, in c vetu for yātu, and at end jātavedaḥ (for suvārcāḥ); TA. (in vi. 4. 2) also has swadhābhis and jātavedas, but in c gives úpa yātu çēṣam. [The last pāda, d, recurs below at 3. 58.] The third pāda is of doubtful meaning, but perhaps relates to the return of the deceased, after due installation among the Manes, to receive the ancestral offerings. The comm. explains çēṣas [which he takes as çēṣa-s, masc.] simply as apatyanāman. [Kāuç. 81. 44 excepts this verse from the sequence of 14 anuṣṭhānī verses (4-18): see under vs. 4.] In Kāuç. (82. 28) the verse is used in the ceremonies of the third day after cremation, in connection with sprinkling and collecting the bones. The Anukr. takes no notice of the deficiency of a syllable in d. LAs to çeṣas, see my note on this vs., Reader, p. 379-380: W's interpretation seems to me much better than either of those there noted.

11. Run thou past the two four-eyed, brindled dogs of Saramā, by a happy (sādhú) road; then go unto the beneficent Fathers, who revel in common revelry with Yama.

The corresponding verse in RV. is x. 14. 10. RV. puts sārameyāŭ before çvānāu: land with this order (but not with that of AV.), the resolution to çuānāu is effective in giving a normal rhythm. RV. reads in c áthā for ádhā, and úpa for ápi; TA. (in vi. 3. 1) has ápī hi, but agrees otherwise with RV. The comm. gives instead ape hi; and it explains this difficult reading by either taking apa as used in the sense of upa, or else understanding it to mean "go away [from the dogs]"! The Anukr. pays no attention to the redundant syllable in b, lunless it assumes a deficiency in a to balance it. The verse (according to the comm., vss. 11-13) is used (Kāuç. 81. 22) when the two kidneys of the accompanying sacrificed animal are (by way of a "sop to Cerberus") put into the hands of the dead man on the funeral pile. Then verses 11-18 are (Kāuç. 80. 35) mentioned and used with the harinis (see under 1. 61); and by the schol. [see note to Kāuç. 82. 31] and the comm. they are reckoned themselves as harinis. The comm. further prescribes them as accompanying the transfer of the dead body to the place of cremation.

12. What two defending dogs thou hast, O Yama, four-eyed, sitting by the road, men-watching, with them, O king, do thou surround him; assign to him well-being and freedom from disease.

The verse is RV. x. 14. 11, which in b reads pathirakṣī nṛcakṣasāu, and for c tābhyām enam pari dehi rājan (our dhehi is a corruption), and in d inserts ca after svastl. TA. (in vi. 3. 1) agrees with RV. except in having -cakṣasā, and in placing rājan and enam in c as does AV. The comm. makes a compound of yamarakṣitārāu in a; and it declares pari dhehi in c to = paridehi.

13. Broad-nosed, feeding on lives (?asutrp), copper-colored, Yama's two messengers go about after men $(j\acute{a}na)$; let them give us back here today excellent life $(\acute{a}su)$, to see the sun.

The corresponding verse in RV. (x. 14. 12) differs only by combining in a -tṛpā ud(p. -tṛpāu: ud-). TA. has the verse in vi. 3. 2: it reads in a -pāv ulumbalāŭ [which seems to answer phonetically to a form beginning udum- and is glossed by prabhūtabalayuktāu, as if ulum-* were = urum-?]; in b, instead of jānān, it reads 'vāçān [i.e. avāçān: glossed by asvādhīnān prāṇinah]; and in d, for dātām, it has dattāv [accentless, and glossed by prayacchatām!]. Ppp. has the first half-verse, in book xix., reading udumbarāu and caratāu. *[For the confusion between the sounds of d and l and l, see Kuhn's Pāli-gram., p. 37, and cf. below, at 3. 1, -pāláyantī, -pād-.]

14. Soma purifies itself for some; some wait upon $(upa-\bar{a}s)$ ghee; for whom honey runs forward (?), unto them do thou go.

The 'go' in these verses is gàchatāt, imperative of remoter or after action. The translation implies restoration in c of the RV. (x. 154. 1) reading pradhāvati, of which our pradhāv (p. praodhāú) adhi seems only a blundering and unintelligible corruption. Some of our mss. (and one of SPP's) accent pradhāvadhi. The comm. agrees with RV., and SPP. is not to be blamed for adopting, though against all the authorities save the comm., pradhāvati in his text. TA. (which has our vss. 14, 17, and 16 following immediately after our 11-13, little as the two sets appear to have to do with each other) reads (in vi. 3. 2) with RV.

[See p. xcii.]

15. They who of old were won by right, born of right, increasers of right — to the seers rich in fervor (tapas-), born of fervor, O Yama, do thou go.

The corresponding RV. verse (x. 154. 4) reads in a, b pūrva rtasāpa rtāvānah, in c pitrn, in d tānç cid evā (as in our vss. 14, 16, 17). The comm. explains yama here to mean yamavan niyata, or yamena nīyamāna preta, which is probably not far from correct; it is the deceased person who is addressed.

16. They who by fervor are unassailable, who by fervor have gone to heaven $(sv \partial r)$, who made fervor their greatness, unto them do thou go.

The corresponding RV. verse (x. 154.2) has no variant; in TA. (vi. 3.2), however, we find gatās for yayús in b, and mahát for máhas in c: this latter reading the comm. appears to have in mind when he explains mahas as signifying mahat.

17. They who fight in the contests (pradhána), who are self-sacrificing (tanūtyáj) heroes, or who give thousand-fold sacrificial gifts, unto them do thou go.

The corresponding RV. verse (x. 154.3) has no variant; TA. (in vi. 3.2) has tanuty-in b. Ppp. has the verse, in book xx., and reads for c, tās tvam sahasradakṣiṇāḥ, and in d gachatām.

18. Poets (kavi) of a thousand lays (-nītha), who guard the sun—to the seers rich in fervor, born of fervor, O Yama, do thou go.

The verse is RV. x. 154. 5, without variant. The comm. adds this time to its explanation of yama (cf. under vs. 15) niyata çakațe baddha vā.

19. Be pleasant to him, O earth, a thornless resting-place; furnish him broad refuge.

RV. has a corresponding verse (i. 22.15), but reads for a syonå prthivi bhava; and in c it reads nas for asmāi, and saprāthas for -thās [see my Noun-Inflection, p. 560]; VS. (xxxv. 21) has nearly the same, but inserts nas after prthivi, and ends with -thās, like our text; MB. (ii. 2.7) agrees with VS. except in having -thas, like RV.; it also adds a fourth pāda. [MP. ii. 15. 2 agrees with RV. save that it combines naç cârma and ends with -thās. Cf. the pratīka in MGS. i. 10. 5, and the Index, p. 158.] The comm. explains anṛkṣarā by anādhikā. In Kāuc. (80. 3) this verse (according to the comm., vss. 19-21) is to be used when the man threatened with death is laid on the floor on darbha-grass; and again (80. 38), when the dead body is taken down from the cart at the funeral pile; and once more (82. 33), when the jar containing the bones is deposited in (or on) the earth. In Vāit. 37. 25, vss. 19 and 20 accompany the knocking-down of the animal-victim in the puruṣamedha sacrifice.

20. In the unoppressive wide space (loká) of earth be thou deposited; what svadhás thou didst make when living, be they dripping with honey for thee.

Most of the pada-texts (except our Op. and one of SPP's) read svadhā instead of svadhāh in c. [SPP. gives as pada-reading svadhāh, and so, the comm. interprets.] At end of c, the authorities are bothered by a confusion of jīvan and jīvām. The pada-mss. read jīvān (two of SPP's [P. and P.², which are unaccented in this book] have jīvan): the samhitā-mss. have either jīvāns t- (most of our mss.), or else jīvām t- (our O. and most of SPP's authorities), or else jīvān t- (one or two of SPP's). SPP. reads in his text jīvan t-, and says "the emendation is mine," not noticing that we had made it (the necessity of it being perfectly obvious) before him. The comm., too, has jīvan. The comm., with four or two of SPP's mss., makes the common blunder of reading at the end-ccyutah. In Kāuç. (82. 21) the second half-verse is quoted in full to accompany the pouring a pot-offering into the fire on the second day after cremation (here, too, only one ms. reads jīvans t-, and most of the rest jīvam t-).

21. I call thy mind hither with mind; come unto these houses, enjoying [them]; unite thyself with the Fathers, with Yama; let pleasant, helpful (?cagmá) winds blow thee unto [them].

Excepting K., all our mss. read imām (or imām) in b; SPP. records the reading as given only by two of his pada-mss. [Pāda c is RV. x. 14. 8 a.] The comm. glosses çagmās with sukhakarās. The Anukr. does not heed the redundant syllable in b.

22. Let the water-carrying, water-floating Maruts carry thee up, making [thee] cool by the goat, let them sprinkle [thee] with rain, splash!

Some of the authorities (our O.Op.R.D., and near half of SPP's, with the comm.) have in b udaplútas. For the use of the verse by Kāuç., see under vs. 8 above. $\lfloor Cf$. the use of $b\tilde{a}l$ in i. 3. 1. \rfloor

23. I have called up life-time unto life-time, unto ability (krátu), unto dexterity, unto life; let thy mind go to its own [pl.]; then run unto the Fathers.

The majority of our mss. (except Bs.s.m.R.Op.K. [which have svian]; T. has svian), and two of SPP's, read svian at beginning of c, as does also the comm., which supplies tanum for it to qualify. SPP. gives in c-d máno ádhā, and claims that all his authorities without exception read thus; our Bs. has 'dhā, and if any of the other sanihitā-mss. [except O., which has máno ádhā] do not agree with this, I have failed to note it.

24. Let nothing whatever of thy mind, nor of thy life (dsu), nor of thy members, nor of thy sap, nor of thy body, be left here.

The translation implies emendation of mánas to mánasas, as called for by the connection and by the meter. The Anukr. scans the verse as 6+8:10=24. Bs.E. have tanvah in c. This verse, with 26 below, is used by Kāuç. (82.29) in connection with gathering up the bones after cremation; with the same, and further with 3.25-37, in connection (85.26) with their interment. [For its general purport, see Weber, Sb. 1894, p. 775, note 2.]

25. Let not the tree oppress thee, nor the great divine earth; having found a place (loká) among the Fathers, thrive (cdh) thou among those whose king is Yama.

Only about half the mss. have at the end the true reading yamdrājasu (which both editions give, as was proper); some of our samhitā-mss. (P.M.T.) accent yama-rājasu, and most of the pada-mss. have correspondingly, as two independent words, yama: rājasu (namely Bp.D.Kp., and two of SPP's); one (I.) has yamárāj. One or two (including our O.) give bādhisṭhe in a. TA. (in vi. 7. 2) has two corresponding verses: mā tvā vṛṣṣāu sam bādhisṭām mā mātā pṛthivi tvām: pitṣ̄n hy ātra gácchāsy edhāsam yamarājye, and mā tvā vṛṣṣāu sam bādhethām mā mātā pṛthivi mahī: vāivasvatām hī gácchāsi yamarājye vī rājasi: both are partly corrupt. According to Kāuç. (82. 32), the verse accompanies the deposit of the collected bone-relics "at the root of a tree." [Baunack, ZDMG. 1. 281, 284, understands vānaspāti at RV. v. 78. 5 and AV. xviii. 3. 70, as meaning, like vṛṣṣā here, a tree used after the manner of a coffin. Curiously enough, peṭikā (Sāyaṇa's gloss for vanaspāti) usually means κόφινος.] [For consistency, the Berlin ed. should read vittvāt.]

26. What limb of thine is put over at a distance, and what expiration [or] breath has gone forth upon the wind (?), let the associated $(s\acute{a}n\bar{\imath}da)$ Fathers, assembling, make that enter thee again, bit $(gh\bar{a}s\acute{a})$ from bit.

With the first half-verse is to be compared vii. 53. 3 a, b. All the samhitā-mss. in b accent vate, save one of SPP's, sec. manu; and all our pada-mss. divide vate: te, as if, after all, they thought vate: te intended. SPP's pada-mss. also divide vate: te (only one of them is accented); he adopts vate te, on the authority of the one altered ms. Land the comm. J. To me vate seems rather the preferable reading, though there is not much to choose between the two. Our O. and two or three of SPP's authorities give paretah [plural: but no pada-ms. has ye to correspond]. Several of our mss., and the decided majority of SPP's authorities (except the pada-authorities: which, as he fails to report them, presumably have -date) read santaad gh-; but of our pada-mss., all but one LOp.s.m.] give saontaah, and this SPP. adopts in his text, as do we. The comm. has santaas; in b, he reads vet. paretah. The use of the verse with vs. 24 in Kāuç. was stated under vs. 24.

27. The living have excluded this man from their houses; carry ye him out, forth from this village; death was the kindly messenger of Yama; he made his life-breaths $(\acute{a}su)$ go to the Fathers.

The verse is used in Kāuç. (80. 18) with an oblation to the fires, when preparing the body of the deceased for cremation. [Note that the "messengers" or "men" of death or of Yama play a rôle in the Buddhist literature: see Anguttara Nikāya, iii. 4 (35: p. 138), Devadūta Vagga; Jātaka, i., p. 13824, and scholion; Journal of the Pāli Text Society, 1885, p. 62.]

28. What barbarians (dásyu), having entered among the Fathers, having faces of acquaintances, go about, eating what is not sacrificed, who bear parāpúr [and] nipúr — Agni shall blast (dham) them forth from this sacrifice.

Similar verses are found in VS. (ii. 30), ÇÇS. (iv. 4. 2), AÇS. (ii. 6. 2), MB. (ii. 3. 4), and Ap. (three varying versions at i. 8. 7). Ap. has in its first version for a, b apa yantv asurāh pitrrūpā ye rūpāni pratimucyā "caranti, a close analogue to our first half-verse; the rest [including of Ap. only the second version | have, without variant, yé rūpāni pratimuncamānā asurāh santah svadhayā caranti, which is not quite so near. [The third version in Ap. is ye jhatīnam pratirūpāh pitrn māyayā 'surāh pravistāh.] In c, all the texts [including the three versions in Ap.] agree with ours. For d, all the texts | including the first two versions in Ap. | have agnls tan lokat pra nudaty (ACS. -dātv, MB. -datv) asmāt; | while the third version in Ap. reads agne tān asmāt pranudasva lokāt]. The comm. to VS. explains parāpuras as sthuladehān and nipuras as sūkṣmadehān, which is, of course, the purest nonsense; that to MB. divides parā puro ni puro ye bharanti, and connects the prepositions with the verb, rendering the first puras by "our enemies' houses" and the second by "our kindred's houses"quite as bad. Our comm., finally, explains parāpuras (through parā prnanti) as pindadātārah putrāh, and nipuras (through niprnanti | cf. his remark about ni-pr reported at the end of note to vs. 30 |) as pāutrāh — if possible, worse than either of the others. All we can see clearly is that the native exegetes are quite as much in the dark as we with regard to the value of these obscure words. Except O.R., all our mss. have the false accent dasyavas in a; of SPP's, only two do so. Of the mss. in our hands at the time of printing of the text, only I. accented jñātimukhās at all (two of SPP's also leave it accentless), and we accordingly emended to jñātímukhās, according to the usual rule for such a compound; but I.O.Op.R.K., with the majority of SPP's authorities, read jñātimukhās, which SPP. has therefore properly adopted in his edition. By Kāuç. (87.30) the verse is prescribed to be repeated while a lighted brand is carried three times about and then flung away.

29. Let there enter together (sam-vi_f) here our own Fathers, doing what is pleasant, lengthening [our] life-time; may we be able to reach them with oblation, living long for numerous autumns.

The translation implies in a the pada-reading svāḥ: naḥ, which SPP. gives by emendation, all the pada-mss. save Bp. (which has svā: naḥ) having svānaḥ; again, it implies in b praotirāntaḥ, while all read praotirānte [or-ate]; here also SPP. emends to-ntaḥ. The comm. reads-nte, and glosses it by pravardhayantu! [A similar uncertainty (as between the Vulgate and Ppp.) concerning the understanding of the combination pratiranta āyuḥ was noted by me under xiv. 2. 36.] The verse is used, according to Kāuç. (83. 29), next after the use of 1. 52, in arranging the bones for burial; and it is repeated, like the latter, in the pindapitryajāa (87. 28); sam-viç, as here applied, perhaps has its secondary sense of 'turn in, lie down.' The comm. reads dakṣamāṇās in c, explaining it by vardhamānās. The Anukr. does not notice the redundant syllable in c [or perhaps assumes a deficiency in d to balance it. The word nakṣ-demands an accusative: so that both meter and syntax combine to cast suspicion on tebhyas].

30. What milch-cow I set down (ni-pr) for thee, and what rice-dish for thee in milk $(k \cdot \bar{s} \cdot \bar{r} r \dot{a})$ — with that mayest thou be the supporter of the person $(j \dot{a} n a)$ who is there $(\dot{a} t r a)$ without a living.

That is, 'without the means of sustaining life.' Our Bp.E. read ajivanas, unaccented; the normal accent would be ajivanas. The comm. remarks that ni-pṛ is used distinctively of a gift for the Fathers (pitrye dane vartate).

31. Pass forward [over a stream] rich in horses, which is very propitious, or, further on, an rksāka, more new; he who slew thee, be he one to be killed; let him not find any other portion.

The first half-verse is extremely obscure, and its translation only mechanical; we may conjecture that its text is corrupt. Such a combination as -vā: rkṣ- (so all the pada-texts read) into -vā rks- is contrary to grammatical rule, unauthorized by the Prāt., and unsupported, so far as I know, by any second case. Part of our sainhitā-mss. (P.M.E.I.) have -vā rkṣ-, but that is equally abnormal; SPP makes no mention of any such reading among his authorities. "Stream" is supplied to açvāvatīm because Kāuç. (82.10) prescribes the verse to be used, in the ceremonies of the first day after cremation, on crossing a stream, and prå tara naturally suggests it. Açvavatīm is unquestionably the AV. text; it is quoted as an example of long \bar{a} in such a position under Prāt. iii. 17. One may conjecture as a plausible emendation açmanvatim pra tarayā suşevām (cf. for açmanvatī xii. 2. 26, 27; and our comm. reads here taraya for tara va). Then rksaka might possibly be a region or road | beyond the river | infested by bears' (rksa: so the comm.); the word rksaka is ignored by both Pet. Lexx. | save in so far as this vs. is cited by the Major Lex. under rksika |. | Weber takes it as 'the milky way': Festgryss an Roth, p. 138.] But it is of little use to speculate in such a case. SPP. reads in c vadhyas, with (as he reports) all his authorities save two; we also have both va- and ba- among our mss., but I cannot specify all that favor the one reading or the other. The lacking syllable in b, not noticed by the Anukr., helps in its degree to indicate corruption of text.

32. Yama beyond, below Vivasvant — beyond that do I see nothing whatever; into Yama has entered my sacrifice; Vivasvant stretched after the worlds $(bh\hat{u})$.

SPP. accents páras in a, and vivasvān in a and d, though the majority of his authorities have parás, and, in a, vivásvān; of our mss., only Op. has páras and in a vivasvān; but O.Op.R.T.K. have vivasvān in d. The Anukr. takes no notice of the metrical irregularities (10+12:11+11=44).

33. They hid away the immortal one (f.) from mortals; having made one of like color, they gave her to Vivasvant; what that was carried also the two Açvins; and Saraṇyū deserted two twins.

Whether 'two pairs of twins' is meant is not altogether certain; but that would be strictly dvé mithuné; [but see BR. v. 777, line 3]. The verb abharat does not mean 'bore,' in the sense of 'gave birth to,' though it might mean 'carried [in her womb],' and so might have a nearly equivalent value; our comm. renders it by samabharat or udapādayat. The third pāda means 'that substitute, whatever it really was,' though the usual version "when that was" (for yat tad āsīt) is not altogether impossible. The verse is RV. x. 17. 2, which differs only by reading in b krtvīt and adadus (for which our -dhus is a common corruption). It is properly inseparable from 1. 53 above; [for bibliographical references, see under that vs.]. Kāuç. and Vāit. pass it unused, as they did 1. 53. [The comm., with one or two of SPP's mss., reads amrtān in a.]

34. They that are buried, and they that are scattered (vap) away, they that are burned and they that are set up (úddhita) — all those Fathers, O Agni, bring thou to eat the oblation.

Ap. (in i. 8. 7) has a verse analogous with this; the divisions there are \[ye \ garbhe \] mamrus, \[\] \[par\tilde{a}stas, uddhat\tilde{a}s, \] and \[nikh\tilde{a}tas. \] The comm. explains \[paroptas \] by \[d\tilde{u}radece \] \[k\tilde{a}sthavat \[parityakta\tilde{a}h \]; but \[uddhit\tilde{a}s \] by \[samsk\tilde{a}rottarak\tilde{a}lam \[\tilde{u}rdhvadece \[pitrloke \] \] sthit\tilde{a}h \[\] it evidently refers to exposure on something elevated, such as is practised by many peoples. The \[pada-text \] reads \[úddhit\tilde{a}h, \] undivided, by \[Pr\tilde{a}t. \] iv. 63. The verse (according to \[K\tilde{a}uc, 87. 22) \] is used, with 3. 47, 48 and 4.41, in the \[pindapitryaj\tilde{a}a \] ceremony, to accompany the setting up of one of two lighted sticks (cf. under 1.56) and pilling fuel around it.

35. They who, burned with fire, [and] who, not burned with fire, revel on svadhā in the midst of heaven — them thou knowest, if thine, O Jātavedas; let them enjoy with svadhā the sacrifice, the svādhiti.

The verse corresponds to RV. x. 15. 14 a, b and 13 c, d (and to VS. xix. 60 a, b and 67 c, d). In the first half, AV. and RV. agree (two of our mss., O.R., combine ye nag-); VS. has svāttās both times for dagdhās. For c, RV. and VS. read tvám vettha yáti te jāt- 'thou knowest how many they are,' and of this our text is doubtless a corruption. Nearly half the mss. have te (both editions, with the remaining mss., including our O.R.T.K., te); the translation implies te. HGS. (ii. 11. 1) has agne tān vettha yadi te jātavedah. For d, RV. and VS. have svadhābhir yajādm súkrtam jusasva; and here again our text seems only a corruption; svádhitim (p. sváodhitim) must be meant as nomen actionis to svadhā, I think, = 'the giving of svadhā'— a false formation. The comm. reads svadhāyās and svadhitam, explaining the latter as svadhā samjātā yasya. According to the comm., this verse and the preceding are used in the pindapitryajāa "on laying two pieces of fuel."

36. Burn (tap) thou propitiously (cap); do not burn overmuch; O Agni, do not burn the body; be thy vehemence (cap) in the woods; on the earth be what is thy violence (bap).

Two of our mss. (R.s.m.Op.), and one of SPP's reciters, leave tapas at end of b unaccented; and this is, of course, more correct. For the application of the verse according to Kāuç., see under 2. 4, with which it is closely akin in sense. [The comm. reads tanvas in b.]

37. I give this release to him who hath thus come and hath become mine here—thus replies the knowing Yama—let this one approach (upa-sthā) my wealth here.

The translation implies that $r\bar{a}yd$ before upa in d means $r\bar{a}yds$ (accus. pl.), and not $r\bar{a}yd$, as understood by the pada-text; the comm. understands $r\bar{a}yas$. Also, that cdd in d admits of being taken as ca if the pada-text always reads ca: it, even when the meaning is 'if' with individual meaning, and not as the compound particle, = 'if.' There is a gap in the commentary just after the explanation of etat: but the commentator's text of the AV. reads ydt for yds at beginning of d. For the Kāuç. use of the verse with 1.55, see under the latter. This verse also accompanies (with 3.73: Kāuç. 85.24) the deposition of the bones in the hole in the ceremony of interment.

38. This measure do we measure, so that one may not measure further; in a hundred autumns, not before.

That is, that there be no more such measuring for any of us till his hundred years of life are full. The comm. understands yáthā ná mắsātāi [Gram. § 893 a] as yathā mā

[= mām] nā "sātāi, nā "sīta, na prāpnuyāt! Kāuç. uses the verse twice (85. 3, 12—unless in the ce 'mām of sūtra three is disguised the beginning of vs. 39 or 41) in connection with the elaborate measuring out of the place of interment of the bone-relics. [See Caland, Todtengebräuche, p. 145 and note 534.]

- 39. This measure do we measure forth, so that etc. etc.
- 40. This measure do we measure off, so that etc. etc.
- 41. This measure do we measure apart, so that etc. etc.
- 42. This measure do we measure out, so that etc. etc.
- 43. This measure do we measure up, so that etc. etc.
- 44. This measure do we measure together, so that etc. etc.

The comm. regards all these paryāya-variations of vs. 38 as to be used with it where it is prescribed; the Kāuç. says nothing of this. The comm. also gives artificial and absurd interpretations of the altered prepositions at the beginnings of the verses. Some of the alterations spoil the meter (p. 830, \P 4).

45. I have measured the measure, I have gone to heaven (sv ar); may I be long-lived; so that etc. etc.

[The prior half of the verse appears to be prose.] The Anukr. scans 8+6:8+8=30 syllables. This verse (according to the comm., vss. 45-47) follows the process of measurement (Kāuç. 85. 17).

46. Breath, expiration, through-breathing (vyāná), life-time, an eye to see the sun: by a road not beset with enemies (-pára) go thou to the Fathers whose king is Yama.

The comm. explains: mukhanāsikābhyām bahir niḥsaran vāyuḥ prāṇaḥ: antargacchann apānaḥ: madhyasthaḥ sann açitapītādikam vividham āniti kṛtsnadeham vyāpayatī 'ti vyānaḥ. It foolishly understands yamarājāas in d as gen. sing.: (the road) "of king Yama." The Pet. Lexx. render áparipara by 'not roundabout,' as if the final para were somehow also a pari; the comm. understands the word nearly as above translated; Land the translation is supported by VS. iv. 34]. The Prāt. (iv. 39 c) notes the division vioānaḥ in pada-text, while prāṇa and apāna are always undivided.

47. They that departed unmarried [but] assiduous, abandoning hatreds, having no progeny—they, going up to heaven (div), have found a place (loká), [they,] shining (?didhyāna) upon the back of the firmament.

The comm. commits the absurdity of glossing agru by agragāmin, and caçamānā ('assiduous': i.e. having faithfully performed their religious duties) by cansamāna or else (from root çaç 'leap') plutagamanaçīla! It seems hardly possible to avoid taking dīdhyāna in d as meant for dīdyāna; the comm. renders by dīpyamāna. The mss. vary between agrāvas and agravas, none of ours that were collated before publication having the latter, which is the true accent correct the Berlin ed.], and is adopted by SPP. on the authority of a majority of his authorities (with which our O.Op.R.T. agree).

48. Watery is the lowest heaven (div), full of stars $(?p\bar{\imath}lu$ -) is called the midmost; the third is called the fore-heaven (pradiv), in which the Fathers sit.

Rather than leave pilu- in b untranslated, we set in our version the comm's worthless etymological guess (pālayantī 'ti pīlavaḥ: grahanakṣatrādayaḥ). SPP. has at the beginning the better accent udanvātī, as read by half his authorities (and by our O.Op.R. among those collated after publication). Our Bp.D. accent also pīlumatī; O. reads pītūmatī, doubtless an accidental blunder, yet suggesting the emendation pitumātī 'rich in nourishment.' For the use of the verse prescribed by Kāuç., see under 1.61; the comm. says simply that with this verse and another one (iti dvābhyām) the body is raised in order to being laid on the cart or litter (for transportation to the funeral pile); a schol. (note to Kāuç. 82.31) uses it also in connection with the interment of the bone-relics.

49. They that are our father's fathers, that are [his] grandfathers, that entered the wide atmosphere, they that dwell upon earth and heaven (div) — to those Fathers would we pay worship with homage.

The first half-verse is found again below as 3. 59 a, b. The verse is used (Kāuç. 81. 37) Las the last one of eleven verses (see my note to xviii. 1. 49) which accompany the oblations offered to Yama and poured upon the corpse (comm., vol. iv., p. 11517: he says iti dvābhyām) in the cremation ceremony after the fire is lighted.

50. This time, verily, not further (\acute{aparam}) , seest thou the sun in the heaven (\acute{aiv}) ; as a mother her son with her hem (\acute{sic}) , do thou cover him, O earth.

The last half-verse is RV. x. 18.11 c, d, without variant (TA., in vi. 7.1, has at the end bhāmi vṛṇu), and is also found below as 3.50 c, d. Kāuç. (86.10) applies the verse, with 3.49 and 4.66, in raising a pile over the interred bones; according to the comm. [vol. iv., p. 115], the pile is of an uneven number of sticks (çalākā) or bricks, and vss. 50-52 are to be used. [Over "hem" W. interlines "skirt." "Border of the garment" says our comm., celāūcalena.] [As to this beautiful verse, see Weber, Sb. 1895, p. 861, and cf. the epilogue to the Içā Upanishad, especially vss. 15, 16.]

51. This time, verily; not further; in old age another further than this; as a wife her husband with her garment, do thou cover him, O earth $(bh\dot{t}mi)$.

The first half-verse is very obscure, and the second pāda perhaps corrupt. The comm. takes jarási with the first pāda, and explains that "what food etc. has been enjoyed in old age, this verily, left over, not anything else [further], is to be enjoyed"; and then "than this place of interment, any other place is not found for him": all of which is simply silly. The Anukr. pays no attention to the redundant syllable (unless we pronounce patim 'va) in c.

52. I cover thee excellently with the garment of mother earth; what is excellent among the living, that with me; svadhá among the Fathers, that with thee.

The comm. does not scruple to take bhadrdyā as used for bhadrāyās, and qualifying pṛthivyās. LHe treats tán máyi etc. as at xi. 7. 5, 12, 14: cf. note to xi. 7. 12. Weber thinks this vs. is spoken by the heir of the dead man.

53. O Agni-and-Soma, makers of roads, ye have distributed (vi- $dh\bar{a}$) to the gods a pleasant treasure [and] world; send ye unto [us] Pūshan, who shall carry by goat-traveled roads him that goes thither.

The translation implies emendation at the end of gachatam to gáchantam, which seems necessary in order to make sense; the corruption to the former may have been made because it better suits the meter. - | The translation also implies the reading presyatam, which is given in the Berlin text and is supported by our Op. (pra: isyatam), by SPP's [CP. (prå: isyatam) and by his] Dc. secunda manu: all the rest read présyantam (p. prá : is- or prá : is-), which SPP. accordingly adopts in his samhitātext; | but in his pada-text he prints prd: isyantam, and he mentions the accent in his note]. The comm. glosses presyantam with pragacchantam in his usual loose and easy way. — Nearly all our mss. also have ajoyanāis (p. ajahoy-) in d; we followed Bs. in giving ajay- (which the translation implies). | Weber also accepts the reading ajayand interprets it as 'traveled by man's unborn (a-ja) or immortal part, i.e. his spirit': Festgruss an Roth, p. 138 and note 5. On the authority of a single ms., SPP. accepts as his reading an joyanāis; as to this matter, see my note marked with a * in the next paragraph |. The reading añjoyanāis had already been conjectured by the Pct. Lexx.; so BR. v. 959, with the meaning 'leading straight to the goal': cf. OB. i. 18 b... The reading anjay- is given by two or three of SPP's mss.; among them is that of the comm., who explains by anjasā, ārjavena yānti ... chhih. The "goat-traveled" roads, of course, are those to which Pūṣan's team of goats are wonted. - Two of SPP's authorities give dadhatus in b; the comm. reads dadhatus in one of two alternative explanations, and -thus in the other. — Possibly vt before lokam is to be taken as belonging to this word alone: 'ye have assigned to the gods a pleasant treasure.' | I do not see what W. means by the last sentence. | - For the use of the verse by Kāuç. etc., see under 1.61 and 2.48; the comm. includes with it vss. 54 and 55. It exceeds a proper tristubh by two syllables.

* In reading añjoyānāis, SPP. is supported in fact by three or four of his mss. (B.C.R.Dc.p.m.) and presumably also by at least three of his pada-mss., since he reports nothing to the contrary. Moreover, he thinks that further support is given him by the reading $a\bar{n}j\bar{a}y$ - of two of his authorities (Dc. sec. manu, and the reciter V.), which reading, as he says, may represent an ill-corrected reading anjoy-; and perhaps the ajāuy- of the reciter K. points in the same direction, to añjoy-. As between the readings anjoy- and ajay-, even Whitney's mss. point decidedly to anjoy-. — Leaving the mss. of this passage out of account, however, the word anjoyana is well supported by its exact synonym añjasāyana, p. añjasāoáyana, used four times of the paths (srutt) by which one goes to the heavenly world (TS. vii. 2. 12; 3. 53; 4. 13: also AB. iv. 17, here as the exact opposite of a 'roundabout road' mahāpathah paryāṇah), and also by the doubtless precisely equivalent añjasînām (srutim) of the Rigveda (x. 32. 7). — This last phrase Sāyaṇa explains alternatively by rjum akuțilam mārgam; cf. his similar explanation of patho devatra 'njase' va yanan at x. 73.7; cf. also anjasayano, used in the Dīgha Nikāya, xiii. 4 ff., as a synonym of uju-maggo: all of which is in most perfect accord with the above-mentioned arjavena etc. of our comm., whose testimony therefore is decidedly in favor of the reading anjoyanais. — If anjoy- is the true reading and ajay- the corrupt one, the corruption is a very natural one, considering that Pūṣan's team (see RV. vi. 55. 6, 4; 57. 3; x. 26. 8; and the occurrences of ajaçua) consists of goats.

54. Let Pūshan, knowing, urge thee forth from here—he, the shepherd of creation (bhúvana) who loses no cattle; may he commit thee to those Fathers, [and] Agni to the beneficent gods.

The RV. has a corresponding verse (x. 17.3), without variant. TA. (in vi. 1. 1) has in c dadāt (as has our comm.), and at the end suvidātrebhyas. The mss. are somewhat equally divided in c-d between -bhyo gntr and -bhyo agntr; our text adopts the latter; SPP., better, the former, with RV. and TA.

55. May life-time, having all life-time, protect thee about; let Pūshan protect thee in front on the forward road; where sit the well-doers, whither they have gone, there let god Savitar set thee.

RV., in the corresponding verse (x. 17.4), reads $p\bar{a}sati$ in a, and $t\ell$ yayús at end of c, [thus rectifying the meter in both places]; and TA. (in vi. 1.2) agrees with it both times; the comm. also has $p\bar{a}sati$. The verse is metrically irregular (10+11: 12+11=44); but perfectly good in its RV. form (11+11: 12+11).

56. I yoke for thee these two conveyers $\lfloor v dhni \rfloor$, to convey (vah) thee to the other life; with them to Yama's seat and to the assemblies go thou down (dva).

Ava, in d, is so strange that we can only regard it as a corruption for dpi, which TA. reads in the corresponding verse (in vi. I. 1). TA. also has the better reading $-nith\bar{a}ya$ in b [so both editions], as has also the comm., though its explanation seems rather to imply $-nit\bar{a}ya$. TA. further has the bad accent vahni in a, and gives in c yabhyam, and in d (for samitis) sukitam. The comm. has sam iti, taking sam as joint prefix with ava, and iti as anena prakarena; our Bp.E. read samiti ca; possibly the comm's error is akin with this. According to Kāuç. (80. 34), the verse is used when two draft-oxen, or two men, are harnessed to draw the body to the funeral pile.

- 57. This garment hath now come first to thee; remove (apa-ūh) that one which thou didst wear here before; knowing, do thou follow along with what is offered and bestowed, where it is given thee variously among them of various connection (?vibandhu).
- 58. Wrap about thee of kine a protection from the fire; cover thyself up with grease and fatness, lest the bold one, exulting with violence (háras), shake thee strongly (dadřh) about, intending to consume thee.

The corresponding RV. verse is x. 16.7; in b it transposes medasā and pivasā, and in d it has vidhakşyán paryankháyāte, which is decidedly better. TA. (in vi. 1.4) reads dádhad vidhaksyán paryankháyātāi. Our vidhaksán, though read by both editions, is only another example of the not infrequent careless omission of y after a s or c: only one of our mss. (Op.) reads -ksyan, but five of SPP's authorities give -ksyan (as against six with -kṣan), and it is much to be wondered at that he has not adopted it in his text; the comm. seems to read -ksan, but explains as if -ksyan (viçesena dagdhum icchan). At the end we ought to read partākháyātāi, and SPP. gives that, with the majority of his mss., the rest having, with our text, partnikhay-; of our mss., only two of the later collated ones (O.Op.) have the proper accent; Bp. has páriotākhayātāi, which is absurd *; the comm. treats pari as an independent word (as if the reading were part "nkhayātāi). The comm. glosses dadhik by pragalbhas; | cf. my Noun-Inflection, JAOS. x. 498 |. By Kāuç. (81. 25) the verse is taught to be used when the dead man's face is covered with the omentum of the anustarant cow (hence 'of kine') on the pile; the omentum is to be pierced with seven holes. * | Cf. the impossible pada-reading viobhāti at xiii. 3. 17, and the other similar ones cited in the note to that verse.

- 59. Taking the staff from the hand of the deceased man (gatásu), together with hearing, splendor, strength—thou just there, here may we, rich in heroes, conquer all scorners [and] evil plotters.
- 60. Taking the bow from the hand of the dead man, together with authority (kṣatrā), splendor, strength—take thou hold upon much prosperous good; come thou hitherward unto the world of the living.

The two verses together correspond to RV. x. 18. 9, our 60 a, b most nearly to 9 a, b, and our 59 c, d to 9 c, d. But RV. has for its b asmé kṣatrāya vārcase bālāya, and in its d spṛdhas for mṛdhas. TA. (in vi. 1. 3) has three verses, with a-b respectively as follows: suvārṇam hāstād ādādānā mṛtāsya çriyāt brāhmane tējase bālāya; dhānur hāstād ādādānā mṛtāsya çriyāt viçē pūṣṭyāi bālāya; their common second half agrees with RV. except in having suçēvās for suvīrās; they are addressed to Brahman, Kshatriya and Vāiçya respectively, as our two are addressed to Brahman and Kshatriya, and that of RV. to Kshatriya only. 'Hearing' in our 59 b has a special meaning, the hearing or inspired reception of the sacred word [cf. i. 1. 2, and note]. Kāuç. 80. 48, 49 explains the two verses as uttered while staff or bow is taken from the dead hand, as the body lies on the pile ready for cremation; and 80. 50 implies a third verse addressed to the person (the son) who removes the article. The comm. reads in 59 c (with TA.) suçevās.

[Here ends also the thirty-third prapāṭhaka.]

3. [Funeral verses.]

[Atharvan. — saptatis tryadhikā. yamadevatyam mantroktabahudevatyam ca (5, 6. āgneyyāu; 44, 46. mantroktadevatye; 50. bhāumī; 54. āindavī; 56. āpyā). trāistubham: 4, 8, 11, 23. sataḥpañkti; 5. 3-p. nicṛd gāyatrī; 6, 56, 68, 70, 72. anuṣtubh; 18, 25-29, 44, 46. jagatī (18. bhurij; 29. virāj)*; 30. 5-p. atijagatī; 31. virāt çakvarī; 32-35, 47, 49, 52. bhurij; 36. 1-av. āsury anuṣtubh; 37. 1-av. āsurī gāyatrī; 39. parātriṣtup pañkti; 50. prastārapañkti; 54. puro'nuṣṭubh; 58. virāj; 60. 3-av. 6-p. jagatī; 64. bhurik pathyāpañkty ārṣī; 67. pathyā bṛhatī; 69, 71. upariṣṭādbṛhatī.]

* The Anukr. (the text of which is perhaps in disorder at this point) reads añjate vyañjata (vs. 18) indro mā marutvān iti pañca (vss. 25-29) jagatyas: tatrāi 'kādhikā (?) bhurig antyā (vs. 29) virāṭ. See under vss. 18 and 29.]

[The prose parts are the first pādas (the $\vec{u}ha$ -pādas) of vss. 25-28 and 30-35, and the yajurmantras, vss. 36-37: see Part III., below.]

[In Pāipp. (in xx.) is found of this hymn only verse 56.]

* [Ritual uses. — Only eight verses (2, 5, 18, 25, 38, 39, 44, 45: the last two together twice, and both times in the order 45, 44) are used in Vāit., and, of course, in rites other than funeral rites: see under the verses. In Kāuç., about three quarters of the hymn (all but 21 vss.) are used, and used in the chapter (xi.: as noted by Whitney, page 814) on funeral rites: see under the verses. It is of critical interest that two blocks of verses (Parts II. and IV., as divided below, where see) which find no use in the funeral ritual, form each a nearly corresponding block in RV.]

LThe provenience of the material of this hymn. — In this hymn, as compared with hymn 2 (see p. 830), the proportional part of material recurring in the RV. rises again, and is about 33 verses out of 73, or nearly one half. — The "Parts" into which the hymn is here divided are primarily for the convenience of the discussion, although some of them (as II., III., IV., V., VI.) have also a critical significance.

Part I., verses 1-20. — This part contains only 3 verses (2, 6, 13) from the funeral hymns of the RV., and only 2 others (7, 18) from other parts thereof, parts widely separated. Of the last 7 vss. of this part, only vss. 17 and 18 find use in the Kāuçikan ritual.

Part II., verses 21-24. — This block of verses corresponds, without changes of order, to the last varga of the second Vāmadeva hymn, more precisely to RV. iv. 2. 16, 17, 18, and 19 a, b, to which is then appended the last half-verse of RV. ii. 23, with the Gṛtsamada refrain. Neither ritual makes any use whatever of any verse or pāda of this part.

Part III., verses 25-37. — This part consists of two six-membered sequences, a and b (a =the five verses, 25-29: b =the six verses, 30-35), each sequence with one member for each of the "six directions" (E., S., W., N., fixed, and upward); the whole followed by two yajurmantras (vss. 36-37: comm., p. 1584). — All the 11 verses of sequences a and b have the refrain lokakrtas etc. (a jagati-tristubh halfverse) in common. Moreover, all those 11 verses (except one, namely vs. 29) have as their second pāda the obscure jagatī-pāda, bāhucyútā pṛthivī dyām ivo 'pári; and for their first pada ar. ūha-pada applying in turn to one or another of the six directions. — In the excepted verse (vs. 29: see my note below), it would seem as if two directions had been crowded into one verse, the 'fixed' into pada a and the 'upward' into pada b: if so, it is this condensation that has reduced sequence a from 6 verses to 5, and effected the displacement of the pada bahucyútā etc. — Thus the refrains of this part are all metrical (smooth jagati or tristubh padas), as is also the first half of vs. 29; while the ūha-pādas are prose, as are also the yajurmantras. — Parts III. a and III. b look to me like antiphonal sequences (cf. the introduction to ii. 5), the verses of a containing the prayers that are worded as if uttered by the suppliant dead man, and the verses of b containing the responses* of his helper, very likely the dead man's eldest son (see my note to vs. 25: but just how they were used, of course, I cannot say). If I am right, vs. 34, reinforced by the first two clauses of 36, would answer to 29 a; and vs. 35 would answer to 29 b. But against my view is the fact that we have $tv\bar{a}$ in 29 a where we should expect mā. — *[After writing the above, I find that Weber, Sb. p. 265, had expressed a similar view as to the responsive structure, and had proposed to emend tvā to mā.]

- Part IV., verses 38-41. This again is a real unity in the RV., being the entire hymn RV. x. 13 except its last verse, the fifth, and except its vs. 1 d. The verses of this part, again like those of part II., find no use in the funeral ritual (although, indeed, Vāit. uses two of them in the agnistoma). For the curious dislocation and misdivision of the material by AV., see p. 858, ¶ 10, and cf. ¶ 8 of this page.
- Part V., verses 42-48. Verses from the principal RV. hymn to the Fathers, x. 15, namely its vss. 12, 7, 11, 5, 8, 9, and 10, with much derangement of the RV. order.
- Part VI., verses 49-52. Burial-verses from RV. x. 18, to wit, vss. 10, 11, 12, 13, in strict RV. sequence.
- Part VII., verses 53-60. Eight verses, of which seven are from five of the RV. funeral hymns, x. 14, 15, 16, 17, 18 (represented in the order 16, 16, 17, 18:14, 15, 16), and of which the remaining one (our vs. 54) is without ritual use and plainly intrusive and doubtless put after our 53 on account of its striking surface-resemblances to our 53. Our vs. 60 is widely separated from its fellow, our vs. 6, as is noted under the verses.
- Part VIII., verses 61-64. Verses not elsewhere found, save, in part, in AV.ÇÇS.MB.
- Part IX., vc.18es 65-67. Found in RV. outside the limits, x. 10 and x. 18, between which the funeral verses are massed, to wit, as RV. x. 8. 1; x. 123. 6; and vii. 32. 26.
- Part X., verses 68-72. This is an anustubh sequence, peculiar to our AV. text, and with only a couple of longer pādas (namely 69 d, jagatī; 71 d, tristubh).
- Part XI., verse 73. This is a tristubh which looks as if it had been put here on account of superficial likenesses to its next following companion, vs. 1 of hymn 4. If this surmise is correct, we are to assume here a misdivision of their material by the makers of the anuvāka-divisions somewhat similar to that seen at RV. vii. 55. 1. Cf. the cases at AV. i. 20 (vs. 4) and 21, vi. 63 (vs. 4) and 64: also at iv. 15. 11 and 12.

Translated: Weber, Sb. 1896, pages 253-277 (with analysis, etc.); Griffith, ii. 236; verses not taken from the RV. are rendered by Ludwig, pages 484-487. — The RV. verses are translated, of course, by the RV. translators: the verses from RV. x. 18, in particular, by Whitney, Oriental and Linguistic Studies, i. 54, 53 (vs. 44 at p. 60: and so on); RV. x. 18 also by Roth, in Siebenzig Lieder des RV., p. 150.

1. This woman, choosing her husband's world, lies down (ni-pad) by thee that art departed, O mortal, continuing to keep [her] ancient duty (dhárma); to her assign thou here progeny and property.

Verses 1-4 are translated and interpreted (I think, incorrectly) by Hillebrandt in ZDMG. xl. 708 ff. Kāuç. (80.44) and the comm. declare that with this verse the wife is made to lie down beside her dead husband on the funeral pile. The comm. glosses dharmam with sukrtam, and understands the sense of the pāda as it is translated above. The sense of d alone seems to indicate that the woman's action is nothing more than a show, expected to be followed by that of the next verse, since "progeny and property" are rewards for this life, not for the other. The comm. says it is meant for her next birth. Th. also has the verse (in vi. 1.3), but reads for c viçvam purāṇām ānu pālāyantī—a very inferior text. Some of our mss. (O.Op.D.R.K.), and even the majority of SPP's, have in c -pādāyantī, but SPP. rightly accepts -pālā-; [cf. the phonetic relation of udumbara and ulumbala, above, 2.13].

2. Go up, O woman, to the world of the living; thou liest by $(upa-q\bar{\imath})$ this one who is deceased: come! to him who grasps thy hand, thy second spouse $(didhis\hat{\imath})$, thou hast now entered into the relation of wife to husband.

The verse is RV. x. 18. 8, whose text differs only by reading in c didhisós, and this is given also by two of our mss. (R.D.) and the majority of SPP's, so that it certainly ought to be accepted as the true reading, dadh- being only a corruption. TA. (in vi. 1. 3) has didhisos, but after it tvám etát, and in b itásum, in neither case making any important change in the sense. [TA., both text and comm. in both ed's, reads abhí sámbabhūva: the comm. renders by ābhimukhyena samyak prāpnuhi! which procedure gives a shock even to one who is wonted to the Hindu laxity of ideas about vāiyadhikaranya. | The meaning given to abht sám-bhū in the translation is decidedly the only admissible one; nor need one hesitate to render didhisú according to its later accepted meaning. The woman cannot be left free and independent; she can only be relieved of her former wifehood by taking up a new one (even if this be, as is probable enough, nominal only); he who grasps her hand to lead her down from the pile becomes, at least for the nonce, her husband. The direction of Kauç. (80. 45) in connection with the verse is simply "one makes her rise"; the comm. [vol. iv., p. 129, end | specifies that this is done "if she desires to live in this world again"; neither tells who is to take her hand — as, for example, Açvalāyana does (AGS. iv. 2. 18): "her husband's brother, a representative of her husband, a pupil [of her husband], or an aged servant." Whether the levir and the "representative" are the same person or two different ones does not appear from the translation nor from the original of AGS. | Vāit. (38. 3) uses the verse in the purusamedha.

3. I saw the maiden being led, being led about, alive, for the dead; as she was enclosed with blind darkness, then I led her off-ward $(dp\bar{a}c\bar{\iota})$ from in front $(pr\bar{a}ktds)$.

The translation of b implies, | not the jivam rtebhyas of the Berlin text, but rather | the reading jīvām mṛtébhyas: this is accepted by SPP. and is supported by the majority of his authorities | including two reciters | and by the comm. and by some of our mss. collated later (O.Op.R.T.), | and especially by the variant of TA., below |. | Compare the cases of yame dirgham, etc., discussed in the note to xviii. 2. 3. | The version in TA. (vi. 12. 1) is better than ours in a, b: apaçyāma yuvatim ācarantīm mṛtaya jīvām pariniyámānām; but not so good in c, d: andhéna ya támasā pravrta 'si pracim dvācīm dva yann ariṣṭyāi. According to Kāuç. (81. 20), vss. 3 and 4 are used as the cow (to serve as anustarani) is led, at the funeral pile, around (the fires) leftwise; the comm. gives a corresponding explanation; and the comment to TA. also understands it of such a cow (rājāgavī); | cf. Caland, Todtengebräuche, p. 40]. It is very difficult to believe that this was the original meaning of the verse, and that it did not rather refer to some rescue from immolation of a young wife. The comm. paraphrases pāda d by enām gām pūrvadeçāt çavasamīpād apānmukhīm çavāt parānmukhīm asmadabhimukhīm prāpayāmi: this is of no authority. Pāda a can be made full only by the unacceptable resolution apaciam; the TA. reading of the word would remove the difficulty.

4. Foreknowing, O inviolable one, the world of the living, moving together [with him] upon the road of the gods—this is thy herdsman (gópati); enjoy him; make him ascend to the heavenly (svargá) world.

There is no difficulty in understanding this of the anustarani cow, with the sūtras and commentaries, although we should expect rather pitrlokám in a, and joṣaya in c. LBy "sūtras" I suppose W. means sūtra 20 of Kāuç. 81 (cited under vs. 3) and sūtra 37 of Kāuç. 80 (cited under this vs.); and by "commentaries," the AV. comm. to vss. 3-4 (vol. iv., p. 1313) and the comm. to the TA. correspondent in vi. 12. I (Poona ed., p. 449) of our vs. 3.] Besides the use of the verse with the one preceding, as explained under the latter, it again (Kāuç. 80. 37) accompanies the leading of a cow around fuel and fire; and the schol. (note to 81.33) employ it further at the kindling of the pile. The verse lacks only one syllable of being a regular trisṭubh (11 + 11 : 10 + 11 = 43).

5. Unto sky (div), unto reed, more helpful of streams; O Agni, gall of the waters art thou.

The translation of a and b is purely mechanical. Other texts have a quite different version of them. VS. (xvii. 6 a-c) reads upa jmann upa vetase vatara nadisv a; MS. (in ii. 10. 1; but p. ávataram) the same (and the editor reports K. and Kap.S. as agreeing); TS. (in iv. 6. 12) the same except dvattaram; VS. and MS. admit a much more intelligible rendering ('close to earth, close to reeds, descend thou in the streams'). In all the other texts, the verse is preceded by our vi. 106. 3 a, b and other similar addresses to Agni, in the agnicayana ceremony; and so also in Vait. (29. 13), where the verses accompany the drawing of a frog, of the water-plant avakā, and of reeds, across the fire-site in all directions. In Kāuç. (82. 26), this verse and 3. 60 are used in the ceremony of gathering the bone-relics on the third day after cremation, with the direction iti mantroktāny avadāya. | The authorities differ as to the day: Caland, Todtengebräuche, p. 99. | The comm. explains | vol. iv., p. 13215, p. 16920 | that vss. 5 and 6 | (cf. Ath. Paddhati cited in note to Kāuç. 82. 26) | | and 60 | are addressed to the plants mentioned in those verses | and gives a list of plants : cf. SPP's note with extract from Keçava, and Bloomfield's note to 82.26 J. The comm. adds that the plants are used by the performer in besprinkling a Brahman's bones with milk. Under this verse the comm. makes dyām mean avakām, because this rises above the water without touching earth! The verse does not need to be scanned as nicrt.

6. Whom thou, O Agni, didst consume, him do thou extinguish again; let there grow here the kyámbū, the çāndadūrvá, the vyàlkaçā.

RV. (x. 16. 13) has the same verse, but calls two of the plants kiyāmbu and pākadūrvā. Vyàlkaçā (p. vioalkaçā) might well be an adjective, 'free from alkaça' or the like, if we only knew what alkaça meant. [W's Op.R. accent vyalkaçā: and so five of SPP's authorities, against four with vydl-. TA. disagrees with both AV. and RV. in reading at vi. 4. 1 kyāmbūs | both ed's |, but agrees with RV. in having pākadūrvā, | and with both ed's of AV. in accenting vyàlkaçā]; it reads jāyatām for Fohatu in c, and tvám for tám in b. — The comm. explains çāndadūrvā as dūrvā ('millet') that springs up near water, having egg-shaped roots, or that has long joints, and adds that it is called "big millet" (brhaddūrvā); but this is probably without authority. With as little reason he glosses alka by çākhā 'branch,' and declares vyalkaça to mean "furnished with various (vividha) branches"; | so also the comm. on RV. and on TA. |. The verse is not directly quoted by Kāuç., but (as was pointed out above) it is regarded by the comm. | and the Paddhati | as included with vss. 5 and 60 in 82. 26, and probably with justice. — This verse and its successor in RV. and TA. (strangely removed to be 3. 60 in AV.) are both plainly intended as remedial and expiatory for the cruel office of Agni in burning a corpse; the fire is not only to be extinguished, but to be followed by its antithesis, the growth of water-plants and the appearance of their attendant frogs: compare Bloomfield in AJP. xi. 342-350 [or JAOS. xv., p. xxxix]. [This expiatory and remedial rite is avouched for antiquity by MBh. viii. 20. 50 = 819: Pāndyah . . . svadhām (= pretaçarīrarūpam haviḥ) ivā "pya jvalanaḥ pitṛpriyas (= çmaçānāgniḥ) tatah praçantah salilapravahatah; and a note to the P. C. Roy version of this passage, p. 65, says that it persists even to this day in India.

7. Here is one for thee, beyond is one for thee; enter thou into thion with the third light; at entrance be thou fair (cáru) with [thy] body, loved of the gods in the highest station.

The verse is RV. x. 56. 1, which reads in c tanvàs, and in d janttre (for sadhàsthe). It is also found in SV. (i. 65), TB. (in iii. 7. 13), TA. (vi. 3. 1; 4. 2), and Ap. (ix. 1. 17); in a, TB.Ap. have u (for \bar{u} before te); in c, all have samvéçanas, while SV. gives tanvè and the others tanúvāi; in d, TB.Ap. read priyé, and SV.TB.Ap. agree with RV. in janttre. According to Kāuç. (80. 36), the verse accompanies the carrying of the fire at the head of the procession to the funeral pile; as the comm. states it, carrying the three fires, in the case of one who has established sacrificial fires. The three "lights" are thus understood to be the three sacrificial fires; but they are probably, in the original meaning of the verse, rather three regions of light, to the highest of which the deceased is to be translated.

8. Rise thou, go forth, run forth; make thee a home (ókas) in the sea [as] station; there do thou, in concord with the Fathers, revel with soma, with the svadhás.

The first half-verse is found also in TA. (in vi. 4. 2) which has the easier ending paramé $vy\partial man$; the second half of the TA. verse is our vi. 63. 3 c, d. The majority of our samhitā-mss. combine $drav\delta$ 'kah in a-b, but SPP reports nothing of the kind from his authorities. The verse can be forced down to forty syllables (as a $pa\bar{n}kti$) by violence in c; [its natural scansion is as 8+11:11+11]. It is one of the $utth\bar{a}pan\bar{t}$ or 'uplifting' verses, which, with the harinis or 'taking' verses, are used more than once in Kāuç., and are cited in Vāit. (37.23-24) and elsewhere, in connection with lifting and moving the corpse etc. This one accompanies (Kāuç. 80.31) the raising of the corpse to carry it to the funeral pile, and later (80.35), with 1.61 and 3.9 and others, the lifting on to the cart and removing; and yet later (82.31) the gathering up and carrying away the bone-relics.

9. Start (cyu) forward, collect (sam-bhr) thy body; let not thy limbs (gátra) nor thy frame (gárra) be left out; enter together after thy mind that has entered; wherever in the world thou enjoyest, thither go.

The first half-verse and the last pāda are found also, as parts of different verses, in TA. vi. 4. 2; which, however, reads út tiṣṭhā 'tas tanúvam sám bharasva mẻ 'há gắtram áva hā mấ çárīram, and yátra bhūmyāi vṛṇāse tátra gaccha. Some of our mss. (P.M.O.R.T.K.) accent ánu in c; and some (all except O.Op.R.K., also two of SPP's) have bhūme in d; the comm. reads bhūmāu. According to Kāuç. (80. 32), the dead body, after being raised (utthāpay-) with the preceding verse, is made three times to set forth (? saṃhāpay-; sam-hā means usually simply 'get up': it is added, "as many times as it is raised") with this one; and this verse is used again, with the preceding verse (under which see) and others, in 80. 35 and 82. 31.

10. Let the soma-drinking (somyá) Fathers anoint me with splendor, the gods with honey, with ghee; making me pass further on unto sight, let them increase me, attaining old age, unto old age.

Some of the mss. (including our D.R.p.m.T.) read djantu in b; possibly it is their way of emending the false accent of dnjantu; doubtless we ought to change this to anjantu rather than to admit the modulated stem dnja. The pratika (varcasā mām) applies either to this verse or to the next, or probably is used to include both; whatever it applies to is used, according to Kāuç. (81.47; 87.4), in connection with rinsing the mouth at the end of the cremation ceremony and at the beginning of the pindapitryajna; and also (86.17), with 3.61-67, in the ceremony of interring the bones, in connection with supporting the dhruvanas* on the north-west of the fire. The comm. takes notice of only the first of these three applications. *[Caland, WZKM. viii. 369, would read dhuvanāny upayachante at 86.16: I suppose he would render, 'they offer fannings [to the relics].' But are we sure that 86.17 goes with 86.16 and forms a part of the dhuvana ceremony? — Cf. my note to vs. 17 below. — The non-lingualization of the first n gives the strongest possible support for dhuvanāni as against dhru-.]

11. Let Agni anoint me completely with splendor; let Vishņu anoint wisdom into my mouth; let all the gods fix wealth upon me; let pleasant waters purify me with purifiers.

The verse is, with resolution of mā-am, a regular triṣṭubh, and no paūkti. As to its ritual application, see under the preceding verse; the comm. regards it as sharing with that verse.

12. Mitra-and-Varuna have enclosed (pari-dhā) me; let the sacrificial posts of Aditi increase me; let Indra anoint splendor into my hands; let Savitar make me one attaining old age.

Most of our mss. (all except Op.R.), and half of SPP's, read at the beginning mitrā-varuṇā (Bp. -ṇāu), vocative, which might stand if we altered adhātām to -thām; both editions give mitrāvaruṇā, ours by emendation. A variant for svāravas in b would be very welcome; the comm. gets rid of the difficulty in its characteristic way, by making the word an adjective to ādityās, and signifying either "making a pleasant sound" or "making a distress directed at our enemies"! The third pāda, if properly read, has a redundant syllable; but the Anukr. would apparently have us read nyanaktu in three syllables, as written. The Kāuç. uses the verse with washing the hands, at the end of the cremation ceremony (81.46), and at the beginning of the pindapitryajāa (87.3); the comm. notices only the latter of the two uses.

13. Him who died first of mortals, who went forth first to that world, Vivasvant's son, assembler of people, king Yama honor ye with oblation.

The second half-verse is identical with 1.49 c, d, and the first half is analogous with the same, a, b (= RV. x. 14. 1 etc.: see under 1.49). The verse is redundant by a syllable in the perfectly good jagat1 pāda d. For its use by Kāuç., with 2.49, see under the latter; tand especially my note to i.49. The verse is discussed by Hillebrandt, Ved. Mythol. i.491.

14. Go away, ye Fathers, and come; this sacrifice is all anointed with honey for you; both give to us here excellent property, and assign to us wealth having all heroes.

The second half-verse is found also in AÇS. (ii. 7.9) and MB. (ii. 3.5); both read at the end ni yacchata, and at the beginning MB. has dattā 'sm-, and AÇS. strangely dattāyā 'sm. [Our pada-texts read dattó $(= dattá \ u) \ tii$: see Prāt. i. 80.] The translation implies that drávine 'há is for drávinam ihá $(p. \ drávinā : ihá)$; the comm. glosses drávinā by dravinam; [cf. my Noun-Inflection, p. 331, ¶ 4]. The comm. also understands the first pāda to signify that the Fathers are to go to their own world, and then to return when invoked to their own sacrifice; and this is probably the sense.

15. Let Kanva, Kakshīvant, Purumīdha, Agastya, Çyāvāçva, Sobharī, Archanānas, Viçvāmitra, Jamadagni here, Atri, Kaçyapa, Vāmadeva, aid us.

The comm. amuses himself with giving etymologies for all these names, only passing over Agastya and Sobharī as "evident" (prasiddha).

16. O Viçvāmitra, Jamadagni, Vasishṭha, Bharadvāja, Gotama, Vāmadeva — Atri hath taken (grabh) our çardis with obeisances; ye Fathers of good report, be gracious to us.

The translation implies in d emendation of sú-samçāsas to suçansasas so W's ms.! it must certainly be a double slip for súçansāsas, for which it seems most probably a corruption, and which is read by the comm. [he reads in fact suçansāsas, and understands it as W. does]; the only variants in the mss. are súçançāsas [with palatal ç twice] in some of ours (P.M.I.) and one (C.) of SPP's, and the accentuation on the second syllable, -sámç, in a few (including our O.R.T.).* Pitaras in b ought properly to be without accent. [As to what precedes, see the next ¶.] Some of the mss. read çárdir or çárdir. The comm. first dentifies the word with chardis, and pronounces it a name for 'house'; then, as alternative, he gets it from root çard and makes çardayati signify balayati; [and, as a final alternative, he regards the word as the name of a Rishi]. Neither Kāuç. nor Vāit. makes any use of these two verses. [Weber, Episches im vedischen Ritual, Sb. 1891, p. 787, suggests a special connection of this book xviii. with the Kāuçikan Viçvāmitras.]

*| The decision here lies between the well-authenticated su-çánsa ('of good wishes, kindly': root çans), and the doubtful su-samçās ('kindly admonishing,' presumably oxytone: root çās with sam). The former occurs five times in RV. and also at AV. xix. 10.6. The latter occurs nowhere, unless here, nor does it seem to be apposite in meaning: yet the authority of the mss. and of the crotriya V. is decidedly in favor of it. No ms. soever actually gives súçansāsas; but the mss. that have the impossible súçançāsas may well be regarded as intending súçansāsas. — Moreover, if the two vocatives stood in the order pttarah su-, I should leave the second one unaccented (Gram. § 314 d), as W. suggests; but with the order sú-plt, the second seems distinctly more independent of the first (Gram. § 314 e) and may properly be accented. I would therefore read súçansāsah pitarah, and render 'O ye kindly ones, ye Fathers!' As for the meaning of suçánsa: note that çánsa means 'a wish, good or evil,' i.e. not only 'curse,' but also 'blessing,' and is used in these two opposite senses in two contiguous RV. verses, vii. 25. 2, 3; and that, in its good sense, it is pertinent to the Fathers, as at RV. x. 78. 3, pitřnám ná çánsáh surātáyah. Note further that 'kindly' accords well with the character of the Fathers as described in RV. x. 15: they bless and help (vss. 5 d, 4 c), and are harmless (1 c, 6 c) and gracious (3 a, 9 c). — That, in such a "pestilent congregation of "sibilants as súçansāsas, a blunder of the tradition is rather to be expected than not, is my opinion: whoso doubts it, let him attempt "with moderate haste" to repeat aloud three times the simple English sentence "she sells sea-shells."]

17. They overpass defilement (riprd), wiping [it] off in the metal bowl (? kasyd), assuming further on newer life-time, filling themselves up with progeny and riches; then may we be of good odor in the houses.

| Pāda c = RV. x. 18. 2 c. | The translation boldly assumes that kasyá is a corruption of, or equivalent to, kansa; the Pet. Lexx. pass the word without notice; the comm. says that kasa means kikasa 'vertebra,' the ki being dropped by Vedic license (!), and that kasya, as an adjective derived from it, means "the place of cremation"! All authorities read kasyé without variation, | save that SPP's crotriya K., whose memory of this book was not perfect, recited kásye |. | See note *, below. | The authorities are divided, however, between mrjanas and mrjanas (among those having the latter are our O.R.); both editions give the former, though it is an isolated accentuation; mrjand is regular (and occurs in RV.), while mrjāna is supported (Gram. § 619 d) by the analogy of several other such participles; [cf. note to vs. 73]. Two of our three pada-mss. (Bp.Kp.) have āyuhodādhānās in b as compound, and most of our samhitā-mss. (all save O.R.) accent accordingly ayur d-; but SPP. acknowledges the reading in only a single ms. (pada), and of course gives in his text (as we in ours by emendation) ayur d-. The comm. regards surabháyas in d as figurative, for çlāghyagunayuktās. In Kāuç. (84. 10) the verse is directed to be used as the women go three times round (the relics of the funeral pile) leftwise, with disheveled hair and beating the right thigh.

18. They anoint, they anoint out (vi), they anoint together $(s\acute{a}m)$; they lick the rite $(?kr\acute{a}tu)$, they smear $(abhi-a\tilde{n}j)$ with honey; the bull $(uks\acute{a}n)$ flying in the upheaving of the river, the victim $(pac\acute{u})$ do the gold-purifiers seize (grh) in them |f|.

The verse is RV. ix. 86. 43, the only variant in which is grbhnate at the end (and our I. also has this; also the comm.). SV. (i. 564; ii. 964) has it also and agrees with RV. in this word, but also has before it apsú instead of āsu, and in b mádhvā. The comm. understands sthālīṣu to be intended by the pronoun āsu. The verse is one of the wild utterances of the soma-purifiers in RV., and seems to be introduced here without any proper connection with the funeral ceremonies, simply because there is so much "anoint" in it. In Kāuç. (88. 16), it accompanies an anointing in the pindapitryajāa; and in Vāit. (10. 4), a smearing of the sacrificial post with butter in the paçubandha. [Pādas b, c, d are good jagatt: but a has no jagatt character whatever, and by count it is virāj rather than bhurij; but perhaps the Anukr. (see note to the excerpts from Anukr.) does not mean to call it bhurij.]

19. What of you is joyous, O Fathers, and delectable (somyá), therewith be at hand (sac), for ye are of own splendor; do ye, rapid (?árvan) poets, listen, beneficent, invoked at the council.

Nearly all our mss. (save Op.R.s.m.) accent pitaras in a; SPP reports only a single pada-ms. as doing so, and of course reads pitaras, as does our text by emendation. Nearly all the authorities, again, give bhūtām at end of b; but Whitney's Op. has bhūtā; and his K. has bhūtā, as have three of SPP's, who reads bhūtā. The word itself is lost from the comm., but glossed by bhavatha. We ought to have emended to bhūtā. Once more, all the authorities without exception accent suvidatrās, which SPP accordingly retains, while we have made the necessary emendation to -dātrās. One is tempted to change arvānas in c to arvāncas. The extra syllable in b suggests corruption; Land so, perhaps, does the fact that in O.R. the avasāna is before bhūtām, not after it.

20. Ye who are Atris, Angirases, Navagvas, having sacrificed, attached to giving (? rātiṣác), bestowers (dádhāna), and who are rich in sacrificial fees, well-doing — do ye revel, sitting on this barhis.

The meaning of some of these epithets is not altogether clear. No use is made of the verse in the sutras.

21. So then as our distant Fathers, the ancient ones, O Agni, sharpening the rite: they went to the bright, they shone,* [should be shining], praising with song; splitting the ground, they uncovered the ruddy ones.

The verse corresponds to RV. iv. 2. 16, found also in VS. (xix. 69) and TS. (in ii. 6. 124) which read precisely with RV. The variants of our text are no better than corruptions; the others have at end of b āçuṣānās [p. āçuṣānāh], and in c didhitim. The translation follows our text.* The comm. takes āçaçānās (p. āoçaç-) from root aç, and glosses it with vyāpnuvantas! The "ruddy ones" are in its opinion the dawns [or else the stolen cows which the Angirases got back from the Paṇis]. — *[Whitney's ms. reads "they shone": this is probably an oversight and should be "shining"; his Bp., to be sure, but Bp. alone, has didhyata, not -tah.]

22. Of good actions, well-shining, pious, heavenly ones (devá), forging the generations as [smiths forge] metal, brightening Agni, increasing Indra, they have made for us a wide conclave (parisád), rich in kine.

The corresponding verse in RV. (iv. 2.17) combines in a-b devayanto 'yo, has in c vavrdh-, and for d ūrvám gávyam pariṣádant agman; its pada-text in b reads \lfloor jánima like ours \rfloor . [Weber, 3b. 1896, p. 263-64, takes devā (jánimā) as = devānām and the whole verse as a parallel to vs. 23, where the phrase devānām jánimā occurs in full.]

23. As herds at food $(k \sin m)$, the formidable one hath looked over $\lfloor dti \rfloor$ the cattle, the births of the gods, near by; mortals have lamented the $urv dc\bar{c}s$, unto the increase of the pious, of the next man.

The translation is purely mechanical, and sundry of the words in it are extremely questionable. The verse corresponds to RV. iv. 2. 18, which, however, reads in a kṣu-māti as one word (p. kṣuomāti; our p. kṣūm: āti), makes good meter in b by inserting yāt after devānām, and reads in c mārtānām. SPP. reads, with RV. and with the comm., kṣumāti; this is against nearly all his and our authorities; [they have kṣūmāti]; but our O.R. have kṣumāti and Op. has [the impossible] kṣum: āti [with accentless kṣum]. The translation implies at the end of b ugrās, which SPP. reads, with about half his authorities and the comm.; of ours, most of the later ones have it also (Op.D. ugrdh; O.R.K. ugrah [accentless!]). The comm. renders a, b thus: "the mighty one, Agni, looks near by upon the birth of the gods, Indra etc., as in a noisy (ksumati = cabdavati) herd (yutha being = yuthe) of kine a master sees his own cattle (pacvas)": or, he says, it is the consuming fire that is addressed: "O Agni, this sacrificer who is being consumed by thee, mighty by thy favor, in a noisy cattle-crowd, looks upon the birth of the gods as upon herds of cattle (pacvas); the sense being that the gods come to light in the neighborhood of him who has gone to the world of the gods." This is the kind of help that the commentator gives in a difficult passage. Urvacts is to him the Apsarases, Urvacts etc.; and ucts are ucts is to him the Apsarases, ucts and ucts is the verse can be forced into the compass of forty syllables (ucts) = ucts, as the Anukr. estimates it.

* The RV. verse has been discussed by Bloomfield, JAOS. xx.1, p. 183. He renders c, d thus: "Even for mortal men Urvaçīs were fashioned for the production of the noble lower Ayu." He takes akrpran as 'there were formed,' aor. pass. of krp = klp: cf. the akalpayan of our comm. and the klptās of Sāyaṇa on RV. He explains: Just as Urvaçī, the goddess Cloud, produces the celestial fire, so the fire-drills (called urvaçīs) produce for mortals the terrestrial sacrificial fire $(upara \bar{a}yu)$.

24. We have made [sacrifices] for thee; we have been very active; the illuminating $(vi\text{-}bh\bar{a})$ dawns have shone upon [our] rite (rta); all that is excellent which the gods favor; may we talk big at the council, having good heroes.

The first half-verse is, without variant, RV. iv. 2. 19 a, b; the second half is, also without variant, RV. ii. 23. 19 c, d (and VS. xxxiv. 58 c, d). Many of the mss., however, (including our Bs.O.K.) combine in a-b to abhūma rtám. The comm. has in b the strange reading avasvan (voc.: = avanavan or $p\bar{a}laka$).

25. Let Indra with the Maruts protect me from the eastern quarter; arm-moved [is] the earth, as it were to the sky above; to the world-makers, the road-makers, do we sacrifice, whoever of you are here, sharing in the oblation of the gods.

[As for this whole passage, vss. 25-37, see my introductory notes, p. 847, ¶ 8, and Caland's orientation of it in his Todtengebräuche, p. 154.] This is a very curious and obscure refrain (its last two pādas occur again as refrain of 4.16-24). In b, bāhucyūtā (which ought to mean 'by a mover, or a moving, of arms') is rendered as if it were bāhūcyutā; [Weber proposes to emend to -tām;] the comm. also takes -cyutā as past pass. pple., glossing it by vinirgatā, or, in an alternative explanation, by prāptā: either "proceeded out from the arms of the givers" or "arrived in the arms of the receivers"; the allusion being to the giving of land to Brahmans: "as land given protects in the future (upāri) the heavenly world which is to be enjoyed by both parties"! The use by the sūtras casts no light upon the meaning. Vāit. (22.3) prescribes the verse for use with an offering to the Maruts in the agniṣṭoma ceremony [doubtless on account of the word marutvān]. In Kāuç. (81.39), this verse alone, so far as appears [but the comm., p. 1525, says vss. 25-29], is combined with 1.41-43 etc. to accompany the offerings to Sarasvatī at the funeral pile; again (85.26), vss. 25-37 (the comm. says, 25-35) are used with 2.24, 26, etc. in connection with the interment of the bone-relics.

[This last use does indeed perhaps cast light on the passage. The previous satra, 85. 25, with Caland's emendation (l.c., p. 154), reads: edam barhir [xviii. 4. 52] ity asthitas tanum yathāparu samcinoti. I think his emendation receives support from the AV. comm., who says, at vol. iv., p. 2246, edam barhir ity rcā kule jyeṣtho 'sthīni yathāparu samcinuyāt. If we take sam-ci in the sense of 'assemble' as used in the phrase 'assemble the interchangeable parts of a bicycle or a Waltham watch,' our sūtra would then mean, 'while repeating xviii. 4. 52, he (the dead man's eldest son) assembles a human figure (tanum), limb by limb, from the bones (asthi-tas), i.e. he makes such a figure out of the bones by assembling them.'—If this be right, then we probably have to infer from the AV. text and from the next sūtra, 85. 26, that the eldest son addresses the deities with vss. 25-29, and does so as spokesman of his dead father, represented by the prostrate figure of bones; and that, while uttering vss. 30-35, he addresses his dead father, but does so as speaking for himself.—As to forming a human figure (purusākrti) with the bones, cf. further Bāudhāyana's Pitrmedhasūtra, i. 10, especially lines 5, 7, 10, 13 of p. 15, ed. Caland.

- 26. Let Dhātar protect me from perdition from the southern quarter; arm-moved etc. etc.
- 27. Let Aditi with the Adityas protect me from the western quarter; arm-moved etc. etc.
- 28. Let Soma with all the gods protect me from the northern quarter; arm-moved etc. etc.
- 29. Dhartar the maintainer shall maintain thee aloft, as Savitar the light $(bh\bar{a}n\acute{u})$ to the sky above; to the world-makers etc. etc.

The translation follows the comm. in connecting ūrdhvám with what precedes, instead of (as the meter suggests, and as is perhaps rather to be preferred) with what follows it.* The definition by the Anukr. of the meter of these five verses is not very acceptable; the refrain of 25-28 has 35 syllables (12:12+11); the prefixed variable part varies from 12 to 14; 28 has 46 syllables (11+12:12+11). LCf. note to excerpts from Anukr., above, p. 847, top.

*[There is a clear play of words in dhartā dharuno dhārayātāi, not without conscious reminiscence, perhaps, of the familiar plays in varano vārayātāi at x. 3. 5 and vi. 85. 1, and in vār idam vārayātāi varanāvatyām adhi at iv. 7. 1.† Moreover, I think that these derivatives of root dhr make clear reference to dhruvā diç, the 'fixed direction' or 'steadfast region,' and that ūrdhvam makes similar reference to the 'upward region.' Render perhaps: 'Let the Steadier, steadying, steady thee [in the steadfast region], as aloft [that is, in the upward region] Savitar [steadieth or maintaineth] the light, the sky above.' Cf. my note, p. 847, ¶ 8.—† Cf. xix. 36. 6 d.]

30. In the eastern quarter, away from approach (?), do I set thee in svadhá; arm-moved etc. etc.

The phrase $pur\dot{a}$ samvitah is very doubtful; perhaps it means rather, with the more literal sense of $pur\dot{a}$ and taking -virt as from root vir, 'before covering up' [so Caland takes it: $Todtengebr\ddot{a}uche$, p. 154-5]; the comm., with his ordinary heedlessness of accent, makes it a pple. (as if samvitas), rendering it "formerly covered up" ($p\ddot{u}rva\dot{m}samch\ddot{a}ditah$); or else, he says, $pur\dot{a}$ is instr. of pur = carira 'body,' and it means "along with thy body" (sacarira eva san). Kāuç. (80.53) uses the verse (doubtless with the five that follow it) in fixing the body in place on the funeral pile; but he adds in the next rule that Uparibabhrava prohibits it. The comm. takes no notice of any such application.

- 31. In the southern quarter, away etc. etc.
- 32. In the western quarter, away etc. etc.
- 33. In the northern quarter, away etc. etc.
- 34. In the fixed quarter, away etc. etc.
- 35. In the upward quarter, away etc. etc.

These six verses, 30-35, have the same refrain of 35 syllables as vss. 25-28; and the prefixed part, variable only in its first word, ranges from 17 to 19 syllables; the definition of the Anukr. is approximately accurate.

- 36. Dhartar ('maintainer') art thou; maintaining art thou; bull (vánsaga) art thou.
- 37. Water-purifying art thou; honey-purifying art thou; wind-purifying art thou.

The comm. regards both these prose verses (yajurmantra) as addressed to Agni, quoting RV. iv. 58. 3 and vi. 16. 39 to prove the applicability to him of the epithets in 36. The sūtras make no use of them save by their inclusion in the series 25-37 in Kāuç. 85. 26: see above, under vs. 25. The Anukr., in counting the syllables of 36, restores both the elided initial a's.

| Verses 38 and 39 are addressed to the oblation-carts. The rearrangement of the RV. pādas in the AV. text is of such critical interest that it is worth a little space to exhibit the method to the eye. — The yuje vām etc. of the RV. seems to be clearly prefatory, and probably few will deny that the RV. order is the more nearly original, and that the AV. order and readings are secondary.

In this and the three following verses we have the | entire | RV. hymn x. 13, | except its last verse, the fifth, and except its vs. 1 d. [See introduction, page 848, top.] This verse is its 2 a, b, c Lits d follows at the beginning of our next verse J, with a pada prefixed as our a that forms no part of the RV. hymn. The first two verses are addressed to the two havirdhanas, or vehicles or vessels in which the soma-stalks are brought to the place of pressing; | cf. our comm., p. 158, and Sāyana on RV. |. The reason of the introduction of the hymn here is altogether obscure (unless it be the occurrence of the word yama in 38 b), and Kāuç. has no use for it. In a, our mss., so far as noted, accent $m\dot{a}$, but SPP, mentions only one among his as reading $m\dot{a}$; and both editions give mā, as is undoubtedly correct. RV., in b, accents āttam, which, of course, is alone grammatically possible; but both AV. editions have āitám, with all the mss. TA. (in vi. 5. 1) also has the verse, and differs from RV. only in having étam: | so, indeed, the Calc. ed., text and comm.! étam (not etâm, pron.) can only be an imperative: but the Poona ed., text and comm., has āltam, like RV. |. Our text has sīdatam in d, with RV. and a part of our mss. (not O.Op.R.D.K. [which read badly -tām]); but SPP. admits -tām, in spite of its inappropriateness, because | -tam is supported by | only one of his authorities and the comm. | Is the consentaneousness of the mss. in the blundering -tām possibly due to a reminiscence of the correct astdatām of the immediately preceding context in TA.? cf. the case at x. 6. 17, and note. \[\begin{align*} \begin{align*} \begin{align*} Vidane & might be from vid \end{align*} \] 'find'; the comm. glosses it with janati. One might conjecture that attam in b is for āoāllam 'came,' but neither pada-text views it in that way. The verse cannot be made a full tristubh without violent resolutions in the first pada — which is, of course, properly prose. | Considering the textual inaccuracies in the tradition of this passage, perhaps it is not too bold to suggest the query whether a mā has been lost: itáç ca mā amútaç cāvatām mā would be a perfect tristubh pāda. | Vāit. (15. 11) makes vss. 38 and 39 accompany in the agnistoma ceremony the driving up of the two havirdhanas.

39. Be ye comfortable (? svásastha) for our soma.

I yoke for you ancient worship (bráhman) with obeisances; the song (clóka) goes forth like a patron ($s\bar{u}rl$) on his road; let all the immortals hear that.

[See my added note just preceding the translation of verse 38.]

The verse is pāda d of the RV. vs. x. 13. 2 of which pādas a, b, c immediately precede in our AV. text, followed by pādas a, b, c of the RV. vs. 1. RV. accents in a svāsasthé; the AV. accent seems wrong; both pada-texts divide suoās. RV. further reads in [its b, our] c, etu and sūrés, and at the end amrtasya putrāh. The RV. verse is found also in VS. (xi. 5) and MS. (in ii. 7. 1) with the same readings throughout as in RV.; and in TS. (iv. 1. 12), which reads for our c vt clókā yanti pathyè va sūrāh, and in d varies from RV. etc. only by having crnvánti. The comm. glosses svāsasthe with sukhāsanasthe; he takes yujé as 1st sing., as it is translated above; the form might, of course, be 3d sing., like duhé, cáye, etc. [In d, crnváttu is a misprint for crnvántu.]

40. Three steps the form (?) ascended, it went (?) after the four-footed one (f.) with its course (vratd); it matches the song (arkd) with the syllable; in the navel of right it purifies.

The translation is purely mechanical, the verse being highly obscure, and its AV. version evidently corrupt. RV. (x. 13.3) reads in a páñca (for trini) and aroham, in b emi for the absurd āitat (apparently a blundering extension * of āit), at end of c mima etâm, and in d ādhi (our abhi has to be omitted in translation) sâm punāmi. It also has in a rupās, which SPP, admits in his text on the authority of the majority of his mss. and of the comm. (the latter takes it from root rup, and makes it mean mṛtaḥ puruṣaḥ); some of our later mss. (O.Op.R.D.) also give it, and it is to be regarded as the preferable reading, if there is such a thing in this case. In b, SPP. strangely reads in his samhitā-text āitad vr- and in his pada-text etat, his pada-mss. having etat or āit—both, doubtless, by accidental misreadings*; the comm., however, gives etat, and makes it qualify vratena, being itself = etena! For nābhāu in d the comm. has yonāu.

*[If āitat is a "blundering extension of āit," one does not see why W. calls the pada-reading āit "an accidental misreading."—Meantime, in Oertel's edition of JUB., published in JAOS. xvi., we find (i. 48, p. 125-6) sa hāi 'vam sodaçadhā "tmānam vikrtya, sārdham samāit. tad yat sārdham samāitat, tat sāmnas sāmatvam; and (iii. 38, p. 197) tā rcaç çarīreṇa mṛtyur anvāitat. tad yat etc. On p. 234, Oertel suggests that we might regard samāitat and anvāitat as due to dittography of the following tat, "were it not for AV. xviii. 3. 40, anvāitat, which is protected by the meter." Cf. also Henry, Revue Critique, 1894, no's 39-40, p. 146.—See also SPP's full critical notes upon the verse, p. 160. It may be added that W's O. gives -padīmámnvāitád, and his Op. ánu: āitát.]

41. For the gods he chose death; for his progeny did he not choose immortality $(am\hat{r}ta)$? Brihaspati [as] seer extended the sacrifice; Yama left $(\bar{a}-ric)$ his dear self (?).

Or, 'the dear body (tanů).' Here too the variations from the RV. version (x. 13.4) seem to be corruptions only. RV. has kám in b, correlative to that in a; for c it gives býhaspátim yajňám akruvata ýsim, and at the end prå 'rirecīt. The comm. explains ā rireca by samantād riktam niḥsāram mṛtam kṛtavān. [See Ludwig's discussion of the verse, Ueber die kritik des RV.-textes, Abh. der k. böhmischen Gesellschaft der Wiss., 1889, no. 5, p. 46.]

42. Thou, O Agni, Jātavedas, being praised, hast carried the offerings, having made them fragrant; thou hast given to the Fathers; they have eaten after their wont (? svadháyā); eat thou, O god, the presented oblations.

The verse corresponds to RV. x. 15. 12, found also in VS. (xix. 66) and TS. (in ii. 6. 125). [Disregarding ilito,] RV. differs only by reading krtvi at end of b; and VS. agrees with it in this, but has kavyavāhana for jātavedas in a; [TS. agrees with AV. throughout]. Ap. (in i. 10. 14) and MB. (ii. 3. 17) have a verse that agrees with this in b and c, save that MB. has prā 'dāt for prā 'dās in c: but their a is abhūn no dūto haviso jātavedāh; and for d, Āp. has prajānann agne punar apy ehi devān, while MB. reads p. a. p. ehi yonim. The second half-verse occurs again below as 4. 65 c, d. Kāuç. (89. 13) makes the verse, with 4. 88, and with two verses not found elsewhere, accompany the feeding of the fire at the end of the pindapitryajāa. [The forms dvāt and aksan are treated, Gram. § 890 a and § 833 a. As for the sandhi dhdh of the mss., see note to Prāt. i. 94.]

43. Sitting in the lap of the ruddy ones (f.), assign ye wealth to your mortal worshiper $(d\bar{a}cvdins)$; of that good, O Fathers, present ye to your sons; do ye bestow $(dh\bar{a})$ refreshment here.

The verse is found, without variant, as RV. x. 15. 7 and VS. xix. 63. The comm. glosses aruninam in a as arunavarnānām mātrnām, without further explanation. Kāuç. does not quote the verse.

44. Ye fire-sweetened Fathers, come hither; sit on each seat, well-conducting ones; eat on the barhis the presented oblations, and assign to us wealth having all heroes.

The verse is RV. x. 15. 11 through three pādas, RV. having for d: áthā raytm sárvavīram dadhātana; it also reads attā [p. attā] in c; and three other texts (VS. xix. 59; TS. in ii. 6. 122; MS. in iv. 10. 6) agree throughout with it. The comm., too, gives atta and dadhātana. The Anukr. does not heed that we need at the end dadhātana to make a full jagatī. For the use of the verse by Kāuç., with 45 and 46 and other verses, see under 1. 51; for its use by Vāit., with 45 and other verses, see under 1. 44 and 51.

45. Called unto [are] our delectable (somyá) Fathers, to dear deposits on the barhís; let them come; let them listen here; let them bless, let them aid us.

The verse is RV. x. 15. 5, which differs only by omitting the meter-disturbing nas in a. Other texts (VS. xix. 57; TS. ii. 6. 123; MS. iv. 10. 6) agree with RV.; but TS. combines the avantu in d. [Our d recurs at TB. ii. 6. 162.] The use of the verse in Kāuç. and Vāit. is the same as that of vs. 44. The comm. glosses nidhtsu by nidhtyamānesu havihsu.

46. They who, our father's fathers, who [his] grandfathers, followed after (? anu-hā) the soma-drinking, best ones — with them let Yama, sharing his gift of oblations, he eager with them eager, eat at pleasure.

The verse is RV. x. 15.8 (and VS. xix. 51, which has the same text with RV.); this, however, reads for a: yé nah půrve pitárah somyásah. In b our text gives, with RV. VS. anūhirė (RV. p. anuoūhirė), but it is by emendation, for all our mss. have anujahiré or anujahiré, p. anuojahiré; | the actual details seem to be as follows: anujahiré is given by Bp.P.D., while O.Op.R. have anujahīre; and anūjahire is given by Bs.M.T., while K. has anūjahīrė. | | SPP's authorities show the same four varying forms of the word: | he reads anujahiré, p. anuojahiré, although the majority | five | of his samhitāauthorities and the comm. have the preferable anujah- | as against three with anūjah- |. Our translation implies the manuscript reading, though it is plainly a corruption of what RV. gives. | Whether we read anujahiré (from anu-hā) or anūhiré (from anu-vah: Sāyaṇa, anupūruyeṇa . . . dattavantah; Mahīdhara, anuvahanti; Weber, 'welche nachgezogen sind'), in either case the sense is about the same. | The comm. treats the word as if it came from root hr: anukramena haranty ātmasāt kurvanti. It looks a little as if the text-makers had in mind the root jeh, found in the next verse. The use of the verse with its two predecessors in Kauç, was noted under vs. 44. It is very unsuitably reckoned by the Anukr. a jagatī, having only one real jagatī pāda; | it scans perfectly as 12 + 11:11 + 11; the corruption anujahire gives b 12 syllables, but no true jagati character |. | W's version of c accords with Geldner's at Ved. Stud. i. 170 note. |

47. They who thirsted panting among the gods, knowers of offering, praise-fashioned, with songs $(ark\acute{a})$ — come, O Agni, with the thousand god-revering true poets, seers sitting at the gharmá.

[This verse and the next correspond to RV. x. 15.9 and 10; but AV. makes the third pāda of 9 change place with the third pāda of 10: cf. the shuffling at xviii. 2. 2 and note.] The RV. verse occurs also in TB. ii. 6. 162 and MS. iv. 10. 6. All these read in d kavyāth pitfbhis after satyāts; and TB. has in a tātṛpūs, and in b hotrāvṛdhas. Nearly all our mss., but, according to his account, only one of SPP's, accent ṛṣtbhis in d.* The comm. glosses jēhamānās with prayatamānās; his explanation of the strange compound stōmataṣṭa is in part lost; he understands by gharma the pravargya soma-offering; and he paraphrases sahasram by aparimitam dhanam yathā bhavati. This verse and the next are used by Kāuç. (87. 22) as explained under 2. 34. *[SPP. plausibly suggests that the madhyodātta of ṛṣṭbhis in this vs. and the next is to be accounted for by the madhyodātta of the corresponding word in RV., to wit, pitṛbhis. If he is right, the case is very probably similar to that of ṛṣṭbhyas at xix. 22. 14 (cf. the ṭiṣṭbhyas of many mss. in the next vs.!) and to those noted under xiv. 2. 59: other cases at xix. 22. 9, 10; 38. 1 d.]

48. The true, oblation-eating, oblation-drinking Lones, that [go] in alliance (sarátham) with the gods, with strong (turá) Indra—come hitherward, O Agni, with the beneficent, exalted (pára), ancient seers, sitting at the gharmá.

The RV., in the corresponding verse (x. 15. 10 a, b, d, 9 c) [see under our vs. 47], reads dádhānās in b for turēṇa, and pitṛbhis in d for rṣibhis — which again all our mss. save one (Op.), but of SPP's only one, accent rṣibhis (as in 47 d) [see my note marked with a * under 47]. In c (see under vs. 47), MS. reads arvāk (but its pada-ms. arvān), [while TB. (ii. 6. 162) reads as AV. RV.]. The verse is used in Kāuç. only with its predecessor, which see.

49. Approach (upa-sṛp) thou this mother earth (bhūmi), the wide-expanded earth (pṛthivī), the very propitious; the earth (pṛthivī) [is] soft as wool to him who has sacrificial gifts; let her protect thee on the forward road in front.

The RV., in the corresponding verse (x. 18. 10), reads yuvatis for the repetitious pṛthivi in c, and, at the end of d, nirṛter upāsthāt; and TA. (in vi. 7. 1) agrees in general with RV., but substitutes the [modernized] equivalent form nirṛtyās; it also has the real variants dākṣiṇāvatī in c [and upāsthe in d]. SPP. makes no remark on ūrṇamradās, but three of our pada-mss. [Bp.D.Kp.] have the blundering division ūrṇamomradāḥ, and nearly all our samhitā-mss. (not R.) correspondingly ūrnammradās; the blunder grows, of course, out of the equivalence in grammatical theory of mr and mmr. The verse (according to the comm., vss. 49-51) is used [Kāuç. 86. 10] with 2. 50 (see under that verse) in covering the bones.

50. Swell thou up, O earth; do not press down; be to him easy of access, easy of approach; as a mother her son with her skirt (sic), do thou, O earth (bhimi), cover him.

The corresponding verse in RV. (x. 18. 11) has at end of b sūpavañcanā. TA. (in vi. 7. 1) has in a ūchmañcasva and vi bādhithās, in b -vañcanā, and at end of d bhūmi vṛṇu. We had the latter half-verse above, as 2. 50 c, d. The comm. paraphrases uchvañcasva with ucchūnāvayavā pulakitā bhava. [W. appears to follow the comm. in rendering ūc chvañcasva by 'swell thou up.' I do not see why he quit his old version, 'open thyself.' In my Reader, p. 385, I said "Note the meaning of çvañc ['open itself; receive in open arms (as a maid her lover)'] and its concinnity with the metaphor of yuvati" [of the vs. which precedes alike in RV. and AV.]. At RV. x. 142. 6, Ludwig renders úc chv- by 'gäne empor': cf. Eggeling's version of ucchvanka and the context at ÇB. v. 4. 19. In neither RV. passage does Sāyaṇa seem convincing.

51. Let the earth kindly remain swelling up, for let a thousand props support (upa-çri) it; let these houses, dripping with ghee, pleasant, be forever a refuge for him there (átra).

[As to uchváñc-, see note to vs. 50.] The verse is RV. x. 18. 12, which in c reads bhavantu for syonås. TA. (in vi. 7. 1) has in a úchmáñc- [so Calc. ed.: Poona has ucchmáñc-] and ht [tiṣṭhasi] for sú [tiṣṭhatu]; in b it leaves crayantām unaccented (if it be not a misprint); [so Calc.: Poona has it rightly cráy-;] in c it [has madhu-ccúto for ghṛtaccúto, and] omits syonås (or bhavantu); [and begins d with vicvāhā: so accented in both ed's, as if it were two words, as in RV. i. 52. II; 130. 2 (áhā vicvā); iii. 54. 22]. The comm. reads in b mithas, but explains it as if mitas (miyamānā oṣadhayaḥ). The Anukr. takes no notice of the extra syllable in a.

52. I brace up (ut-stabh) the earth from about thee; setting down this clod (? logd), let me take no harm; this pillar do the Fathers maintain for thee; let Yama there make seats for thee.

The corresponding RV. verse (x. 18. 13) reads in c-d dhārayantu th 'trā [p. te âtra], and ends with minotu. The TA. (in vi. 7. 1) reads tabhnomi in a [despite the interposition of te: an interesting variant; cf. Gram. § 185 c, aty aṣṭhāt etc.]; in b, it substitutes, as do two or three mss. (including our O.) and the comm., lokâm [surd] for logâm [sonant: cf. note to ii. 13. 3]; at the juncture of c and d it agrees with RV. [-yantu th 'trā]; and ends with sādanāt te minotu. [As to sādanāt te, cf. the contrary blunders at xv. 10. 2; xviii. 2. 3, note.] Nearly all the mss. (all save our R. and one of SPP's) have riṣan at end of b; but both editions emend to riṣam [as RV. reads]. Our mss. vary in accent between sthūnām and sthūnām; in explanation of etām sthūnām, the comm. says etām prasiddhām sthūnām tava gṛhanirmānāya. As a triṣṭubh, the verse has really three syllables in excess instead of one. Kāuç. quotes it (86. 8) in the ceremony of interment of the bones, with the direction logān yathāparu, doubtless '[laying] clods for each several joint'; the comm. does not notice this.

53. This bowl, O Agni, do not warp (vi-hvr); [it is] dear to the gods and the delectable [Fathers]; this bowl here for the gods to drink from — in it let the immortal gods revel.

The RV. has in the corresponding verse (x. 16. 8) eså for ayám in c, and at the end mādayante; TA. (in vi. 1. 4) reads in a jihvaras, and, like RV., eså in c. The Kāuç. (81.9) makes it accompany the laying of the idā-bowl on the head of the corpse on the funeral pile, when the deceased's sacrificial implements are disposed about him to be burned with him. The irregularity of the verse (12 + 11:10 + 11 = 44) is unnoticed by the Anukr.

54. The bowl that Atharvan bore full to Indra the vigorous, in that he makes a draught of what is well done; in that, soma (indu) ever purifies itself.

The comm. supplies $yaj\tilde{n}asya$ to sukrtasya, and, as subject of krnoti, $rtvij\tilde{a}\tilde{m}$ ganah. | The verse scans as 8 + 12:11 + 11. | See my note on Part VII., above, p. 848. |

55. What of thee the black bird (çakund) thrust at, the ant, the serpent, or also the beast of prey (çvāpada), let the all-eating [viçva-ád] Agni make that free from disease, and the soma that hath entered the Brahmans.

The verse is RV. x. 16.6 without variant. TA. has it also, in vi. 4.2. TA. reads in c [for viçvād ('all-consuming') agadām, the curiously perverted] viçvād ('from every') anṛṇām [which is glossed by sarvasmād upadravād ṛṇarahitam upadravarahitam]. In d it has brāhmaṇām (also, in the printed [Calc.] text, āviviçeṣa; but its comm. [Calc.] explains brāhmaṇe and āviveça); [in the Poona ed. the comm. seems to show an alternative reading, either brāhmaṇe or brāhmaṇam, glossed by etadīye brāhmaṇa-çarīre; and it reads of course āviveça]. [Our pratīka is cited by Keçava, p. 36810, as yat te kṛṣṇaḥ çakunīty ṛcā: is çakunī a blunder? cf. idám yát kṛṣṇaḥ çakunīs, vii. 64.1, 2.]

In Kāuç, the verse is used (80.5) in the very introduction of the adhyāya, before the handling of the corpse begins; and Keçava says it is in case the man dies of the bite of a crow or ant or the like; the comm. makes the same condition, and adds that the wounded place is to be burned with fire; this is then probably the meaning of Kāuçika's direction ity avadīpayati. The verse appears again (83.20) in connection with the strewing and covering of the bone-relics.

56. Rich in milk are the herbs; rich in milk is my milk; what is the milk of the milk of the waters, therewith let one beautify (cubh) me.

[The translation implies (instead of the çumbhantu of the Berlin text) the reading çumbhatu, which is read by most of SPP's authorities and some of W's and adopted by SPP. Two or three of SPP's, and W's Op., have çumbhata (a blend of AV. çumbhatu and RV. çundhata?). For the misuse of çumbh for çundh, see note to vi. 115. 3.] The corresponding verse in RV. is x. 17. 14, which has vácas instead of páyas at end of b; for c, the less repetitious apām páyasvad it páyah, and at the end çundhata. TS. (in i. 5. 10²) and TB. (in iii. 7. 47) have again a quite different version: namely, for b, páyasvad vīrúdhām páyah; for c, our c; for d, téna mām indra sám srja. Ppp. also has the verse [in xx.] with vacas in b. Its former half appeared above, as iii. 24. 1 a, b, likewise with vácas. In Kāuç. (82. 9), it is used in the ceremonies of the first day after cremation, with strewing tufts of kuça-grass; the comm., however, says instead that it accompanies a bath taken immediately after the cremation of the dead body. The comm. supplies Varuṇa, as god of the waters, for subject of the concluding verb.

57. Let these women, not widows, well-spoused, touch themselves with ointment, with butter; tearless, without disease, with good treasures, let the wives ascend first to the place of union.

This verse (= RV. x. 18.7; TA. vi. 10.2) was found above, as xii. 2.31, where see: it is not used by Kāuç. in the book of funeral and ancestral ceremonies.

58. Unite thyself (sam-gam) with the Fathers, with Yama, with thy sacred and charitable works in the highest firmament; abandoning what is reproachful, come again home;—let him unite himself with a body, very splendid.

The corresponding verse in RV. (x. 14.8) reads in c hitvåya, and in d gachasva, continuing the general construction of the verse. The first half is found also in TA. (in vi. 4.2), which has svadhåbhis for yaména, and adds after it another sám. We had the last pāda above, as 2. 10 d. The mss. are divided between ávadyam and avadyam in c; both editions give avadyam [with RV.].

59. They that are our father's fathers, that are [his] grandfathers, that entered the wide atmosphere — for them may the autocratic (svaráj) second life today shape our bodies as he will.

The first half-verse we had above as 2.49 a, b [and its prior pāda also at 3.46]; the second half-verse corresponds to the second half of RV. x. 15.14 (and VS. xix. 60), but is much corrupted, even to unintelligibility, so that the translation is only mechanical. RV. reads tebhih svarād dsunītim etām yathāvaçām tanvām kalpayasva; VS. has tebhyas and kalpayāti, but the rest like RV. The last pāda is identical with vii. 104.1 d above.

60. Let the mist be weal for thee; let the frost fall down [as] weal for thee; O cool one, possessing cool ones; O refreshing one, possessing refreshing ones; mayest thou be with weal a she-frog in the waters; kindly pacify thou this fire.

Or, 'this Agni.'—Of the ritual use of this verse, the comm. simply says that with it one is to sprinkle the bones of a Brahman with the plants referred to, dipped in water and milk; Kāuç. (82.26) combines it with 3.5 Ldoubtless rather 3.5 and 6: see under 3.5, in the manner explained under that verse. LPartly because W. overlooked some TA. variants, it seemed necessary for me to rewrite the next paragraph; but I could not easily indicate my changes and additions by the usual ell-brackets.

The main stock of this verse (pādas c-f) is RV. x. 16. 14 and is the third verse of TA. vi. 4. 1: in both these texts it stands next after the verse which corresponds to our 3. 6 above, namely after RV. x. 16. 13 = TA. vi. 4. 12: see note to 3. 6. Considering how closely it is connected with our 3.6 in sense and in position in those texts, it is strange that it should be so removed from 3.6 in AV. -- In d part of the mss. (including our Bp.P.M.I.: also the comm.) read hlådake hlådak-; TA. has hlåduke hlåduk-. For e, RV. has mandūkya sú sám gamah (of which our version, p. mandūki : aposú : (ám : bhuvah, is no better than a corruption), and TA., again differently, mandūkyasu (as an adjective, supplying apsu) saingamáya; and the comm., finally, mandūkyā 'sya çam bhava: moreover, for the cam of both ed's, some of our mss. (O.Op.R.) and one of SPP's have sam. In e, at the end, RV. has harsaya and TA. camaya: our camaya is better than either. — To the main stock of the AV. verse are prefixed two padas which agree nearly with the second half of the next verse but one in TA. (vs. 5: interposed as vs. 4 is matter that corresponds to our i. 6. 4 and xix. 2. 1, 2): but for our bhavatu the TA. has varșatu; and for our çám te prușva, it has çám u přistha (so Calc.: the Poona ed. accepts pṛṣvā but gives pṛṣṭhā as variant): the comm. glosses pṛṣvā with jalabinduh. - For Bloomfield's discussion, see under vs. 6. Bergaigne comments on the verse, Rel. Véd. i. 84, note, ii. 472.

. 61. Let Vivasvant make for us freedom from fear, he who is well-preserving, quick-giving (?-dánu), well-giving; let these heroes be many here; let there be in me prosperity (pustá) rich in kine, rich in horses.

About half of SPP's mss., and one of ours (Op.), accent at the beginning vivasvān. The comm. explains jīrādānus alternatively by jīvanasya kartā and vayohāner (as if from jṛ 'waste away') dātā. [Pāda a is found (with metrical rectification) as noted under vs. 62.] The third pāda is identical with xii. 2. 21 d. By Kāuç. 81. 48 the verse is used at the end of the cremation ceremony with an oblation on the north; and again (82. 36), vss. 61 and 62 accompany each [separately: see the comm., p. 176¹³] a sthā-līpāka offering to Vivasvant at the gathering of the bone-relics, while a third offering is made with them both together [82. 37]. And further (86. 17), vss. 61-67 are used with 3. 10 in the interment of the bones (see under the latter verse); the comm. describes it thus: "in the ceremony of gathering at the cemetery, the manager and all the relatives, standing in the western part of the cemetery, should approach the departed." The comm. adds one or two more minor applications. [Verses 61 and 62 are translated by Hillebrandt, Ved. Mythol. i. 489.]

62. Let Vivasvant set us in immortality; let death go away; let what is immortal come to us; let [him] defend these men until old age; let not their life-breaths (ásu) go to Yama.

In ÇÇS. iv. 16. 5, and MB. i. 1. 15 are found as the first two pādas of a verse our 62 b and 61 a. [For the na āttu of our 62 b, both texts have ma ā gāt (the me is incongruent with the following nas); and for the vivasvān of our 61 a, both have $v\bar{a}ivasvato$,] thus rectifying the meter. The mss. accent vivasvān as in 61 a. We need to resolve $m\delta$ to $m\bar{a}$ u in d to make a good tristubh pāda; but the Anukr. would apparently read mo and balance the lack of a syllable by the redundancy of one in c. Possibly \bar{a} is intrusive in c, and the meaning was 'defend from growing old.' The ritual use of the verse was explained above, under vs. 61.

63. He who maintains himself by his might, like [birds?] in the atmosphere, poet of the Fathers, favorer (? prámati) of prayers (matí) — him praise ye, all-befriended, with oblations; may that Yama give (dhā) us to live further on.

The reading in the first pada is doubtful; our text has antariksena, but the other edition kse ná. Bp. and Op. read antárikse: ná, and so, apparently, SPP's pada-mss.; but our D.K. have -kṣeṇa, and with it agree our P.M.I., while O.R.T., though they give na, do not accent it; SPP's mss. are somewhat similarly at variance. The commentator's interpretation is an interpretation of antarikṣena; but his text (according to SPP.) reads -kse na. Only the sense can decide, and that is quite doubtful; the translation ventured above implies -kse nd. The second half-verse occurs again below as 4. 54 c, d. One is tempted to understand viçvámitrās | so accented in both ed's with all the authorities | in c as 'O Viçvāmitras'; but this is so decidedly opposed by the accent and by the short vowel of the second syllable (which is authenticated by the padareading viçváomitrāh, while viçvámitra is never divided: see Prāt. iii. 9 and note) that I have not dared to assume it; | but the comm., ignoring these considerations, takes it as voc. For the verse in general, I the comm., as usual in a trying case, gives no help whatever; he glosses pramati with prakrstabuddhi, and mati with mantr or stotr, in apposition with pitrnam; and he makes antariksena dadhre mean (pitrn) antara kṣāntena lokena dhārayati.

64. Ascend ye to the highest heaven; O seers, be not afraid; ye soma-drinkers, soma-drenchers, this oblation is made to you; we have gone to the highest light.

Encouraged by the comm. (anyān api yajamānān somam pāyayanti), the translation mends the repetition in c by violently taking $-p\bar{a}yin$ as causative to $-p\bar{a}$.

65. Agni shines forth with great show $(kct\hat{u})$; the bull roars loudly unto the two firmaments $(r\delta das\bar{i})$; Leven from the end of heaven he hath attained unto me (?); in the lap of the waters the buffalo increased.

The verse corresponds to RV. x. 8. I, and is also found as SV. i. 71 and in TA. vi. 3. I. RV. and SV. read in a yāti; in b which occurs again as RV. vi. 73. I d also , TA. has āvir viçvāni (for ā ródasī); in c, RV. has the far more acceptable reading antān upamān, while SV. gives antād upamān and TA. antād úpa mān; moreover, TA. accents udānad. The AV. mss. are at variance in c; all read antāt save our K., which gives antām; the samhitā-mss. generally have upamān (K. -mān), and Bp. upaomān; but some (Op.D., also T.) and two of SPP's pada-mss. have úpa: mān, with TA., and with the comm.; and this last is implied by the translation, though both editions adopt upamān, with SV. Pischel, Göttingische Gelehrte Anzeigen, 1897, p. 811, renders the verse.

66. As, longing with the heart, they looked upon thee, flying up* [as] an eagle in the firmament (náka), golden-winged messenger of Varuṇa, busy (bhuranyú) bird (çakuná) in the lair of Yama.

The RV. has the verse (x. 123. 6), and it is found also in SV. (i. 320 and ii. 1196), TB. (in ii. 5. 85), and TA. (vi. 3. 1); all read alike throughout, save that the RV. (not the SV.) pada-text has the bad division and accent abht: acaksata. Our P.M.O. have at the end bhuranyam. It is noteworthy that vss. 65 and 66, which have no apparent connection with funeral rites, and are not used by Kāuç. save in the group 61-67, are found almost together (separated only by our 3. 7) also in the funeral collection of TA. *[W's "up" for upa may be an oversight: render perhaps 'they looked upon thee, flying onward (upa) [as] an eagle'? Our comm., taking 'thee' as the dead man, construes, 'flying unto the eagle'; but is not the verse addressed rather to Agni? cf. Griffith and comm. on TA. — Sāyaṇa, cummenting on the RV. vs., says he vena; but in his comm. on TB. he says he pravargyasvāmin: an interesting diversity of opinion! Perhaps RV. ix. 85. 11 may throw light on our verse.

67. O Indra, bring us ability $(kr\acute{a}tu)$, as a father to his sons; help (ciks) us in this course $(y\acute{a}man)$, O much-invoked one; may we, living, attain to light.

The verse is RV. vii. 32. 26, found also as SV. i. 259; ii. 806, and TS. vii. 5. 74; the only variant anywhere is that TS. has no as-, unlingualized, in c. The comm. glosses yāmani with samsāragamane, and çikṣa by anuçādhi.

68. What vessels covered $(api-dh\bar{a})$ with cakes the gods maintained for thee, be they for thee rich in svadhā, rich in honey, dripping with ghee.

The verse is repeated below as 4.25. Only one of our mss. and one of SPP's accent ddhārayan; but one of SPP's at 4.25 also accents ddhā-].

69. What grains I scatter along for thee, mixed with sesame, rich in svadhā, be they for thee abundant (vibhū), prevailing; them let king Yama approve for thee.

According to the comm., the grains are roasted barley; and anu manyatām means 'assent to thine enjoying'; Lat 4. 26 he says $t\bar{a}$ dhānās tava bhogāya... anujānātu. It depends on Yama's favor, says Weber, Sb., 1896, p. 276, whether the dead man may have the benefit of his viaticum, or not. The verse is nearly identical with 4. 26, and is precisely identical with 4. 43. Its meter is (9+8:8+10=35) rather irregular, and lacks a syllable of being full measure. With an easy double sandhi in a (dhānānu-) and the resolutions taās and rājā anu in d, it scans very well as 8+8:8+12. Kāuç. (85.27) directs that grains be scattered 'with verses that have the sign (salin̄ga)'; and Keçava states these verses to be the two that begin yās te dhānās (doubtless 3. 69 L= 4. 43 J and 4. 26, since 3. 70 is evidently not salin̄ga), also 4. 32 and 33, and another not found in the text; the comm. says that such grains are to be put upon the bones with the two vss. that begin with yās te dhānās, Lby which he seems to mean 3. 69 (= 4. 43) and 4. 26 rather than 3. 69 and 70: at any rate, he immediately cites 3. 70 for another use L

[It is hardly doubtful that the black variety of sesame (kṛṣṇatila) is meant here, and that it is used, like the black rice and black victim, on account of its color: Pischel, GGA. 1897, p. 813. Pischel's view is confirmed by the fact that, if an offering to the Manes is performed apropos of some joyful occurrence in the family, barley is substituted for sesame: so Çrāddhakalpa, iv. 5, as cited by Caland, Totenverehrung, p. 37.

70. Give back, O forest tree, him who is deposited here with thee, that in Yama's seat he may sit speaking counsels.

Two of our pada-mss. (Bp.Kp.) read vidátha in d. The verse is repeated, according to Kāuç. (83. 19), when the bone-relics are removed from the root of a tree, at which they had been for some time deposited: the comm. adds "provided they have been previously so deposited." It reads more as if it were originally addressed to the (hollowed) tree in which a corpse is buried (in which case, tváyi ought to be rendered 'in thee'). [With regard to vanaspate, see my note to 2. 25, above: and as to vidáthā, see Geldner, ZDMG. lii. 735.]

- 71. Take hold, O Jātavedas; let thy seizure (háras) be with sharpness (téjas-); his body do thou consume; then set him in the world of the well-doing.
- Or (in b) 'let thy flame be brilliant.' The verse is used [Kāuç. 81.33] with 2.4 and others (see under 2.4) at the lighting of the funeral pile.
- 72. What Fathers of thine went away earlier and what later, for them let there go a brook of ghee, hundred-streamed, overflowing.

The second half of the verse is nearly identical with 4.57 c, d below. The mss. are not agreed about kulya? 'tu [so both ed's]: some (including our R. and [one or] two of SPP's) read kulya? 'tu. Our Bp. has kulya: etu; but Op. accents ya, and Kp. has kulyaoetu. The noun is elsewhere accented kulya, and hence our text ought doubtless to be kulya1 'tu [so SPP's B.]. The verse is twice used with 4.57 in Kāuc.: once (86.2) in the ceremony of interment of the bones, on filling a dish (caru) with butter and honey and depositing it by the head [see note to 4.16]; and again (88.17), in the pindapitryajna, on smearing the pindas with sacrificial butter.

73. Ascend thou this, gaining (ud-mrj) vigor (váyas); thine own [people] shine here greatly; go forth, unto [them], — be not left behind midway — unto the world of the Fathers that is first there.

Nearly all the mss. (all save our I.O.R., and one or two of SPP's) accent in a $unmrj\bar{a}nas$, which our edition accordingly reads; SPP. makes the proper emendation to $-j\bar{a}nds$ (cf. $mrj\bar{a}n\bar{a}s$, vs. 17, note). The comm. glosses $v\dot{a}yas$ with antariksam, because viyanti yacchanty yacchanty

[Here ends the third anuvāka, with 1 hymn and 73 verses. The quoted Anukr. says saptatis tryadhikā parah: cf. page 814.]

[Notes to the Anukramaṇi-excerpts.] ¹ [In giving this item, the Anukr. repeats the half-çloka from the Old Anukr., given at p. 814.] ² [The mss. read namo vah pitara iti pitrdevatyam: ādyā (vs. 81) prājāpatyānustup etc. By using the neuter-devatyam, perhaps the Anukr. means the whole decad-sūkta (the 28th), except vss. 88 and 89.] ³ [Verses 43 and 25 were defined by the Anukr. under 3. 69 and 3. 68, and the definitions are not repeated here.] ⁴ [In stating that vss. 71-86 are 1-av., the Anukr. uses the . . . itiprabhṛti . . . ityātas that appears at Kāuç. 81. 44: cf. 85. 26 and 86. 17, where also we have the strange ityātas.]

[Parts of the hymn are prose: vss. 27, 67-68, 71-74, and 76-87: so Whitney, Index, p. 6. As to vs. 75, it is hard to say whether the fact that it scans easily is significant or not. Perhaps we have here a mere casual lapse into meter (cf. p. 772, ¶ 5); or it may be that the mantra, as the first of the sequence to which it belongs, is intentionally metrical, while the uhas of vss. 76 and 77 destroy the rhythm of those vss. The comm., p. 240²⁰, lumps the whole decad-sūkta, vss. 71-80, together, and says etat sūktam sąrvam yajurmantrātmakam.]

[Only one verse (49) is found in Pāipp. As to the significance of the occurrence, see under vs. 49.]

Ritual uses. — The Vāitāna naturally makes few citations from this hymn: vs. 59 is used in the agnyādheya; and vss. 28 and 75-77 in the agnisioma. But in the sākamedha, particularly in the offering to the manes (Vāit. 9. 8) in one of the seasonal sacrifices, vs. 71 finds application; as also, I suspect, vss. 72 and 73, though the latter are not so recognized by Garbe. Something like two thirds of the verses find use in Kāuç, and those uses are all in the eleventh adhyāya, the pitrmedha and pindapitryajāa, as noted above, p. 814, end. Verse 48 constitutes no real exception. For all ritual uses, see under the verses.

[The provenience of the material of this hymn. — Whereas in the preceding three hymns a very large or a large part of the verses are found also in RV., in this hymn only a small part, to wit 12 verses out of 89, are so found. However much or little weight is to be laid on the fact that these 89 verses are called a "hymn," the hymn is, at any rate, the longest in the AV. In general, the collection looks as if it were made of after-gleanings from the stock material of tradition (cf. Weber, Sb. 1896, p. 278); although indeed some parts of it appear to be the reflex of what we may well regard as very ancient elements in the ritual: such are the giving of the viaticum to the dead (vss. 16 ff.) and the invocation of the ancestors (vss. 75-77) and so on. The relation of the order of occurrence in the AV. text to the order of use in the ritual is obscure and in part indeterminable. But a reason for the arrangement is sometimes to be found: thus the practices that go with vss. 51 and 52 are separated in the ritual; but the vss. are set together in the text because of several notable surface-resemblances between them. — The RV. verses are as follows:

our 28 = RV. x. 17. 11 our 59 = RV. vi. 2. 6

our 29 = RV. x. 107. 4 our 60 = RV. ix. 86. 16

our 45 = RV. x. 17. 7 our 61 = RV. i. 82. 2

our 46 = RV. x. 17. 9 ab 8 cd our 69 = RV. i. 24. 15

our 47 = RV. x. 17. 8 ab 9 cd our 88 = RV. v. 6. 4

our 58 = RV. ix. 86. 19 our 89 = RV. i. 105. 1

The verses that recur in the sixth prapāṭhaka of the TA. (if we count those in TA. vi. 8 as five: see note to vs. 16) also number about a dozen: to wit, 16 ff., 28, 30, 34, 35, 51, 55, 57.

[For the purpose of the following discussion, the hymn may be divided into Parts; of which only some, not all, are of critical significance.

- Part I., verses 1-15. Refers in general to the ignis rogalis and its belongings and is treated as a ritual unit by Kāuç. 81. 45.
- Part II., verses 16-27, and 28. Offering of the viaticum for the dead: cakes, with milk, etc. etc.; then sesame. The unity of vss. 16-24 is sufficiently marked by their external form alone. Verse 28 seems to me to belong to this part, and to be appended for use as an expiation in case of any spilling of the liquids of the foregoing libations: cf. TA. comm., vikṣarantam abhimantrayate etc.
- Part III., verses 29-44. This seems to me to be in general essentially a continuation of Part II., but with certain disturbing elements. The water poured on the bones (29-30, but also 36), the garment (31), the black sesame (32-34, but also 43), and the vānyā cow's milk (35) may well be taken as parts of the dead man's viaticum. If vs. 42 be part of the dhuvana (Caland), it is not far in time from the viaticum ceremony, I suppose. But the ritual use of 44 (corpse on cart) certainly precedes the cremation; while that of vss. 38-41, if rightly reckoned to the pinda ceremony (so comm.), may well follow it by a long interval. As for vs. 37, see under the verse.
- Part IV., verses 45-47. To Sarasvatī with the Fathers, RV. x. 17. 7-9, recurring as Part VII. of hymn 1. The trca is a ritual unit, used (so comm.) immediately after the cremation.
- Part V., verses 48-70. Verse 48 and the group 58-60 and vs. 67 and vs. 70 find no use in Kāuç. The comm. assigns a use to 48, but only by a blunder; and the group he perhaps considers as a part of the pitrmedha ritual; and in reporting the use of 66, he groups with it 67. Vss. 49 and 50 stand side by side in Kāuç.: with 49 the liturge takes the two bullocks that drew the hearse, and with 50 he accepts his fee. Vs. 51 goes with the strewing of darbha on the pyre: and 52 would seem (see under 52) to belong with it, but is put to a use quite different and later in natural order, the forming of a human figure with the bones (Kāuç. 85. 25). If the latter use be the correct one, then the acts that go with vss. 53 and 54 (covering bones with palāça and stones) form a reasonable sequel to it; although, to be sure, they also form a sequel to vs. 36 (besprinkling of the bones), both naturally and in the text of Kauc. If I am right in understanding vs. 55 to accompany the patting of the grave-mound (see under 55), then the piling thereof (with vss. 66 and 67) must intervene between 54 and 55. Vs. 56, a symbolical taking of his hereditament by the oldest son, must belong to an earlier stage of the proceedings. One use of 57 is in the viaticum ceremony (described under vs. 16); the other is in the much later pinda or cake ceremony. Here too, if anywhere (but see under 58), belongs the group 58-60; and the group 61-65, with 68, seems to belong also to the same cake ceremony (61, cake-sprinkling; 68, strewing the barhis to receive the cakes; 62, strewing of sesame on that barhis; 63, dismissal of the Fathers; 64, offering of grains with the pot-offering noticed below under Part VI.; 65, the "withdrawal of the fires," apparently the ultimate act in this connection). Vss. 66 and 67 (mound-piling) were mentioned above; and so was 68, which clearly suits the action immediately preceding that of 62. Vs. 69 accompanies a much earlier act, the expiatory bath taken just after the cremation. Vs. 70, which has no use in Kāuç., seems to me to be put here because, like 69, it contains a prayer for release from the bonds of Varuna.

Part VI., verses 71-87. — All this passage of unbroken prose (but see p. 869, ¶ 5) belongs to the pindapitryajña. The comm., p. 2419, aptly notes that offerings to the gods are announced with svaha and vasat and those to the Fathers with svadha and nasas. This Part falls naturally into 5 subdivisions, each with its own manifest unity:

subdivision I = verses 71, 72, 73, 74; subdivision 2 = verses 75, 76, 77; subdivision 3 = verses 78, 79, 80; subdivision 4 = verses 81, 82, 83, 84, 85; subdivision 5 = verses 86, 87.

Subdivisions 1 and 3 accompany the ceremony of strewing three handfuls [of grain? trīn adhomustīn, Kec.], and they dovetail each into the other in such wise that they are used (Kāuç. 87. 8) thus: 71, with 78; 72, with 73 or 79; 74, with 80. Thus the second handful is strewn while the liturge repeats idam "somāya pitṛmate svadhā" (72) either with pitrbhyah somavadbhyah (73) or else with pitrbhyo' antariksasadbhyah (79). The appropriateness of the linkage in each of the three cases is palpable. The second use of the mantras of subdivisions 1 and 3 is with the pot-offering (Kāuç. 88. 1-4). — Then comes (88. 11) the offering of the cakes with subdivision 2 (pindapradānamantrā evam āmnāyante: comm.). These first three subdivisions are clearly triplets; and their symmetry is marred only by vs. 73, which is simply an alternative of vs. 79, awkwardly interjected after vs. 72 for lack of a better place. - Subdivision 4 consists of doublets (5 in all): to wit, 8 ascriptions of homage to the Fathers' various attributes, 4 expressed by nouns and 4 by substantival relative clauses, and a final doublet (85) with namas and svadha. — Subdivision 5 consists of 2 entirely symmetrical 4-membered mantras, the prior one relating to yonder world, the latter to this.

Part VII., verses 88 and 89. — Verse 88 accompanies the laying on of fuel just before the final withdrawal of the fires (explained under 65). Why the Tritaverse, 89, should be here, is, as Whitney observes, very obscure.

Translated: as AV. hymn, by Ludwig, pages 488-493; Weber, Sb. 1896, pages 277-294; Griffith, ii. 247-258; all 1, the occasional RV. verses by the RV. translators.

— Weber's analysis etc., p. 277-8, may consulted.

I. Ascend to [your] generatrix, ye Jātavedases; by [roads] that the Fathers travel I make you ascend together; the offering-carrier, sent out, hath carried the offerings; united (yuktá), set ye him who hath sacrificed in the world of the well-doing.

The translation implies emendation in a to jātavedasas, though all the mss., and hence both editions, read jātāv-; all, also, accent in c havyavāhas, and SPP. has that in his text; our edition makes the obviously necessary emendation to $-v\bar{a}hds$ | cf. the opposite error in vs. 10 |. All our samhitā-mss. | see Prāt. i. 94, note | make in c the false combination dvādh dh-; SPP. says nothing of his, and both editions have correctly avād dh.. Our O.Op.R., and one of SPP's mss., read in c iṣitā; the comm. also has it, explaining it with isitāny istāni. The comm. also understands jātavedasas as vocative (probably, after his manner, simply disregarding the accent); he explains janitrīm as swotpādikām araņim; and the Kāuç. (80. 23) takes the same view: iti pṛthag aranisv agnin samāropayanti; but its correctness as original sense of the verse may be strongly questioned. The comm. explains ā rohata by çaktyātmanā praviçata; and describes the samāropaņa as taking place "because of the absence of any further ceremonies to be performed by him, being now dead, by help of the fires." In the comm's viniyoga he says simply aranidvayam agnāu pratāpayet. All this is in the case of a person who has died away from home. But vss. 1-15 are also used nearly at the end of the cremation ceremony (Kāuç. 81. 45), with the direction ity āhitāgnim (Keç. adds upatisthate), | and the comm. fills out the direction thus: citistham āhitāgnim pretam upatistheta |. The verse, as a tristubh, is redundant by a syllable | in a, which is thus a good jagatt-pada: and also by one in d, which, however, by reason of its tristubh cadence, is neither one thing nor the other |.

2. The gods, the seasons, arrange the sacrifice, the oblation, the sacrificial cake, the ladles (srúc), the implements (-áyudha) of sacrifice; with them go thou by roads that the gods travel, by which they that have sacrificed go to the heavenly (svargá) world.

The word srucas in b is shown by the meter to be probably an intrusion, and it is superfluous as regards the sense. [The excision of havis would give a better cesura.] The verse is, of course, in no way a real jagatt. Kāuç. (81.10) directs it to be used as a sacrificial cake is laid on the breast of the corpse on the funeral pile; the comm. takes no notice of this.

3. Look thou happily (sādhú) along the road of righteousness, by which go the Angirases, well-doers; by those roads go thou to heaven (svarga), where the Adityas feed on honey; spread thou out upon the third firmament.

The last pada we had above as ix. 5. 8 d. Our O.Op.R., and one or two of SPP's mss., read tébhyas at beginning of c. The comm. explains víçrayasva in e by viçritah pratisthito bhava. The metrical description of the Anukr. fits the verse, if we | decline to make two of the three easy resolutions (in c and d) by which the verse reads as five good tristubh pādas].

4. Three eagles (suparná) . . . upon the back of the firmament (náka), at the summit (? vistáp) are set (critá); let the heavenly (svargá) worlds, filled (?) with amrta, yield (duh) food, refreshment to the sacrificer.

The pada-text reads in a māyū tti, which is, I presume, intended to mark the word as a locative: see Prāt. i. 74 and note upon it. The comm., however, understands it as dual, and explains it as meaning māyumantāu çabdakārināu vāyuparjanyāu, because Vāyu and Parjanya are noisy in connection with clouds; for upara, by Nirukta 2. 21, means 'a cloud'; and the three eagles are Agni, Sūrya, and Soma! the general sense being that Vāyu and Parjanya are set over the world of the atmosphere, and the other three over the heavenly world! In c, the translation follows the comm. Land Whitney's P.M.I. and one of SPP's mss. In reading viṣṭās instead of viṣṭħās (p. viostħāḥ); it is glossed with vyāptāḥ pūrnāḥ. Neither this verse nor the preceding is quoted by Kāuç., nor has either a viniyoga indicated in the comm.

5. The sacrificial spoon $(juh\dot{n})$ sustains the sky, the offering spoon $(upabh\dot{r}t)$ the atmosphere; the ladle $(dhruv\dot{a})$ sustains $\lfloor dhr \rfloor$ the earth, the support $(pratisth\dot{a})$; unto me (?) let the worlds, ghee-backed, heavenly $(svarg\dot{a})$, yield every desire for the sacrificer.

The reading and sense at the beginning of c are very doubtful; the pada-mss. all give prationam, as if it were accusative of pratima, most of the samhitā-mss. have pratīmam (our Bs. has pratīmam [!], and P.M. pratīmam; T. has pratīmam), and it is quoted in the comment to the Prāt. (ii. 35: so the ms.) as the same [that is, I presume, in the form pratīmām]. SPP. emends to pratī "mām, since, with his usual disregard of the accent, the comm. so reads, explaining imām as referring to prthivīm; our edition has pratīmām, with the majority of our earlier mss. The translation implies pratīmām, simply on account of superior intelligibility; doubtless the true AV. reading is pratīmām. Simply pratī would rectify the meter, and give a yet better sense. The verse (13+11:12(11?)+11=47) is, of course, no proper jagatī. This and the verse next following are used, according to Kāuç. 81. 7, as the sacrificial utensils are laid about and upon the body, to be burned with it.

6. O ladle, ascend the all-nourishing earth; stride, O offering spoon, unto the atmosphere; O sacrificial spoon, go to the sky (div) in company with the sacrificer; with the little spoon (sruvá) [as] calf, milk thou all the teeming, unirritated quarter:

The mss. in general strangely accent the two vocatives in \mathbf{a} and \mathbf{b} on the final syllable; all ours (save Op.s.m.), and all but one or two of SPP's, have dhruve (-va in samhita); all ours (save Op.), and nearly all SPP's, have upabhrt; all ours [save Bs.] and most of SPP's, however, accent juhu correctly in \mathbf{c} (but P.I. have juha, and M. has juha); both editions make the necessary corrections. At the end, SPP. gives in his text $dhrn\bar{v}jam\bar{a}nah$, with the great majority of his authorities, and with the comm.* Of our mss., only O.s.m.Op.D.R.p.m. give -nah, while O.p.m.R.s.m. have -nah; the reading -nah is, in my opinion, decidedly the preferable one; it is the quarters that kindly make no resistance to being milked. According to the comm., the adhvaryu, at time of sacrifice, holds the upabhrt in his left hand, and makes oblation with the juha in his right. The verse (13+11:12+11+9=56) counts as the Anukr. describes it. Its ritual use was given under the preceding verse. * [The comm. assumes a very harsh change to the direct address and applies ahrn- to the sacrificer: atha pratyakṣavad uktih: evam srugbhir lokatrayam prapito yajamānas tvam ahrnīyamānah.]

7. By fords they cross the advances (pravát) called the great ones, by what [road] the sat ifice-makers, the well-doers, go; there did they set a world for the sacrificer, when they arranged the quarters, the creatures $(bh\bar{u}td)$.

- [Or, 'By crossings (tirthd) they cross (tr).'] The comm. explains pravato mahir tti by prakṛṣṭā mahatīr āpadaḥ . . . evam; it also makes diças and bhūtāni in d the joint subject of dkalpayanta, having before taken adadhus as an imperative (vidadhatu)! Though the verse is obscure, the probabilities are doubtless in favor of the translation as given. [Pāda a seems to be a reminiscence of 1.49, above, or RV. x. 14. 1. Pischel renders the vs., Ved. Stud. ii. 74.]
- 8. The track (dyana) of the Angirases is the eastern fire; the Adityas' track is the householder's fire; the track of the sacrificial gifts is the southern fire; do thou, with thy limbs, whole (sárva), powerful (?çagmá), go unto the greatness of Agni [as] disposed by bráhman.

Both in this verse and in the next, most of our mss. accent falsely $daksin\bar{a}gnis$; SPP. reports it of only one of his, and only in vs. 9. The comm. glosses cagma with $cag substitut{sukhita}$. The verse $cag substitut{11 + 11 + 11 : 13 + 11 = 57}$ counts short of what the Anukr. describes it $cag substitut{ati} cag substitut{12 + 11 + 11 : 13 + 11 = 57}$.

- 9. Let the eastern fire burn (tap) thee happily (çam) in front; let the householder's fire burn happily behind; let the southern fire burn refuge, defense for thee; from the north, from the midst, from the atmosphere, from each quarter, O Agni, protect him round about from what is terrible.
- [Cf. vs. 11.] As to the accent of dakṣiṇāgnis in c, see under vs. 8. The funeral pile is separately, but simultaneously, kindled from each of the sacrificial fires. To make the verse bhurij, we have to commit the violence of scanning agne instead of 'gne in the last pāda (so 12 + 10: 12 + 11 + 12 = 57). [The a of agnts in a and that of agne in e are of course to be elided. The insertion of another $tv\bar{a}$ in b after cam paccāt rectifies the meter. In c we have perhaps to tolerate 5 pre-cesural syllables; but with this reservation and the rectification in b, all 5 pādas are faultless tristubhs.]
- 10. Ye, O Agni, having become back-carrying (?pṛṣṭiváh) horses, shall with most healthful forms $(tan \hat{u})$ carry him that has sacrificed unto the heavenly (svarga) world, where they revel in common revelry with the gods.

The doubtful word in this verse is prstivāhas (as both editions read). All our mss. save one (Op.), and the majority of SPP's, accent prstivāhas, as if nom. sing. of -vāha, apparently by an error the opposite of that committed in vs. 1. Two of our later collated mss. (Op.R.), and one of SPP's by correction [as if to correspond with -vāhas], have açvas before it; and the comm. also reads açvas, with prastivāhas, explaining that prasti is a chariot of the gods, harnessed with three horses, of which one is in front and two behind; and a prastivāha horse is, of course, one that draws such a chariot. [Cf. vi. 102. 2 and note.] [Four] of our mss. [Bs.M.I.T.], but only one of SPP's, leave madanti unaccented at the end; [Whitney's Bp.O.Op.R.K. accent it, as it should be]; the comm. reads instead madema. The Anukr. passes without notice the deficiency of a syllable in b.

11. Burn (tap), O Agni, happily behind, happily in front; burn him happily above, happily below; being one, O Jātavedas, triply disposed, set him collectedly (samyák) in the world of the well-doers.

[Cf. vs. 9.] The adverbs translated 'behind' etc. might with at least equal propriety be rendered 'on the west,' 'on the east,' 'on the north,' and 'on the south.' Nearly all our mss. (not Bs.I.), and half of SPP's [have the impossible] accent jātávedas in c; and a few (including our O.R.) have at the end lokâm. [Although samyág enam must pass for the true AV. reading, one cannot forbear to query whether it has not displaced an original samyák tâm.]

12. Let the fires, kindled, take hold happily; let the Jātavedases, making done (çṛtá) here him that is Prajāpati's [and] sacrificial, not throw him down.

The verse (11+12:12) lacks a syllable of counting as a full bṛhatī. Two of our mss. (O.R.) read in b $j\bar{a}tavedah$ (without accent). The comm. reads sam instead of ϵam at the beginning. | Cf. vs. 13. |

The verse reminds us strongly of 2.4 (which see), where ciksipas without ava has quite a different meaning. Here, cikṣipan with ava means 'let them [the fires, not] throw [any part of the dead man] down'; that is, Agni (in his kindly forms, civas tanvas) is to treat the dead man kindly and not let a foot, the head, or a hand fall off from the funeral pile, but is to consume him completely: cf. the comm., who aptly says, yathā niravaçeşam dahyate tathā. The importance, in Hindu belief, of having every member of the body carried by Agni to the other world for use in the next life is abundantly shown by the hymns: see especially AV. xviii. 3. 9 ab; 2. 24 c; 4. 64; iv. 34. 2: and Whitney, Oriental and Linguistic Studies, i. 56-57. - When, as often happens, the pile of wood is too short for the corpse, the feet will naturally overhang and drop off from the pyre. In my journal of a visit at Benares, under date of Feb. 25, 1889, I find the following: "Saw a cremation, at the Burning Ghat. One foot of the corpse fell off the pyre (which was none too long), and a man tried to put it back on the fire with a bamboo. But failing, he took it by the toe with thumb and fingers and chucked it back." An allusion to an occurrence of this kind is clearly made by the Chandogya Upanishad at vii. 15. 3: atha yady apy enān utkrāntaprāņān cchūlena [cf. the bamboo, above] samāsam vyatisamdahet: nāi 'vāi 'nam brūyuh pitrhā 'sī 'ti etc. |

13. The sacrifice goes, extended, adapting itself (?klp), [taking] him who hath sacrificed, unto the heavenly (svarga) world; let the fires enjoy it, made a whole oblation; let the Jātavedases, making done here him that is Prajārati's [and] sacrificial, not throw him down.

[Cf. vs. 12.] 'Sacrifice' and 'whole oblation' [and 'it,' that is tâm in c,] all refer, of course, to the deceased himself. [Cf. Whitney, Oriental and Linguistic Studies, i. 56: "To burn the body of a deceased person was accordingly an act of solemn sacrifice, which made Agni its bearer to the other world, the future dwelling of its former possessor."—Cf. also Caland's most apposite citation from Bāudhāyana, jātasamskārene 'mam lokam abhijayati; mṛtasamskārenē 'mum lokam, in his Todtengebräuche, pages 174, 178.] The defective meter and incomplete construction of b make it altogether probable that the text is corrupt: tjānānām would help both. The comm. makes no difficulty of taking abhi. eti causatively, = abhigamayati. He paraphrases kalpamānas by iṣṭam pradeçam prāpayitum samarthah. The mss. vary between kalpamānas, kálpamānas, and kalpamānas; all of ours that were collated before printing had kalpā, which we accordingly admitted in our text; but we ought to have emended to kālpa, which SPP. reads. Two of our ss. (O.R.), and one of SPP's, also have jātavedasah at end of d. The verse counts just full atiçakvarī (11 + 10:11 + 12:12 = 56).

14. He that hath sacrificed hath ascended the piled fire, about to fly up to heaven (div) from the back of the firmament (nāka); for him, the well-doer, shines forth from the welkin (nābhas), full of light, the heavenly road, traveled by the gods.

The mss. vary in a between citám and cittám; our text reads the latter; SPP's the former, which is doubtless correct, and which is implied by the translation. The comm. notes that agni is used to mean istakacitah pradeçah, quoting Apast. 25. 4 as authority. According to Kāuç. (80. 52), the verse (the comm. says, vss. 14-15) accompanies the laying of the body supine on the pile; it comes next after 1. 46.

15. Agni thine invoker, Brihaspati thine officiating priest, be Indra on the right thy supervising priest (brahmán); this offered sacrifice, being completed (sámsthita), goeth where is the ancient track of those offered.

Both editions read in c, with nearly all the mss. (all ours save R.s.m., and half of SPP's), huto 'yam, but both are wrong, the emendation to huto 'yam being a matter of simple necessity (see note to Prāt. iii. 55). The verse is the last of the long passage that is used (by Kāuç. 81. 45) at the end of the cremation ceremony (see under vs. 1). It is far from being a regular tristubh; lafter resolving hotā adh- in a and restoring in c the elided vowel, pādas a and b and c scan with smooth cadences as 12 + 11:11; there remains pāda d, with one syllable missing before the cesura: it would be a faultless tristubh if we dared to insert asti (yatrāsti): the comm. understands the equivalent vidyate].

16. Rich in cakes, rich in milk (kṣīrá-) let the dish (carú) take seat here; to the world-makers, the road-makers, do we sacrifice, whoever of you are here, sharing in the oblation of the gods.

[The definition of verses 16-24 as 14:12+11=37 is right by mechanical count; but the metrical character of what precedes the first $avas\bar{a}na$ is wholly misprized by the Anukr.: $car\dot{u}r\ \dot{a}\ ih\dot{a}\ s\bar{\iota}datu$ is doubtless an $anus\underline{\iota}ubh$ pāda; and I am strongly tempted to suspect the loss (by haplography again: cf. iv. 5. 5, note) of a ca before caru, poor as the resulting cadence may be, so that instead of 14 we should have 8+8.]

We had the same refrain above, in 3. 25-35. [Cf. my introduction to hymn 3, p. 847, ¶ 8.] According to Kāuç. (86. 3), the verses beginning with apūpavān (16-24) are used as, in each case, what is specified in the verse (mantroktam) is deposited in the quarters and intermediate quarters (dikṣv aṣṭamadeçeṣu); this is in the ceremony of interment of the bone-relics, next after the use of 4. 57 and 3. 72 (see under the latter). [At this point Whitney compares TA. vi. 8 and cites part of it. The TA. leaves out the depositions in the intermediate directions, SE. etc., and so has only 5 depositionmantras instead of 9. The matter is treated more fully just below.] According to the comm., caru means specifically the contents of the dish here: kumbhyām pakva odanah; and ihā signifies: asmin samīcayanakarmany asthnām samīpe paçcimadigbhāge; the others are set in the remaining half-directions, and one in the middle. [Observe that the AV. begins the depositions with the west (so the comm., at p. 1978, and at 20116 just cited), while the TA. begins, as noted below, with the east.]

[As part of the requisites for performing the pitṛnidhāna, Kāuç. (83. 2) prescribes eleven dishes $(car\bar{u}n)$. According to Kāuç. 86. 2, two dishes $(car\bar{u}^*)$ are to be deposited, with our 4. 57 and 3. 72, near the head of the human figure formed with the bones (note to 3. 25); next, eight more (Kāuç. 86. 3) in the eight directions, with 8 vss. of our present sequence, that is, 4. 16-23; and then the eleventh and last dish in the center with our 4. 24, according to Kāuç. 86. 4, where we are to read (see under vs. 24) madhye pavantam (for pacantam), in the center [a dish] with water.'] *[So we must read, with three of Bloomfield's mss., as Caland suggests, Todtengebräuche, p. 152, and as the AV. comm. makes plain at 22419 (carudvayam), though not at 17623.]

| TA. vi. 8 reads thus : apūpāvān ghṛtāvāng carúr é 'há sīdatū 'ttabhnuván pṛthivim dyấm utó 'pári: yonikṛtaḥ pathikṛtaḥ saparyata yé devanām ghṛtábhāgā ihá sthá: eṣā te yamasādane svadhā ni dhīyate gṛhè sāu : dáçākṣarā [:] tām rakṣasva etc. etc. — This set of mantras is metrical as far as grhé inclusive, 7(8?) + 8 + 12:12 + 11:8 + 8; then prose. It accompanies the deposition of the cakes with a dish of ghee to the east of the bone-relics, and is followed by four other sets, which are not given in full in TA., but may, with the help of Sayana, be reconstructed as ūhas of this set. order of deposition is (strangely) pradaksina, that is, from E. to S. to W. to N. and center. In the first set (used at the east) the words to be replaced are ghṛtávān, ghṛtábhāgās, and dáçākṣarā; and they are replaced in the second set (south) by cṛtávān, crtábhāgās, and çatākṣarā respectively; in the third set (west), by kṣīrávān, kṣīrábhāgās, and sahásrākṣarā; in the fourth set (north), by dádhivān, dádhibhāgās, and ayútākṣarā; and in the fifth set (center), by mádhumān, mádhubhāgās, and ácyutākṣarā. Thus the mantra of the last set would begin apūpāvān mādhumān etc., for the deposition of cakes is common to that of all the dishes (so AV. comm., p. 2025: apūpasāhityain sarveṣāin carūṇāin sādhāraṇam).

- 17. Rich in cakes, rich in curds (dádhi-), let the dish etc. etc.
- 18. Rich in cakes, rich in drops (drapsá-), let the dish etc. etc.

Our O. reads drapsa., [and so does one of SPP's mss.]. According to the comm., drapsa signifies "particles of curds" (dadhikanās).

- 19. Rich in cakes, rich in ghee, let the dish etc. etc.
- 20. Rich in cakes, rich in flesh (mānsá-), let the dish etc. etc.
- 21. Rich in cakes, rich in food, let the dish etc. etc.
- 22. Rich in cakes, rich in honey, let the dish etc. etc.
 - 23. Rich in cakes, rich in sap, let the dish etc. etc.
 - 24. Rich in cakes, rich in water (ápa-), let the dish etc. etc.

Instead of apavant in this verse, the comm. has a second time apūpavant, explaining that it means cakes of a different material. In the five dishes of TA. (vi. 8) are contained respectively (besides the cakes), ghee, boiled flesh (crta), milk, curds, and honey. [Caland's suggestion of 'pavantam for pacantam at Kāuç. 86. 4 (see WZKM. viii. 369) brings the text of Kāuç. into harmony with apavāns of this vs.: cf. ¶ 3 of the notes to vs. 16.]

25. What vessels covered with cakes the gods maintained for thee, be they for thee rich in swadhā, rich in honey, dripping with ghee.

This is a [precise] repetition of 3.68 above. While most of the mss. quote it, as usual, by the first words with $tty \ \ell k\bar{a}$ added, two (O.R.) write it in full. According to the comm., the verse follows the deposition of the nine dishes; and it adds: "one should put on mixed grains"; the Kauç makes no mention of it.

26. What grains I scatter along for thee, mixed with sesame, rich in svadhā, be they for thee uprising (udbhū), prevailing; them let king Yama approve for thee.

This verse, differing from 3. 69 and 4.43 by a single word (udbhvis instead of vibhvis), is written out in full by all the mss. The comm. has, instead of udbhvis, abhvis, glossing it with mahatyas. [For a possible ritual use of the verse, see under 3.69.]

27. A more abundant inexhaustibleness.

The comm. adds this to the preceding verse as a part of it; but the Anukr. and the mss. reckon it as an independent verse.

28. The drop leaped (skand) toward the earth, the sky (div), toward both this lair ($y\delta ni$) and the one that was of old; of the drop that goes about toward the same lair do I make oblation, after seven invocations ($h\delta tr\bar{a}$).

The verse is RV. x. 17. 11, and found also in several other texts: VS. (xiii. 5), TS. (iv. 2. 8², 95), TA. (vi. 6. 1), MS. (ii. 5. 10), ÇB. (vii. 4. 1²°). RV. differs from our text by reading in a prathamān anu dyūn; all the rest agree throughout with AV., save that TS.TA. have tṛtīyam for samānām in c. [In MS. this verse stands between our ix. 4. 5 and 4. 4, as already noted under ix. 4. 5.] Kāuç. does not apply the verse, but it is found (as above) in the funeral ceremony of TA., next after our 4. 35 below, being addressed to any overflow of the offered dish of curds and honey. The comm. explains drapsa by somarasasthitodakakaṇa, and teaches that such a drop, or the soma itself, is here praised, in view of the enjoyment of the fruit of their soma-sacrifices by the Fathers in heaven; it also points out that in ÇB. (vii. 4. 1²°) this drop is praised as the sun (āditya). In Vāit. (16. 17) the verse (with RV. x. 17. 12, 13 and one or two others) is used in the agnistoma ceremony, with offerings to the soma-drops (vāipruṣa), on occasion of the overflow of soma.

29. A hundred-streamed Vāyu, a heaven-finding sun (?arká), wealth, do those men-beholders look upon; whoso bestow (pṛ) and present (pra-yam) always, they milk a sacrificial gift having seven mothers.

The verse corresponds to RV. x. 107. 4, which differs by reading havis at end of b, and sanigame at end of c]; it also reads duhate in d and puts the word after dikininam; the RV. hymn is one in praise of generous givers. Nrcaksasas in b might of course be gen. sing. (so Grassmann); both translators [Grassmann and Ludwig] take saptamātaram as 'mother of seven,' which is against the accent; the comm. takes it properly as possessive, but gives three different guesses at its value. The comm. takes the in b as 'for thy sake,' against the accent. Kāuç. does not quote the verse; the comm. says that it and the next are used together on watering the bone-relics with water falling from a vessel with a hundred holes; and these hundred holes it regards as referred to by the first word of the verse.

30. They milk a receptacle $(k \delta q a)$, a jar with four orifices, $i d\bar{a}$ [as] milch-cow rich in honey, in order to well-being; reveling refreshment, Aditi among the people, injure thou not, O Agni, in the highest firmament $(v y \hat{o} man)$.

The first half-verse is found also in TB. iii. 7. 4¹⁶ and Ap. i. 13. 1, both of which read útsam for kóçam, devim for dhenúm, and suvarvidam for svastáye. The second half occurs in VS. (xiii. 49 c, d), TS. (in iv. 2. 10²), [MS., in ii. 7. 17, page 102¹⁵], and TA. (in vi. 6. 1); they all agree in reading for c ghrtám dúhānām dditim jánāya, for which our text is a corruption, capable of only mechanical translation. The comm., in a, still thinks of four of the holes in the hundred-holed vessel; táā is either the earth or the name of a certain cow. In the funeral ceremony of TA. (as above), our c, d, with [the correspondent of] our 36 a, b below as first half, is used next after our vs. 28, and for the same purpose. The Anukr. does not heed that the first two pādas are jagatī.

31. This garment god Savitar gives thee to wear (bhr); putting on that, which is $t\bar{a}rpy\dot{a}$, do thou go about in Yama's realm.

Some of the mss. (including our O.Op.R.) read $dad\bar{a}tu$ in b. Our Op. accents $t\bar{a}rpyam$, and the word is variously accented by half of SPP's authorities. The comm. first explains the word as $tarpan\bar{a}rham\ pr\bar{\imath}tikaram$, and then adds: 'or, made of a kind of grass called $trp\bar{a}$, [and] anointed with ghee.' For the ritual use of the verse, in company with 2.57, see under the latter verse. The comm. says only that it is addressed to the garment when the dead man is wrapped up.

32. The grains became a milch-cow; the sesame became her calf; upon her, unexhausted, one lives in Yama's realm.

The mss. are a little at variance as to the accent of tilo 'bhavat; but the majority give $til\partial$, which is accepted in both editions. The comm. reads at the end $j\bar{\imath}v\bar{a}ti$. The ritual application of this verse and its successor was given with that of 3. 69 above; the comm. says here that with vss. 32-34 grains mingled with sesame are put upon the bones. The first pāda is one syllable short.

33. Be these, O so-and-so, thy milch-kine that yield what is desired; variegated, white, of like form, of different form, with sesame as calf, let them wait upon (upa-sthā) thee there.

One of our mss. (Op.), and three or four of SPP's authorities, accent tilavatsās in d. The comm. has bhavanti in b. The verse (8+7:11+11=37) is not at all an uparistādbrhatī, but rather an irregular āstārapaākti.

34. Grains variegated, yellow, white, grains black, red, [be] thy milch-kine here; with sesame as calf, yielding (duh) him refreshment, be they ever unresisting.

The verse is found also in TA. (in vi. 7. 1), with its first half abbreviated to dnār dhānā hārinīr ārjunīh santu dhenāvah; and it accents tila- in c (with our Op. and one or two of SPP's mss.). Our O. Land apparently also P.I., with Lone or two of SPP's mss., also accent enis. Only a minority of the mss. (including our Bs.p.m. and Op.) have at the end-ntīh, the rest-ntī. Here and in vs. 36, most of the mss. accent anapasphūr, and accordingly both edited texts accept it; but the readings ought unquestionably to be emended to anapasphūr- (which is given here by LTA., Poona ed., our O.R., and one or two of SPP's mss.; in 36, by none); the accentuation in this part of the text is more than usually faulty. The comm. stupidly declares apasphūranā = nāça, and the participle therefore = [avinaçvaryah or] akṣīṇāḥ. Las alternative rendering, W. suggests 'not refractor' Lw's 'here' seems to be meant as (the hardly licit) version of the accentless asya: Weber notices the wild incongruity (absent in the TA. version) between asya in a, te in b, and asmāt in c.

35. In Vāiçvānara I offer this oblation, a thousand-fold, hundred-streamed fountain (útsa); it supports (bhr) [our] father, grandfathers; [our] great-grandfathers it supports, swelling.

That is, with fatness or abundance (pinv). The verse is found also at the beginning of TA. vi. 6; but this rectifies the meter of b by reading sāhasrām útsam çatādhāram etām; and its c, d are not less different: tāsminn eṣā pitāram pitāmahām prāpitāmaham bibharat pinvamāne. One of our mss. (Op.) also accents prāpitāmahān. In TA. (as noticed above) the verse is next followed by our 4.28, in the relic-interment ceremony; according to Kāuç. (82.22), it is used on the second day after cremation, with an oblation on the back of a vānyavatsā * cow, after causing her to be milked on the site of the funeral pile. The comm. [p. 209^{18}] calls the cow anyavatsā (only by an error of the editor?). [If error, it is an easy one, for the comm's words as combined are dahanasthānasamnidhāv anyavatsāyāh: but anyavatsā occurs in the comm to AB. vii. 2, mentioned below.] The verse (11+9:11+12=43) is hardly fit to be reckoned a tristubh.

*| Primarily, vānyà, abhivānyà, apivānyà, nivānyà, as gerundives of van, mean 'to be won over to or wonted to': abhivānyavatsá is 'a calf that has to be wonted to' its new or adoptive mother. Such a word as the last, with bahuurihi accent, means '(a cow) possessing such a calf,' and by inference, 'a cow that has lost her own calf': so abhivānyavatsā, AB. vii. 2, and Hiraņyakeçi-sūtra, in Caland's Pitrmedha-sūtras, p. 588; apivānyàvatsā, Kāuç., twice?, see below; nivānyàvatsā, ÇB. xii. 5. 14. — These possessives are then abbreviated, and we find abhivānyā at TB. i. 6.84 and four times in the Pitrmedhasūtras (see Caland's Index), and nivānvā at CB. ii. 6. 16, both words with the same meaning as abhivānyàvatsā, but coming to it secondarily; and also vānyà at TB. ii. 6. 162, p. 676 Poona, glossed by mrtavatsā dhenuh, and ApCS. viii. 15. 17, as equivalent of the not quotable vānyàvatsā. — After putting to paper the explanations just given I find them confirmed by Nārāyaṇa, to whom I was brought by Aufrecht's valuable note upon his excerpt from Sāyaņa's comment on AB. vii. 2 (p. 377): Nārāyaṇa, in his comm. on AÇS. iii. 10. 17 says abhiwānyawatsā nāmā 'nyawatsena dohanīyā: abhivānyo vatso yasyāh sā 'bhivānyavatsā: abhivānyo 'bhivananiya ity arthah. — In Kăuç. 82. 22 there can be little doubt (cf. BR. i. 347) that we have to read apivānyavatsām after ādahane ca; and in like manner, at 80. 25, apivānyavatsāyās: with the latter passage is to be compared ÇB. ii. 6. 16, which describes the same ceremony; see also Caland, Todtengebräuche, p. 151. The use of the milk of a cow whose calf is dead is in keeping with the use of cows that are old, ugly, barren, etc.: cf. CB. xii. 5. 14 (dead man's agnihotra) and Caland, l.c., p. 173, p. 20.

36. A thousand-streamed, hundred-streamed fountain, unexhausted, expanded upon the back of the sea, yielding refreshment, unresisting, do the Fathers wait on at their will (? svadhábhis).

The first half-verse stands in VS. Lxiii. 49 TS. Liv. 2. 10² TA. Lvi. 6. 1 MS. Lii. 7. 17, p. 102¹⁴ as the first two padas of a verse of which our 30 c, d above is second half; in all, the first word is imam followed in VS.MS. by sahasram, in TS.TA. by samudram, before catadh; all of course omit the evidently intruded aksitam*, and end b with madhye, VS. having before it sarirasya, and TS.TA. bhuvanasya. Some of the mss. (including our O.[?]Op.R.K.) have in d the false accent upåsate. The verse exceeds the proper measure of a tristubh by the amount of Aksitam in a. By Kāuç. (86.5), it accompanies a sprinkling with water; [Keç. says that it is the bones that are so sprinkled; so also the comm., who adds that it is done with a very leaky old dish (sahasracchidra-pātra): cf. Caland, l.c., p. 173. The sprinkling is part of the dhuvana ceremony, l.c., p. 137.] *[The rationale of the intrusion becomes clear, I think, if we compare with our a, b the first pāda of iv. 27. 2, útsam áksitam viácanti yé sádā.]

37. This funeral pile (?kásāmbu) [is] piled with piling; come, ye [his] fellows, look down at it; this mortal goeth to immortality; make ye houses for him according to his kindred.

A number of the mss. (including our P.M.I.) read in a cittám, as in 14 a above. The pada-text at end of b is paçyata: ā: ita. Some of the mss. make a blundering insertion of signs of kampa in mártyo 'yám in c. O. has at the end -sámbudham. The comm. shows its usual skill in explaining kasāmbu; it means kasāç cā 'mbūni ca, kasa being by abbreviation from kīkasa, and = asthi! Kāuç. (86. 1) has the verse accompany the viewing of the bone-relics which are now in the trench, says Keç. by the 'fellows' of the deceased; the comm. says that either the relatives or all are to look at them as deposited in the hollow, while the manager recites the verse. The meter of the last pāda is redundant, and suggests emendation of the closing word. The vs., with its cayanena citam and gṛhān (cf. ÇB. as cited below under vs. 55), seems clearly to refer to a grave-mound; but the ritual use, with its trench, is in flat contradiction with such reference.

38. Be thou just here, winning riches, with thought here, with ability here; be thou here, very heroic, vigor-bestowing, not smitten away.

The comm. understands iha citta iha kratuh as four independent words. According to Kāuç. (87.21), the verse is made to accompany the taking of one of two lighted sticks of wood (see under 1.56), and setting it up in the dirt (see under 2.34). That this was its original office may be questioned; perhaps it is rather an invocation of the ancestor for help to his descendants.

39. These waters, rich in honey, satisfying (abhi-trp) son [and] grand-son, yielding to the Fathers svadhā [and] amṛta—let the heavenly waters gratify both sides.

That is, the Fathers on the one side, and their living descendants on the other. Some of the mss. (including our O.R.) accent abhi in a. The abhi could extremely well be spared, and its omission would make the verse a good āstārapaākti with triṣṭubh close in c and d. According to Kāuç., the next verse is used in the pinḍapitryajāa while pouring water on the fire (88. 23), after the presentation of the pinḍas, and this one while then rinsing the mouth (88. 24).

As to vs. 40, see p. xcvii, note.

40. O waters, send forth (pra-hi) Agni unto the Fathers; this sacrifice of mine let the Fathers enjoy; they who attach themselves unto a sitting refreshment, may they confirm to us wealth having all heroes.

A corresponding verse is found in HGS. (in ii. 10. 6), reading thus: āpo devih pra hinutā gnim etam sijām pitaro no jusantām: māsī mām ūrjam uta ye bhajante te no rayim sarvavīram ni yacchantu; and the comparison appears to convict our unintelligible third pāda of being a very gross corruption. [Observe that the word preceding āsīnām ends in m, and cf. the cases assembled under xviii. 2.3.] The comm. has no difficulty in explaining 'a sitting refreshment' as "a pinda set upon the barhis." Both editions read at the end yachān, but all the mss. save one of SPP's read yachāt; the comm. has -ān. The Anukr. does not heed that the first pāda is jagatī. For the ritual application, see under the preceding verse. [With a, cf. 2.4 d, above.]

41. They kindle the immortal one, oblation-carrying, ghee-loving; he knoweth the deposited deposits, the Fathers that are gone away to the distances.

The comm., with his usual disregard of the accent, takes ghrtapriyam as from ghrta + priya [prītikaram ājyam yasya]. For the ritual use as prescribed by Kāuç. 87. 22, see under 2. 34, one of the verses that accompanies it. But the verse is used also, by Kāuç. 86. 18, at the end of the ceremony of interment on "making the devouring (samkasuka) fire blaze up"; this the comm. does not report in his statement of viniyoga. [Caland appears to be right in thinking that the pratīka samindhate means samindhate samkasukam, xii. 2. 11, and not our verse here. See under xii. 2. 11 and note the free use of vss. from xii. 2. in the sūtras immediately following 86. 18.]

42. What stirabout for thee, what rice-dish, what flesh I offer (ni-pṛ) to thee, be they for thee rich in svadhā, rich in honey, dripping with ghee.

The second half-verse is identical with 3. 68 c, d, above. Nearly all the mss. (of ours, all save Op.) accent mantham in a; both editions read mantham. The comm. again [see under 2. 30] notes the technical sense of ni-pr: niparanam nāma pitryopavītinā parācīnapāninā pitrartham coditadravyasya praksepah. By Kāuç. 84. 6, the verse accompanies an offering of the articles mentioned, in the hut (vimita) in the preparation for interment of the relics; the comm. overlooks this. [For the ceremony, cf. Caland, Todtengebräuche, p. 137.]

43. What grains I scatter along for thee, mixed with sesame, rich in svadhā, be they for thee abundant, prevailing; them let king Yama approve for thee.

This is a repetition of 3.69, being distinguished as such (and not of 4.26) by the words $tti \ p \bar{u}rv\bar{a}$, instead of $tty \ ek\bar{a}$, after the pratika in most of the mss. Nevertheless, the two $samhit\bar{a}$ -mss. of ours (O.R.) which give it in full, read $udbhv\bar{t}s$ in c, the word in 4.26, instead of $vibhv\bar{t}s$, that in 3.69; and the comm. also states the repetition to be of 4.26; and SPP's text reads accordingly. [For the ritual, see under 3.69.]

44. This [is] the former, the after down-track, by which thy former Fathers went away; they who are the forerunners, the followers (? abhiṣác) of it, they carry thee to the world of the well-doing.

Our reading abhisācas is an emendation, almost every ms. giving abhisācas (our Op. has abhisācāk, and also one [or two] of SPP's authorities); -sāc- is of course intended, and the comm. gives it. SPP's text follows the mss. The comm. explains niyāna as the wagon (çakata) on which the corpse is carried to the funeral pile; and the 'forerunners' and 'followers' as the oxen that draw it, in front and on all sides: which is doubtless not at all the true sense; he also reads vahantu in d. The verse is one of the harints [Kāuç. 80. 35; 82. 31 note]: see under 1. 61. It lacks (in a) a syllable of being a full triṣṭubh. Its second pāda is identical with 1. 54 b.

- 45. On Sarasvatī do the pious call; on Sarasvatī, while the sacrifice is being extended; on Sarasvatī do the well-doers call; may Sarasvatī give what is desirable to the worshiper.
- 46. On Sarasvatī do the Fathers call, arriving at the sacrifice on the south; sitting on this barhis, do ye revel; assign thou to us food free from disease.
- 47. O Sarasvatī, that wentest in company with the songs, with the svadhās, O goddess, reveling with the Fathers, assign thou to the sacrificer here a portion of refreshment of thousand-fold value, abundance of wealth.

These three verses are a repetition of 1.41-43 [see notes thereon], quoted by tti tis-rāh in most mss., but written out by our O.R. (both accenting dakṣiṇā in 46 b).

48. Thee, being earth, I make enter into earth; may god Dhātar lengthen out our life-time; let him that goeth very far away be a finder of good for you; then may the dead (pl.) come to be $(sam-bh\bar{u})$ among the Fathers.

The first pāda is identical with that of xii. 3. 22, and hence the comm. here makes the blunder of reporting this verse as quoted by Kāuç. 61. 30,* whereas it is evidently the other; and he explains the meaning to be that earth is smeared upon the vessel [porridge-pot], which is entirely out of place in this connection, the analogy being with our own phrase "earth to earth." The problematic $p\acute{a}r\bar{a}par\bar{a}it\bar{a}$ [p. $p\acute{a}r\bar{a}opar\bar{a}it\bar{a}$] in c is rendered strictly according to its form, as if composed of $p\acute{a}r\bar{a}-par\bar{a}+etr$; the Pet. Lexx. render it as "one who departs after another or in due order"; but I cannot see how this meaning is arrived at. The comm. reads $par\bar{a}paret\bar{a}s$ (our O. gives -retas), and explains it as $d\bar{u}radeqam$ $par\bar{a}\bar{n}mukham$ ito $pat\bar{a}h$. The comm. also, against pada-text and accent, understands pada in d. * Cf. p. 869, ¶ 7. |

49. Start ye (du.) forward hither, wipe off that which the portents (?abhibhā) have said there of you; from that come ye, inviolable ones, to this which is better, being bestowers here on me, a giver to the Fathers.

This is highly obscure, and the second half-verse, especially, is rendered only mechanically, and even then with substitution of vástyas where nearly all the mss. have váçtyas or vaçtyas (our M.I.D., and one of SPP's, vaçāyas, which our text, quite unsuccessfully, emends to vaçāya); SPP. admits váçtyas in his text; the comm. has vástyas. According to Kāuç. (82.40), the verse is addressed to the two kine (the comm. says, the two that have drawn the hearse): the direction is iti gāvāv upayachati; it is perhaps intended as a purification of them after the ill-omened service which they have performed. In c the vocative, aghnyāu, is an emendation, SPP. reading with the mss. aghnyāu; but the accentuation of the mss. is here very unauthoritative; the comm. also takes the word as vocative. Nearly all our mss. (all save O.Op.R.) leave ūcus in b without accent. The comm. is not ashamed to derive abhibhās formally from abhi-bhū, and to explain it by abhibhāvakās or dūṣakās; his general explication of the pāda, as intimating a reproace brought against the pair for having been engaged in such business, is doubtless good. The defective meter suggests a corruption of the text. The comm. takes iha and bhojanāu in d as two independent words, and renders bhojanāu by bhojayitārāu or pālayitārāu. Two of SPP's mss. also accent the words separately. On his margin Whitney pencilled the memorandum, "Recast this note." In Ppp., immediately after our xvii. 1. 30, comes this verse. Its appearance in that place is possibly to be interpreted as a hint at the existence in Ppp. of our book xviii., of which, however, there are no other traces in Ppp. save the straggling verses 1. 46 (in ii.), 2. 13 (in xix.), 2. 17 and 3. 56 (in xx.).

50. This sacrificial gift hath come excellently to us, given by him, well-milking, vigor-bestowing; old age, coming close to (?upa-pṛc) them living in youth, shall lead these away together unto the Fathers.

According to Kāuç. (82.41, the next rule to that which quotes the preceding verse), the verse accompanies the giving or receiving: comm. of a daksinā or sacrificial gift of at least ten kine | the comm. says one |, at the close of the after-cremation ceremonies. But this gives no clew to the meaning of the second half-verse, whose connection with the first remains very obscure. The two editions agree in their text throughout, but upaprīcatī is obviously an inadmissible accentuation, requiring emendation to upapricati; and it is against all rule to accent any but the last of two or more prefixes to the same verb: hence upasamparānayāt — which accent is given by | two or | three of SPP's authorities, and which he therefore had good reason for adopting (it is also given by our O.Op.R., all collated after our publication). | If I understand the Collation Book, O.R. accent upasám párā. Three of our pada-mss. (Bp.Kp.D., but D. not accented) make the anomalous division upaosám: parānayāt; the other (Op.) has upaosampárānayāt, which is the regular and proper form: see Prāt. iv. 2 and note, and iv. 7. In c, our Bp.D. (but D. without accent) have the strange reading yāú: váne, and Op. yāuvánesu; while Bs. | O.K. | also accent yāu váne, as do two of SPP's mss. (three others yāuváne, and only two, with our M.T.R.s.m., yāúvane).

51. This barhis I bring forward for the Fathers; a living, higher one I strew for the gods; that do thou ascend, O man, becoming sacrificial; let the Fathers acknowledge thee who art departed.

A corresponding verse is found in TA. (in vi. 7. 2), which reads in a bharema, for b develohyo fivanta úttaram bharema, for c, d táttvam ārohāso medhyo bháva [Poona ed. bhávam*] yaména tvám yamyà samvidānáh: its text is plainly in part corrupt. Bhávan in c is an emendation, all our mss. save one (Op.), and the majority of SPP's, reading bhavan, as if mixing the word up with bhava, imperative. The comm. reads in b fivan. Neither this verse nor its predecessor is to be called with any reason a jagatī; [but 50 c, d and 51 c have jagatī cadences]. This has the same pratīka, so far as concerns the first two words, as 1. 46, and it is impossible to tell which of the two verses is quoted by Kāuç.; but the comm. declares the first half of this one to be used as darbha-grass is strewn upon the wood of the funeral pile, and the second half as the corpse is laid supine upon the grass thus strewn: that is to say, this verse is intended in Kāuç. 80. 51; [so also Caland, WZKM. viii. 368]. *[The mss. vary between bhavam and bhava and the TA. comm. understands bhava.]

52. Thou hast sat upon this barhis, thou hast become sacrificial; let the Fathers acknowledge thee who art departed; collect thy body according to its joints; I arrange thy members with brahman.

The reading yathāparú in c is an emendation, made alike by both editions;* the comm. has it, but all the mss. give yathāpurú—which is perhaps not altogether untranslatable: 'according to its muchness.' We should expect in b rather jānan than another jānantu (51 d). The verse evidently belongs with its predecessor [used at 80.51], but is entirely separated from it in ritual use, accompanying, according to Kāuç. 85.25, [the assembling of the bones so as to form a human figure, as explained under 3.25]; next after it are quoted 2.24, 26 and 3.25-37. Pāda b has an extra syllable. [With regard to the place of the vs., see p. 870, ¶ I, and p. 870, end.]

*[In support of the emendation, SPP. adduces ix. 5. 4, with its yathāparú and paruçás. I think that yathāparú (as against yathāpurú) is strongly supported by the sense (much less so by the mss.) of the two Kāuçikan passages which give the ritual for ix. 5. 4 and for this vs. respectively, to wit, 64. 10 and 85. 25. In the latter passage the mss. have yathāparuh samcinoti (one, -puru), and Keçava says yathāparu, and Bloomfield emends to yathāparu; but I am not quite sure that it is necessary, for yathāparus may not be bad Sanskrit.]

53. King leaf is the cover of the dishes; the strength of refreshment, the power, vigor, hath come to us, dispensing $(vi-dh\bar{a})$ life-time to the living (pl.), in order to length of life for a hundred autumns.

The comm. reads in a, against the pada-text and the metrical requirement, the later abbreviated pidhanam. It understands by parna ('leaf') the tree so called, or the palāça-tree; and this may be correct; this tree, it says, owing to its sacrificial quality, is the overlord of trees. | Cf. the synonyms brahmapādapa (in Hemacandra) and yājūika, viprapriyā (in Rājanighantu): cf. also brahma vāi palāçah, ÇB. xiii. 8. 41. | It takes arjas as a nominative, which makes a decidedly easier reading, but is unsupported by Vedic usage elsewhere. Only two or three mss. (including our Op.) read in c vidádhat, the rest vidadhat (and the pada-mss. viodadhat, which is absurd | cf. note to xiii. 3. 17 |, but rather indicates that the word was correctly viewed as a participle); and SPP. accepts vidadhat, p. viodadhat, because the comm. supports the majority of the mss. by understanding vi dadhat. The true reading is, beyond all reasonable question, vidádhat, as our text gives it. The meter seems to be viewed by the Anukr. as 10+11:8+11 = 40; it is rather too irregular to merit a name. Its use * in Kāuç. 786.6) follows that of vs. 36 above; it accompanies the laying of middle-foliage (? madhyamapalāçās; down upon the offering dishes: the comm. says, more explicitly, upon the nine dishes spoken of in vss. 16-24, and also upon the perforated plates (madhyapalāçapatrāir ācchādayet); Keçava's explanation corresponds closely with this.

- * The palāça has ternate leaves, from 8 to 16 inches long: Roxburgh, Flora Indica, p. 540, Calc. ed. 1874. By madhyama parņa or palāça is meant the middle one of any of these ternate groups; the middle one is especially fit for holy use by reason of its likeness to a sacrificial ladle: TB. i. 6. 103, madhyaména parņēna juhoti: srūg ghy $\delta \bar{a} \delta \cdot$ cf. also Sāyaṇa on TS. i. 8. 6, p. 1167, Poona. I am indebted to Caland's excellent paragraphs on this subject, ZDMG. liii. 212.—The "nine dishes" are the last nine of the eleven whose deposition is explained above, under vs. 16. The "plates" are the leaky old dishes noticed above under vs. 36.
- 54. The share of refreshment that generated this man;—the stone attained (gam), the overlordship of the foods;—him praise ye, all-befriended, with blations; may that Yama make $(dh\bar{a})$ us to live further.

The second half-verse is identical with 3.63 c, d above. The translation of the first half is purely mechanical, the sense being wholly obscure. The comm. renders bhagás by sambhaktā, and ūrjās by annasyā 'sthisamīpasthāpitacarulakṣaṇasya, yamas being the implied subject; then the 'stone' is the one used to cover the same annāni or cara-A couple of our mss. (O.R.) and one of SPP's read in b açvå 'nnām; several (including our O.Op.R.) have adhipatyam. Some of ours (O.R.K.) and three of SPP's leave jagāma without an accent, which seems better, and is implied in the translation. One of SPP's gives bhāgám in a. In Kāuç. (86.7) the verse is used next after 53, and accompanies the covering of the same dishes with stones - or, the comm. adds, with bricks. | Cf. Caland, Todtengebräuche, p. 157. | It lacks a syllable in a. Our edition leaves viçvamitrās in this verse without accent, on the authority of two of our mss. (Bp.M.); all SPP's give viçvámitrās, p. viçváomitrāh, as in 3.63, and he accepts this in his text. The two verses ought of course to be made to agree, but there is little reason for preferring either nominative or vocative | the comm. takes the doubtful word as voc. |. | If the Viçvāmitras be not meant here and at 3.63, then Weber's observations reported under 3. 16 lose some of their basis.

55. As the five clans $(m\bar{a}nav\dot{a})$ scattered $(va\dot{p})$ a dwelling $(harmy\dot{a})$ for Yama, so do I scatter a dwelling, that there may be many of me (?).

A corresponding verse is found in TA. (in vi. 6. 2); it reads hārmyám in a and c, and evám in c; and for d vátha 'sāma jtvaloké bhūrayas, which, however unmetrical, is at least capable of being translated, while this can hardly be claimed for our d. All the mss. read at the end dsatas, save one of SPP's, which follows the comm. in giving dsata, as is read in both editions — in ours, purely as an emendation. The comm. makes no difficulty of taking dsata as = $sy\bar{a}ta$, and explaining "that ye my relatives may be numerous"; but that would be dsatha; and dsata has no grammatical standing of any kind, and hence is to be rejected. The comparison with TA. at least shows that the pāda is corrupt. The comm. foolishly divides evāvapāmi in c into eva āvapāmi. Three of our pada-mss. (not Op.) most absurdly divide áva-pan in b; it is strange that SPP. reports nothing of the kind from his authorities. By Kāuç. (86. 11) the verse is used next after 2. 50 etc., with the direction iti sameritya ('on finishing the pile'?); the comm. says that with it they are to divide (kuṭṭay) leftwise, with sticks or bricks, the part of the cemetery on which the pile stood: in TA. it accompanies the "placing in the jar [of relics] the drugs called sarvāuṣadhi" (hence, perhaps, the use of vap in the verse, as they are strewn in); | but cf. Caland, Todtengebräuche, p. 149 |.

[On samçritya (?) and kuṭṭayeyus. — Kāuç. 86. 10 reads: idam id vā u na (xviii. 2. 50) upa sarpa (3. 49) asāu hā (4. 66) iti cinvanti. Sūtra 11 continues: yathā yamāya (4. 55) iti samçritya. Upon 10, Keç. says: çilābhir (? çalākābhir ?) viṣamābhir iṣṭakābhir vā prasavyam cinvanti çmaçānam. And the AV. comm., in giving the ritual for 2. 50 (p. 115) and 3. 49 (p. 161) and 4. 66 (p. 233), says: çmaçānadeçam viṣamasamkhyākābhih çalākābhir iṣṭakābhir vā prasavyam cinuyāt, using the very same words in all three passages, save that he leaves out the second word in the second passage. Then, for 4. 55 (p. 224) he says: çalākābhir iṣṭakābhir vā prasavyam citam çmaçānapradeçam kuṭṭayeyuḥ. — In all these passages, çmaçāna or çmaçāna-deça or -pradeça must mean the mound which they heap (ci) over the buried bones: cf. ÇB. xiii. 8. 11 athā 'smāi çmaçānam kurvanti, gṛhān vā prajāānam vā ('or as a monument'), and Harisvāmin's comment, p. 101715, çmaçānam prasiddham asthi-samrakṣa-vāstu; the mound is, as with us, not quite knee-high, ÇB. xiii. 8. 312, adhojānu. — The meaning of our comm. on 4. 55, accordingly, seems to be: 'after the mound has been heaped up (citam), they should pat (kuttay) it with splints of wood or with bricks, [going around it, as they pat it,] to the left.'—If this be right and if kuttay is the comm's version of the word after iti in satra II, then I suspect that Bloomfield has not hit the right reading in the printed text. Whitney's 'on finishing the pile' would call for samsthāpya; but samenathya is much nearer to the meaning of kuttay and also to the probable intention of Bl's mss., and I would accordingly read samenathya in place of the printed sameritya. Root enath means 'thrust, push,' in their ordinary and in their obscene senses, and here, with sam, 'to make [the mound] compact or firm by striking or beating or patting,' as a modern gravemaker pats the mound with his spade to give it shape and firmness.

56. Wear (bhr) thou this gold, which thy father wore before; of thy father, going to heaven (svargá), do thou wipe off the right hand.

The majority of mss. read pitur in c, some pitur, and hardly any (of ours, only Op.) pitur. Many of ours have mṛdhdhi in d: see Prāt. i. 94 and note. The comm. strangely gives pipṛhi cf. xiii. 1. 1, note in a (though abibhar in b!). According to Kāuç. 80. 46, 47, the first half-verse is used as the manager takes with the right hand some gold worn by the deceased, smears it with ghee, and passes it to the eldest son; the second half-verse, as he makes him wipe off his (of course, the father's) right hand; the comm. states it thus: "with the first half he makes the oldest son heat (ādīpayet: as if the comm. read in Kāuç. ādīpayati instead of ādāp-) in the fire gold found in the hand of the deceased; with the other half the son should wipe the deceased's hand."

57. Both those who are living and those who are dead; those who are born and those who are worshipful — for them let there go a brook of ghee, honey-streamed, overflowing.

Whe had the second half-verse above as 3.72 c, d, only with catadhara instead of madhudhara. The mss. are again at variance as to the accent of kulya; and the majority also accent madhudhara, as if they had catadh in mind catadh in mind catadh is a queer antithesis to catadh and the comm. reads instead catadh is a queer antithesis to catadh and the comm. reads instead catadh is a pajain catadhat and the comm. reads instead catadhat is a pajain catadhat and the comm. also understands in catadhat and catadhat and catadhat is a corresponding verse is found in TA. (in vi. 12): it omits the first catadhat as at end of catadhat the almost acceptable reading catadhat it ough to be catadhat in catadhat in catadhat and catadhat in cata

58. There purifies itself the conspicuous bull of the prayers, the sun of days, lengthener out of dawns, of the sky (div); the breath of the rivers hath made the jars to resound loudly; entering Indra's heart with skill.

This is a verse out of one of the most formidable hymns of the RV. soma-book (RV. ix. 86. 19), and occurring also twice in SV. (i. 559; ii. 171). In b, RV. reads some ahnah pratarito 'saso divah; in c, krānā and avīvaçat; in d, hārdi and mantsibhis; with this SV. in general agrees, but has, with AV., ahnām and usāsām in b, and acikradat in c; is peculiar in reading prānā (p. praoānā) at beginning of c; a corruption, doubtless, which is carried out to greater intelligibility in our prānās. The

AV. corruption, of both sense and meter, in b, pratartia us, supported by the padareading practartiah, is very strange; of our mss., only three (O.R., supported by Op. -tā: us.) have the correct -to's.; of SPP's, according to his account, about half support -to's., and he accordingly admits that reading into his text; we ought to have done the same by emendation. [For hārdim āviçān (p. āviçān) man., the comm. reads hārdima ... aviçat ... man.] What right the verse has here (or vs. 60, coming from the same RV. hymn) does not appear; neither Kāuç. nor the comm. uses it in the ritual; but the latter says, as if by way of excuse, that, as the Fathers enjoy the fruit of the soma-sacrifices which they have offered, soma is praised in the ceremonies for the Fathers. He explains the 'rivers' in c as the vasatīvarī waters. [He says, p. 22423, vrṣā matīnām ityādīnām tisrnām (vss. 58, 59, 60) pitrmedha eva kāndokto viniyogo 'nusamdheyaḥ, which is not clear to me: should it be pitrmedhakānāa evokto?]

59. Let thy sparkling (? tveṣá) smoke cover, being in the sky, extended bright; for thou, O purifier, shinest like the sun with luster, with beauty (kṛpá).

The verse is RV. vi. 2. 6 and SV. i. 83; both read rnvati in a; [in b, SV. combines divi sán ch-: cf. divi sán ch- at xvii. 1. 12]. The comm. explains $krp\bar{a}$ as $= krpay\bar{a}$ or stutyā. Vāit. (6. 11) uses the verse, with others, in the ceremony of establishing the fires.

60. Soma (indu) verily goes forward to Indra's rendezvous; the comrade does not violate $(pra-m\bar{\imath})$ the comrade's agreements; thou rushest to join, as a male after females — soma, in the jar, by a road of a hundred tracks.

The verse corresponds to RV. ix. 86. 16, which has, however, important variants: in a, pro ayasid indur and niskriam; in b, samgiram; in c, yuvatibhis and arsati, in d, çatáyāmnā; SV. (i. 557; ii. 502) agrees with RV. except in the last item, having, like our text, -yāmanā. | The meter shows that it is to be pronounced -yāmanā, whichever way it is written: cf. JAOS. x. 532.] Our niskrtim is hardly better than a corruption of the RV. reading; but the comm. understands it as Indra's "belly" (jatharalakṣaṇain sthānam), and supports his opinion by quoting RV. iii. 35. 6. Samgirás, in b, is understood in the translation as saingiras (which is read by two or three mss., including our O.), the former being unintelligible; the comm. gives two explanations, both implying the accent -gfr-, one from sam-gr 'agree,' the other from sam-gr or -gil 'swallow down,' thus finding in the verse another "belly" (saingiras = saingiram = udaram). Our text of c spoils both the meter and the connection, making the line render very lamely; the comm. reads yóṣā, and takes it as an instrumental (like yuvatibhis); in d he has the RV.SV. reading. The metrical definition of the Anukr. is worthless. | The RV. verse is a good jagatī, and so is this, barring c, where the corruptions have spoiled meter as well as sense.]

61. They have eaten; they have revelled [surely]; they have shaken off (dva) those that are dear; having own brightness $(svdbh\bar{a}nu)$, they have praised; inspired, youngest, we implore.

The verse corresponds to RV. i. 82. 2 a-d, and is found also in other texts: SV. i. 415; VS. iii. 51; TS. in i. 8. 52; MS. in i. 10. 3. All these agree in reading in c priyās for priyān, and, for d, viprā nāviṣṭhayā matī; and they add a fifth pāda, a refrain, having nothing to do with the meaning of the verse. A majority of the AV.

mss. (including our M.O.Op.R.K.D.) read dvā 'priyān (p. dva: apriyān), and this is perhaps the true Atharvan text (though the accent, in that case, should be dvā 'priyān), and defensible on the ground of sense; our last pāda is nothing but a senseless corruption. In Kāuç. (88. 27) the verse is used, next after vss. 81 ff.,* in the pindapitryajāa, with the direction ity uttarasicam avadhūya; the comm. paraphrases this to mean that one is to perform an additional sprinkling (? uttarapariṣeka) next after the worship (upasthāna) of the pindas. For the application of the verse to the Fathers, compare TB. ii. 6. 3², dkṣan pitdraḥ: dmīmadanta pitdraḥ, etc.; [also Sāyaṇa's comm. on TS. i. 8. 5², Poona ed., p. 1159]. *[It is to be noted that in the pindapitryajāa of the VS. (ii. 31), amīmadanta pitaraḥ etc. comes just before the verses corresponding to our vss. 81-85.] [ÇGS., i. 15, prescribes the RV. verse for use when the bride greases the axle of the wedding-car: is this because of the resemblance of akṣam ('axle') to akṣan (root ghas)?!]

62. Come ye, O Fathers, delectable, by profound roads that the Fathers travel, assigning to us lifetime and progeny; and do ye attach yourselves to us with abundances of wealth.

The last pāda was found above as ix. 4. 24 d. Corresponding verses are found in HGS. ii. 10. 5 and MB. ii. 3. 5. For a, b, MB. reads eta pitaraḥ somyāso gambhīrebhiḥ pathibhiḥ pūrvinebhiḥ; and as second half-verse it has our 3. 14 c, d. HGS. has ā yāta pitaraḥ somyā gambhīraḥ (misprint for -rāiḥ?) pathibhiḥ pūrvyāiḥ, with an altogether different c, d. We should prefer somyāsas unaccented, both in this verse and in the next, but no ms. so reads. The comm. has in c dadhata, which he pronounces the same as dhatta. In Kāuç., in the pitrnidhāna ceremony, the verse accompanies (83. 27) the bringing of the bone-relics, before sunset [into the hut: Keç.]; and it is followed (83. 28, 29) by 1. 52 and 2. 29; then, in the pindapitryajūa (87. 28), the three are repeated; the comm. notices only the latter use, stating that with this verse one is to scatter sesame on the barhis spread for the purpose of giving the pindas. In number of syllables, the verse answers to the description of the Anukr. (9+10:11+11=41). The MB. reading makes a rectification of the meter at the beginning of b.

63. Go away, O Fathers, delectable, by profound roads that go to the stronghold $(p\bar{u}rydna)$; then, in a month, come ye again to our houses to eat the oblation, with good progeny, with good heroes.

All the pada-mss. commit the strange blunder of dividing dyāta in c into å: ayāta; both editions make the necessary correction; the comm. also understands ā yāta. In d, some of the mss. make great difficulty over áttum, reading also [annum,] atnum, antum, atnūn, and the comm. gives as a compound haviratnūn; but our O.R.D., and the majority of SPP's authorities, have the correct reading; as does also HGS. in its corresponding verse [ii. 13.2]. HGS. [spoils the meter of a by modernizing somyāsas to] somyās; reads in b pūrvyāis; [and begins c with atha]. The first half-verse occurs also in MS. i. 10.3 and ACS. ii. 7.9. MS. makes nearly good meter of it, reading pāre tana pitarah somyāso gambhīrēbhih pathtōhih pūrvēbhih (which should evidently be emended to pūrvyēbhis); ACS. differs from this only by having at the end pūrvinebhis (with K. and Kap.S., as pointed out by Schröder). Prāt. iii. 83 quotes the word pūrvāna. Kāuç. uses the verse in the pindapitryajāa (88.28), next after vs. 61, in dismissing the Fathery after their feast of pindas. The metrical description of the Anukr. is very poor: [it probable that the verse originally was 11 + 11:12 + 11; but its b is spoiled metrically)

64. What one limb of you Agni Jātavedas left when making you go to the Fathers' world, that same for you I fill up again; revel ye, O Fathers, in heaven (svargá) with [all] your limbs.

HGS. has (in ii. 11. 1) an analogous but quite different verse: yad vah kravyād aāgam adahal lokān ayam pranayaā jātavedāh: tad vo ham punar ā veçayāmy aristāh sarvāir aāgāih sam bhavata pitarah. Most of our mss. (all except O.Op.R.), but, by his account, only one of SPP's, leave ajahāt in a unaccented; on the other hand, all without exception accent in d pitāras, which SPP. accordingly admits into his text; but our emendation to pitaras is plainly necessary. What the comm. says is here unknown, because the manuscript shows a considerable lacuna, involving the latter half of the explanation of this verse, with the text of the next and the larger part of its exposition. Kāuc. uses the verse (88. 5) in the pindapitryajāa, next after vss. 74, 78, to accompany an offering of rice-grains with the stirring-stick (sāyavana that is, saāyavana. SPP's sāmyavana, p. 2334, does not seem right]). LAs to completeness of limbs in the other world, see my note to 4. 12, above. This verse was translated metrically by Whitney, O. and L. S., i. 57.

65. Jātavedas has been the messenger sent forth, at evening, at close of day to be honored by men;—thou hast given to the Fathers; they have eaten after their wont; eat thou, O god, the presented oblations.

We had the second half-verse above as 3.42 c, d. Part of our mss. (O.Op.R.D.), with, so far as appears, the majority of SPP's, read in b upavándyas, and the latter accordingly adopts it in his text; the root vand does not appear to be anywhere else combined with upa. The line reads like a kind of echo of RV. iv. 54. 1 LTB. iii. 7. 134 LTB. were is the last one quoted in the pindapitryajña by Kāuç. (89. 14), to accompany the withdrawal of the "extended" fires. LBy "extended" I suppose W. means the technical pranta (cf. comm., p. 2336). The words of Kāuç. are agnim pratyānayati: the ceremony seems to be the same as that prescribed by CB. at ii. 4. 224, punar ulmukam api srjati, and by CCS. at iv. 5.9, ulmukam agnāu krtvā.

66. Thou yonder, ho! hither thy mind! as sisters $(j\bar{a}mi)$ a kákutsala, do thou cover him, O earth.

The translation implies the evidently necessary emendation to $ds\bar{a}u$ in a; both editions give $as\bar{a}u$, because this is read by all the mss.; the comm. understands the word as a vocative; it also reads the interjection as $h\bar{a}$, while the pada-text gives $h\bar{a}t$. It further glosses $j\bar{a}mayas$ [alternatively] with bhaginyas, and reads kakutsthalam, explaining it as $pradh\bar{a}n\bar{a}vayavaprade$ cam, and paraphrasing with $putr\bar{a}d\bar{n}n\bar{a}m$ cirah-prabhrtiny $a\bar{n}g\bar{a}ni$ citātapavātanivāranāya. The Pet. Lexx. conjecture kakutsala to be a pet word for a little child. We had the third pāda above as 2. 50 d, 51 d, and 3. 50 d. Kāuç. uses the verse (86. 10) with 2. 50 and 3. 49 in the ceremony over the bone-relics. The comm. includes with it vs. 67.

67. Let the worlds where the Fathers sit adorn themselves (qumbh); I make thee to sit in the world where the Fathers sit.

The first phrase is VS. v. 26 f, which, however, reads çúndhantām; Ap. vii. 9. 10 has çundhatām lokah pitrṣadanah. [For variants as between çundh and çumbh, cf. notes to vi. 115. 3; xii. 2. 40; 3. 13, 21, 26; xviii. 3. 56.]

68. Thou art the barhis of them that are our Fathers.

The metrical description of the Anukr. implies the reading ye asm. In Kāuç. (87.27) the verse is used with 1.51 etc. (see under 1.51) in connection with the strewing of barhis.

69. Loosen up the uppermost fetter from us, O Varuṇa, [loosen] down the lowest, off the midmost; then may we in thy sphere, O Āditya, be guiltless unto Aditi.

The verse which is RV. i. 24. 15, etc. occurred above as vii. 83. 3 which see; among our mss., only O.R. write it out in full. The comm. notices the repetition, yet goes on to give a full explication. In Kāuç. (82.8), it is used in the ceremony of the first day after cremation (next before 3.56), with the direction iti jyesthah, apparently implying that "the oldest" son of the deceased pours water on the attendants; the comm. says that with this verse, immediately after the cremation, all the Brahmans should take a bath (snānam kuryuh).

70. Release from us all fetters, O Varuna, with which one is bound crosswise, with which lengthwise; so may we live hundreds of autumns, by thee, O king, guarded, defended.

The rendering of samāmé and vyāmé in b is far from certain: cf. iv. 16.8. The comm. explains: samāmo nāma vyāmasamjūitapradeçāt samkucitapramānako deçah: samnihite pradeçe dūre pradeçe ce 'ti yāvat. Two of our mss. (O.R.) and one of SPP's read samāné; and two or three of the latter have badhyate, without accent. Nearly all, again, read çarādam in c (our O.R.p.m. [and one of SPP's]-das), and SPP. admits carādam into his text; our -dām is an emendation, and a necessary one, unless we take instead -das, as in apposition with carāni. The comm. makes no difficulty of reading -dam, understanding it, according to one of his convenient rules of interpretation, as a sing. used in place of a plural. Most of our mss., again (except P.O.Op.R.), but only one of SPP's, accent rājan. The comm. points out that rākṣamānās is for rākṣya-, which is altogether probable, considering how easily a p is lost after p or p. The first pāda is identical with vii. 83. 4 p. All the pada-mss. except one of SPP's read pupita instead of -tah. The comm. directs the verse to be recited for good fortune evening and morning at the end of the pateratra in the pitrmedha.

- 71. To Agni, carrier of the kavyás, [be] svadhá [and] homage.
- 72. To Soma with the Fathers [be] svadhā [and] homage.

[Verses 71-87 are prose, except vs. 75, with regard to which see p. 869, ¶ 5.] These verses [71, 72] are found, in reversed order, in ACS. ii. 6. 12. In VS. ii. 29 a, b, are found both, but with svāhā in place of svadhā nāmaḥ, and the same in ÇCS. iv. 4. 1 and GGS. iv. 2. 39, except that in the latter svāhā precedes the datives. VS. accents pitṛmātē. [See also under vs. 74.] In Kāuç. 87. 8, vss. 71-74 are combined in alternation with vss. 78-80 to accompany in the pindapitṛyajāa the scattering downward of three handfuls of offering; and [are used] again, later (88. 2, 3, 4) in the same ceremony, with oblations. [Verse 71 is employed by Vāit. (9. 8) in the sākamedha, and I suspect (see p. 869, ¶ 7) that the sātra intends vss. 72 and 73 also to be thus used: cf. also ApÇS. viii. [3. 15, 16.]

- 73. To the Fathers with Soma, svadhá [and] homage.
- 74. To Yam with the Fathers, svadhá [and] homage.

For the ritual use of these verses see the preceding note. [Parallels of our vss. 72 and 74 and 71, and in that order, recur at MGS. ii. 9. 13: cf. the pratikas in Knauer's Index, and also under pitrbhyas, p. 152.]

- 75. Here is svadhå for thee, O great-grandfather, and for them that are after (ánu) thee.
- 76. Here is svadhá for thee, O grandfather, and for them that are after thee.
 - 77. Here is svadhá for thee, O father.

Passages analogous with these three verses are found in a number of other texts: TS. i. 8. 5¹; AÇS. ii. 6. 15; Āp. i. 9. 1 (cf. also viii. 16. 6; xiii. 12. 9); ÇÇS. iv. 4. 2; GGS. iv. 2. 35; ÇB. ii. 4. 2¹9 forbids the use of yé ca tvắm ánu, and KÇS. iv. 1. 12 is of the same opinion. [Opposite vs. 75, W. notes K. ix. 6.] In 77 all our mss. save one (Op.) read tátas instead of tata; half of SPP's do the same. In Kāuç. 88. 11 the three verses (doubtless: only the pratīka of 75 is quoted; the comm. says the three) are used on setting down three combined (samhata) pindas on the barhis; and Vāit. (22. 22) employs them similarly in the agnistoma. Though 75 is easily read as two anustubh pādas, the Anukr. allows it only 15 syllables, refusing to resolve tu-ām here, as it also refuses in 76. [As to vs. 75, see p. 869, ¶ 5.] [Apropos of tata and tāta, the comm. cites AA. i. 3. 3; and Sāyaṇa, in his comment on that passage, gives two little tales about Prajāpati's early linguistic ventures which remind us somewhat of the beautiful βεκός story as told by Herodotus in the beginning of Euterpe.]

- 78. Svadhá to the Fathers that sit upon the earth.
- 79. Svadhá to the Fathers that sit in the atmosphere.
- 80. Svadhá to the Fathers that sit in the sky (dív).

These verses are found also in Ap. i. 9. 6, and in GGS. iv. 3. 10. GGS. has pṛthi-viṣadbhyas and antarikṣasadbhyas; both combine pitṛbhyo ntar-; and our O.R.K., with half of SPP's authorities, do the same; the Anukr. implies -bhyo antar-, but that proves nothing. For the ritual use, see under vss. 71, 72 above. Both Ap. and GGS. prescribe the verses for the case that the names of the Fathers intended are not known.

- 81. Homage, O Fathers, to your refreshment $(\hbar rj)$; homage, O Fathers, to your sap.
- 82. Homage, O Fathers, to your terror * (bhāma); homage, O Fathers, to your fury.
- 83. Homage, O Fathers, to that of yours which is terrible; homage, O Fathers, to that of yours which is cruel.
- 84. Homage, O Fathers, to that of yours which is propitious; homage, O Fathers, to that of yours which is pleasant.
 - 85. Homage to you, O Fathers; svadhá to you, O Fathers.

For a wonder, these formulas are written by all the mss. without variation and without error. Corresponding passages are to be found in many other texts: VS. ii. 32; TB. i. 3. 108; MS. i. 10. 3; K. ix. 6; ÇÇS. iv. 5. 1; AÇS. ii. 7. 7; Ap. i. 10. 2 and xiii. 12. 10; GGS. iv. 3. 18-21; MB. ii. 3. 8-11; none of them agree closely with our text; but the details of accordance and of difference are not worth giving. In Kāuç. (88. 26)

they accompany in the pindapitryajña the reverence (upasthāna) paid to the Fathers, being then followed by vss. 61 and 63. *[That is, 'to your terror-inspiring fury.']

- 86. They who are there, O Fathers Fathers there are ye [be] they after you; may ye be the best of them.
- 87. They who are here, O Fathers—alive here are we—[be] they after us; may we be the best of them.

The translation here implies certain emendations of the text: pitaras | accentless | in 87 and the first time in 86, and the omission of yé after the second pitáras in 86: the latter is made also in our text, while SPP. reads, with the mss., ye 'tra pitarah pitáro yé 'tra yūyám sthá. As to the accent of the pitarah pitaro in 86, the mss. are wildly discordant, presenting every possible variation, and, considering the many accentual blunders which they commit in this part of the text, the details are not worth reporting, nor need we feel any hesitation in amending to what seems to make the best sense. The omission of $y\ell$ is much more serious, but seems demanded by the sense, and by the analogy of 87. Similar passages are found in [TS. iii. 2. 56, TB. i. 3. 108-9 like TS. |, and CCS. iv. 5. 1 (the latter nearest like our text: ye tra pitarah pitarah stha yūyam tesām çresthā bhūyāstha: ya iha pitaro manusyā vayam tesām çresthā bhūyāsma); compare also MS. i. 10. 3 and AÇS. ii. 7. 7.* All our mss. save one (Op.), and most of SPP's, leave stha in 86 unaccented; this non-accentuation, so far as it goes, favors the omission of yé. Bhūyāstha is a grammatically impossible form, and should be emended to -sta, which is read by [TS. and] TB. in the corresponding passage; ÇÇS., as has been seen, gives -stha. One of SPP's mss. has bhūyāsta. In 87, most of the mss. insert an avasāna after smah, and SPP. follows them; it is of course senseless, unless we use one also after stha in 86 †; nor does the Anukr. appear to acknowledge it, since it notes no difference of division as between the two verses; but our [printed] text at any rate blunders in not reading either smo asman or smo 'sman since it has omitted the avasāna-mark. The metrical definitions of the Anukr. are worthless, as there is no trace of meter in the two passages; they can by violence be read into the number of syllables called for.

*[In the second and third paragraphs below are given these passages from TB., MS., and AÇS. The TS. passage agrees with the TB. passage, save that TS. has $y \ensuremath{\delta}$ 'smth loké for the very bad $y \ensuremath{\delta}$ 'smth loké of TE.]

† [We ought, I think, in fact to read with SPP. an avasāna-mark after smah in vs. 87, not only as being abundantly supported by the mss. of both editions, but also as called for by the sense and the general (quadripartite) structure of the verse. And the same applies to the reading of an avasāna-mark after stha in vs. 86; it is printed in neither edition, but appears to be well warranted by the authorities of both.

[The TB. passage, at i. 3. 108-9, with the avasānas as printed in the Poona ed., is: yā etāsmin loké sthā (8) yūṣmāns té nu | yè smin loké | mān té nu | yā etāsmin loké sthā | yūyān tēṣān vāsiṣṭhā bhūyāsta | yè smin loké | ahān tēṣān vāsiṣṭha bhūyāsam.— This passage and its analogues have been discussed in two papers by Böhtlingk, Berichte der sāchsischen Gesell., sessions of July 8, 1893, and May 2, 1896. In the first, having the TB. passage before him, he proposed to read, in place of the first sthā, the word syūs, and to begin the first apodosis with it, and to delete the second sthā. In the second, having our AV. verses before him, he ascribes the false ending of bhūyāstha of 86 to the correct preceding stha; and, on the other hand, the false sma of 87 to the correct ending ou bhūyāsma. The false sma, however, is—as we have seen—to be printed smo or smah (cf. Index, p. 41 b). Moreover, he suspects that the second pitaras of 86 may be a corruption of paretas ('mortui istic vos estis'): this would be an easy corruption in nāgarī, but I do not feel that paretas offers a better antithesis to the jīvās of 87 (ÇÇS. manusyās) than does the word pitaras itself; and the latter are distinctly enough other-world beings: cf. 2. 48 (but also 49), and I. 50, 54 above, also x. 6. 32. — Apropos of the blunder bhūyāstha: reading Dīgha Nikāya on the day of writing the above note, I observed at ix. 7, line 5, the phrase saññā uppajjanti etc., 'ideas arise,' and then in the very next sentence, ekā saññā uppajjanti, 'a single idea arise,' with plural verb-ending, albeit the ekā makes the breach of common concord most manifest and some mss. indeed read uppajjati. For the like error, see xv. 7. 3: cf. also notes xiv. 2. 59; xviii. 3. 47.]

[The MS. passage, p. 143°, is: eṣā yuṣmākam pitaraḥ: imā asmākam: jīvā vo jīvanta[ḥ] ihā sántaḥ syāma. — The AÇS., p. 125 end, reads: etā yuṣmākam pitaraḥ: imā asmākam: jīvā vo jīvanta iha santaḥ syāma. To this, Gārgya, in his vṛtti, adds: itikārādhyāhārena sūtracchedaḥ: santaḥ syāmeti mantraḥ paṭhitavyo vaḥkāram varjayitvā. — The etās and imās seem to refer to svadhās (cf. ÇÇS. as above: yā atra pitaraḥ svadhā, yuṣmākam sā: ya iha pitara edhatur, asmākam saḥ); and the eṣā of MS. appears to require correction to etā p. etāḥ.]

88. Thee, O Agni, would we kindle, full of light (dyumánt), O god, unwasting; as that very wondrous fuel of thine shall shine in the sky (div), bring thou food for thy praisers.

The verse is RV. v. 6. 4, and occurs also as SV. i. 419 and ii. 372, and in TS. iv. 4. 4^6 and MS. ii. 13. 7. All these agree together throughout, reading in a te agna idhfor $tv\bar{a}$ 'gna idh-, and in c $sy\bar{a}$ for $s\bar{a}$. SPP. reads in c, with the comm., $y\bar{a}d$ gha, and makes no note upon it, implying that his mss. have the same; ours, however, give $y\bar{a}d$ dha (p. $y\bar{a}t:ha$), in accordance with the other texts. All the mss. put an $avas\bar{a}na$ between d and e [i.e. after $dy\bar{a}vi$], and the Anukr. supports it, whence SPP. has it in his edition; we left it out as being uncalled for, and wanting in the parallel texts. For the use of the verse in Kāuç. with 3. 42, see the note to the latter: cf. p. 871, ¶ 3.

89. The moon among the waters runs, an eagle in the sky (div); they find not your track, O golden-rimmed lightnings: know me as such, O firmaments $(r \delta das \bar{\imath})$.

The verse is RV. i. 105. I and also SV. i. 417 [Trāita Sāman]; and its first two pādas are VS. xxxiii. 90 a, b; it is quoted by pratīka in GB. i. 2. 9; [pāda e is refrain all through the RV. hymn, save in the last, the 19th, verse]. Both RV. and SV. read in d vidyutas, as vocative, and the AV. mss. are divided between that and vidyutas; SPP. has the former, which is to be preferred. The comm. repeats the story of Trita and his two brothers, as "told by the Çāṭyāyanins," in almost precisely the same words as those in which it is given in the commentator's introduction to RV.i. 105. [Oertel gives a summary thereof, and also the corresponding passage, JB. i. 184, text and version, JAOS. xviii. p. 18-20.] [The comm. quotes the verse as applied in a mahāçānti called vārunī in the Nakṣatra Kalpa, 18.] Why the verse should be found as conclusion of this book of funeral hymns is very obscure.

[Here ends the fourth anuvāka, with I hymn and 89 verses. The quoted Anukr. says ekonanavatiç cāi 'va yameşu vihitā rcaḥ: cf. pages 814 and 869, ¶ 4, note 1.]

[Here also ends the thirty-fourth prapāṭhaka.]

Book XIX.

[Supplementary hymns.]

[This nineteenth book forms a supplement to the three grand divisions of the Atharvan collection, and is shown to be a later addition by a considerable variety of cumulative evidence. The evidence concerns in part the contents of the book; in part, the character of its tradition as respects both text and division and extent; and in part, the relation of its text to the ancillary Vedic treatises, the Pada-pāṭha and the Pañcapaṭalikā and the Prāti-çākhya, and to the Kāuçika and Vāitāna sūtras.]

[The contents of book xix. resemble in large measure those of the earlier books, and wear (as W. says: see the General Introduction) the aspect of after-gleanings: cf. hymn I with i. 15; h. 18 with iv. 40; h. 34 with ii. 4, and especially 34. 4 with ii. 4. 6; h. 39 with v. 4; h. 44 with iv. 9; h. 57 with vi. 46. Had these hymns of book xix. been parts of the original collection, we should have expected (as W. intimates) to find them in their respective places with those of the earlier books. But more conclusive evidence could hardly be wished than is offered by hymn 23 of book xix., which hymn, under the form of "Homage to parts of the AV.," is incidentally also in some sort a table of contents to the preceding eighteen books, and presupposes their existence as a collection, and in an arrangement substantially accordant with that which they show in our text: cf. the introduction to h. 23.

| The general character of the tradition in this book is strikingly inferior to that of the preceding eighteen. Such a statement can be duly verified only by a detailed study of the verses of the book, with reference to their intelligibility as they stand, and to the multiplicity or wildness of the variants presented; but a casual glance at the footnotes on pages 478, 484-5, and 539 of the Bombay edition will give some idea of their multiplicity. Many of them (like trin nakans at 27.4: see W's note) "are of the superficial variety of discordant readings which swarm in this book and have no real importance." Others are blunders of the grossest sort, as to which there is substantial agreement among the authorities or even complete harmony: such for example is the impossible yásmāi . . . yacchati at 32.2, where not a single one has the absolutely necessary yácchati: cf. W's note to 45.5. Especially noteworthy is vs. 4 of h. 40 as illustrating "what this nineteenth book can do in the way of corruption even of a text that is intelligibly handed down elsewhere" (so Whitney: the AV. version is so utterly corrupt that he is forced to translate from the RV. version, RV. i. 46.6). If degrees of corruption and badness are to be distinguished, perhaps we may set down 49. 2 as the worst in book xix., or possibly in books i.-xix.; in the latter case, vi. 22. 3 is surely a close second. The use trainties of the tradition of this book as to the precise amount of material to be included it, and as to its division and the numeration of the parts, are rehearsed in the sequel: cf. the references at p. 898, end of ¶ 2. |

[Relation of the text of book xix. to the ancillary Vedic treatises. — First, the Padapātha appears to be very modern, as it is certainly very blundering and untrustworthy: see SPP's notes on pages 410 and 460 and especially 543, and W's note on hymn 68, and observe, for example, the wild resolution of vármā sīvyadhvám as várma: asi: visadhvám at 58.4. The corruptness of the text made Whitney doubt (in 1862: see his Prāt., p. 581) the existence of a pada-pāṭha.—Second, book xix. is entirely ignored by the Pañcapaṭalikā or Old Anukr., as is stated also by SPP. in his Critical Notice, vol. i., p. 24.—Third, "to the apprehension of the Prātiçākhya the Atharva-Veda comprehended only the first eighteen books of the present collection": so Whitney, Prāt., p. 581; cf. his Index of passages referred to by the AV. Prāt., p. 600 c, and especially his notes to Prāt. ii. 67 c and ii. 22.

| Relation of book xix. to Kāuçika. — The sūtra-citations do not imply recognition of the text of book xix. as an integral part of the samhitā. — Bloomfield has made a critical separation of the more original vidhāna-matter from the grhya-matter in the text of Kāuçika, and styles the former "Atharva-sūtra" or "Vidhāna-sūtra": see his Introd. to Kāuç., p. xxviii., and his essay in Göttingische gelehrte Anzeigen, 1902, p. 489. His Vidhāna-sūtra comprehends the text of Kāuç from the beginning of kaṇḍikā 7 to the end of kandikā 52, excepting perhaps most of the matter (42.19 to 43.20) just preceding the vaçaçamana, and excepting the vaçaçamana itself (43.21 to 45.19): that is, his Vidhāna-sūtra runs from 7. 1 to 42. 18 and from 46. 1 to 52. 21.* — Now it is in the first place to be noted that no verse whatever is cited in the text of the "Vidhānasūtra" (whether by pratīka or by technical designation or in sakalapāṭha) which is also to be found in book xix., with the single exception of prana pranam. In the second place, disregarding the verses cited by technical designation (the "jivās-verses": see below) and those which are cited in full and by pratika besides (33.3; 52.5; 72.1: see below), it appears that there are in the entire text of Kāuçika only six pratīkas which might seem at first blush to imply the recognition of book xix. as part of the Atharvan text by Kāuçika. The six pratīkas cover some eleven verses. Including with them a seventh pralika, devásya tvā, I give them in tabular form:

[Citations by pratīka. — The three phrases, (1) devásya tvā savitúh prasavé and (2) açvínor bāhúbhyām and (3) pūṣṇô hástābhyām, are unvaried as between the AV. text and the citations by Kāuç. (in full at 2. 1 and 2. 21 and 137. 18: the citation at 91. 3 is by pratīka with dyuto 'hâm) and by Vāit. (in full at 3.9): what follows hâstāblyām is, at Kāuç. 2. 1, agndye jūṣṭam nīr vapāmi (as at TS. i. 1.42); at 2.21 and in Vāit., it is prasūtah praçiṣā paristṛṇāmi (Vāit. pratigṛṇāmi); and at 137.18 it is ā dade (as at TS. i. 3.11 and very often); while AV. xix. differs from all these in adding prāsūta ā rabhe. The phrases are of such extremely frequent occurrence (see introd. to h. 51) that they may be called a commonplace of the sūtra-literature; and, as W. intimates, the pratīka-citation by Kāuç. is not to be regarded as having any special reference to our book xix.,—much less the citations in full by Kāuç. and Vāit. The case is a typical and striking one. Of the same type are the hymns tvām agne vratapā asi and āgne samīdham āhārṣam, both of which, besides, are given by the scholia in sakalapāṭha. For the rest, so far as any necessary connection with book xix. is concerned, vān ma āsān and kāmas tād and āvyacasaç ca may fairly be regarded as kalpajā mantrās. Only for ayuto 'hām am I unable to point out occurrences elsewhere than in book xix.; but it may be noted that the comm., at p. 4994, takes ayuto 'hām and the immediately following devāsya tvā as one sūkta of sacrificial formulas, yajurmantrātmakam sūktam.

[Citations by technical designation. — Thrice in the text of Kāuç. (at 3. 4; 58. 7; 90. 22), as also once in Vāit. (at 1. 19), we meet the prescription jīvābhir ācamya. The "jīvās-verses," says Dārila (on 3. 4), mean "four verses beginning with jīvā stha." They are associated, both at Kāuç. 3. 4 and at Vāit. 1. 18, 19 as well, with other sūtramaterial, and in particular also with the five prapads (which are called in Vāit. prapadanas and which Dārila characterizes as kalpaja): considering this fact, the citation may well be viewed as containing no distinct reference to our book xix., albeit indeed the verses are found there as 69. 5-4; and the entire absence of sakalapātha both in text and in scholia, if taken in connection with the mode of citation (by a technical name and so without iti), does not appear to be inconsistent with this view.

| Citations in sakalapātha. — The most conclusive evidence to show that book xix. was not recognized by Kāuç. is afforded by the five verses which, although occurring in our xix., are yet cited by Kāuç. in full (sakalapāṭha): these are 59. 3; 33. 3 and 44. 4; and 52. 5 and 72. 1. As to the first of the five, a devanam api pantham aganma, cited at 5.12, Bloomfield has already remarked in his note that the sakalapāṭha shows that it is regarded as coming from some other source than our book xix., and it is in fact not infrequent elsewhere (RV.MS.TS.QB.); moreover, it is a part of the same group as tvám agne vratapá asi, of which group, as already noted, Dārila (on 6.37) gives the The verses tvám bhūmim (cited in full at 2.1: a later citation, at 137. 32, is naturally by pratika) and prana pranam (cited in full at 47. 16) have not been found, so far as I know, except at xix. 33. 3 and 44. 4; but of the former Dārila expressly says that it is kalpaja. Finally, there remain the cases of yat kāma and yásmāt kóçāt. These are peculiar in that they are cited at 92. 30 and 139. 25 by pratīka, and immediately thereafter (at 92.31 and 139.26) in sakalapāṭha: cf. Bloomfield's Introduction, p. xxix. The verse yát kāma is found at xix. 52. 5, and yásmāt kóçāt at the end of the book, and neither elsewhere.

[Relation of book xix. to Vāitāna. — Still less than Kāuçika, does Vāitāna imply by its citations a recognition of the text of book xix. as an integral part of the samhitā. — In all Vāitāna there are only seven sūtras (Garbe gives five) that cite passages occurring in book : they are Vāit. 1. 18 and 19, citing the apratiratha hymn and the "jivās-verses"; 3. 5 and 19. 12, citing ā devānām; 3. 9, citing devāsya tvā; 28. 14, citing yād agne yāni kāni cit; and 37. 19, citing sahāsrabāhus. Of these, the devāsya tvā, the "jīvās-verses," and the ā devānām are cited also by Kāuç. and have already been sufficiently discussed. Of the remaining three: the puruṣa hymn (sahāsrabāhus: xix. 6) appears also in RV.VS.TA.SV.; and the verse yad agne yani kani cit (xix. 64.3) is common to RV., and to the Yajus texts, MS.K.Kap.TS.VS.; while the apratiratha hymn (āçúh ctcanah: xix. 13.2 ff.) is found in RV. and the Yajus texts just named and in SV. also.]

LDivisions of the book. — The prapāṭhaka-division is not found in this book, having ended with book xviii.; nor does any decad-division appear. The following statements refer to the hymns as printed, divided, and numbered in the Berlin edition. The book numbers 72 hymns, with 456 verses, and is divided into seven anuvākas. If the verses numbered 455, a precisely even division would give 65 to each anuvāka, and it appears that the division aims in general to make each anuvāka as nearly of that length as may be without breaking hymns: but hymn 20 is put into anuvāka 2 rather than 3, because it forms a subject-group with hymns 17-19; for a like reason the limit of anuvāka 4 is set after hymn 33 and not before it; and that of anuvāka 5, after hymn 45 and not before it. A tabular conspectus follows:

Anuvākas	I	2	3	4	5	6	7
Hymns	9	11	6	7	12	9	18
Verses	59	72	65	68	74	63	55

Sum, 456 verses. Several mss. sum up the verses as 457. Uncertainty of verse numeration affects hymns 16, 27, 38, 47, 54, 55, 57, and 67 (see notes to the hymns). The comm. omits hymns 60-63 and reckons 69 and 70 as one hymn (see introd. to h. 60); and some mss. insert RV. i. 99 between our 65 and 66.

1. With an oblation for confluence.

[Brahman. — [trcam.] yājñikam ; cāndramasam. ānuṣṭubham : 1, 2. pathyābṛhatyāu ; 3. pañkti.]

The hymn is found also in Pāipp. xix. (the order of vss. 2 and 3 being inverted). It resembles i. 15, and, as it has the same pratīka of the first verse, the comm. maintains that it may be used along with or instead of that hymn where the latter is quoted (Kāuç. 19. 4, and Nakṣ. K. 20). LCf. also note to Kāuç. 19. 1.

Translated: Griffith, ii. 259.

1. Together, together let the rivers flow, together the winds, together the birds; increase ye this sacrifice, O songs (gir); I make offering with an oblation of confluence.

The first half-verse is nearly identical with i. 15. 1 a, b; the third pāda, nearly with i. 15. 2 c; the last pāda, with i. 15. 1 d; ii. 26. 3 d. The translation implies giras, voc., in this verse and the next; it is read by the mss. almost without exception, and so by SPP's text; also in i. 15. 2. Ppp. reads in a sravanti sindhavah.

2. This sacrifice do ye aid, O offerings $(h\delta ma)$; this one, ye also that flow together: increase ye this sacrifice, O songs; I make offering with an oblation of confluence.

SPP. reads in a hômās, with all the mss., but our emendation to homās is evidently demanded by the sense; the comm. also understands the word as vocative. Ppp. reads homā yajña pacate idam, and uses the last half of vs. 3 as refrain, instead of that of vs. 1.

3. Form by form, vigor (váyas) by vigor — taking hold together I embrace him: let the four quarters increase this sacrifice; I make offering with an oblation of confluence.

The comm. understands the sacrificer by enam in b. [In c, cátasraḥ is metrically and otherwise superfluous.]

The metrical definitions given by the Anukr. for this hymn are of no value; the first two are inexact even as regards a mechanical count of syllables.

2. Praise and prayer to the waters.

[Sindhudvīpa. - pañcarcam. āpyam. ānustubham.]

Found also in Pāipp. viii. The comm. finds it used in Naks. K. 20, in addressing waters brought from streams etc. for a ceremony of appeasement.

Translated: Griffith, ii. 259.

1. Weal to thee [be] the waters from the snowy mountains (hāimavatá), and weal be to thee those from the fountains; weal to thee the running waters, and weal to thee be those of the rain.

Our sanisyadās in c is an emendation, and called for [see Skt. Gram. § 1148. 4. k., near the end]; all the mss., and SPP., accent sanisyadās. Many of the mss. accent ti in ti. The comm. omits ti in ti. The pada-mss. make the absurd division saniosyadāti. Ppp. makes the combinations ti tā "po and -syadā "pati ti-

2. Weal to thee [be] the waters of the wastes, weal be to thee those of the marshes; weal to thee the waters of the canals (khanitrima), weal those brought with vessels.

Ppp. has again çam tā "po dh-; [also-trimā "paç ç-]. TA. (in vi. 4. 1) has a verse and a half similar to these two, and in part accordant with them (reading corruptly anūkyās): [Poona ed., p. 420, rightly anūkyàs]. Our i. 6. 4 above is still more closely analogous.

3. Digging for themselves without shovels, keen (vipra), working in the deep (gambhīrá), more healing than the healers (bhiṣáj), the waters we address.

The mss. and SPP. with them, read in b gambhīré apásaḥ, which is good enough to be exempt from emendation; the comm. seems to make a compound, gambhīreapasaḥ. The mss. and SPP. also have in d áchā vad- (p. ácha: vad-); it was altered in our text to achāvad- (= achaoāvad-) because the Atharvan everywhere else [except iii. 20. 2] reads the latter and not the former. Ppp. reads and combines gambhīrepsā bhiṣagbhyo bhiṣaktarā "po a-.

4. Of the waters indeed from the sky, of the waters from the streams (srotasyà) — in the forth-washing indeed of the waters, ye become vigorous and in the forth-washing indeed of the waters, ye become vigorous and in the forth-washing indeed of the waters, ye become vigorous and in the forth-washing indeed of the waters, ye become vigorous and in the forth-washing indeed of the waters, ye become vigorous and in the forth-washing indeed of the waters, ye become vigorous and in the forth-washing indeed of the waters, ye become vigorous and in the forth-washing indeed of the waters, ye become vigorous and in the forth-washing indeed of the waters, ye become vigorous and in the forth-washing indeed of the waters, ye become vigorous and in the forth-washing indeed of the waters, ye become vigorous and in the forth-washing indeed of the waters, ye become vigorous and in the forth-washing indeed of the waters, ye become vigorous and in the forth-washing indeed of the waters, which is the forth-washing indeed of the waters, which is the forth-washing indeed of the waters and in the forth-washing indeed of the waters.

The last pada is very literally rendered; anything else would require some alteration of the text; it is identical with i. 4. 4 c. SPP. reads in a divyànām, with very nearly all the mss.; the emendation of accent [divyā, as in the Berlin text] is unquestionably to be made. [Error due to srotasyànām?]

5. Weal [be] to thee the waters, propitious the waters, effecting freedom from yákṣma the waters; just as joy to one who thirsts, [be] they for thee healers of dislocation.

The translation follows our text, which has numerous emendations. At the beginning, the mss. and SPP read $t\bar{a}s$ for ζam te ($\zeta ant\bar{a}s$ might be better); the latter was intended to fill up both sense and meter (the Anukr. says nothing of a defective $p\bar{a}da$; but this is of very little account). Then they have thrice $ap\dot{a}s$ in a, b, instead of $\bar{a}pas$; but the comm. has $\bar{a}pas$ both times in a. In c they all give trpyate; Ppp. has $ath\bar{a}i$ 'va $dr\zeta yate$ mayas. For d, SPP reads $t\bar{a}s$ to \bar{a} datta bhesajih, with the comm. Lewho understands the second word as $t\dot{e}$ or also as te; the mss. mostly have $\bar{a}d$ uta (p. $\bar{a}t$: uta), but they vary to $\bar{a}dutta$, $\bar{a}data$, $\lfloor \bar{a}datta$, $\bar{a}druta$, $\rfloor \bar{a}huta$, with various accentuation. The verse is so corrupt throughout that it offers a free field for conjectural emendation. SPP. combines in b $ap\dot{o}$ 'yakṣmamkár-, which is inadmissible, though found in the mss.; we must change to $ap\dot{o}$ 'y-, if not to $\bar{a}po$ 'y-. Ppp. makes in a its usual combinations, $t\bar{a}$ "pac $\zeta iv\bar{a}$ " po 'y-, and reads for d $tv\bar{a}bhyatva$ bhesajih.

3. Praise to Agni.

[Atharvangiras. — caturrcam. agneyam. traistubham: 2. bhurij.]

The hymn occurs also in Pāipp. xx., but only in fragments, not intelligible beyond the first half-verse. The comm. notices that the hymn has the same pratīka as ix. 1, and labors to point out that it <code>[xix.3]</code> and its successor have features adapting them to the same use as the two parts of ix. 1; and that hence they may also be regarded as quoted (Kāuç. 10. 24; 12. 15; etc.) by that pratīka: this is, of course, a worthless bit of special pleading. Vāit. (16. 12), wishing to quote ix. 1 only, adds the specification madhusūktena.

Translated: Griffith, ii. 260.

1. Forth from the sky, from the earth, from the atmosphere, out of the forest trees, the herbs—whithersoever borne, O Jātavedas, come thou, enjoying, thence to us.

The translation implies emendation to jātavedas, voc., in c. SPP. reads in d tāta stuto j-, with nearly all the mss.; one or two read tātas-tato j-; [this report coincides virtually with the Index, p. 124 b: but, if I understand the Collation Book, P. and M., which Whitney here intends, read tātas tato j-, which is neither one thing nor the other, but a confusion between the āmredita and tātas + stuto;] and the comm. has tatas-tataḥ. The mss. also, almost without exception, give bibhṛtas or bibhṛtas in c; here SPP's text agrees with ours, and with the comm. Ppp. has for b vātā paçubhyo ay oṣadhībhyaḥ, evidently intending the text which TB. has in a corresponding verse (in i. 2. 122), vātāt paçūbhyo ādhy oṣadhībhyaḥ. For c, d TB. has yātra-yatra jātavedaḥ sambabhūtva [so Calc. ed., text, p. 32, comm., p. 91; but Poona ed. has aright sambabhūtha, text and comm., p. 83] tāto no agne juṣāmāṇa é'hi; Āp. (in v. 13. 4) agrees with TB. [precisely: reading sambabhūtha].

2. What thy greatness is in the waters, what in the woods, what in the herbs, in the cattle, within the waters — all thy bodies $(tan \hat{u})$, O Agni, grasp together; with them come to us, a giver of property, unfailing.

Two or three of our mss., \lfloor and (six) half \rfloor of SPP's, read tanval in c, and some of ours have bharasva instead of rabhasva, probably as an only accidental variation, though bharasva would be a very good reading. A little emendation would rid us of the otiose repetition of apsi in the first line. \lfloor In d we have to pronounce nat 'hi, with double sandhi (as often in Ppp.). \rfloor

3. What thy heavenly (svargá) greatness is, among the gods, what body of thine entered into the Fathers, what prosperity of thine was spread among men (manusyà) — therewith, O Agni, assign wealth to us.

The translation implies at end of a svargás so SPP.]; our text has -gé on the authority of only a single ms., and against the comm. [svargáh] and the parallel texts [suvargáh] as found in TB. (in i. 2. 121-2) and Ap. (in v. 13. 4). Both these read further, for b, yás ta ātmā paçúsu právistah, and, for d, táyā no agne jusámāna é'hi; while TB. has in c prathé for paprathé so Calc. ed., text and comm.: but Poona aright, paprathé]. The Anukr. takes no notice of the redundant syllable in c.

4. To him of hearing ears, the poet, worthy to be known, J apply for gifts (rātt) with words, with speeches; whence [there is] fear, be there no fear for us; pacify (ava-yaj), O Agni, the wrath (hédas) of the gods.

The verse is found also in Ap. xiv. 17. 1, but with very different b: namobhir nākam upa yāmi çansan; with tat kṛdhī naḥ at end of c; and, for d, 'gne devānām ava heḍa iyakṣva: cf. also Ap. v. 5. 8, which is far more different. [In c, asty is a misprint for astv.]

4. To various divinities.

[Atharvāngiras. — caturrcam. āgneyam [2. mantroktadevatyā]. trāiṣṭubham: 1. 5-p. virāḍ atijagatī; 2. jagatī.]

- The second, third, and fourth verses are found in Pāipp. xix.
 Translated: Griffith, ii. 261.
- I. What oblation (āhuti) Atharvan sacrificed first, with what one Jātavedas made an offering, that same do I first call loudly for thee; gratified with that, let Agni carry the offering: hail to Agni.

This version represents neither of the edited texts, nor the mss., nor the comm., but is a pure make-shift. SPP. reads in \mathbf{a} - \mathbf{b} atharvā yā jātā yā h-, and at beginning of \mathbf{d} tābhi stupto v- (p. tābhih: stuptah; so all the pada-mss. but Op. and L. have sruptah; what stuptah or sruptah, for that matter should be supposed to be is a complete mystery). The comm. reads in \mathbf{a} - \mathbf{b} atharvā yā jātāya havyām, and in \mathbf{d} tābhi stutah; he explains that Atharvan means the paramātman, who at the beginning of creation made an oblation to please the gods whom he had created; pāda \mathbf{b} signifies this: "what (yā being used instead of yām) oblation, given by Atharvan, Jātavedas made worthy to be offered for his progeny the progeny of Atharvan in the rôle of paramātman?; that is, for the crowd of gods made manifest by him." Our āyeje in a is increased by the but the translation implies eje (ā-tje) or something equivalent; in \mathbf{d} it implies tayā ir pto v-; all the mss. have -pto, except one of ours s.m., which favors the comm. Johavīmi possibly comes from root hu (so BR.) instead of hū. We ought to have in a ākūtīm, as in the following verses, but it is not easy to reconstruct the verse so as to match that emendation.

xix. 4-

2. Heavenly fortunate design $(dk\bar{u}ti)$ do I put forward $(puro-dh\bar{a})$; let the mother of intent $(citt\acute{a})$ be easy of invocation for us; to what expectation I go, be it entirely mine; may I find it entered into [my] mind.

Half the mss. accent in b cittasya; in c and d, all have emi and [nearly all] videyam, which SPP. accordingly admits into his text; our émi and vidéyam are necessary emendations: in such a condition of text as is offered in this book, it is uscless to be governed by the tradition when it is certainly and palpably wrong. The verse is found also in TB. (in ii. 5.3²), which reads in a mánasas for subhágām, in b [yajāásya for cittásya and] me for nas, and for c, d yád icchámi mánasā sákāmo vidéyam enad dhŕaaye ntvistam. Ppp. reads devyām in a, and me stu in b[? or c?]. The first pāda is the only jagatī element in the verse.

3. With design to us, O Brihaspati, with design come thou unto us; then assign to us of fortune (bhága); then be easy of invocation for us.

The comm. has in c dchi. The definition of the verse as an anustubh has apparently dropped out of the Anukr. Ppp. reads in d subhagas.

4. Let Brihaspati acknowledge my design, the son of Angiras this [my] speech; of whom the gods, the deities, came into being, let that desire (káma), well-conducting, go after us.

5. Praise and prayer to Indra.

[Atharvāngiras (?). — ekarcam. āindram. trāistubham.]

The verse is RV. vii. 27. 3, without variation, and is found also, with the same text, in Pāipp. xx. The comm. gives as its viniyoga that one who desires riches may worship Indra with it.

Translated: Griffith, ii. 261; also by the RV. translators.

1. Indra [is] king of the moving creation (jágat), of human beings (carṣaṇi), whatever of various form is upon the earth (kṣám); thence he gives good things to his worshiper (dāçvāns); may he, whenever praised, urge (cud) hitherward bestowal (rādhas).

6. Purusha and his sacrifice.

[Nārāyaṇa. — sodaçarcam. purusadevatyam. ānustubham.]

This is the familiar puruṣa-hymn of the Rig-Veda [x. 90] with considerable variation in the order of the verses, but comparatively little in the readings. The RV. verses are found here in the following order: 1, 4, 3, 2, 11-14, 5-7, 10, 9, 8, 15. The same hymn occurs in VS. xxxi. (in the order of RV. verses 1-5, 8-10, 7, 11-14, 6, 15) and in TA. iii. 12 (in the order of RV. verses 1-6, 15, 7-14); also the first five RV. verses in the 7th or Näigeya chapter of SV. [Näigeya 33-37 = SV. i. 618-622] (in the order of RV. verses 1, 4, 2ab3cd, 3ab2cd, 5). The verses (except our 7 and 8) occur also in Päipp. ix. In Väit. (37. 19), the hymn is cited, with x. 2, in the puruṣamedha, accompanying the release of the human victim; and the comm. finds it used in the Çānti-kalpa xv., and in Pariçiṣṭa x. I.—[The Bombay ed. makes two hymns of this hymn: see note at end of the anuvāka, p. 915.]

In the WZKM., xii. 277-280, von Schroeder reports the existence of the Purusha hymn in two recensions in the rcaka of the Kathas, and observes that the passage may come from a Katha Brāhmaṇa or Āraṇyaka. The first recension accords with that of RV.: the second also agrees in general with that of RV., except for the variants which I have reported below under verses 1, 2, 3, 5, 7 (the most important), 9, 12, 14; and, further, it agrees with RV. in the order of the verses from 1 to 15. For brevity, I refer to the source of these variants as the KathaB.

Translated: Griffith, ii. 262-265; and, as RV. hymn, very often: so by Colebrooke (1798), in Misc. Essays 2, i. 183; by Burnouf (1840), in the Preface to his great folio ed. of the Bhāgavata Purāṇa (see pages cxiv to cxxiv); by Muir, v. 367; Ludwig, Der Rigveda, ii., p. 574, notes in v., p. 437; Grassmann, Rig-Veda, ii., p. 486; Zimmer, p. 217; Scherman, Philosophische Hymnen, pages 11-23 (with ample notes); Henry W. Wallis, Cosmology of the RV., p. 87; P. Peterson, Hymns from the RV., p. 289; Deussen, Geschichte, i. 1. 150-158 (repeated in his Sechzig Upanishads, p. 830).— Finally, as VS. hymn, it was translated by Weber (apropos of Anquetil du Perron's Upanishads), in Indische Studien, ix. 5, with instructive notes and introduction and a tabular view (p. 4) of the sequence of the verses in RV., TA., VS., and AV.; and also by Griffith, in The Texts of the White Yajurveda, p. 260. Lt may be added that the text of the hymn with Sāyaṇa's comment was published as a separate work as no. 3 of the Ananda Açrama Series. - Burnouf cited and translated the hymn for the purpose of comparison with the corresponding passage in the Purana, ii. 5.35-6.29, pages 235-241. Note the multum-in-parvo half of vs. 35, sahasro-"rv-anghri-bahv-akṣah sahasrā-"nana-çīrsavān. — Especial attention is called to Deussen's elaborate introduction to his translation in his Geschichte, as cited above, p. 150-156.

1. Thousand-armed is Purusha, thousand-cyed, thousand-footed; he, covering the earth entirely, exceeded it by ten fingers' breadth.

[The verse is RV. x. 90. 1; VS. xxxi. 1; SV. i. 618; TA. iii. 12. 1.] All the other texts begin with sahásraçīrṣā (SV. -ṛṣāḥ); SV.VS. [KaṭhaB.] have in c sarvátas, and VS. after it spṛṭvā; [von Schroeder reports the KaṭhaB. reading as smṛṭvā; but perhaps the intention of his mss. is rather spṛṭvā]. The comm. gives very long expositions of most of the verses, but casts no light upon them. [Deussen, p. 150, calls the substitution of -bāhuḥ for -çīrṣā a "rationalizing variant: because, if Purusha has 1000 eyes, he ought to have only 500 heads"! But even the AV. comm. glosses sahasrākṣaḥ by bahubḥir akṣibhir upetaḥ.]

2. With three feet he ascended the sky; a foot of him, again, was here; so he strode out asunder, after eating and non-eating.

[RV. x. 90. 4; VS. xxxi. 4; SV. i. 619; TA. iii. 12. 2.] RV. has a quite different text: tripād ūrdhvá úd āit púruṣaḥ pādo 'sye 'hā 'bhavat púnaḥ: táto viṣvañ vy akrāmat sāçanānaçanē abht; VS. agrees with this throughout; [and so does KathaB., except that it has phāmim for viṣvaā]; TA. differs only by reading in b 'hā "bhavāt [i.e. 'hā:ā:bhavāt?] (doubtless, however, a misprint); [but ābhavāt is read by both Calc. and Poona ed's in the text; while both ed's have ābhavat in the comm.]; SV. differs (and agrees with AV.) by tāthā in c and açan- in d. The comm. has in a ā 'rohat, and in b (with RV. etc.) pādo 'sya; two or three of SPP's authorities agree with the comm. in both points. The pada-mss. give in b pādasya; [but SPP. accepts pāt: asya in his pada-text]. No samhitā-ms. has viṣvaānā a-, and accordingly SPP., against all rule and usage, admits viṣvaā a- in his text; but he accents açanānaçanē with us, though almost all the mss. have vçanānaçanē. The comm. gives an absurd array of discordant explanations of this compound: açanā is "men, animals, etc.," and anaçanā "gods, trees, etc."; then (adhyātmapakse), the two are "the immovable and movable creation," or else "the intelligent (cetana) and unintelligent creation."

3. So many are his greatnesses; and Purusha is superior $(jy\delta y\bar{a}n)$ to that; a foot of him is all beings $(bh\bar{u}t\delta)$; three feet of him are what is immortal in the sky.

[RV. x. 90. 3; VS. xxxi. 3; SV. i. 621; TA. iii. 12. 1; ChU. iii. 12. 6.] RV. reads in a, b: etāvān asya mahimā 'to jy-; VS.TA. agree with RV. (but TA. [in the Calc. ed. only] shortens the ū of pūruṣaḥ in b). [SV. makes up its vss. 620 and 621 thus: 620 = RV. 2 a, b (our 4 a, b) + RV. 3 c, d (our 3 c, d); 621 = RV. 3 a, b (our 3 a, b) + RV. 2 c, d (our 4 c, d); that is, between the two halves of our vs. 4, it interjects the two halves of our vs. 3 in inverted order.] SV. has for our a, b, tāvān asya mahimā tāto jy- etc.; and, for the viçvā of our c, it has sārvā; [and so has KaṭhaB.]. Ppp. omits asya in a and has pād asya in c. 'Foot,' of course, in this and in the next verse, = 'quarter.' [ChU. agrees with SV., except that it does not dislocate the two halves of our vs. As to the vs. in ChU., cf. Böhtlingk, Berichte der sächs. Gesell., July 10, 1897, p. 82; in his edition, he emends the vs. to conformity with the RV. readings.]

4. Purusha is just this all, what is and what is to be; also [is he] lord $(\bar{\imath} \bar{\varsigma} var\acute{a})$ of immortality, which was together with another.

[RV. x. 90. 2; VS. xxxi. 2; SV. i. 620; TA. iii. 12. I.] The wholly obscure last pāda is doubtless a mere corruption, all the other texts reading instead yād ānnenā 'tirôhati (which is itself obscure enough). In c, all of them give tānas; and in b, RV.TA. [and Ppp. and KaṭhaB.] have bhāvyam, SV. bhāvyam, VS. bhāvyām; this last should be the reading of our text also, as all the mss. have it; [rather: all of W's and seven of SPP's ten authorities;] SPP. accepts it; the comm. has bhavyam, and, in d, annena. Some of the mss. accent ányena; [that is, they have the spelling of anyéna and the accent of ānnena]. [Pāda b is nearly = xiii. 1. 54 d.]

5. When they separated (vi-dhā) Purusha, in how many parts did they distribute (vi-kļp) him? what was his face? what his (two) arms? what are called his (two) thighs [and] feet?

[RV. x. 90. 11; VS. xxxi. 10; TA. iii. 12. 5.] The mss. vary between vydaadhus and vydaadhus; the pada-mss., between vi:ad- and vi:dd: the latter is (without any good reason: cf. my Skt. $Gr.^2$ § 1084 a) [and note to xviii. 1. 39] the reading of the RV. pada-text. [In b, KaṭhaB. has enam for our vi.] In c, d, VS. agrees with our text, save that it wantonly defaces the meter by intruding an unnecessary $\bar{a}sit$ after asya;

RV.TA. have for klm (except the first time) $k\bar{a}\hat{u}$; and RV. combines $k\bar{a}$ \bar{u} - and $p\bar{a}d\bar{a}$ uc- [AV. and RV. pada-texts, $p\bar{a}d\bar{a}u$], while TA. has $k\bar{a}v$ and $p\bar{a}d\bar{a}v$; Ppp. has $p\bar{a}d\bar{a}v$ ucyate: cf. Prāt. ii. 22 and note; [also my Noun-Inflection, p. 341]. [KaṭhaB. agrees with VS. in showing the intrusive $\bar{a}s\bar{u}t$, and with Ppp. in reading the ungrammatical ucyate.]

6. The Brahman was his face; the Kshatriya (rājanyà) became his (two) arms; the Vāiçya [was] his middle; from his (two) feet was born the Çūdra.

[RV. x. 90. 12; VS. xxxi. 11; TA. iii. 12. 5.] The other three texts read in b rājanyāh krtáh, and in c ūrū (for mádhyam).

7. The moon [is] born from his mind; from his eye the sun was born; from his mouth both Indra and Agni; from his breath Vāyu was born.

[RV. x. 90. 13; VS. xxxi. 12; TA. iii. 12. 6.] RV.TA. have no variant from our text; VS. reads for the second line crótrād vāyúç ca prāṇáç ca múkhād agnir ajāyata. [KaṭhaB. has for b the much better cákṣuṣor ádhi sūryaḥ (avoiding the undesirable cákṣos: see Noun-Inflection, p. 569 top, p. 410 top); and in c, d it agrees with VS., except that it substitutes násor for crótrād.]

8. From his navel was the atmosphere; from his head the sky came into being (sam-vṛt); from his (two) feet the earth, the quarters from his ear (çrótra): so shaped they the worlds.

[RV. x. 90. 14; VS. xxxi. 13; TA. iii. 12. 6.] The three other texts agree with ours throughout.

9. Virāj in the beginning came into being $(sam-bh\bar{u})$; out of Virāj, Purusha; it, when born, exceeded the earth behind, also in front.

[RV. x. 90. 5; VS. xxxi. 5; SV. i. 622; TA. iii. 12. 2.] RV.TA. read, for a, tásmād virād ajāyata; SV.VS. [and KaṭhaB. read] the same, save tátas for tásmāt. Ppp. reads in b pāuruṣāt, and in d purā. [For puraḥ in the Berlin ed., read puráḥ.]

10. When, with Purusha as oblation, the gods extended the sacrifice, spring was its sacrificial butter, summer its fuel, autumn its oblation.

[RV. x. 90. 6; VS. xxxi. 14; TA. iii. 12. 3.] [The first half-verse is our vii. 5. 4 a, b, where, however, devās follows yajāām.] Of the other three texts, the only variant is vasantò 'sy- in VS.

II. They sprinkled with the early rain $(pr\bar{a}v\dot{r}s)$ that sacrifice, Purusha, born in the beginning; therewith the gods sacrificed, the Perfectibles $(s\bar{a}dhy\dot{a})$ and they that are Vasus.

[RV. x. 90. 7; VS. xxxi. 9; TA. iii. 12. 3.] The other three texts agree in reading in a barhişi (for prāvṛṣā), in b agratás, in d ṛṣayas (for vásavas). Ppp. has in d sādhyā tan. One or two of our mss. give agratás (like RV. etc.); about half SPP's authorities accent áyajanta [as does also TA.].

12. From that were born horses, and whatever [animals] have teeth in both jaws; kine were born from that; from that [are] born goats and sheep.

- [RV. x. 90. 10; VS. xxxi. 8; TA. iii. 12. 5.] The other three texts [but not KathaB.] omit ca after $y \neq in b$.
- 13. From that all-sacrificing sacrifice were born the verses (ic), the chants (sáman); meter [sic!] were born from that; sacrificial formula was born from that.
- [RV. x. 90.9; VS. xxxi.7; TA. iii. 12.4.] The other texts have at beginning of c chándānsi, and our edition gives the same; but the mss., except one of ours p. m. and two of SPP's, read instead chándo ha, and SPP. follows them; this, though an ungrammatical corruption (as shown in the translation), has the best right to figure as Atharvan text.

 [See p. xcvii.]
- 14. From that all-sacrificing sacrifice was collected the speckled butter (pṛṣadājyá); it made those cattle belonging to Vāyu those that are of the forest and of the village.

That is, the wild and the tame. [The verse is RV. x. 90. 8; VS. xxxi. 6; TA. iii. 12. 4.] RV. alone combines in \mathbf{c} paçān $t\bar{a}$; in \mathbf{d} , RV. and TA. read $\bar{a}rany\bar{a}n$. SPP. unaccountably accents at end of \mathbf{b} pryadājyām, against the majority of his mss., all of ours, and the usage everywhere else. The mss. vary between $v\bar{a}yavy\bar{a}n$ and $v\bar{a}yavy\bar{a}n$. Ppp. has in \mathbf{c} cakrire; [and so has KaṭhaB.].

- 15. Seven were made its enclosing sticks (paridhi), thrice seven its pieces of fuel, when the gods, extending the sacrifice, bound Purusha as victim.
- [RV. x. 90. 15; VS. xxxi. 15; TA. iii. 12. 3.] The other three texts offer no variant. In connection with the 'seven,' the comm. of course thinks of the meters; of the 'twenty-one' he gives more than one explanation, sufficient to show that he is merely guessing.
- 16. Seven times seventy rays (ançú) were born from the head of the great god, of king Soma, when born out of Purusha.

This verse is found nowhere else. The RV. has also a 16th verse, an appendage to the hymn in a different meter, which was earlier found as RV. i. 164. 50, and is our vii. 5. 1, besides occurring in a number of other texts—in VS. [xxxi. 16] and TA. [iii. 12. 7], in connection with the rest of the Purusha-hymn. The comm. refers to the double character of soma, as plant and as moon, and notes that, while the sun's rays are a thousand, those of the moon are four hundred and ninety.

7. To the lunar asterisms: for blessings.

[Gārgya. - pañca. mantroktanakṣatradevatyam. trāistubham: 4. bhurij.]

The hymn is wanting in Pāipp. The comm. finds it used three times (in 1, 6, and 12) in the Naksatra Kalpa.

[Regarding the asterisms in general, the reader may consult Whitney's Oriental and Linguistic Studies, ii., pages 351-356, 377, and 421 and the chart following it, or else Whitney in JAOS., vi. 414, 468, and chart; further, Weber's essays, Die vadischen Nachrichten von den naxatra, Abh. der Berliner Ak., 1860 and 1861.* A list of the asterisms is given in my translation of the Karpūra-mañjarī, appended to Konow's ed.,

p. 214. Especially important are the nakṣatra-passages, TS. iv. 4. 10 and TB. i. 5. 2 and iii. I. I-2: cf. references to asterisms in AV. vi. IIO and notes, ii. 8, xiv. 1. 13, etc. — Note, on the one hand, that our series begins, as does that in TS., with the old beginning in Taurus, to wit, with the Krttikas or Pleiades, and not (as later: see Whitney, O. and L. S., ii. 421), two asterisms further to the west, in Aries, with açvayujāu or açvinī ($\beta$ and $\gamma$ Arietis). Note also, on the other hand, that our series, unlike the series in TS., by including abhijit or Vega, far to the north of the ecliptic, comprises 28 asterisms, as is expressly stated below, at 8. 2 a: but whether 28 or 27 is the original Hindu number is a moot point carefully discussed by Whitney, l.c., pages 409-411. — The names of the asterisms in our hymn differ from those in TS. in a number of minor and major points: most notable among the latter is the TS. name tisyd for the 6th (or 8th) asterism, our pusyá; and TS. has crona for the 21st (or 23d), our crávana. Bloomfield, in his part of the Grundriss, p. 35, observes that this hymn and the next are repeated in full in Naksatra Kalpa 10 and 26; and he infers that the date of the incorporation of these hymns into the text of the Vulgata is posterior to the time of the Nakṣatra Kalpa, because, in the contrary case, they would have been quoted by their pratīkas. | *| See especially the second essay, pages 300, 303, 315: at p. 300, Weber gives the deities of the several asterisms.

Translated: Griffith, ii. 265.

1. Seeking favor of the twenty-eight-fold (?) wondrous ones, shining in the sky together, ever-moving, hasting in the creation (bhúvana), I worship (sapary) with songs the days, the firmament (náka).

The translation implies our conjectural emendation of $turml_{cam}$ [two of W's mss., -mich] in c to $astavin_{cam}$ (or -ca). [This is supported by the textually unimpeachable $astavin_{cam}$ of 8. 2 a, and the fact that the scries in this hymn is actually of 28 members, as noted in the introduction.] The comm. has $turmi_{cam}$, and gives for it a double etymology and explanation: either it is turmi + ca, or it is tur + mica; in the former case, turmi is from root turv, and means "injuring" (hinsaka), and ca is the root ca sharpen, hence "make thin"; in the latter case, tur is [a root-stem from] root turv, and mica is by Vedic license for misa, from root mis "contend" (spardhavam); in either case, the compound means "putting down oppressors," and is adjective qualifying sumatim! All the mss. accent saparvami, and SPP. admits it in his text; the accent is defensible, and would be required by Brāhmaṇa usage. Our emendation in c helps the meter as well as the sense; but no stress can be laid upon the circumstance that the Anukr. appears to regard the verse as a full tristubh.

2. Easy of invocation for me [be] the Kṛittikās and Rohiṇī; be Mṛigaçiras excellent, [and] Ārdrā healthful ($\varsigma\acute{a}m$); be the two Punarvasus pleasantness, Pushya what is agreeable, the Āçleshās light ($bhān\acute{u}$), the Maghās progress ($\acute{a}yana$) [for me].

The translation again implies in a the emendation me for agne, made in our text, for the improvement both of sense and of meter; SPP. reads agne; and the comm. points out that an is invoked here because he is the deity of Krttikas, and that the deities also of the other asterisms are to be regarded as included in their invocations—which is quite ingenious. The mss. in b are divided between câm and sâm; in c, between púsyas and pusyas; SPP. gives púsyas, with, as he reports, nearly all his authorities; and this is doubtless the better supported reading. There seems to be no good reason for imagining that dyana in d contains any hidden reference to the solstice (in later astronomical language, ayana, by abbreviation for ayanānta 'end of a [northern or southern] progress of the sun') as occurring in Maghās.

3. Be the former Phalgunīs and Hasta here auspicious (púnyam); be Chitrā propitious, and Svāti easy (sukhā) for me; be the two Viçākhās bestowal (rādhas), Anurādhā easy of invocation, Jyeshṭhā a good asterism, Mūla uninjured.

There are sundry difficulties in this verse, in part attempted to be removed by emendation in our edition. It is very strange to find in a the former Phalgunīs distinctly mentioned, and the latter (uttara) as distinctly left out; it would be easy to put the dvaya of 5 b in place of purva here; * or one wonders whether uttara is not somehow hidden in the awkwardly redundant átra. All the mss. (both sanh. and pada) agree in the ungrammatical | ending -tt of | svātt, and SPP. accordingly admits svātt into his text: ours emends to svātis: svāti would have been equally acceptable, and is supported by two of SPP's crotriyas | V. and K. | and by the comm. The masc, sukhás (p. suokháh) can hardly be tolerated; we ought to have sukhám, or else, with the comm., sukhá. All the mss. read in c rādhe, as if there were an adjective rādha; SPP. and the comm. read rådhe, the latter explaining it as another name for viçākhe (not a word defining the expected blessing!): this involves an anachronism,† and would be in the highest degree improbable even if it did not: rādho is a very easy and plausible improvement. Finally, all the mss. have in d arista mulam | cf. note to xviii. 2. 3 |, which SPP. adopts, in spite of its utter ungrammaticalness; the comm., with his usual disregard of pada-text and accent, appears to understand aristamūlam, a compound.

*[Or rather to put dvayé? The comm. renders purva by purve, for which purva is a bad reading or a worse solecism. But the position of ca, too, is very suspicious.] †[I suppose Whitney's implication is that $r\bar{a}dh\bar{a}$, as a name for the 14th (or 16th) asterism $vic\bar{a}kh\bar{a}$, is a later one, based on a misunderstanding of the name of the 15th (or 17th) asterism, $anur\bar{a}dh\bar{a}$, which word simply means 'success' (cf. anv $es\bar{a}m$ $ar\bar{a}tsme$ ' ti: tid $anur\bar{a}dh\bar{a}h$, TB. i. 5. 28), but was thought of as meaning the one 'after (anu) or following $r\bar{a}dh\bar{a}h$.']

4. Let the former Ashāḍhās give me food; let the latter ones bring refreshment; let Abhijit give me what is auspicious; let Çravaṇa [and] the Çravishṭhās make good prosperity.

Here are more bad readings: in a, the mss. give $p\bar{u}rv\bar{u}$ $r\bar{a}sat\bar{u}m$, and SPP. accepts the reading, as if $r\bar{a}sat\bar{u}m$ could be 3d du. act., which, in view of all the circumstances, is absurd; our emendation to $-nt\bar{u}m$ is unavoidable.* In b, the mss. vary between $dehy~\dot{u}tt$ - [all of Whitney's and most of SPP's] and $devy~\dot{u}tt$ -, and SPP. adopts the latter, because the comm. has it; but then the comm. makes no difficulty of understanding it as = devyas; it is merely, in his opinion, a Vedic substitution of sing. for pl.; and it is to be hoped that no modern scholar would follow him in that. The emendation of our text to $y\dot{e}$ hy $\dot{u}ttare$, \dagger considering that all our mss. (and all but two of SPP's authorities) have $\dot{u}ttare$ (p. $\dot{u}volare$), was a naturally suggested and easy one; but we need instead $y\dot{a}$ hy $\dot{u}ttar\dot{a}$ \dot{a} , feminine words, like the $p\dot{u}rv\dot{a}s$ [the pada-mss. and the Anukr. read $p\dot{u}rv\dot{a}$] in a; SPP. reads $\dot{u}ttar\dot{a}s$, with the comm. and two of his reciters. The meter of d would be better if we had $coldsymbol{v}sas$ for $coldsymbol{v}sas$ but the Anukr. acknowledges the redundancy of the verse.

- *[SPP. seems rather to view rāsatām in a as of the plural number, 3d person imperative middle, = dadatu (the ms. of the comm. has in fact dadātu, singular): and plural 3d it might be (from the s-aorist tense-stem rās, used as a secondary root: Gram. § 896), thus conforming in number with vahantu. On the other hand, we cannot take rāsatām in c otherwise than as of the singular number, 3d person imperative middle of the a-conjugation, present-stem rāsa: and the identical form in a ought, one would think, to be of the same value. If we take it as singular, and read asadha as fem. and sing. so as to conform with pūrvā (p. pūrvā), then pāda b is intolerably out of congruity with a in the matters of gender and number. - I offer the following suggestions for what they may be worth. First, in spite of the (unauthoritative) pada-reading útotare, I would take the úttarā \dot{a} of the living reciters K.V. as representing a correct metrical utterance of úttarā (= útotarā:ā). Secondly, for vahantu I would read vahātu (cf. svadātu, nudātu, muācātu): this seems to me better than a possible vahāti, and does as little violence to the tradition as the rāsantām and yé hy úttare suggested above. If our vahantu is a corruption, it may well be a faulty assimilation (cf. end of ¶ 4 of note on xviii. 4. 87) of vahātu to the ending of vs. 5 d. — My text then would be as follows: ánnam púrvā (p. -vā) rāsatām (as 3d sing.) me aṣāḍhórjam (p. -ḍhā : ur-) devy úttarā vahātu (p. devi : úttarā : ā : vahātu): 'may the Former Ashādhā give me food; may the Latter, the divine one, bring refreshment.' | † It appears from the Collation Book that RW. meant in fact to print yé hy útta-; but the Berlin ed. has actually yé hy ûtta-, an accent-mark having perhaps slipped to the left, over hyu from over tta.
- 5. Let Çatabhishaj [bring] to me what is great widely; let the double Proshthapadās [bring] to me good protection (suçárman); let Revatī and the two Açvayuj [bring] fortune to me; let the Bharaṇīs bring to me wealth.

There are no difficulties or variants in this verse.

8. For well-being: to the asterisms etc.

[Gārgya. — sapta. mantroktanakṣatradevatyam (6. brāhmaṇaspatyā). trāiṣṭubham: 1. virāḍ jagatī; 6. 3-av. 6-p. atijagatī.]

Verses 4-6 are found in Pāipp. xx. The same viniyoga is pointed out by the comm. for this as for the preceding hymn.

[As to the asterisms, and as to the inclusion of the full text of this hymn in the Naksatra Kalpa, see introduction to hymn 7.]

Translated: Griffith, ii. 267.

1. What asterisms are in the sky, in the atmosphere, in the waters, on the earth, what ones in the mountains, in the quarters, what ones the moon goes on preparing (pra-klp), let all those be propitious to me.

The mss., and so SPP., have the incorrect accent prakalpayan in c; it is emended in our text. It is possible, but not natural, to count in the verse 46 syllables, with the Anulyana.

2. Let them of the series of twenty-eight, propitious, helpful, together allot to me acquisition (yóga); I go forward to acquisition and possession (kséma); I go forward to possession and acquisition; homage be to day-and-night.

In b, the comm. reads sahá yógam as a compound, sahayogam. He explains, after the usual fashion, yoga as alabdhavastuprāpti (his ms., alabhya-), and kṣema as labdhavastuparipālana, and the translation follows him. The verse (11 + 8:8 + 8 + 8 = 43) is quite improperly let pass as simply a triṣṭubh. [As for the twenty-eight, see introduction to hymn 7.]

3. Be it for me well at sunset (?), well in early morning, well at evening, well by day; be it for me well with beasts, well with birds; with easy invocation, O Agni, having gone with well-being to a mortal, come thou again enjoying.

In a the translation follows our conjectural emendation of svåstitam (or svastt tåm, or svasttam, as some of the mss. variously read; the pada-texts have svastt: tåm or svåstitam; [one ms. and two crotriyas of SPP. and] the comm. give svastt tåt) to svastamitām, which is bold, but not implausible. For sudivām the comm. has the better supported sudinam. The mss. [except D. and L., which read suçakunām] and SPP. accent suçakunām, which may be correct. The translation of the second half-verse is only a makeshift; the line appears to be thoroughly corrupt; implied is the reading svastyā mārtyam gatvā; SPP. reads, with nearly all the mss., svasty àmārtyam gatvā, against the proper accent āmartyam. SPP's pada-mss. read at the end āya: abhionāndan (one has āyā); both our mss. are imperfect, one reading simply ā, the other perhaps āyā with the y erased; if the word is to be accepted at all, it should apparently be a: aya. The repetition of martya in our text is doubtless too daring, considering how unsatisfactory a result it yields after all.

4. Detraction, evil gossip, reproach, sneezing about (?)—them, O Savitar, drive (suva) away for me empty-handed (?), with all.

The translation implies the text of the mss., which is also read by SPP., in the second half-verse: sárvāir me riktakumbhān párā [most mss. parā or yarā] tānt savitaḥ suva; we might alter sárvāis to sarvātas, so as to fill out the meter and give a much better sense; the comm. understands it to mean "allied with all the deities of the asterisms"; riktakumbha he simply glosses with çūnyakalaça, adding no further explanation; the Pet. Lexx. conjecture "perhaps idle talk (lit. emptypottedness)"; the translation implies their going away 'with empty vessels'—that is, carrying off no result or advantage. The comm. explains anuhavā as a calling out [inauspiciously] to a person from behind, and parihavā as the same from both sides; parivādā is "harsh talk" (paruṣa-bhāṣaṇa); parikṣavā is [alternatively] sarvatāḥ kṣutām. Some of the mss. read parichavām in b [cf. note* and vs. 5]. Ppp. has for b partvādam parikṣayam; and for c, d, savyāimaviriktakumbhyām parā tām savitus savaḥ. The comm. appears to read suvaḥ at the end, but glosses it with parākuru, as if suva.

[The AV. comm. begins his remarks on this vs. virtually as follows: If a man sets out on business under a lucky asterism, and some one from behind him calls his name or does something of that sort [probably scolding, sneezing, and coughing are meant], those things are of ill-omen as tending to thwart the business in hand; and this verse contains a prayer for warding off the ill effects of those omens. (In this connection, we may note the cries and slaps by which the woodpecker deters the hunter just as he sets out, Jātaka, ii. 153²², 154³.) — It almost seems as if our comm. were acquainted with ApGS. 9. 2, which prescribes an expiation in case some one sneezes or coughs near one who is setting out on business: arthaprādhvasya parikṣave parikāsane cāpa upaspṛçyo 'ttare yathālingam japet (cf. ed. of Winternitz, p. 12 and p. 61). Winternitz, Hochzeitsrituell, p. 95 (cf. p. 26), gives the verses that are to be repeated: I give them as he has printed them at MP. i. 13. 5-6: anuhavám parihavám parīvādám parikṣapám: dúsvapnam (should be niam) dúruditam tád dviṣádbhyo diçāmy ahám: ánuhūtam párihūtam çakúnāir yád açākunám: mṛgásya sṛtám akṣṇáyā tád etc. This passage and AV. x. 3. 6 stand in close rapport with our vss. 3-4 here.

- *[As for the readings parichavam and chavam as against parikṣavam and kṣavam (4 b, 5 a, b), the former are avouched by a large minority of SPP's authorities and they prevail also in the mss. first collated by Whitney: and so Ppp. has paricchava for parikṣava of our x. 3. 6. The forms with ch appear to be allowable Prākritisms, like uchantu = ukṣantu at iii. 12. 4: cf. rchara = rtsara at x. 9. 23 and my note; and uccase = ucyase at xii. 4. 4. For sneezing as an omen, see Henry C. Warren, On superstitious customs connected with sneezing, JAOS. xiii. = PAOS. May, 1885, p. xvii-xx. He quotes Jātaka, ii., p. 15 ff. etc., and Whitney adds JB. ii. 155.]
- 5. [Drive] away evil sneezing about; may we enjoy (bhaj) propitious (púnya) sneezing; let the evil-nosed jackal and the púnyaga urinate upon [it] for thee.

Part of the mss. read in a, b parichavam and chavam: [see note * to vs. 4]. All the mss., and so SPP., have at the beginning apapāpām; the comm., with us, ápa pāpām. Again, all the mss. and SPP. accent bhakṣīmāhi. Ppp. reads āpa māpa parikṣapam puṇyam bhakṣīmahi kṣapam, which gives no help. For c, d, SPP. reads çivā te pāpa nāsikām pūṇyagaç cā 'bhi mehatām (the pada being pūṇyaogaḥ : ca : abhi : me : hatām); the comm., çivā te pāpanāçikā paṇḍakaç cā 'bhi medhatām. The comm. explains çivā as a name for jackal (so adopted in the translation above); pāpanāçikā is, of course, destroying evil; abhi medhatām = protsāhayatu: the general sense being that, whereas the sight or hearing of a jackal, or the sight of a eunuch, is a bad omen, they are in virtue of the spell of this verse to have a totally opposite influence. How SPP. would render his text [of a, in particular?] it is impossible to see. The version given here lays no claim to being of any value. Ppp. reads çivā te pāpanāçakā (in this word favoring the comm.) ṣaṇṇagasyā 'bhimehataḥ, which does not seem to help us. The reading of the line in our edition is not to be praised.

6. These (fem.), O Brahmanaspati, that go dispersing upon the wind — do thou, O Indra, making them come together, make them most propitious for me.

The pada-mss. give in b $v\bar{a}tah$ instead of $v\bar{a}te$, which latter is evidently the true reading. The comm. also understands $v\bar{a}tas$, which compels him to take trate as = irte, and to translate it as if causative. The comm. understands the quarters (dicas) as intended, and points it out as well-known that in a violent wind these are confounded, one of them being taken for another. This is hardly better than silly; but what is really the subject of the verse is very hard to see. The Anukr. omits any definition of these three anustubh verses*; and, what is much more strange, although it describes the hymn as of seven verses, and the mss. and the comm. so number, it combines 6 and 7 together into one verse as 8+8:8+8:11+9=52. [Ppp. has, for b, visiacer vacaty] at end of d-tamas krdhi.]

7. Let well-being be ours; let fearlessness be ours; homage be to day-and-night.

The verse is wanting in Ppp.

9. For appeasement and weal: to various divinities.

[Brahman (çāntikāmaḥ). — caturdaça. sāumyam. trāistubham: 1. virād urobrhatī; 5. 5-p. pathyāpaūkti; 9. 5-p. kakummatī; 12. 3-av. 7-p. aṣṭi; 14. 4-p. sankṛti.] [The Anukr. adds: çeṣāḥ (that is vss. 2-4, 6-8, 10-11, 13) kānḍapratīkatvenā* nuṣṭubhaḥ. There thus remains not a single vs. that is not excepted from the definition trāiṣṭubham! — The Berlin ms., in its treatment of hymns 9-12, after ekarcam (h. 12), adds: vāsiṣṭhaṁ vāiçvadevaṁ çantātīyaṁ trāiṣṭubham (these four words apply we'l to hymns 10-11) ādyam (hymn 9) mantroktabahudevatyam. W. follows the London ms.] *[At the beginning of its treatment of the kānḍa, the Anukr. says brahmakānḍam ānuṣṭubham.]

The hymn is not found in Pāipp. The comm. finds it used in Pariçista 4. 5 ("muttering this, one should conduct a king to his dwelling-house") and 6. 5 (in the piṣtarātri-kalpa), and in Nakṣ. K. 18, as a hymn belonging to the çānti gaṇa (cf. note to Kāuç. 9. 7). Translated: Griffith, ii. 268.

1. Appeased $(q\bar{a}nt\dot{a})$ be heaven $(dy\dot{u})$, appeased be earth, appeased be this wide atmosphere, appeased the waters rich in moisture $(udanv\dot{a}nt)$, appeased be the herbs for us.

| With a, b, cf. AGS. ii. 4. 14; PGS. iii. 3. 6; MGS. ii. 8. 6 b. |

2. Appeased be the foretokens, appeased for us be the-done-andundone, appeased both what is and what is to be: be just everything weal for us.

The comm. explains pūrvarūpāni first as kāryāpekṣayā kāraṇāvasthāpannāni vastūni, and again as "former births, the fruit of evil deeds." Instead of nas in b it reads me; and it points out that 'the done' means what is done that should not be done, and 'the undone' what was left undone that should have been done—which is far from necessary or certain.

- 3. This speech that is most exalted, divine, sharpened by bráhman, by which is produced (srj) what is terrible by that be there appearement for us.
- 4. Or (?) this mind that is most exalted, sharpened by brahman, by which is produced what is terrible by that be there appearement for us.

All the mss. read in b $v\bar{a}m$ instead of $v\bar{a}$, and SPP's text follows them. The comm. makes no mention of either in its exposition of the verse; but its text (so SPP. reports) reads $v\bar{a}$, as does ours by emendation.

5. These five senses, with mind as sixth, that are in my heart, sharpened by bráhman, by which is produced what is terrible—by them be there appearement for us.

The mss. read mánah sastháni (p. mánah : sastháni), but SPP., as well as our text, emends to -tháni, and this the comm. also understands. In all the verses 3-5, some of the mss. leave sasrje unaccented. This verse (10+8+7:8+8=41) is ill defined by the Anukr.

6. Weal for us be Mitra, weal Varuņa, weal Vishņu, weal Prajāpati, weal for us Indra, Brihaspati, weal for us be Aryaman.

This verse corresponds nearly to RV. i. 90. 9 and VS. xxxvi. 9; both these, however, put the padas in the order a, d, c, b, and they read for our b came no visnur urukramah.

7. Weal for us be Mitra, weal Varuṇa, weal Vivasvant, weal the destroyer (ántaka), [weal] the portents from earth and from atmosphere, weal for us the planets (?) moving in the sky.

The mss. vary between utpātās and utpātās, the great majority favoring the former. SPP. reads pārthivā "ntārikṣās, giving in pada-text -vā: ānt-, while the pada-mss. read -vā: ant-; but his reading is palpably wrong and impossible, while a very slight emendation would have given pārthivāntarikṣās (implying the pada-text pārthivaoāntarikṣāḥ), which is implied in the translation above. The comm. explains as if he had pārthivās and āntarikṣās as two separate words; but, according to SPP., his text reads pārthivāntarikṣāḥ. Half the saṃhitā-mss. or more combine -ikṣāchām no, as if the word had ended in -kṣāt; and, as these included all known to us down to the time of printing, our text reflects them. The comm. of course makes no question of explaining grahās at the end as "Mars and the rest"; and perhaps there is no sufficient reason for questioning that interpretation. The Anukr. does not remark the redundancy of a syllable in 7 c.

8. Weal for us be the quaking (vip) earth, and weal what is meteorsmitten; weal be the red-milked kine, weal the earth when cleaving down.

All the mss. accent vepyamāná in a, and nearly all (including the pada-mss.) end it as a nom. pl. -mānāh; SPP. emends by dropping the blundering visarga, but does not venture to alter the equally blundering accent; of course, it must be made vepyámānā, as pres. pass. pple of the causative, unless we emend further to vépamānā, as our text reads, and as is decidedly better. The comm. reads vepyamānā, and explains it once by kampamānā and once by kampyamānā. | Most | mss., and SPP., read in b ulkā nirh-; | but Whitney's I. and three of SPP's authorities give ni- for nir- |; the comm. | reads -ni- and | understands the two words to form a compound, as it is made to be in our text by simply removing the accent of -nir-; one does not see the applicability of the prefix nis. In c, some of the mss. read lohitah, and some accent ksirāh; 'redmilked' would be with equal propriety rendered 'bloody-milked'; and the two things are of course equivalent. In d, the comm. has avadīryatī, glossing it with avadīryamāṇā, and this reading has been gratefully adopted in the translation. All the mss. give avatiryatis, and all the pada-mss. divide it avatih: yatih; SPP. emends to ava tiryatih, by which nothing at all is gained; we emended to avatiryati, which is at least grammatical, though hardly intelligible; avadīryatī is both; one of SPP's reciters gives áva dīryati].

9. Be the meteor-smitten asterism weal for us; weal for us the enchantments and weal be the witcherafts; weal for us the buried spells (valaga), weal the meteors; and weal be for us the land-plagues.

Literally, 'the afflictions (upasarga) of a region.' All the mss. read in a ulkābhth-(p. ulkā: abhtoh-), which SPP. accordingly adopts; the comm. again (as in 8 b) regards it compound, which it is unquestionably meant to be, and which our text gives by emendative; the prefix abhi suits the situation, as nir (8 b) did not. In c, SPP. has the better accent nikhātās, with a large minority of his mss.; none of ours give it, and we accepted nikhātās, since it is not without support elsewhere. Our valagās was an emendation for valgās; but our two pada-mss. [D.s.m. L.] compared later, have valagāh, as does one of SPP's; the latter, however, adopts valgas, against meter and sense, and against the comm. The pada-mss. all have ulkas in c, an evident blunder for -kas, which SPP, this time ventures to read by emendation: it is extremely difficult to understand his selection of the cases where he is willing to emend. The metrical definition of the verse (really 12 + 11 : 11 + 11 = 45) by the Anukr. is as bad as possible.

10. Weal for us be the planets belonging to the moon, and weal the sun $(\bar{a}dity\acute{a})$ with Rāhu; weal for us smoke-bannered death, weal the Rudras of keen brightness.

The translation follows in b the text of the comm. ādityaç ca rāhuṇā, as is read also by SPP., who follows the comm. and three or four authorities. Most of the mss. have -tyaḥ çarāhuṇā (p. also çarāhuṇā), but two or three çaṁ rāhuṇā. Those that accent -rāhuṇā or rāhuṇā at all accent it on the final, -huṇā, and this accent SPP. has not dared to change, although it is against all rule and practice. In connection with dhūmaketu the comm. quotes Kāuç. 127. 1, where the word is used; it seems to me extremely unlikely that it signifies a comet; [does it not refer rather to the smoke that rises from the pyre?].

- 11. Weal [for us be] the Rudras, weal the Vasus, weal the Adityas, weal the fires; weal for us the divine great seers, weal the gods, weal Brihaspati.
- In c, SPP. reads maharsdyas, against most of his authorities (although he gives saptarsdyas in the two following verses). Some of the mss. leave devās in c unaccented; and two of SPP's treat the word in the same manner in d. Our emendation in d to devās is probably too venturesome, although it seems strange to have 'the gods' mentioned as a body in connection with the mention of so many of them separately.
- 12. The bráhman, Prajāpati, Dhātar, the worlds, the Vedas, the seven seers, the fires by them happy progress (svastyáyana) is made for me: let Indra grant (yam) me refuge; let Brahmán grant me refuge; let all the gods grant me refuge; let the gods all grant me refuge.

The Anukr., the comm., and a better connection are here followed, by adding to this verse the two pādas which in our edition are printed as 13 a, b, in accordance with the numbering of our mss. (8+10:8+8+8:10+10=62, two syllables short of a full asti); SPP makes the same division. Some of SPP's mss. read in b devās instead of vedās: the accent vedās seems to be modeled on devās, for 'the Vedas' should be védās, and the word ought doubtless to be so emended; [O.D. actually have védās, and the comm. says the four Vedas are intended]. We should expect at the beginning brahmā. [With c, cf. 16. 1 b.]

13. Whatsoever things that are appeased in the world the seven seers know, be they all weal for me; let weal be mine, let fearlessness be mine.

Many of the mss. accent in b loke and saptársayo. | In d asty is a misprint for astv. |

14. [Be] earth appeasement, atmosphere appeasement, sky appeasement, waters appeasement, herbs appeasement, forest trees appeasement; [be] all the gods appeasement for me, the gods all appeasement for me, appeasement with appeasements; by those appeasements all-appeasing do I appease what here is terrible, what here is cruel, what here is evil; [be] that appeased, [be] that propitious; be just everything weal for us.

With a large minority of his authorities, and with the comm., SPP. adds one more cantih before cantibhis at the end of the first division; in the second division, he follows the mss. slavishly in reading sarva cantibhis; the comm. apparently (it is defective here) agrees with our emendation to sarvaçantibhis. After this word, the mss. all have camayamoham, accenting either camayamoham or camayamoham; the pada-mss. divide it absurdly camaya: moham; the comm. understands it as camayamo ham, with substitution of aham for vayam by Vedic license (a mere exchange of plural and singular); SPP. unaccountably gives camayamoham with the pada-text cam: ayamah: aham; our emendation to camayamy aham is evidently necessary. Similar passages occur in VS. xxxvi. 17; TA. iv. 42 (28); MS. iv. 9. 27 [p. 13812]; but it is not worth while to quote them in detail; TA. (29) contains the compound sarvaçanti and MS. has sarvaçanti. The "verse" is the only one in the whole work that is called a samkrti (96 syllables); it counts naturally 94 syllables.

[Here ends the first anuvāka, with 9 hymns and 59 verses. The comm. (not SPP.) divides the Purusha-sūkta (our hymn 6) into two hymns, so that our vss. 1-5 make his hymn 6 and our vss. 6-16 make his hymn 7: thus his first anuvāka consists of 10 hymns.

— There are of course no further quotations from the Old Anukr. or Paūcapaṭalikā: cf. p. 896, line 4.]

10. For well-being.

[Brahman (çantikamah). — daça. saumyam. traistubham.]

This hymn and the one following it are together RV. vii. 35, this one being vss. I-IO of the latter, in unchanged order, and without a variant except in 8 b. Both are found together in Pāipp. xiii. [For the quotation of the hymn in the çānti gaṇa, see note to Kāuç. 9.7.]

Translated: Griffith, ii. 270; and also, of course, by the RV. translators.

I. Weal for us be Indra-and-Agni, with their aids; weal for us Indra-and-Varuṇa, on whom offerings are bestowed; weal Indra-and-Soma, for welfare, weal [and] profit $(y \delta s)$; weal for us Indra-and-Pūshan in bootywinning.

This verse is found also in VS. xxxvi. 11, which inverts the order of pādas c and d. The comm. takes indrāgnī in a as vocative [and says so expressly; but] apparently out of mere carelessness, as he does not make any change in the 3d du. verb bhavatām.

- 2. Weal for us be Bhaga, and weal for us Çansa; weal for us Purandhi, and weal be wealths; weal for us the tribute (çánsa) of well-ordered (suyáma) truth; weal for us be the much-born Aryaman.
- dropped out of Ppp. The comm. takes çansas in a to be by abbreviation for narāçansas.
- 3. Weal for us be Dhātar, and weal for us Dhartar; weal for us be the wide-spreading one (urūct) with her powers (?svadht); weal the two great firmaments $(r\delta das\bar{\imath})$, weal for us the rock (δdri) ; weal for us be the successful invocations of the gods.

The mss. write in b urūci, uruci, and ūrūci; the comm. explains it as the earth, dhartr as Varuṇa, separator (vidhārayitr) of the good and bad, and svadhā as anna; adri he simply glosses by parvata.

4. Weal for us be Agni with front of fight, weal for us Mitra-and-Varuna, weal the two Açvins; weal for us be the things well done of the well-doers; weal let the lively (isira) wind blow upon us.

Ppp. has in b -nā açvinā.

5. Weal for us be heaven-and-earth in our early invocation; the atmosphere be weal for us to see; weal for us be the herbs, the trees (vanin), weal for us be the conquering lord of the welkin (rajas).

The comm. regards Indra as intended in the last pada.

6. Weal for us be god Indra with the Vasus; weal Varuṇa of excellent praise [su-çánsa] with the Adityas; weal for us healing (jálāṣa) Rudra with the Rudras; unto weal for us let Tvashṭar listen here with his spouses (gnā).

The comm. declares jalāṣa a sukhanāman. All the pada-mss. have in d tvāṣṭā: agnābhiḥ! SPP. emends to gnābhiḥ; the comm. of course has gnābhis and glosses it with devapatnībhis. [As to suçānsa, cf. note to xviii. 3. 16.]

7. Weal for us be soma, weal for us the bráhman; weal for us the pressing-stones, and weal be the sacrifices; weal for us be the settings of the sacrificial posts; weal for us the sprouts (prasti), and weal be the sacrificial hearth (védi).

The sprouts, namely, of sacrificial grass. The comm. declares swaru used in the sense of $y\bar{u}pa$ as the thing possessed for the possessor. [The last pāda has dropped out of Ppp.]

8. With weal for us let the wide-looking sun arise; weal for us be the four directions; weal for us be the firm mountains; weal for us the rivers, and weal be the waters.

The RV. order of words in b [cf. introd.] is this: çám naç cátasrah pradiço bhavantu. [The first pāda has dropped out of Ppp.]

9. Weal for us be Aditi with her courses (vratá); weal for us be the tuneful (svarká) Maruts; weal for us Vishņu, and weal be for us Pūshan; weal for us the place of being (?bhavitra), and weal be Vāyu.

The comm. glosses vratebhis with karmabhih sārdham, and bhavitram by bhuvanam udakam antarikṣam vā. [Ppp. also reads bhavitram.]

10. Weal for us be the rescuing god Savitar; weal for us be the outshining dawns; weal for us be Parjanya for our progeny; weal for us be the wealful lord of the field (kṣétra).

The comm. quotes a verse to the effect that some regard Rudra, and some Agni, as 'lord of the field.'

11. For well-being.

[Brahman (çantikamah). — şat. saumyam. traistubham.]

The hymn is made up of the remaining verses of RV. vii.35, [vss. 11-15,] with another RV. verse (v. 47.7) added. Among the former the differences of order and reading are very slight. [The hymn is found, as noted under hymn 10, in Pāipp. xiii.] Translated: Griffith, ii. 272; and also, of course, by the RV. translators.

1. Weal for us be the lords of truth; weal for us the coursers and weal be the kine; weal for us the Ribhus, well-doers, having good hands; weal for us be the Fathers at our invocations.

This verse and the following one are found in RV. in inverted order (as vss. 12 and 11). The comm. quotes sundry RV. verses illustrating the character of the Ribhus, and is uncertain whether h dva at the end comes from root $h \bar{u}$ or from h u.

2. Weal for us be the gods, the all-gods; weal be Sarasvatī with the prayers (dht); weal the followers (?abhiṣác) and weal the gift-following (?rātiṣác); weal for us they of the sky, they of the earth, weal for us they of the waters.

This verse is found, without variant, also in TB. ii. 8. 63 and MS. iv. 14. 11. The comm. declares devā viçvādevās to mean bahustotrakā indrādayah; abhiṣācas, yajāam abhitah samavayanto devāh; and rātiṣācas, dānārtham samgacchamānā devāh—these two epithets belonging to the viçve devāh. Ppp. reads at the end āpyāh.

3. Weal for us be the divine $(dev\acute{a})$ one-footed goat $(aj\acute{a}\acute{e}kapad)$, weal the bottom snake $(\acute{a}hi\ budhny\grave{a})$, weal the ocean; weal for us be Peru, grandson of the waters $(ap\acute{a}in\ n\acute{a}p\~{a}t)$; weal for us be the spotted one $(p\acute{e}qni)$, guarded by the gods.

The RV. version reads in b cam no 'hir b-, and at the end -gopāh Müller's 2d quarto ed. and Aufrecht's 2d ed. have -gopā: as for the form, see my Noun-Inflection, p. 445]; Ppp. agrees with RV. in b, and has -gopāh at the end. The comm. explains perús as pārayitē duḥkhebhyah, and preni as mother of the Maruts. The omission of nas in our b makes the meter defective, but the Anukr. takes no notice of it.

4. Let the Adityas, the Rudras, the Vasus enjoy this very new worship (bráhman) as it is performed; let there hear us them of the sky, them of the earth, also the kine-born, who are worshipful.

The RV. version $\lfloor vs. \ 14 \rfloor$ reads at end of a jusanta. The comm. explains $goj\bar{a}t\bar{a}s$ as the Maruts, born of Prçni.

5. They who are the worshipful priests (rtvij) of the gods, to be worshiped of man (mánu), immortal, right-knowing — let them bestow on us to w wide passage (urugāyá): do ye protect us ever with blessings.

RV. reads in a devånām yajātyā yajātyānām. The comm. apparently takes $-g\bar{a}ya$ as from $g\bar{a}$ 'sing,' as he glosses $urug\bar{a}yam$ with $prabh\bar{u}t\bar{a}m$ $k\bar{t}rtim$, and does not even, as is his wont in such cases, give an alternative explanation implying $g\bar{a}$ 'go.'

6. Be it so, O Mitra-and-Varuna, so, O Agni: weal [and] profit for us be this praise (çastá); may we reach sounding (gādhá) and firm standing; homage to the great sky, [our] seat.

The verse is found, without variant, as RV. v. 47. 7. The comm. takes çastam in b as adjective to çam yos, which is perhaps better; also it connects bṛhate with sādanāya, and understands by this the earth. Ppp. reads is c gātum for gādham, and in d sādhanāya.

12. For success and long life.

[Brahman (çāntikāmaḥ). — ekarcam. sāumyam. trāistubham.]

The hymn, or verse, is wanting in Pāipp. Its first half is identical with RV. x. 172. 4; its second half, with RV. vi. 17. 15 (also SV. i. 454). It is reckoned as a çānti-hymn, and used as such in company with the hymns that precede it [see note to Kāuç. 9. 7].

Translated: Griffith, ii. 273; and by the RV. translators.

1. The dawn, with nobleness, makes the darkness roll together [and] away on her sister's track; therewith may we win the prize (vdja) set by the gods; may we revel, living a hundred winters, rich in heroes.

The sense of the first half-verse is difficult and doubtful. Apa in a is really an emendation [following RV.], all our mss. [save B., which has asah], and very nearly all SPP's (only one has apa [and one, apa]) reading instead apah; the comm. has apa. Half [of SPP's authorities, and one or two of W's] give in b suyatata. The comm. amuses himself with etymologizing svasr as svayam eva sarint.

13. For success in war: [Apratiratha hymn].

[Apratiratha. - ekādaça. āindram. trāistubham: 3-6, 11. bhurij.]

The hymn is, with slight variations, identical for the most part with the familiar Apratiratha hymn of the Rig-Veda (x. 103), found also in other texts: VS. xvii. 33 ff.; SV. ii. 1199 ff.; TS. iv. 6.4; MS. ii. 10.4. [The readings of VS. and SV. agree with those of RV., as noted under vs. 2.] Our first verse is peculiar, being found elsewhere only in SV. (ii. 1219); and vss. 10, 12, 13 of the RV. hymn are here wanting. [The RV. vss. here occur in the order 1-3, 5-7, 4, 8-9, 11.] The hymn occurs also in Pāipp. vii. In Vāit. 1. 18, the selected brahman-priest is directed to recite the Apratiratha hymn; this probably means our hymn; GB. (ii. 1. 18) quotes the pratīka of our vs. 1 as the apratiratha. [Varāhamihira's Yogayātrā (8.6) prescribes the hymn for use by a king just about to march forth to war: Ind. Stud. xv. 170.]

Translated: Griffith, ii. 273; and by the RV. translators. — Cf. also Oldenberg, Die Hymnen des RV., i. 247.

1. Indra's two arms [are] stout, virile $(v\acute{r}san)$, these two wondrous successful bulls; them will I first yoke when the conjuncture $(y\acute{o}ga)$ arrives—they by which was conquered the heaven $(sv\grave{a}r)$ that is the Asuras'.

The SV. text (ii. 1219) is considerably different: in a, b, yúvānāv anādhṛṣyāú supratīkāv asahyāú; in c, tāú yuñjīta prathamāú; at the end, sáho mahát. Vṛṣāṇāu (instead of the regular vṛṣaṇāu) is read also by Ppp., and the meter demands it cf. Noun-Inflection, p. 537, 523]. The combination citrā imā vṛṣ-, if representing, as the sense clearly requires, citrāú: imāú: vṛṣ-, is anomalous in AV., though regular for some of the other Vedic texts (cf. Prāt. ii. 22 note); and the pada-text shows a sense of this, by reading citrāh: imā: vṛṣ. SPP. gives as his pada-text citrā: imā, which leaves the samhitā reading unaccounted for; the comm. assumes citrāu and imā. In c, all the mss. (whence also SPP.) read yokṣe, for which our yokṣye is an emendation, plainly demanded by both sense and meter; it is one of the common cases of a y lost after ṣ; Ppp., too, has yokṣye (before it, ta for tāu); the comm. has the senseless yakṣe. All the mss., again, read prathamás (-mó yó-), and the comm. likewise, with, of course, SPP.; our emendation to -māu (with SV.) is an improvement, but not a necessity. The comm. foolishly declares āgate = kṣeme, in order to bring about the ordinary combination of yoga and kṣema, here quite out of place. He also takes svàr yát, against accent and pada-text, as one word [cf. 15. 4, note], and explains -yat as a participle, = gacchat! Ppp. reads and combines in c prathamayogā "gate.

2. Swift, sharp, terrible like a bull, greatly smiting, disturber of men (carṣant), roaring, unwinking, sole hero, Indra conquered a hundred armies together.

This verse [RV. vs. 1] agrees throughout with the RV. text; SV. and VS. show no variants from RV. through the whole hymn; TS.MS. read here in a yudhmás for bhīmás, and MS. has also kṣóbhanas. The mss. also vary in this last word between -nas and -nas; SPP. adopts -nas, as does our text.

- 3. With the roaring, unwinking, conquering, invincible, immovable, bold one with Indra thus conquer, thus overpower the fighters, O men, with the arrow-armed bull (visan).
- RV. [vs. 2] begins b with $yutk\bar{a}r\dot{e}na$, and all the other texts agree with it. The comm. carelessly reads yodhyena instead of ay-, explaining it by $yuddhasa\dot{m}saktena$; he takes $y\dot{u}dhas$ in d as vocative = $yoddh\bar{a}ras$; with $t\dot{a}t$ (twice) in c he supplies jetavyam and $abhibhavan\bar{i}yam$.
- 4. He with the arrow-armed, he with the quiver-hung, [is] controller; he, Indra with his train, brings together the fighters [he,] conquering those brought together, soma-drinker, defiant with his arms, of formidable bow, shooting with fitted [arrows].
- [Vs. 3 in RV.] TS.MS. read in d ūrdhvādhanvā; and MS. has a very different b, sāmsṛṣṭāsu yutsv tndro gaṇṣṣu. Many of the mss. (as often in such words) read in b sāmsṛṣṭā; some (as also elsewhere) lengthen the u in kampa at beginning of d; all have at the end ástāt—which, however, even SPP. emends to ástā, with the comm. The pada-mss. give in c somaopā (RV. pāḥ). [The comm. notes as an alternative that yudhas in b (both ed's, yūdhas) may be taken as yudhās, oxytone and abl. sing. (he cites Pāṇini, vi. 1. 168)—which is a regard for the accent (cf. note to vs. 9) that is unusual with him.] [For prātihitā used pregnantly of an arrow, cf. the citations under vi. 65, 1.]
- To be known by his strength, stout, foremost hero, powerful, vigorous (vājin), overpowering, formidable, excelling heroes, excelling warriors, conquering with power mount, O Indra, the victorious kinewinning chariot.

The fourth verse of the RV. hymn is transposed [in the AV. text so as] to follow our vs. q, and vs. 5 AV. is vs. 5 RV. The other texts [RV. etc.] all read at the end govit; and all except MS. have in c sahojās. SPP. retains in a the visarga before sthāv, with the majority of the mss.; he also accepts in c abhisatvā, with half the mss., but against all the parallel texts, apparently because the comm. has s. Ppp. reads for d jāitrāyāi ā ratham ā tiṣṭha kovidam. [The govidam of the Berlin text seems to be an emendation. Nearly all the authorities of W. and of SPP., and SPP's text as well, and the comm., have govidan; but one or two have govit, with RV. etc.]

6. Be ye excited after this formidable hero; take hold, O companions, after Indra, the troop-conqueror, kine-conqueror, thunderbolt-armed, conquering in the race, slaughtering with force.

We had this verse [which is RV. vs. 6] above, as vi. 97. 3; the reversal in the other texts of the order of the two lines, and the other variants, were there noticed. TS. and MS. alter a little the order of verses: RV. 4 is followed in TS. by RV. 6, 5, 7, and in MS. by RV. 7, 5, 6. The Anukr. reckons vss. 3-6 alike as bhurij, although 3 is redundant by two syllables. [Ppp. reads satvānas for sakhāyas in b.]

7. Plunging with power into the cow-stalls, Indra, pitiless, formidable, of hundred-fold fury, immovable, overpowering fighters, invincible — let him favor our armies in the fights.

The stalls, namely, in which the kine are shut up by the Asuras. All the samhitāmss. read 'dāyá ugráḥ at beginning of b, but all the pada-mss. (except one of SPP's) give adayáḥ, and one of ours puts after it the sign that is wont to be used when a word shows an anomalous change in samhitā. RV.[vs. 7]SV.VS. (also K.Kap.: see Schröder's note to MS.) read adayás, and our text follows their authority; but TS. has adāyás (of which the Pet. Lexx. take no notice), and MS. has ādāyás; the comm. reads adāyas, but explains it by nirdayas, as if it were adayás. Adāyás is doubtless the established AV. reading. All the other texts have after it vīrás instead of ugrás. In c, all the others except MS. have ayudhyás. Most of the pada-mss. accent ayodhyáḥ, [and so the pada-reading of MS.]. The first pāda is bhurij [read gotrā?].

8. O Brihaspati, fly about with thy chariot, demon-slaying, forcing away our enemies; breaking up our foes, slaughtering our enemies, be thou the helper of ourselves.

Or, 'of our bodies (tanu).' This verse corresponds to vs. 4 of all the other texts; and they read in concert for c prabhañjánt sénāh pramṛṇó yudhā jáyann, and at the end ráthānām. The pada-mss. commit the blunder of reading mitrān or mitrān in b; SPP. emends to amitrān, which the comm. also gives. A number of SPP's samhitā-mss. have (after the fashion of MS.)-mitrān or -mitran; cf. note to 27. 4, below l.

9. Indra [be] their leader; let Brihaspati, the sacrificial gift, the sacrifice, soma, go in front; in the midst of the smashing conquering armies of the gods let the Maruts go.

[RV.vs. 8.] The text of MS. agrees throughout with ours; the others read āsām in a, and ágram (for mādhye) in d [but TS. ágre]. The comm. does here a thing which is hardly paralleled elsewhere in his work: he points out that some explain dakṣiṇā in b as meaning "on the south," but that, as the word would in that case have to be accented dakṣiṇā, as shown by xviii. 1.42, it must signify here rather 'sacrificial gift' (yajñe diyamānā gorūpā dakṣiṇā). A like attention to the element of accent elsewhere would notably improve the character of his lucubrations. [Cf. note to vs. 4.]

10. Of Indra the bull (vṛṣan), of king Varuṇa, of the Adityas, of the Maruts, the spirit (çárdhas) [is] formidable; the noise of the great-minded, creation-stirring, conquering gods hath arisen.

| RV. vs. 9. | All the other texts agree with ours throughout.

11. Indra [is] ours when the banners meet [in conflict]; let the arrows that are ours conquer; let our heroes be superior; us, O gods, aid ye at the invocations.

All the other texts read in d asmān u devās; and MS. has the peculiar ending bhāreṣv ā. The verse is vs. 11 of the RV. hymn, RV. vs. 10 being omitted in the Atharvan (save as it is found in part as iii. 19. 6); RV. vs. 10 is omitted also by MS., which ends its hymn with 11; in TS., RV. vs. 10 is put after 11, and 13 follows, only 12 being omitted; in the Atharvan, RV. vs. 12 occurs as iii. 2. 5, and 13 in part at iii. 19. 7.

14. For safety.

[Atharvan. - ekarcam. dyāvāpṛthivīyam. trāistubham.]

This hymn is not found in Pāipp. It and the one following are included in the abhaya gana (note to Kāuç. 16.8).

Translated: Griffith, ii. 274. Griffith calls it a "hymn after victory" and refers $tv\bar{a}$ to the conquered enemy.

1. Here have I come up to a better stop (avasána); heaven-and-earth have been propitious to me; let the directions be for me free from rivals; we verily hate thee not; be there fearlessness for us.

The mss. read in a uchréyas (p. utoçréyah); very possibly the true reading would be u çréyas. The pada-mss. fail to divide avasanam (it should be avaosanam, and this SPP. reads by emendation). Some mss. read te for me in b. Some of ours combine at the end no 'stu. Ap. vi. 29. 1 has a corresponding passage: idam çreyo 'vasanam yad āgām syone me dyāvāpṛthivī abhūtām: anamīvāh pradiçah santu mahyam: gomad . . . svāhe 'ty avasite juhoti: cf. also Ap. xiii. 25. 3.

15. For safety and success.

[Atharvan. — ṣadṛcam. 1-4. đindram; 5, 6. mantroktabahudevatyam. 1. pathyābṛhatī; 2, 5. 4-p. jagatī; 3. virāt pathyāpañkti; 4, 6. triṣṭubh.]

The hymn is found also in Pāipp. iii. As noted under the preceding, it belongs to the abhaya gaṇa; and the comm. points out sundry uses of the gaṇa (Çānti K. 16; Nakṣ. K. 18; Pariçiṣṭa 5.3).

Translated: Ludwig, p. 513; Griffith, ii. 275.

1. Wha we fear, O Indra, make thou fearlessness for us of it; O bounteous one, help (cak) that for us by thy aids; smite away haters, away scorners.

The verse is RV. viii. 50 (61). 13, without variant; also SV. i. 274; ii. 671, which reads $\bar{u}tdye$ in c. Most of the mss. give tvdm instead of tdt in c, but two of ours (P.M.) have tdn na \bar{u} -, and on the authority of these and of RV.SV. our text gives the same; SPP. reads tvdm, and so does the comm., and it is probably to be regarded as the true Atharvan version.

2. Indra the success-giver do we invoke; may we be successful with biped, with quadruped; let not the niggardly armies come upon us; make the haters (drúh) disperse and disappear.

The translation is defective in making no account of the prefix anu (twice), which ought to have an appreciable value, although it is very difficult to see what; the comm. paraphrases anurādham by anukramena pūjanīyam, and he quotes RV. iv. 25. 8 in illustration of how various classes in succession invoke Indra. Ppp. preserves the a of anu in b. SPP. reads in d, with all the mss., druhás; there was no good reason for its alteration in our text to drúhas.

3. Indra [is] rescuer and Vritra-slayer, our desirable far-and-wide protector (?); be he our defender at the extremities, he in the middle, he behind, he in front.

In b the translation follows the comm., who explains $parasp\bar{a}$ $(-p\bar{a}h)$ no v-; all the mss. (save one or two s.m.) * have $parasph\bar{a}no$ v- (p. $parasph\bar{a}nah$, without division), and this is doubtless the true Atharvan text, though an unintelligible corruption, of which our $gayasph\bar{a}na$ is an only partially successful emendation. *[In fact, W's O. and three of SPP's mss. have $-sph\bar{a}$ -, p.m., and $-sp\bar{a}$ -, s.m.; and SPP's reciter K. gave $-sph\bar{a}$ -, while his reciter V. gave $-sph\bar{a}$ -.] Ppp. reads $paramp\bar{a}no$ ($parasp\bar{a}$ no?). The pada-mss. unintelligently divide ca: ramatah in c; some of our mss. have -mata sa. The verse (8+8:12+10=38) is poorly described by the Anukr.

4. Do thou, knowing, lead us toward broad space (loka), light that is heavenly (svar), fearlessness, well-being; may we dwell under the formidable arms of thee the stout one, O Indra, [those two] great refuges.

The verse is RV. vi. 47. 8, found also in TB. (in ii. 7. 133); both these texts read in b svàrvaj jy-, at beginning of c rsvå, and in d stheyāma. The comm. gives svaryat, but explains the -yat as -gacchat (as above, 13. 1); Ppp. agrees with RV.TB. [in reading svàrvaj]; [Ppp. abbreviates the consonant group -j jy- to -jy-; and so does TB., ed. Calc., reading súvarva jy-]. In d, the comm. has the better reading kṣiyema.

5. May the atmosphere make for us fearlessness; fearlessness both heaven-and-earth here; fearlessness from behind, fearlessness from in front; from above, from below be there fearlessness for us.

The comm. prefers to take the words of direction in c, d in their other admissible sense of points of compass, pointing out that adhara gets the value 'south' by antithesis to uttara 'north.' The verse (11+12:11+11[?]=45) is no sort of a jagati.

6. Fearlessness from friend, fearlessness from enemy, fearlessness from one known, fearlessness [from one] that is away; fearlessness for us by night, fearlessness by day; be all places my friend.

At the beginning of b, all the mss. read ábhaye, but even SPP. emends to -yam, having the comm. with him. At the end of the same pāda, all so also Ppp. give purb yaḥ (p. puraḥ : yaḥ), which SPP. retains; the comm. reads paro yaḥ, but understands it as if paro yaḥ, explaining as jħātād anyaḥ or aparijħātaḥ. Our emendation to parokṣāt is defensible; but the translation implies paro yaḥ, as a less alteration. [In d, Ppp. combines sarvā "çā and omits māma.] ["Save me from my friends:" cf. ii. 28. I d and note; also RV. iv. 55. 5, where the antithesis between jānyam ānhas and mitriyam ānhas is most instructive. [

16. For safety and protection.

[Atharvan. — tream.* mantroktabahudevatyam. 1. anustubh; 2. 3-av. 7-p. brhatīgarbhā 'tiçak-varī.] *[So the London ms.; the Berlin ms. says in fact dvyream: see under vs. 2.]

This and the following hymns, to 23 inclusive, are wanting in Pāipp. The comm. has 16-19 used in the night, in a ceremony to be performed by the purchita, on the entrance of a king into his sleeping-house (according to Pariçista iv. 5). The hymn is repeated below as 27. 14, 15.

Translated: Griffith, ii. 276.

I. Freedom from rivals in front, behind us [is] fearlessness made; Savitar [protect] me on the south, the lord of Çachī me on the north.

The comm. takes kṛtám in b as 2d du. impv., = kurutam, in spite of the accent, trying to find a dual subject in the two gods mentioned in c, d; and SPP., in obedience to this, even reads kṛtam, although twelve of his thirteen authorities (with all of ours) have kṛtám, the thirteenth evidently disagreeing with the rest purely by the accidental omission of an accent-mark.* It would not be impossible to take mā in c and d as object of dakṣiṇatás and uttarāt. *[For the use of kṛtám (the participle), cſ. tātr me kṛtám svastyáyanam, above, 9. 12 c. — In his Collation Book, W. refers to RV. khila, 3. 4, which reads asapatnám puróstān naḥ çivám dakṣṭṇataḥ kṛdhi: abháyam sátatam paṣcād bhadrám uttarato gṛhé.]

2. From the sky let the Ādityas defend me; from the earth let the fires defend; let Indra-and-Agni defend me in front; let the Açvins yield (yam) :efuge round about; crosswise let the inviolable [cow], let Jātavedas, defend [me]; let the being-makers be my defense (várman) on all sides.

In e the mss. all read tiraçcinaghnyā, which the pada-text resolves into tiraçcin: aghnyā, and this SPP. retains, though tiraçcin is not a possible word. Our emendation to -cīnā 'ghnyā is a very simple one (implying -cīnā : aghnyā); the translation is founded on it; but a more radical alteration of the pāda would be acceptable: something like, for instance, tiryāk cā 'gnī rakṣatu jātāvedāḥ; the jātāvedās leads naturally to the suspicion that agnīs is somehow hidden in the 'ghnyā; the comm. indeed reads tiraçcīn agnī r-; but he is able to regard tiraçcīn as a masc. accus., implying asmān; or else as by Vedic license for -cīs, and this for -cībhyas, implying digbhyas (!); and such assumptions are forbidden us. The pada-mss. all read rakṣantu in e.

The Anukr. in its metrical definition treats this all as one verse, and the same treatment is implied by the summation at the end of the anuvāka (see p. 928); but the comm, and one of our mss. make what follows the second avasāna into a separate or third verse; La like contradiction obtains as between the Anukr. and the comm. in the repeated passage, below, 27. 14, 15 (see the note); here, moreover, as noted above, the mss. of the Anukr. are at variance as to whether the hymn is to be reckoned as of 2 vss. or of 3.]. The addition of brhatigarbhā to the metrical definition is quite uncalled-for; Ldoubtless because pāda b scans better as 8 syllables than as 9: no less uncalled-for is the addition of saptapadā, unless, dividing what follows the second avasāna into 3 pādas, we begin the seventh with an enclitic.

[I suspect that our text consists of 6 pādas (8+8:11+11:11+11=60, "atiçakvarī"), call them 1 vs. or 2, as you will. Pādas c and e and f have good triṣṭubh cadences: c is good triṣṭubh if we resolve indraagnī; so is e, with W's tiryāk cā 'gnī r-; the presence of me in f is all that spoils f; and the absence of me after yachatām is all that spoils the cadence of d, if, substituting the grammatical equivalent, we pronounce açvinā 'bhitaḥ at the beginning.]

17. For protection: to various gods.

[Atharvan. — daçakam. pratyrcam mantroktadevatyam. jāgatam: 5, 7, 10. atijagatī; 6. bhurij; 9. 5-p. atiçakvarī.]

[Prose.] [Not found in Pāipp.] This hymn and the next are used, the comm. points out, in the same ceremony as 16, with other hymns, as detailed in Pariçiṣṭa 4. 4; both are also prescribed in Par. 19. I (see note to Kāuç. 140. 9), in a ceremony against danger from the various quarters. [See introd. to next hymn.] [Note that the vss. of this hymn group themselves in 5 dyads (comm., paryāya-dvayas), one for each cardinal point and a fifth for the 'fixed and upward points'; and that those of h. 18 do likewise and are so grouped by the comm. also.]

Translated: Griffith, ii. 276.

1. Let Agni with the Vasus protect me on the east: in him I step, in him I take refuge (ρri), to that stronghold I go forward; let him defend me, let him guard me; to him I commit myself: hail!

The comm. first understands and explains krame and craye as nouns in the locative, qualified by tasmin! then he again makes them verbs, quoting from vs. 6 tāsu krame tāsu craye, to support this understanding of them; no one less superficial and blundering could possibly suggest the former explanation, against the accent and the sense.

- 2. Let Vāyu with the atmosphere protect me from that quarter: in him I etc. etc.
- 3. Let Soma with the Rudras protect me from the southern quarter: in him I etc. etc.
- 4. Let Varuna with the Adityas protect me from that quarter: in him I etc. etc.

The comm. quotes AÇS. ii. 11.12 to show that elsewhere also Soma is associated with the Rudras and Varuna with the Adityas.

- 5. Let the sun with heaven-and-earth protect me from the western quarter: in him I etc. etc.
- 6. Let the waters with (-mant) the herbs protect me from that quarter: in them I...; let them defend...; to them I etc. etc.

- 7. Let Viçvakarman with the seven seers protect me from the northern quarter: in him I etc. etc.
- 8. Let Indra with (-vant) the Maruts protect me from that quarter: in him I etc. etc.

The comm. quotes Bhagavad-Gītā x. 6 (rather futilely) to support the association of the seven seers with Viçvakarman as highest self (paramātman), and (most superfluously) RV. viii. 85 (96). 7 and AB. iii. 20. 1 (part) to show that Indra and the Maruts go together.

9. Let Prajāpati, possessing generative powers (prajānanavant), together with firm support (pratisthā), protect me from the fixed quarter: in him I etc. etc.

Many of the mss. give various other accents to $prajdnanav\bar{a}n$; all read $pratisth\bar{a}y\bar{a}$ (p. $osth\bar{a}y\bar{a}h$), which SPP. accordingly retains,* although it is a palpable corruption; the comm. makes no difficulty of it, viewing it simply as a case of the substitution of genitive for instrumental; he adds, however, another interpretation, supplying prajananena for saha to govern, and making $pratisth\bar{a}y\bar{a}s$ an adjective qualifying dicas.* W's B. and all of SPP's authorities appear to accent $pratisth\bar{a}y\bar{a}h$, p. $pratisth\bar{a}y\bar{a}h$, and this is in fact the accentuation and reading in SPP's text, although I do not see what is to be made of it.

10. Let Brihaspati with all the gods protect me from the upward quarter: in him I etc. etc.

The comm. calls these prose "verses" and those of the next hymn paryāyas; and the metrical definitions of the Anukr. are of course worthless, although it is possible to read out something like the numbers of syllables required by that treatise.

18. For protection: to various gods.

[Atharvan.—daçakam. pratyrcam mantroktadevatyam. dvāipadam: 1, 8. sāmnī tristubh; 2-6. ārcy anustubh (5. samrāj [intending svarāj?]); 7,9,10. prājāpatyā tristubh.]

[Prose.] [Not found in Pāipp.] See note to the preceding hymn [for ritual uses]. The gods etc. are throughout the same as in that hymn. [The two hymns are closely accordant in general and special peculiarities of structure.] [A similar passage is found at MS. i. 5. 4, p. 719-15, as W. notes in the Collation Book: he also says "cf. K. vii. 2." AV. v. 10 presents some analogies with our hymn, and iv. 40 still more.]

Translated: Griffith, ii. 277.

I. Let those malignants $(agh\bar{a}y\acute{u})$ who shall attack $(abhi-d\bar{a}s)$ me from the eastern quarter come upon (rch) Agni with (-vant) the Vasus.

The comm. has the more regular vasumantam. All the mss., and the comm., have at the end of all the verses 'bhidāsāt, which SPP. accordingly retains; our edition more the absolutely necessary emendation to sān. Is dāsāt a faulty reminiscence of AV. v. 10 marks. Most of the samhitā-mss. also accent diço 'bhi-. Some of the mss. leave the unaccented. 'With' is represented throughout the hymn by vant or mant, not by the instrumental case. As usual, rch signifies a coming into hostile or detrimental contact or collision. [W. interlines "run against" as alternative for "come upon."]

- 2. Let those malignants who shall attack me from that quarter come upon Vāyu with the atmosphere.
- 3. Let those malignants who shall attack me from the southern quarter come upon Soma with the Rudras.
- 4. Let those malignants who shall attack me from that quarter come upon Varuna with the Adityas.

The Anukr. ought properly to call this verse bhurij.

5. Let those malignants who shall attack me from the western quarter come upon the sun with heaven-and-earth.

[The accent of dyava- is noted by W., Skt. Gram. § 94 b.]

- 6. Let those malignants who shall attack me from that quarter come upon the waters with the herbs.
- 7. Let those malignants who shall attack me from the northern quarter come upon Viçvakarman with the seven seers.

In our text there has dropped out an accent-sign under va before údicyā.

- 8. Let those malignants who shall attack me from that quarter come upon Indra with the Maruts.
- 9. Let those malignants who shall attack me from the fixed quarter come upon Prajāpati with generative qualities.
- 10. Let those malignants who shall attack me from the upward quarter come upon Brihaspati with all the gods.

Verse 8 is properly bhurij (23 syllables). Verses 9 and 10 are each properly of 27 syllables; but by restoring elided initial a here and there (with regard to which the Anukr. appears to acknowledge no rule) the meters as defined can be made out.

19. For protection by various gods.

[Atharvan. — ekādaçakam. cāndramasam uta mantroktadevatyam. pānktam: 1, 3, 9. bhurig bṛhatī; 10. svarāj; 2, 4-8, 11. anuṣṭubgarbhā.]

[Prose.] [Not found in Pāipp.] The comm. says that, besides the uses stated in connection with preceding hymns, the purohita is to accompany with this the entrance of the king in the night into his sleeping-house; and that it also appears in the ceremony of a king's entrance into his city.

Translated: Griffith, ii. 278.

I. Mitra ascended with the earth: to that stronghold I lead you forward; that enter ye into; that enter ye; let that yield (yam) you both refuge and defense.

The comm. declares that Mitra here means Agni.

- 2. Vāyu ascended with the atmosphere: to that stronghold etc. etc.
- 3. The sun ascended with the sky: to that stronghold etc. etc.
- 4. The moon ascended with the asterisms: to that stronghold etc. etc.

- 5. Soma ascended with the herbs: to that stronghold etc. etc.
- 6. The sacrifice ascended with the sacrificial gifts: to that stronghold etc. etc.
 - 7. The ocean ascended with the streams: to that stronghold etc. etc.
- 8. The bráhman ascended with the Vedic students: to that strong-hold etc. etc.

The comm. says that brahman here means the Veda with the angas.

- 9. Indra ascended with heroism: to that stronghold etc. etc.
- 10. The gods ascended with the immortal (amrta): to that stronghold etc. etc.
 - 11. Prajāpati ascended with progeny: to that stronghold etc. etc.

The comm. explains ud akrāmat by yām puram rakṣitum utkrāntavān, as antecedent of tām puram etc. The metrical definitions of the Anukr. are not worth comparing in detail.

20. For protection by various gods.

[Atharvan. - bahudevatyam. trāiṣṭubham: 2. jagatī; 3. purastādbrhatī; 4. anuṣṭubh.]

[Not found in Pāipp.] The comm. says, purely on his own authority, that with this hymn the purohita arms with a breastplate a king going to battle. [For the reference to vs. 4 in Kāuç. 25. 36 note, see above, introd. to viii. 5.]

Translated: Griffith, ii. 279.

[In Anukr. we miss caturrcam.]

1. Have set down apart the human deadly weapon Indra-and-Agni, Dhātar, Savitar, Brihaspati, king Soma, Varuṇa, the Açvins, Yama; let Pūshan protect us round about from death.

It is quite as likely that 'Soma' etc. in the second half-verse should be viewed as coördinate with Pūshan. The translation omits yâm in a; it seems probable that a is deeply corrupt. [Caland, KZ. xxxiv. 456, citing Avestan usage, takes pāūruseyani vadhām yām as accusative of the crystallized combination pāūruseyo vadhō yāḥ which we had at i. 30. 1: see note to xii. 2. 19. But W's suspicion is weighty.] All the mss. accent uyādhus (the pada-mss. having, against all rule and practice, nyādhuḥ, instead of nioādhuḥ or nt: adhuḥ), and SPP. follows them (in p. also); our nyādhus is an emendation, apparently a necessary one—unless we can construe, with the comm., b-d as together constituting the apodosis: 'what means of death for men [our enemies] have fixed in secret—from [that] death let Indra-and-Agni etc. etc. protect us.' [Griffith: 'May Soma etc. guard us from Mṛityu—death caused by men, which Indra etc. appointed.'] The verse is far too irregular (11 + 12: 12 + 9 = 44) to be called simply a triṣṭubh.

2. What [defenses] he who is lord of creation, Prajāpati, Mātariçvan, made for his creatures (prajā), what ones the directions and the quarters put on (vas) — let those defenses (várman) be abundant (bahulā) for me.

The mss. accent vasaté [except several that have vasate]; our emendation to vasate is unquestionably called for, even though there are a few cases in RV. of such accent as vasaté [Gram. § 613]. The comm. etymologizes mātariçvan as antarikṣe

- 'ti. [The verse is properly 12 + 11 : 11 + 11 : for d has tristubh cadence, and there are three possibilities of excising a syllable from its prior half.]
- 3. What [defense] those gods fastened on themselves, when fighting for overlordship, what defense Indra made for himself, let that protect us on all sides.

Pāda b is altogether corrupt; the translation implies the reading ādhirājyāya yodhlnah, which differs a little from the emendation in our text, but which the Pet. Lex. assumes under ādhirājya. The mss. give (devā) 'dhirājayodhehinah, which the padatext analyzes into (deva:) ādhirāja: yāh: dhehi: nah (SPP. reports his pada-mss. as giving at the beginning devā, apparently by an oversight, as devā is no form*). The comm. has (devāh) dyurājayo (implying p. dyuor-) dehinah, and this SPP. accepts, despite its unsatisfactory character; the comm. explains dyurājayas as divi dyuloke rājamānās, which is absurd, and adds that, since the wearing of armor implies a body (deha), the gods were embodied (dehinas), which is silly. The pada-mss. (and one of SPP's samhitā-mss.) strangely read sarvātas at the end instead of viçvātas; the comm. and both editions accept the latter; [and since W. notes nothing to the contrary, his D. presumably has viçvātah]. The text, with b as translated, and with ca-kr-e in c [making 11+8:8+8], answers excellently to the definition of the Anukr. *[W. means, I take it, no form which is usable in this connection.]

4. Defense for me may heaven-and-earth, defense may day, defense may the sun, defense for me may all the gods make; let not the affront-ress (?pratīcikā) reach me.

Some of the mss. leave praticikā accentless, and nearly all accent krán; both editions have kran and -kā. The comm. seems to read agnis instead of áhas in b, and mo for mā in d. The comm. paraphrases praticikā as catrusenā 'jāātapratikūlāācanā (ka being added to pratīcī "ajāātārthe"); the [minor] Pet. Lex. conjectures 'discomfort' (Ungemach); the translation above is of course only tentative. To be compared with the verse is viii. 5. 18 above; found also in AÇS. i. 2. 1, which has our a, b (but reading agnis with our comm.), and, for third pāda, varma me santu tiraccikāḥ; and in Āp. xiv. 26. 1, with agnis in b, and, for c, d, varma me brahmaṇaspatir mā mā prāpad ato bhayam.

[Here ends the second anuvāka, with 11 hymns and 72 verses. If we counted hymn 16 as of 3 verses, there would be 73. Some mss. sum up the verses as 72, and thus support the numeration of hymn 16 as given by both editions (see p. 923).]

21. The meters.

[Brahman. - ekarcam. chāndasam. 1-av. 2-p. sāmnī bṛhatī.]

[Prose.] [Not found in Pāipp.] The comm. finds the verse quoted by the appellation chandogana in Nakṣatra Kalpa 18.—[The Anukr. says: idam Brahmā chandonukrāntivijāānāyā 'paçyat.—The meters are arranged, according to the number of their syllables, in an arithmetical progression ascending by a difference of 4. In VS. xxiii. 33, all these and kakūbh are mentioned.]

Translated: Griffith, ii. 279.

1. Gāyatrī, uṣṇih, anuṣṭubh, bṛhatī, pankti, triṣṭubh-and-jagatī.

The mss. are at variance as to the use of any kampa-sign between the first two words. [The metrical definition (18 syllables) calls for the resolution gayatri us..]

SPP's authorities appear all (except one pada-ms., -tt) to read at the end jágatyāi; ours vary between -tī, -tye, -tyāi, and -tyāu. The text of the comm. reads paākti (instead of -tis), and, either with reason or on account of his usual disregard of accent, he takes the whole verse as a single compound word in the dative case, explaining it to mean gāyatryāi svāhā, uṣṇihe svāhā, etc., and declaring it thus to contain seven mantras; and SPP. thinks this to be "doubtless" the original character of the line; it would be safer to say "perhaps," or "possibly," since the separate accentuation, the nominative form paāktis, and the division by the Anukr. into two pādas (in the pada-mss., after anuṣtūp) all speak against it. The mss. accent trisṭūb jágatyāi.

22. Homage to parts of the Atharva-Veda.

[Angiras.— ekavinçati. mantroktadevatyam. 1. samny uşnih; 3, 19. prajāpatyā gāyatrī; 4,7, 11, 17. dāivī jagatī; 5, 12, 13. dāivī tristubh; 2, 6, 14-16, 20. dāivī pankti; 8-10. āsuri jagatī; 18. āsury anuştubh (1-20. 1-av.); 21. 4-p. tristubh.]

[Verses 1-20, prose.] [Not found in Pāipp.] The comm. quotes from Nakṣatra Kalpa, 17, 18, to the effect that this hymn and the following (together called samāsa) are to be used in the great appearement-ceremony called āngirasī, by one who seeks success as practising or suffering witchcraft. [Cf. introd. to next hymn.]

Translated: Griffith, ii. 279; vs. 21 also by Ludwig, p. 219.

1. With the first five anuvākás of the Āngirasas, hail!

It is very strange that the instrumental case is used here, instead of the dative, which is used everywhere else through this hymn and the next. [Conversely, note the use of the abl.-dat. form mādbhyás, below, 27. 2 c, where we expect the instrumental, as in the other pādas.]

- 2. To the sixth, hail!
- 3. To the seventh-and-eighth, hail!
- 4. To the black claws, hail!
- 5. To the green ones, hail!

Two of our mss. (O.D.) accent with our text Váritebhyas; SPP. reads haritebhyas, with (apparently) all his authorities and nearly all of ours.

- 6. To the petty ones, hail!
- 7. To them of the paryāyas, hail!
- 8. To the first conchs, hail!
- 9. To the second conchs, hail!
- 10. To the third conchs, hail!

In 9 and 10, SPP. accents, with all the mss., dvitīyebhyas and trītyebhyas; we have not hesitated to make the necessary emendations to -tīye-. [The false accent is perhaps a blundering assimilation to that of prathamebhyas: cf. notes to vss. 13 and 14, and especially to xviii. 3. 47.— Two of W's later collated mss., D.L., have rightly -tiye-.]

- 11. To the next to the last ones, hail!
- To the last ones, hail!
 - 13. To the further ones, hail!

SPP. again follows the mss. in accenting uttarébhyas; [again a blundering assimilation to the accent of uttamébhyas, vs. 12].

14. To the seers, hail!

Here also we emended the accent to fsibhyas, which W's D.L. indeed give]; but SPP. has, with the mss., rsibhyas. For the rationale of the blunder (due to çişibhyas, vs. 15), cf. notes to vss. 10 and 13 and note to xviii. 3. 47.

15. To the peaked ones (? cikhin), hail!

Here the mss. vary between cikhibhyas and cisibhyas.

- 16. To the ganás, hail!
- 17. To the great ganás, hail!
- 18. To all the gand-knowing (??) Angirases, hail!

It is altogether likely that vidaganá either never meant anything or is a corrupt reading; the translation is given merely in order not to leave the word untranslated.

- 19. To the two thousands severally, hail!
- 20. To the bráhman (?), hail!

SPP. reads brahmane, and mentions no disagreement among his authorities; all but one or two of ours have the same, and our text might probably have been better left to read so; but the accentuation of the mss. is wholly unauthoritative, and the distinction here also of no manner of importance. The comm. understands brahmane. LI think brahmane is to be preferred for the reason given at p. 932, line 7. The numbers of syllables in the verses agree throughout with those demanded by the definitions of the Anukr.

It is a great disappointment to find that the designations given in this hymn to the various parts or elements of the Atharvan text are just as much a puzzle to the commentator as they are to us, so that he does not even venture to conjecture a meaning for them. He understands the authors rather than the mantras to be meant as the recipients of the homage. His whole comment follows: atra vinçatikāndātmikāyām asyām çākhāyām vidyamānānuvākasūktaganaviçeṣādisanjāārūpāih çabdāir anuvākādidra stāra etannāmāna rṣayah pratipādyante: nīlanakhādisūktaviçeṣānām prasiddhatvāt tāni viçeṣato na pradarçitāni: brahmane svāhe 'ti brahmaçabdena vinçatikāndātmakavedavācakena tasya drastā brahmākhya ṛṣiḥ pratipādyate: anyat sarvam nigadavyākhyātam. It sounds like a bad joke that he calls nīlanakha etc. 'familiarly known.' That anuvāka is used in vs. 1 in the same sense as in the present division of the text seems very unlikely.

21. Heroisms [were] gathered with the bráhman as chief; the bráhman as chief in the beginning stretched the sky; the Brahmán was born as first of creatures; therefore (téna) who is fit to contend with the Brahmán?

Or (in d) 'with that (téna) Brahmán.' SPP's text of the verse agrees with ours save that he accents in d bráhmanā with the mss., and has in c prathamó 'tá (p. -máh: utá, though the pada-mss. read -mā: utá); the text of the comm. has -mo 'ta here, but -mo 'tha in the verse repeated as 23.30; the emendation in our text to -mô ha is plainly the easiest way out of the difficulty. The pada-mss. divide at the beginning, with remarkable absence of intelligence, bráhma: jyeṣṭhā; half the samhitā-mss. also accent jyeṣṭhā; finally, the pada-mss., with incredible folly, divide at the end spárddhi: tumkáh! SPP. holds that the verse must have originally had brahmán throughout (four times), and gives in his note a text of it in that form (but with prathamó 'tha in c); but it is far from improbable that bráhman was used in the first half-verse and brahmán in the second, as in our text. Indeed, in a corresponding verse in TB. (ii. 4. 71°), bráhman [more appropriately, it would seem, if I am right in supposing that vss. 29 and 30 of hymn 23 refer to the Brahmaveda: cf. p. 932, l. 3] is used every time: bráhmajyeṣṭhā (its commentary takes this as vocative) vīryā sámbhṛtāni bráhmā 'gre jyéṣṭham divam ā tatāna: rtásya bráhma prathamó 'tá (! its comment paraphrases by simply prathamám) jajñe ténā 'rhati bráhmanā spárdhitum káḥ. Our comm. gives a second explanation of brahmajyeṣṭhā as = brahmanā jyeṣṭhena, the case-ending of the former word being omitted, as well as the in part of that of the second!

23. Homage to parts of the Atharva-Veda.

[Atharvan. — trinçat. mantroktadevatyam uta cāndramasam. 1. āsurī bṛhatī; 2-7, 20, 23, 27. dāivī tristubh; 8, 10-12, 14-16. prājāpatyā gāyatrī; 17, 19, 21, 24, 25, 29. dāivī paūkti; 9, 13, 18, 22, 26, 28. dāivī jagatī; (1-29. 1-av.).]

[Verses 1-29, prose.] [Not found in Pāipp.] The application of the hymn, as defined by the comm., was given with the one preceding.

As in the case of the preceding hymn, the comm. to all the verses is given together at the end. Its main parts are given below under the separate verses. It further declares that by the words ekarca to daçarca are designated the rsis named Atharvan, and by those from ekādaçarca to vinçati are designated the ārṣeyas named Ātharvaṇa; and it quotes as authority the beginning of i. 1. 5 of the Gopatha Brāhmaṇa.

[With regard to this hymn in general, and leaving books xix. and xx. out of account in the statements that follow: in the first place it is clear that the books of the third grand division of the AV., books xiii.—xviii. (see p. 708), are intended by verses 23-28 respectively (see under the verses below and see the introductions to the several books).

[In the second place it is clear that the hymns of the books (but not the books themselves severally) of the first grand division of the AV., books i.-vii. (see p. 388), are intended to be covered by verses I-I5 and 19 and 20 (between 19 and 20 we miss the dvyrcebhyah which the commentator's text has). In this connection it is significant that vs. I begins with homage "to them of four verses," which is the norm of our first book, and not with homage "to them of one verse"—see the first table on p. 388. Moreover, as appears from the table on p. cxliv, the first grand division contains a hymn or hymns of every number of verses from 4 verses to 18 verses (mostly in books i.-v.) and from I verse to 3 verses (exclusively in books vi. and vii.). Again, while there is in the first grand division (and only there) one hymn or more of every number of verses from I verse to 18 verses, it is interesting to note that there is, in the whole AV. (books i.-xviii. or even i.-xix.), not one hymn of 19 verses, nor yet one of 20 verses (cf. p. 471 top): and of this fact account seems to be taken in so far as the form of our verses 16 and 17 differs from that of the 15 preceding.]

[Thirdly, the books of the second grand division of the AV. (books viii.-xii.) consist of hymns of over 20 verses (p. 471, top). There is, therefore, in all our present hymn, no special reference to this division, unless it be in verse 18, which may accordingly mean 'To the division (kānda) of great (mahant) [hymns], hail,' and refer to books viii.-xii. It is not impossible that a Hindu might use kānda to signify a 'division' comprising several books and tantamount to one of our so-called "grand divisions" (see his note to vs. 18). Against my view, I might well object that dīrgha would be a more appropriate adjective than mahant for the 'long' individual hymns of which the division consists; but, per contra, if the difference between mahadguna and mahāguna be a valid parallel, the text ought, if it means 'great book,' to read mahākāndāya. A graver objection to my view, perhaps, is the position of vs. 18, which, if I were or am right, ought to come between verse 20 and verse 23.

[Fourthly, verses 29 and 30 doubtless refer to this Veda as a whole, to the Brahmaveda, or to the incantations (bráhman) which form its subject-matter. After writing this, I note that Bloomfield in the Grundriss, p. 40, note 7, expresses an opinion similar, but much less specific. If I am right, bráhman is to be preferred to brahmán in these two verses, as also in vss. 20–21 of the preceding hymn: cf. the TB. vs. cited under 21. 21. On the other hand, I ought not to pass in silence the fact that the Anukr., at the beginning of its treatment of book xix., seems to call book xix. the brahmakānda.

Finally, therefore, aside from verse 18, just discussed, and assuming that verses 16 and 17 were added (in genuine Hindu fashion) merely for schematic completeness, we have only to note that all the verses of the hymn are reasonably accounted for, save only verses 21 and 22.

Translated: Griffith, ii. 280.

- 1. To them of four verses of the Atharvanas, hail!
- 2. To them of five verses, hail!
- 3. To them of six verses, hail!

All the samhitā-mss. read sadarc-, and two of SPP's pada-mss. saddorc-; both editions sadrc-, with the comm. and three pada-mss. The Gop.Br. has sadarc- in i. 1. 5.

- 4. To them of seven verses, hail!
- 5. To them of eight verses, hail!
- 6. To them of nine verses, hail!
- 7. To them of ten verses, hail!
- 8. To them of eleven verses, hail!
- 9. To them of twelve verses, hail!
- 10. To them of thirteen verses, hail!
- II. To them of fourteen verses, hail!
- 12. To them of fifteen verses, hail!
- 13. To them of sixteen verses, hail!
- 14. To them of seventeen verses, hail!
- 15. To them of eighteen verses, hail!
- 16. Nineteen: hail!
- 17. Twenty: hail!

In these two verses, some of the mss. read -catt sv-; the text of the comm. has -catyal, which would be an improvement; and two of SPP's reciters give the same. LBut cf. p. 931, ¶ 6, end.

18. To the great book (mahat-kāndá), hail!

[All of W's and of SPP's mss., and the reciters as well, give mahat, not mahā-; but the comm. appears to read mahā-, and to say that it means the 'entire Veda of twenty books': mahākāndāye 'ti çabdena vinçatikāndātmakakṛtsnavedavācinā; and this seems to support my suggestion that a Hindu might use kānda of a group of kāndas: cf. ¶ 5 of introduction, above. Weber suggested at Ind. Stud. iv. 433 that mahatkānda might mean book xx.; but in a later volume (xviii. 154), that book v. might be intended. [See pages clvii-viii.]

19. To them of three verses, hail!

Between this verse and the next, the commentator's text inserts dvyrcebhyah svāhā.

- 20. To them of one verse, hail!
- 21. To the petty ones, hail!

[See page clviii top.]

This is a repetition of 22.6 above, and after it the commentator's text adds 22.7.

22. To them of a half-verse, hail!

All the mss., and the comm., have here ekānrcebhyas (p.ekaoanrc-), and SPP. follows them. Our ekadvyrcebhyas (misprinted ekadvrc-) was meant as an emendation, but is hardly successful. What ekānrc- should mean does not appear; the translation simply follows the comm., for lack of anything better.

23. To the ruddy ones (rohita), hail!

The mss. Lexcept W's O.D., which have rôh-], and hence also SPP., accent here rohitebhyas. The comm. remarks that in this and the following verses the books intended are clear. This, of course, means book xiii. Lwhich is designated by rohitāis at Kāuç. 99.4].

24. To the two Sūryās, hail!

That is, to the two parts (anuvākas) of the book beginning with the Sūryā-hymn (xiv.).

25. To the two Vrātyas, hail!

Again the two anuvākas of the Vrātya-book (xv.). [Both ed's read vrātyābhyām, with all the authorities, save W's D.L., which have vrātyā. The minor Pet. Lex., vi. 189, notes vrātyā as an adj. to vrātya: hence, rather, 'To the two [anuvākas] about the vrātya, hail!' See my note, p. 770, ¶ 3.]

26. To the two of Prajāpati, hail!

The two anuvākas of book xvi. are evidently intended, though why they are called $pr\bar{a}j\bar{a}patya$ is difficult to say. [The Major Anukr. calls the whole book $pr\bar{a}j\bar{a}patya$, as noted p. 792, ¶ 4.] The Old Anukr. quoted in the endings says at the end of xvi. 4 $pr\bar{a}j\bar{a}patyo$ ha catuskah, [···] saptakah parah: i.e. 'the [first] Prajāpati-anuvāka has four hymns [or $pary\bar{a}yas$]; the [$pary\bar{a}ya$] next after [2 and 3: i.e. $pary\bar{a}ya$ 4] is one of seven verses.' [For the probable relative position and the significance of these extracts, see p. 792 (¶ 5) -793.]

27. To the viṣāsahi, hail!

The seventeenth book begins with the word $vis\bar{a}sahlm$; and this time the comm. takes the trouble to specify that "the seventeenth $k\bar{a}nda$ " is intended. [Cf. p. 805, ¶ 1.]

28. To them of good omen (mangaliká), hail!

This, from its position, ought to signify book xviii.; the comm. says nothing about it; his text reads $m\bar{a}\bar{n}g$. [That the funeral book is held to be most inauspicious appears from SPP's preface to his ed., vol. i., p. 4, p. 5, and especially p. 2. To call the book auspraints is a euphemism such as is familiar in the case of the dreadful god Çiva.]

One of our mss. (I.) inserts after this verse five others which do not appear to occur elsewhere, as SPP. does not mention them: nákṣatrakalpāya svāhā. 29. vāitānakalpāya svāhā. 30. çāntikalpāya svāhā. 31. añgirasakalpāya svāhā. 32. sānihitāvidhaye svāhām. 33. Our 29 then follows, in the form tulibrahmāne svāhā, and our 30 as given in all the mss.: brāhmajyeṣṭhē 'ty ēkā. [The foregoing are the readings of the Collation Book: apart from the accents, they require correction, I suppose, to āngirasaand samhitā.]

29. To the bráhman, hail!

See above, 22. 20, with which this is identical. This time, two of our mss. Land three of SPP's have brahmane; the others, and SPP's text, read brahmane. LAs to the meaning, see introduction, p. 932, ¶ 2.

30. Heroisms were gathered with the bráhman as chief; the bráhman as chief in the beginning stretched the sky; the Brahmán was born as first of creatures; therefore who is fit to contend with the Brahmán?

This is a repetition of 22.21 above; the commentator's text apparently gives it in full, as SPP. notes that (doubtless only by an accident) it reads this time in c prathamo 'tha.

24. For prosperity: with a certain garment.

[Atharvan.— aṣṭāu. mantroktabahudevatyam uta brāhmaṇaspatyam. ānuṣṭubham: 4-6, 8. triṣṭubh; 7. 3-p. ārṣī gāyatrī.]

The hymn, except vs. 2, is found also in Pāipp. xv. The comm. points out that it is prescribed by Nakṣatra Kalpa 17–18 to be used in a mahāçānti ceremony called $tv\bar{a}str\bar{i}$, on occasion of the loss (ksaya) of a garment.

Translated: Ludwig, p. 458; Griffith, ii. 281.

1. With what [garment] the gods caused to wrap god Savitar, with that, O Brahmanaspati, do ye wrap this man in order to royalty.

The translation implies emendation in b of ddhārayan to ddhāpayan; this, obviously suggested by the whole sense of the hymn (and proposed in the Pet. Lex.), is supported by the Ppp. text, which reads devā 'diyāpayan. The comm. reads -dhār-, but explains it as if it were -dhāp-: paritaḥ sarvata ācchādayan. Many of the mss. have adhārayan, unaccented. The comm. quotes TS. vi. I. I4, to the effect that "this same garment belongs to all the gods," to explain why the verb in the second half-verse is plural.

2. Wrap ye this man [as] Indra in order to life-time, to great dominion, that [it] may conduct him unto old age; may he long watch over dominion.

All the mss., both here and in the next verse, read at end of c nayām, which SPP. therefore accepts, although both form and accent are indefensible; the comm. has both times naya; the translation implies our emendation to nāyāt, the propriety of which can hardly be questioned, especially as it is supported by a corresponding verse three times repeated, with variations, in HGS. i. 4. 8: part 'mam indra brahmane mahe crotrāya (or rāṣṭrāya, or poṣāya) dadhmasi: athāi 'nam jarimā nayej jyok crotre (or rāṣṭre, or poṣe) adhi jāgarat: of these three forms, the first is intended for a Brahman, the second for a Kṣaṭriya, the third for a Vāiçya: compare our next verse. The comm., Lin 2 a and 3 a, appears to have had before him indramāyuṣe and somamāyuṣe, whatever his accentuation and pada-text may have been: this he understands as indra mā

"yuse and soma mā "yuse, his vocative indra] agreeing with HGS. and giving an easier and better text; [his mā goes easily as an appositive with imam, but the following enam is quite out of joint with it].

3. Wrap ye this man [as] Soma in order to life-time, to great instruction (crótra), that [it] may conduct him unto old age; may he long watch over instruction.

It is perhaps only by an accident that vs. 2 is omitted in Ppp.; at any rate, this verse shows what would have been read for verse 2 by it: it has somam, not soma, in a; and naya, with the comm., in c; further, in a it gives pare main. Listrictly speaking, it has somamāyuṣe, with a possibility for the same objectionable division as appears under vs. 2, which see.

4. Wrap, set ye him for us with splendor; make him one to die of old age; [make] long life-time; Bṛihaspati furnished (pra-yam) this garment to king Soma for wrapping himself.

This is a repetition of ii. 13. 2, above. The comm. mentions that the verse has been already explained where it first occurred, but adds: "the sense, however, is compendiously this," and proceeds to give the same exposition over again, word for word (unless, indeed, the editor is responsible for the repetition). For the parallel passages etc., see the note to ii. 13. 2.

5. Go thou safely $(s\acute{u})$ unto old age; wrap thyself in the garment; become thou protector of the people (?) against imprecation; and live thou a hundred numerous autumns; and wrap further about $(upa-sam-vy\bar{a})$ thee abundance of wealth.

[The verse is found in PGS. (i. 4. 12), HGS. (i. 4. 2), and MP. (ii. 2. 7). In a, PGS. omits sú, while HGS.MP. have jarám gacchāsi; in b, all three texts read kṛṣṭīnām and abhiçastipāvā; all three end c with suvarcās; and PGS. has for d rayim ca putrān anu samvyayasva, adding āyusmatī 'dam paridhatsva vāsaḥ.] In b, the translation follows Ppp. [and the three texts just cited] in reading kṛṣṭīnām 'people' instead of the absurd gṛṣṭīnām 'heifers,' which is given by all the mss. and the comm., both here and in the nearly accordant verse ii. 13. 3: see note to ii. 13. 3 [and cf. Roth, ZDMG. xlviii. 110]. The comm. is driven by the reading gṛṣ- into taking abhiçasti- from ças 'cut': abhito viçasanam hinsā. [Our abhiçastipā u, at the end of b in vss. 5 and 6, would seem, in view of the -pāvā of the other texts, to be a faulty assimilation to the end of d in vs. 4, pāridhātavā u, such as may be found elsewhere.]

6. Thou hast wrapped thyself in this garment in order to well-being; thou hast become protector of thine allies (?) against imprecation; and live thou a hundred numerous autumns; living, pleasant (cáru), thou shalt share out good things.

The translation implies in b ábhūr āpīnām [see below], or else an analysis of the reading vāpīnām [misprinted vap- in foot-note of Berlin ed.] into u and āpīnām (the prais-mss. have ábhūh: vāpīnām). The vaçānām of our text* is a conjecture provoked by the gṛṣṭīnām of vs. 5; as that is got rid of, this naturally falls away also. The comm. has again gṛṣṭīnām, and this time interprets abhiçasti- as a fear on the part of the 'heifers' of losing their skins (tvagādānabhīti [cf. note to ii. 13. 3])! The Ppp.

text appears to give us no variants. The HGS. has a corresponding verse (in i. 4. 3), reading in a, b adhi dhāh one ms. correctly 'dhithāh svastaye 'bhūr āpīnām† abhiçastipāvā: and, for d, vasūni cāyyo vi bhajā sa jīvan; the variant to cārus, taken in connection with the small appropriateness of cārus, makes its genuineness suspicious. MP., at ii. 2. 8, also has āpīnām; and it agrees otherwise with HGS., save that it has dhā for dhāh, cāryo for cāyyo, and vi bhajāsi (agreeing with AV.). Kirste, in his note to HGS., p. 8, mentions as further variants cāyo and cārye. MB., at i. 1. 6, has c, ending with suvarcās, and d, reading cārye.] *[Misprinted vaçānām.] †[One ms. correctly āpīnām.]

7. We, companions, call to aid Indra the very mighty at every conjuncture, in every contest (? vája).

This verse is, without variant, RV. i. 30. 7; also found in SV. (i. 163; ii. 93), VS. (xi. 14), TS. (in iv. 1. 21), MS. (in ii. 7. 2), MP. i. 6. 3]. Sákháyas, in c, which might be either nominative or vocative, the comm. prefers to take as nominative.

8. Of golden color, unaging, of excellent heroes, having old age as death, do thou enter into union (sam-viç) with progeny: this Agni says, and this Soma says, this Brihaspati, Savitar, Indra.

The second half-verse we had above as viii. 5. 5 a, b which see; and pāda c occurred at xvi. 9. 2 ; the comm. does not notice the repetition. He explains sam viça as used in the sense of nirviça 'enjoy'; or else, he says, of praviça = svagrham adhitistha. Ppp. reads in a ajayas suv.

25. To a horse.

[Gopatha. - ekarcam. vājidevatyam. ānustubham.]

The verse is not found in Pāipp. The comm. finds it quoted in Nakṣ. K. 17-18, in a $mah\bar{a}c\bar{a}nti$ ceremony called $g\bar{a}ndharv\bar{i}$, on occasion of the loss (ksaya) of a horse.

Translated: Griffith, ii. 282.

1. I harness (yuj) thee with the mind of one that is unwearied and that is first; be thou an up-carrier uphill; having carried up, then run thou back.

The real sense of the hymn is very obscure; neither the viniyoga nor the comm. casts any light upon it. [SPP. regards the comm. as taking utkūlamudvaho as one word;] the comm. reads bhavas for bhava: and he explains the phrase simply by atidrpto bhava. Instead of uduhya, the comm. has duhīya (= çatrujayalakṣaṇāni phalāni labheya). SPP. accents útkūlam, with all the mss.; our alteration to utkūlam is not sufficiently motived; the minor Pet. Lex. has utkūlām, which is more in accordance with general analogies. Fully half the mss. accent úduhya. In our text, bhava (in c) is a misprint for bhava (an accent-mark fallen out).

26. For long life etc.: with something golden.

[Atharvan. -- caturrcam. dgneyam; hāiranyam. trāistubham: 3. anustubh; 4. pathyāpankti.]

Of this hymn only vs. 4 is found in Pāipp. (in xx.). The comm. finds it used in Nakṣ. K. 17, 19, in a mahāçānti ceremony called āgneyī, on occasion of danger from fire, with the insertion of a golden earring; further, in Pariç. 11. 1, in a tulāpuruṣa ceremony.

Translated: Grill, 49, 192; Griffith, ii. 283; Bloomfield, 63, 668.

I. The gold that, born out of the fire, immortal, maintains itself over mortals — whoso knows it, he verily merits (arh) it; one that dies of old age becomes he who wears (bhr) it.

SPP. accents at the end bibharti, with the great majority of the mss. (the same also in 2 d); our preference for bibharti was because only this accent is found elsewhere in AV. Most of the mss. accent in c. The masculine enam in c is surprising, as no hint of anything masculine is met with elsewhere in the hymn; the comm. explains it as anvādistam hiranyarūpam padārtham. In a corresponding verse (6) found in a khila of the RV. (to x. 128) is read instead enad (one ms. vedam), which is more likely to be the true text. The same has in b jajūe for dadhre. The Anukr. takes no notice of the redundant syllable in c.

2. The gold, of beauteous color by the sun, that men (mánu) of old with their progeny sought — that, shining (candrá), shall unite thee with splendor; of long life becomes he who wears it.

Very nearly all the mss. read iṣiré at end of b; but both editions, and the comm., give iṣiré. The majority of mss. also accent pūrvé. SPP. reads at end of c srjati, with all the authorities (save his P., which has srjāti)*; both sense and meter so plainly call for srjāti that we adopted it as an emendation in our text; the comm. reads srjatu. As to bibharti at the end, see note to vs. I. *[W's P.M. have srjasvā "yu-.]

3. For life-time thee, for splendor thee, and for force and for strength—that with brilliancy of gold thou mayest shine out among the people.

The comm. reads in c hiranyain tej. The comm. supplies in a, b sain srjatu to each noun, as if they were in the instrumental case, which is plainly wrong. Probably the 'thee' of the first line is different from the 'thou' of the second, being addressed to the article of gold itself.

[The comm. (as noted) and the text of the comm. have hiranyam tejasā; but all the other authorities are agreed as to the accentuation hiranyatējasā; which, however, is inherently improbable (Gram. § 1267 b), if, with the pada-text, we take the combination as one compound word. Both mss. and comm. accent all point the other way, and we have doubtless to assume as pada-reading hiranya: tējasā, as two words, of which the first is vocative; and, but for our blundering pada-kāra, this is just what our samhitā-reading would naturally be taken to mean. The comm. understands 'thee' as referring to the man who wears the gold amulet; but the whole verse gains in concinnity, if we refer 'thee' (with W.) to the amulet itself, and supply with the first half the verb badhnāmi (as at i. 35. 1 c; iv. 10. 7 c; xix. 46. 1 c, d), and take the second half also as addressed to the amulet.]

4. What king Varuna knows, [what] divine Brihaspati knows, what Indra the Vritra-slayer knows, — may that be for thee life-giving, may that be for thee splendor-giving.

Next after the verse already quoted (under vs. 1) from the RV. khila, occurs another corresponding to this, but having for b yad u devi sarasvati, and for d tan me varcasa ayuse, and lacking a fifth pada. Ppp. has in b yad u divo bṛh-, puts yad before indras in c, and has for d, and for end of the verse, tac cittain cittam arhanam.

[Here ends the third anuvāka, with 6 hymns and 65 verses.]

27. For protection etc.: with a triple amulet.

[Bhrgvangiras. — pancadaçakam. trivradevatyam uta cāndramasam. ānustubham: 3, 9. tristubh; 10. jagatī [? see under the verse]; 11. ārcy usnih; 12. ārcy anustubh; 13. sāmnī tristubh (11-13. 1-av.).]

Found (except verses 12 and 13) also in Pāipp. x. The comm. quotes from the Nakṣ. K. (17, 19) its use, in a mahāçānti called prājāpatyā, by one desiring progeny and cattle, and in case of the loss of progeny, with the binding on of an amulet made of three metals, gold and silver and copper.

Translated: Griffith, ii. 283.

1. Let the bull (rṣabhá) protect thee with the kine; let the virile one (vrṣan) protect thee with the vigorous ones (vājin); let Vāyu protect thee with bráhman; let Indra protect thee with Indra's powers (? indriyá).

The comm. reads in a vṛṣabhas.* In b, he naturally understands horses as intended, and connects vājin with the root vij (vājibhir vejanavadbhih çīghragatibhir açvāih). Of brāhman he gives three different and equally worthless explanations. To indriya he says indriyāny atre 'ndrasṛṣṭānī 'ndrajuṣṭāni vā, which gives us no help. * But the text of the comm. has pātv ṛṣabhas.

2. Let Soma protect thee with the herbs; let the sun protect with the asterisms; [let] the moon, Vritra-slayer, [protect] [thee] from the months; let the wind defend with breath.

All the mss. without exception read in c mādbhyás, instead of the mādbhis which we should have expected, and which the comm. has. It seems like a blundering confusion of the two cases (the reverse of that in 22.1, above). The comm. makes naksatra here refer to the planets, most unnecessarily; he reads in d raksati, but glosses it with raksatu.

3. They call the heavens (div) three, the earths three, the atmospheres three, the oceans four, the song of praise (stoma) triple, the waters triple: let these triple ones defend thee with the triple ones.

In Ppp., b and c have apparently dropped out, and d is made to end with trivṛtās trivṛttibhih. The mss. vary between trivṛtā (which both editions read), trivṛtās, and trivṛtāt; the translation implies trivṛtas, which the comm. has, and which is pretty evidently the intent of the verse; [cf. vs. 9 d, below]. The mss. to a great extent read tṛṇ- instead of triv-, as in other like cases. In a in our text, emend to tisrāḥ. We need to combine trivṛtā "pa ā- in c to make a good triṣṭubh. [I doubt if it is a triṣṭubh. To reckon triṇi to pāda a is very harsh. I suspect we have to pronounce pṛthvīs in a, and to read and pronounce trīṇy antárikṣā in b. Thus the verse scans as 8 + 11 : 11 + 11.

4. The three firmaments $(n\hat{a}ka)$, the three oceans, the three bright ones $(bradhn\hat{a})$, the three at the summit $(?v\hat{a}istap\hat{a})$, the three Mātariçvans, the three suns, do I arrange (k!p) as thy guardians.

Nearly all the mss. read in a nākans, and a part also bradhnāns.* The comm. has badhnān, and some of our mss. also badh-, although SPP. strangely appears to find no badh- among his authorities. The pada-mss. give nākam and some of them bradhnān.

Some mss. accent $m\bar{a}t\acute{a}ri_{c}$ - in c, and read $goptr\acute{i}n$ in d. All these are of the superficial variety of discordant readings which swarm in this book, and have no real importance. The comm. explains his $badhn\bar{a}n$ thus: $trin\ badhn\bar{a}n$ $badhnah\ sarvasya\ bandha\ \bar{a}dh\bar{a}rabh\bar{u}ta\ \bar{a}dityah$, in which he shows himself equal to the occasion after precisely his own fashion. The Anukr. takes no notice of the metrical irregularity (7+7:9+7=30). [Roth notes expressly that Ppp. reads $v\bar{a}istap\bar{a}n$.] *[Cf. note to 13.8 above, and to 28.2; also Müller's 1st quarto ed. of RV., vol. i., preface, p. xii; and Pischel, Gram. $der\ Prakrit-sprachen$, § 83.]

5. With ghee do I sprinkle thee all over, O Agni, increasing thee with sacrificial butter; of fire, of moon, of sun, let not the wily ones damage the breath.

The comm. takes the liberty of filling out c, d so as to mean "by the favor of the fire etc.... thy breath, O man that we arest the threefold amulet." Some of SPP's mss. read in a ukhyāmi and ukṣyāmi.

6. Let not the wily ones damage your breath, nor your expiration nor flame (? háras); shining, all-possessing, run ye, O gods, with what is of the gods.

The translation implies emendation of devās in d to devās; the comm. understands devās, but doubtless only by his customary disregard of the accent. He understands vas in a [alternatively] as plur. majest. of the king on whom the amulet is bound, and haras in b as çatrubalāpahārakain tejas. To dāivyena in d he supplies rathādinā sādhanena vegena vā. We are tempted to emend at the end to dāivyenā "dhāvata; Ppp. reads māvata for dhāvata.

7. One unites Agni with breath; the wind is combined with breath; with breath the gods generated the sun that faces all ways. | See p. xxxvi, n. |

All the mss. (save one of SPP's, which has -jāti) read srjati in a, and, as the meter favors it, it might better stand (our text emended to -anti). Ppp. gives for a prānenā 'gnim sam dadhata, and [reads and] combines at the end [suryam] devā 'janayan.

S. Live thou with the life-time of the life-time-makers; live as one long-lived; do not die; live with the breath of the soulful (atmanvant); do not come under the control of death.

Nearly all the mss. read in a āyuḥkṛṭām, and SPP. follows them, although the comm. gives -uṣk-. In c, both the editions emend to ātmanvátām, all the mss. having ātmatvátām (p. ātmaotvátām!); the comm. appears to imply -nvatām in his explanation, though (according to SPP.) his text also has -tvatām. Nearly all [SPP's authorities] accent after it jīvá; both editions read jīva, [SPP.] on very slender authority. Our úpa gās in d is an emendation, for the úd agās of the mss., SPP., and the comm.; the change was demanded by the requirements both of grammar and of the sense; and compositely supports it, reading upa gā v.

9. The treasured $(ni\text{-}dh\bar{a})$ treasure of the gods that Indra discovered by roads that the gods travel — the gold did the waters guard with triple ones; let those triple ones defend thee with the triple ones.

The last pāda is a repetition of 3 d, and has the same readings as there in mss.,* editions, and comm. Instead of indro 'nv- in a, b the mss. give indrā 'nv- (p. indra: anu-); but this time SPP. also, as well as we, emends to the former reading, which is that of the comm. [Nidhim devānām nihitam yam indrah would be good rhythm.] *[Or nearly so: but trivṛtā of 3 is here tṛvatā.]

10. Thirty-three deities and three heroisms guarded [it] within the waters, holding [it] dear; what gold there is upon this shining one (?candrá), therewith shall this man do heroisms.

All the mss. read in b priyāyamānā (p. priyāya: mānā!); but here again SPP. has the courage to follow us in emending to priyāyamānās (p. priyacyamānāh), since the comm. so understands it; it is only a question whether in pada-text-mānā should not rather be read, as agreeing with the nearer of the two nouns; the comm. takes it as fem. (priyam ivā "carantyah). The Anukr is curiously confused here; after correctly defining the verse devānām nihitam nidhim as a tristubh, it proceeds to define āpo hiranyam jugupuh as a jagatī, and takes no note of trayastrinçad devatāh as a pratīka. Probably there is a quid pro quo here, by a slip of memory; but one does not see how this highly irregular * verse (13 + 11:10 + 11 = 45) should be called simply a jagatī. [With a, cf. 37.1 c, below.] *[Possibly we have to substitute the older grammatical equivalent in a, trī ca vīryā (cf. 3 b); a 'sti before ádhi would mend c.]

- 11. Ye, O gods, that are eleven in the sky, do ye, Q gods, enjoy this oblation.
- 12. Ye, O gods, that are eleven in the atmosphere, do ye, O gods, enjoy this oblation.
- 13. Ye, O gods, that are eleven on the earth, do ye, O gods, enjoy this oblation.

With these three verses corresponds RV. i. 139. II: yé devāso divy ékādaça sthá pṛthivyām ádhy ékādaça sthá: apsukṣtto mahināt 'kādaça sthá té devāso yajūám imám juṣadhvam; VS. vii. 19 precisely agrees with this; MS. (in i. 3. 13) reads devās in a; TS. (in i. 4. 10) reads devās in both a and d apsuṣádo in c. The comm's text inserts in vs. II divyās after devās.

- 14. Freedom from rivals in front, behind us [is] fearlessness made; Savitar [protect] me on the south, the lord of Çachī me on the north.
- 15. From the sky let the Ādityas defend me, from the earth let the fires defend; let Indra-and-Agni defend me in front; let the Açvins yield refuge round about; crosswise let the inviolable [cow], let Jātavedas, defend [me]; let the being-makers be my defense on all sides.

These two verses are a repetition of 16. 1, 2 above, and in our mss., as usual, are read simply thus: asapatnám purástād tti dvé. The Anukr. does not repeat its definition of their meter; inasmuch as it reckons the hymn as of fifteen verses, it plainly takes the addition here as of two verses only; the comm., however, again counts three, making of $[our 15 \, a, \, b]$ a separate verse*; [cf. notes to 16.2]. In general, the comm. does not comment for the second time a repeated passage; here, however, he gives a full explanation, as if it were the first appearance of the verses; and in 14 b (perhaps merely by an oversight?) he reads me instead of nas. *[The comm. in fact takes our vss. 11-13]

as one vs., his 11; our 14 as his 12; our 15 ab as his 13; and our 15 c-f as his 14. Or, he says, we may take our 14 with 15 ab as one mantra. He reads agnis again in our e as in 16.2 e. |

28. For various blessings: with an amulet of darbhá.

[Brahman (sapatnaksayakāmaḥ). — daçakam. mantroktadarbhamanidevatyam. ānustubham.]

The hymn is found also in Pāipp. xiii., with very few variants. The comm. finds it Lor rather the whole triad of hymns, 28, 29, 30] used by the Naks. K. L17, 19] in a mahāçānti ceremony called āindrī, with binding on of a darbha amulet, by one desiring victory and the like.

Translated: Griffith, ii. 285.

1. I bind for thee this amulet, in order to long life, to brilliancy — the darbhá, damager of rivals, burner (tápana) of the heart of the hater.

Nearly all the mss. accent dárbham. Ppp. reads in b varcase, and in c -jambhanā.

2. Burner of the heart of the hater, causing to burn the mind of foes, do thou, O darbhá, burn together like heat (gharmá) against all the evil-hearted.

The mss., and hence SPP., read for a dvisatás tāpáyan hṛdaḥ, as if hṛdás could be an accus. sing.; and the comm. has the same, and glosses hydas with hydayam. By some oversight, SPP. says on p. 384, note 3, that the text of the comm. reads sarvans tvam; and on p. 385, note 1, "Sāyana's text too has sarvam." The comm. explains as if the | questionable | word were simply sarvam, 'the evil-hearted one's everything.' In d, the mss. and SPP. read ivā 'bhint samtāpayan (one of ours abhit, another abhāút: mere accidental variations), the pada-text presenting abhin: samo; the comm. has the same, and explains thus: abhīn abhayān samtāpayan bhinddhi | iti sambandhah : connecting the phrase with the bhinddhi of vss. 3, 4, 5 |. Our abhisantāpaya is heroic surgery, but very plausible; abhi't s- (i.e. abhi: tt:s-) would save a little more of the original, and tt is elsewhere added to reinforce abht: cf. viii. 4. 21; xi. 1. 6; Ppp. has very nearly this reading, namely, gharme 'vā 'bhī 't samtāpayam'. The comm. glosses gha: mas first with adityas, then (on authority of TA. v. 1. 5) with pravargyas. The Anukr. takes no notice of the redundancies caused in 2 d and 3 a and d and 4 c if iva is not abbreviated to 'va; in at least two of the cases, 2 d and 3 d, Ppp. combines to suit the meter, gharme 'va, indrāi 'va. [The first pāda is wanting in Ppp.]

3. Burning against [them] like heat, O darbhá, burning down the haters, O amulet, split thou our rivals to the heart, like Indra breaking apart Vala.

The translation implies emendation in d to valám, as made in our edition; SPP. follows the mss. and comm. in accepting balám, in spite of its false accent. Nearly all the mss. read virujám (p. viorujám), but the comm. -jan, which, of course, is alone resissible; SPP. very strangely compromises by reading virujám in samhitā, but viorujám in pada! In c, SPP. gives, with [five of his authorities], -dáh sapátnānām bhinddhi; even the pada-mss. vary between saopátnān: ā: bh- and saopátnānām: bh-; the comm. has -nānām, and so has Ppp.; the translation above implies -nān ā,* in spite of the separation of ā from hrdás. [Ppp. gives indrāi va in d, as noted under vs. 2.]

- *[This reading is given by eight of SPP's mss. and one of W's. In sapátnānām we may have a case of faulty assimilation from 4 a: SPP's Dc., which is usually carefully corrected, here carries the blunder half way prima manu, giving sapátnānām (accents! so perhaps also W's O.D.L.), and completes it secunda manu, giving sapátnānām.
- 4. Split, O darbhá, the heart of our rivals, of our haters, O amulet; make their head fly apart, as the rising [sun] does the skin of the earth.

The comm. reads and explains ni pātaya in d (though the ms. gives vi p-). The obscure and perhaps corrupt third pāda is thus explained: udyann ūrdhvam gacchan bhujādipradeçam adhitisthan tvam bhūmyās tvacam [iva] trnagulmāuṣadhyādyadhiṣthānabhūtām yathā takṣanena nipātayati grhādinirmānārtham loke.

5. Split, O darbhá, my rivals; split those that fight against me; split all my enemies (durhárd); split my haters, O amulet.

In the following fourteen verses, of this hymn and the one that follows it, only the verb in each pada is changed. In c, Ppp. blunderingly reads chindhi, anticipating the next verse.

- 6. Sever, O darbhá, my rivals; sever those etc. etc.
- 7. Hew down (vraçc), O darbhá, my rivals; hew down those etc. etc.
- 8. Cut, O darbhá, my rivals; cut those etc. etc.

In verses 6, 8, 9, 10 of this hymn, also in 29.2 below, a part of the mss. read durhār-dān instead of -das in c; and SPP. strangely follows them in 28.6, 8.

9. Carve (?), O darbhá, my rivals; carve those etc. etc.

The Pet. Lex. (under root pis) proposes to emend in this verse pinca to pinsa. As, however, we have root pis below in 29.6, there seems to be no sufficient reason for substituting it here. One of SPP's mss. reads here pinsa p.m. pinca s.m.].

10. Pierce, O darbhá, my rivals; pierce those etc. etc.

The mss. vary here between vidhya and vidhya. [Ppp. reads viddhi.]

29. Continuation of the foregoing.

[As 28. navakam.]

This is a mere continuation of the preceding hymn, and it is hard to see why they are divided. They are found together in Pāipp. xiii. [Ritual use under 28.]

Translated: Griffith, ii. 286.

1. Gore, O darbhá, my rivals; gore those that fight against me; gore all my enemies; gore my haters, O amulet.

Half the mss. accent in this verse nikṣá. The comm. follows the dhātupāṭha in interpreting it to mean cumba 'kiss'! [He intends rather the root cumb 'harm,' hinsāyām, not cumb, vaktrasamyoge.]

2. Bore, O darbhá, my rivals; bore those etc. etc.

The comm. glosses the verb with nāçaya.

3. Obstruct, O darbhá, my rivals; obstruct those etc. etc.

The comm. glosses the verb (after the dhātupāṭha) with āvṛṇu nirodham kuru. The Pet. Lex. [s.v. 3 ru 'zerschlagen'] suggests reading instead rudht "according to mss."; but rudht is found in only one ms., in a, while the same ms. has rundht in b, c, d; rudht is accordingly only a careless misreading. Ppp. has bhankti.

- 4. Kill, O darbhá, my rivals; kill those etc. etc.
- 5. Grind, O darbhá, my rivals; grind those etc. etc.

About half the mss. accent manthá. The comm. gives, as if from the dhātupāṭha, mantha loḍane (Westergaard and Böhtlingk viloḍane).

- 6. Crush (pis), O darbhá, my rivals; crush those etc. etc. Ppp. reads pindi.
- 7. Scorch (us), O darbhá, my rivals; scorch those etc. etc. The majority of mss. combine in a-b me osa, and SPP. follows them.
- 8. Burn, O darbhá, my rivals; burn those etc. etc. The decided majority of mss. accent dahá.
- 9. Slay, O darbhá, my rivals; slay those etc. etc.

30. For protection etc.: with an amulet of darbhá.

[As 28. pañcakam.]

Found also in Pāipp. xiii., with the two preceding, and, according to the comm., associated with them in use.

Translated: Griffith, ii. 287.

See p. 1045.

1. What thou hast that brings death in old age, O darbhá, that has hundred-fold defense, good defense, therewith having made this man defended (varmín), smite thou my rivals by thy heroisms.

The translation implies jarāmṛṭyu çatāvarma suvārma te, which is the text of neither edition, nor of the mss., nor of the comm., but simply what makes best sense with least departure from the mss. The mss. all give -tyuḥ fatān vārmasu [W's B. varmasu] (p. vārmaosu) vārma te; the comm. has jarāmṛṭyuçatam marmasu (explaining jarasām mrṭyūnām ca çatām granthiṣu!). The te in b had to be omitted in translating.

2. A hundred are thy defenses, O darbhá, a thousand thy heroisms; as such, all the gods have given thee to this man to wear, in order to [attain] old age.

Ppp. has at the end dadus. The comm. (with two of SPP's mss.) again reads in a $marm\bar{a}ni$. The decided majority of mss. have $tv\dot{a}m$ at beginning of c; none of ours collated before publication had $t\dot{a}m$, which is doubtless the true text, and is read [by W's O. and] by SPP. and by the comm.

Thee they call the gods' defense, thee, O darbhá, Brahmanaspati; thee they call Indra's defense; thou defendest kingdoms.

The majority of mss. leave devavarma unaccented. We are tempted to emend to -pâteh in b. Ppp. reads | presumably in c | tvām indrād devavarmā "hus.

4. A destroyer of our rivals, O darbha, burner of the heart of our hater — an amulet, increaser of dominion, protector of thy body, I make for thee.

Emendation to darbham in a would relieve the anacoluthon of the verse. The comm., to get rid of it, first explains te as $= tv\bar{a}$; but then secondly connects the whole verse into one sentence leaving darbha out. [I] are not quite clear as to whether he means to leave it out. He says: atha $v\bar{a}$ rakṣākāmaḥ puruṣaḥ sambodhyate: he rājan darbhamanim sapatnakṣayaṇādisāmarthyopetam te tubhyam kṣatrasya vardhanam tanūpānam ca kṛṇomī 'ti sambandhanīyam.

5. What the ocean roared (krand) against, [and] Parjanya with the lightning, therefrom was born the golden drop $(bind\acute{u})$, therefrom the $darbh\acute{a}$.

Our edition emends in a to samudre, which is doubtless an improvement, but not necessary. [The translation follows the mss., SPP., and comm., which have samudro: Ppp. samudro 'bhya-.] The comm. derives the word (as many times elsewhere) from sam-ud-dravanti, and makes it an epithet of parjanyas, which he explains as meaning meghas. Most of the mss. accent bindus. The comm. makes the second tatas refer to bindu, but gives no opinion as to the meaning of the latter. [Ppp. reads vindus in c.] [Cf. Pischel, ZDMG. xxxvi. 135, who thinks the "drop" refers to pearl: cf. introduction to iv. 10.]

31. For various blessings: with an amulet of udumbára.

[Savitr (puştikāmaḥ). — caturdaça. mantroktāudumbaramanidevatyam. ānustubham: 5, 12. tristubh; 6. virāt prastārapaūkti; 11, 13. 5-p. çakvarī; 14. virād āstārapaūkti.]

[Partly prose, vs. 12(?).] Found also in Pāipp. x. The comm. finds it used in Nakṣ. K. 17, 19, by one desiring wealth, or in the case of loss of wealth, in a mahā-çānti ceremony called kāuberī, with binding on of an amulet of udumbara.

Translated: Griffith, ii. 287.

1. With an amulet of udumbára, for the pious one desiring prosperity: may Savitar make in my cow-stall fatness (sphāti) of all cattle.

The translation implies in b emendation to vedháse, which seems hardly avoidable. The comm. gives two explanations of vedhasā: vidhātrā purā prayogah kṛtaḥ; and puṣṭyādividhātrā kartrā maṇinā. Nearly all the mss. accent paçūnām (one of ours has -çūnām), and SPP. passes the anomaly without remark.

2. Whatever householder's fire of ours may be overlord of cattle: let the virile (vfsan) amulet of udumbára unite me with prosperity.

The connection of the parts of the verse is obscure. The comm. makes b apodosis to a, supplying asti in a, and taking dsat optatively — which is extremely implausible. In d the mss. read sd $m\bar{a}$ (p. sdh: $m\bar{a}$); the comm. divides sam \bar{a} , with his usual disregard of accent ($\bar{a} = sarvatah$); our sdm $m\bar{a}$ is an obvious and unquestionable emendation, and is also read by Ppp. [See my note to xviii. 2. 3, where this case and similar ones are put together, and cf. vi. 5. 2.] The mss. further vary between $pusty\bar{a}$ and $pusty\bar{a}$, the decided majority having the latter.

3. Rich in manure, rich in fruit, svadhá and cheer (irā) in our house — prosperity let Dhātar assign to me through the keenness (téjas) of the [amulet] of udumbára.

A few of the mss. again accent pustim. Ppp. reads in a karīṣiṇam phalāvatīm. The comm. explains $ir\bar{a}$ first as = $bh\bar{a}mi$, and then as = $il\bar{a}$ $g\bar{a}uh = g\bar{a}vah$.

4. Both what [is] two-footed and what four-footed, what foods [there are], what savors (rása) — I seize (grah) the abundance of them, wearing the amulet of udumbára.

Some of the mss. read $r\dot{a}s\bar{a}$ at end of b. In c, our $t\dot{e}s\bar{a}m$ is an obviously called-for emendation; most mss. read $t\dot{v}\dot{e}s\bar{a}m$ or $t\dot{v}es\bar{a}m$ (p. $t\dot{u}:\dot{e}s\bar{a}m$ or $t\dot{u}:es\bar{a}m$); SPP. strangely gives $t\dot{v}\dot{e}s\bar{a}m$ in $samhit\bar{a}$ and $t\dot{u}:es\bar{a}m$ in pada, the two not agreeing together; the comm. either reads $es\bar{a}m$ simply or overlooks the tu in his exposition. Ppp. gives $grhn\bar{t}y\bar{a}m$ $tes\bar{a}m$ $bh\bar{a}um\bar{a}nam$.

5. I have seized all (pári-) the prosperity of cattle, of quadrupeds, of bipeds, and what grain [there is]; the milk of cattle, the sap (rása) of herbs, may Brihaspati, may Savitar confirm to me.

Nearly all the mss. accent this time pustim.

6. Let me be the over-ruler of cattle; let the lord of prosperity (puṣṭá-) assign to me prosperity; let the amulet of udumbára confirm to me possessions (drávina).

SPP. leaves asāni in a unaccented, though every ms. but one (doubtless an accidental exception) accents it, and defensibly, on the ground of antithesis.

7. Unto me the amulet of udumbára, with both progeny and riches: the amulet quickened by Indra hath come to me together with splendor.

Either Ppp. lacks 6 d and 7 a-c, or so much of its text is lost in the manuscript. Our finvitás in c was an emendation, all the mss. (SPP's as well as ours) giving finvátas, and Ppp. likewise; but the comm. has finvitas, and SPP. accordingly adopts it also in his text. Some of the mss. leave upa at the beginning unaccented.

8. The heavenly amulet, rival-slaying, riches-winning, in order to the winning of riches: let it confirm [to me] abundance of cattle, of food, [and] fatness of kine.

Nearly all the mss. read in d sphātir nt; [disregarding the accent, five of SPP's authorities show sphātim]; SPP's text agrees with ours [sphātim], the comm. having the same. Ppp. again has bhāumānam in c.

- 9. As in the beginning thou, O forest tree, wast born together with prosperity, so let Sarasvatī assign to me fatness of riches.
- me of the mss. accent pústyā, and all [but four] leave jajñise unaccented. The majority accent sphātim in c. Ppp. reads in d ā dadāti [sarasvatīm (or -tī?)].
- 10. Riches, fatness of milk, and grain shall Sarasvatī, shall Sinīvālī, and this amulet of udumbára bring to me.

Both our pada-mss. divide in b páyahophātim, but SPP. reports no such reading among his three, and gives correctly páyahosph- (the accent is probably false). Our text emends, perhaps unnecessarily, to gáy-. In c, the pada-mss. make the blundering analysis of úpāvahāt into úpa: avahāt; SPP. gives, by emendation, úpa: vahāt; our text emends further to upāvahāt (i.e. upaoāvahāt); it is uncertain which the comm. favors, but probably the latter: the sole ms. has [twice upāvahāt and once] upa vahāt (probably misreading for upāvahāt) upāvahatu. Ppp. has upāvahat; in b, it agrees with the mss. in reading payasph-.

11. Thou art the virile $(v\hat{r}san)$ over-ruler of amulets; in thee the lord of prosperity generated prosperity; in thee [are] these powers $(v\hat{a}ja)$, [are] all possessions; do thou here, O [amulet] of $udumb\acute{a}ra$, force (sah) far away from us the niggard, misery, and hunger.

In a the comm. reads adhipas. In b Ppp. gives pustipatis. At beginning of c, the comm. has $tvay\bar{a}$ me, which is not bad. In c, the pada-mss. have $v\bar{a}j\bar{a}$. At beginning of d, all the mss. present $\bar{a}udumbaras$, and SPP. does not emend to -ra with us, although the comm. has it and the sense demands it. But in e, where all the mss. read $am\dot{r}tam$, he ventures to follow the comm. in substituting dmatim, which is better than our conjecture dvartim (misprinted dvartim). [Ppp. has, for e, dvartim dvartim abhitikṣayam ca.] The verse scans naturally as dvartim it is easy, but needless, to make up the full count of a dvartin, 56, by resolution.

12. Troop-leader art thou, arising a troop-leader; being anointed (abhisic), do thou anoint me with splendor; brilliancy art thou, brilliancy maintain thou upon me; wealth art thou, wealth assign thou to me.

The reading of a is probably corrupt; for utthaya, which both editions give (with two or three mss.), the mss. in general have ukthyāya or utthyāya or ucchyāya, with à or â. According to SPP., the comm's text has grāmanī chāyā, and Ppp. strangely gives the same; what he attempts to explain is very doubtful: ato smākam api grāmanīr bhava... atha vā mām api greṣṭham kuru. SPP. divides grāmaonīh in his pada-text, but without authority from the mss., and against his practice in iii. 5.7. In b, some of the mss. read sinca. On the ground of meter, SPP. suggests that rayls in d may be for ádhirayis, one of the two successive adhi's being lost; this would be more acceptable if the word adhirayi, or anything closely analogous with it, anywhere occurred. The comm. makes an adhirayis (explaining it as adhigatarayis or prāptadhanas) by stealing for it the ádhi of c, with his usual disregard of pada-division and accent (neither of which, to be sure, is of much account in this book). [The Index calls this vs. prose; but with ádhi at the end of c and ádhirayis in d it might scan as 11 + 12:11 + 11.]

13. Prosperity art thou, with prosperity anoint $(a \bar{n} j)$ thou me completely; being house-sacrificer, make thou me householder; O [amulet] of udumbára, do thou here put in us and confirm to us wealth having all heroes; I fasten thee on in order to abundance of wealth.

The comm., against the Anukr. and the natural division, adds e to verse 14. Part of the mss. again accent púsți in a. Some, including all the pada-mss., have indhi for andhi; Ppp. agahi. SPP. again fails to follow us, the comm., Ppp., and one of our mss., in reading audumbara (instead of -ras) in c; some of his mss. leave tvam without accent. [The non-elision of a in ahám justifies the count as cakvart, but hurts the meter, which is none too good if we scan the vs. as 5×11 .]

14. This amulet of udumbára is bound, a hero, to a hero; let it make for us a winning rich in honey, and may it confirm to us wealth having all heroes.

Some of the mss. accent sanim in c. Ppp. reads ucyate for badhyate in b.

32. For long life etc.: with an amulet of darbhá.

[Bhṛgu (sarvakāmaḥ. āyuṣc).—daçakam. mantroktadevatyam. ānuṣṭubham: 8. purastādbṛhatī; 9. triṣṭubh; 10. jagatī.]

Found also in Pāipp. xii. The comm. finds the hymn quoted in Nakṣ. K. 19, as used in a mahāçānti ceremony called yāmī, with the binding on of an amulet of darbha, in case of fear of Yama (yamabhaye).

Translated: Griffith, ii. 289; vs. 8 also by Zimmer, p. 205, with comment.

1. Hundred-jointed, hard to be stirred, thousand-leaved, uplifting (?) — the darbhá that is a formidable herb, that I bind on thee in order to [prolonged] life-time.

Some of the mss., as usual, read duçcav- in a. Very nearly all read uttirás in b (p. utotiráh), and SPP. follows them; and this the translation implies, since it is acceptable enough [cf., for the formation, uttudás, iii. 25. I, and, for the meaning, uttirán, vi. 36. 2], and appears in Ppp. (with -rnam before it); but the comm. has úttaras, as our text by conjectural emendation. Some mss. have tát for tám in d; the comm., tena for tam te. [Ppp. combines yograosadhis in c, which is susceptible of more than one interpretation.] [The gender of ugrás would seem to call for some remark.]

2. His hair they scatter not forth, they smite not blows on their breast [for him], to whom one yields refuge by the darbhá of uncut leaves.

The expression in a is a good example for the real identity of roots vap 'strew' and vap 'shear.' Many of the mss. accent urasi in b. All the mss. leave yachati in d unaccented, and both editions commit the error of refraining from emendation to yachati, which is of course necessary. Ppp. has at end of b ghnati, and combines in c $yasm\bar{a}$ 'cch. Bloomfield translates and comments on the verse in AJP. xi. 339 [or JAOS. xv., p. xlv]. The comm. supplies in the first line as subject $mrtyud\bar{u}t\bar{a}$ $raksahpiq\bar{a}c\bar{a}dy\bar{a}$ $v\bar{a}$, renders pra vapanti by $\bar{a}karsanti$, and combines $urasit\bar{a}dam$ into a compound — all very bad.

3. In the sky is thy tuft, O herb; in the earth art thou set $(ni\text{-}sth\bar{a})$; with thee, that hast a thousand joints, do we increase further our life-time.

The translation follows the mss., the comm., SPP., and Ppp., all of which read tulam [Cf. ii. 7. 3, which perhaps suggested the wrong emendation of the Berlin text.] In b, the comm. has visthitas [and Ppp. nisthitā].

4. Thou didst bore through the three skies, also these three earths; by thee do I bore into my enemy's (durhárd) tongue [and] utterances (vácas).

In a, SPP. reads more correctly divás, with nearly all the mss. The comm. reads atrnas; he explains aty atrnas by atikramya gatavān asi or veṣṭitavān asi, and ni trṇadmi by veṣṭayāmi, both very unsuitably. The meter clearly calls for ca at the end, and Ppp. has it; whether the comm. means to acknowledge it as part of the text is doubtful; his text, according to SPP., does not present it. [None of the other authorities has ca, but the Berlin ed. gives ca by emendation.] Ppp. reads in b tisro dyām prth.

5. Thou art overpowering; I am full of power; may we, both of us, becoming full of power, overpower our rivals.

The comm. reads in a sahamānā; Ppp. in a-b, -no aham. To be compared is iii. 18. 5 (RV. x. 145. 5), which ends grammatically with a dual, sahāvahāi. Our sahiṣīvahi [Skt. Gram. § 907] was an emendation, but is given also by Ppp.; the mss., SPP., and the comm., have -mahi.

6. Do thou overpower our hostile plotter, overpower those that fight us; overpower all enemies (durhārd); make for me many friends (suhārd).

Most of the mss. read in d bahûm; Ppp. and the comm. and two of SPP's authorities and one of ours have bahûn. Ppp. combines and reads in a, b no 'bhimātiham sahasvā pṛ-.

7. With the darbhá, god-born, constantly sky-propping — with it I have constantly won and shall win men (jána).

In a most of the mss. read $devaj\bar{a}t\acute{e}na$; SPP. with us. In b, SPP. follows the mss. in giving divi stambhéna (p. divi: stambhéna); our emendation to divistambhéna is obviously required, and is assumed by the comm. In c, our $j\acute{a}n\bar{a}n$ was an emendation for the $j\acute{a}n\bar{a}s$ of the mss.; but two of SPP's mss. read $j\acute{a}n\bar{a}n$, and it is accepted also in SPP's text. The comm. supports it by giving $jan\bar{a}n$; and his text has $jan\bar{a}n$ asanam]. [Ppp. also has $jan\bar{a}n$, as noted below.] In d, nearly all the authorities read $dsan\bar{a}m$ (three of them have $dsan\bar{a}nt$ s-), but SPP. finds among his, two that agree with the [text of the] comm. in presenting dsanam, which he adopts, and which is undoubtedly the true text; the aorist is the tense that best suits the connection. [This remark seems to involve the implication that $asan\bar{a}m$ might be an imperfect of the $n\bar{a}$ -class; but that can hardly have been Whitney's intention.] Ppp. reads $jan\bar{a}n$ asanām, [and, in b, divastambhena].

8. Make me, O darbhá, dear to Brahman-and-Kshatriya, both to Çūdra and to Āryan, and to whomsoever we desire, and to every one that looks abroad.

That is, 'every one that has eyes to see.' [Cf. 62. I, below, and VS. xviii. 48.] A few authorities have the more proper accent -nyābhyām, but VS. xxvi. 2 (which has this and the following four words together) likewise accents -nyà-, as does SPP. Our çūdrāya was an emendation, all our mss. [collated at time of publication] having saryāya, as do nearly all SPP's; but one of our later ones, with two or three of SPP's, the comm., and Ppp., give çūdrāya. All the mss. mis-accent vipāçyate, most having vipaçyate, others vipaçyate or vipaçyate; SPP. this time ventures to follow us in emending to [vipāçyate] the true reading. The Anukr. regards brahmarājanyābhyām as belonging to the first pāda, and does not heed that the pāda has 13 syllables, one too many for a purastādbṛhatī.

9. He that, being born, made firm the earth, that propped (stabh) the atmosphere and the sky, whose wearer evil hath not found out—that darbhá here [is] our supporter [and] blessing.

Or, 'be our supporter.' Here at the end, the translation follows the very acceptable reading of Ppp., dharuno 'dhivākaḥ. All the mss. give váruno one, váruno! divākaḥ kaḥ (the comm. divā 'kaḥ), which was plainly corrupt, but which SPP. (justifiably, from his point of view) retains without question. Roth's emendation, as read in our text, to várano 'dhivākaḥ hit very near the mark. All the mss. (except, doubtless by accident, one of ours) have in c viveda, without accent, and this SPP. admits in his text, though emendation (to viveda, as made in our edition) is as obviously necessary as in vs. 8. All the mss. [but O. tanú], and Ppp., read in c nanú; [and so does SPP.;] our emendation to nā 'nu is acceptable, but not necessary. The comm. explains quite prosaically the plant's 'making firm the earth'; its roots keep the ground from being dissolved by water! The last words he understands thus: varuna (as coming from vṛ) means a keeper off (nivāraka) of darkness; and divā 'kaḥ signifies prakāṣam karotu. [Ppp. begins b with so 'stabh-.]

10. Rival-slaying, hundred-jointed, powerful, came into being the first of plants; let that darbhá here protect us all about; by it may I overpower fighters, them that fight [against me].

In a-b the mss. read sáhasvanāú 'ṣadh- (p. -svanā : óṣ-), but SPP. emends, as we had done, to -vān óṣadh-, as is read by one of his pada-mss., p.m., by the comm., and also by Ppp. It is a naturally suggested conjecture that at some time -āno- as written in the Bengālī fashion may have been misread into -anāu-, and SPP. puts this forward; the lateness and unscholarly character of the pada-text to this book make the assumption of such an error far from implausible; we are surprised only at finding the comm's text antecedent to it. In d a few of the mss. accent prtanyátas. The verse is jagatī only in its second half. | Pāda c is identical with 33.1 c. |

33. For various blessings: with an amulet of darbhá.

[As 32. — pañcakam. 1. jagatī; 2,5. tristubh; 3. ārṣī pañkti; 4. āstārapañkti.]

Found in Pāipp. xii., following our hymn 32. Used with the latter in the same ceremony, according to the comm. [For citations by Kāuç., see under vs. 3.]

Translated: Griffith, ii. 290.

1. Of thousand-fold worth, hundred-jointed, rich in milk, fire of the waters, consecration $(r\bar{a}jas\bar{u}ya)$ of plants — let this darbha here protect us all about; may the divine amulet unite us with [prolonged] life-time.

SPP. accents in a sahasrārghás, with the minority of mss.; Ppp. has -ghyas. The comm. reads sahasvān (for pay-), and renders sahasrārghas by bahumūlyas. Ppp. reads in d dāivas and srjātu.* The verse is a jagatī only in the second half. [Pāda c is tical with 32. 10 c.] *[Other forms like srjātu under 7. 4.]

2. Snatched out of ghee, rich in honey, rich in milk, earth-establishing, unstirred, stirring [other things], thrusting away and putting down rivals—ascend thou, O darbhá, with the energy (indrivá) of the great ones.

There are no variants in this verse except of a few mss. on one and another point of no consequence. Ppp. has at the end mahatā mahendriyeṇa. The verse is a sort of variation of v. 28. 14, above; | and a recurs below, 46. 6 a |.

3. Thou goest across the earth with force; thou sittest beauteous (cdru) on the sacrificial hearth at the sacrifice; the seers bore thee [as] purifier; do thou purify us from difficulties.

Literally, 'purify (remove, strain out) difficulties from us.' [As to a, Griffith notes appositely that "the [darbha] grass spreads with great rapidity, re-rooting itself continually."] In c, the translation follows the text of SPP., who emends bharantas of all the mss. [save one] and of our edition to abharanta on the authority of the comm. alone. Ppp. reads bhūmig ady eṣy oj. The comm. quotes TB. i. 3. 7¹ to prove that darbha is properly called a 'purifier' or 'strainer.' There is not a bit of $pa\bar{n}kti$ -character in the verse; [with the ordinary resolutions, and that of bhuumim besides, it scans easily as 12 + 12 : 11 + 11;] of course it can be scanned down to 40 syllables by neglecting easy and natural resolutions. [The verse is quoted by Kāuç. in full at 2. 1 and by pratīka at 137. 32: cf. p. 897, ¶ 3, and see Bloomfield's notes to the passages of Kāuç.]

4. A keen (tīkṣṇá) king, of mighty power, demon-slaying, belonging to all men (-carṣaṇt), force of the gods, formidable strength [is] that; I bind it on thee in order to old age, to well-being.

Ppp. reads in c tejas for ojas, and in d tat for tam.

5. With the darbhá thou shalt do heroic deeds; wearing the darbhá, do thou not stagger by thyself; excelling (ati-sthā) over others with splendor, shine thou like the sun unto the four quarters.

Our kṛṇāvas is an emendation; all the mss., and SPP., give kṛṇāvat or kṛṇavat, which the comm. also reads <code>[and renders by kuryās]</code> (without spending a word of explanation on the grammatical anomaly; it simply falls under his general rule that in the Veda one form may be used in place of another); Ppp. has kṛṇu. In c SPP. reads, with the comm. <code>[but the ms. atha]</code>, ādha instead of our ādhi (vārcasā 'dhā 'nyānt s-); the mss. have vārcasāidhyānyām (also -sāindhyā-, -sāindhā-, -sāindhā-, -sīdha-; and the comm's text -sāudha-), in pada-text vārcasā: āidhi (or eddhi): ānyām (or anyām), or (in our pada-mss., and one of SPP's s.m.) vārcasā: edhānyām. Our emendation affords better sense, and accounts for the y* that appears in the majority of mss. after ādh. Ppp. also supports it, reading atiṣṭhāpo varcase 'dhy anyā sūryāi 'vā bhāhi. <code>[In b, Ppp. reads bibhratā "tmanā.]</code> <code>[The comm. has adhiṣṭhāya in c.] *[But SPP. points out that ādhya and ādhā look very much alike in most old mss.]</code>

[Here ends the fourth anuvāka, with 7 hymns and 68 verses. If you reckoned 27. 14-15 as 3 verses, the sum would be 69.]

34. With a jangidá-amulet: for protection etc.

[Angiras. — daçakam. mantroktadevatyam uta vanaspatyam. anustubham.]

Found also in Pāipp. xi. The comm. quotes it as used by Naks. K. 19, in a mahāçānti ceremony called vāyavyā, with the binding on of an amulet from the jaūgida tree. Hymn 35 is used in company with it.

Translated: Bloomfield, 38, 669; Griffith, ii. 291; verses 1 and 7 ab also by Grohmann, Ind. Stud. ix. 417-18.

1. Jangidá art thou, jangidá; defender art thou, jangidá; what of ours is two-footed, four-footed—let jangidá defend it all.

Our emendation at the beginning to $d\bar{n}gir\bar{a}$ asi [suggested by vs. 6?] is to be disapproved and withdrawn; it is not even necessary to change to vocative the $ja\bar{n}gid\bar{a}$ at the end of a and b (though in the translation they may be understood as either nom. or voc.); but the comm. reads $ja\bar{n}gida$ at end of b; [the text of the comm. has $ja\bar{n}gida$ 'si $ja\bar{n}gida$ repetitions, in part of nominatives where we should think it more natural to change in part to vocative. SPP. reads [in a and b], with all the mss., $ja\bar{n}gida$ three times. Ppp. has at the beginning the corrupt $ja\bar{n}gidisi$, but in both other instances [in a and b] -das. Compare the hymn ii. 4, where alone this plant appears further. The comm. amuses himself (and us) with a number of his ludicrous derivations for $ja\bar{n}gida$ — from roots $j\bar{a}$ or jan or ji with gir 'swallow'; or from $ja\bar{n}gam$, intensive.

2. The witchcrafts that are thrice fifty, and the witchcraft-makers that are a hundred — may the jangidá make them all of vanished brilliancy (-tijas) [and] sapless.

The first pada is corrupt in the mss., and very doubtful; the translation implies yah kṛtyāḥ, which is most naturally suggested by the connection, and takes tripañcāçis as an indefinite large number (like tisrah pañcāçatah, RV. i. 133. 4), and as formed like trisapta, trinava, etc., in spite of the important objection that none of these make a fem. in I, and that the word most naturally means 'fifty-three, composed of fifty-three,' or the like. | W's conjecture, yāh krtyāh, nearly coincides with that of Geldner (KZ. xxvii. 218), yaç ca kṛtyāḥ. Geldner's is metrically better; and he takes trip- as an indefinitely large number (cardinal), as does W. It was this word tripañcaça, applied to the set of dice in RV. | x. 34. 8 | (but perhaps meaning 'thrice fifty'), that suggested the not very happy emendation in our edition to akṣa-kṛṭyās. The mss. read mostly jāgrtsyas tr- (with various accent, most often on -syás: p. jāgrtsyáh: tripañcao açih!), also jyā-, yyā-, and (two of SPP's) yāgrtsyás; this last the comm. also has, and understands it as $y\bar{a}(h)$ grtsyas, explaining the latter as = $gardhana \zeta \bar{t} \bar{l} \bar{a} s$ [SPP's padatext accordingly, yāḥ: gṛtsyaḥ], and tripañcāçīs as tryadhikapañcāçatsamkhyākās, both as epithets of krtyās (understood). | With this reading, we can take grtsyas as nom. pl. fem. to grtsa and render 'what fifty-three clever or sly [witchcrafts there are]'; but gftsa, in such an application and with such sinister meaning, has rather slender support, to wit, VS. xvi. 25, as cited by BR. ii. 778. | Ppp. gives yā krechrā tripancāçiç ch-, which, while it is itself (emended to yāh krcchrās) not wholly unacceptable, also favors our yah krtyas; there is insufficient reason for the feminine words if krtyas be not expressed. | I cannot here attach much value to the evidence of Ppp.: on the one hand, it confuses surd and sonant very often (kovidam for govidam, xix. 13. 5: cf. xi. 5. 4, note); and, on the other, the relation of its cch to ts may be somewhat like that discussed under x. 9. 23 (rchára, rtsára, etc.). The mss. are decidedly in favor of grtsyas as against krtyās; but Whitney's objection as to the omission of krtyās seems to me a weighty argument in favor of his conjecture. | Our vinastatejasas in c was an endation, which, now that the comm. also reads it, may be regarded as sufficiently established; the mss. mostly vinaktatėjasas (also vinaktu t-, vinistat-, bhanakti t-, minaktu t- | etc. |: pada-readings, vinaktu [as independent word or as compounded with téjasah] or also vinakta°t-). SPP. strangely contents himself with vinaktu téjasas, which certainly he would be unable to translate into anything even simulating sense.

Ppp. is corrupt, and brings no help; it has sarva vyunaktu tej.. [Did not SPP. understand his reading thus: 'Let the amulet separate them all from their tėjas (ablative)'? The instrum. tėjasā, which good authorities give, would also be a proper construction with root vic: 'Let the amulet part them all with their efficiency (tėjas),' i.e. rob the wizards of their power to make their witchcrafts efficacious against us. Whitney's reading and rendering are wholly satisfactory in themselves: but vinaktu tėjasas or -sā seems to me no less so; and it has much stronger support (directly or indirectly) from the mss., and even from Ppp., than has RW's vinastatejasas. — After writing the above, I notice that Bloomfield, p. 672, interprets SPP's reading quite differently: the way in which he construes vic does not seem to me admissible.]

3. Sapless the artificial noise, sapless the seven that fall apart; away from here, O jangidá, make fall (cat) misery, as an archer (dstr) an arrow.

The first half-verse is perhaps corrupt, as it is certainly unintelligible. The pada-text makes in a the astonishing division krtrim: annaoadám; many of the samhitā-mss. read krtrm. All the mss. accent visrasas, and SPP. with them; our text emends to visrasas. The minor Pet. Lex. suggests that the saptá visrūhas of RV. vi. 7.6 may be meant: ingenious, but not comforting, as no one has any idea what the latter signifies. The comm's guess is this: mūrdhanistheṣu... saptasu cchidreṣv abhicarato 'tpāditāḥ sapta niṣyandāḥ. In a, b, the reading of Ppp. is rasam krtrimam nāḍam arasas s. In c the mss. have much unimportant variation of accent. At the end, Ppp. gives sādhayā. The translation gives to çātaya the meaning ascribed to it by the Hindu grammarians, since it suits the connection; the comm. renders the word by tanūkuru, of which it is hard to see the reason or sense.

4. A spoiler of witchcraft verily is this, likewise a spoiler of niggardry; likewise may the powerful jangidá lengthen out our life-times.

The majority of mss. leave ayám in a unaccented; and they divide pretty evenly between tāriṣat and tārṣat at the end; [cf. under iv. 10.6]. Ppp. reads kṛtyādūṣaṇa vāyam atho 'rāt-. With the verse compare ii. 4.6, which is nearly the same.

5. Let that greatness of the jangida protect us all about, wherewith [it] overpowered the viskandha with force, [being] a counteracting force (?).

Samskandha occurs nowhere else, and is in the translation assumed to be a word made as the opposite and contrary of viskandha; it may, of course, be only a variation of the latter, another evil of the same sort, as understood by the Pet. Lexx. and the comm. (yena rogena skandhah samnatah samlagno bhavati sa rogah samskandhah). The majority of the mss. read in c sāsaha (p. sasaha [with various accent]); but sāsaha (as in our text) is in accordance with the nearly invariable use of the root in AV. as middle, [and is read by one of SPP's mss.]. Ppp. reads sāsahā, and combines in d ojo 'jasā. The comm. reads and explains in c viskandham ojasā saha (favoring sāsaha).

6. Thrice the gods generated thee that art settled (ni- $sth\bar{a}$) upon the earth; and Brahmans of old know thee thus as $A\bar{n}$ giras by name.

All the mss. read at the beginning trstva (p. the same); but even SPP emends to trts tva, as we had done; the comm. has the latter. Ppp gives nis tva. The comm. reads tisthantam in b instead of nisthitam. Some of the mss. are discordant as to the accent of angiras in c.

7. Not the former herbs surpass thee, not thee the recent; a formidable dispeller [is] the jangidá, a protector round about, of good omen.

Some of SPP's mss. read $ndv\bar{a}$ at end of b. The comm. has $ja\bar{n}gida$ in c; [in both text and comment of the comm., the da-sound is, naturally enough, spelled with a la]. Our pada-mss. read in d $parip\bar{a}nah$, without division.

8. So then when thou didst come into being, O jangidá, LO thou of unmeasured heroism, Indra of old, O formidable one, Lin the beginning (agratás), gave unto thee heroism.

The translation follows our text, which, however, is more thoroughly altered from that of the mss. than in any instance thus far; and, of course, in a manner open to question. At the beginning, all the samhitā-mss. give athopadānābhagavo [one, bhá-], which the pada-mss. divide thus: atho tii: padā: nā: bhagavaḥ [one, -vāḥ]; but the comm. understands it as atho 'padāna bh-, and SPP. follows him (p. atha: upadāna: bh-); the comm. explains upadāna by upādīyate svīkriyate kṛṭyānirharaṇādivyāpāreṣu—which is utterly implausible. Ppp. gives no help, giving açvayopadāni bh-. For c, the mss. read purā ta ugrā grasata (úp-), p. purā: te: ugrā: grasate: úpa: etc.; and SPP. emends only by changing ugrā to ugrāḥ [in p.], as the comm. understands. The latter explains it to mean: "Indra, perceiving that formidable creatures will devour (purā grasate = bhakṣayiṣyanti!) thee, O jaūgiḍa, gave" etc. Ppp. has a text for c-d that would make good sense: purā ta ugrāya sato 'pendro (i.e., by the usual double combination, sate: upa) 'to thee, being before formidable, Indra added further heroic quality.'

9. To thee, O forest tree, the formidable Indra imparted $(\bar{a}$ - $dh\bar{a})$ formidableness; expelling all diseases $(am\bar{v}\bar{a})$, do thou smite the demons, O herb.

With the first half-verse compare iv. 19.8 d. For this verse there are no variants of any consequence, and the two editions agree throughout with one another and with the comm. Ppp. reads in a-b vanaspataya indro 'j-, and, for c, amīvās sarvā rakṣānisi.

10. The crusher, the burster, the balása, the side-ache, the takmán of every autumn, may the jangidá make sapless.

The two names in \mathbf{a} are found nowhere else; the comm. regards them as names of specific diseases, the one meaning 'wholly injurious,' the other 'especially injurious.' The root $\mathbf{c}\mathbf{r}$ has not been found with \mathbf{a} as prefix [except, as noted by OB. vi. 209, at GB. i. 2.18]. The words might of course also be epithets. The only variants concern the accent of $\mathbf{p}\mathbf{r}\mathbf{s}\mathbf{t}\mathbf{y}\mathbf{a}\mathbf{m}\mathbf{a}\mathbf{y}\mathbf{a}\mathbf{m}\mathbf{s}$; the majority of mss. agree with the editions; some have $\mathbf{p}\mathbf{r}\mathbf{s}\mathbf{t}\mathbf{y}\mathbf{a}\mathbf{m}\mathbf{a}\mathbf{y}\mathbf{a}\mathbf{m}\mathbf{s}$. Ppp. reads at the beginning $\mathbf{a}\mathbf{c}\mathbf{a}\mathbf{r}\mathbf{t}\mathbf{r}\mathbf{a}\mathbf{m}\mathbf{s}$, and in $\mathbf{d}\mathbf{d}\mathbf{r}\mathbf{a}\mathbf{r}\mathbf{s}\mathbf{a}\mathbf{m}\mathbf{s}\mathbf{s}\mathbf{m}\mathbf{s}$.

35. The same.

[As 34. — pañcakam. 3. pathyāpankti; 4. nicrt tristubh.]

This hymn is found with the preceding in Pāipp. (in xi.), and it has the same viniyoga. Translated: Grohmann, Ind. Stud. ix. 419; Zimmer, p. 65; Bloomfield, 39, 674; Griffith, ii. 293.

1. Taking (grah) the name of Indra, the seers gave the jangidá, which the gods in the beginning made a remedy, spoiler of the viskandha.

The comm. (apparently by an oversight) explains at the end viskandhabhesajam, while his text, according to SPP., agrees with ours.

2. Let that jangidá defend us, as a protector of riches his riches; which [jangidá] the gods, the Brahmans, made a protector round about, slayer of niggards.

The pada-mss. read at end of b dhánaoiva; LSPP. emends to dhánāoiva, which the translation implies; Ppp. gives dhanāi 'va.

3. The enemy of terrible aspect (-cákṣus), the evil-doer that has come—them do thou, O thousand-eyed one, make to vanish by thy watchfulness (?pratībodhā); thou art jangidā that protects round about.

The translation implies in a emendation to durhārdam ghorācakṣuṣam, which is venturesome, but something has to be done to make sense. SPP reads, with [most of] the mss. and the comm., durhārdaḥ sāmghoram (= atyantakrūram, comm.) cākṣus; the comm. [joins cakṣus with] nāçaya. Ppp. gives no help; its text (dūhārda samghora cakṣum) apparently is meant for the same with ours. In b is implied, instead of the ā 'gamam of the mss. and both editions, āgatam, which may be confidently accepted on the authority of both Ppp. and the comm. [But ādabhan is read by W's O., by two of SPP's mss., and by a third,* s.m.] Our text emends at the end to jangida; as all the authorities, including Ppp., give -daḥ, this is retained in the translation. In d the comm. appears to have pratib-, but it is very probably an oversight of the ms. The Anukr. takes no notice of the deficiency of a syllable in c. *[The carefully corrected Dc.]

4. Me from the sky, me from the earth, from the atmosphere, me from the plants, me from what is, and me from what is to be—from every direction let the jangidá protect us about.

The majority of mss. accent in c mb 'tá bhavyất. One of the mss. of the Anukr. calls the verse a jagatī; for this there is no ground, but also as little for calling it nicrt as a tristubh.

5. What [witchcraft-]workers are made by the gods, and also what from mortals — all those may the all-healing jangidá make sapless.

The translation follows our text, which deviates widely from that of the mss. in a, b. All these have, without exception, ydh krsndvo; all further $devakrt\bar{a}$ (p. $devaokrt\bar{a}h$), but with differences of accent; [of SPP's authorities, 6 give correctly -vd., and 8 give $-t\bar{a}h$;] then they vary in b between yd and ya (all the pada-mss. ydh); all have uto (p. uto ti); [but W's B. seems to read ydto;] finally, they vary between vabhrtenydh (the majority), -tenydh, -thenydh, -tyenydh (the pada-mss., vabhrtenydh, or -tenydh). SPP's text has yd (p. ye) rsndvo $devakrt\bar{a}$ (p. $-t\bar{a}h$) yd (p. ydh) uto vavrte 'nydh (p. vavrte: anydh: but this would give for $samhit\bar{a}$ -text vavrte 'nydh), which, apart from the added accents, is the text of the comm., as SPP. reports; the comm., however, assumes in his explanation ye... anye in b instead of ydh... anydh, and declares vavrte = vavrtire. Ppp., finally, gives ye rsnavo $devakrt\bar{a}$ yo co $bibhrthebhy\bar{a}$. The case is evidently a rather desperate one. The word rsnavas, found in both Ppp. and comm., occurs nowhere else; the comm. gives for it one of his usual artificial and wholly worthless explanations, $gant\bar{a}ro$ $hinsak\bar{a}h$ $purus\bar{a}h$; b he makes to mean "also what other oppressors $(b\bar{a}dhak\bar{a}s)$ go about."

36. With a çatávāra-amulet: for protection etc.

[Brahman. - sadrcam. çatavāradāivatam. ānustubham.]

Found also [except 4 c, d, 5 a, b] in Pāipp. ii. The comm. quotes its use from Nakṣ.K. 19, in the mahāçānti ceremony called sanitati, performed for a failure of family, with the çatavāra amulet.

Translated: Griffith, ii. 294.

1. The çatávāra hath by its keenness (téjas) made to vanish the yákṣ-mas, the demons, mounting together with splendor, an amulet that expels the ill-named.

Our manis in d was an emendation, all the mss. having manim; SPP. also has -is, on the authority of the comm.; Ppp. reads -nim and -cātanam. What catávāra really means is very questionable; the Pet. Lexx. conjecture "consisting of a hundred hairs," which does not seem probable; the comm. says "having a hundred roots, or awns"; and he further adds, on the authority of vs. 6, where the accordance with vāraya- is played upon, "warding off a hundred diseases"; moreover, there is no reason apparent why it should not signify 'bringing a hundred choice things' (cf. viçvávāra). The comm. declares 'ill-named' to denote a skin-disease. L" Mounting": i.e. being raised up to the neck of the person on whom it is "bound"—so Griffith.

2. With its two horns it thrusts away the demon, with its root the sorceresses; with its middle it drives off $(b\bar{a}dh)$ the $y\acute{a}ksma$; no evil overpasses it.

All the mss., the comm., and Ppp., read at the end tatrati, which we emended to tarati, as the other seems an inconceivable 3d sing.; the comm. glosses it with atikrāmati, and explains the form by çluḥ çaç ce 'ti vikaraṇadvayam. The comm. explains the 'two horns' as "the two parts of its apex, set on like horns." The mention of a "root" is, of course, an indication (though not a certain one) that a plant is intended.

3. The yákṣmas that are petty, and they that are great, noisy — all of them the catávāra amulet, slayer of the ill-named, hath made vanish.

Ppp. reads in b çapathinas. The Anukr. takes no notice of the deficiency of a syllable in a.

4. A hundred heroes it generated; a hundred yákṣmas it scattered away; having slain all the ill-named ones, it shakes down the demons.

The mss. (both s. and p.) vary in a between virås and virån, the decided majority of SPP's giving the latter; of ours, none save one or two of those collated since publication; SPP. reads virān aj. Ppp. has çatam virāni janayac ch., which, with emendation to viryāni janayan, is perhaps the true reading. About half, indeed, of the mss. read -nayan, which also makes a possible text (çatâm virå ajanayan).

5. A golden-horned bull [is] this amulet of çatávāra; having shattered (trh) all the ill-named ones, it hath trodden down the demons.

A few of the authorities some confusing the primary with the wṛddhi-derivative read in b çatávāras or çatavārās or çātávāras. In c, all the mss. save perhaps W's B. read trdhvā, which SPP mistakenly emends to tṛdḍhvā (as if one were to emend the dhvā of rūdhvā and līdhvā to -ddhvā). Ppp. is corrupt, giving durnās tris sarvās tridhvā apa rakṣānsy apa kramīm. The second half of vs. 4 and the first half of vs. 5 are wanting in Ppp.

6. With the çatávāra I ward off (vāraya-) a hundred of the ill-named ones (f.), a hundred of the Gandharvas-and-Apsarases, and a hundred of the doglike ones (f.).

Some of the mss. accent in b gandharvåpsaråsām. All [save W's B.] have in c çatām çaçvanvātīnām (varying to çaçcatv-: p. çaçvanovātīnām); our çatām ca çvānvais an emendation, and, as it seems, an easy and necessary one, supported by Ppp., which reads çatām ca çunvatīnām [Griffith renders by 'dog-mated nymphs,' referring it to the Apsarases, and citing most appositely xi. 9. 15 and iv. 37. 11]. The comm. reads with the mss., and furnishes one of his characteristic absurd explanations: the word comes from çaçvat 'constantly,' with n substituted for d in the combination, and means muhurmuhuh pīdārtham āgantryo grahāpasmārādyā vyādhayah! He declares the fem. durnāmnī to be used in a [with reference to] vyādhi, forgetting that vyādhi is masculine. [For the play in d, cf. my note to xviii. 3. 29.]

37. With an amulet: for various blessings.

[Atharvan. — caturrcam. āgneyam. trāistubham: 2. āstārapankti; 3.3-p. mahābrhatī; 4. purausnih.]

Not found in Pāipp. The comm. neither quotes nor devises a viniyoga, but SPP. finds it used in Nakṣ.K. 19, in the mahāçānti ceremony called tvāṣṭrī, with a threefold amulet, on occasion of the loss of a garment.

Translated: Griffith, ii. 295.

1. This splendor hath come, given by Agni, brightness (bhárga), glory, power, force, vigor (váyas), strength; and the heroisms that are thirty-three—those let Agni give forth to me.

Most of the mss. accent balám at end of b. The first half-verse corresponds to a first half-verse in TB. (ii. 5. 7¹), MS. (ii. 3. 4), and AÇS. (vi. 12. 2); all these read at end of a å 'gāt, and AÇS. has rādhas instead of várcas; then, in b, TB. and AÇS. give yáço bhárgah sáha ójo bálam ca, MS. máhi rādhah sáha ójo bálam yát, all making a good triṣṭubh pāda; the verse is too irregular to be called simply a triṣṭubh. [With c, cf. 27. 10 a, above.]

2. Splendor set thou in my body (tanů), power, force, vigor, strength; unto Indra-like action, unto heroism, unto [life] of a hundred autumns, do I accept thee.

The majority of mss. again accent balám. In a, SPP. has the better reading tanvám, with the comm. and a single ms. (accidental?). [The transition-form ought probably to be oxytone, tanvám: see my Noun-Inflection, p. 412, near top.] [With our second half-verse cf. the second half of the verse just cited from TB.MS.AÇS.: apart from two or three misprints, it reads dīrghāyutvāya çatáçāradāya práti grhnāmi (MS. grbhnāmi: AÇS. grbhnāmi, cf. Grammar § 195 a) mahaté vīryāya (MS. -tá indriyāya)—a confused blending of tags: cf. xi. 1. 3, 7, and so on.] [The comm. takes a, b as addressed to Agni. Under 2 c, d and vss. 3 and 4, he speaks of the thing addressed simply as a padārtha, 'a substance,' not presuming to define what it is: an unusual restraint on his part.

3. Unto refreshment thee, unto strength thee, unto force, unto power thee, unto superiority thee do I carry about, unto the wearing of royalty for a hundred autumns.

Very likely the last word is best rendered as a noun; the comm. so takes it. The mss. all accent rāṣṭrābhṛṭ-, which SPP. retains; our text makes the necessary emendation to -ṭrabhṛṭ- [cf. Gram. § 1213 c]. [Even though 3-p. mahābṛhatī be taken (Ind. Stud. viii. 243) as 12:12:12,] the definition of the Anukr. is bad: the verse is just as much an āstārapaūkti as vs. 2; | both are doubtless to be scanned as 8 + 8:11 + 11 |.

4. Thee with the seasons, with them of the seasons; thee unto lifetime, unto splendor; with the brilliancy of the year — with that we make [thee] cheek by jowl.

[All the mss. give here rtúbhis tvé 'ty ékā (= v. 28. 13), except W's O. and SPP's careful Dc., which have, disregarding the accents, rtubhyas tve 'ty ekā (= iii. 10. 10). The metrical definition of the Anukr. as purausnih, coinciding with its definition of v. 28. 13 (not with that of iii. 10. 10), supports the mss. in the implication that a repetition of v. 28. 13 is here intended; and so does the prattka given by the Anukr., which is rtubhaş tvā "rtavāih (not the "rtavebhyah of iii. 10. 10). The Berlin ed., accordingly, here repeats v. 28. 13: SPP., on the other hand, repeats iii. 10. 10; | in this he follows the comm., who gives at this point, curiously, iii. 10. 10 in full, and makes an entirely new commentary upon it, taking no notice of its having occurred before. mss. appear to have confounded the two pratikas in a measure: | and this probably accounts for the false lingualization of -bhyas tvā - see note to iii. 10. 10, and observe that both mss. of the Anukr. here have rtubhas tv-, which is neither one thing nor the other! | For sámhanu, W's 'cheek by jowl' is perhaps a better version than the one which he gave at v. 28. 13, 'of closed jaw, free from involuntary opening of the jaws.' A third version is given by Griffith: 'we fasten thee [the amulet] about the neck.' Dīgha Nikāya, ii.61, suggests still a fourth interpretation, 'affected with lock-jaw,' not applicable here: cf. viii. 1. 16.

38. With gúggulu: against disease.

[Atharvan. — trcam. mantroktagulguludevatākam. ānustubham. 2 a-d. 4-p. usņih; 2 e-f.
1-av. prājāpatyā 'nustubh.]

Found also in Pāipp. xix. Used, according to the comm. (together with hymn 39), by Pariç. 4. 4, in the ceremony of a king's entrance into his sleeping-house, to the accompaniment of incense of kuṣṭha and guggulu.

[With regard to the name of the latter substance, there is a question as to its spelling, whether with -lg- or with -gg-; and a second as to its accent, whether on the first syllable or on the last. As to the first question, the mss. are here, as elsewhere, quite at variance: see below. As to the second, the proper accent seems to be proparoxytone: so TS. at vi. 2.86, gúlgulu, nominative; and above, at ii. 36.7, where the word is nom, both W's and SPP's authorities agree in accenting the first syllable. In this hymn, however, all of W's and of SPP's authorities agree in vs. 1 in accenting the last syllable,

-gullos, and so both editions print: in vs. 2, again, all (save W's P.M.W., -lo) agree in having -lú; and the Bombay ed. has -lú (as nom.), while the Berlin ed. and the Index have guggulu (as voc.); whether the comm. intends guggulo (voc.) or guggulus (nom., with the later gender), I am not sure. If we read guggulu (as voc.), it may be noted that no other voc. sing. neuter from stems in u or i is registered in my Noun-Inflection (see p. 413, 390).

Translated: Grill, 39, 193; Bloomfield, 40, 675; Griffith, ii. 295.

1. Yáksmas obstruct him not, a curse attains him not, whom the agreeable odor of the healing gúggulu attains.

All the mss., and SPP., read in a drundhate, which our text emends to ar-; but the form is obviously false; drundhate would be the simplest and easiest change. Ppp. has yakṣmā ru- [i.e. yakṣmāru-: which may of course mean yakṣmās ā ru- as well]; and, at end of b, -tho 'çnute. As everywhere, the mss. vary between gugg- and gulg- in c; SPP. adopts the latter; the comm. agrees with our text in giving the former; Ppp. has always gulg-. At the end of d, all the mss. have açnute, but this time SPP. follows us in making the necessary emendation to açnute. [Again, as often (cf. note to xviii. 3.47), the accent-blunder is due to a faulty assimilation,—in this case, with the accent of açnute at the end of the preceding half-verse.]

2. From him the yákṣmas scatter away, like antelopes from a wild beast. If, O gúggulu, thou art from the river, or if also from the ocean, the name of both have I taken (grah), that this man may be uninjured.

There is discordance among the authorities as to the division and numbering of the verses of this hymn. The Anukr. makes three verses, reckoning the last two padas as third verse, and SPP. follows it, although this division is wholly opposed to the sense, as breaking a sentence in two. The comm. reckons only the first of the three lines as vs. 2, noting that it may also be explained as belonging to vs. 1, being connected in sense with that; the other two lines he makes vs. 3. Our division followed the majority of our mss., with which agree the minority of SPP's. The choice between the three modes of division is difficult, and fortunately the matter is of no importance. | Grill, p. 193, suggests that I a, b is the foreign element, a prefixed fragment about yakşma. That leaves 1 c, d and 2 a, b for our first vs., and 2 c-f for our second. | The mss. all read in b mrgā açvā iva,* which is obviously wrong and unintelligible, though the comm., after his fashion, gives two equally worthless interpretations, once taking devās as an adjective (= āçugāminas) to mṛgās, and once supplying a second iva: "like deer [or] like horses." The translation follows our emendation, which is certainly plausible to an acceptable degree. Ppp. is corrupt: yaksmād mṛgāyaṣāya vedhase. The pada-mss. blunderingly read irate at end of a; even SPP. allows himself to emend to trate. In c he again gives gulgulú | not gugg- |, with the majority of his mss.: our guggulu is in respect to accent as voc. an emendation (our mss. read -lú or -lú), but one called for by the following dsi; this reason does not seem to me cogent: reading the nom. - 1ú (with SPP.: see introd.), we may render, 'whether thou art guggulú from the river or [guggulú] from the ocean' |. In d, the mss. give either yádvāpyāsi or yádvāpyāsi (p. yát: vā: ápi: āoási); SPP. accepts in his samhitā-text vā 'py āsi, but in his padatext changes āoási to ási, thus making the two texts discordant; if he had courage for the latter alteration, he should also have had it for emending asi in samhita to asi, as we had done, and as is plainly required. | The text of the comm. has 'py asi. | *| But W's P.M.W., mrgām. |

39. With kústha: against diseases.

[Bhrgvangiras. — daçakam. mantroktakuşthadevatyam. ānuştubham: 2, 3. pathyāpankti; 4. 6-p. jagatī (2-4. 3-av.); 5. 7-p. çakvarī; 6-8. aşti (5-8. 4-av.).]

Found also in Pāipp. vii. The viniyoga is the same with that of the preceding hymn. [Whitney, note to Prāt. ii. 67, speaks of the critical bearing of the fact that vs. 1 is cited by the comm. to the Prāt.: see above, p. 896, ¶ 1.]

Translated: Grohmann, Ind. Stud. ix. 392, 420-422 (parts); Ludwig, p. 198; Bloomfield, 5, 676; Griffith, ii. 295. — Hillebrandt, Ved. Mythol., i. 65-66, discussing the connection of kustha and soma, cites part of the hymn. Cf. v. 4 and vi. 95.

1. Let the heavenly rescuing kúṣṭha come hither from off the snowy [mountain]; do thou make vanish all takmán and all the sorceresses.

Of course, himávant may also be rendered 'Himālaya.' [For -tas pari, cf. note to Prāt. ii. 67.] Emendation in c to $n\bar{a}_{\zeta}dyan$ is suggested as acceptable; [and $n\bar{a}_{\zeta}aya\dot{m}$ is the reading of Ppp., both here and in 5 f]. Some of the mss. read at the beginning ℓtu ; the pada-mss. have blunderingly $\bar{a}ttu$ instead of $\dot{a}:etu$; SPP. emends to the latter.

2. Three names are thine, O kústha: by-no-means-killing, by-no-means-harming:—by no means may this man take harm, for whom I bespeak $(pari-br\bar{u})$ thee, at evening and in the morning, likewise by day.

In a, part of the mss. accent kústha. In b, c, SPP. reads nadyamāró nadyārisah: nádyā 'yám etc. There is hardly any ms. that distinguishes dya and gha in such a manner that confidence can be placed in its testimony as between the two; so that, although SPP. reports nadya- from all his mss., it is really of no account. But the comm. shows that he reads nadya- by his explanation: nadya, he says, means "being in a stream (nadī)," and by "stream" is meant the waters (udakāni) in a stream; and the virtual sense is "diseases that originate in faults of water": or else, he sagely adds (betraying that his expositions are, as usual, the merest guesses of a skilless etymologist), nadya means nadaniya or çabdaniya: i.e., atyantaduspariharatvena çabdyamāna; and the two epithets mean "killing" or "harming" such nadyas; while the third name is nadya simply, since a killer (māraka) of nadyas is himself called nadya. We had the second of the two epithets above, at viii. 2.6 and 7.6, and in the former passage the comm. explained (falsely) and read nagha. It seems hardly doubtful that our readings with gh, not dy and the translation founded on them are the true ones here, though that implies that the comm. worked from mss. only, and not from oral representatives of the text. [Weber, Sb. 1896, p. 681, discusses na gha.] Ppp. agrees precisely with our text in b and c (in d it has asmāi and in e divah). In b, all the mss. read (assuming, here and later, that the character is dya, and not gha) nadyá māro (p. nadyá: mārah); nearly all follow it with nadyayuşo or -sah (p. nadya : ayuşah); but two of SPP's, and two others p.m., give nadyāriso | the comm. nadyariso |. In c the general reading is nadyayampurusorisat, but one or two fail to accent 'yam, and a few have -so rsat (all the padamss. rsat). The comm. treats nadya in c as a vocative, and SPP. accordingly changes the accent to nádyā 'yám; in b he alters the pada-text to nadyaomāráh: nadydorisah. The Anukr. pronounces this verse, as well as the two following, tryavasāna, but nearly all the mss. omit here the sign of interpunction before na ghā 'yam puruso risat, although they introduce it both times later; in this verse, our edition xix. 39-follows the mss., but SPP's the Anukr. In d, all the mss. give pári bra-; SPP. follows us in emending the accent to paribravimi. The comm. repeats nadyā 'yam puruṣo risat a second time.

3. "Lively" by name is thy mother; "living" by name is thy father: - by no means may etc. etc.

All the mss., the comm., and Ppp., read in b jivantás, and so of course SPP.; there was doubtless no sufficient reason for altering to jīvalás in our text. Ppp. adds further, after pitā, mārṣa nāma te svasā. With a, b compare i. 24. 3 a, b.

4. Thou art the highest (uttamá) of herbs, as the draft-ox of moving creatures (jagat), as the tiger of beasts of prey: - by no means may etc. etc.

Pādas a-c are repeated from viii. 5. 11: see note. Ppp. combines uttamo 'sy oṣ-. It repeats in the refrain its readings asmāi and divah (see note to vs. 2).

5. Thrice from the Çāmbus, from the Angirases, thrice from the Adityas, thrice from the All-Gods art thou born; this all-healing kúṣṭha stands along with soma; do thou make vanish all the takmán and all the sorceresses.

All the authorities [save Ppp.] agree in cambubhyas, and our alteration to bhrgubhyas is not to be approved. All our samhitā-mss., and the majority of SPP's samhitā-authorities, with the text of the comm., read after it angireyebhyas (one or two -raye-), and the comm. takes the word as adjective (= angirasām apatyabhūtebhyah) qualifying çāmbubhyas. SPP. adopts angirebhyas, with the rest of the mss.; our emendation to -robhyas is a very simple and plausible one, when dealing with a text in the condition of this. Ppp. is very corrupt: tisyāmividyogirayebhyas; in d, further, it has -bhesaja, in e tisthasi, in f nāçayam (as in 1 c). SPP., probably by an oversight, inserts a stroke of interpunction between d and e; it is against the Anukr., and our mss. do not have it.

6. The açvatthá, seat of the gods, in the third heaven from here: there [is] the sight (cákṣaṇa) of immortality; thence was born the kúṣṭha.

This verse and the next correspond nearly with v. 4. 3, 4 (repeated as vi. 95. 1, 2). Most of the mss. accent in d kusthás. SPP. adds to this verse and the next the last four padas of vs. 5, as a refrain continued from that verse; and this is evidently the understanding of the Anukr., and the comm. ratifies it. Whether SPP. makes the addition on the authority of these two alone, or whether some of his mss. also intimate it, he does not state; not one of our mss. gives any sign of it. | Ppp. has jayatāt sah: presumably answering to the end of pada d of the Berlin ed.; but Roth's Collation is not quite clear.

 A golden ship, of golden tackle, moved about in the sky; there [is] the sight etc. etc.

As to the correspondence and the extent of this verse, see the note to vs. 6. Ppp. reads hiranyena nāur | and omits c, d |.

8. Where there is no falling downward (?), where the head of the snowy [mountain], there is the sight of immortality; thence was born the kústha: — this all-healing kústha etc. etc. (as vs. 5).

The mss. all save SPP's D., which has navah: cf. the navas of Ppp. read in a na va prabhrançanam (p. na: dva: praobhr-), and the comm. so understands it (yatra dyuloke tatrasthānām sukrtinām avānīmukhaprabhranço nā sti); and considering this (if there were such a place-name, it is just the sort of thing that we might fairly expect the comm. to know and report), and that nāva nowhere appears as combination-form of nāu, and that pra-bhranç is not used of the sliding down of a boat or ship on a mountain, and appears wholly unadapted to that use, it must be pronounced an excessively daring and not less questionable proceeding to emend to nāvaprabhrançanam, translate it by the "descent of the ship," and connect it with the more modern Brāhmana-legend of Manu's flood—as is done in our text, by Weber in his notes to Die Fluthsage (Ind. Streifen i. 11), and by others elsewhere [cf. Griffith's note]. Ppp. reads [sa] yatra navas paribhraçanam.

9. Thou whom Ikshvāku of old knew, or thou whom Kushthakāmya [knew], whom Vāyasa, whom Mātsya — thereby art thou all-healing.

There is almost nothing here that is not very questionable. Only the comm. has ikṣvākus in a; the majority of mss. give iṣvākas, but some (which SPP. follows) ikṣvākas. In b the pada-mss. divide kuṣṭha: kāmyāḥ, and the comm. so understands it (kāmya = kāmaputra); SPP. follows them; though here our emendation to kuṣṭha-kāmyàs seems plainly called for. In c, the mss. have yām vā vāso (or vāso: SPP. vāso) yām ātsyas i: the text of the comm., yam vā vaso yamāsyas (explained as "having a mouth like Yama's"!); here emendation is a rather desperate undertaking; the translation follows the conjectures of our text [but with ikṣvākur in a]. Ppp. reads, in a-c, pūrvakṣvāko yam vā tvā kuṣṭikāç ca ahiçyāvaso anusāricchas tenā- etc. — too corrupt to give any help.

10. The head-paining, the tertian, $\lfloor \text{and} \rfloor$ that which is constant, is hibernal — the takmán, O thou of power in every direction, do thou impel $(s\bar{u})$ away downward.

The last half-verse is identical with v. 22.3 c, d, above. The mss. read in a ciryalokam (p. -saolo-); and the comm. understands it as two words, cirsa lokam, translating "they call thy head the third world (i.e. the sky, which is third world in respect to earth)"! Ppp. has cirsālākam. The comm. reads in c -viryam, with his customary disregard of accent; [some mss. accent vicvádhā, thus suggesting vicvádhāviryam (epithet of takmānam) as a possible, if inferior, variant]. Only two or three of the mss. give the accent trītīyakam, found elsewhere in the text (i. 25.4: v. 22.13), and SPP. follows the majority and adopts trti-. SPP. is also inconsistent in writing in pada-text sadamodih but in samhitā-text sadamdir; Ppp. has instead sadantī.

40. To various divinities: for various blessings.

[Brahman.—caturrcam. bārhaspatyam uta vāiçvadevam. ānustubham: 1. parānustup tristubh; 2. puraḥkakummaty uparistādbrhatī; 3. brhatīgarbhā; 4. 3-p. ārṣī gāyatrī.]

Of this hymn only the first verse occurs in Pāipp. (in xix.). The comm. reports no viniyoga, but SPP. supplies one, finding it quoted in Pariç. 37. 4, in a ceremony of expiation for the loss $(n\bar{a}\zeta a)$ of a strainer; \lfloor and again, in 37. 14, for use in case a certain earthen vessel $(upay\bar{a}ma)$ falls from the hand \rfloor .

Translated: Griffith, ii. 297.

1. What that is defective (chidrá) of my mind, and what of my voice hath found (?jagáma) Sarasvatī enraged, let Bṛihaspati, in concord with all the gods, mend (sam-dhā) that.

The meaning of b is extremely doubtful. SPP. reads sarasvatī against the large majority of his authorities and all of ours, which have -tīm. Our harasvantam was a conjecture, and perhaps not a particularly successful one. The translation given (tentatively) above implies -tīm manyumatīm, while all the mss., the comm., and SPP., have -mantam. Ppp. reads sarasvatī: manvavittam jagāma. Hardly a ms. gives an accent to jagāma (one of SPP's, probably by accident, and another, p.m.). Ppp. reads in d sandadātu. There are corresponding verses in VS. (xxxvi. 2) and Ap. (xiv. 16. 1), but they cast no light on b: VS. reads yan me chidram cakṣuṣo hṛdayasya manaso vā 'titṛṇṇam bṛhaspatir me tād dadhātu; and Āp., yan me manasaç chidram yad vāco yac ca me hṛdaḥ: ayam devo bṛhaspatih sam tat siñcatu rādhasā.

2. Do not ye, O waters, devastate (pra-math) our wisdom nor our brahman; come ye flowing with easy flow, being invoked; [be] I of good wisdom, having splendor.

All the mss. accent åpas in a, and SPP. refuses to follow us in the obvious emendation to āpas, although the comm. also takes the word as vocative. At the end of b, the comm., followed by three of SPP's authorities, has mathista nah. In c, the mss. read qusyadå (p. the same), and the comm. understands it as qusyat:ā; SPP. emends by conjecture to susyadås (p. suosyadåh), which is decidedly more successful than our qusmadås. The translation, however, ventures to emend yet further, to susyádå (p. suosyádā:å). Most of the mss. give syannadhvam; W's O. and SPP's carefully corrected Dc., s.m., join with the comm. in syanda, which stands in both printed texts. The translation, finally, implies our reading úpahūtās, against the mss., SPP., and the comm., which give -tas (-to 'ham); against, also, the Anukr.,* but making much better meter than if c is ended with syandadhvam. The mss. and SPP. have sumédhās (the p.-mss. wrongly suomédhā); [in the edition] we [should have] rectified the accent [so as to read] sumedhās. *[The Anukr. would scan as 6+8:8+12; the Berlin text as 6+8:12+8.]

3. Do not ye injure our wisdom, nor our consecration, nor what ardor (tápas) is ours; be they propitious to us in order to [prolonged] life-time; let them become [our] propitious mothers.

The mss. have in b hinsistam, and SPP. does not follow our obviously acceptable emendation to -sta. The comm., too, has -stam, and explains it by calling [into service] that everlasting pair dyāvāpṛthivī; but, as alternative, he apparently goes on to anticipate the pair of Açvins from vs. 4; there is, however, a lacuna in the sole manuscript, cutting off this explanation almost at the beginning. In c, the mss. all have samsvanta āy- (p. samosvantah!), but the comm. çansantu, explaining it as = stuvantu; [SPP. reports that the text of the comm. is çamsantu and that the sole ms. of the commentary has actually santu; SPP. takes this, and alters it to çam santu; our emendation to simple santu, suiting both sense and meter, is obviously to be accepted. The pada-mss. in general give çivā in c; [but one of W's and one of SPP's, each s.m., have çivāh;] they all [except perhaps W's L.] have çivāh in d. There is no good reason why the Anukr. should call the verse bṛhatīgarbhā, since c can be read as eight syllables in either form.

4. That food (?!s), O Açvins, which, full of light, shall make us pass through the darkness, may ye give $(r\bar{a})$ to us.

The verse corresponds to RV. i. 46.6, and is translated from the RV. text, the AV. version being utterly corrupt, and offering a very noteworthy measure of what this nineteenth book can do in the way of corruption even of a text that is intelligibly handed down elsewhere. The ms. reading is ma nah piparid açvina jyótismatī támas tiráh: tam asmāt rāsatām işum. Our text differs from that of RV. only by reading piparid (which is an oversight for the piparad [Grammar § 869 c] of the RV.) and rasatham (which is bad); [RV. has rāsāthām, to be taken as augmentless s-aorist, 2d person dual middle |. The comm. differs from RV. by giving må at the beginning; | his text, furthermore, has rāsātām; but his comment has rāsāthām, like RV. |; he understands acvina correctly as vocative. SPP. clings to rasatam, and thinks to make it answer by accenting açvinā (on the authority, | probably | accidental, of a single ms.). | I suppose Whitney means to imply that, if SPP. intends to make rāsatām a 3d person dual imperative middle of the s-aorist, but from an a-stem, as explained at Grammar § 896, the form ought to be rāsetām, corresponding to the 3d singular rāsatām there noticed.] There is really no way but to adopt the RV. text throughout; any attempt at compromise simply spoils the verse. The comm. takes mā pīparat as pāram mā gamayatu, and b as its antithesis, supplying karotu to tiras; and he refers at the end to yā as read çākhāntare (i.e., in RV.).

41. For some one's welfare.

[Brahman. - ekarcam. mantroktatapodevatyam. trāistubham.]

Not found in Paipp. No viniyoga.

Translated: Griffith, ii. 298.

1. Desiring what is excellent, the heaven-finding seers in the beginning sat down in attendance upon (upa-ni-sad) ardor [and] consecration; thence [is] born royalty, strength, and force; let the gods make that submissive to this man.

Asmé 'to us' would be an acceptable emendation in d; [but TS. has asmāt]. The comm. glosses upanisedus simply by prāptās; in his explanation of c, d there is a considerable lacuna. A corresponding verse is found in TS. (in v. 7.43; repeated without variation in TA. iii. 11.9): bhadram paçyanta úpa sedur agre tapo dīkṣām ṛṣayaḥ suvarvidaḥ: tātah kṣatrām bālam ojaç ca jātām tād asmāt devā abhi sām namantu.

42. Extolling the brahman etc.

[Brahman.—catasras. mantroktabrahmadevatyam. 1. anustubh; 2. 3-av. kakummatī pathyāpañkti; 3. triṣtubh; 4. jagatī.]

Only fragments of this hymn are found in Pāipp.; [Roth's Collation says that the hymn probably stood somewhere near the beginning]. No viniyoga is given.

Translated: Griffith, ii. 298.

1. The bráhman is invoker (hótṛ); the bráhman is the sacrifice; by the bráhman the sacrificial posts are set up; the officiating priest (adhvaryú) is born from the bráhman; within the bráhman is put the oblation.

In a all the authorities and so SPP. read yajāās, which might better have been left unchanged. In b the authorities have mostly svāravāmitā (also svāravāmitā, and sār- or sāravāmitā), pada-text svāh: avāmitā; the comm., svaragāmitā, for which he gives a labored and worthless explanation; svāravo mitāḥ was our emendation, which is made certain by its occurrence in TB. ii. 4.710 (in a verse otherwise corresponding with our vs. 2); and even SPP. follows it. In d the comm. has brahmani, which suits better with antar; but the same sense is perhaps possible with -nas,* which is the universal reading. Then the mss. give antārhite (p. antāholite); our edition emends to antār hitām; SPP. agrees so far as to give antārhitam; the comm. has either the one or the other (the absence of accent makes it impossible to say which); if brāhmanas is not altered to -ni, antārhitam is as good as necessary; otherwise, each is about equally acceptable. *[W. seems to have in mind such a construction as tād antār asya sārvasya, at Içā Upanishad, vs. 5. If so, I do not see why he says that, if we read brāhmanas, we must also read antārhitam.]

2. The bráhman is the sacrificial spoons filled with ghee; by the bráhman is the sacrificial hearth set up $(ud-dh\bar{a})$; and the bráhman is the essence (tattvá) of the sacrifice—the priests that are oblation-makers: to the slaughtered [victim] hail!

To the verse corresponds one in TB. ii. 4. 710, which, however, has for b our 1 b (as noted above), and in c yajñásya tántavah, and lacks the addition after d. In our text is left in a inadvertently srucás, which most of the mss. give; SPP. has the correct srúcas (so TB.). In b, our pada-mss. have útohitā, | a word-division | which is contrary to Prāt. iv. 63 and to the usage of the AV. hitherto; SPP. reads in his pada-text úddhitā, and makes no note upon the matter; | he had in fact a note stating that his P.P.2J. also read útohitā: but, as appears from his "Corrections" to vol. iv., p. 446, his note was disordered in printing; | the comm. has instead uddhrtā. In c all the authorities give yajñásya táttvam ca | but W's P. tánvam |, and SPP. retains táttvam, without even making the necessary emendation of accent to tattvám; the comm. also supports it, and it is implied in the translation given above; our alteration to yajñáç ca sattrám ca is probably more venturesome than is called for. | The place of the accent in the ms.reading táttvam ca, the Paris reading tán-, the un-Vedic look of tattvam, the rcah prancas tantavas of AV. xv. 3.6, and the TB. parallel, all join in suggesting that the true reading is yajādsya tántavas. | In the appendix to the verse, the comm. reads sammitāya.

3. To him who frees from distress I bring forward my devotion (manīṣā), unto him who rescues well, choosing to myself his favor; accept, O Indra, this oblation; let the desires of the sacrificer be realized.

Or (at the end) 'come true.' A corresponding verse is found in TS. (in i. 6. 123) and in MS. (in iv. 12. 3). In a both read bharemā [p. -ma] manīṣām, thus rectifying the meter; and Ppp. does the same; for b, TS. gives oṣiṣṭhadāvne sumatim gṛṇānāh [good grammar (plural -nās) and good meter]; MS. bhūyiṣṭhadāvne sumatim āvṛṇānāh [bad in both respects]. Very nearly all the AV. authorities give in b -tim mā vṛṇānāh; [per contra, cf. note to xviii. 2. 3]. One would like to get rid of the superfluous ā at the beginning of b by emending to āçutrāvne [āçu- would accord closely in sense with the oṣiṣṭha- of TS.]. [Our bhare is evidently a corruption due to haplography, which has brought in its train the further corruption of āvṛṇānāh to -nāḥ.] In c, d, TS.MS.

agree throughout * with AV. [save that MS. has jusasva for grbhāya]. In c, Ppp. has havyā; only parts of the verse are left in its text; [Roth says the first word is lest]. The comm. reads sutrāmņe in a, -tim grṇānah (like TS.) in b, and havyā (like Ppp.) in c. *[In c, the idám of the Berlin text is an emendation, since all the mss. collated by W. before publication have imâm; and it is confirmed by TS.MS., which give idám, and by W's subsequently collated O., and apparently also by his L. But SPP. prints imâm without note of variant; and the comm. has imam, which he makes = idam in the sense of idānīm!]

4. Him who frees from distress, the bull of the worshipful, him that shines forth $(vi\text{-}r\bar{a}j)$, the first of the sacrifices (adhvara), the child of the waters, O Açvins, I call with prayer (dhi); do ye with Indra give me Indra-like force.

A corresponding verse in TS. (in i. 6. 123) reads thus: prå samråjam prathamám adhvarånām anhomúcam vṛṣabhám yajñtyānām: apām nápātam açvinā háyantam asmín nara indriyám dhattam ojah. It helps us least in the critical part of our verse, where the mss. all read açvinā huvé [huve, havé] dhiya (p. dhiyaḥ) indriyéna ta (p. te) indr.. The translation follows our emendation (açvinā, with TS.; dhiyé 'ndrena ma indr-). SPP. follows the mss. Ppp. nearly agrees with them: açvināu huve dhiya indriyena na indriyam dhattam ojaḥ. The comm. has dhiyam and dhattām (but his text, according to SPP., reads dhattam).

43. To various gods: for attaining heaven.

[Brahman. — aṣṭāu. bahudevatyam uta brahmadevatyam. 1-8.3-av. çañkumatī pathyāpañkti.]

Not found in Pāipp. No viniyoga.

Translated: Griffith, ii. 299.

1. Whither the brahman-knowers go, along with consecration, with ardor—thither let Agni conduct me; let Agni impart $(dh\bar{a})$ to me wisdom: to Agni hail!

SPP. strangely prefers to read $medh\bar{a}$ da- in d, with a mere majority of his authorities, but with the comm. [who gives $medh\bar{a}s$]; our mss. also are divided between $-dh\bar{a}$ and $-dh\bar{a}\dot{m}$. In the pada-text, SPP. emends to $-dh\bar{a}h$; the pada-mss. have $-dh\bar{a}$ or $-dh\bar{a}m$.

- 2. Whither the etc. etc. thither let Vāyu conduct me; let Vāyu impart to me breaths: to Vāyu hail!
- 3. Whither the etc. etc. thither let the sun conduct me; let the sun impart to me sight: to the sun hail!
- 4. Whither the etc. etc. thither let the moon (candrá) conduct me; let the moon impart to me mind: to the moon hail!
- 5. Whither the etc. etc. thither let Soma conduct me; let Soma impart to me milk: to Soma hail!

The comm. has a lacuna including all the explanations of verse 4, and part of the text of verse 4 and of this.

- 6. Whither the etc. etc. thither let Indra conduct me; let Indra impart to me strength: to Indra hail!
- 7. Whither the etc. etc. thither let the waters conduct me; let immortality $(am\hat{r}ta)$ approach $(upa-sth\bar{a})$ me: to the waters hail!

Our nayantu in c is the obviously necessary emendation of nayatu of all the mss., which SPP., after his manner, retains. The comm. does not have occasion to quote the word; but his text also, according to SPP., reads nayatu. [The faulty assimilation of the original nayantu to the nayatu which obtains throughout all the other verses of the sequence, is precisely paralleled by the gachati (so all authorities) after apas at xv. 7. 3.]

8. Whither the etc. etc. — thither let Brahmán conduct me; let Brahmán impart to me bráhmán: to Brahmán hail!

The comm. explains brahmán by jagatsrastā hiranyagarbhah, and bráhman by svasvarūpabhūtain (rutādhyayanajanyain tejo vā.

44. With an ointment: against diseases etc.

[Bhṛgu.— daça. mantroktānjanadevatyam. (8, 9. vāruņe.) ānuṣṭubham: 4. 4-p. çankumaty uṣṇih; 5. 3-p. nicṛd viṣamā gāyatrī.]

[Partly prose: verses 4 and 5.] Found also in Pāipp. xv. Used, according to the comm., with an ointment amulet, by Naks. K. 19, in a mahāçānti ceremony called nāirṛtī, when one is seized by nirṛti (destruction). [Verse 4 is quoted in sakalapāṭha by Kāuç. at 47. 16, to accompany the taking of a staff in a witchcraft ceremony.]

Translated: Griffith, ii. 300. — He very pertinently notes that this hymn closely resembles in parts iv. 9. See W's notes thereon.

1. Thou art an extender of life-time; all-healing art thou called; so, O ointment, do thou [make] wealfulness; make, O ye waters, weal [and] fearlessness.

The translation follows our text, which is variously emended. In b, the mss. and comm. and SPP. read vipram bhesajám; the comm. explains vipram as prīnayitṛ (as if it were somehow priyam) vipravac chuddham vā. Ppp. gives vipre. In c, all have camtāte, glossed by the comm. with camtāte the ms. of the comm. actually has -pam]. In d, all accent āpas, and also (with one accidental exception) kṛtám; but one of our mss. (probably also by accident) gives kṛtá, which we adopted, with emendation to kṛta; [if I understand W's Collation Book, his B. has kṛta, without accent;] SPP. is satisfied with emending to kṛtam, as if ānjana and āpas could somehow be construed together as a dual subject. Part of the mss. have ucyate at end of b. The pada-mss. read camtāte without division. Ppp. has for second half-verse yad ānjani dram camtāte acināyo bhavam kṛtam, which is too corrupt to be of any assistance.

2. What the jaundice is, the jāyānya, the limb-splitter, the visālpaka — all yākṣma from thy limbs let the ointment expel (nir-han) out.

The mss. make very bad work with the last pāda, nearly all (the variations are of no account) giving barhir nirahantv (p. barhih: nih: ahantu); SPP. makes the same emendation that we had made; and [it is confirmed by] Ppp. and the comm., [which] have the same. | Three or four of SPP's authorities, including two reciters, gave bahis. |

In a, the comm. strangely reads and explains jyāyān yah; Ppp. presents jāyānyo. For visalpakas (which SPP. reads here also, as in vi. 127 and ix. 8), the comm. gives visarpakas, explaining it as vividham saranaçilo vranaviçeşah; Ppp. has viçalyakas.

3. The ointment, born on the earth, excellent, giving life to men—let it make [me] unperishing, of chariot-swiftness, free from offense.

Ppp. reads in d rathajūtam. The comm. thinks the word may mean either rathavadvegagāminam or rathavantam.

4. O breath, rescue thou breath; O life-breath (dsu), be gracious to life-breath; O destruction, free us from the fetters of destruction.

[Prose.] The comm. follows a different division in verses 4-7, making of them but three verses,* and of the whole hymn but nine. The method of the mss. and the Anukr. is plainly decidedly preferable; it is followed also by SPP. One does not see any justification for the division by the Anukr. of the last five words of this verse into two pādas, with five syllables (canku) in the closing one. [It counts 7+7:7+5.] Ppp. reads continuous aso save. The comm. has continuous instead of continuous About half the authorities give at the beginning continuous [For the citation of the vs. by Kāuç., see introd. to this hymn, and cf. especially p. 897, ¶ 3.] *[Our 4,5ab = his 4; our 5cd,6ab = his 5; our 6cd,7 = his 6.]

5. Embryo of the river art thou, flower of the lightnings; the wind [thy] breath, the sun [thine] eye, from the sky [thy] milk.

[Prose.] SPP. and the comm. read púspam, and all the mss. probably are to be regarded as having it; spa and sya are practically indistinguishable in the mss. Ppp. also gives puspam. At the beginning all the mss. have sindho (p. sindho tii); even SPP. emends to sindhos, the comm. giving it. The comm. curiously explains vidyutam puspam by vistyudakam: one can hardly help suspecting a misreading. The Anukr. scans the "verse" (restoring the a of asi) as 6+5:12=23; its definition is far from acceptable. Bloomfield discusses the vs., AJP. xvii. 405.

6. O divine ointment, thou from the three-peaked [mountain], do thou protect me all about; the herbs do not surpass (tr) thee—those from abroad and those from the mountains.

All the mss. [save one of SPP's] read $d\acute{e}v\bar{a}njanam$ (p. $d\acute{e}va\circ\bar{a}nj$ -) $tr\bar{a}tkakudam$; SPP. emends the former to -na, but not the latter to -da, although this is as indisputably vocative as the other; the comm. [with one of SPP's mss.] makes the same difference, though he regards $tr\bar{a}ikakudam$ as vocative (he $tr\bar{a}ik$ -). Ppp. reads $dev\bar{a}njani$ $tr\bar{a}ikakuda$. [As to the rarity of neuter vocatives, see my Noun-Inflection, p. 339.] The great majority of mss. accent $b\bar{a}hy\bar{a}s$; SPP. reads $b\bar{a}hy\bar{a}s$. The comm. understands the word as meaning "from other localities than the mountains." Our emendation to $b\bar{a}ty\bar{a}s$, supported by an article [2. $v\bar{a}ty\bar{a}$ 'cultivated'] in the major Pet. Lex. [vi. 903] is withdrawn by the omission of that article in the minor Lex. Ppp. reads corruptly $b\bar{a}hyam$ parvaty \bar{a} .

7. The demon-slayer, disease-expeller, hath crept down over the middle here, expelling all diseases, making portents vanish from here.

The change to masculine here in b is obscure and questionable; emendation to -catanam is desirable; it would allow idam to be understood as 'this [ointment],' which is easier and more natural. Ppp., too, has -cātanam, which gives the emendation sufficient support.* Ppp. has for a vīram madhyam avāsrjat. The pada-mss. commit the egregious inconsistency of reading cātáyan: nāçāyat in c, d; SPP. emends in pada-text to cātáyat.* Ppp. has in d nāçayatam ivāhitā. [In c of the Berlin ed., correct sárvaç to sárvāç.]

* Both editions print raksohāmīvacātanah, and the pada-reading is raksahohā: amīvacātanah. Whitney, doubtless by oversight, neglects to say how he would emend raksohā to make a corresponding neuter of it, and the question is a very troublesome one (for details, see Noun-Inflection, p. 478 end, p. 479). The neuter form would properly be -hā'; but none such is quotable, so far as I know, unless here. May it be that we have here that very form, -hā' (neuter), concealed in the combination -hāmīva, and that the misunderstanding of it as -hā (masculine) amīva- led to a corruption of an original -cātanam into -cātanah and also of an original -pada-reading -pada-reading

8. Much untruth, O king Varuna, doth man (ptirusa) say here; from that sin (dinhas) do thou free us, O thou of thousand-fold heroism.

The mss. vary between rajan and rajan, and between anrtam, anftam, and anftam. The great majority accent at the end paryanhasah, and all the pada-mss. have pario anhasah. SPP. reads at the beginning bahv idam, after the manner of the Sāma-Veda; we emended to idam, because that is the Atharvan practice (cf. note to Prāt. iii. 65, p. 499), against which the concurrence even of all the mss. [save W's I.], as here, ought not to count. Ppp. reads in b purusah.

9. In that we have said O waters, O inviolable [kine], O Varuna, from that sin do thou free us, O thou of thousand-fold heroism.

That is, if we have called these divinities to witness an untruth: cf. the nearly equivalent vii. 83. 2 c-e. The translation implies emendation to ághnyās; váruṇa, which can be only vocative, proves each of its predecessors such; the comm. understands all the three as vocative, and paraphrases [he] āpo yūyam jānīdhve, he aghnyā yūyam mama cittam jānīdhve, etc. Ppp. reads in b varuṇena yad. Our mss. read again pāryanh- (p. pārioanhasaḥ), and so apparently do SPP's, although he does not distinctly say so; his note to vs. 8 (note 2, p. 455) perhaps makes such an implication |.

10. Both Mitra and Varuna went forth after thee, O ointment; they, having gone far after thee, brought thee back for enjoyment (bhogá).

All the authorities [save W's E. and one of SPP's reciters], and Ppp. also, give at the end $p\bar{u}nar$ ohatu; but the pada-mss. give $p\bar{u}nah$: rohatu, which is a blunder, since the corresponding $samhit\bar{u}$ would be $p\bar{u}n\bar{u}$ rohatu [which W's E. in fact has]. SPP. emends to $p\bar{u}nar$ o "hatuh" (p. $p\bar{u}nah$: \bar{u} : $\bar{u}hatuh$), and the translation follows this, rather than our own nearly equivalent and equally acceptable emendation to $p\bar{u}nar$ o "hat $\bar{u}m$. [Whitney here overlooks the lack of accent on the oh: the Berlin text, the text of W's Collation Book, and his Index, under 1 $\bar{u}h$, all give ohat $\bar{u}m$ without accent. Root 1 $\bar{u}h$ does not appear to be quotable with \bar{u} , and it would seem that SPP's emendation (root vah with \bar{u}) must of need be preferred.] The comm., [with his text, and with SPP's reciter V., who accented $p\bar{u}nar$ $\bar{u}hatuh$,] gives $p\bar{u}nar$ $\bar{u}hatuh$ (= $p\bar{u}nar$ $\bar{u}gantav$ -yam ity $\bar{u}catuh$!). [We might better render $bhog\bar{u}ya$ by for our use.] Half the mss. accent with us anu prey- in b; SPP. gives anu, with the pada-text $(anu \circ prey \circ tu)$

45. With an ointment etc.: for various objects.

[Bhṛgu. — daça. 1-5. āñjanadevatyam; 6-10. mantrokladevatyam. 1, 2. anuṣṭubh; 3-5. triṣṭubh; 6-10. 1-av. mahābṛhatī (6. virāj; 7-10. nicṛt).]

[Prose in part, vss. 6-10.] Found (except vs. 9) also in Pāipp. xv., next after our 44. The practical use is, according to the comm., the same with that of 44. Translated: Griffith, ii. 301.

1. Bringing together witchcraft to the house of the witchcraft-maker, as it were debt from debt, do thou, O ointment, crush in the ribs of the hostile eye-conjurer.

With the second half-verse compare ii. 7. 5 c, d. The first half seems to mean "paying back or returning . . . as debt upon debt, or repeated debt"; this is, except for the sense given to the ablative <code>rnāt</code> (which he explains by <code>rnāt</code> . . . <code>bhītah</code>, or, alternatively, <code>rnadātur uttamarnāt</code>: both wrongly), the understanding of the comm. [Griffith says: "As debt from debt: as a man returns to his creditor a part of what he owes him."] Many of the authorities give <code>rinād rinām</code> (Ppp. has <code>rn-</code>); and some accent the first syllable, <code>ri-</code> or <code>r-</code>. At the end of <code>a</code>, nearly all have <code>samnayām</code> (p. <code>samonayām</code>), but the comm. <code>samnayan</code>, which SPP. adopts (<code>samndyan</code>) and which is followed in the translation above, as being a smaller alteration of the original than our emendation <code>samnaya</code>, and at least equally acceptable in point of sense. In c the comm. has the bad reading <code>cakṣur mitrasya</code>. Ppp. ends <code>d</code> with <code>āhjanam</code>.

2. What evil-dreaming [is] in us, what in [our] kine, and what in our house, also the . . . of one hostile, let him that is unfriendly take upon himself (prati-muc).

Both sense and meter require the emendation in d of priyas to apriyas, and the comm. has the latter, but all the authorities,* and Ppp. (durhārdas priya pra-), and SPP. give the former. In c, the general reading of the mss. is anāmagas tvām (p. anāmagah: tvām); for tvām ca is found tvām ca, tám ca, támta, [tvāc ca, tá ca, tac ca]. SPP. accepts anāmagas tām, but what sense he can possibly attach to the words does not appear. Ppp. gives māmagatasya dur-. The comm. reads anāmakas tac ca, which is equally impossible; and he makes a senseless explanation of anāmakas: tārīnāmā tādrīnāme 'ty evam nāmarahitah; and he falsely regards durhārdas as a nom. sing. qualified by anāmakas. Our conjecture, anāmayatvām ca d-, is very unsatisfactory, in regard both to meter and to sense; anāgastvām 'guiltlessness' would make a good anusṭubh pāda, and be very near to the reading of the mss.; but it would be, equally with anāmayatvam, discordant with duṣvāpnyam, and would require priyas in d. [Ppp. reads muñcatā at the end.]

*[The reciter V., curiously, has as an alternative, durhārdo 'priyás, which (the accent being wrong) is neither one thing nor the other, but may well be taken as supporting the comm's reading apriyas, as against priyás; the true samhitā-reading would then be durhārdo 'priyaḥ.]

[The solution of this desperate passage seems to me to be suggested by 57.5 below, of which the first part is identical with our a, b here, and of which the second part begins with anāsmākās tád and ends (nearly like v. 14.3 d) with niṣkām iva (pronounce niṣkéva) prāti muñcatām. In our c, d I would read anāsmākās tád durhārdo 'priyaḥ prāti muñcatām (pada-reading duḥohārdaḥ : ápriyaḥ), and render 'that let him who is not of us, the evil-hearted, the unfriendly, put upon himself.' The tid is supported by the comm., and in a measure by SPP's D.V. and C*.; the apriyas, by the comm. and V. (as above) and the meter; and anāsmākās comes near to the ms.-readings, and, indeed, considering the anāmakas of the living reciter V. and of the comm., is not ill supported.

[It remains to note that no valid objection can be taken against making a nom. sing. of durhārda-s: its use as such is a natural way of avoiding the form from the consonantal stem (which was as much of a stumbling-block to the ancient Hindu as it is to the modern tyro in Sanskrit), and is entirely analogous to the use of hṛdayam rather than hṛd (cf. my Noun-Inflection, p. 471). The comm. is accordingly right in saying here durhārdo duṣṭacittaḥ, as he was also in glossing the suhārt of ii. 7. 5 by çobhanahārdaḥ sumanaskaḥ. The nom. durhārda-s is a form of transition to the a-declension, with durhārd-am (so viii. 3. 25) as its point of departure (cf. durhārdān of the mss. at xix. 28.8); just so the later pāda-s (from pād-am) replaces the older pāt (Noun-Inflection, p. 471).

Of the older nom. sing. masc. or fem., however, the true form is suhar, p. suchah, of which traces, albeit scanty, are found in the Veda: one is at MS. iv. 2. 5, p. 2619, priyā nah suhār nah; and another is at AV. ii. 7. 5, where both ed's read yah suhārt téna nah sahá. Here the samhitā-authorities taken together are divided between suhårt téna (so 11) and suhåt téna (so 6); but the pada-authorities (7 out of 8) give suohāt, the notable exception being the crotriya K., who recited the true form suohāh. The samhitā-form for this ought to be suhās (téna), and possibly this form is concealed in the reading suhātténa of Sm. etc. If not, then (since rtt = rt: Gram. § 232) we may regard the combination suhart t- as representing suhar t-, nom. suhar, with breach of the rule of sandhi requiring the change of suhār to suhās before t. The motive for this breach was perhaps to avoid disguising still further the form suhār, itself extremely rare and none too easily recognized; and the motive is perhaps as clear as it is in the case of aves avet, ajāis ajāit, etc., cited by W., Gram. § 555 a. — The nom. suhārt seems to be grammatical and not intolerable in the texts, and to be unparalleled (cf. Noun-Inflection, p. 472). See p. 1046.

3. Increasing from the force of the refreshment of the waters, born out of Agni Jātavedas — may the ointment that is four-heroed, that is of the mountains, make the quarters, the directions, propitious to thee.

In a, $\bar{u}rjds$ might, of course, be ablative, coördinate with $\delta jasas$; the whole expression is too obscure to help the construction by the sense. The comm. reads $\bar{u}rjam$; Ppp. combines $\bar{u}rjo$ 'jaso, and has in c parvatam. The Anukr. does not heed the redundant syllable in c.

- 4. The four-heroed ointment is bound to thee; be all the quarters free from fear for thee; firm shalt thou stand, like Savitar desirable; let these people (viças) render thee tribute.
- In a, b Ppp. combines badhyatā "ñj-, diço 'bhayās. In c, the mss. [with one or two exceptions] read $c\bar{a}rya$ i- (p. $ca:\bar{a}ryah$); SPP. alters the accent to $c\bar{a}rya$ (p. $ca:\bar{a}ryah$); our emendation to $v\bar{a}ryas$ [W's B. has $v\bar{a}rya$ i-] is not absolutely necessary, yet certainly a plausible improvement; and it is in a certain measure supported by Ppp., which gives $v\bar{a}ri$ $im\bar{a}$; the translation above implies it. The comm. understands arya, vocative, rendering it by $sv\bar{a}min$. In d all the mss. have viças [but W's E. seems to have diças], and our substitution of diças was hardly called for; but Ppp. favors it, reading diço bhriyante. The comm. gives two explanations for the strange epithet caturvira, showing that he is merely guessing what its sense might possibly be. We have in d again an extra syllable of which the Anukr. takes no notice.

5. Use thou one as ointment; make one an amulet; bathe with one; drink one of them; let the four-heroed one protect us about from the four destructive bonds of seizure (grāhi).

All the mss.* have at the beginning $\dot{a}ksva$, which the pada-text leaves undivided; SPP. goes so far as to emend the latter to $\hat{a}: aksva$, but is unwilling to follow us in reading a 'nksva, although aksva is no possible form, and the comm. agrees with our emendation. Ppp. reads ākṣakam man-. In b the mss. give ékenāpivālkam, and the padamss. resolve it into ékena: ápi: vā: ékam. Our emendation to ékena píbāl 'kam is evidently just what is required; but SPP. chooses to retain ékená, and so reads [in pada-text | ékena: a: piba, remarking that "if RW. had discerned the a after ékena, their very correct emendation would have been free from the defect of unnecessarily changing the ancient accent of the samhitā-text." This reads like a joke, considering how the text of book xix. (not to speak of previous books) abounds in gross errors of accentuation, and how often we and he have been compelled to emend it - for example, in the preceding verse, where the "ancient accent" cāryà was changed by him to cārya. | Apart from this passage, | the compound $\bar{a} + p\bar{a}$ does not occur in the Atharvan, and, although it is not unknown, it would be distinctly out of place here. The version of the pāda in Ppp. is totally corrupt: ¿vāçīkenapavīkam eṣām. The comm. reads ekenā 'vivekam eṣām, and labors, with his usual ill-success, to devise an explanation of avivekam. To ekam etc. he supplies āñjanam; as his reading gets rid of the fourth, he connects the first three with the "three-peaked mountain" from which the ointment is derived: trișu parvatakakutsū 'tpannāni! Apparently the fourfold-ness is related in some way or other to the "four-heroed"-ness. In d, the comm. commits the extraordinary blunder of taking grāhyās as gerundive: grahītavyā āñjanamayā oṣadhayah! and this compels him to change pātu to pāntu. The pada-mss. (except one of SPP's, p.m.) have grāhyā, they also failing to recognize the not uncommon noun grāhi; SPP. makes the necessary emendation to -hyāh. *| But SPP's Sm., āksvāikam. |

6. Let Agni favor (av) me with fire (? agni), in order to breath, to expiration, to life-time, to splendor, to force, to brilliancy, to well-being, to welfare: hail!

The comm. is uncertain whether by the second agni (agninā) is meant agnitvadharmena, or pāvakādigunakena svamūrtyantarenā 'gninā sahitah. All the mss. accent subhūtāye here, but súbhūtyā at iii. 14.1 (cf. Grammar § 1288 e): SPP. accents here-tāye, with the mss.; but the Berlin text sú-here, in conformity with both editions and the mss. at iii. 14.1 . Ppp. reads mā agninā.

7. Let Indra favor me with what is Indra's (indriya), in order to breath etc. etc.

The comm. gives a double interpretation of indriya. Ppp. again has mā indriy-.

8. Let Soma favor me with what is Soma's (sāúmya), in order to breath etc. etc.

The comm. explains sāúmyena as somatvasampādakena dharmeņa jagadāpyāyana-kāritvādidharmena.

9. Let Bhaga favor me with fortune (bhága), in order to breath etc. etc.

The comm. has here a lacuna, embracing the commentary to this verse and the text of the next. [The verse is wanting in Ppp., as noted above.]

10. Let the Maruts favor me with troops, in order to breath etc. etc.

Ppp. reads this time suprabhūtaye. It is possible to make out of these prose "verses" the number of syllables demanded by the Anukr. Perhaps the modification nicrt belongs only to vss. 7-9 (the manuscripts are discordant and unclear).

| Here ends the fifth anuvāka, with 12 hymns and 74 verses. |

46. With and to an amulet called astrta 'unsubdued.'

[Prajāpati. — saptakam. astrtamanidāivatam. trāistubham: 1.5-p. madhyejyotismatī tristubh; a.6-p. bhurik çakvarī; 3,7.5-p. pathyāpankti; 4.4-p.*; 5.5-p. atijagatī; 6.5-p. usniggarbhā virād jagatī.] *[The Anukr. says: indrāya tvā (vs. 4) catuspadā: asmin manāv (vs. 5) iti pancapadā jagatī (Berlin ms., atijagatī): most unsatisfactory; and why should vs. 4 be defined as 4-p.?]

Found also in Pāipp. iv. (in the verse-order 1, 2, 6, 5, 3, 4, 7). Used, according to the comm., by one desiring strength, in a mahāçānti ceremony called mārudganī, with a threefold amulet named astrta, being so prescribed by Nakṣ.K. 19.

Translated: Ludwig, p. 462; Griffith, ii. 302. — See also Bergaigne-Henry, Manuel, p. 165.

I. Prajāpati bound thee first [as] unsubdued (ástṛta), in order to heroism; it do I bind for thee in order to life-time, to splendor, and to force and to strength: let the unsubdued one defend thee.

Astrta is literally 'not laid low.' In the two occurrences above (i. 20. 4: v. 9. 7) it is accented on the final; but, as astrta would be the normal accent, it is left here unchanged in our text, as well as in SPP's. The pada-texts read in a badhnāt, but that is no reason why we should not understand it as abadhnāt, and our text (not SPP's) so prints it. Our text further emends at the beginning of c the tât of the mss. to tâm, as required by the gender of astrtas. The omission of badhnāt in a, and of vârcasc in the second half-verse, would make an anuṣṭubh (apart from the refrain); but the meter 'throughout the hymn is unusually careless of regularity, and Ppp. has both words, reading in a, b badhnātu prathama sambhrtam, and in d, e combining varcaso 'jase and ca astrtas. [With c, d, cf. iv. 10. 7 c, d.]

2. Standing upright, defend thou this man unremittingly, O unsubdued one; let not the Panis, the sorcerers, damage thee; as Indra the barbarians, [so] do thou shake down them that fight [us]; overpower and scatter (vi) all our rivals: let the unsubdued one defend thee.

All the mss. [with unimportant variants] read in a tisthanta; SPP. emends to tisthatu, because the comm. reads the latter; our tisthan suits the connection decidedly better. [The vocative astrta and the tvā are] perhaps sufficient reasons for our altering the rākṣann of the mss. (also of the comm. and Ppp.) into rakṣa, and the translation follows [the printed text of Berlin]. To humor his tisthatu, SPP. changes the following dstrta (mss. dstrte 'mam; p. dstrta: imam) to dstrtas but only in the padatext, so that his samhita does not agree therewith; our text simply emends to astrta caccentless; the comm. also regards the word as vocative. Ppp. has instead sambhra, and, if I understand Roth's Collation, combines it with a following corrupt imanu, so as to read sambhrte 'manu; and, in c, Ppp. has indri 'va. The majority of mss. accent prianyatas. The Anukr. apparently means us to scan thus: 11 + 4 + 11: 15 + 8 + 8 = 57.

3. Whom even a hundred, hurling (pra-hr), smiting down, have not subdued (str), to him Indra committed sight, breath, also strength: let the unsubdued one defend thee.

In a, the pada-mss. wrongly divide ca:nå, and SPP. follows them. In b, about a third of SPP's authorities read vighnántas; Ppp. has bhijanto. The yām that follows it is our emendation, plainly suggested by the meter, the requirement of the sense, and the accent of the verb; but the comm. and Ppp. agree with the mss. in lacking it. At the end of b our tastrire is an emendation (now supported by Ppp., which has the same reading) for the tastire of the mss. (one or two have tasthire), the comm. [but the ms. has nirastire], and SPP.; the comm. explains it as = tastarire, with Vedic omission of part of the ending: this is of his usual degree of insight; what SPP. would do with his tastire is hard to see; the emendation to tastrire is obvious and unquestionable. For tásmin in c Ppp. gives yasmin. The mss. in general read páryadanta (p. pári: adanta), but two or three of ours, with the comm's text (SPP.), -ntah cá-; our emendation to páry adatta, now ratified by Ppp., is accepted by SPP. The comm's explanation implies pari yad antaç ca-; and he takes the yat as a form of root i (pari yat paryagamayat paripūritavān)! With the insertion of yám in b, the verse is a good paūkti, as defined by the Anukr.

4. With Indra's defense (várman) we surround thee, who became over-king of the gods; let all the gods lead thee forward again; let the unsubdued one defend thee.

A part of the verse $\lfloor p\bar{a}da \, b$, it would seem? \rfloor has fallen out in Ppp.; $\lfloor this$ has $dh\bar{a}m\bar{a}i$ for $dh\bar{a}pay\bar{a}mo$. The meter is insufficiently defined by the Anukr. (13 + 11: 11 + 8 = 43): $\lfloor see$ introduction, above \rfloor .

5. In this amulet [are] a hundred and one heroisms; a thousand breaths in this unsubdued one; a tiger, do thou attack (abhi-sthā) all [our] rivals; whoso shall fight against thee, be he inferior (ádhara): let the unsubdued one defend thee.

SPP. reads in b asmin; our asmin is given by a small minority of the mss.; the majority have asmin, some asmin, one asmin. The vs. (11+10:11+11+8=51) is a tristubh (defective in b), with the refrain added: see introd.

6. Snatched out of ghee, rich in honey, rich in milk, thousand-breathed, hundred-wombed (?-yóni), vigor-imparting, both wealful and delightful, both-rich in refreshment and rich in milk — let the unsubdued one defend thee.

[We had a at 33. 2 a, above: cf. v. 28. 14.] Ppp. reads at the beginning ullabdhas; one or two of SPP's mss. have dúrluptas [cf. note to xviii. 2. 3], úrluptas. In b, all the authorities (save one or two) give sahásram prānás or sahásra prānáh

(p. sahásram : prānāh); * but the comm. implies (perhaps only by his usual neglect of accent) sahásraprānas, and SPP. reports one of his mss. as giving the same; and he accordingly follows us in adopting it; Ppp. reads with the mss. $\lfloor sahasram prānah \rfloor$. The comm. gives an extraordinary explanation of -yoni in b: yoniçabdena çatrusamgamananimittam çatruviyojanasādhanam vā balam vivakṣyate: that is, without any regard to the established meanings of yoni, he takes it here as a mere representative of the radical sense of the root yu unite or of the root yu separate — he does not venture to decide which! The metrical description of the Anukr. is fairly correct (II + I2: 7 + 8 + 8 = 46). * These corruptions of the true sahásraprānas are noteworthy as examples of faulty half-way assimilation of a reading to something similar in the immediate context: here the cause of the confusion is plainly the sahásram prānāh of vs. 5 b.

7. That thou mayest be superior, free from rivals, rival-slaying — mayest be controler of thy fellows — so may Savitar make thee: let the unsubdued one defend thee.

The mss., and SPP., read in a uttarás (p. utotaráh); our text makes the necessary emendation to úttaras. In c, the same read asat; we emended to asas, and ought to have gone a step further and accented asas, since the following tathā shows that the three preceding pādas are all alike under the government of yathā; Ppp. has in c, with us, asas. Ppp. further combines 'so 'sapatnah in a-b, and reads tvā abhi in e.

47. To night: for protection.

[Gopatha. — navakam. mantroktarātridevatyam. ānustubham: 1. pathyābṛhatī; 2. 5-p. anustubham stubgarbhā parātijagatī; 6. purastādbṛhatī; 7. 3-av. 6-p. jagatī.]

Found also in Pāipp. vi. According to the comm., hymns 47 and 48 form a single "sense-hymn" (arthasūkta), and 49 and 50 another; and their use is prescribed in Paric. 4. 3-5, as of two hymns, in a ceremony of worship of night.

Translated: Ludwig, p. 467; Zimmer, p. 179; Griffith, ii. 303.

1. O night, the earthly space (rdjas) hath been filled with the father's orderings (dhdman); great, thou spreadest thyself $(vi\text{-}sth\bar{a})$ to the seats of the sky; bright darkness comes on $(\bar{a}\text{-}vrt)$.

The verse is VS. xxxiv. 32, and is also found as first verse of a khila (Aufr., p. 682) to RV. x. 127, in both places without variant. LIt is quoted in Nirukta, Dāivatakāṇḍa iii. 29. Ppp. reads in b pitaraṣ prāyu dh-, and in c sudhānsi. The comm. holds 'the father' in b to designate the "skyey world" (dyuloka), quoting the commonplace dyāuḥ pitā pṛthivī mātā in support of it; dhāmabhis he glosses with sthānāiḥ saha, and tveṣam with dīpyamānam. For dhāmabhis we might perhaps better say 'by or in accordance with the orderings'; but Griffith understands it as 'wondrous works.'

2. She of whom the further limit is not seen, nor what separates; in her everything that stirs goes to rest (ni-viç); uninjured may we, O wide darksome night, attain thy further limit — may we, O excellent one, attain thy further limit.

In a, SPP. accents dádrçe, without adding any note as to ms.-readings; it is perhaps merely an oversight, as all our mss. save one have plainly dadrçe, and this is the Atharvan accent (cf. x. 8. 8), against RV. dádrçe, which is wholly anomalous. Ppp. reads yoyavad, and, in b, ni misate rejati; its c is wholly corrupt. The comm. connects na yoyuvat with what follows, and explains it thus: na vibhajamānam vibhaktam nā "sīt kim tu viçvam ekākāram evā 'bhūt. The RV. khila, in vs. 4, has pāda e, twice repeated.

3. The men-watching lookers that are thine, O night, ninety [and] nine—eighty are they [and] eight, also seven [and] seventy of thine;—

In b, SPP's pada-mss. have navatin. In c, the decided majority accent actis, and all santi, which SPP. emends to santi, thus changing "the ancient accent," and without sufficient reason, since santi is defensible, 3 c to 5 b inclusive being of the nature of a parenthesis, extending the navatin nava of 3 b. The khila [vs. 2] to RV. x. 127 has a corresponding verse [as also has ÇÇS. at ix. 28. 10], with yuktāsas for draṣṭāras, with santu in c, and [so the khila, at least] the accent saptá in d. The Atharvan mss. vary between sápta and saptá; our text gives the former, SPP. the latter, which is better, as being the usual Atharvan accent, and having [about] half the mss. in its favor. The comm. explains the draṣṭāras as "troop-gods" (gaṇadevās), and does not so much as hint at any connection with the stars, which nevertheless we cannot well question to be meant, in their various and manifold groupings. A ca after aṣṭāú in c would be a welcome addition to both meter and sense.

4. And sixty and six, O wealthy one; fifty [and] five, O pleasant one; four and forty, three and thirty, O mighty (vājin) one;—

Ppp. has in b naçamnihi, in d vādini.

5. And two of thine and twenty of thine, O night; eleven the least (avamá) — with those protectors today do thou protect us, O daughter of the sky.

At beginning of \mathbf{d} all the authorities with one unimportant variant read nd, which seems impossible. We emended it to nt (cf. nt pati in ix. 10. 23); SPP., following that blind guide the comm., reads nu; this is entirely unacceptable, both on account of the sense, and because nu cannot stand at the beginning of a pada: cf. note to v. 6. 5. The authorities are much at odds as to the accent of duhitar divas, the majority having duhitar divas. Ppp. reads in \mathbf{b} ratri ek.

6. Let no demon, [no] mischief-plotter master us; let no evil-plotter master us; let no thief today master our kine, nor a wolf our sheep;—

The mss. have at the beginning $rdk_5\bar{a}$ (p. rdk_5a), as 2d sing. imperative, and pāda d of RV. vi. 71. 3 (the verse is found also in VS. [xxxiii. 69] TS. [i. 4. 24] TB. [ii. 4. 47] MS. [i. 3. 27]) gives the same, [as does RV. vi. 75. 10 d]. The translation follows our conjectured emendation, which, in view of the implausibility of the impv. rdk_5a standing so alone, has a right to consideration. Ppp. reads $m\bar{a}kir$ no a.

The comm. reckons our 6 a, b as a whole verse [his 6]; our 6 c, d and 7 a, b as his vs. 7; our 7 c, d and 8 a, b as his vs. 8; our 8 c, d and 9 a, b as his vs. 9; and our 9 c, d and ro as his vs. 10; thus making the sixth verse instead of the tenth to consist of two pādas only, while yet counting ten verses in the hymn. SPP., on the other hand [see his Critical Notice in vol. i., p. 24], counts vs. 6 as our edition does, but adds our 8 a, b to our vs. 7 to form his vs. 7, thus making it of six pādas; and then counts our 8 c, d and 9 a, b as his vs. 8, and our 9 c, d and 10 as his vs. 9. This is in accordance with the Anukr. [in that it gives six pādas to vs. 7 and makes a total of 9 vss.], and is a decidedly preferable division to that in our text, which was founded on the numbering of our first mss., and it will be followed in translating here. The sense, however, would be still better suited by making vs. 6 of three lines, instead of vs. 7. [In what follows, I give first the numeration of the Berlin edition, and then, in parenthesis, SPP's numeration.]

7, 8 a, b. (7.) Nor a robber our horses, O excellent one; nor the sorceresses our men.

By the most distant roads let the thief, the robber, run; by a distant one let the toothed rope, by a distant one let the malignant hasten (rs).

As to the division, see under the preceding verse. In the fourth pada, part of the mss. accent taskarás. In the first, there is discordance among them as to the accent of bhadre. The 'rope with teeth' is of course the snake, as the comm. also has sense to see (rajjuvad āyataḥ sarpādiḥ). Our 8 a, b is identical with iv. 3. 2 c, d; and our 7 c, d resembles a, b of the same verse. | For yātudhānyàs the comm. reads the masculine, -nās. |

8 c, d, 9 a, b. (8.) Do thou, O night, make the snake blind, harsh-smoked(?), headless; grind up the two jaws of the wolf; cast $(\bar{a}-han)$ the thief into the snare.

[Apart from the variation in c, the verse is identical with 50. I, below: see note thereon.] All the mss. (except, by accident, one of SPP's) at the beginning have andha; SPP. reads adha, with one ms. and the comm.; but adha is plainly out of place, and andham, as emended in our text (it should have been accented andham; correct the misprint]), a very plausible correction. Our rendering of trṣṭadhūma is mechanically accurate; probably the word is corrupt; Ppp. reads the pāda andho rātri tiṣṭadhūmam. The comm. explains as ārtikārī dhūmo viṣajvālādhūmo ni· (ms. vi·) (vāsadhūmo vā yasya; the translators understand -dhūma as "breath" or "odor"; [Griffith renders 'with pungent breath']. In c, d the mss. have jambhdyāsténa tám drupadé jahi (but many of them have -bhā-). SPP. follows them and prints jambhdyās téna tám dr-: from this our text makes a bold departure * [implying as its pada-reading jambhaya: ā: stenám: drupadé: jahi]; but something had to be done to make sense; any one is invited to do better if he can. The comm. reads with the mss., and forces through a meaningless version. Ppp. has a different and corrupt text: hano vṛkasya jambhayādvāinam nṛpate jahi [cf. end of note to 50. I].

* The assumption of an \hat{a} (\hat{a} ... jahi) after jambhaya is supported by $ntrjahy\bar{a}stena$... jahi at 50.1 c, d, below, where the collocation is almost unequivocal (see the note); for although $jahy\bar{a}s$ (as given by the pada-mss.) is a good optative of $h\bar{a}$, the combination of $h\bar{a}$ with nis is hardly Vedic, and we must there assume the division nir jahy \bar{a} ste-, the locative drupade fitting well with \bar{a} jahi (cf. i. 11.4; x. 8.4 c). The rationale of the corruption here is not hard to see: the hiatus between c and d being once covered by the fusion of the final of jambhaya with the \bar{a} of \bar{a} stenam, nothing was easier than to see a form $jambhay\bar{a}s$ in the first part of the combination, and then to substitute tena for the vastly less common stenam or for the meaningless tenam (which might be read out of the combination: see Prāt. ii. 40 note); the exigency of the meter occasioned by the blunder with $jambhay\bar{a}s$ then made the insertion of tam easy. With the Berlin solution of the corruption, the meter is in perfect order. The interesting parallel from the Avesta, $h\bar{a}m$ zanva zembayadhwem, Yasht i. 27, adduced by Geldner, KZ. xxx. 514, may here be noted.

9 c, d, 10. (9.) With thee, O night, we stay; we shall sleep, do thou watch; yield refuge to our kine, horses, men (púrusa).

'Stay' (vas) means specifically 'spend the night.' In b the pada-mss. commit the incredible blunder of dividing svapisyām: ási (or asi); some of the samhitā-mss. accent svapisyā-; and all either jāgṛhi or jāgṛhi; SPP. follows us in violating the "ancient accent" and emending to jāgṛhi. In c, Ppp. has yachād aç-.

48. To night: for protection.

[As 47. — şaṭ. ānuṣṭubham: 1. 3-p. ārṣī gāyatrī; 2. 3-p. virāḍ anuṣṭubh; 3. bṛhatīgarbhā; 5. pathyāpañkti.]

Found also in Pāipp. vi., in connection with hymn 47, with which it also shares its liturgical application.

Translated: Griffith, ii. 305.

1. Now then what things we note, or what things are within the box, those things we commit to thee.

The first pada here differs widely from the traditional text, which instead of chyamahe has ca yásmā (p. yásmāi) āha, or (a minority) yásmāha; the comm's text (according to SPP.) gives ca yasmā ha, but his explanation implies instead yasmāi (explained as = yasya); and SPP. accordingly reads in samhitā-text ca yásmā ha, and in pada-text ca: yásmāi: ha, which is altogether to be condemned, since the two texts must correspond, and yásmā is also no word. SPP. in a note proposes further emendation of our cáyāmahe to ca yāmahe (= imahe or yācāmahe), which seems entirely unacceptable, as regards both form and sense. The whole verse is so obscure in meaning that we get little help from this element in reconstruction of the text; yet it is plain that we do not commit to another that which we do not possess, but are only wishing for. Ppp. also fails us; its reading of a, b is atho yani tamassahe yani ca 'ntas parenihi. The yanivāntáh of b is by the pada-mss. strangely resolved into vánoiva: antáh (but one of SPP's has p.m. yāni: vā: antáh). It is also strange that SPP. emends to cā 'ntáh, on the sole authority of the comm., though as regards the sense there is nothing to choose between ca and vā. All the mss. accent parinahi (except our pada-mss., which have parinahi; and one of SPP's has s.m. pari: nahi); but SPP. follows our emendation parīnāhi. Nearly half the mss. have at the end dadhmasi, and Ppp. agrees with them. The comm. in his explanation connects the verse closely with 47.9: there one's | domestic | animals were spoken of, here one's very numerous house-articles (bahiṣṭhāni grhavartīni ... vastūni); and in two classes: those out in open sight (anāvṛtadeçe), and those inside an enclosed house or the like (parito naddhe pariçrite gṛhādāu).

2. O night! mother! commit thou us to the dawn; let the dawn commit us to the day, the day to thee, O shining one (vibhāvarī).

Compare 50.7, below *; also MB. i. 5. 15, where more such commitments are given. The comm. reckons the first division of the verse to vs. 1. The metrical definition of the Anukr. is mere arithmetic (12 + 10 + 8 = 30). The pada-text, both here and below, leaves vibhāvari undivided (RV. vibhāvari). * Also vi. 107. 1-4.

3. Whatsoever flies here, whatsoever that is crawling (sarīsṛpā) is here, whatsoever creature is on the mountain—from that do thou, O night, protect us.

The third pāda is wholly corrupt. All the mss. read parvatāyāsatvam (p. pārvatāya: sāh: tvām), with some differences of accent (-yāsātvam, or -yāsātvām, or -yāsātvām); and the comm. and SPP. (in samhitā) follow them (SPP. -yāsātvam; but in p., by emendation, -tāya: asātvam, since the comm. so understands). Our text emends to pārvany āsaktam what has fastened on the joint, which seems extremely unsatisfactory. The translation above is perhaps hardly better, but it implies a text much closer to the mss. —pārvata (i.e. -te, hence -tay) ā sattvām; and so it may pass for what it is worth; it is by no means proposed as a definite solution of the difficulty. Ppp. has padvad āsunvan, which gives no help. Ppp. also reads yadi kim three times.

- 4. Do thou protect behind, thou in front, thou from above and from below; do thou guard us, O shining one; here we are, thy praisers.
- 5. They who follow $(anu\text{-}sth\bar{a})$ the night, and who watch over beings, who defend all cattle—they watch over our selves $(\bar{a}tm\acute{a}n)$, they watch over our cattle.

The mss. accent jāgrati* in d and e, and in d the accent might well enough be retained, on the principle of antithesis; SPP. gives jāgrati, like us. Emendation to jāgratu would be decidedly welcome in both pādas. Ppp. has considerable variations: for b, yeşu bhūteṣu jāgrabhi,† and, for d, e, tenā tvam asi jāgratu te naṣ paçubhir jāgratu: corrupt, but supporting our proposed jāgratu. *[It is very reasonable to suppose that in jāgrati at end of d and e we have two cases of assimilation of an original jāgratu to the jāgrati which stands correctly at the end of b (cf. note to xix. 43. 7), each case being doubly faulty, in respect, namely, of accent and of ending.] †[In Roth's Collation there is a note which perhaps means that Ppp. reads jāgrati for rākṣanti at end of c; but I am not at all sure.]

6. Verily I know thy name, O night; thou art "ghee-dripping" (ghṛtắcī) by name; as such Bharadvāja knows thee; do thou watch over our property.

In b, Ppp. combines $v\bar{a}$ 'si; in c and d it reads, with our edition, $tv\bar{a}$ and $j\bar{a}grhi$, while SPP. gives $tv\bar{a}m$ and $j\bar{a}grati$, the latter for $j\bar{a}grati$, as all the mss. [save one] read; our emendation was a perfectly obvious one, and should have been followed by SPP. The comm., to be sure, reads -rati, but, by the simple application of his general rule, that any verb-form can be used for any other, he is able to declare it = $j\bar{a}gartu$ — which SPP. has too much knowledge and conscience to do. The pada-mss. have $tv\bar{a}m$, $tv\bar{a}m$, and tvam; our tva was an emendation, called for after $t\bar{a}m$. More than half of the mss. accent bharadvajas. In our text, the accent-sign printed over $j\bar{a}$ in d should be shifted to over dhi: it is a misprint.

49. Praise and prayer to night.

[As 47.*— daçakam. ānustubham: 1-5, 8. tristubh; 6. āstārapañkti; 7. pathyāpañkti; 10. 3-av. 6-p. jagatī.] *[The Anukr. adds bharadvājaç ca (or bhārad-), apparently meaning that Gopatha and Bharadvāja were jointly the seers in the case of this hymn.]

This hymn and the following occur together also in Pāipp. xiv. Their viniyoga is the same with that of the two preceding hymns (see under hymn 47). They are translated together (but in reversed order) by Ludwig.

Translated: Ludwig, p. 466; Griffith, ii. 306.

1. The lively woman, household maiden, night, of god Savitar, of Bhaga, all-expanded, of easy invocation, of assembled fortune (?-çrf), hath filled heaven-and-earth with greatness.

In a, the pada-mss. read dámūnā; SPP. emends to $-n\bar{a}h$. In c, all the mss., with the comm. and SPP., read açvakṣabhā (p. açvaokṣabhā), which, as being unintelligible, our edition emends at a venture to viçvávyacās, and the translation follows the latter, for lack of anything better. The comm. gives two explanations: $açu (= \bar{a}çu) + akṣa + bh\bar{a} (= abhibhavati \text{ or } tiraskaroti)$, meaning çīghrapravṛtticakṣurādinirodhikā; or, alternatively, by analogy with vs. 4 c, açvakṣā (= açvan kṣāyati or kṣāpayati) bhā (= dīptih) yasyāh sā: both as absurd as possible. Ppp. reads açvakṣarā. Many of the mss. read sāmbhṛtaḥçrīr, and the pada-mss. divide falsely sāmobhṛtaçrīh instead of sāmbhṛtaoçrīh; SPP. follows them. Ppp. reads sambhṛtaḥçrī ā.

2. The profound one hath surmounted all things; the most mighty one hath ascended to the loftiest sky; the eager night spreads toward me like a friend with excellent svadhås.

The translation follows our text of the verse, which, however, is full of emendations, and by no means satisfactory. Nearly every ms. reads at the beginning avi (one avin, and one authority | SPP's reciter V., with impossible accent | ábhi), while Ppp. has abhi, which is also, except for the accent, an easier emendation for avi. The comm. has ati. Nearly all authorities, again, have for verb in a druhat (the accent is perfectly defensible as an antithetical one, and might well have been left in our text); but the reciter V. gives (ábhi) árhat, thus agreeing in part with the (ati) arhat of the text of the comm.; [and one of W's mss. has dsahat]. The explanation of the comm. reads atyarhati, which he glosses by atikramya vyāpya vartate, which is wholly without authority, since even the Dhātupātha gives only $p\bar{u}j\bar{a}y\bar{a}m$ as the sense of arh. Ppp. has aruhat. SPP. goes half way with the comm., adopting dti . . . aruhat (unnecessarily abandoning the "ancient accent" of the verb). All authorities have viçvāni (but Ppp. only viçvā ar-); and all save Ppp. again have gambhīro, p. -rah, but one of W's pada-mss. gives -rā, p.m. |, although the comm., against his own text (according to SPP.), explains gambhīrā. Here perhaps Ppp. brings help, reading gabhīro 'd varṣ-; this is better than our $-r\vec{a} = r\vec{a} : \vec{a}$. The gabhīr \vec{a} of the Berlin ed. seems to be a misprint for gambhīrā, if we judge by the Collation Book and the Index Verborum: but it may be intended as an emendation, as it certainly is a metrical improvement. | SPP. reads gambhīró vá-, although gambhīrás is simply unusable, and the change to -rā as easy as possible. Nearly all, including Ppp., read varsistham, | save three of SPP's authorities and one of W's, which have -sistam |. Then follows in nearly all aruhántas, p. aruhántah; but -háta is found in one, -hánta in two, and arháti is given by a reciter, with the comm.; the comm. has arhati, and explains it precisely as he did his ati . . . arhati above; SPP. emends to aruhanta; our [å . . .] dyåm aruhat is very bold, but the case was a desperate one. Ppp. reads aruhad açravişthā, and this, with emendation to açramişthā (cf. RV. iv. 4. 12), makes acceptable sense. One of SPP's mss. has gramistha, but doubtless only by accident; all the other authorities, including the comm., have | apart from some unimportant details | cravistha, which SPP. emends to cravisthah. There was probably no sufficient reason for our changing crav- to cavin our text. The fairly acceptable and least altered version of the line would be this: abhi viçvāny aruhad gambhīro 'd varsistham aruhad açramisthā. The third pāda is in equally bad condition. All the authorities [with unimportant variants], including Ppp., have at the beginning uçati rātry (a-), but the pada-mss. give rātri instead of rātri, as they should give, and as SPP's pada-text reads by emendation. What follows it the pada-mss. offer as ánuesāma: drāhim (or drāhim); in the samhitā-mss. the first word appears as ánusāma (once ánusama) or (accentless, and so making one word with drāhim or drāhi) anusāma- or amnusāma-; and the second appears as drāhim, drāhim, drāhim, drāhim, drāhim. The rest of the half-verse, tisthate mitrā iva svadhābhih, is the same in all, including the comm. and Ppp. SPP. emends to ánu sā bhadrā'bhi ti-, which appears to be modeled on our ánu mā bhadrābhir vi ti-, but is defective both in sense and in meter. The comm. gives anuksanam vi ti-, cutting loose entirely from the ms.-reading; his own text, according to SPP., has anusāmadrā vi ti-. Ppp., finally, has avasāna bhadrād vi ti-, which suggests the emendation uçatī rātry āvasā no bhadrā vi tisthate etc. Our vi tisthate, at any rate, is by the support of Ppp. and the comm. put nearly beyond question.

[I have made some modifications in the above paragraph which I could not well indicate by the ell-brackets. — For those who do not have the Bombay ed., it may be well to give SPP's reconstructions of the verse: first, the text of the comm.: ati viçvāny arhad gambhīro varşistham arhati çraviṣṭhā: uçatī rātry anusāmadrā vi tiṣṭhate mitra iva svadhābhih; second, the text which the comm. actually explains: ati viçvāny arhati gambhīrā varṣiṣṭham arhati çraviṣṭhā: uçatī rātry anukṣaṇam vi tiṣṭhate mitra iva svadhābhih; third, SPP's reading: ati viçvāny aruhad gambhīro varṣiṣṭham aruhanta çraviṣṭhāh: uçatī rātry (p. rātrī) anu sā bhadrā 'bhī tiṣṭhate mitra iva svadhābhih.]

3. O desirable, welcome, well-portioned, well-born one! thou didst come, O night; mayest thou be well-willing here; save thou for us the things that are produced $(j\bar{a}t\dot{a})$ for men, likewise what [are] for cattle, by prosperity $\lfloor pusty\dot{a} \rfloor$.

Or, '[and] prosperous,' if we read pusta. The mss. all read in a varye, which we need not have altered to vārye, as vārya is found elsewhere as early as TB.; Ppp. has niryāi. Three of SPP's authorities and one of ours have vándye, I one has véde I, the rest with Ppp., vánde; the comm. vade (= sarvāir abhistūyamāne). Ppp. has svajātā. In b, most of the mss. begin with $did{g}$ an (one $did{g}$ an; p. d: id: agan), and the true reading is in all probability a 'jāgan, impf. intensive of gam; or, if left as "pluperfect," as in our edition, it should at any rate be å 'jagan, as SPP., with the comm., reads. Rātri is our (evidently called-for) emendation for rātri of the mss., which SPP. follows. Syās, at the end of b, is also for syām of the mss., the comm., and SPP.; it is an obvious improvement, though not quite necessary | and receiving no support from Ppp.: see below |. Ppp. has a peculiar (and corrupt) version: ā (if svajātā, as quoted above, is for svajāta ā) cāgni rātri sumanā hy asyām. In c, the translation implies emendation of asmāns to asmē, against all the authorities, including Ppp. and the comm. pada-mss. read jātāh, their natural inference from the rare and anomalous combination jātā átho; SPP. emends to jātā. In d, Ppp. reads criyā instead of atho, and at the end pustyā, with all the mss. (they vary only as to its accent), and with SPP.; our conjectural emendation pusta is supported only by the comm. Lext and explanation.

4. The eager night has taken to herself the splendor of the lion, of the stag, of the tiger, of the leopard, the horse's bottom, man's (púruṣa) roar (?māyú); many forms thou makest for thyself, shining out.

The samhitā-mss. accent rātry uçatī (p. rātri: uçatī); SPP. emends, with us, to rātry uçatī; the comm. also understands rātrī. The mss. all [with trifling variations] read pisásya or pińsásya (or sisásya); SPP. accepts pińsásya; the comm. gives pisasya, which is doubtless only a bad spelling of our piçásya; lion and stag are mentioned by these names together at RV. i. 64. 8; Ppp. has nipasya; and, at end of b, varcādhe. In c, all the authorities, including Ppp. [but not the comm.], offer bradhnám; the translation implies correction to budhnám,* which is the reading of the commentator (he explains it as = mūlam) [and adds, açvavīryasya vego hi mūlam]; in vi. 38. 4 we had the horse's vāja and man's māyú combined; and TB. (ii. 7. 7') in the corresponding passage reads krándye for vāje. The comm. explains māyúm as çabdam āhvānā-dilakṣaṇam. Ppp. has kṛṇuṣī for -ṣe. [The majority of the authorities read vibhātīḥ at the end.] *[Cf. áçvabudhna, RV. x. 8. 3; and Aufrecht on áçvabudhya, ZDMG. xxiv. 206.]

5. Propitious to me [be] night and [the time] after sunrise; be the mother of cold (hima) easy of invocation for us; notice, O well-portioned one, this song of praise, with which I greet thee in all the quarters.

The translation implies in a a new conjectural reading: civå me råtry anūtsūryám ca; an accusative is opposed by the connection, and the meter needs another syllable. Anūtsūryá is venturesome, but we had otsūryám, p. āoutsūryám, above, at iv. 5. 7. At any rate, neither our text nor that of SPP. (civåm råtrim anusūryam ca) seems to give any sense. Ppp. supports the mss.: civām rātrim ahni sūryam ca; the majority of the samhitā-mss. have civām rātrim ahi sū-, others anu for ahi (p. civām: rātrim: anuosūryam: ca); the comm. has rātrimahi, and understands it as rātri (voc.) mahi (= mahāntam, and qualifying sūryam!). [SPP. suggests civā rātrī mahī sūryac ca.] In b, Ppp. has yamasya. In c, nearly all the mss. read acvá (or acva) for asvá; and the pada-mss. treat it as an independent word; SPP. has asyá, with us. In d, a few mss. have vándye or vádye. Ppp. reads at the end vikṣu.

6. Our song of praise, O shining (vibhávan) night, like a king thou enjoyest; may we be having all heroes, may we become having all possessions, through (ánu) the out-shining dawns.

The mss. read at the end anūṣáṣaḥ (p. anuouṣáṣaḥ); SPP. emends as we had done. Ppp., in b, c, d, has joṣaṣī yathā nas sarvavīrā bh-. The verse is very ill described by the Anukr.; it is a good paūkti with one syllable wanting in c.

7. Pleasant names thou assumest: — whoso desire to damage my riches, them, O night, do thou burn continually, so that no thief be found, so that he be not found again.

The translation follows our text, which is considerably altered from that of the mss. All of them, with the comm. and SPP., have at the beginning camya, for which our ramya is, so far as the written form is concerned, a very easy emendation. The comm. explains: "thou wearest the name camya = catrucamanasamartha": one of his usual absurdities. Ppp. reads for a, b camya = catrucamanasamartha": one of his usual absurdities. Ppp. reads for a, b camya = catrucamanasamartha": one of his usual absurdities. Ppp. reads for a, b camya = catrucamanasamartha": There seems to be no good reason why camya = catrucamanasamartha all the mss. give cam = camya = catrucama and SPP. reads it. For c the cam = catrucama and SPP. reads it. For c the cam = catrucama is cam = catrucama and SPP. follows him, making a new cam = catrucama instead catrucama in cam = catrucama. The comm. explains cam = catrucama as either "burning their life-breaths" cam = catrucama or "badly burning" cam = catrucama. Ppp. gives no help, reading | for our c, d, e: it is not clear just how much of the reading is to be assigned to c] rātri hīrcāna sadamātasteno anvavidyate. Our emendation is fairly acceptable; but the ht which, with the imperative, hardly needs a separate word in translation requires that we accent anutapa. For our yāthā, in d and e, the mss. and SPP. give the first time yās and the second time yāt; the comm. both times yas; the meter and sense alike call for our emendation. Ppp. has for both pādas only ta steno anv avidyate, which might (see above) be understood as atas steno etc.].

8. Excellent art thou, O night, like a decorated bowl; thou bearest [as] maiden the whole form of kine; full of eyes, eager, [thou showest] me wondrous forms; thou hast put on (prati-muc) the stars of heaven (divyá).

Of this verse also the translation is a make-shift, following in part the mss. and in part our conjectural emendations. In a the only point of question is the last word, which the mss. read as sistas (so the majority) or cistas or vistas [etc.]; the comm. has visțas (= bhojanārtham parivistas). Ppp. gives the whole pāda as bhadrā 'si rātris tapaso nu visto. In b, nearly all the mss. give víçvam górūpam yuvatír | several have *-tlm | bibharşi (one has bibh-), and this the translation follows, alterations not seeming to supply a better sense. SPP., however, follows the comm. in offering visvan for viçvam (in samhitā he prints it incorrectly vişvam gó-, as if there were an assimilated final in the case); | but in his Corrections at the end of vol. iv. he duly notes the error; | he would hardly accept the comm's interpretation, = visuct (one gender for another); but how he would render it, it is hard to see. Ppp. reads viçvam gorupam yuvatid vibharsi, but another hand has written above -tir bibha-. In c, nearly all the mss. (including the comm's text, as stated by SPP.) leave me unchanged before uçati, and SPP. accepts it in his text, though against all rule and practice; two of our mss. have ma. All the authorities give cákṣuṣmatī, and this is followed by the comm. and SPP., and also by W. in the translation, therein departing from the emendation ('to me having eyes') of the Berlin ed.] Ppp. has for the pada caksusmatī ve yuvatī 'va rūpah. The translation supplies a verb, as seems necessary unless the text be still further altered. For d the general ms.-reading is práti tyắm divyt tákmā amukthāh (also tvám and tvá for tyám, and takmá: p. takmah or -máh); but the comm. offers práti tvám divyá ná kṣām amukthāh, and this SPP. accepts | accenting thus | and prints. Ppp. has pratyām dityām divyām arukṣam amugdhaḥ. The comm's version of the text is senseless, and his attempt to put meaning into it very absurd; it might suggest práti tvám divyå náksatrany amukthah. Our text ought to accent táraka am-, if the reading is admitted.

9. What thief shall come today, [what] malicious mortal villain, may night, going to meet him, smite away the neck, [away] the head of him;—

The two following pādas [10 a, b] evidently belong to this verse rather than to verse 10; but our division is that of the mss. and the Anukr., and so is adopted also by SPP. The comm. inserts another line after our 9 a, b: yo mama rātri surūpa āyati sa sampisto apāyati; and then he divides the four lines that follow into two verses of four pādas each, giving eleven verses to the whole hymn. The majority of mss. accent martyás in b. The comm. reads harat for hanat at the end. Ppp. has yu dya stenā yutv aghāyu mrtyo ripuh; and, in d, pra gīyasva pra. Pāda a is the a of iv. 3. 5, [of which the b recurs here as the second pāda of the comm's inserted line and also as the fourth pāda of our vs. 10].

10. [Away] his feet, that he may not go; [away] his hands, that he may not harm.

What marauder shall approach, may he go away all crushed; may he go away, may he go well away; may he go away in a dry place (?).

At the end of b, the majority of mss. read yátháçiṣah, which all the pada-mss. resolve into yáthā : áçiṣah; [most of] the rest, and SPP., give yáthá 'çiṣat; the comm. yathā "çliṣat (= samçleṣayet). Ppp. offers pra pādāu na yat āhataṣ pra hastāu na yanā-çiṣat. In e, the pada-mss. compound suodpāyati, doubtless wrongly; [read as pada-text sú : ápa : ayati]. All the mss., the comm., and SPP., give in f sthāṇāú, and the comm. explains it as = çākhopaçākhārahitavṛkṣamūla āçraye. After it, the mss. have apāyataḥ (p. apaodyataḥ), but the comm. agrees with us in ápā 'yati, and SPP. accordingly also adopts it. The translation follows throughout the emendations of our text; perhaps, in f, sthāne would be better than sthale, as more closely resembling the ms. reading. We are deprived of the help of Ppp. upon the point, as it skips from apāyati in e to tṛṣṭadhūmam in 50. I a; for c, d, it had yo mulalam sulapāyati sa sampiṣṭyo upāyati. We had d above as iv. 3. 5 b; [cf. the end of the note to vs. 9].

50. To night: for protection.

[As 47. — saptakam.]

Follows also in Pāipp. xiv. our hymn 49. Has the same liturgical use as hymn 49. Translated: Ludwig, p. 465; Griffith, ii. 307.

1. Do thou, O night, make the snake blind, harsh-smoked, headless; smite out the eyes of the wolf; cast the thief into the snare.

This verse is nearly identical with that translated as 47. 8 above (8 c, d and 9 a, b of the printed text). As there, the mss. have at the beginning ándha, which SPP., with the comm., changes to ádha; and all, in c, d, have ntr jahyās téna* táni [or tváni] drupadé jahi in a manne analogous with the reading there. [The translation implies the division ntr jahyā...jahi: cf. my note to 47.8.] [Apart from some less important variants,] the mss. are divided, as often in such cases, between akṣāu and akṣyāu, and SPP. chooses the worse, akṣāu; our akṣyāu is alone defensible. Ppp. omits (see note to 49. 10) the first two words, and reads, as at 47. 8, tiṣṭadhūmam; [it begins the second line with hano vṛkaṣya and ends it (as above) with nṛpate jahi; what the intervening words are is not clear from Roth's Collation]. [Meantime Bloomfield kindly informs me that Ppp. reads the line thus: hano vṛkaṣya nir jahyā tvāinam nṛpate jahi: this gives no support for a jahyās (see note to 47.8); but the tvāinam obviously stands in some relation to the dvāinam of the Ppp. reading at 47.8, which is jambhayādvāinam.] * The pada-reading is nth: jahyāḥ: téna.

- 2. What draft-oxen thou hast, O night, sharp-horned, very swift, with them do thou today pass us always $(vicvah\bar{a})$ over difficulties.
- SPP. follows the mss. in the false accent the sna- in b. In c, d, he reads pārayā 'ti with us and with the comm. (also with Ppp.), but against the mss., most of which have pārayaty áti. In b, Ppp. gives -crāgyāçvāsavah.
- 3. May we pass (tr) night after night receiving no harm with ourselves (tanva); may the niggards fail to pass [it], as men without boats a deep [water].

Or tanvā belongs to tarema. The comm., against the accent and the sense, takes drisyantas as a future participle (= gamisyantas)! Ppp. reads in c, d apravāyuṣam na tarehur ar-.

4. As the millet-seed, flying forth, blowing away, is not found, so, O night, make him fly forth who is malicious against us.

The mss. read in a mostly çāmyākas (so the comm. and SPP.), also çyāmyākas and çyāmākas; and have prapātan or prāpatan, with other chance variations; and in b, apavān (p. apavān) or -vām; in respect to this word, the translation [taking it as present participle of apa-vā] follows them rather than our emendation aparām. None of the mss. accent na, but SPP. ventures [with the Berlin ed.] to emend the reading. At the beginning of c, the mss. all have etāv ā [several ā] (p. etāú:ā); the comm. and SPP. (also Ppp.) agree with our evā. The majority of mss. have at the end -yānti. Ppp. has in a, b sānyākas prapatante divām nā nu-; in d it combines yo smān.

5. Thou didst make the thief stay away, and the kine-driving robber, also him who, haltering the courser's head, tries to lead it [away].

The pada-mss. strangely read at the beginning apáh; the rest | save one of SPP's, p.m., which has dpa | accent apa; SPP., as well as our text, emends to dpa, which the comm. also understands. All the mss. have vasas, and the comm., and SPP.; our avāsayas is a bold emendation, but makes both good meter and good sense. Ppp. gives no help: apa stedam vāsamatham. In b, SPP. follows the comm. in reading goajam; most of the mss. give gor ajam, but a part gorajas (p. gorajah! but one ms. go 'jah or goojah: that is go and jah with avagraha-sign between |, corrected to godjah). Ppp. reads gotham. The comm. absurdly takes goajám as a copulative compound, = gā ajānç ca, and makes it and vāsas objects of ninisati. The translation implies rather SPP's text than ours [that is goajám rather than gór ájam, I suppose]. [At the end, the ninesati of the Berlin text is doubtless to be corrected to ninesati (cf. the stems in W's Roots, Verb-forms, etc., p. 233-4): ninīṣati is read by Ppp., by W's O.D.I., and (since he reports nothing to the contrary) by all of SPP's authorities. From the Index Verborum and from the Roots (p. 91) it would appear that W's later judgment rejected the ninesati of the text and some mss., though he has overlooked the matter here. The desiderative | so distinctly calls for a prefix that one is tempted further to emend átho in c to ápa.

6. When, O well-portioned night, thou comest today, sharing out what is good, [then] make us to enjoy that, that it go not away.

The translation follows our text, which is very different from that of the mss. and SPP. Our adyā in a implies adyā ā (ā . . . dyas), which all the pada-mss. have, while SPP., with the comm., treats it as only adyā with the final lengthened by the usual Vedic license. In b all the mss. accent vt bhajanti [p. vt: bhajanti]; SPP. emends to vi-bhājanti, while our text means vibhājantī. The comm. understands -nti [supplying catravas as subject], and takes dyas after it as the noun, 'metal' (ayomayam vastu); to us dyas is verb. [Ppp. has vasuh at end of b.] In c the mss., the comm., and SPP., begin with yād; we have emended it to tād. For d, most mss. have yāthe 'dām nā 'nupāyāsi (p. anuopāyāsi); but one -yāti, one -dānyānu-; SPP. follows the comm. and prints yāthē 'd anyān upāyasi (p. upaoāyasi), but in a note conjectures yāthē 'd anyān no 'pāyati' that it go not unto others,' which is very acceptable, as giving a good sense with less alteration of the original text than our version requires. Ppp. is wholly corrupt: yathed yasmā nitājaya yathed anyān upāyatī; but the last pāda favors SPP's conjecture.

7. Unto the dawn, O night, do thou commit us all, free from guilt; may the dawn bestow $(\bar{a}$ -bhaj) us on the day, the day on thee, O shining one.

The comm., two of SPP's reciters, and Ppp., read in c bhajat. Compare the verse 48. 2, above [and MB. i. 5. 15, there cited].

51. Accompanying acceptance (?).

[Brahman.— dve. 1. ātmadevatyā; 2. sāvitrī. 1. 1-p. brāhmy anuṣṭubh; 2. 3-p. yavamadhyo 'ṣṇih (1, 2. 1-av.).]

[Prose.] Both the "verses" of this hymn are quoted in Kāuç. 91. 3, in the madhuparka ceremony, accompanying acceptance (prati-grah) of the offering. The second verse contains a formula very often used in the liturgical literature,* and this formula, as far as hastābhyām, occurs several times in Kāuç., given in full, and not to be regarded as having anything to do with the verse here; the same is the case with the use of the formula in Vāit. 3.9. There is nothing to correspond to the hymn in Pāipp. *[An idea of its frequency may be gained from the array of citations (fourscore or more) given by Knauer in his Index to MGS., p. 151 a. See the table on p. 896, and cf. p. 896, end.]

Translated: Griffith, ii. 308.

1. Unrepelled (?dyuta) am I, unrepelled my soul, unrepelled my sight, unrepelled my hearing, unrepelled my breath, unrepelled my expiration, unrepelled my out-breathing, unrepelled the whole of me.

We unfortunately lack the comm's interpretation of dyuta, there being a lacuna in the ms. at this point; SPP. supplies sampūrņa, it does not appear on what authority, but certainly without the least particle of plausibility. [The count of the Anukr. (48 syllables) implies restoration of all the elided a's.]

2. In the impulse of the heavenly impeller (savitý), with the arms of the Açvins, with the hands of Pūshan, I, impelled, take hold of thee.

To render (in the first clause) 'of god Savitar' would hide the word-play between prasava and savitr. The syllables (if the a of açvinos is restored) count 10 + 11 + 6 = 27: a pretty poor usnih.

52. Of and to desire (káma).

[Brahman. — pañcakam. mantroktakāmadāivatam. trāistubham. 3.4-p. uṣṇih; 5. upariṣṭād-bṛhatī.]

Faund also in Pāipp. i. Used * in Kāuç. 6. 37, with xix. 59, at the very end of the sections on the parvan-ceremony (hence perhaps a later addition?), to appease the fuel, in case there has been an omission of the due ceremony; again, in 45. 17 (with iii. 29. 7; vi. 71; vii. 67), after the end of the vaçāçamana ceremony (also here a later addition?), to accompany the acceptance of something; once more, in 68. 29, in the savayajāas, with the acceptance of the sacrificial gifts (?sadakṣiṇam); and the Paddhati (note to Kāuç. 79. 28) adds it at the end of the chapter of marriage ceremonies. The comm. notes the Kāuç. uses, but not the Paddh. one; and he adds one application, from Pariç. 10. 1, of this hymn with the two following and xix. 6 (the puruṣasūkta), in the rite of presenting a golden image of the earth. *[See table on p. 896.]

Translated: Griffith, ii. 309. — Cf. ix. 2, above.

1. Desire here came into being (sam-vṛt) in the beginning, which was the first seed of mind; O desire, being of one origin with great desire, do thou impart abundance of wealth to the sacrificer.

The first half-verse is nearly identical with RV. x. 129. 4 a, b [TB. ii. 4. 110; 8. 94; TA. i. 23. 1], which differ only by adding ádhi at end of a; the word is missed in our verse both for sense and for meter. Our text omits * at beginning of c a sá (sá kāma) that is in both these respects superfluous; it is found, however, also in Ppp. The comm. explains kāmena bṛhatā to mean mahatā deçakālavastuparicchedarahitena kāmayitrā parameçvarena. The last pāda is xviii. 1. 43 d. * And so accents kāma.

2. Thou, O desire, art set firm with power, mighty, shining (vibhavan), companion for him who seeks a companion; do thou, formidable, overpowering in fights, impart power [and] force to the sacrificer.

The second pāda nearly corresponds with RV. x. 91. 1 d, which, however, reads suṣākhā sakhīyatē. The authorities give sakha ā sakhīyatē (or -te); and the padamss. make the very blundering division viobhāu: āosakhe: ā: sakh-. [The comm. understands sakhīyatē (not as dative pple, but) as finite verb-form (3d sing., which would have to be accentless: he says bhavacchabdādhyāhāreṇa prathamapuruṣah.] SPP. follows the comm. in reading vibhāvā sakha ā [SPP's pada-text is vibhāovā: sakhe:ā]; but he disagrees with the comm. by [making a participle of] sakhīyatē, which he accents. The translation implies sākhā, i.e. sākhā ā. [We have ā with the denominative cravasyāt at RV. v. 37. 3; but with the pple, ā seems very strange; nor do I see how W. meant to take it. One is tempted to fall back on the RV. reading suṣākhā: the more so, inasmuch as Ppp. presents the RV. reading suṣākhā. In d, Ppp. has soho 'jo yaj-.

3. To him that desired from afar, that trembled on at the inexhaustible—the places $(dq\bar{q})$ listen to him; by desire they generated heaven.

It is of no consequence how this verse, especially the first half, is rendered; it is nothing but corrupt nonsense. The degree of its corruption may be seen by comparing it with the corresponding verse in TA. iii. 15. 1: sadyáç cakamānāya pravepanāya [Poona ed., -vepān-] mṛṭyáve: prā 'smā āçā açṛṇvan kāmenā 'janayan pūnah; neither version is translatable. The majority of authorities read in b pravipānāyākṣayé [or -ākṣaye] (the pada-readings are, for the first part, praviopānāya, and, for the second, āokṣayé or āokṣaye or āokṣaye); but some have pratipānāya [the lingual n of which seems to betray the ti as a corruption for vi] and praripānāya. The comm. understands pratipānāya and akṣaye, and SPP. follows him, accenting pratipānāya and dkṣaye, and reading in pada-text pratiopānāya (as if that would or could become in samhitā-text-pāṇ-!); with his usual carelessness, the comm. takes -pāṇāya, in spite of its n, from root pā (= sarvatorakṣaṇāyā 'bhimataphalaprāpaṇāya: the latter equivalent looks as if he also saw something of pra-āp in it!). Ppp. has in b pratipāṇāyākṣe, in c āsmā 'çṛṇvann, and in d -janayat saha. The translation implies in b pravipāṇāyā' 'kṣaye. The Anukr. apparently scans the verse as 7 + 7: 7 + 7 = 28.

4. By desire hath desire come to me, out of heart to heart; the mind that is theirs yonder, let that come unto me here.

In TA. (iii. 15. 2) a corresponding verse follows the one quoted under vs. 3: kāmena me kāma ā 'gād dhṛdayād dhṛdayam mṛtyóh: yád amīṣām adáh priyám tád āt 'tū 'pa mām abht. SPP. has the same text as we, both deviating in d from the mss., which leave upa unaccented (p. upaomām); [but SPP's R. has úpa mām and the comm. also takes upa mām as two words]. Ppp. combines kāmā "gan in a.

5. Desiring what, O desire, we make to thee this oblation, let that all succeed with us; then eat $(v\bar{\imath})$ thou of this oblation: hail!

The verse is found, [cited by pratika at Kāuç. 92. 30, and] written in full [sakala-pātha] at 92. 31, prescribed for use at the end of the madhuparka ceremony.* SPP. gives the same text as we; the mss. leave krnmási unaccented in b, and most of them accent to after it. At the beginning, all the pada-mss. [except possibly L., of which no note is made] very strangely read yátokāmah, though no samhitā-mss. have kāmah; [with the support of the latter, as also of the comm. and of Ppp., both ed's read yát kāma]. *[See p. 897, \P 3.]

53. Praise of time (kālá).

[Bhṛgu. — daçakam. mantroktasarvātmakakāladevatyam. ānuṣṭubham: 1-4. triṣṭubh; 5. nicṛt purastādbṛhatī.]

This hymn and the following, which (as even the Anukr. Lcf. introd. to h. 56] points out) are only two divided parts of one hymn, occur also in Pāipp. xiv. and xii. (53. 1-6 in xiv.; 53. 7 to 54. 6 in xii.). They are translated together by Muir, Ludwig, Scherman, and Bloomfield. As kālasūkta, they are used by Pariç. 10. 1 in connection with the preceding hymn (kāmasūkta): see under that hymn.

Translated: Muir, v. 407; Ludwig, p. 191; Scherman, Philosophische Hymnen, p. 78; Grill, 73, 193; Deussen, Geschichte, i. 1. 210; Griffith, ii. 309; Bloomfield, 224, 681. — Cf. also Monier-Williams, Indian Wisdom 3, p. 25; Hillebrandt, Veda-Chrestomathie, p. 41. — The epic kāla-verses are in rather a different vein: cf. Böhtlingk, Ind. Sprüche, 1688-1709, 3193-6; Hopkins, in AJP. xx. 25, etc.

I. Time $(k\bar{a}l\acute{a})$ drives (vah) [as] a horse with seven reins, thousand-eyed, unaging, possessing much seed; him the inspired poets mount; his wheels are all beings $(bh\acute{u}vana)$.

The 'wheels' in d show that the 'mounting' in c is not on the back of the horse, but on the chariot drawn by him. Ppp. combines in a kālo 'çvo v-, and reads in b akṣaras, and in c vipaçyatas. There is nothing at all noteworthy in the exposition of the comm. In d, read cakrāni?

2. Seven wheels doth this time drive; seven [are] his naves, immortality (amṛta) forsooth [his] axle; he, time, including (?) all these beings, goes on as first god.

The principal difficulty is here in the third pāda, where our arvān (though accepted by all the translators without any heed to the ms.-readings given at the foot of the page) is a very bold and questionable emendation, most of the mss. (with the comm. the ms. has anjan* and SPP.) giving instead anjat, a few anjat, and some of ours anyat or ayat (evidently accidental and unimportant variations); Ppp. has anjan [i.e. bhuvanānyanjan]; arvān is not to be accepted as at all satisfactory, much less authoritative; it is no proper antithesis to pratyān † in 3 c, nor construable with the accusative. The translation, for a venture, implies bhūvanā nyanjān, evolving a sense for nyanjān out of nyākta 'inherent'; it may pass for what it is worth. All the mss., and SPP., read in a cakrān [and so does Ppp.]; the comm. has cakrā 'nu vahati. The redundancy of syllables in d could be easily remedied either by omitting the superfluous sā (left out in the translation) or by reading īrte for īyate [or by reading sē "yate with double samdhi as Ppp. suggests]. Ppp. reads kāle sāiyyate. The comm. has in b amṛtam tanv akṣah. [For the nú of d, the ms. of the comm. has in fact u.] *[The comm. has in one place anjat, explained as anjan; and, in another, the ms. of the comm. has (as noted) anjan, which SPP. prints as anjat = prerayan!

†[It is a curious fact that Whitney here anticipates and parries the very argument in favor of the Roth-Whitney emendation $arv \hat{a}\bar{n}$ which Bloomfield later adduces, SBE. xlii. 684. W. may have written this in 1893 or thereabouts. Bl's translation appeared in 1897.]

3. A full vessel is set upon time; we indeed see it, being now manifoldly; it [is] in front of all these beings; it call they time in the highest firmament (vyòman).

[For '[is] in front of' W. interlines the alternative 'faces toward.'] All the mss. [save W's P.: santúh] read at end of b santás, and SPP. retains it, without even changing its false accent; the comm. glosses it with satpuruṣās, or, in an alternative explanation, with sadrūpabrahmopāsakās. Our emendation to sántam is supported by Ppp., which gives ni santam. We also emend the páçyāmas of the mss. (and SPP.) to paçy. Ppp. combines in a to adhi kālā "hitas, and reads in c pratyam. The highly obscure 'full vessel' is thus illuminated (?) by the comm.: pūrṇaḥ sarvatra vyāptaḥ kumbhaḥ kumbhavat kumbho 'horātramāsartusamvatsarādirūpo 'vacchinno janyaḥ kālaḥ.

4. He indeed together brought beings; he indeed together went about (pari-i) beings; being father, he became son of them; than him verily there is no other brilliancy that is higher (pára).

The position of sám in a and in b is so strange that we are tempted to emend both times to sán 'being'; * one pada-ms. reads sán in a, but this can count for nothing. The comm's exposition omits sám in a [there seems to be a gap in the ms.], but duly treats it (samyak parigacchati) in b. Ppp. reads in b sa yava sam pariyāiḥ. [With c (pitā...putrás), cf. the note to 54.3 a.] The Anukr. takes no notice of the metrical irregularities. *[In that case, perhaps we might render sá evá by 'the same.']

5. Time generated yonder sky, time also these earths; what is and what is to be stands out sent forth by time.

SPP. reads in a amūm with a small minority of the authorities, and with the comm.; Ppp. also has it, combining 'mūm'. For b, Ppp. gives kālāi 'mām prthivīm uta. In c, our kālēna was an emendation, for the kālē ha* of the mss. (which SPP. follows); we find the former now supported by Ppp. In d, the mss. have havis (p. havih) for ha vi; the text of SPP. follows us in emending to the latter, which the comm. also gives; Ppp. reads (ca) esatam ha vi ti. The metrical definition of the Anukr. is not to be approved. *[Probably a faulty assimilation to the reading of vs. 6 c.]

6. Time created the earth; in time burns (tap) the sun; in time [are] all existences; in time the eye looks abroad.

Our bhūmim in a is an emendation for the bhūtim of the mss.: SPP. accepts bhūtim; the comm. explains it as = bhavanavaj jagat. Ppp. reads bhūtam asrjat; it also omits ha in c.

7. In time is mind, in time is breath, in time is name collected (sam- \bar{a} -dh \bar{a}); by time, when arrived, all these creatures (praja) are glad (nand).

This and the remaining three verses of the hymn are found in Ppp. xii., with the following hymn, without any [real] variants in the four verses.

8. In time is fervor, in time is what is chief, in time is the bráhman collected; time is the lord (īçvará) of all, who was father of Prajāpati.

All the pada-mss. except one, resolve pitāsīt in d into pitā: āsīt; SPP. reads āsīt. In spite of the repetition of kālé between, jyéṣṭham and bráhma may be conjectured to belong together: cf. x. 7. 24, 32-34; xi. 5. 5, 23. [Note that the usual RV. accent is jyéṣṭha, and that the usual AV. accent is jyéṣṭha; and that AV. has the RV. accent only in books xix. and xx. and in a RV. passage, at v. 2. 1.]

9. Sent by it, born by it, in it is this (tát) set firm; time, becoming the bráhman, bears the most exalted one.

We should expect janitam 'generated' in a. The comm. understands isitam as istam or kāmitam.

10. Time generated progeny, time in the beginning Prajāpati; the self-existent Kaçyapa from time, fervor from time was born.

The comm. identifies $Ka_{\xi}yapa$ with the eighth sun as taught in TA. i. 7. I. [Cf. Bloomfield's remarks, at AJP. xvii. 403, on the $ka_{\xi}yapah$ pa_{\text{yapah}} ba_{\text{vako}} bhavati of TA. i. 8. 8.] Ppp. combines in b $k\bar{a}lo$ 'gre.

54. Praise of time.

[Bhṛgu etc. (as 53). — pañcakam. 2. 3-p. ārṣī gāyatrī; 5 \ 5 and 6 of the Berlin ed.]. 3-av. 6-p. virād aṣṭi.]

Properly a part of the same hymn with the preceding, and found with vss. 7-10 of the latter in Pāipp. xii. See under hymn 53.

Translated: Muir, v. 409; Ludwig, p. 191; Scherman, Philosophische Hymnen, p. 80; Deussen, Geschichte, i. 1. 212; Griffith, ii. 311; Bloomfield, 225, 687. — As to the verse-division, see under vss. 2 and 5, and SPP's Critical Notice, vol. i., p. 24.

1. From time came into being the waters; from time [came] the brahman, fervor, the quarters; by time the sun rises; in time he goes to rest (ni-viç) again.

All the mss. save two of SPP's read abhavat at end of a; SPP. also as well as the Berlin ed. gives -an, with the comm., and with Ppp. In b, the comm. reads vratatapas for brahma tapas.

2. [Comm's 2 a, b, c.] By time the wind cleanses (pavate); by time the earth [is] great; the great sky in time [is] set.

A part of the verse is lost in Ppp. The comm. adds the first two pādas of our vs. 3 to this one, and makes then the three remaining verses of four pādas each. This makes a decidedly better division, so far as the sense is concerned; but the mss., the Anukr., and SPP. agree in the division given in our text (except as regards vs. 6), and it is accordingly retained here.

3. [Comm's 2 d, e.] Time, [their] son, generated of old what is and what is to be. [Comm's 3 a, b.] From time the verses $(\hat{r}c)$ came into being; the sacrificial formula $(y \acute{a} j u s)$ was born from time;—

In the first half-verse, the translation follows the mss. [they read kāló and putro], rather than our emendations [kālé* and mántro], which seem more venturesome than there is reason for; and departs from them only in assuming at the end purā, instead of púras, as the mss. in general read (purā is accepted by both editions, and is supported apparently by Ppp., and to a certain degree by one of SPP's mss. which has púrā). Perhaps púnah [which Whitney's I. actually has] is a yet more plausible substitute for púrah. Ppp. has kālena bhūtam janayat: [so Roth's Collation: I take it to mean "kālena bhūtam in a and janayat in b"]; and the comm. also has at the beginning kālena [which he glosses with pitrā prerakena: cf. his putras in b, and cf. 53. 4 c]; and at the end of b he seems to have read puras [the word does not actually appear], since he gives purastāt for explanation. In c, part of the mss. have abhavat. *[As kāló is given by all the mss. collated by W. before publication, kālé was indeed an emendation; but some of SPP's authorities do have kālé.]

4. [Comm's 3 c, d.] Time set in motion (sam-īr) the sacrifice, an unexhausted portion for the gods. [Comm's 4 a, b.] In time are set firm the Gandharvas-and-Apsarases; in time the worlds;—

In a, the translation implies $k\bar{a}l\dot{a}s$, with all the authorities, but $\bar{a}irayat$, against nearly all of them; the comm. gives $\bar{a}irayat$ and SPP. accepts it; [and it is supported by his ms. P. (which has $\bar{a}irayan$, p.m., corrected to $\bar{a}irayat$) and by Ppp's $\bar{t}rayat$]. Ppp. reads $k\bar{a}lo\ yaj\bar{n}o\ sam\ trayat$, and has at the end $sam\bar{a}hit\bar{a}h$.

[5 and 6 of Berlin ed. = 5 of Bombay ed.] [Comm's 4 c, d.] Upon time stand this heavenly Angiras and Atharvan. [Comm's 5 a, b.] Both this world and the highest world, and the pure (púnya) worlds and the pure separations—[6 of Berlin ed.: Comm's 5 c, d.] all worlds by the bráhman having conquered, this time goes on as highest god.

Verses 5 and 6 of our edition are here combined into one, on the authority of the Anukr. and part of the mss., and in accordance with SPP. Of the mss. compared by us before printing, all made a sixth verse of the last two pādas. In a, the mss. read $k\bar{a}l\ell\gamma 4m$ [W's O. has $k\bar{a}le\gamma 4m$] (p. $k\bar{a}le\gamma 4m$ or $k\bar{a}l\ell\gamma 4m$) [SPP's pada-ms. Cp., here unaccented, has $k\bar{a}le\gamma 4m$]; SPP. emends the pada-text to $k\bar{a}l\ell$: ayam, but strangely presents a samhitā-text inconsistent with this, namely $k\bar{a}l\ell$ 'yam, instead of $k\bar{a}l\ell$ 'yam, as our edition reads. All the mss. read $div\delta$ 'th- in a-b (p. $div\delta h$), but SPP., on authority of the comm., emends to $dev\delta$ 'th-, and the translation follows this; Ppp. also reads $dev\delta$ 'th-. [At the end of b, the comm. reads tisthati.] In d a number of the mss. give vldhrtinc (ca; the obscure word is passed over lightly by the comm., who simply glosses it with lokadharakan. The last pāda is identical with 53. 2 d, [save that it has $param\delta$ where 53. 2 d has $pratham\delta$], and Ppp. combines, as there, $s\bar{a}iyyate$. The most natural count of syllables (8+8:11+11:11+12=61) comes three short of a full asti: Lthe jagati cadence of e suggests that something is missing (read sárvānç ca lo-?) in that pāda; and f is to be read (like 53.2 d, with Ppp. double samdhi) as 11 syllables |.

[Here ends the sixth anuvāka, with 9 hymns, and with 63 verses as they are numbered by the Berlin text and summed up by certain mss.; but the Anukr. counts 9 and 5 verses (instead of 10 and 6) in hymns 47 and 54 respectively, which makes the sum 61 instead of 63.]

55. To Agni.

[Bhṛgu. — ṣadṛcam. āgneyam. trāiṣṭubham: 2. āstārapañkti; 5 Li.e. 5 and 6 a, b of the Berlin ed.]. 3-av. 5-p. purastājjyotiṣmatī.] LOf 6 (= 6 c, d, 7 a, b of Berlin ed.), the definition is lacking: see my note to vs. 6.]

Only the first verse is found in Pāipp. (in xx.). The comm. points out that the hymn is plainly meant to be used in the early morning worship of Agni, but quotes no authority. LAs to a seventh verse, see SPP's Critical Notice, vol. i., p. 24, and see under vss. 5 and 7.

Translated: Ludwig, p. 363; Griffith, ii. 312.

1. Night after night bringing to him without mixture, as fodder to a horse that stands, let not us, O Agni, thy neighbors, receive harm, reveling with abundance of wealth, with food (15).

The verse corresponds nearly with VS. xi. 75, also with a verse in TS. iv. 1. 101 and MS. ii. 7. 7. VS. begins a with ahar-ahar (but CB. vi. 6. 41 [like KCS. xvi. 6. 2] gives a pratīka with rātrīm-rātrīm instead), TS. reads with us, and MS. has rātrīm-rātrīm and repeats the pratika at iii. 1. 9, p. 1212]. At end of b, all have asmāi unaccented. In d, all put agne at the beginning, 'gne må te prati-. In a, all the authorities have aprayatam | an isolated -tum counts for nothing |, and so has the text of the comm., according to SPP., who prints aprayatam. But the comm. in his explanation has aprayāvam, which he glosses by apracchidya or sāmtatyena | which harmonizes well with the sádam it of iii. 15.8 a |; | the six Yajus texts just cited (both verses and pratikas) all read aprayavam, on which the Berlin emendation * rests |. | Weber, Ind. Stud. xvii. 251, cites K. xvi. 7 as reading rātrīm-rātrīm, with the rest as in VS.; and Knauer, Index to MGS., p. 155, adds K. xix. 10 and Kap. S. xxx. 8. The second half of our iii. 15.8 above agrees precisely with our c,d here; the first half differs a good deal, [having for a viçvaha te sadam to bharema, and ending b with jatavedah instead of ghasam asmāi |. Ppp. has in a aprayāmam, at end of b agne for asmāi (as in our vs. 7), and in d 'gnāi mā te pr- (intending the same as the Yajus texts).

*[Griffith's version of aprayāvam is 'with care unceasing' (AV.VS.); and Eggeling's is 'unremittingly' (CB.); so also W. at iii. 5. I (see the note); and in his Roots he connects -yāvam only with root yu 'separate'; one does not see why he departs from that here: nevertheless, the sense 'mix' is well avouched for the root yu 'unite' with pra by JUB. i. 8, yathā madhunā lājān prayuyād evam (see JAOS. xvi. 88 and 228).—I may add in the proof that even the Anukr. reads aprayātam, but that the Yajus readings, and the sādam it (W. 'constantly') of iii. 15. 8, seem to place the Berlin emendation beyond doubt: and that the Ppp. reading aprayucchan at iii. 5. I helps to establish for the Vulgate not only the form aprayāvam as gerund, but also the meaning 'without being careless' or 'unremittingly' as against 'without mixing.']

2. Of thee that art good what arrow [is] in the wind, this is that of thine; therewith be gracious to us. Let not us, O Agni, thy neighbors, receive harm, reveling with abundance of wealth, with food.

The translation follows the text of the mss. rather than our emendations, as the latter afford no more satisfactory sense than does the former. Several authorities, however, read yāta instead of vāta (one has vāca; one iṣuḥ, two eṣuḥ; [and so on]): the padamss. divide vātaḥ: iṣuḥ: sā. The comm's text has iṣa; but how his explanation is related to the text is hard to see: he agne vāsakasya tava yā 'nugrahabuddhir annapradasya yā cā 'nugrahabuddhis tayā 'smān sukhaya; that is all.

3. Evening after evening [is] Agni our house-lord; morning after morning [is he] giver of well-willing; be thou giver of good to us of every kind; may we, kindling thee, adorn (pus) ourselves.

The third pāda is literally 'of good thing after good thing be thou giver of good.' The pada-mss. divide vasuodānah: edhi instead of vasuodāh: nah: edhi, as is implied by our text; the meter makes us suspect that the true original reading was vasudāno na edhi. The fourth pāda is v. 3. 1 b etc. (see under that verse). [Cf. vs. 4.]

4. Morning after morning [is] Agni our house-lord; evening after evening [is he] giver of well-willing; be thou giver of good to us of every kind; kindling thee, may we thrive (rdh) a hundred winters.

In d the mss. read çatámhimās (p. çatámohimāḥ); the comm. takes it as two words, çatam himās, [ignoring the accent]. [With pāda d, cf. RV. i. 64. 14 d.] [Cf. vs. 3.]

5. May I be one not falling short of food; to the food-eating lord of food, to Agni [as] Rudra be homage.

Here also there is discordance as to the verse-division; the Anukr. | and comm. | further add to vs. 5 what in our edition is 6 a, b, and then make one verse of what remains of the hymn; and SPP. follows them. The translation adheres to our text (which represents all the mss. till that time known to us), especially because its division seems better suited to the sense. At the beginning, all the authorities, and SPP., have apaçcādagdhānnasya, divided by the pada-text into apaçcā: dagdhaoannasya (or -gdhaoan); but Whitney's W. has daghānt-; his M. has dagdhvānn-; and his P. has dagghvānt- or possibly dagdhvānt, it is not clear which: at any rate, in P. and M. there is a v before the ā; | the comm. understands apaçcādag dhā 'nnasya, and solemnly explains it as meaning: annasyā 'paçcā[dagdhā] paçcādbhāge 'dagdhā sthālīprsthabhāge dagdhānnarahitah! The correctness of our conjectural emendation to apaçcādaghvā 'nnasya is put beyond question by the occurrence of a corresponding phrase, apaçcāddaghvā 'nnam bhūyāsam, in MS. iii. 9. 4, p. 12017, and also in Ap. vii. 28. 2.* Part of the mss. accent bhūyāsām. In b, all SPP's authorities | save one |, and most of ours, give annādayo'nn-(variously accented: p. annaoadáyah), apparently a case of misunderstanding of āyā as yo after the Bengālī method of writing o; † but two of our mss., P.M., have annādāyā 'nn-, which is the reading of our text; the comm. likewise understands -daya, and SPP. also accepts it in his text.

* The phrase d-paçcād-daghvane náre occurs at RV. vi. 42. 1; TB. iii. 7. 106; Āp. xiv. 29. 2; compare apaçcā-daghvane naraḥ at SV. i. 352, ii. 790. It may be worth noting that the comm. to TB. brings the epithet into connection with food, explaining the phrase as 'a man devoid of brightness (i.e. dull) after his meal, unable to digest what he has eaten,' paçcād bhakṣottarakālam dīptirahitāya, bhakṣitam jarayitum asamarthāya. He seems to connect a-..-daghvan (= dīptirahita) with dah; but BR. and W., with Sāyaṇa on RV., derive it from dagh: cf. RV. i. 123. 5 c; vii. 56. 21 b.] † [Cf. SPP's notes to xviii. 4. 48; xix. 32. 10; 48. 1; 56. 3.]

6. O thou of the assembly, protect my assembly (sabhā), and [them] who are of the assembly, sitters in the assembly; having much invoked thee, O Indra, may they attain their whole life-time.

The translation is to be taken simply for what it is worth, as it does not follow the mss., nor either printed text. At the beginning, the mss. [except several of W's, which have the impossible sabhyá], SPP., and the comm., read sabhyás, which might well enough have been left by us unchanged, save for accent (viii. 10. 5 sábhyás). But the mss. read sabhyás again later [save two of W's, which have sabhyás]; this time SPP. emends to sabhyás (should be sábhyās, with us?), since the comm. has this. In c, the mss. in general give tvám indrā (or indrā) puruhūtya (p. puruohūtya); the comm's text offers tvām [his exposition: tvam] indra puruhūta; and SPP. adopts tvám indrā (p. indra) puruhūta; our conjecture, tváyé'd gắh puruhūta, seems too violent, and the translation implies tvām indra puruhūya, with açnavan at the end, while the mss., and SPP., have açnavat (the comm. has the same, unblushingly explaining it as = prāpaya, a mere substitution of one person for another!), and our text emended to -vam, an ungrammatical but not wholly unprecedented form. [The London ms. of the Anukr. adds as the pratīka of its vs. 6 tvam indrā puruhūtye'ti (our 6 c: note the reading), but gives no metrical definition: the Berlin ms. does not even give the pratīka.]

7. Day after day taking tribute to thee, O Agni, as fodder to a horse that stands [, let not us, O Agni, thy neighbors, receive harm, reveling with abundance of wealth, with food (15)].

None of the mss. have the second half-verse; it was added because it seemed called for by the first half, as in vss. I and 2. That the comm. and part of the mss., and so also SPP., in agreement with the Anukr., make only six verses in the hymn, was explained above under vs. 5. A majority of the mss. accent bálim in a (including all those used by us before publication), and so the error has got into our text; SPP. has correctly balim; some leave hárantas without accent; the comm. and a ms. or two have ttye for tt te (= prāptavye gṛhe vartamānāyā ʾgnaye, comm.). All the mss. have in b jātám instead of ghāsám; but the comm. has the latter, and it is therefore read in SPP's text as well as in ours.

56. To sleep (or dream).

[Yama. - saṭkam. dāuṣvapnyam. trāiṣṭubham.]

Found also in Pāipp. iii. The comm. quotes no authority as to the viniyoga, but points out that the hymn is shown by its content to belong to the ceremony for getting rid of duhsvapna 'evil-dreaming.' He holds, namely, throughout the hymn, that svapna means duhsvapna (in the Atharvan always dusvapna); and the language is too obscure to show clearly whether he is right or not; the probability is certainly against him, because elsewhere (e.g. in the next hymn), when evil-dreaming is intended, its own name is freely used, and in xvi. 5 svapna is contrasted with dusvapnya. Lasin the case of hymns 53 and 54, the Anukr. suggests that the hymns 56 and 57 are only two divided parts of one group of 11 verses; and the suggestion is reinforced by the juxtaposition in the RV. text (viii. 47. 15 and 17) of matter corresponding to our 56. 4 and 57. 1 (see under those verses); and hymns 56 and 57 are translated together by Ludwig.

Translated: Ludwig, p. 467; Griffith, ii. 313.

1. Out of Yama's world hast thou come hither $(\bar{a} - bh\bar{u})$; with mirth (?) dost thou, wise, make use of (pra-yuj) mortals; knowing, thou goest in alliance $(sar\acute{a}tham)$ with the solitary one, fashioning $(m\bar{a})$ sleep in the lair $(y\acute{o}ni)$ of the Asura.

If prámadā (p. práomadā) is to be rendered as above, it must have its accent changed to pramádā; the comm., against the pada-text, understands it as pramadās = striyas, joint object with mártyān of prá yunakṣi. One or two mss. read mártān in b. The comm. renders dhiras by dhṛṣṭas. Lapart from W's P.M.W., which have svāpnam.] all the mss., the comm., and SPP., read svápnam in d, and the translation follows this rather than our svápna, willing, in so obscure a matter, to stick as closely to the authorities as possible. Ppp., to be sure, gives svapna mi-, but this counts for very little. The comm. understands the verse to be addressed to the demon of ill-dreaming (he duhsvapnābhimānin krūra piçāca); but his explanations through the whole hymn are worthless, being only the etymologizing guesses of one to whom the real sense is precisely as obscure as it is to us: asura is prāṇavant ātman; the 'lonely one' is the man who is dying of the effect of evil-dreaming, having abandoned son, wife, relatives, etc.; yāsi means yamalokam prāṇayasi; and so on, and so on. [Griffith cites "Death and his brother Sleep" of Shelley's Queen Mab (it is found also at Iliad xiv. 231) and "the twins, Sleep and Death," Il. xvi. 682.]

2. The all-vigorous bond saw thee in the beginning, in the one day before the birth of night; from thence, O sleep, didst thou come $(\bar{a}-bh\bar{u})$ hither, hiding thy form from the physicians.

In this verse also, for the reason given above, the translation follows the mss. more closely than does our text. Nearly all authorities have at the beginning bandhás; a couple | the reciters, K. and V. |, with the comm., bandhús (wrong accent | as in vs. 5 |); Ppp. reads bambhas. All have viçvácayās (p. viçvácayāḥ), though in some of them the c could be read as v; the comm. is able to make a sense for it: sarvasya cetā, samcetā, srastā; the translation implies viçvávayās, as the smallest possible intelligible change; Ppp. presents viçvavathāv [and apaçyan]. The pada-mss. divide in b rātryā: jánitah: réke; the comm. understands, with us, rátryāh: jánitoh: éke; and SPP. substitutes this in his pada-text. Eke ahni | which Ppp. combines to eke 'hni | might, of course, also be understood as locative absolute. Our tátas at beginning of c was an emendation for táva of the mss.; the comm. has it (also Ppp.), and SPP. accordingly also adopts it in his text. The whole pada reads in Ppp.: tatas svapnena madhyā ca bhāyatha. In d all the mss. have bhiságbhya r-, and the pada-mss. bhiságbhya orūpam (!); only one or two give an accent to rūpám; the comm. understands bhiságbhyo rūpám, and SPP. reads this; the translation follows it. There is much discordance as to the accent of apagühamānas. Ppp. reads bhisajīna rūpam apigūh. The comm. is a grammarian of such sort that he does not accept eke as used here for the more regular ékasmin; but he does accept ahni as used, by the ordinary license to put one case in place of another, for ahnas, coördinate in construction with rātryās; and eke means mānasaprajāpatyādayas, and is subject of apaçyan understood! The evil-dreaming hid itself away from the medicine-men, says the comm., lest they should meet it with an efficacious remedy; and something like that is possibly the real meaning.

3. He of great kine (?) turned unto the gods away from the Asuras, seeking greatness; to that sleep the three-and-thirty ones, having attained the sky, imparted over-lordship.

At the beginning, the samhitā-mss. in general read brhád gắvā (p. brhát: gắvā or grāvā); Ppp. has vrhamgrāvā [combining-vāsurebhyo]; the comm. gives brhadgāvā, as nom. of -gāvan, deriving it from gā 'go'; and SPP. accepts this (brhadgāvā, p. brhatogāvā), while at the same time suggesting that -gavô may be meant, by such a confusion of the two modes of writing o as we have already more than once [cf. 55. 5 b and the note] had occasion to conjecture. Ppp. reads 'bhi instead of 'dhi. There is discordance among the mss. as to the accent of upā 'vartata. Ppp. reads at end of b rechan. The majority of mss. have in d trāyastrinçāsā sv-; and part of the pada-mss. divide trāyahotrinçāh: sāh: sv-; SPP. gives trayastrinçāsah sv-, as do we.

4. Not the Fathers, and not the gods, know it, whose (pl.) murmur goes about within here; in Trita Aptya did the men $(n\hat{r})$, the Adityas, taught by Varuṇa, set sleep.

The mss. read at the beginning nāt 'tām Land so SPP.], the etām 'it' apparently being viewed as relating to jālpis; the comm. makes the relation plainer by giving in b yāi 'sām; but this latter SPP. rejects. At end of b, the mss. vary between antarētām and antarē 'dām (p. antarā: idām); the comm. gives the latter, and SPP. accepts it; Ppp. also has it; Land it id implied in the translation. The mss., as always, vary between trtē and tritē; the great majority here give the former. Vāruņena in d was our emendation for ār-; it is read also by the comm., and by one of SPP's mss., and is found in Ppp.; SPP. also adopts it in his text. The mss. all accent ādityāsas, and SPP. does not emend, as we do, to ādityāsas. Ppp. reads in b jalpya; c-, and has for c trite svapnam arididṛhā prate narā (ādit-). With c, compare RV. viii. 47. 13-17 and especially 15 c, d. The comm. tells a tale of how duḥsvapna, having received overlord-ship from the gods, waxed topping, and seized on the Ādityas; the latter applied for relief to Varuṇa, and, duly instructed by him, put off the duḥsvapna upon the great seer (maharsi) Trita, son of the waters: this is pretty plainly no tradition, but an account devised by the comm. to fit the immediate case.

5. Of whom the evil-doers shared $\lfloor bhaj \rfloor$ the cruelty, the well-doers, by non-sleep, [shared] the pure (púnya) life-time — thou revelest in the sky (svar) with the highest relative; thou wast born out of the mind of one practising fervor.

The translation is a merely literal rendering, and does not pretend to be an intelligent one. It implies in a, with SPP., a majority of his mss., and the comm., dbhajanta (the other readings are apacanta, abhacanta, asacanta; and there are varieties of accent); in b, all the samhitā-mss. combine duṣkṛto sv-, implying asvápnena; but [SPP's] pada-mss. and W's pada-ms. D., p.m.] read svápnena; [W's D. seems to be corrected to asvápand his L. also seems to have asváp-;] SPP. accepts asváp, with the comm. Ppp. gives no help; its text is vy asya krūram abhijanta duṣkṛne sv-; and āpuḥ for āyuḥ at the end of b. In c, bandhūnā (read by both editions, with the mss.) ought to have been emended [cf. vs. 2 a] to bándhunā, as both texts emend to tapyá- from tápya-, which appears in most of the mss. At the end, SPP. has the correct jajñiṣe, with about [half of his authorities, including the carefully corrected Dc.] (and with one of our later ones); our jajñiṣe represents the rest, but has no reason. Ppp. has in c svarasajasi.

The comm. renders abhajanta by prāpnuvanti, and asvapnena by duhsvapnadarçanā-bhāvena; he regards duhsvapna as addressed in the second half-verse, and explains svàr as equivalent to a locative (as rendered above) [cf. Noun-Inflection, p. 488], and bandhunā (cf. 2 a) as srṣṭeḥ prākkāle tvām drṣṭavatā vidhātrā saha.

6. We know all thine attendants (?) in front; we know, O sleep, who is thine over-ruler here; protect us here with the glory of the glorious one; go thou away far off with poisons.

In b, the pada-mss. give blunderingly svapnaoyth. Ppp. reads yo'dhipā hyo te. Of course, yaçasvinas in c may be accus. pl., 'us who are glorious'; the comm. takes it so, and explains that the glory comes from our wonderful knowledge as set forth in the first half-verse. [Ppp. reads yaçaso hi for yáçase'há.] In d, the samhitā-mss. (also Ppp.) give ārādviṣ, which is equivalent to ārāddviṣ-; and the pada-mss. assume the latter, dividing ārāt: dviṣébhih; since a derivative dviṣá is as good as unknown, and of a very unusual formation, we preferred to read viṣébhis; [the comm., text and exposition, has dviṣobhis;] SPP. has dviṣébhis. In a the translation of parijās is that of the comm. (= parijanān), which seems more probable than the conjecture of the Pet. Lexx., "perhaps places of origin."

57. Against evil-dreaming.

[Yama.—pañcakam. dāuṣvapnyam. trāisṭubham: 1. anuṣṭubh; 3 Lof Anukr.:= 3 and 4 a (to mukham) of Berlin ed'n]. 3-av. 4-p. triṣṭubh; 4 Lof Anukr.:= 4 b to 5 b of Berlin ed'n, that is tam tvā svapna to gṛhe]. 6-p. uṣṇigbrhatīgarbhā virāṭçakvarī; 5 Lof Anukr.:= 5 c to 6 of Berlin ed'n, that is anāsmākas tad to end of hymn]. 3-av. 5-p. paraçākvarā 'tijagatī.]

[Partly prose — verses 2, 3, 4, and 6.] Pāipp. has only the first verse (in ii.). The comm. quotes from a Pariçiṣṭa (SPP. is unable to identify the passage) a direction for using it (with vi. 45, 46) to a king who sees bad dreams. [As to the connection of the material of this hymn with that of h. 56, see introd. to h. 56.] [As to the differences of division, see under vss. 3, 4, and 5, and cf. SPP's Critical Notice, vol. i., p. 24.]

Translated: Ludwig, p. 468; Griffith, ii. 314.

1. As a sixteenth, as an eighth, as a [whole] debt they bring together, so do we bring together all evil-dreaming on one who is offensive (apriya).

The verse is nearly identical with vi. 46. 3, differing only by substituting apriye in d for dviṣaté. Apriye comes near to the aptyé of RV. viii. 47. 17, with which both verses correspond: see note to vi. 46. 3. The comm., in fact, reads aptye.

2. Kings have gathered (sam-gā), debts have gathered, kuṣṭhás have gathered, sixteenths have gathered; all evil-dreaming that is in us—let us impel away evil-dreaming to him that hates us.

The pada-mss. read sah: mṛṇāni for sam: ṛṇāni, and sah: kalāh (the samhitā-mss. also sā kalā ag-) for sām: kalāh; SPP. follows us in emending in both places to sām, which the comm. also has. At the beginning of the second division, we have emended sām of the mss. and comm. (which SPP. follows) to sārvam. For yāt (after asmāsu) the samhitā-mss. read yāta, and the pada-mss. yātah; our yāt is supported by the comm., and SPP. adopts it. The comm. says that kuṣṭha is a skin-disease, symptomatic of various maladies; and, when one of these remains unhealed, boils and sores etc. (? piṭakavraṇādīni) show themselves. Also, that kalās are anupādeyāvayavopalakṣaṇa, and worthless parts of cattle etc. are collected in old pits. And in like manner collected ill-dreaming is made over to an enemy. That is his idea, and a wholly unacceptable one, of the general meaning of the verse. The verse is prose, no trisṭubh; but may be stretched so as to count as 43 syllables.

3. Embryo of the wives of the gods, instrument of Yama, excellent dream; the evil [dream] that is mine, that do we send forth to him that hates us.

The mss. all read devānām pātnīnām gārbha (one pada-ms.-bham) yamāsya kārayo bhadrāsvapnah; the translation implies no further emendation than to gārbho and kāraṇo; the minor Pet. Lex., iv. 249, accepts bhadrāsvapna as a descriptive compound, although the accent (Gram. § 1280 c) is very exceptional; SPP., following the comm., changes to dēvānām patnīnām garbha yāmasya kara yō bhadrāh svapna. Our devāpatnīnām and kāraṇas were suggested especially by the devajāmīnām and kāraṇas of vi. 46. 2 and xvi. 5. 6, of which neither the comm. nor SPP. take any notice. In the second division of the verse the two editions agree, save that ours emends tât of the mss. (which SPP. follows) to tām; and the latter is supported by our P.M., and by the comm. But the mss. have at the beginning samāmayah, and the pada-mss. resolve it into samām: ayaḥ. The Anukr. and comm. and SPP. add to this verse what in our text is the first division of vs. 4; our division is that of our first mss., and is preferable on the ground of the sense. The prose verse, according to the division of the Anukr., may be made to count (8 + 10: 13: 13?) as 44 syllables.

4. Thee that art "harsh" by name, mouth of the black bird (-çakúni) — thee, O sleep, we thus know completely; do thou, O sleep, as a horse a halter, as a horse a girth, scatter him who is not of us, the god-reviler, the mocker.

Prose. The translation here is of no authority, including various venturesome emendations of the text; it follows our text except at the end, where, instead of badhāna, it implies the (unsatisfactory) vapa of the comm. and SPP.; all the mss. read vapus or vápu |. At the beginning, the pada-mss. give matrsta: nama: asi: kṛṣṇaoçakune: múkham; and the samhitā-mss. agree with them, with worthless variations of accent and some slight differences besides |, and with -kuner in one or two. SPP. reads, however, må tṛṣṭanām asi kṛṣṇaçakunér múkham, won, as he claims, by adding accents to the comm's text; but this differs from the mss. only by the word-division and by -nāmasi and -ner; how the comm. divides and understands mātrstānāmasi is unknown, as his explanation of the words is wanting (though SPP, notes no lacuna). So much (to múkham) is, as was noted above, added to vs. 3 by Anukr., comm., and SPP. In the next division of the verse, for kakṣyām, the mss., the comm., and SPP., give kāyām, which might mean 'body'; the comm. is apparently imperfect here, reading açvo yathā svakīyam rajodhūsaram [kāyam] dhunoti yathā cā 'çvo nīnāham palyāṇakavacādikam avakirati: with kāyam is perhaps omitted also carīram, its gloss. Our mss. end vs. 4 with nināhám, and it was our emendation to add the next clause; but this the comm. does also, ending with vapa, while SPP. goes on to grhe without making a versedivision: the sense (so far as we can be said to understand it) favors our division and the comm's. The latter reads avā 'smākam, finding thus an ava ... vapa, which he explains by tiraskuru. All the mss. give $pip\bar{a}ru\dot{n} [P.M.: piy-] vapur [or vapu] yad$ etc., with not even a pāda-division after vapus; such a division was due in our text, however, after $n\bar{i}n\bar{a}h\dot{a}m$. [The Anukr. seems to intend to count the verse (tain tvā to grhe) as 9+9+7+13 (reading vapa): 8+8=54.]

5. What evil-dreaming is in us, what in our kine, and what in our house, that let him who is not of us, the god-reviler, the mocker, put on like a necklace (niskd).

[Pādas a and b are identical with 45. 2 a, b, above; and the rest of the verse seems to throw much light on 45. 2 c, d: see my note to that verse. In his Collation-Book, Whitney here made a note of this important parallel, but seems to have overlooked his note when working out his commentary.] The mss. again all read pipārus [P.M.: piy]; and the comm. again avā 'smākam, supplying a gamaya to the ava in his explanation. The omission of devapīyús would make a fair anuṣṭubh of this verse [and a faultless one, if we pronounce niṣkeva]; it is evidently metrical, and a verse by itself [cf. 45. 2] as it stands in our text; the Anukr. and SPP., with part of the mss., end vs. 4 with gṛhe, and throw all the rest of the hymn together as vs. 5; the comm. agrees with us as to vss. 5 and 6. [The Anukr. seems to intend to count its verse 5 (anāsmā-kas tād to end of hymn) as 12+9:9+7 [:] 14=51, and to put its second avasāna, with some of the mss., after pāri, as does SPP.]

6. Having measured off nine cubits, forth from that do we divide off to him who hates us all our evil-dreaming.

[Prose.] Instead of our apamaya, the mss., the comm., and SPP. read apamaya (p. apaomayah); how the comm. (or SPP.) would explain it does not appear, as he gives only the general sense of the expression: asmākam sambandhi duṣvapnyam navāratniparyantam apasāraya. He reads at the end apriye sam nayāmasi (= 1 d).

58. For various blessings.

[Brahman. — şadrcam. mantroktabahudevatyam uta yājūikam. trāistubham: 2. puro-'nuṣṭubh; 3. 4-p. atiçakvarī; 5. bhurij.]

The first four verses occur also in Pāipp. i.; [Roth's Collation, strictly interpreted, means that the whole hymn is found there]. The comm. quotes vs. 5 as used in Kāuç. 3. 16; but the verse there intended is evidently ii. 35. 5, of which vs. 5 here is a repetition. At the beginning of his exposition of vs. I he says: asmin sūkte manasā nirvartyo yajāaḥ stūyate.

Translated: Griffith, ii. 315.

1. The swiftness of ghee evenly always increasing the year with oblation—be our hearing, sight, breath unsevered; unsevered be we from life-time, from splendor.

The translation implies in a samanā sadāt 'vā. [This last may be a slip for sādāivā, p. sādā: evā; the Berlin text and the Index imply sādeva, p. sādāoiva.] Five authorities give samanā (so in p.); five or six, samanāh; the rest samanāh or sāmanāh, or else samānāh or samānā or finally sāmanā; SPP. accepts the last, from only two mss.; the comm. reads samanāh, and explains it as samānamanaskā. After it the mss. read sādevāh (p. sāodevāh), but the comm. and his text sadevā, and SPP. follows these, accenting sādevā. Ppp. has yūtis sumanās sudevās (s-). The comm. says that, since all words signifying 'motion' also signify 'knowledge,' jūti here means sarvatra prasrtam jāānam! Ppp. combines in c prāna ach. In d, the pada-mss. read áchinnā instead of -nāh. The connection of the two half-verses is perhaps this: it is prayed that the prospering flow of the libations of sacred butter be uninterrupted, carrying as a consequence the continuance of physical blessings.

2. Let breath call unto us; we call unto breath; the earth, the atmosphere hath seized (grah) splendor; splendor [also] Soma, Bṛihaspati, the maintainer.

Some mss. (including most of the pada-mss.) begin b with úpa hvayám. In c, one of SPP's mss. and Ppp. combine pṛthivy ānt. At the end, the pada-mss. have correctly dhartā; the samhitā-mss. vary between this and dhattā, dhattām, and dhattāt; and the reciter K. gave vidhartā. The comm's text (SPP.) has vidhattām, but his explanation reads vidhattā (misreading for -arttā?) viçeseṇa dhartā 'gniḥ sūryo vā; and SPP. most strangely adopts the senseless vidhattā (it is read also by one ms.). Ppp. gives instead bibhartu, which is not bad. Furthermore, Ppp. begins a with apa, but b with upa. The seizing of splendor by these various divinities is, according to the comm., for the purpose of giving it to us. Pādas b and d lack each a syllable. [A similar antithesis with upahū occurred at i. 1. 4, and others were pointed out there.]

3. Heaven-and-earth have become joint-seizers of splendor; seizing splendor may we go about upon the earth; with glory the kine, coming, wait upon (upa-sthā) the lord of kine; seizing glory may we go about upon the earth.

The verse is by no means one of 4 padas, but rather one of 6 (a-f: so designated below): in fact, it is a regular anustubh, to each half of which is added in prose an ūha-refrain (varco etc., yaço etc.) of 14 syllables. The mss. read in b babhūváthus, accenting also dyavaprthivi; the translation implies the simpler and more probable emendation to -vatus; and of course the retention of the ms.-accentuation of dyavapṛthivī: correct the Berlin ed. accordingly; | SPP. leaves both words unchanged, without heeding their irreconcilable character; that the comm. takes dyavaprthivi as vocative is simply in accord with his usual disregard of the accent. In c and f, the mss. vary between anu-sam | so most |, anu-sam, and anu sam (the pada-mss. have anuosamcarema: but one has anuosamcarema!); SPP. adopts anu sam | cf. note to Prāt. iv. 3 |, against our anu-sám; there is little choice between the two. In d, the mss. in general begin with yaçásām | some with yáçasām |, two or three having yáçasam or yaçásam; SPP. adopts the last, we yáçasā; here, again, there is little to choose; the comm. explains yaçasā, though his text (SPP.) gives yaçasām. The comm. foolishly takes ayatis in e as, jointly with yaças, object of grhitva in f, supplying dhenus for it to qualify. The verse counts (16+14:16+14=60) as a full aticakvari; but see beginning of this paragraph |.

4. Make ye a pen (vrajd), for that is men-protecting for you; sew ye coats-of-mail (vdrman), abundant, broad; make ye strongholds of metal, unattackable (ddhrsta); let not your bowl leak (sru); make it strong.

The verse is RV. x. 101. 8, with slight variation: RV. has várma in samhitā as well as in pada in b; the mss., too, leave dṛnhatā in d without accent, and SPP. does not correct their error. | Roth notes that Ppp. reads varmā: cf. Noun-Inflection, p. 540 top,

- 539 end.] But the pada-text exhibits its skill in blundering: in b it reads várma: asi: vioadhvám (and nearly all the samhitā-mss. accent sīvyadhvám), and in c kṛṇudhvam: mā: āyasīh (or ayasīh): ádhṛṣṭā (and the samhitā-mss. accordingly read -dhvammāy-). The comm. gives three distinct interpretations of the verse: as concerned respectively with the senses, with officiating priests, and with soldiers (indriyaparatvena rtvik-paratvena yoddhṛparatvena). [As to -dhvam mā-, cf. note to xviii. 2.3.]
- 5. Of the sacrifice the eye, beginning, and face; with voice, with hearing, with mind do I make oblation; to this sacrifice, extended by the all-working one, let the gods come $\lfloor \bar{a}-i \rfloor$, with favoring minds.

We had this verse above, as ii. 35. 5 [see note thereon]. Our mss. cite it by the whole first pāda: $yaj\bar{n}dsya\ cdksuh\ prabhṛtir\ mukham ce 'ty ékā$. [The Anukr. does not ignore the d at the beginning of d.]

6. They that are priests (rtvij) of the gods, and that are worshipful, for whom the oblation (havya) is made the portion — coming to this sacrifice together with their spouses, let the gods, as many as they are (yavant), revel on the oblation.

In b, the mss. have also kriyate, kryate, kryate, and krnute. In c, the pada-mss. read sahá-patnībhih, and nearly all the samhitā-mss. agree with them; SPP. also emends to pát. In d, all the mss. have taviṣā or táviṣā (p. -ṣā); SPP. reads, with the comm., taviṣās (= mahāntaḥ, comm.); the translation implies haviṣā, instead of our emendation sám iṣā. The verse [12 + 11:11 + 12] has two more syllables than a regular triṣṭubh; [the cadences of a, b, c accord with the number of syllables: but d, with 12, has a triṣṭubh cadence; this casts still further suspicion on taviṣā, in place of which we should expect only two syllables].

59. For successful sacrifice.

[Brahman.—trcam. ägneyam. trāistubham: 1. gāyatrī.]

Hymns 59-64 are not found in Pāipp. For the practical use of 59 with 52, see under the latter. [Other uses under vs. 3.] Verses 1 and 2, it will be noticed, are put together also in TS., and vs. 3 is not far off [preceding 1 and 2]. In MS., on the other hand, vss. 2 and 3 have the same sequence as here; [but in RV. their sequence is inverted]. [As for the ritual use, cf. p. 896 and the table.]

Translated: Griffith, ii. 317.

1. Thou, O Agni, art protector of vows among gods (?), among mortals; thou art to be praised at the sacrifices.

The verse is RV. viii. 11. 1, and found also in VS. iv. 16; TS. i. 1. 144; 2. 31, and MS. i. 2. 3, everywhere without variant, except as the AV. mss. in general read in b devå å m-[three have devå ām-]; [Whitney's P. and M. and SPP's Sm. and his Dc., p.m., have devå å m-;] the pada-mss. give devåh (two of SPP's, after it, āomártyeşu). The RV. pada-text has deváh; [so also TS. pada-text: see Weber's note in his ed., p. 13;] the translation implies devé, in the sense of devéşu. The comm. understands devás, and SPP. also reads it by emendation.

[Roth, Ueber gewisse Kürzungen des Wortendes im Veda, p. 3, treats the RV. verse, with report of the comm. on RV.VS.TS.: he assumes devé: å as pada-reading and understands devé as = devésu. Cf. daça (= daçabhis) dvādaçabhir vā 'pi, MBh. xii. 307 (or 306). 10 = xii. 11377, as cited by Hopkins, JAOS. xxiii. 111; cf. also English inside and out (out = outside); Goethe's Jeden Nachklang fühlt mein Herz froh- (= froher) und trüber Zeit; etc.

2. If we, O gods, detract from (pra-mī) your [ordained] courses — we that are very unknowing, of you that are knowing—let Agni the all-devouring fill that up, knowing, and the soma that has entered the Brahmans.

The first three pādas are RV. x. 2. 4 a-c, found also in TS. i. 1. 144 and MS. iv. 10. 2. All these read in c viçvam à pṛṇāti; our viçvād (p. viçvaoát) can only be regarded as a corruption; the translation, however, follows it, as being the real Atharvan reading; SPP. adopts it in his text, against the comm., who reads and explains viçvam. The comm. agrees with RV. etc. further in giving pṛṇāti. As for the last pāda, we had it above as d of xviii. 2. 55; it is also a RV. phrase, and found elsewhere: see under that verse.

3. We have come unto the road of the gods, to convey (vah) along forward what we may be able; Agni [is] knowing; he shall make offering; he verily is hôtar; he shall arrange the sacrifices (adhvará), he the seasons.

The verse is RV. x. 2. 3, and found also in TS. i. 1. 143, MS. iv. 10. 2, and ζ B. xii. 4. 4'. These texts read in c, d sé'd u hótā só adhv-, and all save ζ B. accent ánu in b. The comm's text also has the RV. reading se'd u hotā. The verse, with the Atharvan readings in c, d, is found in full in Kāuç. 5. 12, in the parvan-ceremonies. In the same ceremonies it accompanies in Vāit. 3. 5 an offering to Agni svisṭakṛt; and again, in Vāit. 19. 12, an after-offering to various gods. [As for the critical significance of the citation of the vs. in sakalapāṭha, see p. 897, \P 3.]

60. For physical abilities.

[Brahman. — dvyrcam. mantroktavāgādidāivatam. 1. pathyābrhatī; 2. kakummatī purausnih.]

[Prose.] As was noticed above, the hymn is wanting in Pāipp. Hymns 60-63, both text and explication, are lacking in the comm. The comm., at p. 5175, assigns only fourteen hymns to this the final anuvāka; [but at p. 5529 he numbers the last hymn as the thirteenth, having combined hymns 69 and 70 of the Berlin ed. into one of 5 vss. (pañcamantrātmakain sūktam, p. 5481): both numbers are at variance with the leighteen of the mss. [in general: but see under h. 65] and of the Anukr. The hymn is quoted in Kāuç. 66. 1 in the savayajña chapter [see table on p. 896]; the mss. of Kāuç. read āsyan [like the AV. mss.].

Translated: Griffith, ii. 317.

1. Speech in my mouth, breath in my nostrils, sight in my eyes, hearing in my ears, my hair not gray, my teeth not broken, much strength in my arms.

A similar enumeration is found in TS. (in v. 5.92), TA. (x. 72, in supplement: [p. 887 of Poona ed.]), and PGS. (in i. 3. 25): vān ma āsan (PGS. āsye) nasāh prānd kṣyóç cākṣuḥ kārṇayoḥ çrōtram bāhuvor bálam ūruvor ōjō riṣṭā viçvāny ángāni (PGS. riṣṭāni me rīgāni) tanūs tanūvā me sahā; it covers both verses of our hymn and the beginning of the next. [MGS. i. 4.4 may be compared.] Nearly all the samhitā-mss. read āsyán [like those of Kāuç.] násoḥ; [and the pada-reading is āsyám: násoḥ]. Further on, the mss. read akṣoḥ or akṣyoḥ (one of ours and one of SPP's give akṣnoḥ; our text gives akṣnoḥ, but it should be akṣyoḥ, as everywhere else in the Atharvan, and as in the parallel texts); yet further, ápalitā kéçā [or keçā] cónaditā bāha (or vāha) bāhvor bālam. SPP. follows our emendations (even akṣnos) throughout; except that he very properly corrects our bāhvòs to bāhvòs. Instead of áçonā dāntāḥ the minor Pet. Lex. suggests áçīrṇā d-, which is decidedly preferable, and is implied in the translation.

2. Force in my thighs, speed in my calves, firm standing in my feet, all things of mine uninjured, myself not down-fallen.

| Passing in silence some minor details of variation, | the mss. read oja instead of ojas but ojah is found in two or three pada-mss.]; [about ten authorities | leave janghayos unaccented; they accent jávas or javás, and pádayos or pādáyos; some insert a blundering avasāna between pādayoh and pratisthā; | all accent aristāni instead of ar-; | and end with sarvān mā 'tiprsthāh or -sthā (p. átioprsthā or -āh). SPP. follows our emendations quite closely: but he corrects to janghayos; accents javas (which is rather to be preferred *); | accents correctly padayos: the accent of the Berlin ed. should be amended accordingly; | leaves the avasāna after pādayoh; and forgets in samhitā-text to combine pratistha and aristani into pratistha 'ris-; the mss., however, commit the same oversight, although the pada-text reads pratiostha (not -ah). The blunder arises possibly from the transference of the avasāna-sign from its proper place after pratistha (to which our text restores it) to the place before that word. The metrical definitions of the Anukr. for these two bits of prose are naturally worthless, and the extensive emendations in our text make them still more inapplicable. * In RV. the masc. javá is oxytone, and the neuter javas is paroxytone; but at iii. 50. 2 and iv. 27. 1 we have the adjective stem javás: cf. Gram. § 1151. 2. e. {

61. For length of life etc.

[Brahman. - ekarcam. brāhmaṇaspatyam. virāt pathyābrhatī.]

Wanting, as already pointed out, in the comm. and in Pāipp. Translated: Griffith, ii. 317.

I. A body together with my body. [...] May I attain all my life-time. Sit thou on what is pleasant; fill thyself full, cleansing thyself in heaven (svargá).

The verse is utterly obscure and disconnected, and we might long for the comm., if we had found that he ever gave any help in such a case. The first clause is translated as corresponding with that in TS. etc. (see under 60.1); what is inserted between it and the following clause is omitted as unintelligible. The mss. read sahe (with varying accent), and dántāḥ (so all the pada-mss. and some others) or datāḥ, or rādātāḥ Lor radántāḥ SPP. adopts sahe datāḥ, to which he might be puzzled to give any meaning. In the second division, SPP. reads with the mss. syonām me s-, and purūh pr-.

62. For popularity.

[Brahman (etc., as 61). — anustubh.]

Wanting in Pāipp. and in the comm.

Translated: Zimmer, p. 205; Griffith, ii. 318.

1. Make thou me dear to the gods, make me dear to kings, dear to everything that sees, both to Çūdra and to Āryan.

A nearly corresponding verse is found in the supplement to RV. x. 128 (Aufr.², p. 685), and in HGS. i. 10. 6, and in Katha-hss., p. 36]. In the first half-verse, RV. differs only by reading both times kuru; its c is priyam viçveşu gotreşu, and its d entirely different from ours. HGS. also has kuru, with mā brahmani for rājasu mā in b, and the second half-verse reads priyam viçyeşu çūdreşu act. The mss. read in c-d with varying accent paçyato ta (p. paçyata: uta); but one of SPP's pada-mss. has paçyatāh, p.m.; and a part of the mss. (including so far as noted all the pada-mss.) have çūdrám in d. SPP's text agrees throughout with ours. With this verse Zimmer compares 32. 8, above, and VS. xviii. 48 etc. With the d of the Berlin text, cf. the d of iv. 20. 4 and 8. Zimmer rightly notes that the "gods" of a are the Brahmans, and aptly cites CB. ii. 2. 26, with 32. 8 etc. as just mentioned.

63. To Brihaspati: for sundry blessings.

[Brahman (etc., as 61). — virād uparistādbrhatī.]

Wanting in Pāipp. and in the comm. Translated: Griffith, ii. 318.

1. Arise, O Brahmanaspati; awaken the gods with the sacrifice; increase [his] life-time, breath, progeny, cattle, fame, and the sacrificer [himself].

The mss. vary between paçúm and paçúm in the second half-verse. Kirtím is pretty evidently intruded, spoiling the Lotherwise good anuṣṭubh] meter; the Anukr. reckons it to the fourth pāda. The paddhati uses the verse (see note to Kāuç. 6.21) in the course of the darçapūrṇamāsa ceremony.

64. To Agni: with fuel.

[Brahman. - caturrcam. agneyam. anustubham.]

Not found in Pāipp. Used in Kāuç. (57. 26) in the ceremony of initiation of a Vedic student, to accompany the laying of four sticks of fuel on the fire — the schol. say, one at each verse. [With regard to the ritual use, see the table on p. 896, and p. 897, l. 9.] Translated: Griffith, ii. 318; vs. 1 also by Ludwig, p. 265.

1. O Agni, I have taken fuel for the great Jātavedas; let that Jātavedas extend to me both faith and wisdom.

The whole verse is found in ÇGS. ii. 10, the only variant being agnaye at the beginning; LOldenberg's text (cf. his note, p. 139) should read āhārṣam, with his codex F.]; the first half-verse occurs in several other Sūtras (AGS. i. 21. 1; PGS. ii. 4. 3; HGS.

i. 7. 2; MB. i. 6. 32), with a very different latter half, but all reading agnaye; [and we find agnaye at MP. ii. 6. 2; and again at GGS. ii. 10. 46, where the prattha is cited]. The comm. also has agnaye, with one of SPP's reciters. The Atharvan reading is plainly agne, apparently a metrical emendation, and the translation follows it, rather than our unnecessary conjecture, agre. [In this case, as the meter clearly shows, we must allow that the AV. has the better reading agne as against the agnaye of a whole series of Sūtra-texts. Their inferior reading is of course not to be changed; but still less should the AV. be changed to agnaye, as Oldenberg, note to ÇGS., p. 139, overlooking the meter, suggests.]

2. With firing, O Jātavedas, with fuel do we increase thee; so do thou increase us, both with progeny and with riches.

The Ltext and explanation of the somm. add as does the Daça Karmāṇi: see Kāuç. 57. 26 note the further pāda dīrgham āyuḥ kṛṇotu me, and two or three of SPP's authorities give it or have traces of it.

3. In that, O Agni, we put on for thee any pieces of wood whatever, be all that propitious to me; enjoy thou that, O youngest one.

The first two pādas and the fourth are RV. viii. 91(or 102). 20, which reads kāni kāni cid in a and tā for the tād of our d. The Yajus-texts, VS. xi. 73, MS. (in ii. 7. 7), TS. (in iv. 1. 101), all have the inserted pāda c: VS.MS. end it with te ghṛtām instead of our me civām, while TS. makes it read tād astu tūbhyam tā ghṛtām. VS. reads as does RV., but TS.MS. have yāni kāni ca. Nearly all the authorities have dāruṇi only W's P.M. have dāruṇi; and all have dadhmasi, without accent: SPP. emends both words to accordance with RV., as we had done. Part of the mss. and the comm. have in d yaviṣṭha. The verse is used by Vāit. (28. 14) in the agnicayana ceremony. Cf. p. 898, line 1.

4. These pieces of fuel are for thee, O Agni; with them, O burning one, become thou united; put in us [long] life-time; put immortality in the Aryan.

The second and fourth pādas are wholly corrupt; the translation follows in part our emended text. [For b, the translation implies tābhir dhakṣo (cf. RV. x. 115.4; ii. 4.4, where the samhitā has dākṣoḥ; RV. Prāt. iv. 41 end) sām tā bhava; and for d, it implies amṛtatvām cā "rye. For b, the general reading of the authorities is tvām tā dhansō (p. haħsāḥ) samtā (p. samott) bhava; one or two have dhaso or vānso, one tvāv tā dhansō, three bhavaḥ. SPP. conjectures that the original reading may have been tābhir vaso samtā bhava; he adopts as his text, from the comm., tvām idāhāḥ samtā bhava. In c, the ā before dhehi is not found in the mss.; a less correction, with better meter, would have been dhehy ā. For d, the mss., the comm., and SPP., give amṛtatvām ācāryāya (p. amṛtatvām : ācāryāya).

[The Daç. Kar., as reported by Bloomfield on Kāuç. 57. 26, also gives ācāryāya; moreover, the passage in PGS. (ii. 4. 3), which treats of the ceremony of initiation to which (see introd., above) these verses belong, contains in fact a prayer of the student on behalf of his teacher or initiator: jīvaputro mamā "cāryo medhāvy aham asāni etc.; and the AV. comm. explains ācāryāya accordingly by upanayanakartre gāyatrīpradātre etc. This all makes against W's cā "rye and in favor of the ms.-reading ācāryāya: this dative, no less than the locative asmāsu, goes easily with dhehy ā].

65. Praise of the sun.

[Brahman. - ekarcam. jātavedasam; sāuryam. jāgatam.]

Found also in Pāipp. xvi. The comm. says that hymns 65-67 are shown by their contents to belong to the worship of Sūrya.

Translated: Griffith, ii. 319.

1. A yellow eagle, thou hast ascended unto heaven (div) with radiance (arcis); whoso (pl.) would injure thee flying up to heaven, them smite thou down with flame (háras), O Jātavedas, unfearing; ascend unto heaven, O sun, formidable, with radiance.

By metrical evidence, jātavedas in c is an intrusion [although obviously older than the Anukr.], besides being at least superfluous in sense. The mss. read bibhyad ugro 'rc- (p. bibhyat: ugrah); but SPP. emends to abibhyat: ugrah, as we had done [but neglects the necessary abhinihita svarita]; the comm. so understands the words. Ppp. reads ugro arcisā in d.

After this hymn, three of our mss. (P.M.W.) insert as next hymn, numbering it 66, the one-versed RV. i. 99, without variant.

66. To Agni: for aid.

[Brahman. - ekarcam. jātavedasam; sāuryam; vajradevatyam. atijāgatam.]

Found also in Pāipp. xvi. The comm. connects it in use with the preceding hymn. Translated: Griffith, ii. 319.

1. The trickish Asuras that go about, having metal nets, hooking with fetters of metal, them I make subject to thee with flame, O Jātavedas; go thou, a thousand-barbed thunderbolt, slaughtering our rivals.

Ppp. combines in a -jālā 'surā, and reads in b ayasmāi p-; in c it seems to give harase, which would be an acceptable emendation. Our sahásrabhṛṣṭis in d is for the -hṛṣṭis (the majority) or -dṛṣṭis [two] or -hṛaṣṭis [two or three] or [-haṣṭis or -hṛaṣṭis or -hṛaṣṭis or -hṛaṣṭis or -hṛaṣṭis (all these, one each) of the authorities; SPP. reads, with the comm., -ṛṣṭis. SPP. also follows the comm. in adopting pāhi, against the majority of his authorities (though in such a case their reading, whether pā- or yā-, is extremely doubtful); [here the testimony of his oral reciters is of especial weight, and they (his K. and V.) gave yāhi].

67. For long life and prosperity.

[Brahman. — aṣṭāu. sāuryam. prājāpatyā gāyatrī.]

Not found in Paipp. According to the comm., it is used in the same manner as the two preceding hymns. [Cf. khila to RV. i. 50.]

Translated: Griffith, ii. 319.

- I. May we see a hundred autumns.
- 2. May we live a hundred autumns.
- 3. May we wake a hundred autumns.

- 4. May we ascend (ruh) a hundred autumns.
- 5. May we prosper a hundred autumns.
- 6. May we be a hundred autumns.
- 7. May we adorn a hundred autumns.
- 8. More autumns than a hundred.

The comm.* reckons the hymn as only one verse; the Anukr. and all the mss. | see SPP's ed., p. 543, note I | count eight verses, and SPP. also adopts this. The first two verses are the last two padas of RV. vii. 66. 16; they are found also in GGS. iii. 8. 5; a third verse, with crnuyama, is added in PGS. i. 6. 3; MS., at iv. 9. 20, has four pādas, with crnuyāma pushed to the fourth place by the insertion of prábravāma (ed. prabruv-) in the third; | and the series is carried further in VS. xxxvi. 24, which, beginning as does PGS., has five padas, [with prabravama in the fourth, and adinah syama in the fifth, and | with the added ending bhuyaç ca çarádah çatāt, which needs emendation. [MGS., at i. 22. 11, agrees with VS.] In TA. iv. 42. 5 and in HGS. i. 7. 10 | the series is carried to eight padas |: these agree from 1 to 7 | with pacyema, jivema, nandāma, módāma, bhávāma, çṛṇávāma, prábravāma |, and differ only in the eighth, where TA. has djitāh syāma against ajitāh syāma of HGS.; and both have the added ending jyók ca súryam drçé. In none of the other versions is there anything to help us with the doubtful forms in the Atharvan. In vs. 3, most of the mss. read búddhema (some búdhema); our emendation búdhyema is given also by the comm., and SPP. adopts it. In vs. 5, on the other hand, the mss., the comm., and SPP., give the wholly anomalous püsema (= pustim labhemahi, comm.); SPP. ought to have emended to púsyema, as we had done. Bhūyema (= bhūyāsma, comm.) in vs. 7 is another impossibility retained by SPP. In vs. 8 all the mss. have bhuyast [or -ast]; but the comm. has -sts, and so SPP. has the courage to adopt and read it, as we had done before. * At p. 5439. |

68. With ceremonial performance.

[Brahman. - ekarcam. mantroktakarmamātradevatyam. ānustubham.]

Found in Pāipp. xix. Quoted once in the text of Kāuç. (139. 10), in the ceremony of introduction to Vedic study, as to be murmured prior to pronouncing, by pādas, the Gāyatrī (RV. iii. 62. 10), and the Atharvan verses iv. 1. 1 and i. 1. 1 (or 1-4). But the various schol. (the Paddhati, Daç. Kar., Keçavī) make frequent mention and use of it: thus (see note to Kāuç. 25. 36), it is reckoned to a svastivācana; it is used in the sīmantonnayana (to 35. 20) and godāna (to 53. 2) ceremonies; it is added (note to 57. 22) to vii. 33. 1 in the ceremony of restoring lost fire, in the initiation of a Vedic student; it is used in the vedavratāni (to 57. 32), in the annaprāçana (to 58. 19), and the preparation for the marriage ceremonies (to 75. 1), and for the ājyatantra (to 137. 4), and in the introduction to the rājakarmāni of § 14 (p. 315, l. 2). In all this is very probably to be seen only the influence of the occurrence of vēdam and of kārmāni kṛṇ-mahe in the second half-verse; it need not imply any real comprehension of the obscure verse, with recognition of its appropriateness to all these various situations. [As to the critical bearing of the uses of the vs. in the ritual, cf. the table on p. 896, and see p. 897, line 12.]

Translated: Griffith, ii. 319.

1. Of non-expansion and of expansion do I until the aperture with magic; by those two having taken up the Veda, we then perform acts.

That is, doubtless, 'conduct sacred ceremonies.' All the mss.* have at the beginning dvyasas (p. dvioasah), and so have Ppp., the Anukr., Kāuç. and all its scholiasts, and the comm.; whence of course also SPP.; it is unquestionably the Atharvan reading. Yet even the comm. can only say for it that it is the same as avyacasas, a syllable being omitted by Vedic license; and the analysis of the pada-text appears to be one of those wild and senseless guesses of which in this book it presents not a few examples. | The important thing to observe in the pada avya[ca]saç ca vyacasaç ca is the recurrence of so many confusingly similar syllables: the corruption is a case of haplography (cf. note to iv. 5. 5, and Bloomfield in AJP. xvii. 418); but one would expect avyacaso vyacasaç ca. | The pada-mss. | save SPP's J. | have visyāmi in b as an integral word; but the comm. understands v1: syāmi, and SPP., as well as our text, so reads; many of the mss. have bi instead of vi. One accents in c vedám, | and one has vedam, without accent; Griffith's 'bunch of grass' implies the reading vedám here and at 72. I |; we might conjecture védim as a better reading; véda is not to be expected in the Atharvan. The Index gives for books i.-xviii. three occurrences of véda, namely at iv. 35.6; x. 8. 17; xv. 3. 7: at x. 8. 17 W. suggests that it is perhaps to be rendered simply by 'knowledge'; but in iv. and xv. it can hardly be aught else than 'Veda.' | Some of the mss. accent kramahe. There was no sufficient reason for altering the accent of vyácasas in our text to vyacásas; SPP. reads vyác- with the majority of his authorities. The comm. has no notion of what the verse really means: he gives two different expositions — one explaining dryacas and ryacas to mean the two varieties of breathing, prāna and vyāna, the vila to be the mūlādhāra, and veda 'the Veda' (akṣarātmakamantrasamgha); the other taking the first two to be the paramatman and jīvātman, the bila the heart, and veda 'knowledge' (cikirşitakarmavişayam jñānam). * If I understand the Collation Book, W's P. actually begins with avyacásaç cá vyácasáç ca, which, apart from the wild accents, is worth noting. |

In Ppp., this hymn is immediately followed by our hymn 72.

69. To the waters: for long life.

[Brahman. — catasraḥ. mantroktābdevatyāḥ. 1. āsury anuṣṭubh; 2. sāmny anuṣṭubh; 3. āsurī gāyatrī; 4. sāmny uṣṇih (1-4. 1-av.).]

[Prose.] Found also in Pāipp. xix. The four verses of this hymn are called in Kāuç. and Vāit. $j\bar{\imath}v\bar{a}s$, and are prescribed to accompany the rinsing of the mouth with water in the parvan ceremony (Kāuç. 3. 4; Vāit. 1. 19, misunderstood by the editor), in a rite for long life at the reception of a Vedic student (Kāuç. 58. 7), and in the madhuparka ceremony (Kāuç. 90. 22); of these the comm. takes notice only of Kāuç. 58. 7. With this use is doubtless connected the attribution of the hymn in the Anukr. to the waters as divinity. [As to the citation by technical designation, and especially as to the ritual uses, see p. 897, \P 2.]

Translated: Griffith, ii. 320.

- I. Living are ve; may I live; may I live my whole life-time.
- 2. Living on are ye; may I live on; may I live my whole life-time.
- 3. Living together are ye; may I live together; may I live my whole life-time.
 - 4. Lively are ye; may I live; may I live my whole life-time.

The comm. adds our hymn 70 as fifth verse to this hymn, and then commits the blunder of understanding Indra etc., there spoken of, as addressed with "living are ye" etc.; it is, of course, the waters that are meant, as the liturgical use plainly shows. In vs. 2 all authorities give úpa jīvā stha (p. úpa : jīvāḥ : stha); [both editions give upa-jīvās]. In vs. 3 they have samjīvās (though with considerable variety of accent); most, too, accent samjīvyāsam. The comm. reads upajīvyās and samjīvyās, which make the decidedly easier sense, 'fit to be lived on and with'; then the following clauses would mean 'may I live on you and with you.' Ppp. reads throughout stu instead of stha.

70. For long life.

[Brahman. - ekarcam. sāuryam. 3-p. gāyatrī.]

[Prose.] Not found in Paipp. [See note to 69. 4.] Translated: Griffith, ii. 320.

1. Live, O Indra; live, O Sūrya; live ye, O gods; may I live; may I live my whole life-time.

The mss. read jivās after dēvās, and SPP. retains it, false accent and all. The comm. explains it by adding a bhavatą.

71. For various blessings.

[Brahman. - ekarcam. gāyatrīdāivatam. 3-av. 5-p. atijagatī.]

Wanting in Pāipp. The comm. is unable to quote any authority as to its use; but he declares it to belong to the worship of the Veda that one has studied, or of the gāyatrī.

Translated: Zimmer, p. 204; Griffith, ii. 320.

1. Praised by me [is] the boon-giving Veda-mother. Let them urge on the soma-hymn of the twice-born. Having given to me life-time, breath, progeny, cattle, fame, property, Vedic splendor, go ye to the brahma-world.

A corresponding verse is found in the supplement (p. 915 of the Calc. ed.) [p. 855 of the Poona ed. | to TA. x. 36, reading thus: stuto mayā varadā vedamātā pracodayantī pavane dvijātā: āyuḥ pṛthivyām draviņam brahmavarcasam mahyam datvā prajātum brahmalokam (the accentuation is only partial, and worthless); its variants hardly help the interpretation of our verse. The translation given above makes no pretense to being an intelligent one; it merely endeavors to make what sense it can, with least divergence from the manuscript readings. For a it implies stuta maya varada vedamātā, which agrees throughout with the mss., save that they accent vedamātā in several different ways; the pada-mss. give varadā without division. For b is implied prá codayantam pavamaním dvijánam (with our edition); the mss. accent pracodáyantām; and excepting W's P.M.W., which give pāvamānim | they read pāvamāni, which SPP. adopts. In the second division, SPP. reads paçúm, with [about] half the authorities, and with the comm.; the remaining authorities favor our paçun, giving that or paçum. The comm. explains varada by istakamapradatri, and vedamata by vedasya rgādirūpasya mātā, signifying the sāvitrī, and standing as subject to pra codayantām, which is pluralis majestaticus, as is also vrajata. [Weber discusses varadā and the TA. passage at Ind. Stud. ii. 194 (as Whitney notes in the margin), and resolves stuto into stutā u.

72. For the favor of the gods.

[Bhṛgvangiras Brahman. - ekarcam. paramātmadāivatam. trāiṣṭubham.]

Follows in Pāipp. directly after hymn 68. It is given in full* in the Kāuç. text (139. 26), at the end of the ceremony of commencement of Vedic study; Land the pratīka is cited at 139. 25; and the scholiasts add its use at the end of the parvan ceremonies (Keç. to section 6; p. 310, l. 5), and of the pindapitryajīa (Keç. to 89. 17; p. 371, l. 12), and to the snānavrata (note to 42. 18). *LAS to the citation in sakalapātha, cf. p. 897, ¶ 3.

Translated: Griffith, ii. 320.

1. Out of what receptacle we bore up the Veda, within that do we set it down; what is performed [and] sacrificed by the heroic might of the brahman, with that fervor, O gods, favor ye me here.

Some of the mss. accent variously abharāma and vedam; [Griffith renders by bunch of grass,' again (as at 68. 1) implying the accent vedām: but this accent is given only by SPP's S^m .; two or three of SPP's have rtām instead of krtām in c; the version in Kāuç. 139. 26 gives in place of either adhītam. Ppp. reads in a, b udbharāmi veda tasminn antar va dudhmay enam.

[Here ends the seventh and last anuvāka, with 18 hymns (or 14 or 13: see introd. to hymn 60, above); and with 55 verses, if we count them as they are numbered in the Berlin text. They are summed up as 55 verses by certain mss.— No mention of the ending of a prapāṭhaka is made in the colophon.]

[Pāippalāda excerpts concerning book xx.]

[Roth, at the end of his Collation, adds the Ppp. variants for verses 12 and 16 and 17 of AV. xx. 34; the hymn appears in Ppp. xiii. and corresponds to the sá janāsa indraḥ hymn, RV. ii. 12.]

[Verse 12. In a, Ppp. has paryacarakṣac instead of paribhāvam; its b is yo vārga-kasya vāpibat sutam; its c reads yajamānam bahum janam; and in d, it has āmoru-cakṣat for āmūrchat.]

Verse 16. In a, Ppp. has vyakṣat putror up- for vyàktah pitrôr up-; its b is simply bhuvana veda janitaḥ; its c is parasyā bhaviṣyamāno hrojokṣad.

[Verse 17. In a, Ppp. has haryasyaçur for haryaçva āsuter.]

[Then follows a note to the effect that nothing of the Kuntāpa hymns appears in Ppp.]

[Roth's Collation closes with the words:

"explicit feliciter 25. Juni 1884."]

2. List of Hymns ignored by the Kāuçika-Sūtra

In his copy of the Kāuçika, Whitney has noted the hymns in question. I have modified his list; but it can hardly be drawn with entire precision Thus if we accept the statements of the scholiasts as to and certainty. what hymns or verses are included in certain ganas or meant by certain terms (like brahmagavyāu at 48. 13 or vṛṣalingāḥ at 29. 15) or pratīkas, all the hymns under book v. and some others (like vi. 95) may be struck At 36. 13, rathajitām should mean vi. 130; but Dārila from the list. and Keçava both understand 130-132 to be intended. For some hymns as to which the reader, seeing an asterisk or a blank in Bloomfield's Index, might be in doubt, a few words may be said: iv. 4 is textually cited at 40. 14, and so is tx. 9 at 18. 25; for ii. 20-23, see introd. to ii. 19; and for iv. 7, see introd. to iv. 7. Hymns iii. 26-27 are really cited under the name digyukte at 14. 25; iv. 23-29, as the mrgāra-hymns, at 27. 34; and vi. 35-36 as the vāiçvānarīye at 31.5. Hymn vii. 81 is cited as the dārçī-verses at 24. 18. Certain pairs have the same pratīka and so give rise to questions: thus vii. 50. I and vi. 37. 3; vii. 73. II and ix. 10. 20; vii. 75. 1 and iv. 21. 7; xvi. 5. 1 and vi. 46. 2. Hymns vi. 94, vii. 92, and vii. 93 are perhaps doubtful. As to book xix., see p. 896. The table follows according to the three grand divisions.

3. Concordance of two Methods of citing the Kāuçika-Sūtra

The references to this treatise in the commentary as printed in the Bombay edition are made by adhyāya, and by kandikā as numbered from the beginning of each adhyāya, but without giving the individual sūtra. Bloomfield and Whitney cite by kandikā as numbered from the beginning of the treatise, and by sūtra. The addition of the sūtra makes the reference more precise and convenient; but both methods are at fault. citations should be by adhyāya, by kandikā as numbered from the beginning of the adhyāya, and by sūtra. For the convenience of those who wish to study the Kāuçika as cited by the comm., the following concordance The Roman numerals with the smaller Arabic figures (at the left and middle of each column) show the citations according to the method of the Bombay edition; the larger Arabic figures show the kandikās as numbered by Bloomfield. A better way to harmonize the two methods than by the use of this table is to write on the upper outside corner of each odd page of Bloomfield's text-edition the adhyāya with a Roman numeral, and the kandikā as numbered from the beginning of the adhyāya with an Arabic numeral.

5. Pāippalāda Passages corresponding to Passages of the Vulgate

[Primary use of the table, its genesis and character. — Its primary use is for finding in the facsimile the Pāipp. parallel of a given Vulgate passage. For the genesis of the table, the reader will please consult pages lxxxv-lxxxvi. It is a provisional table; but it will be, as I hope, a very useful one, pending the appearance of the transliteration of the Kashmirian text with marginal references and index as explained at p. lxxxvii. The pencilled numbers described at p. lxxxv I have used with care in making the table; but since I have not verified the table from the facsimile, I do not warrant its accuracy, nor can I vouch for its completeness.]

[Incidental uses of the table.—It is of no small critical interest as giving a bird's-eye view of the mutual relations of the Vulgate and Pāippalāda material as respects general arrangement. Thus the cases in which hymns of a given Vulgate book correspond to hymns of the same book in Pāipp. are noticeably frequent in books i., ii., iii., and iv.; while Vulgate book vi. appears largely in book xix. of Pāipp. The fact that the hymns of book vii. appear mostly in the very last book of Pāipp. (in xx.) agrees remarkably with our conclusions respecting the character of that book as a supplement to the nucleus of the first grand division. So, again, the fact that the material of the second grand division is massed in

Pāipp, in its books xvi. and xvii. is a striking confirmation of the view that the Vulgate books viii.-xii. constitute a distinct unity subordinate to that of the whole samhita. Even yet more striking is the fact that the material of the third grand division of the Vulgate, books xiii.-xviii., has been grouped by the Pāippalāda text-makers into a single book, their xviii. The fact has already been noted above (p. clix) in its proper connection; and the details of the correspondence are given below, in the next para-It will be noticed that while nearly all of the paryāya material of division II. appears in Pāipp., nearly all of that of division III. is no less noticeably lacking, although it is probably recognized in the case of books xv. and xvi. as a part of the text. Once more, the table shows interesting examples of the breaking up in Paipp. of material which, although treated as a hymn-unit in the Vulgate (cf. vi. 28), is devoid of internal connection. As was noted above (pages cli and cliv), the put-together character of some of the hymns in vii. appears plainly here; and the added verse by which the Vulgate hymn in vi. transcends the norm is conspicuously absent in Paipp. - I may add that the table gives a conspectus of the number of the verses of the individual hymns which will sometimes prove useful. In vii., although retaining the Berlin numbering, I have made shift to take account of the true division of the material into hymns (cf. the table at vii. 6, 45, 54, 68, 72, 76).]

[Vulgate grand division III. and Păippalāda book xviii. — This book fills just a trifle less than a dozen of the birch-bark leaves, namely leaves 228-239: its first verse (= first vs. of Vulgate xiv.) begins on the very last line of folio 227 b, and its last (= last vs. of Vulgate xviii.) ends on line 8 of folio 239 b with the vipsa of Vulgate xviii. 4. 89 d, om vittam me asya rodasī. The Pāipp, book falls between 313 a and 330 b of Roth's Kashmirian nāgarī transcript (p. lxxxi); but, in the citations which follow in this paragraph, reference is made, not to that transcript, but rather to the leaves of the birch-bark original as given in the facsimile, and the side of the leaf, recto or verso, is indicated by a or b, and the line by a number. The relations of Vulgate division III. to Pāipp. xviii, are obscured in the table on p. 1023 by the straggling verses of which account is there made; I therefore subjoin (p. 1015) a tabular statement designed expressly to make those relations clear. It will be observed, in the first place, that, on the one hand, the Vulgate books xiv. (wedding verses) and xvii. (Vishnu sun-hymn), and the first half of xiii. (Rohita sun-hymns) are given substantially in full in Paipp.; and that, on the other, the paryayabooks xv. (Vrātya) and xvi. (Paritta) and book xviii. (funeral verses) are not textually given, but are merely acknowledged as a part of the text by the citation of a few representative passages; and that, moreover, so far as Pāipp, xviii, is concerned, the paryāya-hymn xiii. 4 and the hymn xiii. 3 are ignored entirely. — It appears, secondly, that the order of Vulgate xiii. and xiv. is inverted in Pāipp.; but that the order of the remaining four books is the same for both recensions. — It appears, thirdly, that Pāipp. xviii. consists of 6 anuvākas, and that these anuvākas correspond in the main to certain Vulgate anuvākas: anuvākas I and 2 of Pāipp. to the two long anuvāka-hymns which make up Vulgate xiv.; 3 and 4 of Pāipp. to the first two anuvāka-hymns of Vulgate xiii.; and anuvāka 6 of Pāipp.¹ to the Vulgate anuvāka-hymn, or book, xvii., and the representative verse of Vulgate xviii. — It appears, finally, that anuvāka 5, containing the representative citations from Vulgate books xv. and xvi., consists of hardly 16 lines. The fact that so brief a passage should figure in the text as an anuvāka (it is expressly so called in its colophon: 238 a 12) must, I think, be interpreted as indicating that these books were acknowledged as a part of the text by the text-makers (so Roth and Whitney: cf. p. 794). — The colophon of anuvāka 3, we may add, appears to be somewhat misplaced: another case of misdivision (cf. p. 814).]

[By way of correction to p. 794, line 10, we may add that Roth errs in saying that xvi. 8. I is given in Pāipp.; its pratīka is like that of 9. I, but the facsimile actually shows 9. I and not 8. I. This is in accord with the general method of scribal abbreviation (cf. p. cxx), for 9. I is the last paryāya, and the abbreviated book thus appears to be represented, as it should be, by the beginning and end of each of its two anuvākas. — A similar error has arisen at p. 884, in my second addition to the note on xviii. 4. 49, where this verse is said to come immediately after the end of Vulgate xvii. in Pāipp. The error is due to a slip of Roth's, who, in his Collation, had written xviii. 4. 49 where he should have written xviii. 4. 89. The latter is the last verse of xviii., and is therefore the one that we should expect as representative verse. The addition should be transposed from p. 884 to p. 894.]

| Explanation of the table. — The table follows the sequence of the hymns of the Vulgate, book by book. At the left of each column is the number of the hymn. Then follows the word "has," with the number of verses of which the hymn consists and a colon. If the hymn is lacking in Pāipp., the colon and all else is omitted. Otherwise, after the colon comes the word "at" and then the number of the leaf of Roth's Kashmirian nagari transcript (p. lxxxi) on which the beginning of the correspondent of the Vulgate passage concerned occurs, with the recto or verso of the leaf indicated by a or b. At the right is added in Roman numerals, immediately after the word "in," the book of the Kashmirian recension to which the passage concerned belongs. It is to be understood that the Vulgate passage includes the whole hymn unless the contrary is indicated by the specification of the verses of the hymn between the colon and the word "at." The number specifying the verses is to be understood as an ordinal throughout division I. and the Supplement (the short hymns). Elsewhere (that is, throughout divisions II. and III., the hymns of many verses) it is to be understood as a cardinal, and the abbreviation vss. or vs. is added. To find which verses of a given hymn are meant and the details of their order, the reader will have to consult the introduction to that hymn (cf. the introduction to ix. 3 or 4 or x. 2 or xi. 6).

[Manner of using the table. — Example: to find in the facsimile of the birch-bark ms. the Pāippalāda passage corresponding to Vulgate xix. 50. 5. First find in the table the number of the leaf of Roth's Kashmirian nāgarī transcript, which is 196 b. Then find in the facsimile the number 196 b, noted in the margin in Roth's hand. Between that and 197 a will be found the beginning of the passage required, which in this case will be at line 1 of birch-bark folio 158 b, on plate 286, and in the Second Part. The passage belongs to book xiv. of the Kashmirian recension.]

Users of the table will find it convenient to note clearly in pencil on the margin of each plate of the facsimile the number of the leaf of the transcript opposite the place where Roth has written it on the birch-bark original, since, by reason of repairs to the original or otherwise, Roth's numbers are sometimes hard to make out when taken singly. When taken together in their regular sequence, they can usually be identified with ease. Thus the 197 a on plate 286 (just cited) is very faint indeed; but the 197 b (some five inches lower down) is so plain that it enables us to identify the 197 a. Of the references to Roth's Kashmirian nāgarī transcript on the first 42 plates, only a few can be made out easily (6 a, 6 b, 7 a, 8 a, 11 b, 12 a, 12 b, 13 b, 14 a, 15 b, 16 a); but beginning with 19 a, on plate 43, there is usually little difficulty.

[Tabular Concordance. — The table now follows on the next six pages. It is made up into pages in such a way as to give incidentally a good idea of the structure of the Vulgate text; and the same purpose I have endeavored to subserve also in the arrangement of the Table of Hymn-titles (pages 1024-1037): see especially pages 1034 and 1035.]

6. Whitney's English Captions to his Hymn-translations

[These captions form an important element in his interpretation of this Veda. — Upon this subject I have already spoken in the proper place, above, p. xcv, which see. I would merely repeat the statement that these captions or hymn-titles have been formulated with much care and deliberation by the author, and give briefly his view of the general purport of each hymn. The absence of a positive view in them is often to be taken as indicating that he could not accept the view of his predecessors. Such titles of individual hymns as are not from Whitney's hand are enclosed in ell-brackets; but the headings to the Grand Divisions and to the books of division III. and to the paryāyas of books xv. and xvi., although not bracketed, are from the editor's hand.

[In tabular form, they give a useful conspectus of the subject-matter of this Veda. — While this fact is obvious, it is perhaps not so obvious that the giving of this table as a part of the Table of Contents in volume VII., beginning on p. xv, would have detracted much from the perspicuity of that table as a guide to this work as a whole. Moreover, such a table as this is more naturally sought near the end of the work, and the balance of the two volumes is better maintained by putting these pages in volume VIII.

[Note on the division of this work into two separately bound volumes. — With reference to this subject, the reader is asked to consult the paragraphs entitled "External form of this work," volume VII., pages xxiv-xxv. In order to arrange the following matter so that Division II. should face Division III. (pages 1034-5), it was necessary to leave this page blank. The blank may be utilized in part to show clearly that the break between volume VII. and volume VIII: corresponds with the break in the text between the first grand division on the one hand, and the second and third grand divisions on the other. In using this work, it will be convenient, as it is also easy, to remember that and that

Volume VIII. begins with book viii., page 471.]

7. The Names of the Seers of the Hymns, as given by the Anukramani

[Whitney's exploitation of the Major Anukramani. — In his Excerpts from the Anukramani, Whitney has given most of the material of value to be found in that treatise, but of course without attempting to settle all doubtful points in such a way as might properly be expected of a critical editor of its text. One of the uses of the following Index will be to make the deficiencies of this part of his work more readily apparent. The Excerpts and Index together will make the task of producing a critical edition relatively easy.]

[Doubtful points. — In some cases, this Index does not tally perfectly with the Excerpts. Thus vi. 46 and 47, as well as 45, seem to be ascribed to "Angiras Pracetas, with Yama": cf. the Excerpts. Again, mantroktarsi of the Excerpt for vi. 48 may perhaps mean "Agni and Rbhu and Indra"; but I have not entered those names for this hymn in the Index. Whitney seems to have had a doubt as to vii. 27–29, whether they should not be ascribed rather to Bhṛgvangiras than to Medhātithi; and as to vii. 31, whether it should not be ascribed rather to Brahman than to Bhṛgvangiras; and as to vii. 33. What the Anukr. means to say about vi. 63 is not wholly clear.]

[Entire books of division III. ascribed each to a single seer. — It will be noticed that four entire books (all belonging to the third grand division: see p. 1035) are ascribed by the Major Anukramaṇī each to a single seer: books xiii. and xvii., each addressed to the Sun, are ascribed to Brahman as seer; the wedding verses, book xiv., most appropriately to Sāvitrī Sūryā; and the funeral verses, book xviii., to Atharvan (the Old Anukr. most appropriately calls them the Yama-hymns: p. 814). Further, so far as quasi-authorship goes, the Vrātya book, xv., is treated as a unit in that no seer is named for the whole nor for any part of it. As for book xvi., which puzzles us in more ways than one, there is good reason to think that tradition ascribes it to Prajāpati (see p. 792, ¶ 4); on the other hand, this is not wholly certain (p. 792, ¶ 5), and the Excerpts actually assign 3-4 to Brahman and 5-7 to Yama, and leave 2 and 8 and 9 without express assignment, unless indeed we are to assume that the statements for 1 and for 7 hold good respectively for 2 and for 8 and 9.]

[Value of these ascriptions of quasi-authorship. — The facts just cited would appear to be of some moment as differentiating the third grand division from the other two; but otherwise and in general, how much value, if any, is to be attached to these ascriptions is matter for special study. It would be interesting to compare the ascriptions of the AV. Anukr. with those of the RV. Anukr. and to see how far the two treatises agree as to hymns or verses common to both samhitās. The Puruṣa-hymn (xix. 6 = RV. x. 90) is ascribed by both treatises alike to Nārāyaṇa; and the Apratiratha-hymn (xix. 13 = RV. x. 103) similarly to Apratiratha. In this connection, cf. Dr. Ryder's pertinent observation at p. 739, \P 7.

[Prominence of Atharvan and Brahman as seers. — The most prominent names among the "seers" are Atharvan and Brahman. To the former are ascribed 175 hymns or parts of hymns; and to the latter, 100. Then comes Atharvangiras with 17, and Angiras with 16. The preponderance of ascriptions to Atharvan and Brahman may have something to do with the designation of the text as "Atharva-Veda" and "Brahma-Veda" (brahman suggests both Brahmán = 'God Brahm' and bráhman = 'incantation': cf. p. 931, top). It is perhaps matter for surprise that more hymns are not ascribed to the "dreadful Angirases" (RV. x. 108. 10: cf. x. 14. 3 a).

Question of contrast between hymns of Atharvan and hymns of Angiras.—Bloomfield, discussing at SBE. xlii., p. xviii, the name Atharvangiras as name of this Veda, opines that atharvan refers to the auspicious practices and angiras to the practices of hostile sorcery (yātú, abhicārd) of this Veda. Similarly Victor Henry, in his La magie dans l'Inde, p. 22. This opinion is not in the least degree supported by the general character of the hymns ascribed respectively to Atharvan and to Angiras. Of those ascribed to Atharvan, nearly all are indeed intended for use in working good, and the infrequent exceptions (like iii. 18; vii. 35 and 70; vi. 138, a charm to make a man impotent) do not count for much. Of those ascribed to Angiras, on the other hand, hardly more than one (vii. 90: this also is for destroying a man's virility) may be said to be for use in working evil. It is licit, however, to adjudge the facts last rehearsed as making rather against the critical value of the Anukramani's ascriptions than against the acceptability of the opinion of Bloomfield and Henry.

[Consistency in the ascriptions. — Consistency does nevertheless characterize these ascriptions to a certain degree. Thus the frequency with which each of the hymns of a related pair or of a larger group (e.g. the Mṛgāra hymns) is ascribed to the same seer is significant. Significant also are such facts as follow. Of the seven hymns ascribed to Garutman, every one is an incantation to be used against poison: v. 13 and vi. 12 and x. 4, in particular, against snake-poison. Each of the three hymns ascribed to Kāṇva is an incantation against worms. Each of Jamadagni's three has for its purpose to win a woman's love. Of those ascribed to Yama or to Yama with Añgiras (disregarding xvi. 8 and 9, they number 13), all but one refer either to "Death" or to "his brother Sleep" (cf. p. 994, ¶ 4). Thus ten, as appears from the duḥsvapna etc. of the Excerpts, refer to evil dreams; and one (vii. 64) to the omen of a "black bird" as Yama's "messenger of death"; and one (xii. 3) to cremation of the dead. Verse 13 of this last also makes reference to the black bird, and so does xix. 57. Of the four ascribed to Bādarāyaṇi,* two (iv. 38; vii. 109) are for success in gambling.

* Weber suspected that the author of the Anukr. may have been a Vedantist, and that it was thus not unnatural that the name of Bādarāyaṇi should appear among his ascriptions (see above, p. 218, top). Weber derived his suspicion from a remark by the author of the Anukr. on the last verse of book iv., Brahmānam sarvatra Jātavedābhimukhyenāstāut. If the author bases his remark upon the letter of our text (which has brāhma, neuter), let us hope that his philosophical acumen was more penetrant than his philological.

[Palpably fabricated ascriptions. — Not a few of the ascriptions are palpably fabricated from a word in the text. Of this kind are Up-heater and Forth-heater (Ucchocana and Praçocana) as seers of vi. 103 and 104, and Deliverance and Release (Unmocana and Pramocana) as seers of vi. 105 and 106. Strangely enough, none of these four words (or "names") occurs in any of these four hymns, but rather (the first two) in vii. 95 and (the second two) in v. 30, which latter furthermore is also ascribed to Unmocana.]

[Alphabetical index of seer-names and of passages ascribed to them. — This Index was made by Whitney, but was carefully revised by Dr. Ryder and again by me.]

8. Brief Index of Names and Things and Words and Places

An elaborate index uncalled for here. — The existence of Whitney's complete and accurate Index Verborum to the AV. makes needless a full index of Sanskrit words for this work. Again, since the whole text is treated, each place or passage in its natural order, an index of places is also unnecessary. Moreover, an excellent English index of names and things is furnished by Griffith in his Translation. The following index, therefore, may legitimately be kept within very narrow limits. Its purpose is merely to aid in finding a few matters which are not to be found by the help of Whitney or Griffith. On the other hand, it is obvious that it would be possible and most useful to make for this work an exceedingly detailed index, giving, for example, under the heading Surd and sonant interchanged, every case of that kind to be found by careful comparison of the Atharvan text with the variants reported in this work. Such an index would be practically a collection of brief essays upon the subjects named in its headings, and would involve (see p. xxxvii, ¶ 2) a variety of special investigations which are too large to be undertaken here and must be left for another occasion. I hope that the student of this work will find the arrangement of the matter of the General Introduction so clear, and the analytical table of contents so thorough and perspicuous, that the absence of a detailed index to the matter of the Introduction will not be felt.

LArabic numerals by themselves refer to the pages of the main body of this work, the "Translation and Notes"; Roman numerals by themselves refer to the pages of volume VII. which precede the "Translation and Notes." Numerals in groups refer to book and hymn and verse, or rather to the notes thereon.

Omissions and errors not easy to rectify in the electrotype plates.— Of the omissions and errors, the minor ones have been made good in the plates; the more considerable ones are rectified here, and to these rectifications special attention is called at the proper places by a hand (1867) inserted in the plate and pointing to the number of this page or the following.

- lxxxii, paragraph 2, and lxxxv, top: I seem to be in error in supposing that Roth made his autograph nāgarī transcript directly from the birch-bark original. Garbe writes me, April 27, 1905, that Roth's autograph nāgarī transcript consists of two quarto volumes, that it was made from Roth's Kashmirian nāgarī transcript (see p. lxxxi), and that it has been collated with the birch-bark original at the beginning, not very far, the variants being noted in red ink. I can hardly see what Roth's purpose was in making a new transcript from anything else than the birch-bark original, unless it be that the new transcript was to serve merely as a convenient hand-copy on which to note the variants of the birch-bark leaves, which could thus be collated in their proper order without injury.
 - 57 (ii. 13. 3): Confusion of surd and sonant, aspirate and non-aspirate. This is shown by the variants of the following passages which I have noted: AV. vi. 3. 3; 28. 1; 29. 3; ix. 9. 17; x. 4. 13, 23 (sarvebhyo); 7. 43; xi. 1. 2; 5. 1; xii. 2. 23; 3. 2, 55; 4. 29; xiii. I. 1; 2. 15, 43; xiv. 2. 31, 37 (vṛddhaye), 68; xviii. 1. 30; 2. 14, 35, 47; 3. 52; 4. 63; xix. 9. 8; 11. 6; 13. 5; 24. 6 (adhi dhās); 33. 3; 34. 2, 3; 36. 3; 38. 1 (gantho); 39. 10; 56. 4, 5. Roth discusses these matters, ZDMG. xlviii. 106-111. Cf. above, p. 1043, Index, s.v. Surd; also J. Hertel, Tantra-ākhyāyika, 1904, p. xvi; and Bloomfield's Vedic Concordance, passim (e.g., under atha and adha).

- 197 (iv. 27.6): Neither von Schröder nor I can find the MS. citation.
- 266 (v. 25.8): ÇGS. reads abhi kranda vilayasva.
- 327 (vi. 61.3): Add: [Here ends the sixth anuvāka, 10 hymns with 30 verses; the Anukr. quotation is [pañcama-]ṣaṣṭhāu trinçatkāu (read trinçakāu?).]
- 455 (vii. 90. 3): The Old Anukr. says [dvitiya-]astamāu nava. The dvitiya- was not given at p. 404, but refers to anuvāka 2, with its 9 hymns.
- 461 (vii. 101. 1): The hymn is treated at length by Pischel, Album-Kern, 115-7.
- 547 (ix. 7, introd., line 10): The an-uktapāda verses are rather all except 7, 18, 19, 22, 23.
- 601 (x. 8.43): Garbe, in his Sāmkhya-tattva-kāumudī, Abh. der Bayerischen Ak. der Wiss., xix., p. 529, reports previous views as to this verse, renders b by "mit drei Schnüren (d. i. dreifach) umhüllt," and takes "triply covered" as referring to skin and nails and hair.
- 792 (book xvi., introd.): It occurred to me as an afterthought (p. clviii, note) that the Pāli term Paritta, 'protection, defense' (cf. Sanskrit paritrāna), might be an acceptable equivalent in a single word for 'a prayer against the terror by night.' See Index, p. 1043, s.v. Paritta, and compare the use of the term in the Jātaka, ii. 34¹⁶, 35²², and especially at 1489. The Mora-jātaka contains a Paritta to be used at sunrise (ii. 33¹⁹; iv. 334⁴) and one to be used at sunset (ii. 35¹¹; iv. 334⁷).
- 943 (xix. 30): It is of interest to note that a part of this hymn was translated by Sir William Jones in a botanical essay published by him in the Asiatick Researches, Calcutta, 1795, vol. iv., p. 257. In the London reprint of 1798, it may be found at

- iv. 253; and in that of 1801, at iv. 243. I do not remember meeting any earlier translation into English of a part of this Veda.
- 970 (xix. 45. 2): Whitney cites doubtfully, at Grammar, § 194, the MS. combination suhārn nah. At § 150 b he records instances of retention of radical non-nasal mute after r: thus, ūrk, vārk, avart, āmārt, suhārt; compare Kielhorn's Grammar, § 14 of either edition, German or English.

Harvard Oriental Series

EDITED, WITH THE COÖPERATION OF VARIOUS SCHOLARS, BY

CHARLES ROCKWELL LANMAN

PROFESSOR OF SANSKRIT IN HARVARD UNIVERSITY

Published by Harvard University, Cambridge, Massachusetts United States of America

-  A copy of any one of these volumes, postage paid, may be obtained directly anywhere within the limits of the Universal Postal Union by sending a Postal Order for the price as given below, to The Publication Agent of Harvard University, Cambridge, Massachusetts, United States of America.
-  The price per volume of the royal octavos is one dollar and fifty cents ($1.50) = 6 shillings and 2 pence = 6 marks and 27 pfennigs = 7 francs or lire and 70 centimes = 5 kroner and 58 öre = 3 florins and 70 cents Netherlandish. From this, the approximate equivalents of the other prices may be estimated. The precise equivalents may be learned at any post-office that issues money-orders.

VOLUME I.—The Jātaka-mālā: or Bodhisattva-avadāna-mālā, by Ārya-çūra; edited by Hendrik Kern, Professor in the University of Leiden, Netherlands. 1891. Royal 8vo, bound in cloth, xiv+254 pages, price $1.50.

This is the editio princeps of a collection of Buddhist stories in Sanskrit. The text is printed in Nägarī characters. An English translation of this work, by Professor Speyer, has been published in Professor Max Müller's Sacred Books of the Buddhists, London, Henry Frowde, 1895.

VOLUME II.—The Sāmkhya-pravacana-bhāsya: or Commentary on the exposition of the Sānkhya philosophy, by Vijnāna-bhiksu: edited by Richard Garbe, Professor in the University of Tübingen. 1895. Royal 8vo, bound in buckram, xiv+196 pages, price $1.50.

This volume contains the original Sanskrit text of the Sānkhya Aphorisms and of Vijñāna's Commentary, all printed in Roman letters. It is of especial interest in that Vijñāna, not accepting the atheistic doctrine of the original Sānkhya, here comes out as a defender of downright theism. A German translation of the whole work was published by Professor Garbe in the Abhandlungen für die Kunde des Morgenlandes, vol. ix., Leipzig, Brockhaus, 1889. "In spite of all the false assumptions and the errors of which Vijñāna-bhikṣu is undoubtedly guilty, his Commentary . . . is after all the one and only work which instructs us concerning many particulars of the doctrines of what is, in my estimation, the most significant system of philosophy that India has produced."—Editor's Preface.

VOLUME III.—Buddhism in Translations. By HENRY CLARKE WARREN. 1896. 8vo, buckram, xx+520 pages, price $1.20.

This is a series of extracts from Pāli writings, done into English, and so arranged as to give a general idea of Ceylonese Buddhism. The work consists of over a hundred selections, comprised in five chapters of about one hundred pages each. Of these, chapters ii., iii., and iv. are on Buddhist doctrine, and concern themselves respectively with the philosophical conceptions that underlie the Buddhist religious system, with the doctrine of Karma and rebirth, and with the scheme of salvation from misery. Chapter i. gives the account of the previous existences of Gotama Buddha and of his life in the last existence up to the attainment of Buddhaship; while the sections of chapter v. are about Buddhist monastic life.

VOLUME IV.—Rāja-çekhara's Karpūra-mañjarī, a drama by the Indian poet Rāja-çekhara (about 900 A.D.): critically edited in the original Prākrit, with a glossarial index and an essay on the life and writings of the poet, by Dr. Sten Konow, of the University of Christiania, Norway; and translated into English with notes by Professor Lanman. 1901. Royal 8vo, buckram, xxviii+289 pages, price $1.50.

Here for the first time in the history of Indian philology we have the text of a Prākrit play presented to us in strictly correct Prākrit. Dr. Konow is a pupil of Professor Pischel of Berlin, whose Prākrit grammar has made his authority upon this subject of the very highest. The proofs have had the benefit of Professor Pischel's revision. The importance of the play is primarily linguistic rather than literary.

VOLUMES V. AND VI. — The Brhad-Devatā, attributed to Çāunaka, a summary of the deities and myths of the Rig-Veda: critically edited in the original Sanskrit with an introduction and seven appendices, and translated into English with critical and illustrative notes, by ARTHUE A. MACDONELL, Boden Professor of Sanskrit in the University of Oxford, and Fellow of Balliol College. 1904. Royal 8vo, buckram, xxxvi+198 and xvi+334 pages, price per volume $1.50.

Volume V. (or Part I.) contains the introduction and text and appendices. Volume VI. (or Part II.) contains the translation and notes. The arrangement of the material in two volumes is such that the student can have the text of any given passage, together with the translation of that passage and the critical apparatus and the illustrative notes thereto appurtenant, all opened out before his eyes at one time, without having constantly to turn from one part of the volume to another, as is necessary with the usual arrangement of such matter.

VOLUMES VII. AND VIII.—Atharva-Veda Samhitā, translated, with a critical and exegetical commentary, by William Dwight Whitney, late Professor of Sanskrit in Yale University. Revised and brought nearer to completion and edited by Charles Rockwell Lanman, Professor of Sanskrit in Harvard University. 1905. Royal 8vo, buckram, clxii + iv + 1046 (= 1212) pp., price of the two volumes $5.00.

This work includes, in the first place, critical notes upon the text, giving the various readings of the manuscripts, and not alone of those collated by Whitney in Europe, but also of those of the apparatus used by S. P. Pandit in the great Bombay edition. Second, the readings of the Paippalāda or Cashmere version, furnished by the late Professor Roth. Further, notice of the corresponding passages in all the other Vedic texts, with report of the various readings. Further, the data of the Hindu scholiast respecting authorship, divinity, and meter of each verse. Also, references to the ancillary literature, especially to the well-edited Kauçika and Vaitāna Sūtras, with account of the ritualistic use therein made of the hymns or parts of hymns, so far as this appears to cast any light upon their meaning. Also, extracts from the printed commentary. And, finally, a simple literal translation, with introduction and indices. Prefixed to the work proper is an elaborate critical and historical introduction.

Volume IX.—The Little Clay Cart (Mrcchakatika), a Hindu drama attributed to King Shūdraka, translated from the original Sanskrit and Prākrits into English prose and verse by ARTHUR WILLIAM RYDER, Ph. D., Instructor in Sanskrit in Harvard University. 1905. Royal 8vo, buckram, xxx +177 pages, price $1.50.

Volume X.—A Vedic Concordance: being an alphabetic index to every line of every stanza of every hymn of the published Vedic literature, and to every sacrificial and ritual formula thereof. By Maurice Bloomfield, Professor of Sanskrit and Comparative Philology in Johns Hopkins University. The work, with which Bloomfield has been busy for over a dozen years, will form a royal quarto of about 1100 pages. Of these, fully 800 are already printed (June, 1905); the completely revised manuscript of the remainder is at the press; and it is hoped that the printing will be finished soon after Jan. 1, 1906. For an account of the work, see the last page of vol. iv. of this Series. The Concordance will serve as a register of the varietas lectionis for the texts of the Vedic literature, and thus prove to be an auxiliary of the very first importance in the work of making new editions of the Vedic texts; and many subsidiary uses of Bloomfield's collections will suggest themselves to scholars.

IN PREPARATION

No promise of a definite time for the completion and appearance of any of the following works will under any circumstances be given; they are nevertheless in such a state of advancement that some public announcement concerning them may properly be made.

Buddha-ghosa's Way of Purity (Visuddhi-magga), a systematic treatise of Buddhist doctrine by Buddha-ghosa (about 400 A.D.): critically edited in the original Pāli by the late Henry Clarke Warren, of Cambridge, Massachusetts.

The "Way of Purity," which has been for fifteen centuries one of the "books of power" in the East, is, as Childers says, "a truly great work, written in terse and lucid language, and showing a marvelous grasp of the subject." Mr. Warren published an elaborate analysis of the entire treatise in the Journal of the Pāli Text Society for 1891-93, pages 76-164. His plan was to issue a scholarly edition of the Pāli Text of the work, with full but well-sifted critical apparatus, a complete English translation, an index of names, and other useful appendices, and to trace back to their sources all the quotations which Buddha-ghosa constantly makes from the writings of his predecessors. The text, it is hoped, may be published without too much further labor on the part of the editor of the Series.

Mr. Warren died in January, 1899, in the forty-fifth year of his age. Accounts of his life and work may be found in the (New York) Nation for Jan. 12, 1899; in the Harvard Graduates' Magazine for March, 1899; in the Journal of the Royal Asiatic Society for April, 1899 (with a list of his writings); in the (Chicago) Open Court for June, 1899; or in the Journal of the American Oriental Society, vol. xx., second half.

Buddha-ghosa's Way of Purity, a systematic treatise of Buddhist doctrine, translated into English from the original Pāli of H. C. Warren's edition, by the late Henry Clarke Warren and Charles Rockwell Lanman. Mr. Warren had made a large part (about one third) of the translation. With this part as a help and guide, the editor of the Series hopes to complete the version and to publish it as soon as is feasible. The text and translation will perhaps take three or four volumes.

The Pancha-tantra, according to the recension of the Jaina monk Pūrņa-bhadra (about 1200 a.D.), critically edited in the original Sanskrit by Dr. Johannes Hertel, of the Royal Gymnasium of Doebeln in Saxony, and Dr. Richard Schmidt, of the University of Halle.

The basis of Doctor Schmidt's excellent version of the Pancha-tantra was a text prepared by him from several European manuscripts. In the meantime, Doctor Hertel has procured a very large amount of manuscript material from India, chiefly from Poona, has subjected the same to searching critical study, and is embodying his results, so far as they concern the actual readings, in a thorough revision of the printer's copy of the text. The other results of his labors have been published in several periodicals, especially the Berichte der Kön. Sächsischen Gesellschaft der Wissenschaften for April, 1902, and in recent volumes of the Zeitschrift der Deutschen Morgenländischen Gesellschaft (lvi., lvii., lviii., lix.). The Çarada-MS., numbered viii. 145 in the Catalogue of the Deccan College MSS, and containing the Tantra-ākhyāyika or Kashmirian recension of the Pancha-tantra, has proved to be of such great importance for the history of this branch of Sanskrit literature that Doctor Hertel has published it (Abhandlungen of the Saxon Society, vol. xxii., 1904), not as a definitive text-edition, but as part of a literary-historical investigation and as one of the essential preliminaries for the edition of Pürna-bhadra's recension to be issued in the Harvard Series. It appears that the last-named recension is a fusion of the Tantra-ākhyāyika and the so-called Textus Simplicior of the Panchatantra.

The Pancha-tantra, translated into English from the original Sanskrit of the recension of Pūrṇa-bhadra, by Paul Elmer More, sometime Assistant in Sanskrit in Harvard University, now of the Editorial Staff of the New York Evening Post.

This version, prepared several years ago from Doctor Schmidt's manuscript copy by Mr. More, has yet to be so revised as to bring it into conformity with the meantime thoroughly revised text of Pūrṇa-bhadra's recension. Apart from the intrinsic interest and merit of the stories of which the Pancha-tantra consists, this translation makes an especial appeal to students of Indian antiquities, of folk-lore, and of the history of popular tales.

History of the Beast-fable of India, with especial reference to the Pancha-tantra and to the related literature of Southwestern Asia and of Medieval Europe, by Dr. Johannes Hertel of the Royal Gymnasium of Doebeln in Saxony.

Although this volume is primarily designed to be an introduction to Pūrṇa-bhadra's Panchatantra, its scope is nevertheless such that it may with propriety be entitled a History of the Beast-fable of India. The definitive arrangement of the material is not yet settled, but the general plan may be given under six headings.

- I. Brief outline of the incidents of each story, together with a reference for each story to its precise place in the original Sanskrit text, the method of citation to be such that the same reference will apply with equal facility to either the text or the translation or the apparatus criticus or the commentary.
- II. Tabular conspectus of strophes and stories contained in forms of the Pancha-tantra anterior to Pūrṇa-bhadra.
- III. Apparatus criticus. 1. Account of the MSS. collated. 2. A piece of the text printed in several parallel forms side by side (Tantra-ākhyāyika, Simplicior, Ornatior) as a specimen, to illustrate the relative value of the several MSS. and Pūrna-bhadra's way of constructing his recension. 3. Readings of the MSS. Bh, bh, A, P, p, etc.

IV. Introduction to the text of Pūrṇa-bhadra. A. First part, extending to the death, in 1861, of Benfey. 1. Editions: Kosegarten's; Kielhorn-Bühler's; other Indian editions. 2. Translations: of Benfey, Lancereau, Pavolini, Fritze, Galanos. 3. Semitic recensions and their effluxes. 4. Benfey's results as contained in his Pantschatantra of 1859 and his Introduction to Bickell's Old Syriac Kalilag und Damnag of 1876. B. Second part, from the death of Benfey. 5. Bibliography of the various treatises. 6. History of the Sanskrit Pancha-tantra. Form, age, and name of the original Pancha-tantra. 7. The Brahmanical recensions of the work: Guṇāḍhya, Nepalese fragment, etc.; Tantra-ākhyāyika; Southern Pancha-tantra. 8. Jaina recensions: so-called Simplicior, its age, etc.; so-called Ornatior, author, age, etc.; Megha-vijaya; later recensions; mixed recensions. 9. Buddhist recension, Tantra-ākhyāna.

V. Notes to the several stories of Pūrna-bhadra's text. Parallels in the Jātaka, etc. References to Benfey.

VI. Indices. 1. Of names. 2. Of things. 3. Of verses. 4. Of meters.

The Çakuntalā, a Hindu drama by Kālidāsa: the Bengālī recension critically edited in the original Sanskrit and Prākrits by RICHARD PISCHEL, Professor of Sanskrit in the University of Berlin.

Thirty years ago Pischel made his first edition of this master-piece of the Hindu drama. Meantime he has published, as a very important part of the Bühler-Kielhorn Grundriss der Indo-Arischen Philologie, his elaborate Grammatik der Prākrit Sprachen. In the way of experience and study, therefore, his equipment as an editor of this play is peculiarly complete. As for the externals of paper and print and binding, it is intended that this edition shall be got up in a manner to correspond with its scholarly character and with the intrinsic merit of the play; and it is to be sold at a very moderate price.

The Cakuntala, translated into English from the edition of Professor Pischel, with an exegetical and illustrative commentary, by ARTHUR WILLIAM RYDER.

Whereas Dr. Ryder's version of The Little Clay Cart (vol. ix. of this Series) was primarily a literary one and aimed to avoid technicalities, his work upon the Çakuntalā is primarily philological, and of it the technical commentary is an essential part. In this comment he hopes to include the most or all that is of substantive importance in the observations of his predecessors whether Occidental or Hindu; to treat the relation of the subject-matter of the play to the older forms thereof as seen in the Epos and the Jātaka; to bring out the double meanings and the various other Hindu "embellishments" of the play; to note the parallelisms in poetic thought or diction or technique between the Çakuntalā and the other works of Kālidāsa and of the Indian literature; to illustrate the allusions to the mythology and antiquities of India by citations translated from the best native authorities; to show, throughout, the relation of this play as a work of art to the Hindu canons of dramaturgy; and at least to assemble the data for the solution of the important critical question whether the Çakuntalā may not have served as the model play upon which the earlier of those canons were based.

The Commentary (Yoga-bhāshya) on Patañjali's aphorisms of the Yoga philosophy, translated from the original Sanskrit into English, with indices of quotations and of philosophical terms, by Dr. James Haughton Woods, Instructor in Philosophy in Harvard University.

Of the six great philosophical systems of India, we can hardly say that more than two, the Sānkhya and the Vedānta, have been made accessible to Occidental students by translations of authoritative Sanskrit works. For Shankara's Comment on the aphorisms of the Vedānta system, we have Deussen's translation into German and Thibaut's into English. For the Sānkhya, we are indebted to the labors of Wilson and Garbe and Gangānāth Jhā for versions of the Kārikā and of the Tattva-kāumudī. The Yoga system is confessedly next in importance; and the Yoga-bhāshya, ascribed to Vyāsa, is the best and most thorough exposition of its fundamental doctrines. It is also the oldest; Garbe refers it to the seventh century of our era, and the evidence adduced by Takakusu of Tokyo may prove it to be considerably earlier.

In the preparation of his translation, Dr. Woods has had the benefit of Deussen's criticism; and he has revised his work under the oversight of Gangādhara Shāstrin and of his pupils in Benares; and he has constantly consulted Vāchaspatimiçra's sub-comment on the Yoga-bhāshya, and, as occasion required, the Yoga-vārttika of Vijnāna-bhikshu and other works of more modern scholiasts. It is hoped that this work will throw light upon the early history of the Mahā-yāna school of Buddhism.

The Talavakāra or Jāiminīya Brāhmana of the Sāma Veda: critically edited in the original Sanskrit, with a translation into English, by Hanns Oertel, Professor of Linguistics and Comparative Philology in Yale University.

In 1877, A. C. Burnell brought this Brāhmana to the notice of European scholars. Soon after, he procured manuscripts, and turned them over to Professor Whitney. With the aid of pupils, Whitney made a transliterated copy of one, and himself collated the copy with the others. Since 1891, off and on, Oertel has been at work upon the restoration of the corrupt text of this Brāhmana, and has published considerable parts of it in the Journal of the American Oriental Society (vol's xv., xvi., xviii., xix., xxiii., and xxvi.) and elsewhere. It is his intention to add to his translation systematic references to the parallel passages from the other Brāhmanas.
